Miranda McOsker, 15, is one of 253 girls out of 100,000 high school students in California who are playing football this year, according to the California Interscholastic Foundation. She joined the private Catholic school's football program last spring.

Filmmaking with a heart

Cameron Crowe sounds off on music, writing and the inspiration for his latest film "Elizabethtown."

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Writer and director Cameron Crowe said he always follows his instincts when making a film.

Despite a successful box office run including films such as "Jerry Maguire" and "Almost Famous," Crowe said it was a struggle to get his latest film off the ground.

"It is much easier to make a heist movie or a slasher movie," Crowe said during a conference call with college journalists. "Those are easier to sell and market and all that stuff. You really have to fight to make a movie 'Elizabethtown'."

People and events from his own life often inspire Crowe's films, he said.

William Miller, the budding rock writer at the center of "Almost Famous," is based on Crowe himself.

After seeing the film's portrayal of Crowe's relationship with his mother, many fans asked him about his father, and the concept of "Elizabethtown" was born.

"'Elizabethtown' is a tribute to my dad, and somewhat of a love letter to his home state, Kentucky, and that came from personal experience in knowing how much that was a part of our family heritage," Crowe said.

The film's main character Drew Baylor (Orlando Bloom) is faced with the unexpected death of his father, an experience that Crowe went through years ago.

As a young writer, Crowe said he felt reluctant to use events from his personal life in his writing. He changed his mind, however, after the heartfelt response he received from readers of an autobiographical article he wrote for Rolling Stone magazine.

"Real life is often more poetic than anything you can write," Crowe said.

One true-to-life theme central to "Elizabethtown" is the sting of failure.

Drew creates a daring new product that loses millions of dollars for his employer and feels worthless after his boss fires him.

Crowe said he could relate to Drew's situation just after the release of his box office bomb "Vanilla Sky."

"Just when you think your life is over, wait – don't give up," he said. "If this incredible failure hits on a Wednesday, give yourself Thursday and maybe Friday, and watch what destiny might put on your doorstep."

Crowe's optimistic outlook on life is evident in the character of Drew in "Elizabethtown."

"I look at it as a character that is trying to be a warrior for optimism in a sometimes brutal and often cynical world," he said. "I just think that is a hero now, particularly now because it is often pretty dark out there."

Crowe's love of music is responsible for the integral role that song often plays in his films.

He uses Elton John's tune "My Father's Gun" in the movie to give voice to a dead character, Drew's father.

"Every once in a while the right piece of music can really match something you filmed and scratch at your soul in a way that as a music fan, and a film fan, you feel like both are enhanced," he said.

A unifying factor of all Crowe's films has been the transformational power of love. The man who penned the immortal line "You had me at hello" believes that love really can turn a life around.

"It is great when you are feeling like you are absolutely alone in the world to meet someone who is out for you that you did not expect to know or be there for you," he said. "I don't know that (love) is the solution but it is a gift that comes out of believing in humanity."

Crowe lives his life and writes his films by a simple truth that he shares with aspiring filmmakers around the world.

"The stuff that comes from your heart is the stuff that other people find most universally true for them, too."

Photos courtesy Paramount Movies
Photo Illustration by Emily Lawrence | COLLEGIAN

European bands search for recognition in America

Album review by Mark Sibilla
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"HOWL HOWL GAFF GAFF"

The Shout Out Louds are an energetic pop-rock band hailing from Sweden. On its debut, the band busts out 11 highly catchy ditties about love and loss. "Howl Howl Gaff Gaff" was released in the band's native country in 2003; after many tours around the globe and recording new EP tracks, the Shout Out Louds have rearranged their debut for American release.

Their influences are immediately obvious on the opening tracks "The Comeback" and "Very Loud." "The Comeback" chugs along with an appealing synthesizer hook, very similar to the sound of The Cars from the 1970s.

The former single, "Very Loud," sees the synth line pushed into the background and allows the briskly strummed guitars and insistent drumming to drive the song. "I want to change/And to make different plans/And try to choose another way/This is why this love can't stay," lead singer Adam cries in his nasally voice.

There are some skills for the Shout Out Louds upon which to improve. Most obvious are the lyrics. Trite couplets like, "There are songs that never should be written/There are words that never should be said/But there's nothing I can do about it cause the words are in my head," from "There's Nothing" will immediately induce cringes.

The band should also gain a stronger identity and become less derivative. "Shut Your Eyes" is simply an inferior reworking of The Strokes' "The Modern Age," while the chorus of "100" could be mistaken for Modest Mouse. At its worst, the Shout Out Louds are an overly energetic, overly saccharine imitation of better bands; however, through much of the album, the band's vigor works to its advantage leaving the listener eager to get up, dance and do what the band's name asks of them.

Courtesy art

"OUT OF NOTHING"

British bands can seem to be plotted on similar trajectories: successful ground breakers that bring an onslaught of imitators. In the 60s, The Beatles brought with them similar sounding mimics such as Herman's Hermits, The Hollies, and The Dave Clark Five. The 70s and 80s had the breakout of punk and post-punk rockers that each had a distinct sound, but similar intent.

As with most of these British bands, the songs are made to pull at the heartstrings and have the listener weep tears of joy or sadness.

Often these are in the form of majestic ballads. When done well, the listener doesn't know he is being swept along on universal lyrics of defeat or perseverance; when done wrong, however, the listener can't help but feel used by the obvious ploy to elicit emotion.

Thankfully, Embrace's attempt at affecting music is fulfilled more often than it disappoints.

This is most obvious on "Gravity," co-written by Coldplay's Chris Martin. Sure, it is gaudy and over-sentimental, but when the chorus comes in, one can't help but feel a swirl of emotion within the stomach. "Someday" is a choir-influenced number of hope and redemption, while "Wish 'em All Away" is a harmonica-fueled song focused around the flow of the word "wish" within the chorus.

There are some complaints to be leveled at "Out of Nothing." While the musical swells within a song can add weight, there are a few numbers that swell and build without really going anywhere; there is no release of the tension built in the song.

In these two immigrants, we find albums that are solid but not life-changing. Both have dependable and endearing qualities that give the listener a reason to care, but each also has detracting traits.

The Shout Out Louds are an energetic and promising band that simply needs to hone its sounds and skills, while Embrace has dug a niche as a talented Britpop act that could stand to roughen its edges.

NEW RELEASES

Courtesy art

1492 — Columbus reaches the new world

After sailing across the Atlantic Ocean, Italian explorer Christopher Columbus sights a Bahamian island, believing he has reached East Asia. His expedition went ashore the same day and claimed the land for Isabella and Ferdinand of Spain, who sponsored his attempt to find a western ocean route to China, India and the fabled gold and spice islands of Asia.

1870 — Robert E. Lee dies

General Robert Edward Lee, the commander of the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia, dies peacefully at his home in Lexington, Va. He was 63 years old.

1931 — Johnny Weissmuller cast as Tarzan

MGM selects Olympic gold medal swimmer Johnny Weissmuller to play Tarzan. Weissmuller won five gold medals competing in the 1924 and 1928 Olympics, then starred as Tarzan in numerous films through the late 1940s. The film series moved to television in 1966; although Weissmuller didn't star in the TV shows, he did contribute the famous Tarzan yell that was used on the program. Weissmuller died at the age of 79 in 1984.

Courtesy art

1938 — Production starts on The Wizard of Oz

The Wizard of Oz became an enduring classic. In 1956, an estimated 45 million people tuned in to watch the movie debut on television as part of the Ford Star Jubilee. The movie spawned two sequels, including Journey Back to Oz (1974), an animated film featuring the voice of Liza Minnelli, Judy Garland's daughter, and Return to Oz (1985). A remake with an African American cast, The Wiz, starring Diana Ross and Michael Jackson, was released in 1978 with music arranged and conducted by Quincy Jones.

1940 — The cowboy actor Tom Mix dies in an Arizona car accident

On this day in 1940, the famous cowboy actor Tom Mix was killed in a freak car accident near his ranch in Florence, Ariz. Driving his single-seat roadster along a straight desert road, Mix apparently ignored warnings that a bridge was out on a shallow gully and was fatally crushed by a heavy suitcase that flew off the rear shelf of his car.

1960 — Nikita Khrushchev threw a tantrum at the United Nations

In one of the most surreal moments in the history of the Cold War, Russian leader Nikita Khrushchev removes his shoe and pounds a table with it in protest against a speech critical of Soviet policy in Eastern Europe.

1972 — Racial violence broke out aboard U.S. Navy ships

On this day, racial violence flared aboard U.S. Navy ships. Forty six sailors are injured in a race riot involving more than 100 sailors on the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk en route to her station in the Gulf of Tonkin off Vietnam. The incident broke out when a black sailor was summoned for questioning regarding an altercation that took place during the crew's liberty in Subic Bay (in the Philippines). The sailor refused to make a statement and he and his friends started a brawl that resulted in 60 sailors being injured during the fighting. Eventually 26 men, all black, were charged with assault and rioting and were ordered to appear before a court-martial in San Diego.

1998 — The victim of an anti-gay assault dies

University of Wyoming student Matthew Shepard died after a vicious attack by two anti-gay bigots. After meeting Shepard in a Laramie, Wyo., gay bar, The Fireside, Russell Henderson and Aaron McKinney lured him to the parking lot, where he was savagely attacked and robbed.

Source: www.thehistorychannel.com

Hoping for change through learning

Film series attempts to educate community on homosexuality

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Flint Hills Human Rights Project is hosting a film series in conjunction with Tuesday's National Coming Out Day.

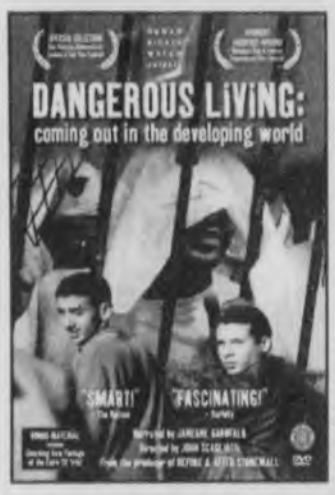
The film series is the first attempt at drawing attention in the Manhattan community to National Coming Out Day, said Christopher Renner, chair of Flint Hills Human Rights project.

Renner said the films were chosen to compliment the National Coming Out Day theme "Talk About It."

Two of the films, "Straight From the Heart" and "Out at Work: Lesbians and Gay Men on the Job" are important films because they address discrimination, he said.

"These films give good examples of change needed to include sexual orientation and gender identity/expression," he said.

National Coming Out Day Film Series



- "Out at Work: Lesbians and Gay Men on the Job"
- "Dangerous Living: Coming Out"
- "Straight from the Heart"

When: 6:30 p.m. Thursday through Monday
Where: Manhattan Public Library Auditorium, 629 Poyntz Ave.
Cost: Free

The final film, "Dangerous Living: Coming Out," portrays the changes that have occurred for gays, lesbians and transgender people in Global South.

"The film shows the fallout of being out in other cultures," Renner said.

"It is a way to build a bridge of what people in other cultures and nations are enduring.

Courtesy photos

Dramatic changes for the better have occurred in these nations as far as coming out is concerned."

The film series is important for people who have not been exposed to particular lifestyles, said Adam Paxson, senior in music performance and Queer-Straight Alliance president.

"The films put names with actual faces in stories," he said. "This makes it easier to be comfortable with this part of society."

Dining cards can prevent fraudulent charges

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Departments at K-State have a new option when buying meals for guests to campus at the K-State Student Union.

The Departmental Dining card is a prepaid account that university departments may purchase. The card works much like a debit card or gift certificate. The department pre-pays a minimum amount of $100 to the Union, which then gives the department a card.

When the department needs to purchase a meal for business purposes, it can use the card at the venue.

The card can be used in the Union at the Bluemont Room, the Union Food Court, Union Station, Chillie Willie's Ice Cream Parlor and Subway.

One of the major purposes of having the card is to prevent unauthorized charges to a department, said Craig Johnson, assistant director of operations at the Union.

"To reduce the possibility of unauthorized charges and have the ability to supply tracking information to departmental customers, the Departmental Dining Card program was created," Johnson said.

Departments can track where and when the cards are used, making it easier to monitor expenses.

"We can tell them at a certain date, at a certain time, this much was spent at this location," Johnson said.

Along with the ability to monitor charges, the card helps the Union cut back on paperwork, said Tina Griffin, food services director for the Union.

"We were getting a lot of small charges, and it's just a huge paperwork cost to generate the paperwork for bills under $5," she said. "There are so many people who use the Bluemont Room and use it for only two or three people, and for a bill that small, it's a huge amount of paperwork."

Departments have to be careful how they use the card, because it can only be used for business purposes, and each use must be documented, said Alan Klug, vice president of finance and administration for the KSU Foundation.

Since the Foundation provides some of the funds used in the cards, it must look at each use and prove that it was for business only.

"You have to look at each individual circumstance," he said. "They have got to show that it was business."

Though the card is supposed to be a convenience, people in departments said they believe it is more of a hassle.

Diane Potts, assistant to the dean of the College of Architecture, Planning and Design, said receiving the card has been a problem.

"We had to fill out quite a bit of paperwork just to get the card," she said.

Don Boggs, associate dean in the College of Agriculture, said he believes the card was more of a convenience for the Union, not the departments.

"I don't think it will make much difference," Boggs said. "We will have to have the same documentation to be able to reimburse the card. Basically, I think the advantage is for the Union so that they don't get stuck with meal expenses that someone refuses to pay for."

Shopping, brushing teeth can burn calories

By Dayne Logan
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Americans are saturated by news reports detailing rising obesity rates – and Kansas is part of that trend.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Web site, 20 to 24 percent of Kansans had a body mass index, a common obesity gauge, of 30 or above in 2004.
Thirty-two other states fell in that same range.

In nine states, more than 25 percent of the population had a BMI of 30 or greater.

In 1991, only four states had 15 percent to 19 percent of the population with BMIs of 30 or greater and no states had prevalence rates of 20 percent or greater.

The problem could lie in the acceptance or encouragement of laziness in the United States.

"We don't socially congregate to play sports," Ryan Eshelman, senior in kinesiology, said. "We socially congregate to go out to dinner."

Fortunately there are some simple ways to burn calories with everyday activities.

According to www.ez-weightloss.com, brushing teeth burns 228 calories per hour for a 200-pound man. Shopping burns 216 calories and bowling burns 276 calories for the same man.

Maintaining the home has health benefits as well.

Housecleaning can burn up to 576 calories and raking the lawn can burn 360 calories per hour for a 200-pound man.

For those less motivated than the rest, simply sitting or watching television for an hour can burn 96 calories.

Having a significant other can burn calories too.

Kissing burns 96 calories and sex burns 384 calories per hour for a 200-pound man.

According to The Fitness Jumpsite's Calorie Calculator standing in line burns 94 calories per hour for a 130-pound person, while making a bed burns 156 calories per hour.

A 130-pound person expends 70 calories per hour sleeping and 273 per hour vacuuming.

"Physical activity is still the best way to increase calorie expenditure," Katharine Grunewald, professor of human nutrition, said.

But for those people who can't find the time to exercise, everyday activities may be a close second.

The Collegian is available at
112 locations near you.
Kansas State Collegian Advertising
532-6560

kstatecollegian.com

Read the Gameday edition
Fridays before home games.
Kansas State Collegian Advertising
Call
532-6560

JOIN A CLUB
GET INVOLVED

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

TONIGHT
Dart Tournament
Sign up at 6:30
Starts at 7:30
$1.50 Drinks
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's
BAR & GRILL
776-2424 • Aggieville

Now offering
100% human hair
Hair Extensions!
Change your look in unlimited ways!
A wide range of strands of various lengths, thicknesses and colors, offers you a large variety of possibilities to fully bring out the creative genius in you!
Call today for your consultation with Darcy.
Hair Experts Salon & Spa
Serving the Aggieville area for 25 years
785-776-4455 • 800-540-6995
1323 Anderson Ave • Manhattan, KS
hairexpertssalonandspa.com

KSU Basketball Catband
Auditions
October 13, 2005
Open to ALL KSU students
Auditions begin at 6:00pm - McCain Aud.
Sign up on the bulletin board
Outside Rm. 201, McCain Aud.
for more information:
e-mail: apursell@ksu.edu or call: 532-3816

Wichita to Las Vegas
FROM $79* ONE WAY
Only at allegiantair.com
Nonstop air service from Wichita. Packages include over 30 of Vegas' most exciting casino-resorts.
allegiant air
www.allegiantair.com
800-432-3810 or call your travel agent.

KSU THEATRE PRESENTS:
DAVID MAMET'S
OLEANNA
WHATEVER SIDE YOU TAKE, YOU'RE WRONG
October 13-15 and 19-22
8:00 p.m. Nichols Theatre
Tkts: McCain Box Office
Noon to 5:00 p.m. Phone: 532-6428
$11.50 General & $7.50 Student/Senior

Answer man

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Pat Bosco, dean of student life, answers a question during a panel discussion in the K-State Student Union Courtyard Monday afternoon. Students were invited to discuss issues dealing with K-State.

NASA plans to return to moon in 2018

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Last month, NASA unveiled a plan to send astronauts back to the moon in 2018.

NASA told White House officials Sept. 14 it plans to spend $100 billion for spacecraft and rockets. During a Sept. 19 press conference, NASA Administrator Michael Griffin revealed NASA's plan for the spaceship intended to replace the shuttle and a timeline for returning astronauts to the moon.

The new crew exploration vehicle is expected to be ready for test flights in 2012.

Bharat Ratra, professor in physics, said using robots for space exploration is more cost effective and a better use of resources.

"If you lose a robot, it's not that big of a deal," he said. "However, if you lose a human, it's a big deal."

Humans find it necessary to explore and go beyond the boundaries of where they are at, said Daniel Bateman, community outreach manager of Kansas Cosmosphere and Space Center.

"Moon exploration provides an opportunity to use technology," he said. "It builds confidence so we can venture farther away from Earth on future missions."

Amanda Brown, junior in electrical engineering and Astronomy Club secretary, said they should send astronauts to the moon.

"Space exploration and trips to the moon challenge our engineers and scientists to invent new technology," she said. "If we don't take these opportunities to chase technology down, we will eventually be left in the dust."

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

ONE-AND one-half bedroom, close to campus, water/ trash paid, central air. (785)537-7810.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM DUPLEX. Available near Stagg Hill area with washer/ dryer hook-ups. Central air, one car garage. (785)537-7810.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO OR four-bedroom duplex, laundry facilities, garage. 612 Pierre. (785)449-2181.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

120 For Rent- Houses

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $650 all bills paid. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

NOW LEASING

• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillcrestandrental.com

CLEAN, QUIET two-bedroom, walking distance to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Security deposit negotiable! (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

Need a Home in Manhattan?

We offer Apartments and Townhouses throughout Manhattan, with student and non-student housing! For a preview of our properties, please visit our web site at : www.mdi-manhattan.com
For more information please contact our office at : 785-776-3804.

McCullough Development

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

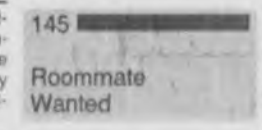
020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate



Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NOW LEASING

• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillcrestandrental.com

CLEAN, QUIET two-bedroom, walking distance to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Security deposit negotiable! (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

McDonald's Crew Positions

CREW POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Full time and part time
Above average pay
Flexible schedule
Hiring for ALL shifts, including 3rd Shift (11p – 7a)
Uniforms provided
Reduced meals
Advancement opportunities
Come join the team at McDonald's.
Please apply in person at
MANHATTAN: 815 N 3rd Street
or 1011 Westloop Place
JUNCTION CITY: I-70 & Washington Street
or 416 W 6th Street

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE FOR January- May. Two-bedroom house, close to campus. $275/ month plus utilities. Washer/ dryer. Call Megan (785)906-0131.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)537-2323.

FEMALE ROOMMATES needed as soon as possible. $194/ month plus $90 utilities. Call (785)410-0086.

ROOMMATE NEEDED: Three blocks east of campus. (785)556-0098.

ROOMMATE WANTED in January, two-bedroom apartment. Walking distance. Excellent condition. Central air, two bath, washer/ dryer, balcony. (785)341-7358.

ROOMMATE WANTED. $450 a month. One-half utilities, big house, fenced yard. 1024 Houston. Call Scott (785)341-5153.

ROOMMATE wanted. House available now through May. Shared bathroom. By Mercy Hospital, KSU football stadium. Call (913)707-5249.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT with two bathrooms. Close to campus and Aggieville, 1031 Bluemont. $275/ month, water/ trash paid, plus one-third utilities. Call (785)539-3779 or (785)456-5040.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

WANTED: MALE or female roommates for three-bedroom. Fun, outgoing, clean and classy. (785)799-4202.

310 Help Wanted

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

HIGH SCHOOL Chemistry tutor needed. (785)556-2006.

KITCHEN HELP needed, day and evening shifts. Apply online at kiteslive.com. Click on applications in top right hand corner.

LABORER; STUDENT; clean cut; able to work Monday- Friday 8-12 or 1-5; start immediately; experience in carpentry and painting a plus. (785)539-2309.

MAIL CENTER/ DUPLICATING student help needed. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with availability to work during the fall, spring, and summer semesters, as well as breaks. Monday through Friday 8-5. Duties include: campus delivery route, preparation and handling mail, and copy jobs. Computer skills beneficial and some heavy lifting required. Must have a valid driver's license. Bring your schedule and apply in person at 13 College Court Building. (785)532-5988.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PART-TIME HELP wanted. Roof truss manufacturing plant, 5107 Murray Rd., (785)776-5081.

PART-TIME LANDSCAPE designer. Looking for an individual with skills in landscape architecture or horticulture landscape design. Please call (785)539-2842 for an appointment.

PERFUME MODEL needed. Part-time, $12/ hour. Thursday- Friday. Call 1-866-605-6873.

PURPLE WAVE Auction Co. is accepting applications for part-time advertising designer and computer assistant. Computer proficiency is required, HTML and graphic layout experience is beneficial. Email resume to trat-las@purplewave.com.

SPECIAL EVENT - Hand out flyers. $10/ hour. Wednesday- Friday, 4pm- 10pm. Call 1-866-605-6873.

SUMMER INTERNSHIP open to all majors. Gain career skills, resume experience. Average earns $800/ week. Call (785)317-0455 for details.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

HOME BUSINESS Opportunity! We're 18 years old, on American Stock Exchange. $400- $4500/ month. (800)470-5432.

400 oper market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

$500! POLICE IMPOUNDS! Hondas/ Chevies/ Jeeps etc. Cars/ Trucks/ SUV's from $500! For listings and information call (800)426-9668 ext. 7536.

600 travel trip

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.ubski.com

Forty SHOWS 18 BANDS
SIX days • FIVE nights
• ONE week for TEN! •
The Ultimate Ski Trip .com
January 4-8 • From $189
BigSkiTrip.com
1-888-754-8447

SIX DAYS. NO NIGHTS.
(you can sleep when you die)
21st from $189
Steamboat
uskithis.com
1-88U-SKITHIS
(1-888-754-8447)

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK 2006— Travel with STS, America's #1 Student Tour Operator to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco, Bahamas and Florida. Now hiring on-campus reps. Call for group discounts. Information/ Reservations (800)648-4849 or www.ststravel.com.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

SPRING BREAKERS book early and save. Lowest prices. Hottest destinations. Book 15= 2 FREE TRIPS OR CASH. FREE MEALS/ PARTIES BY 11/7. Highest commission. Best travel perks. www.sunsplashtours.com (800)426-7710.

Found something?
You can place an ad FREE for three days!
Kedzie 103 532-6555

GTM SPORTSWEAR

GTM Sportswear, a leading seller of quality sportswear is now accepting applications for Part-Time operations. We are looking for quality, dependable people to add to our Warehouse, Screen-print, and Embroidery Operations. GTM offers flexible schedules, competitive wages, and an opportunity for advancement within a growing nationwide business. Please stop by 520 McCall Road, Manhattan, KS 66502 to begin your career at GTM Sportswear. EOE

Buy-Sell-Trade
Kansas State Collegian
103 Kedzie 532-6555

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Man arrested in connection with apartment fire; 3 killed

By John Milburn
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAWRENCE – Police believe a man arrested Tuesday in a Lawrence apartment complex fire lived at the complex and set the blaze that killed three people, including a social worker and a University of Kansas student.

Authorities still weren't discussing a potential motive after Jason Allen Rose, 20, was arrested and booked into the Douglas County jail on three counts of first-degree murder and one count of aggravated arson.

No charges have been filed against Rose, who was scheduled to make his first appearance Wednesday afternoon in Douglas County District Court.

Investigators identified two of the victims as Nicole Michele Bingham, a 21-year-old university student from Wichita, and Yolanda Riddle, a social worker for the state Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services. They had no age for Riddle.

Family members believe the third victim is Jose Gonzalez, a 50-year-old electrician. Yvonne Vega, a niece who lived at the complex, said a family member last had contact with him just before the fire.

"He was showered, getting ready for bed and watching the Astros game," Vega said.

As for the possibility of arson, Vega said, "It's easier if it's just an accident."

The three victims' remains were found Sunday in the ruins of the Boardwalk Apartments, said Mark Bradford, interim chief of the Lawrence-Douglas County Fire and Medical Department.

The fire early Friday did an estimated $2.1 million in damage, not counting vehicles or contents. It also displaced 87 residents, including 32 University of Kansas students, and injured about 20 people. Rose was never a student at the university, school officials said Tuesday.

Douglas County District Attorney Charles Branson said his office would charge Rose once "the investigation is further along."

Bradford said Rose became a suspect as investigators interviewed 195 people. He said authorities believe arson was involved because of how the fire started, though he would not be more specific. Fire crews from Lawrence and Johnson County battled the blaze for three hours.

"It's very time-consuming," Bradford said of the investigation. "We want to ensure it's done correctly. It's nothing that's going to happen overnight."

Donna Watson, manager of the apartment complex, declined to discuss the fire.

"Look at my face. Put yourself in my shoes," Watson said.

Rose was arrested at a foster home known as The Villages south of Lawrence. The property is owned by Robert and Cathy Kidder. Robert Kidder was listed on a 2003 juvenile court record as being Rose's foster parent.

A woman answering the telephone at the home referred all questions to Robert Kidder.

In 2003, Rose entered a no-contest plea to a charge of theft of items worth less than $500 from a hardware store and was placed under six months of court supervision.

Vega said her uncle's apartment was on the complex's first floor, and she saw an orange wall of flame in front of it early Friday. She said she's having trouble sleeping because she's dreaming about the flames.

Bingham was a senior majoring in history at the university, where she was a member of Alpha Delta Pi. She also had worked in the business office of the Kansas Union for three years.

"Nicole proved to be a bright, capable and thoughtful individual upon whom we all relied," said Director David Mucci. "She won the respect and affection of all her co-workers."

Riddle had worked at the SRS office in Ottawa, about 30 miles south of Lawrence, since late August, agency spokesman Mike Deines said. She investigated cases of potential child abuse and previously had worked for The Farm, an organization providing services to foster children.

Bradford said Tuesday the complex was built in 1965, before fire codes required such buildings to have sprinkler or alarm systems. Under current codes, it would have to have sprinklers, and individual apartment balconies would have to be separated by fire-retardant material.

Rain halts aid flights to Pakistan

By Sadaqat Jan
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MUZAFFARABAD, Pakistan – Heavy rain and hail forced the cancellation of some relief flights to earthquake-stricken regions Tuesday and survivors scuffled over the badly needed food, the first large-scale aid to make it overland to this devastated city. Officials estimated the death toll would surpass 35,000.

In the latest of a series of remarkable rescues, emergency workers in the northern town of Balakot pulled a teenage boy from the rubble, 78 hours after Saturday's quake.

"He's alive!" rescuers shouted as people gave food and water to the boy and kissed him on the head.

Two survivors, a 55-year-old woman and her 75-year-old mother, also were pulled from the rubble of a 10-story apartment building in Islamabad, 80 hours after they were buried. They did not appear to have suffered serious injuries.

A French search team on Monday rescued at least five children buried in a collapsed school in the northern town of Balakot, said Eric Supara, an official at the French Embassy in Islamabad.

Bob McKerrow, coordinator of relief efforts for the International Federation of the Red Cross, told CNN that "you can still keep some hope" for survivors trapped for five to seven days, although he cautioned that the cold and wet weather would also become a factor.

In Indian-controlled Kashmir, rescue workers Tuesday found the bodies of 60 road workers in a bus that was buried in a landslide during the quake, the army said. The bodies were cremated on funeral pyres beside the highway they were working on, officials said.

TAXES | City considers new tax policy for redevelopment

Continued from Page 1

"It's not fair. We want to do the redevelopment, but we also want to continue doing our business."

Green said if his business does move, it might have to close completely.

Other businesses also had concerns with the new TIF proposal.

Lisa Rockley, executive director for Downtown Manhattan, Inc., said TIF will not give full benefits back to the community.

"TIF boundaries, as far as downtown Manhattan is concerned, we do support the redevelopment, however, we are in opposition to the TIF district at this time," Rockley said. "We believe the boundaries should be larger to increase the leverage of the area infrastructure. It lacks vehicular access to the community of the west."

Bob Welstead, Dial Realty spokesman, said while business concerns are valid, the city, along with the designers for downtown redevelopment, will work together to provide a solid outcome for city, especially with TIF.

"This is really the first big step that we've been taking together for the past two years," he said. "With the process, it's been a long and timely, but steel sharpens steel. Each time we've examined an issue, it just makes for a better project."

VOLLEYBALL | K-State takes on Colorado at Boulder

Continued from Page 6

"They've always been a really good defensive team," Fritz said. "Then they'll stay in rallies for a long time, and they're very difficult to get kills against."

There is one player on the Colorado opposition, in particular, her players need to zone in on, Fritz said.

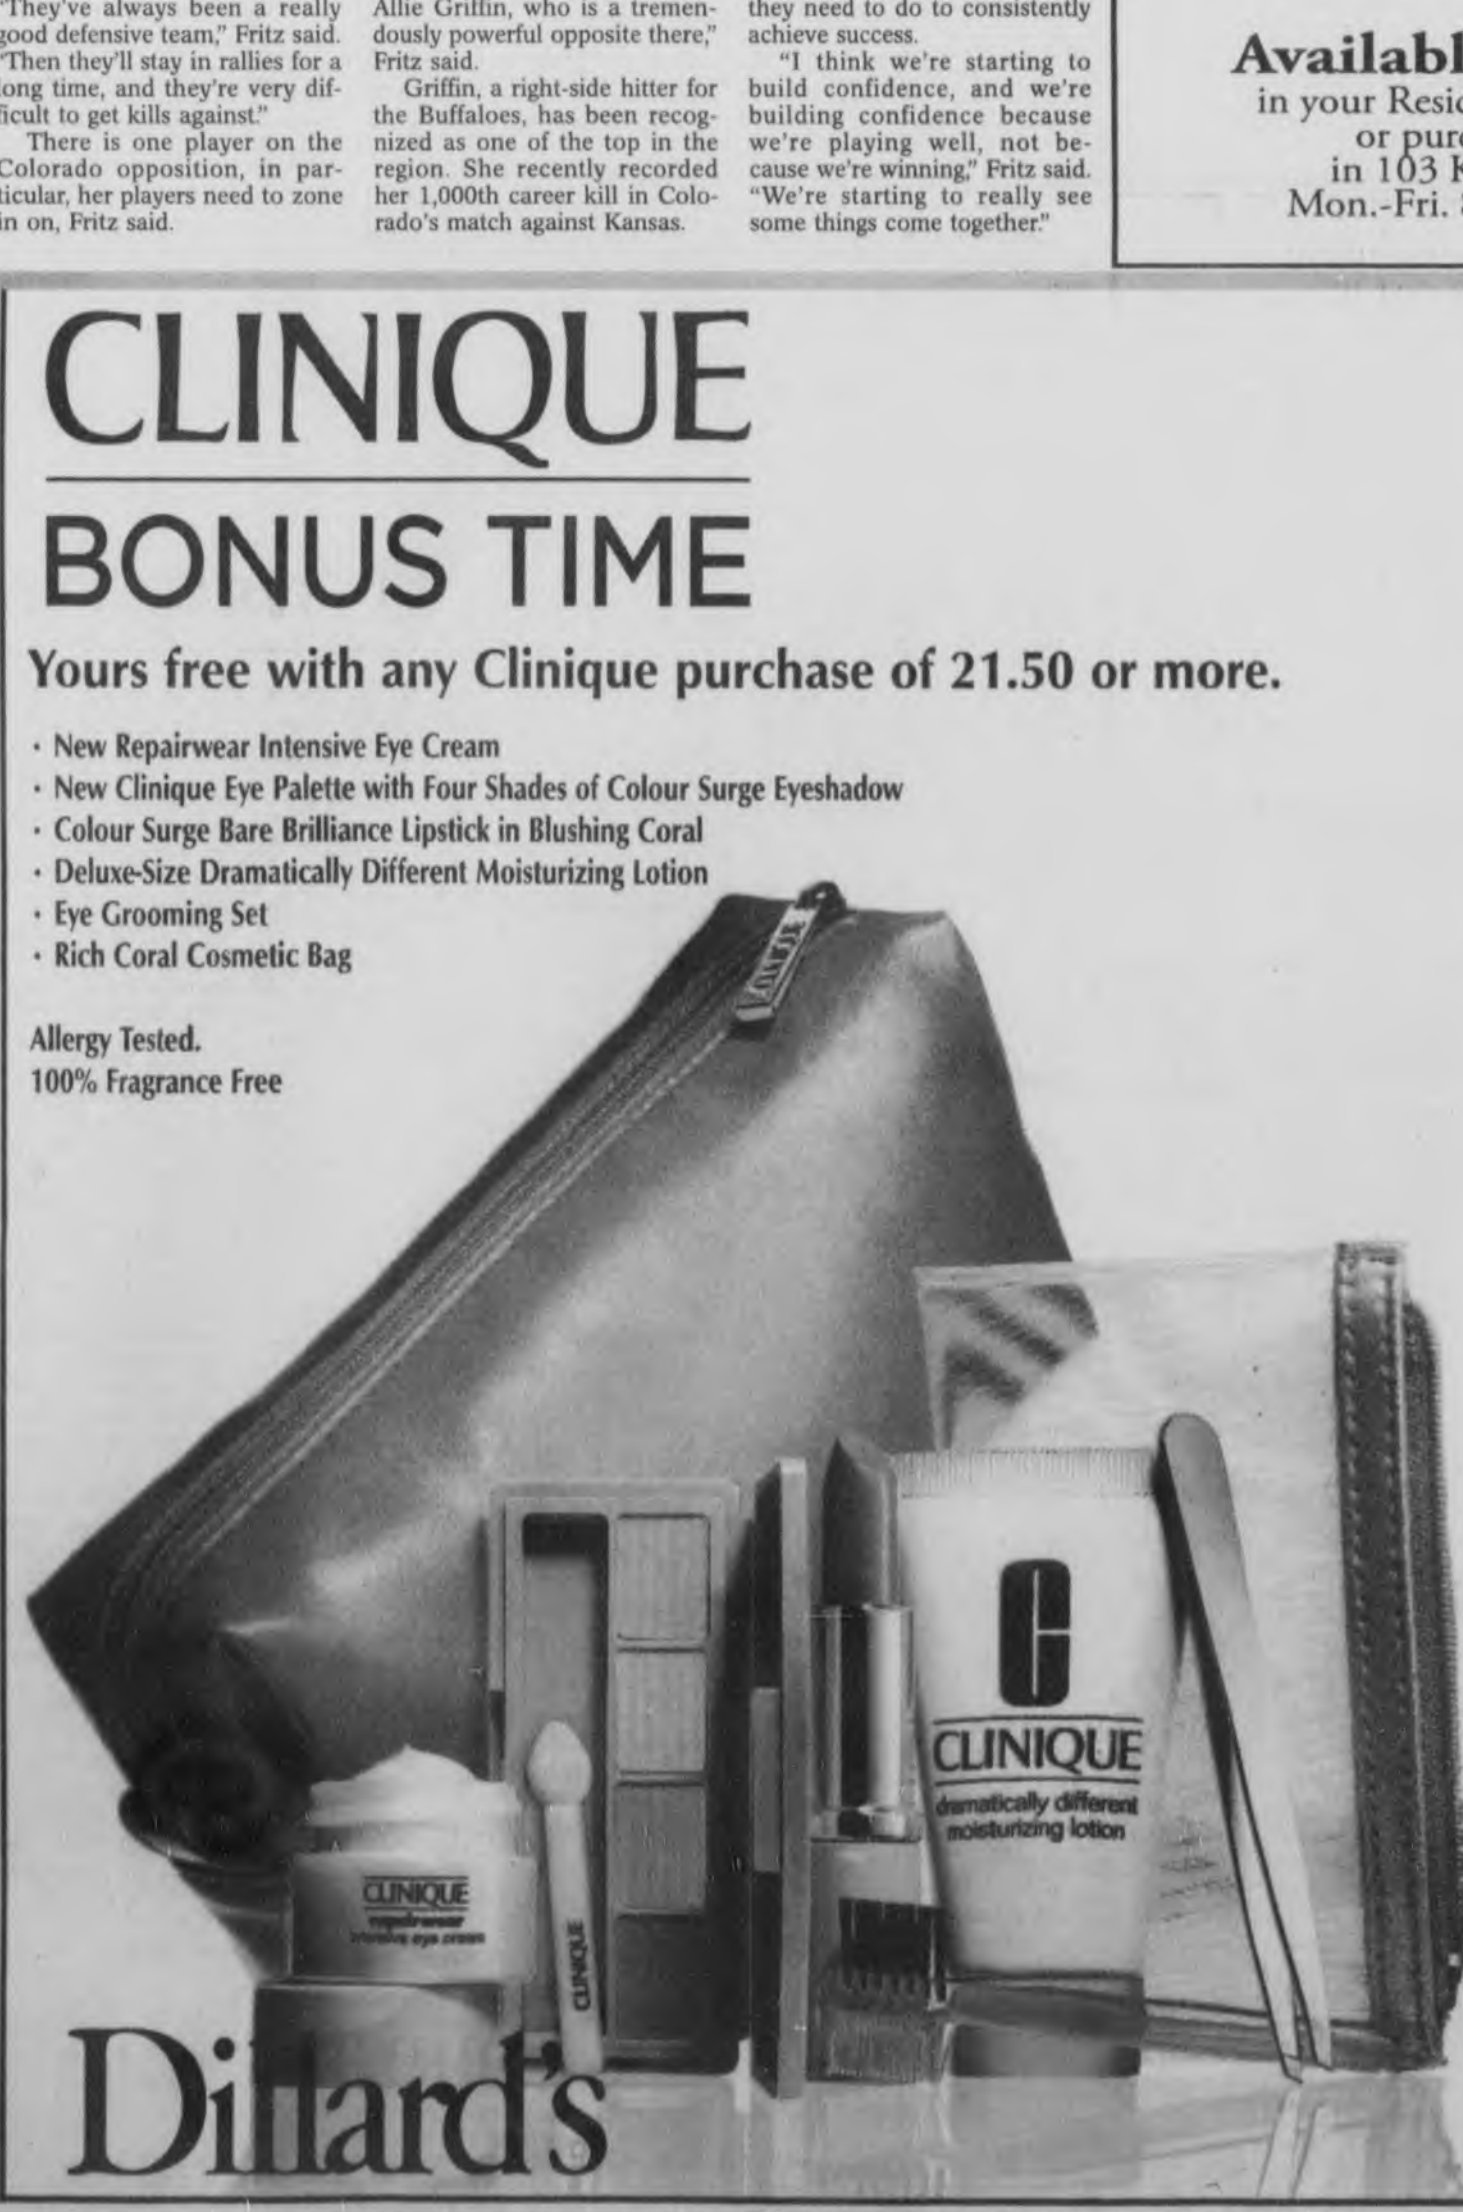
"The only thing I know is that we'll have to slow down Allie Griffin, who is a tremendously powerful opposite there," Fritz said.

Griffin, a right-side hitter for the Buffaloes, has been recognized as one of the top in the region. She recently recorded her 1,000th career kill in Colorado's match against Kansas.

Still, Fritz said her team is beginning to figure out what they need to do to consistently achieve success.

"I think we're starting to build confidence, and we're building confidence because we're playing well, not because we're winning," Fritz said. "We're starting to really see some things come together."

Where faculty e-mail is only a page away.



Kansas State University
CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
2005-2006

Available Now
in your Residence Hall
or purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

CLINIQUE
BONUS TIME
Yours free with any Clinique purchase of 21.50 or more.
- New Repairwear Intensive Eye Cream
- New Clinique Eye Palette with Four Shades of Colour Surge Eyeshadow
- Colour Surge Bare Brilliance Lipstick in Blushing Coral
- Deluxe-Size Dramatically Different Moisturizing Lotion
- Eye Grooming Set
- Rich Coral Cosmetic Bag

Allergy Tested.
100% Fragrance Free

Dillard's

Pink ABOUT IT

Join us for the pink movement and become a "partner in pink" with Dillard's.

Your participation helps Dillard's and Clinique make a donation to The Breast Cancer Research Foundation.

Try New Repairwear Anti-Aging Makeup SPF 15

Smoothes instantly.
Hydrates all day.
In 12 shades. 1 oz.,
28.50.

One gift per person, please, while supplies last.

For Your Convenience We Accept Your Dillard's Charge, Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover, Carte Blanche, Or Diner's Club Card.
SHOP MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY 10 A.M. - 9 P.M.; SUNDAY 12 NOON - 6 P.M.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

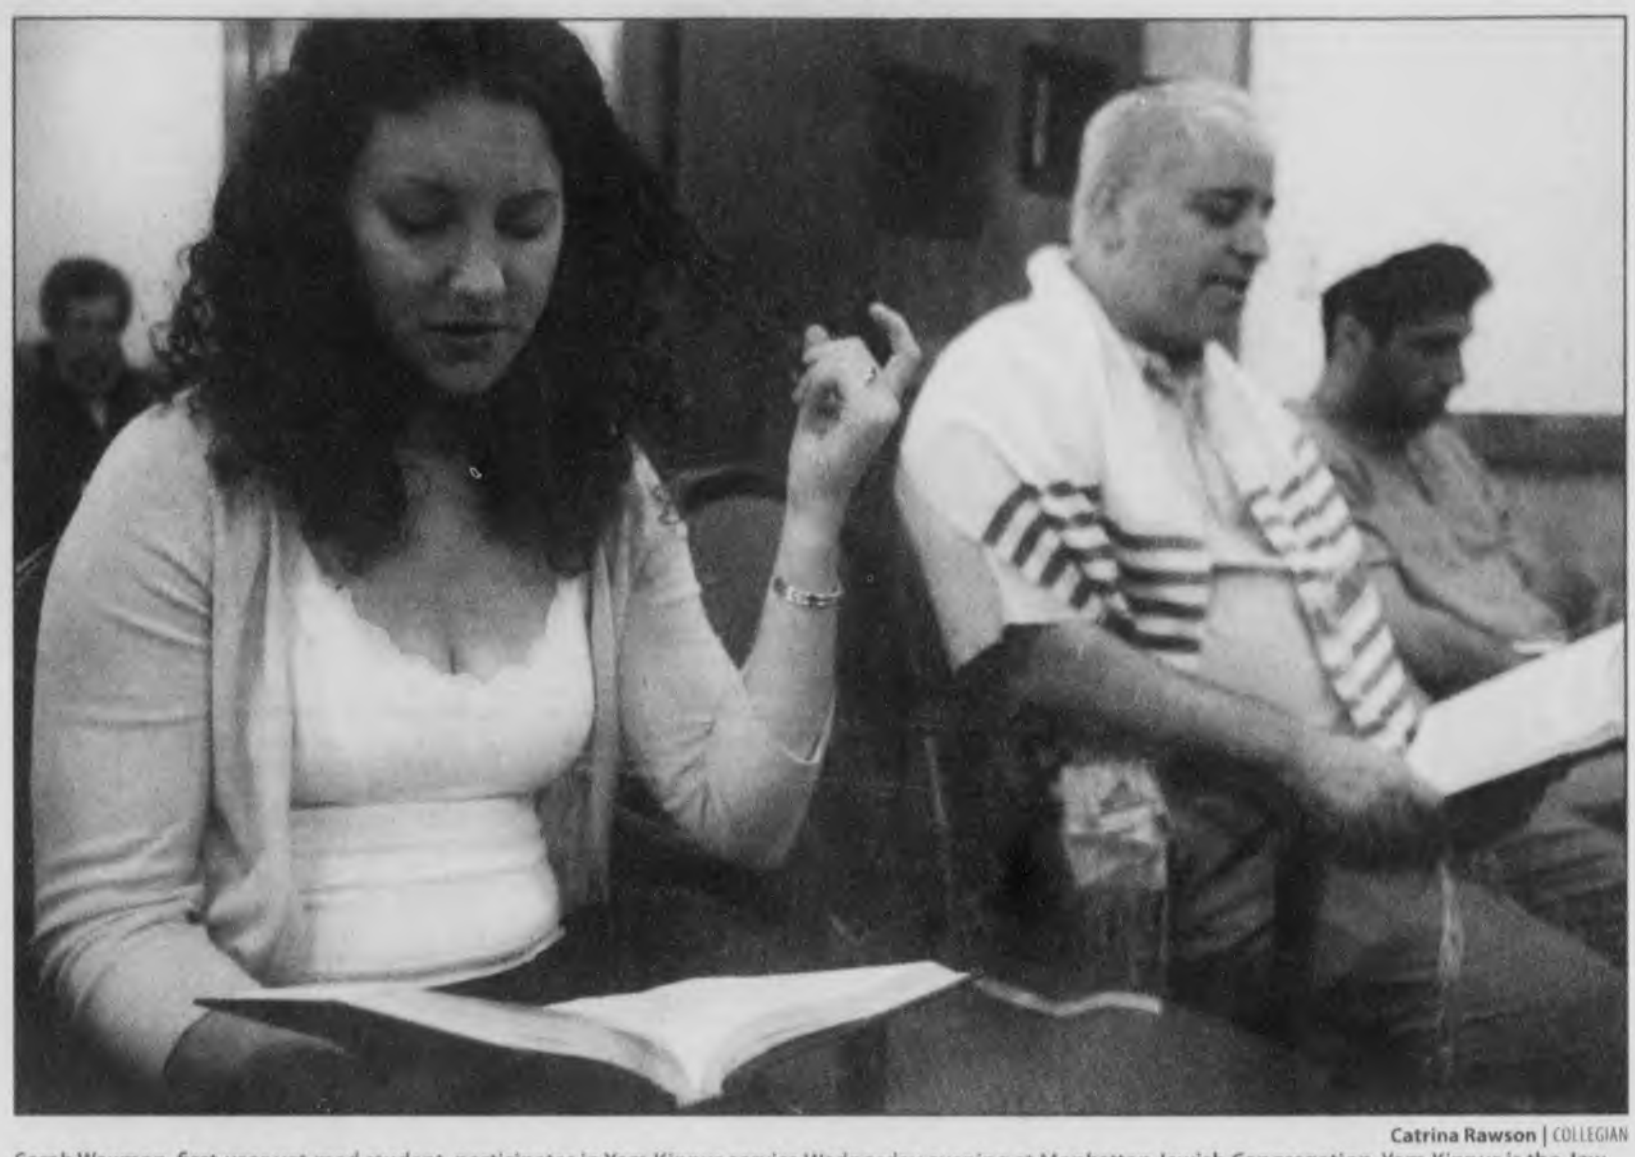
Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

Popularity of sport
Sports, Page 6

www.kstatecollegian.com Thursday, October 13, 2005 Vol. 110, No. 37

Traffic lights replaced at 4th, Poyntz

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN



Drivers at the intersection of Fourth Street and Poyntz Avenue finally have relief from the confusing traffic signals.

On Wednesday, the City of Manhattan replaced broken traffic lights at the intersection with traffic lights that were formerly at the intersection of Fourth and Houston streets. A four-way stop replaced the traffic lights at Fourth and Houston streets.

City Engineer Rob Ott suggested the replacement at the City Commission meeting Tuesday and Commissioners unanimously approved the plan. During the city's temporary solution to the broken stop lights, the confusion for drivers came about by north and south-bound stop signs, where east and west-bound drivers did not have to stop.

Lisa Rockley, executive director of Downtown Manhattan Inc., said at Tuesday's City Commission meeting the intersection is dangerous.

"I am on the second floor of my building and it scares me," she said.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Sarah Waxman, first-year vet-med student, participates in Yom Kippur service Wednesday evening at Manhattan Jewish Congregation. Yom Kippur is the Jewish day of Atonement. Waxman is also part of a Jewish group called Hillel, which meets weekly at Bluestem Biestro.

Pakistani students help with relief

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Pakistani Students Association is collecting donations from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union to send to victims of the Pakistani earthquake.

Faisal Mehmood, acting president of the PSA and graduate student in physics, said the group collected about $330 in donations on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Donations for earthquake relief
When: 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. today
Where: K-State Student Union

Mehmood said the PSA will send contributions to Doctors Without Borders, an organization now working in Pakistan.

The group is also taking donations of clothes, blankets and shoes.

Talat Rahman, distinguished professor in physics and PSA adviser, said the group hopes to collect between $5,000 and $10,000.

"I would like to see something of the order of $10,000," she said. "I don't know if that's a realistic goal.

"Just from the e-mails I'm getting, I would think we would reach the goal."

Rahman said the earthquake's death count was at 23,000 people the last she heard.

"It's quite localized," she said. "There are

See EARTHQUAKE Page 6

Finding balance

Jewish students, others come together with Hillel

FAITH ON CAMPUS

The second of a five-part series exploring the beliefs of religious groups on campus.

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Although the Jewish population in Manhattan is small, there is an active, Hillel group at K-State.

Hillel was founded in 1923 at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and has become an international organization for Jewish undergraduate and graduate students.

According to www.Hillel.org, "Hillel helps students find a balance in being distinctively Jewish and universally human."

Sarah Waxman, first-year vet-med student, is the president of K-State's Hillel group.

"We're pretty much a social group," she said. "We hang out once a week."

Socializing during a Hillel meeting, Sarah Waxman, first-year vet-med student and club president, talks with Uri Arieli, junior in computer engineering and club vice president. Hillel is the Jewish student organization and has meetings 9 p.m. Tuesdays at Bluestem Bistro.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Although Hillel is a Jewish organization the group is open to all.

Uri Arieli, junior in computer engineering, is the vice president of the K-State group but is not Jewish.

"It's not really a religious group, per se," Arieli said. "We just come, chill out, have barbecues, picnics and what not."

Compared to other university chapters, K-State's Hillel is a rather small group. Arieli said the weekly meetings can range from two or

See HILLEL Page 6

Fire department receives award, to host open house

Keith Vagts, firefighter, cleans windows in the Manhattan Fire Department Headquarters Wednesday in preparation for the station's open house on Sunday. The department earned the Life Safety Achievement Award for coming up with programs that contributed to reducing the number of deaths from residential fires.

Katie Lester
COLLEGIAN

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Candles kill.

Or at least that's what the Manhattan Fire Department is emphasizing in this year's national Fire Prevention Week campaign "Use Candles with Care."

The campaign, which lasts from Oct. 9 to Oct. 15, is only a hint of what local firefighters contribute to the city, said Don Francis, assistant fire chief of the Manhattan Fire Department.

Recently, the Manhattan Fire Department was presented a 2004 Life Safety Achievement Award by the Residential Fire Safety Institute. Roy L. Marshall, director of RFSI, announced the award to the fire department last week.

"The Life Safety Achievement Award recognizes fire departments for their prevention efforts and encourages them to continually improve those efforts," Marshall said in a report.

To qualify for the award, fire departments must have no deaths caused by fire throughout the year. Today, a total of 792 fire departments in the United States, Canada, Iceland, Italy and Greece received the 2004 Life Safety Achievement Award.

"It all comes about because of the aggressiveness we have in our building codes and fire codes," Francis said. "Luckily, we've been this way since 2001."

Marshall said fire prevention activities and public education can significantly reduce life and property loss from residential fires. "Prevention and education are very cost effective, compared

Manhattan Fire Department Open House
When: Noon - 4 p.m., Sunday
Where: Manhattan Fire Department, 2000 Denison Ave.
Cost: Free

See FIRE DEPARTMENT Page 6

Today
High 74
Low 50

Friday
High 81
Low 51

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Rim Rock considered
Rim Rock Farm is in the running for a national event that could bring an estimated 10,000 people to Lawrence in 2007. The farm is under consideration for the National Junior Olympic Cross Country Championships. It would be on Dec. 1, 2007.

Amendments approved
At least one major Sunni Arab party said it will now support the draft at the poles. Iraqi lawmakers approved a set of last-minute amendments to the constitution without a vote on Wednesday, sealing a compromise designed to win Sunni support.

Nursing expanded
Wichita State University is expanding its nursing program, adding 20 students a semester starting in January. Statewide, about 500 were turned away from the 12 baccalaureate nursing programs for the 2004-05 academic year.

DON'T FORGET

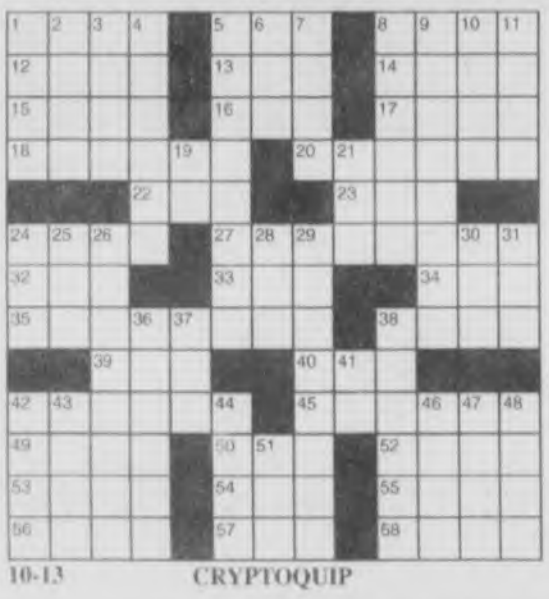
Patrick Kuhse will present "Ethics 101: A street-smart guide to maintaining ethics in business" from 9:30 to 11 a.m. today in McCain Auditorium.

Michael Wallwork will present "A new perspective on road design" at 3:30 p.m. today at Hale Library.

Bernie Hayen will present "What American business is doing right" from 7 to 8 tonight in the Union Flinthills Room.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Cobras' cousins
5 Pipe-maker's material
8 Wading bird
12 Peregrinate
13 Puncturing tool
14 Waste allowance
15 Vivacity
16 Writer Buscaglia
17 Wile E.'s supplier
18 Amble
20 Croatian e.g.
22 Urban carriage
23 Cover
24 Audible breath
27 Tuna type
32 — shoestring
33 XXXIV tripled
34 "— Town"
35 Secret-identity divulger
38 Incite
39 Prior night
40 Two, in Tijuana
42 Victoria's consort
45 Rubbernecks
49 "The Ghost and Mrs. —"
50 Eventual aves
52 Commanded
53 Dumbo's "wings"
54 Have a bug
55 Dryer collection
56 Undraped
57 Small st.
58 Epochs

DOWN
1 Wall Street wheeler-dealers
2 Do mailroom work
3 Poker hand
4 Kiss
5 Second audition
6 Buy now, pay later
7 Amorphous monster
8 Type that's inclined to be stressful?
9 Indirect and devious
10 Cookbook compiler Rombauer
11 Witnessed
19 Randy Newman's "I Love —"
21 — carte
24 5-centime piece
25 Hostel
26 Quail or grouse
28 Commit perjury
29 Whistle of a sort
30 Bad hairpiece
31 Prior to 36 Loath
37 Sun. speech
38 Practical
41 On the other hand
42 Congregation's cry
43 Waikiki wingding
44 "Wind in the Willows" character
46 Depilatory brand
47 Author Ferber
48 Congeals
51 Compete

Solution time: 25 mins.

S	E	L	F		B	A	H		K	N	G	B
O	L	I	O		E	M	U		I	A	G	O
D	O	O	H	N	A	I	L		D	I	L	L
A	N	N	I	E		A	D	D	L	E	D
			N	E	A	T		O	O	F
L	E	F	T		L	A	W	N		I	S	M
A	R	I		L	U	C	A	S		L	E	E
G	A	L		A	M	I	D		Z	E	A	L
		E	T	C		T	E	R	I
A	R	C	H	E	S			A	N	G	E	L
L	I	A	R		C	A	R	D	G	A	M	E
A	G	R	E		A	G	E		E	L	M	S
N	O	D	E		M	O	D		R	A	Y	S

Yesterday's answer10-13

10-13 CRYPTOQUIP

R 'O P XQZB VTIITRLLBZQ TH LBPHTTJ. R LZWWTLB XNPX LTOB VTZMJ VPMM OB PI PHRLNRTIPJT.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A PAIR OF DEMONS HAD THE SAME BUDDY, I SUPPOSE HE'D REALLY BE A MUTUAL FIEND.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: X equals T

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time, but hey, it's better than lecture

How broke are you?

1. When you pay your bills, which ones do you pay first?
A. The most expensive
B. The least expensive
C. You don't pay bills

2. When getting in the shower the water is:
A. Hot
B. Lukewarm
C. Ice cold

3. What do you sleep in?
A. A T-shirt and shorts
B. A sweatshirt and pajama pants
C. Long johns and a ski parka

4. What happens when someone knocks on your door?
A. You answer it
B. You check the peephole to make sure you know the person
C. You hide in your closet

5. How many times have you eaten ramen noodles this week?
A. Two times
B. Three times
C. Everyday

6. What is the general lighting of your home?
A. The lights are always on
B. Only one room
C. Candlelight only

7. How many times have you worn the same jeans this week?
A. Once
B. Twice
C. Every day

8. When was the last time you drove your car long distances?
A. Yesterday
B. Last month
C. You make the sacrifice and walk

9. What utility have you already cancelled?
A. House telephone
B. Cable
C. Electricity

10. Where do you do your grocery shopping?
A. Dillons
B. Wal-Mart
C. Aldi

If you chose:

Mostly A's: You are really saving your money or you just have lots of it. You have little problem paying your bills and you enjoy splurging every once in a while. Money is not a big issue for you and you save because you enjoy having the comforts of home.

Mostly B's: You are beginning to burn the candle at both ends. You are trying to save, but you are starting to cancel services that may be important. You are not quite there yet, but the money is starting to wear very thin and if you don't start saving better, you won't have much.

Mostly C's: You are broke. You might want to try begging your parents for money or getting a job. Your creditors and landlord will find you and hiding in a closet will not solve your problems. Don't spend money on things you don't need. Focus on getting bills paid and getting your heat back on. Good luck, and hurry before it starts snowing in your house.

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Tuesday, Oct. 11

■ Candace Halter, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 11:35 a.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $500.
■ Danielle McCutchen, 3023 Sandstone Drive, Apt. 10, was arrested at 11:35 p.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance. Bond was set at $500.
■ Lenard Robinson, 1327 Flint Hills Place, was arrested at 2:05 p.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $1,500.
■ Cletus Umscheid Jr., Alma, Kan., was arrested at 4:45 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was not set.
■ Adam Ingersoll, 237 Putnam Hall, was arrested at 11:35 p.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance, unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia and unlawful use of a license. Bond was set at $750.
■ Eric Davis, 248 Marlatt Hall, was arrested at 11:56 p.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $750.

Wednesday, Oct. 12

■ Antwone Berry, 907 Leavenworth St., was arrested at 1 a.m. for driving without a license. Bond was set at $750.
■ Cody Gildden, Junction City, was arrested at 2 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
■ Barry Harris, 412 N. 11th St., Apt. 1, was arrested at 4:40 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,500.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ Portraits for the Royal Purple yearbook will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at Sigma Chi and the K-State Student Union and from 6:30 to 9:30 tonight at Delta Upsilon.
■ The last chance for yearbook pictures will be from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 14 at Rusty's Last Chance Restaurant and Saloon, 1211 Moro St.
■ The Pre-Physical Therapy Club will meet at 7:30 tonight in the Union 217.
■ K-State Ducks Unlimited will meet at 7 tonight in the K-State Student Union.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Fat's BAR & GRILL
Thursdays
$2.00 bottles
$3.50 fishbowls
12th & Laramie
Aggieville

K-State v. Texas Tech
GUESS THE SCORE
WIN PIZZA !
Thursday Oct. 13
Week 3 winner: NATE SIMMONS
11a - 4p
KSU Student Union
Win: Med. 1topping Pizza, Breadsticks, 2 drinks
Courtesy of Pizza Hut wiN.Ksu.Edu

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
Prizes for ALL Singers!
$1.99 Margaritas
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

Wichita to Las Vegas
FROM $79* ONE WAY
Only at allegiantair.com
Nonstop air service from Wichita. Packages include over 30 of Vegas' most exciting casino-resorts.
allegiant air
www.allegiantair.com
800-432-3810 or call your travel agent.

SUSTAIN+ABILITY
THE TIME FOR LEADERSHIP IS NOW
Ken Wilson
Contract Magazine's Designer of the Year 2005
Jim Hartzfeld
Vice President of Sustainable Business Strategy at Interface Americas, Inc.
Friday, October 14, 2005
Session 1 - Ken Wilson 9:00 a.m. - 10:30 a.m.
Session 2 - Jim Hartzfeld 11:00 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY ALUMNI CENTER
Sponsored By The KSU Interior Design Advisory Board & The Department Of Apparel, Textiles & Interior Design In The College Of Human Ecology

KSU THEATRE PRESENTS:
DAVID MAMET'S
OLEANNA
WHICHEVER SIDE YOU TAKE, YOU'RE WRONG
October 13-15 and 19-22
8:00 p.m. Nichols Theatre
Tkts: McCain Box Office
Noon to 5:00 p.m. Phone: 532-6428
$11.50 General & $7.50 Student/Senior
* Contains Mature Language

Katie Lester | COLLEGIAN

K-State Police Department sergeant, runs radar and watches traffic along Claflin Road Wednesday evening. In addition to upholding all state and national laws, the police department enforces university policies and engages in community policing by reporting non-criminal actions.

K-State Police cover campus

By Lola Shrimplin
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State has its own police department to handle on-campus crimes and safety.

K-State Police has 24 commissioned law enforcement officers who have attended a 14-week training session through the Kansas Law Enforcement Training Center and received the same training as county and state police officers.

The commissioned officers carry weapons and have full arrest powers. Of these 24, one is the department director, one is the department investigator and four are captains.

These officers are not on the street, Capt. Richard Herrman, patrol commander, said.

Campus police also has nine non-commissioned security officers and three full-time communication specialists. Five to 15 students perform security duties such as locking doors and watching for suspicious activity.

"They're extra eyes out there," Herrman said.

However, some students are not sure the university needs its own police force.

"I laughed when I found out they had their own police department," Chad Wyckoff, senior in theater, said.

Everything that occurs on university property is the responsibility of campus police. If an offense occurs on campus, officers can leave campus and follow the suspect.

Mackenzie Ostmeyer, second-year vet-med student, said she knew someone who was raped by an acquaintance. The campus police came to the hospital even though the woman did not press charges.

"They were pretty understanding," Ostmeyer said.

The department also has two certified bicycle officers who took 40 hours of training.

The training involved teaching the use of the bicycle as a defense mechanism and as a weapon. It also taught officers how to take stairs on a bicycle and how to take a fall.

Two sergeants and the department investigator are also certified, but not active, bicycle officers. The bicycle officers patrol when weather permits, Herrman said.

Campus police bicycles are black and white with saddlebags and come equipped with lights and sirens.

These mountain bike-style bicycles are built stronger and have lightweight frames.

Campus police uses the bikes in parades and bike rodeos, where bicycle safety is taught, in addition to campus duties.

The same laws that apply to police and fire vehicles also apply to police on bicycles. If students don't stop for an officer on a bicycle, there are charges added to the original offense, Herrman said.

The bicycles also come in handy on football game days. While officers in patrol vehicles can't maneuver through the crowded parking lots quickly, officers on bicycles can, Herrman said.

Home game days are so busy that the campus police recruits off-duty Pottawatomie County and Wamego, Kan., police officers to help patrol.

"There's no way with the size of our department we can handle 53,000 people," Herrman said.

Riley County Police Department officers cannot work in a law enforcement capacity outside their own department, Herrman said.

Funding is another problem for the campus police. Campus police has two vehicles with more than 100,000 miles on the odometers. The costs of maintaining those vehicles is high, Herrman said.

Campus police is in charge of Wildcat Walk, which has seen a marked increase in usage this semester, Herrman said.

From August to September 2004, 38 people took advantage of this service. This year in the same time period, 163 people have requested escorts.

Finding the funds to pay the escorts is a problem for the police, Herrman said.

But student opinion of the service is positive, and students see the added need for escorts.

"It's money well-spent," Matt McCann, senior in theater, said.

Competing recreations

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Paul Suter visits it almost every day, spending some of his most intimate hours bending, sweating and panting with what he loves most: a hearty exercise.

And when this fifth year in architectural engineering visits the Peters Recreation Complex, he said his visits are an intimate ritual he cannot give up.

Suter, along with many K-State students, face the challenges of regulating their workout and where to workout.

Raydon Robel, director of recreational services at the Rec Complex, said for most students, the decision is simple.

He also said the Rec is used by more than 3,000 people each day.

For Chris Young, senior in architectural engineering, the Rec Complex has a lot to offer for his workouts, including the rock climbing wall and free-weights.

While some students go the Rec Complex for a healthy workout, Suter said he appreciates the complex for socializing.

"It's a nice atmosphere to spend time with people around your own age," Suter said.

However, Robel said not all students enjoy the crowds of students in the complex.

"People will say the Rec Complex is too crowded ... but a majority of students are looking for what we have," Robel said.

He said few students have been dissatisfied with the Rec Complex to the point where they use other area fitness facilities.

Deanna Bauman, junior in graphic design, works out on a glute machine at the Peters Recreation Complex Wednesday afternoon. Bauman said she knows of other places to workout in the area, but she only goes to the Rec.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Robel said university officials have no immediate plans of expanding the Rec Complex to meet increased space demands.

The City of Manhattan will soon develop a new indoor recreation and aquatic center. Terry DeWeese, director of Manhattan Parks and Recreation, said the new facility will include an indoor pool, classrooms and gymnasiums.

Another competing recreational facility is in Wamego, Kan., where city officials decided to construct a $2.9 million complex.

Kevin Saal, director of Wamego recreational services, said the complex will bring traffic and tourism to the city

Though officials from both cities said the complexes should attract many customers, Robel said the K-State Rec Complex has much more to offer, especially to the community.

Young said he thinks members of the community are an important part of the Rec's demographic.

"I think it would be a bad thing for a place like the Rec to only be offered to students," he said. "We're all part of the same community."

October brings changes at UFM

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sixty-seven classes will be offered at UFM, 1221 Thurston St., during the month of October. Of these classes, five of them are completely new to the facility, such as Web design, jewelry making, Genealogy for Beginners and CPR and First Aid.

The First Aid course is taught by a certified professional, and completion of the course results in first aid certification.

"I think a lot of people don't realize they can come here and get that kind of certification here," Marcia Hornung, UFM coordinator, said.

UFM will also be offering a wider variety of cooking classes, as the kitchen facilities were recently updated. A Cajun Cooking class will begin in November, as well as a class titled Tea Tasting Around the Globe.

Wade Radina, owner of Radina's Coffee House & Bakery, 616 N. Manhattan Ave., also is teaching a course titled The Legend of the Dancing Goats. This course teaches about coffee, from the process of growing it to taste-testing.

In addition to new classes, UFM has also seen a steady increase in enrollment.

"We've seen an increase almost every semester of every school year," Hornung said. "We have a large number of K-State students, staff and faculty taking classes at UFM."

As the list of classes keeps growing, the list of classes available for college credit also expands. Classes available for college credit during the month of October include fly-fishing, archery, boxing, ballroom dance, yoga, yogilates and First Aid.

The majority of these classes count for one credit hour, and prices are generally similar to prices paid for regular classes.

"I am taking Intro to Middle Eastern Dance, or belly dancing, for credit this semester," Michelle Selm, freshman in special education, said. "I started taking lessons in Salina and wanted to continue doing it here, and I saw on their Web site it was offered for credit."

While UFM prides itself on offering classes at an affordable price, scholarships are available to those in need of financial assistance. These scholarships are income-based and cover about half the registration fee.

"We offer classes that you can't find anywhere else," Hornung said. "Cajun cooking to belly dancing to scrapbooking – there is something for everyone."

SGA hosts voter drive

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Taylor Symons wants a vote.

He isn't running for a student body campaign, and he's not trying to convince people to purchase a product.

This freshman in speech communication and pre-law wants students to make a difference by voting.

Monday through this Friday, the Student Senate Governmental Relations committee is having a voter registration drive from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the K-State Student Union.

Matt King, Student Senate governmental relations chair, said the drive is important for students who want to make a difference.

"Legislatures are never going to listen to us until we register to vote and actually vote," King said. "And we're trying to fix that."

According to the Youth Vote Coalition, only 64 percent of U.S. citizens ages 18-30 are registered to vote. This age group represents 24 percent of eligible voters.

King said while voter turnout fluctuates year-to-year, it is important for students to integrate their voice into the community.

"Students need to forget the absentee ballots," King said. "It's more important to have a voice here as opposed to back at home, where it doesn't matter."

Local and state government legislation concerns college students, Symons said.

Through the voter registration drive, Symons said he wants to improve the relations between the city and the student population.

Campaigning to the college population has been tough, Symons said.

"Honestly, it's been kind of slow, but (Tuesday), we've got quite a few people to register," he said. "We students live in Manhattan eight to 12 months of the year. We are a big part of the city."

To provide more incentive, King said Student Senate is giving away K-State tote bags to students who register to vote. A drawing for the bags, donated by Varney's Book Store, will end by the close of the registration drive Friday.

King said if enough students register to vote, it might be leverage to get the city to add an election voting booth in the Union.

Symons said while there is no major state election this year, the drive will contribute to future of campus political activism.

"As soon a they realize the political action they take does effect them one way or another, it can help us all out in the long run," he said.

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

CHOOSE YOUR OWN ADVENTURE ESSAY CONTEST
Sponsored by Boy Scouts of America
1st Prize $150 2nd Prize KSU Football autographed by Bill Synder
Submitting Essay:
Email essay as an attachment to:
robertlhedley@hotmail.com
Requirements:
•Essay should be a maximum of 2 pages, double spaced, picture optional
•Essay should be written about a personal adventure or an adventure that you would like to have.
Winners will be presented at the food court at Manhattan Town Center on Nov. 10 at 6pm. Must be present to win.

It's your LAST CHANCE to smile!
Royal Purple yearbook pictures in the Union Courtyard Mon. - Fri., 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. royalpurple.ksu.edu It's fast and free! Find out how you can win an iPod!
royalpurple yearbook&dvd

K-Mart Carnival Days
Rides, Games, & Food
Thursday-Sunday: K-Mart Parking Lot
RIDES
•Zipper
•Tilt-A-Whirl
•Graviscat
•Sizzler
•Grand Carousel
•Super Slide
•Dragon Wagon (roller coaster)
•Various kid rides
K-MART CARNIVAL DAYS
10 Rides for $10
with this coupon
50-70%
In-store coupons also available at K-Mart
Thursday & Friday: 4-close, Saturday: 10 a.m.-close, Sunday: Noon-Close

Royal Thai Cuisine
One of the best quality restaurants in town
Beautiful Decor and Friendly Service
Very peaceful & relaxing atmosphere
Variety of Food with many choices of: meat, seafood, tofu, and fresh veggies at affordable prices.
Fast Service, All main dishes served with free tasty soup of the day and Crab Rangoon that everyone loves!
Hours: 11am-10pm, 7 days a week
3003 Anderson Ave. (in plaza west, by Alco)
539-0399

TO THE POINT

Rec complex a good deal for students

K-State students who like to stay in shape have a good thing going.

Each semester, students pay a $35 fee as part of their tuition to use the Peters Recreation Complex as many times as they want.

That's $35 for the use of weights, courts, fields and almost any other sport or athletic venue you can think of.

When compared to the fees private gyms and recreation centers around the area charge, K-State's Rec Complex is a blessing for K-State students, even though it gets crowded and might not be as aesthetically pleasing as other recreation centers around.

A big concern has always been the crowding at the Rec Complex, mostly because some students feel the need to have "social hour" in the middle of their exercises, which makes it impossible for those who are serious about working out to use the machines or weights.

There is a solution.

To those of the more social crowd, keep the gabbing and gossip to a minimum when you're at the Rec Complex. Extend your fellow students some respect and get a move on. Quit wasting other people's time.

To those students serious about getting a workout, find a time in your schedule when the Rec is less crowded, like the morning or afternoon. It may be tough to make the time, but you'll benefit in the end.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

CLASH OF THE COLUMNISTS

The better ball

Soccer better sport because of the skill involved in the game

RACHEL THOMPSON

When asked which is the better sport, soccer or football, I would have to say soccer. It's not that I don't like football, I do, I just like soccer better. Soccer is not sexist, it does not have four hour games, and the scoring is simpler. One would never see a soccer game where the offense has slowly moved 40 yards away from their goal.

Saying soccer is the better sport, at a football school like K-State, will certainly provoke comments from hardcore fans. In the Midwest, football is the cash, fame and glory sport and often the only small town, Friday night past-time.

Many people outside the United States probably think it is crazy for men to stand around for half the game, then smash and hurt each other the other half. And the number of people that support soccer throughout the world outnumber those that back football.

If it is an entertaining game to watch depends on what happens between scores, near saves, amazing pivotal plays, the incomplete pass and the interception.

Soccer is a game where scoring is hard and worth the exertion, and winning by one point is an excellent game but the game in between scores is just as exciting as a ball in the net. And the scoring is much simpler – one point for the ball in the goal, no six points for this, two for that, three for the other.

One reason I like soccer better is soccer is a game that is constantly in action – the games don't take four hours to finish. The players are constantly on the go, moving from one end to the other in seconds, and possession can change in a moment. Football games drag yard by yard from one end of the field, stopping after every play, starting again, rinse and repeat.

Soccer is not a game for the weak, despite that fact, many Americans have that view. The strength, speed, skill and stamina required are tremendous. It requires players to think on their feet, have the versatility to play both defense and offense and the ability to fight for the ball. Soccer is a game where the team tries to outmaneuver and outwit the other team. Players sprint straight into the opponents, ready to tangle and willing to work as a team to get the ball into the goal.

Another plus of soccer is the ability for women to participate. Football teams are made up of men and while it is hypothetically possible for a girl to play – I have heard of one high school girl that played on the football team – it excludes more than half the population. The only realistic opportunity women have to participate in football is on the sidelines in the stands, or maybe a game of flag football.

Soccer is also better because it doesn't require so much equipment and gear. All that is needed is a ball, shin guards, cleats and players can get away with playing without the cleats and shin guards. The amount of gear football teams use is excessive and expensive, and not available for those with a tight money flow.

As I prepare for the attack of the football maniacs, let me say soccer fans have just as much passion as football fans, soccer players are just as tough and talented, and soccer just has more numbers throughout the world behind it.

Rachel Thompson is a sophomore in anthropology and international studies. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Football more than just a game of violence, teaches life lessons

KODY COOPER

The crisp chill of the autumn air chases its elusive tail. Burnt orange, fiery yellow and ember red leaves speckle the foliage. Upon the breeze, the burnt offerings of charcoal and barbeque are pleasing to the nostrils. The colloquial question of our generation begs to be asked – are you ready for some football?

If only the neo-Marxists cited the advent of American football as evidence for their "history as progress" theory, I would have a charismatic conversion to communism evidenced by a post-modern Pentecostal manifesto of anti-capitalist tongues.

Forsooth, football is evidence of societal progress – at least recreationally. The greatest game ever invented by man has its roots in the late 19th century.

Through several formative years of elite Ivy-league intercollegiate play, football slowly morphed into a glorious 11 on 11 myriad of running, passing, blocking and tackling.

It's true, much of the world defines "football" as America defines "soccer." Having sat amongst 75,000 screaming Real Madrid fans, I have seen the best soccer has to offer.

First of all, how can anyone stomach the sissy system of colored cards for weenie fouls? From my nosebleed seat, they looked more like Kleenexes.

You wouldn't believe how loud the soccer fans cheered when David Beckham merely kicked the ball across center field. Exquisite pass, chum.

Diagnosis: soccratic boredom. Prescription: one teaspoon of Arrowhead, one tablespoon of Dante Hall and a spoonful of Kansas City barbeque to help the medicine go down.

As a former collegiate player and current nostalgic fan, I've seen this sublime sport from every angle. If you've ever jumped out of your seat after a defensive end mercilessly blind-sighted an unsuspecting quarterback, just imagine the rush of actually committing this legal violence.

Football, more deftly than any other sport, combines intense individual competition into a team sport.

On the field, a player is only as good as his teammate. On any given play, whether throwing a block, running a route, or zipping a spiral, all 11 men must win their individual battles to achieve overall success.

In this way, the game of football is analogous to the game of life.

Hall of Fame coach Vince Lombardi articulated this truth best: "It teaches that work, sacrifice, perseverance, competitive drive, selflessness and respect for authority is the price each and every one of us must pay to achieve any goal that is worthwhile."

Wow, all those championship traits are striking. Strikingly conservative, that is. Amazing how the Lombardi's keys to success on the football field are the very concepts lauded by conservative thinkers as essentials for success in life. Hard work at home and the workplace; sacrifice for faith, family and country; perseverance through hardship; competitive drive to better one's economic status; selfless alms for the helpless; and respect for God's authority.

When its fourth and inches in your life, have you enough confidence in your chosen principles to go for it? Or, will you sheepishly punt away? The play clock is ticking.

Kody Cooper is a senior in political science and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Illustration by Kent Holle | COLLEGIAN

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

If quizzes are quizzical, what are tests?

To the person that said Darren Sproles can't catch: I was just wondering how much money you will make this year.

To whoever took the black Schwinn Sidewinder bike from 1010 Osage on Saturday night, please just return it to 1010 Osage or 821 Fremont. Thanks.

I just failed a test. I'm going to Hale.

Michael Burns is a human too, just like us, only a little cooler and a lot cuter. Lay off him already, he wouldn't be so cool if he wasn't a real person and a real student cussing at KU.

You know what really grinds my gears? When I'm walking to class and get offered a New Testament 3,000 times. Can't a man walk to class without being offered a form of salvation?

I find it rather ironic that professors of education are the worst I've ever had.

So I was just watching the "Pimp My Ride" where they fix a 2003 Corolla after the guy got in an accident, and at the end he promises to never get in another one, then he runs a stop sign.

So if you weren't such a knob as to refuse to watch "Love Actually" with your girlfriend, you'd know what one was.

Grant Reichert is the most idiotic opinion columnist in the long, sad history of stupid columnists.

Um, pretty sure if you are talking crap about Darren Sproles, you are an idiot. Or you are just a frat boy, or not athletic whatso-ever. And pretty sure he is making more money right now even if the ball hits him in his facemask than you ever will. So word of advice, don't hate people just because you are jealous.

A Gideon attempted to hand me a New Testament and I told him I am in touch with a way different God than his. He asked me to explain; all I said was "Bill Snyder."

To the girl in my sociology class: You're hot when awake, but one ugly sleeper.

Bagpipe lover, that guy who said he was the piper and could meet at 2:30 was lying. I am the bagpiper. I could tell you what I was wearing on that day. If you remember then it is proved. Don't listen to him.

Is it OK to hook up with your neighbors?

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Income inequality a fact of life in America

SHANE SANDERS

Income inequality has been present in the United States since our birth as a country.

It is widely reported to have increased in recent years.

However, such reports, and the groups producing them, generally expect us to conclude something we should not immediately conclude – that we are collectively worse off for it. To say anything about who is worse or better off given a change in the income distribution, we must understand from where these changes are coming.

There are three general phases in the "typical" human's adult life, that of the student, the worker and the retiree.

Students and retirees make, on average, much less income than workers. At any point in time, all three of these groups are represented in American society.

Hence, even if every person in society followed the same real lifetime earning schedule, we would have income inequality due to the fact that, for any given year, workers make more than students and retirees.

It is clear, then, measures of income inequality are sensitive to the relative number of students, workers and retirees in society.

It may be, for instance, a significant share of the recent growth in U.S. income inequality can be attributed to an increasing proportion of retirees in our population.

Further, we must recognize, as subsidies to higher education have increased, the proportion of adults choosing to be students has risen. This occurrence may also have increased the degree of income inequality in recent decades.

As disseminators of various types of media, it is our job to question what a parameter such as income inequality is really telling us.

We must resist the temptation to claim that our society is becoming "less fair" until we understand the effect of all relevant social factors on our income distribution. It is often said that statistics lie.

My contention is we shouldn't place such blame on what is essentially the output of an objective discipline. It is, in fact, our misuse and misinterpretation of statistics that creates all the confusion.

Shane Sanders is a graduate student in economics. You can e-mail him at opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Consent important in homosexual relationships

Editor,

Kody Cooper's Oct. 5 column makes the claim that homosexuality is a sexual deviation like bestiality, pedophilia, necrophilia, etc.

We are appalled by the comparison of same sex marriage to these deviations. Most people would agree that these deviations are, or are symptomatic of, mental illness and are generally a danger to the community due to their predatorial nature.

Cooper's comparison suggests that same-sex couples, like pedophiles, are sick predators that threaten society. Cooper's folly is his inability to see the difference between a sexual predator and two consenting adults.

He implies that if we were to allow monogamous relationships between couples of the same sex to have marriage rights, we would have to grant those same rights to all monogamous couples, regardless of the participants, like himself and Lassie, his Labrador.

What he doesn't realize is that the issue is not monogamy, but rather consent. Lassie, as a dog, is unable to legally provide consent. The same is true with dead bodies and children. Participants in an adult homosexual relationship are both able to provide consent, which, among other things, makes homosexuality different from bestiality, necrophilia and pedophilia.

Whether you think same sex marriage is right or wrong, hopefully we can all agree that it is not the same as bestiality. These types of mischaracterizations and comparisons do not advance any type of relevant or productive dialogue about the state of society.

Cooper's column is misinformed, irrational, and embarrassingly simple.

Josh Westmoreland
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION
Darren Epping
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION
Jenny Dixon
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION
Lila Preston
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION
Chris Scott
GRADUATE STUDENT IN THEATRE
Patrick Barton
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION
Lindsay Wakefield
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION
Sarah Snider
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION
Abbie Farrens
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION
Ashley Figgins
SENIOR IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION/SOCIOLOGY
Jennifer Labrie
GRADUATE STUDENT IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION

Fresh look

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

The main entrance doors of Anderson Hall get a fresh coat of paint by Roy Jones, left, and Judith Ward, both senior painters, on Oct. 1. The two painted the three sets of double-doors to the hall, along the front and both sides.

Consequences of TABOR could be unexpected

Editor,

Due to the damage the Taxpayers Bill of Rights has done to Colorado, and the even greater negative impact it will have if TABOR is not modified, my view of it is very different than yours.

In 2001 and 2002 our state tax revenue declined a total of 17 percent. The largest previous decline in revenue was 2.8 percent in 1981. When these unpredictable events occur, the elected representatives of the people are unable to cope with needs generated by the changed conditions. We will be voting on amending Colorado's TABOR on Nov. 1, 2005.

The average state funding for our universities has been cut 35 percent in the last five years and will be reduced more if TABOR is not modified. The state support for the University of Colorado is now less than 10 percent of their total budget as compared to K-State's 23 percent.

Colorado ranks 49th in state support for higher education. This results in significantly higher tuition and larger class sizes. Quality of a university does not decline over night. The decline is insidious and gradual. The best professors leave first. Once this starts ,it is difficult to reverse.

Colorado's medicaid costs, corrections, expenses and K-12 needs are and have been increasing at a rate that exceeds inflation and population growth. When spending is artificially capped to population growth plus inflation, something has to be cut. In Colorado, higher education, roads and human services are all they can cut.

If Kansas adopts a TABOR, look out for unintended consequences.

Bob Tointon
K-STATE CE 1955
GREELEY, COLORADO

Bible defines 'positive' lifestyle for Christians

Editor,

I am writing in regards to the article published Oct. 5 by Kelsey Childress entitled "Unholy Matrimony." In the article, Kelsey was upset, not by the schools choice to remove the student, but that the basis of the removal was her parents were not leading a "positive Christian lifestyle." Kelsey questioned who decides what a positive Christian lifestyle is; she assumed it was the board of directors of school. In actuality, Christians get their sense of right and wrong from the Bible, more specifically the New Testament.

Whether it be from Jesus' own teaching or the letters by Paul the Apostle, the New Testament spells out clearly what constitutes a "positive Christian lifestyle." The continuity and credibility of more than 32 different authors of the Bible lets Christians know the Bible is true.

The second point of the article I want to address is the assertion "homophobes quote the Bible to justify homosexuality as being morally wrong." Just because a person thinks homosexuality is wrong, does not mean the person hates homosexuals. Yes, saying homosexuality is morally wrong and is a condemning act, but in the book of Matthew, the Bible says, "Do not judge, or you too will be judged." This is not a condemning act as Kelsey says it to be, but rather it says you must hold yourself to the same standards as you hold others. Christians are not condemning when they speak out, they are simply standing by their beliefs.

Ethan Dexter
SENIOR IN POLITICAL SCIENCE

Rape qualifies as injury

Editor,

On the front page of the Oct. 11 issue of the Collegian, a rape report states "the victim was not injured." As academic advisers, women and mothers of daughters, we feel this was an insensitive and inaccurate portrayal of the crime.

We are certain you did not mean to offend and are confident that in the future you will consider the far-reaching effects of rape. If you choose to omit the emotional and psychological impact of this type of assault and feel it is important to report details of the injuries, may we suggest a phrase such as "there were no physical injuries beyond the rape."

Daralyn Gordon Arata
Nancy Habluetzel
Julie Hunt
Angelia Perry

ADVERTISE HERE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
Call • 532-6560

Collegian explore it! kstatecollegian.com

78% OF OUR READERS CLIP COUPONS
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING

HOT POCKETS
NEW! CRISPIER CHEESIER CRUST!
Try All The Winning Varieties!
HOT POCKETS® Brand Stuffed Sandwiches
LEAN POCKETS® Brand Stuffed Sandwiches
CROISSANT POCKETS® Brand Stuffed Sandwiches
Available at Dillon's, Food 4 Less, Price Chopper and other fine stores in your area (in the freezer section)
Try our new HOT POCKETS® brand POT PIE EXPRESS™ and Fruit Pastries
MFG. COUPON | EXPIRES JANUARY 12, 2006
Save 50¢ ON ONE HOT POCKETS®, LEAN POCKETS®, CROISSANT POCKETS® Brand Stuffed Sandwiches
68027

RAMBLERS
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner-2 complete dinners
$1.75 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

Crossing your fingers won't help...
Emergency contraception can prevent pregnancy if taken within 72 hours of unprotected sex
A prescription is required – contact Lafene, your health care provider or local health department AND call the National EC Hotline 1-888-668-2528
www.not-2-late.com
Paid for by the Peggy Bowman Second Chance Fund Emergency Contraception Fund

CHEESE!
Royal Purple yearbook free portrait pictures today at:
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Sigma Chi 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Tomorrow we will be at:
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Rusty's Last Chance 1 - 8 p.m.
royalpurple royalpurple.ksu.edu

$1.50 Wells & Draws
Oct. 20: Live in Concert Jackson Taylor & Bleu Edmunson Tickets on sale now!
LONGHORNS SALOON

Credit cards can be helpful

By Eileen Laux
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Credit cards have a reputation for putting people in debt and harming credit.

However, Esther Maddux, professor of personal financial planning, said a having credit card is not always bad.

"It allows you to buy things that you might not have the money for at the moment," she said. "It's not that credit cards are bad, its that some students sometimes think of credit as income rather than a debt to be repaid."

Maddux said she encourages students to ask themselves whether they can pay for it at the moment and how they plan to pay for the purchase in the future.

"My advice to students is to have at least one multi-purpose credit card such as Visa, Mastercard or American Express," she said. "In today's world you can't function without credit, and having a credit card and paying it off on time will help build that credit."

Maddux said having a credit card is a good idea for students, but keeping the spending low and only having one card is ideal. Her advice for those experiencing bad credit is to stop charging and make a list of all creditors and how much is owed.

If the situation is more serious, consumer credit counseling may be an option to get finances in order, Maddux said.

Scott Hendrix, instructor of finance, said when credit cards are used responsibly, it opens doors for people.

"This is a like a short-term, interest-free loan," he said. "With responsible use, credit cards can be a convenient and helpful way to build credit. For example, if you don't have a credit card, you can't rent a car. The slippery slope that students sometimes go down is that they are buying short-term things but financing long-term."

He said a lot of students get into problems when signing things on spring break or signing up for free T-shirts on campus. Signing up for these cards go on the credit report and could create a bad habit.

Hendrix said students should read through the agreement so they know what they are signing. Reading through the basic agreement can reveal if there are any annual fees or how much interest will be on the card.

"The main thing students need to know is that they are taking on a line of credit when signing up for cards," he said. "These cards are not totally free."

Students should request a free credit report make an effort to correct anything that may be wrong, Hendrix said.

Jeremy Schletzbaum, junior in construction science and management, has a Visa credit card and said it makes it easier to pay his bills.

"I have had a credit card for three years and I have always paid on time," he said. "I think that some people just go over their budget and can't afford to make the payment and that is where they get into trouble."

Late credit payments can affect future

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It's bad to be a month late.

At least that's what Michael Clark, Kansas State Bank assistant vice president for marketing, said about paying credit card bills.

College-age kids are a prime target for credit card companies, and students should be careful about accepting card offers, Clark said.

"The most important thing is that you have a plan ahead of time and you're prepared for it," Clark said. "Don't put yourself in a situation to where you get a credit problem, and you end up trading credit card to credit card. Then you've ruined your credit rating, then creating long-term debt."

Yet, this situation is not just a problem for K-State students.

A September report from the American Bankers Association stated credit card loan delinquencies reached a record high of 4.81 percent in the second quarter this year. Those late payments are an increase of nearly 20 percent from the first quarter this year.

On average, the ABA reported credit card bills were paid a month late.

"The last two quarters have not been pretty," James Chessen, ABA's chief economist, said in the report. "Gas prices are taking huge chunks out of wallets, leaving some individuals with little left to meet their financial obligations."

Instead of always whipping out the plastic, Clark said students should be practical and only pay for needs, not wants, with a credit card.

"I've dealt with students, and kids want to be grown ups," he said. "They want to prove it and are easily swayed. It's vitally important to sit down with mom and dad to create a plan."

Clark said students should resist the temptations of free T-shirts and food offered with credit cards.

"A lot of students are going to have debt anyway with student loans," Clark said. "Throw $5,000 to $10,000 on top of the credit card debts plus the interest rate. It's deadly."

Those who have credit card debt should prepare for long-term costs, Clark said.

"You're really setting yourself up for a bad situation when you get out of school, get married, apply for a loan for a house and, then, get denied a loan for something you did your freshman or sophomore year in college," he said.

Despite all the negative aspects of credit cards, Clark said it can be a good thing.

"Building credit is fine, and credit cards are a real plus," he said.

Warning signs of being overextended on credit

- Paying only the minimum payment month after month
- Being out of cash constantly
- Being late on important payments, such as rent or mortgage
- Taking longer and longer to pay off balances
- Borrowing from one lender to pay another

Source: American Bankers Association

HILLEL | Jewish student group celebrates holy days

Continued from Page 1

three people to almost a dozen.

The University of Kansas' Hillel group has several hundred active members, a house and a paid adviser, Waxman said.

She said the group usually does not actively recruit.

"Mostly people come find us if they're interested at all," she said.

Waxman said occasionally interested parents will contact the group if they want their children to get involved.

The group has sent representatives to K-State's Open House and the religious panel for Community Cultural Harmony Week. The group is often available for leadership students who need a diversity assignment.

However, the group does have a religious function. Occasionally, members do services at Manhattan Jewish Congregation, Waxman said, because it doesn't have a rabbi, services are directed by members. Hillel members help with special days, such as Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, that began Wednesday, and Yom HaShoah, the Holocaust Memorial Day.

Hillel meets at 9 p.m., Tuesdays at Bluestem Bistro.

"It's nice to have another place to go once a week and hang out, socialize with people I don't see all the time," Waxman said.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Margaret Sheriff, fourth-year vet-med student, talks with Sarah Waxman, first-year vet-med student, Wednesday evening at the Manhattan Jewish Congregation, before Yom Kippur service.

Hillel meetings

When: 9 p.m. Tuesdays
Where: Bluestem Bistro, 1219 Moro St.
K-State Hillel
Web site: www.ksu.edu/hillel

FIRE DEPARTMENT | Education key to prevention

Continued from Page 1

to the traditional approach of relying on fire suppression," he said.

On Sunday, the Manhattan Fire Department will have an open house where residents can visit local firefighters, ride on Old Engine 1 and eat snacks.

The open house will run from noon to 4 p.m. at the Manhattan Fire Department, 2000 Denison Ave. Francis said events like this will give the community a good hands-on experience with the department, educating them more about fire safety.

Fire Prevention Week, created by the National Fire Protection Association, contributes significantly to the national success of the campaign, Marshall said.

The week was originally established to commemorate the Great Chicago Fire in 1871, which killed more than 250 people and left 100,000 homeless.

According to the RFSI, only 20 percent of all fires are residential fires, however, they result in 80 percent of all fire deaths.

During 2002, public fire departments reported an estimated 18,000 home fires started by candles, according to the National Fire Protection Association.

These fires resulted in an estimated 130 civilian deaths, 1,350 civilian injuries and an estimated direct property loss of $333 million, according to the NFPA. Candle fires accounted for about 5 percent of all reported home fires.

Francis said while fire safety has increased, he said residents still should be aware of their surroundings and consider making their homes safer.

"Remember the 2005 Fire Prevention Week theme, 'Use Candles with Care,'" he said. "When you go out, blow out."

EARTHQUAKE | Students participate in relief effort

Continued from Page 1

villages that are just gone so that's the enormity of the situation."

Altaf Karim, graduate student in physics, said many more were injured or lost property.

"Many, many people are suffering," he said. "They have lost their relatives, their properties."

Rahman said Pakistanis are impressed by the American response to the earthquake. She said when they are removed from the rest of the world, they are just grateful people haven't forgotten them. Mehmood had relatives who died in the earthquake and Karim said his friends have been affected by the earthquake.

The PSA is also planning a food festival soon to raise more money for the relief effort. The group will prepare traditional Pakistani food and sell tickets to the festival.

"It would be a good occasion to talk to people about what's really happening in that part of the world," Rahman said.

Do yourself a favor, Buy her some flowers.
The prettiest, most reasonably priced FRESH FLOWERS in town. (If we do say so ourselves)
Call for Delivery 785.539.8899
ACMEGIFT
1227 Moro, Aggieville

Students show work in 'Ville alley

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An often ignored alley in Aggieville between the Dusty Bookshelf and Threads was shown in a new light Wednesday night.

The alley was home to the show "For One Night Only," an art exhibit by Anna Wetzel and Amy Rundle, both seniors in fine arts.

The idea for having the show in the alley was a combined effort by Wetzel, Rundle and Dianne Meredith, owner of the Dusty Bookshelf, Threads and Acme Gift.

"We had been looking for alternative spaces for shows," Wetzel said. "Manhattan doesn't have a lot of space for shows."

Wetzel, who works for Meredith, had mentioned she was looking for a wall for an art show, and the alley popped into Meredith's head.

"We joke about it all the time," Meredith said. "We've had the bookstore for 14 years, so this alley is very near and dear to me."

Paintings, photographs and collages lined the brick walls as students, faculty and friends of the two artists clogged the space between the narrow walls.

"I don't know who owns the alley, but I guess I do for tonight," Meredith said.

Nicole Schindler, senior in fine arts, said she enjoyed the show, especially because of the location.

"I thought it was great," she said. "I like the different atmosphere, instead of in a studio."

Wetzel and Rundle, who are roommates and best friends, worked for more than a month preparing the show. The show featured some of their previous work, and a few pieces made specifically for the show. Two pieces were collages made by both artists, that were lit by Christmas lights and set in small metal boxes.

"We wanted to take advantage of the outdoor, night-time setting," Wetzel said.

This was the first independent show for the two, who said they were both excited about the big step they were making.

"We had an excuse to make things that we wanted to make, not because it was an assignment," Rundle said.

Rundle's parents helped set up the artwork and hang the Christmas lights that lit the alleyway. Though he helped set up the show, Lynn Rundle, Amy Rundle's father, refused to take any of the credit for it.

"I don't have an artistic bone in my body, but my daughter does," Rundle said.

Surrounded by his daughter's friends, peers and mentors at her first independent art showing, Lynn Rundle said he couldn't help but be proud of what his daughter had accomplished.

"Amy's done it all on her own," he said. "Her own talent, her own creativity."

Wire act

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Sitting under a tree outside Willard Hall, Billy Furnish, a sophomore in art, works on the wire frame of an akari, a Japanese-Style lamp, Wednesday afternoon. Furnish said he decided to go outside to work on the project and enjoy the weather.

Meningitis vaccine recommended, not required for students

By Amy Bolton
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State does not require students to have any vaccinations or immunizations to attend school.

Carol Kennedy, director of health education and promotion at Lafene Health Center, said Lafene assumes students have had their childhood immunizations because most schools require them.

VIRAL MENINGITIS

One vaccination that is recommended when students start college is the meningitis vaccination.

"The CDC (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) recommends that freshmen living in residence halls get that vaccine," she said.

Last year, Lafene administered 300 doses of the vaccine, but students can get it elsewhere.

Jeffrey Robinson, freshman in business, said he was planning to get the vaccine at Lafene and said he thought all students living in the residence halls should be required to get the vaccine to avoid the risk of an outbreak.

"Everybody gets sick," Robinson said. "Even though they clean the bathrooms, they don't clean the doorknobs people touch everyday."

Rayonna Thomas, freshman in apparel marketing, was also scheduled to get the vaccine. She said people need to know the risks of not getting immunized.

"Meningitis is a sudden death kind of thing," Thomas said. "Everybody should be at least aware of it."

There are no recommendations on getting the vaccine for students not living in the residence halls, but Kennedy said anyone can get it.

The vaccine costs $95 at Lafene, and it is 70 percent effective against viral meningitis.

BACTERIAL MENINGITIS

Bacterial meningitis is more dangerous than viral meningitis.

This year there is a new version of the vaccine, which could last as long as 10 years, Kennedy said. The old version only lasted three to five years.

Kennedy said many people carry the bacteria in their bodies but have no problems.

"It's in a lot of people," she said.

There is no season for meningitis. Instead, it occurs when large groups of people are together and people's bodies and immune systems are tired and worn out, which makes college campus residence halls the perfect breeding ground.

"It's not really a hygiene issue unless you're sharing drinks or cigarettes or smoking," Kennedy said.

Initial symptoms of meningitis are similar to the flu, but very quickly, often within half a day, the person can become very sick.

The main indicators are an intense stiff neck, a headache, a rash and other typical symptoms of the flu, such as fever, nausea and vomiting.

HEPATITIS B

Another vaccination recommendation is Hepatitis B, which is a blood-borne illness and an STD. It is contracted by sharing needles, coming in contact with infected blood and even by sharing razors.

"Hepatitis B can live outside the body up to seven days, maybe longer," Kennedy said.

It affects the liver and can turn the infected person yellow.

People with Hepatitis B will feel very tired, and while it could be a mild case and just make someone sick, it can also become a full infection and cause death.

DIPHTHERIA PERTUSSIS AND TETANUS

The CDC has a new recommendation for a vaccination for college-aged people. Anyone who hasn't had a Diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus booster within the past five years should get a booster shot to avoid pertussis, also known as whooping cough.

"They're seeing an increase in whooping cough in 11 to 18 year olds so they're recommending a booster for pertussis," Kennedy said.

Read the Gameday edition Fridays before home games.

Racquet Stringing
All types of Racquets
State of the Art Electric Stringer
Cottonwood Racquet Club
3615 Claflin Rd • 776-6060

Happy Howl-a-ween!
$5 OFF Your First Visit
Bark Avenue
CANINE DESIGNS
607 N. 11th • Aggieville • 565-0612

BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
Spend $25 and get a free T-shirt
Hours: Sun. - Wed., 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
Free Delivery 537-0886 Fax: 539-9111

Need a New Look?
Wildcat Barbershop
Tues - Fri: 8-6 pm
Sat: 8-4 pm
Sun - Mon: closed
Gary Wood 539-8920
Andy Bauser 776-5197
Located in Handi Corner Shopping Center

Annual Halloween Costume Contest
Contest Held Halloween Night
at least $1000 Prize for 1st Place
Rusty's Last Chance Saloon

The Pita Pit
PITA PIT PRESENTS
the new Dagwood Club
HAM, TURKEY, ROAST BEEF, CHEESE, CHOICE OF TOPPINGS & SAUCES
1131 MORO • 537-3995

Relieve stress with a MASSAGE
from TRESH $40 reg. $50
1 HOUR MASSAGE
CALL TODAY FOR AN APPOINTMENT WITH TRESH
776-5632
GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Candlewood Shopping Center · 3266 Kimball Ave.

Don't look GHOSTLY this year on Halloween!
Tan till '06 for only $96
Halloween Giveaway
For every $25 you spend, you're entered into a drawing to win $200 worth of lotion and tanning.
539-3742
1122 Laramie
Aggieville Handicorner

DON'T LET THE DEADLINE SNEAK UP ON YOU!
Today and tomorrow are your last chance for yearbook portrait pictures!
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Rusty's Last Chance 1 - 8 p.m. on Friday
It's FAST! It's EASY! It's FREE!
www.royalpurple.ksu.edu

Shake's Frozen Custard
Shakin' Up Halloween!
Limited time only: try our Pumpkin Custard
Try our new shake-a-ccinos
Serving Waffle cones Fresh Daily
104.1 Hot Country special every Monday $1.04 cups and cones
10% OFF WITH K-STATE ID
$1 OFF WITH THIS AD
5th & Ft. Riley Blvd.

SPORTS

JoePa: one of the best coaches ever

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

The Penn State Nittany Lions (6-0) upset the then No. 6 Ohio State Buckeyes (3-2) 17-10 in State College, Pa., last Saturday to remain undefeated and seize control of the Big Ten Conference.

The Buckeyes are the highest ranked team to fall in Beaver Stadium since the Nittany Lions dominated No. 4 Arizona in the 1999 Pigskin Classic.

The win over the Buckeyes was monumental for Penn State because it helped legitimize the Nittany Lions as a contender for the national title, and is the reason why they leapfrogged eight spots in The Associated Press Top 25 to No. 8, their highest ranking since November 1999 when they were the No. 6 team in the country.

This win also showed how an elite college football program like Penn State's can have a few bad seasons and turn things around by making quality adjustments and recruiting the right players.

The man responsible for finding these talented recruits is considered one of the greatest college football coaches to ever pace the sidelines.

No, I'm not talking about K-State's Bill Snyder, even though he easily makes my top 10 greatest coaches of all-time list.

I am talking about long-tenured Penn State coach Joe Paterno, who has been the head coach of the Nittany Lions for 40 seasons.

Since going 10-3 in 1999, Penn State has compiled an unimpressive record of 26 wins and 33 losses, with its only winning season coming in 2002. In the past two years, they won a total of three Big Ten games.

In what might be his greatest accomplishment of his career, Paterno has reversed his team's misfortune and brought them back to prominence and an undefeated record.

With his accomplishments, he has already locked up his place in the Hall of Fame, but he has decided to come back and lead his team.

I would not argue with the man who is second on the all-time coaching wins list with 349, trailing only Florida State coach Bobby Bowden, who has 356.

Paterno is the all-time leader among coaches in bowl appearances with 31, and bowl victories with 20. His bowl record is staggering and now stands at 20-10-1, which gives him a winning percentage of 66.1, ranking him No. 3 among the bowl season's best in history.

He holds two national

See COLUMN Page 12

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Lacrosse midfielder Elliott Basler, freshman in business administration, looks to pass the ball to a teammate upfield Sept. 13 during a game against the alumni team at Memorial Stadium. The lacrosse team practices three times a week at Memorial Stadium in preparation for their spring season.

Mixing sports

Lacrosse team prepares for upcoming season

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It is like a combination of several sports, yet it is still a sport all its own.

Lacrosse has been popular on the East Coast for a long time, but in recent years, it has spread across the nation.

According to Web site www.lacrosse.org, lacrosse participation in the United States at the collegiate level has grown by one-third since 1995, and nearly 25,000 men play lacrosse at more than 400 colleges and universities in varsity programs or as a club sport.

Most notably, lacrosse has caught on at K-State.

"Lacrosse is one of the fastest-growing sports in the country right now," Zach Zielonko, senior in architecture, said. "It's a great sport. I can see why it is catching on quickly."

For those unfamiliar with the game, Zielonko, a four-year player for K-State's lacrosse club team who now serves as coach, said lacrosse is a mixture of several sports – basketball, hockey and soccer.

"Lacrosse brings a lot of sports together," he said. "It requires a lot of athleticism and competitiveness, just like other sports like it. It is really easy to pick up if you have played a sport similar to lacrosse."

The lacrosse club team at K-State has been in existence since 1989. Last year, it experienced increased competition when it moved from Division B to the Great Rivers Lacrosse Conference, a Division A conference.

Jon Kalodimos, president and captain of the team, said the club performed better than expected last spring.

"We were projected to finish 10th (out of 10 teams)," Kalodimos, senior in physics, said. "But we finished seventh after posting a 5-7

See LACROSSE Page 12

MEN'S Ggolf

K-State places 12th after starting day in 6th place

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State men's golf team had everything going its way Monday at the Alister MacKenzie Invitational.

After 36 holes at the par-71, 6,606-yard Meadow Club in Fairfax, Calif., the Wildcats were under par as a team and in 6th place after shooting their second and third lowest scores of the season.

Seniors Ben Kern and Tyler Cummins were both under par and in the hunt for the individual title.

Memories of last year – when K-State finished fifth – started to surface, and this appeared to be a tournament where the Wildcats would do something special in the final round and perhaps move up the leaderboard.

But on Tuesday, during the final round, something happened.

The wind picked up and the greens became faster, and all of a sudden, the K-State golfers were unable to carry over their level of play from Monday.

Coach Tim Norris said something just wasn't right during the final round, and it might have something to do with how the team started the day.

"The players got off to a tough start," Norris said. "We made a couple bogeys to start the day and just couldn't battle back like we should have.

"There was some wind and the greens firmed up a little bit and we just lost our confidence on the greens"

The team shot 19 strokes worse in the final round than in the second round (280-283-302–865) and slid back to 12th place, while host school California (276-281-287–844) won the tournament by three strokes over Fresno State (280-283-284–847).

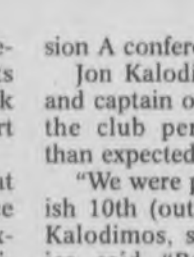
Fresno State's Jon Rose took home individual honors after firing an 8-under-par 205 (71-67-67).

The low Wildcat was sophomore Kyle Yonke, who tied for 32nd after shooting a

See MEN'S GOLF Page 12

VOLLEYBALL

Wildcats lose in 5 to unranked Buffaloes



By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Coach Suzie Fritz warned Colorado was better than its record showed and her team would need to stop the Buffalo's Allie Griffin.

Fritz was right on both accounts, as the Buffaloes (7-7, 3-6 Big 12) dropped No. 16 K-State in five games 3-2 (30-14, 30-25, 25-30, 28-30, 15-5), and Griffin earned her career high with 29 kills for a .490 hitting percentage on Wednesday night in Boulder, Colo.

The loss brings an abrupt halt to K-State's three-game winning streak and marks the Cats' second consecutive loss in Boulder to an unranked Colorado team.

The Wildcats (14-4, 5-3) battled back from a two-game deficit, but to no avail, as the Buffs sealed the victory in game five.

Werner
OUTSIDE HITTER

Junior outside hitter Sandy Werner paced K-State with 19 kills on a .455 hitting percentage, which ties the outside hitter's season high.

Junior middle blocker Joy Hamlin added 13 kills and nine block assists, while senior outside hitter Agata Rezende tallied 11 kills and six digs.

Sophomore setter Stacey Spiegelberg posted 50 assists and nine digs, and sophomore libero Angie Lastra led the Cats with 13 digs.

K-State resumes play Saturday against Baylor in Waco, Texas. The time has been changed from 7 p.m. to 1:30 p.m.

MLB Playoff Scores

LA Angels	1	Houston	3
Chicago Sox	2	St. Louis	5

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

OLY | Hayes, Ashford, Brooks headline Hall of Fame class

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Bob Hayes, the only man to win an Olympic gold medal and a Super Bowl ring and Evelyn Ashford, 1980 hockey coach Herb Brooks highlight this year's class for the U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame.

Gymnast Shannon Miller, figure skater Kristi Yamaguchi, swimmer Rowdy Gaines and Jack Shea also were selected for the Hall. Paralympian Diana Golden-Brosnihan and NBC sports chief Dick Ebersol also will be inducted Dec. 8 in Chicago.

Hayes was dubbed the "World's Fastest Human" after he won a pair of gold medals at the 1964 Olympics, and he was part of the Dallas Cowboys' team that won the Super Bowl after the 1971 season.

Ashford won five Olympic medals, four of them gold. She won the 100 meters at the Los Angeles Games, and helped the Americans win three straight golds in the 400 relay at the 1984, '88 and '92 Games.

Brooks led a team of college players to the greatest upset in hockey history, the "Miracle on Ice" victory over the mighty Soviet machine in the 1980 semifinals.

NFL | Barber fined $30,000; Suggs and Reed also fined

NEW YORK — Tampa Bay's Ronde Barber was fined $30,000 by the NFL on Wednesday for punching an official during last Sunday's game with the New York Jets.

Barber

Two other prominent players, Baltimore's Terrell Suggs and Ed Reed, were fined $15,000 each for making contact with an official during the Ravens' game in Detroit.

Of the three players, only Suggs was ejected. The Ravens' B.J. Ward, who was ejected from the Baltimore-Detroit game, was not fined.

OLY | Krzyzewski to coach Olympic basketball team

NEW YORK — Duke's Mike Krzyzewski was picked to coach the U.S. basketball team for the 2006 world championships and 2008 Beijing Olympics, a person familiar with the decision told The Associated Press on Wednesday.

Krzyzewski

The Hall of Famer was chosen during a USA Basketball conference call last week, said the person, who did not wish to be identified because the announcement has not been made. Official word was supposed to come Oct. 29.

The American men are trying to regroup after finishing sixth at the 2002 world championships in Indianapolis and third at the 2004 Olympics.

MLB | Baltimore drops interim tag, hires Perlozzo

BALTIMORE — The "interim" tag is gone: Sam Perlozzo is the new manager of the Baltimore Orioles.

Perlozzo

Sam Perlozzo gets a chance to manage the Orioles, roiled in 2005 by the Rafael Palmeiro saga. Perlozzo, who took over for Lee Mazzilli on Aug. 4, signed a three-year contract Wednesday and will guide a team trying to end a run of eight straight losing seasons.

Perlozzo went 23-32 after replacing Mazzilli.

NBA | James injured during exhibition game

CLEVELAND — LeBron James winced with pain at times during practice Wednesday, a day after he woke up with a strained chest muscle.

James sat out the Cleveland Cavaliers' exhibition game Tuesday night against Boston and is listed as questionable with a strained left pectoral muscle for Friday night's home exhibition game against Philadelphia.

He began experiencing pain Tuesday. But he was baffled about how he was injured in an exhibition game Monday night against Washington.

Leave 'em alone

Movie remakes not popular among some students

By Mark Sibilla
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A famous bumper sticker once proclaimed the government's motto as "If it ain't broke, fix it 'til it is." One could go as far to say Hollywood staunchly adheres to this maxim in that movies released are often remakes of old Hollywood classics (or some fairly mediocre ones) and/or well loved television favorites.

It would be a little extreme to say Hollywood botches all of the movies that make it to the silver screen for the second (or third or fourth) time, but many of them are poorly received by the movie-critic populace, as proven by www.metacritic.com, a Web site that averages and weighs scores given by movie critics in their reviews. Many of the top grossing movie remakes received mixed or average reviews or generally negative reviews. Examples of this include "Fantastic Four" at 40, "Herbie: Fully Loaded" at 47, "The Longest Yard" at 48 and "The Dukes of Hazzard" at 33. Scores are on a 0-100 scale.

To give the production companies credit though, many of these movies are lucrative. "War of the Worlds," (another movie remake) according to www.boxofficemojo.com, has domestically grossed more than $2.3 million. Even the remake of "The Longest Yard" made $1.58 million.

What attracts people to their local theaters to shell out money for a movie they've already seen, only now it's starring this week's Hot Comedy Star?

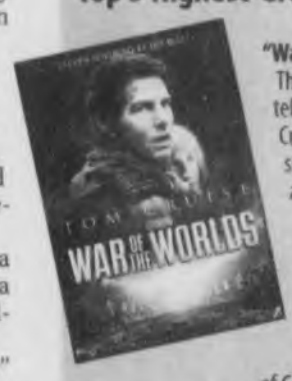
Melissa Colbert, sophomore in public health and nutrition, said she doesn't think these movie remakes stack up to their original versions. The intention is there to make good movies, she said, but sometimes they don't pick the right people to act in them.

The example she gave was of the 1954 romantic-comedy, "Sabrina," starring Audrey Hepburn, Humphrey Bogart and William Holden. Harrison Ford, Julia Ormond and Greg Kinnear starred in the 1995 remake.

"The original ("Sabrina") had a lot more humor in it; it was just a cuter movie (than the remake)," Colbert said.

She added the original "Sabrina" had more charisma between the stars and had an overall better production.

Angela Whay, freshman in art, also said movie remakes are not that great. She said most classic movies should be left untouched.



"'Dirty Dancing: Havana Nights' was a joke," she said.

Some remakes attempt to put a new spin on the movies that generally don't work, Whay said. However, one movie that she said she would be interested in seeing a slightly tweaked remake would be "Casablanca," the classic romance starring Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman.

"It would be interesting to see a remake that kept the storyline but did not adhere to the (early World War II) format," Whay said. "It would be interesting if they brought it to the present or some other time period."

Then of course there are the movies that should never be remade, Whay said. She lists "Pretty Woman" and "The Breakfast Club" as two movies she said got it right the first time.

Top 5 Highest-Grossing Movie Remakes of 2005

"War of the Worlds" (1953-Gene Barry/2005-Tom Cruise)
The large screen adaptation of this H.G. Wells science fiction classic tells of a Martian invasion on Earth. Steven Spielberg enlisted Tom Cruise and Dakota Fanning to star as a New Jersey family trying to survive an alien invasion (the remake does not refer to the aliens as being from Mars).

"Batman Begins" (1966-Adam West/1989-Michael Keaton/2005-Christian Bale)
The Caped Crusader has seen many changes over the years. Batman was first campy for the first Batman movie starring Adam West. Tim Burton gave his twisted view of Gotham City in 1989. The movie spawned three sequels. In 2005, Christopher Nolan ("Memento," "Insomnia") gave The Dark Knight the darker tone that his story deserved. Christian Bale donned the Cape and Cowl for this movie.

"Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" (1971-Gene Wilder/2005-Johnny Depp)
Gene Wilder brought the beloved Willy Wonka to life in 1971; his performance has become a staple of every child's memories. Tim Burton tried his hand at it with Johnny Depp as the unsocial, candy-making genius.

"The Longest Yard" (1974-Burt Reynolds/2005-Adam Sandler)
Burt Reynolds stars as a washed-up quarterback who finds himself in jail and must put together a football team consisting of inmates to play against a team of prison guards. Reynolds has a cameo in the 2005 film starring Adam Sandler and Chris Rock.

"The Fantastic Four" (1994-Alex Hyde-White/2005-Ioan Gruffudd, Jessica Alba)
A crew of four astronauts is bombarded by cosmic radiation in space and gain elemental super-human powers. They battle villain Dr. Doom. A tepid original gave way to the 2005 movie, which still disappointed many Fantastic Four comic book fans (even though it starred Jessica Alba).

Source: Internet Movie Database, www.imdb.com
Art: Courtesy photos

Lemon sugar cookies make for sweet Halloween treats

By Kelly Schmitt
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Halloween, the kickoff for candy and cookie season, is approaching. Sweet treats will be in abundant supply until January. What better way to start this season than with some frosted lemon sugar cookies?

These sugar cookies don't require a rolling pin or cookie cutters. The dough is simply rolled into balls, placed on a cookie sheet and then gently pressed with the bottom of a glass dipped in sugar.

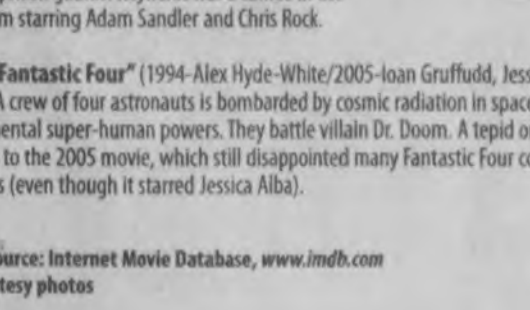
The lemon flavor is not overwhelming, but adds just the right amount of tartness to the sweet sugar cookies. These cookies are good by themselves, but can also be served with a lemon cream cheese frosting.

They are a great treat for Halloween trick-or-treaters. These cookies are also convenient, because the dough can be refrigerated for a few days. A batch of cookies can be cooked in 15 minutes to satisfy a cookie craving.

Spooky recipe

Lemon sugar cookies

1 cup margarine
1 cup sugar
1 cup powdered sugar
1 cup oil
2 eggs
4 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon lemon extract



Combine the sugars, margarine and oil. Add the eggs and mix well. Combine flour, salt, baking soda and cream of tartar to the mix, and stir in the vanilla. Refrigerate dough at least one hour. Dough can be stored in the refrigerator for a few days and used when needed.

Roll dough into balls and place on a slightly greased cookie sheet. Press with a glass dipped in sugar to flatten slightly. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes.

These cookies can be eaten plain, or topped with a lemon cream cheese frosting.

Frosting (small batch)

1 cup powdered sugar
4 tablespoons margarine
8 ounces cream cheese
1 teaspoon lemon extract
Food coloring, if desired
Add sprinkles for fun

Courtesy art

HOROSCOPES

Aquarius (Jan. 21 - Feb. 18)
A huge red balloon will float by you today, being pursued by a small person of the French persuasion and a film crew. If you wish to cause cross-cultural mirth, cross your eyes, talk in a high pitched voice, and whack yourself in the head with a baguette. Otherwise, don't.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Today you will invent a new type of automated squid sorter, for use by professional squid fishermen. You will call it the Squid Pro Quo. That will be a mistake.

Aries (March 21 - April 19)
You will decide to change your life by taking up fishing. Unlike the average person, however, you will be "strictly bass." One must have standards, after all.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)
Today you will watch something like a hawk. Basically, you do that by having unblinking beady little eyes, and a brain the size of a peanut.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Good day to defy convention. Be yourself. Buy a fedora, for example, and wear it indoors.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)
You will be sucked into a multi-level marketing organization today, and will lose all your friends, along with your self-respect. Later, though, you'll realize that your new friends are much better than those old friends, and that you feel like you're part of a big "family." Or at least, that's what you'll say.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22)
Everyone will stare at you like deer in headlights this week at the office. Actually, you will later decide that driving your car around inside the office may not be your best-ever idea.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
Aliens will land in Los Angeles today. Unfortunately, nobody will be able to tell.

Libra (Sept. 22 - Oct. 22)
Good day to learn to do more with your toes. Start off by tying knots with them, and who knows? You could end up being able to accompany yourself on the piano.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
You will find yourself using a very old spreadsheet program, soon. So old, in fact, that the columns have to be either Doric, Ionic or Corinthian.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
Go wild today. Try a different brand of ramen noodles — or even go so far as to sprinkle a little chopped green onion over them.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20)
You will have a visit from "The Scourge of Valderia." He's thin, small, balding, wears little round glasses and dresses in a rumpled blue suit. Still you don't want to cross him.

Source: www.humorscope.com

BILLBOARD CHARTS

Top 10 Albums

Courtesy art

1. Gretchen Wilson, "All Jacked Up"
2. Sheryl Crow, "Wildflower"
3. Three Six Mafia, "Most Known Unknown"
4. Toni Braxton, "Libra"
5. Kanye West, "Late Registration"
6. Lil' Kim, "The Naked Truth"
7. Sean Paul, "The Trinity"
8. Disturbed, "Ten Thousand Fists"
9. Bon Jovi, "Have a Nice Day"
10. Black Eyed Peas, "Monkey Business"
11. Neil Young, "Prairie Wind"
12. Barbra Streisand, "Guilty Pleasures"
13. Mariah Carey, "The Emancipation of Mimi"
14. Kelly Clarkson, "Breakaway"
15. Young Jeezy, "Let's Get It: Thug Motivation 101"
16. Green Day, "American Idiot"
17. Paul Wall, "The Peoples Champ [Bonus Disc]"
18. HIM, "Dark Light"
19. Various Artists, "So Amazing: An All-Star Tribute to Luther Vandross"
20. Various Artists, "Now, Vol. 19"

Courtesy art

Source: www.billboard.com

GAME LIVE ON XBOX

COLLEGE TOUR '05

the hottest games music & more

Need For Speed™ Most Wanted
NBA LIVE 06
Burnout™ Revenge
NCAA March Madness® 06
America˜s Army: Special Forces
Mortal Kombat® Shaolin Monks™
Jade Empire
Far Cry Instincts
F.E.A.R.
Serious Sam II
Darkwatch
Aeon Flux
Delta Force® - Black Hawk Down
BLITZ® The League
L.A. Rush
NCAA® Football 06
NHL® 06
NASCAR 06: Total Team Control
Battlefield 2: Modern Combat™
Marvel Nemesis™: Rise of the Imperfects™
Madden NFL 06
Forza Motorsports
Halo 2

presented by

Mountain Dew
EBGAMES electronics boutique We take games seriously™ CREATIVE
GAMEINFORMER
G4 videogame

LCD & Plasma Screens • Live DJ • Game Swag
Mountain Dew Bars • Halo 2 Competitions

gameliveevents.com

©2005 Microsoft Corporation. All rights reserved. Microsoft, Xbox and the Xbox logos are either registered trademarks or trademarks of Microsoft Corporation in the U.S. and/or other countries and are used under license from owner. All logos & trademarks are the property of each respective Sponsor.

Union Courtyard
Friday, October 14th 7 p.m. - 12 a.m.
FREE ADMISSION

EA SPORTS · EA · VIVENDI UNIVERSAL games · AMERICA'S ARMY · UBISOFT · MAJESCO · MIDWAY · 2K GAMES · NOVALOGIC · .com · CAPCOM · HIGH MOON STUDIOS · PLAYS BEST ON ALIENWARE · SPIN · Norcent

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO OR four-bedroom duplex, laundry facilities, garage. 612 Pierre. (785)449-2181.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED. Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

FAST PACED, upbeat office that is loosing a senior and looking for new student help. Position will officially start after finals, however, ideal candidate will begin learning the ropes over the next few months. This is great professional experience for a journalism or marketing student. Help promote K-State's Distance Education Programs while gaining real life experience. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with ability to work during the summer semesters and winter breaks as well. The individual who fills this position will manage information and promote knowledge of it by means of various media. Duties include: writing content/ copy, creating desktop publications, managing online course databases, writing press releases, conducting interviews, etc. This position works with three full-time communication professionals and three part-time student communication specialists. Design experience a plus. Our on campus office operates Monday- Friday, 8:00am- 5:00pm and is eager to work around your schedule. Please apply in person at 23 College Court Building, Public Information Office, Division of Continuing Education (785)532-5888.

HIGH SCHOOL Chemistry tutor needed. (785)556-2006.

310 Help Wanted

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

INTERNET WORK! $8.75-$38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY Information Systems Office. Information Systems Supervisor for Facilities Management and Departmental Systems is the first line supervisor responsible for providing day-to-day technical leadership and supervision for Applications Development Services staff involved in the operation, maintenance and enhancement of the Facilities Management System, Food Service System, Parking Services System, and Room Scheduling and Utilization Reporting Systems. Minimum experience required: five years. Salary range: $53,000-60,000. Systems Specialist for Student Systems provides software configuration and enhancements, interface design and development, application maintenance and operational support for the Degree Audit Reporting System, Student and Exchange Visitor Information System, Undergraduate Admissions Office web application, Financial Aid Scholarship web application and other student-related systems as required. Minimum experience required: two years. Salary range: $44,000-55,000. Systems Specialist for Parking Services System provides software configuration and enhancements, interface design and development, application maintenance and operational support for the Parking Services System and other systems as required. Minimum experience required: two years. Salary range: $44,000-55,000. All three positions require a Bachelor's degree in Computer Science, Information Systems, Software Engineering or other related technical field.Submit letter of application describing qualifications for the position(s) of interest and a current resume with contact information for at least three professional references: Search Committee for (Position of Interest) Kansas State University Information Systems Office 2323 Anderson Avenue, Suite 215 Manhattan, KS 66502-2912. Screening will begin September 6, 2005 and continue until the positions are filled. Additional Information: See Employment Opportunities at www.ksu.edu/iso or email iso@ksu.edu. Kansas State University is an equal opportunity employer. K-State actively seeks diversity among its employees. Paid for by Kansas State University.

KITCHEN HELP needed, day and evening shifts. Apply online at kiteslive.com. Click on applications in top right hand corner.

PART-TIME LANDSCAPE designer. Looking for an individual with skills in landscape architecture or horticulture landscape design. Please call (785)539-2842 for an appointment.

310 Help Wanted

MAIL CENTER/ DUPLICATING student help needed. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with availability to work during the fall, spring, and summer semesters, as well as breaks. Monday through Friday 8-5. Duties include: campus delivery route, preparation and handling mail, and copy jobs. Computer skills beneficial and some heavy lifting required. Must have a valid driver's license. Bring your schedule and apply in person at 13 College Court Building. (785)532-5988.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PART-TIME HELP wanted. Roof truss manufacturing plant, 5107 Murray Rd., (785)776-5081.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

PURPLE WAVE Auction Co. is accepting applications for part-time advertising designer and computer assistant. Computer proficiency is required, HTML and graphic layout experience is beneficial. Email resume to traffas@purplewave.com.

SUMMER INTERNSHIP open to all majors. Gain career skills, resume experience. Average earns $800/ week. Call (785)317-0455 for details.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

$500! POLICE IMPOUNDS! Hondas/ Chevies/ Jeeps etc. Cars/ Trucks/ SUV's from $500! For listings and information call (800)426-9668 ext. 7536.

1997 FORD Aspire. Five-speed, four-door. 40 miles per gallon. 59,000 actual miles. $2000 firm. 1996 Ford Taurus, automatic $1800. (785)226-1976.

600 travel trip

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK 2006— Travel with STS, America's #1 Student Tour Operator to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco, Bahamas and Florida. Now hiring on-campus reps. Call for group discounts. Information/ Reservations (800)648-4849 or www.ststravel.com.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc.

WE WANT your picture in the 2006 Royal Purple Yearbook. It's your last chance at Rusty's Last Chance to take portrait pictures October 14. Your 2006 Royal Purple, meeting you at the intersection of the night you forgot and the times you'll always remember. It's your last chance at Rusty's Last Chance. Come take your yearbook portrait picture from 1- 8, October 14.

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

Need a Home in Manhattan?

We offer Apartments and Townhouses throughout Manhattan, with student and non-student housing! For a preview of our properties, please visit our web site at : www.mdi-manhattan.com For more information please contact our office at : 785-776-3804.

McCullough Development

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

CLEAN, QUIET two-bedroom, walking distance to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Security deposit negotiable! (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM, Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE FOR January-May. Two-bedroom house, close to campus, $275/ month plus utilities. Washer/ dryer. Call Megan (785)906-0131.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)537-2323.

ROOMMATE NEEDED: Three blocks east of campus. (785)556-0098.

ROOMMATE WANTED in January, two-bedroom apartment. Walking distance. Excellent condition. Central air, two bath, washer/ dryer, balcony. (785)341-7358.

145 Roommate Wanted

ROOMMATE WANTED. $450 a month. One-half utilities, big house, fenced yard. 1024 Houston. Call Scott (785)341-5153.

ROOMMATE wanted. House available now through May. Shared bathroom. By Mercy Hospital, KSU football stadium. Call (913)707-5249.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT with two bathrooms. Close to campus and Aggieville, 1031 Bluemont. $275/ month, water/ trash paid, plus one-third utilities. Call (785)539-3779 or (785)456-5040.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

WANTED: MALE or female roommates for three-bedroom. Fun, outgoing, clean and classy. (785)799-4202.

200 service directory

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

REFRIGERATOR FOR sale. Free delivery. Good start for a kegorator. $50. (785)564-1629. Have a nice day.

GTM SPORTSWEAR

GTM Sportswear, a leading seller of quality sportswear is now accepting applications for Part-Time operations. We are looking for quality, dependable people to add to our Warehouse, Screen-print, and Embroidery Operations. GTM offers flexible schedules, competitive wages, and an opportunity for advancement within a growing nationwide business. Please stop by 520 McCall Road, Manhattan, KS 66502 to begin your career at GTM Sportswear. EOE

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

ADVERTISING DOESN'T COST...

IT PAYS!

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 KEDZIE 532-6555

Get more BUCKS for your BOOKS

Forget the long lines.
Advertise in the classifieds.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 532-6555

Get Away

School and work driving you crazy? Check the Collegian classifieds to find out where you can go to get away from it all . . . for the weekend or for a holiday break. You can get away quicker than you think.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

000 bulletin board
100 housing/ real estate
200 service directory
300 employment opportunities
400 open market
500 transportation
600 travel trip

LACROSSE | Team opens season in Dallas, to host playoffs at K-State

Continued from Page 8

record."

With many young players, the team hopes to see an improvement in this year's record.

"We are hosting the playoffs here at K-State this year, and we expect to play in them," Kalodimos said.

Even though the season doesn't officially begin until the spring semester, the players working now to prepare for the season-opening tournament in Dallas.

The team practices three times every week, and they also have several exhibition matches planned.

Zielonko said he and his players are not bothered by the time commitment.

"We do it for the love of the game," Zielonko said. "We put a lot of work into it just like other athletes, but we don't really expect to get anything else out of it."

For Kalodimos, it is something a little different that keeps him playing.

"I like the camaraderie," he said. "The people make the sport fun, because we have a good time together on and off the field. It is also an opportunity for us to represent K-State, which I think is important."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Josh Morgan, junior in biology, keeps the ball away from an alumni player during their scrimmage last month. Morgan was the team's second leading scorer during the spring 2004 season.

While many club teams at K-State typically have trouble raising enough money to compete in a lot of tournaments, the lacrosse team does not face this problem.

"We are lucky to get good support from the university and alumni," Zielonko said. "It is nice because that makes our club dues low."

With the season a couple months away, the players are improving in many ways, but they are also keeping things in perspective, Kalodimos said.

"We always have a good time when we play," Kalodimos said. "The guys make it fun. If it wasn't fun, I definitely wouldn't be out there."

COLUMN | Paterno leads Nittany Lions back to prominence

Continued from Page 8

championships (1982, 1986), five undefeated, untied seasons, 20 finishes in the top-10 national rankings, four AFCA Coach-of-the-Year plaques and more than 250 former players who have made it to the NFL – 29 of them first-round draft choices.

His teams have registered seven undefeated regular-seasons, and he has had 26 teams finish the season in the top 20.

What Paterno has accomplished at Penn State is amazing, considering that since 1966, there have been 764 head coaching changes among Division I-A programs, an average of more than six changes per I-A institution. All the while, "JoePa" has been spoiling the people of Happy Valley with bowl victories and national championships.

Paterno has turned his program around from its recent lackluster seasons, and I would like to see the Nittany Lions go into Michigan Stadium this weekend and come out with the victory to remain on top of the Big Ten and keep their potential national championship hopes alive.

At 78, Paterno is among the 6 percent of Americans age 75 or older who remain in the workforce, and I'm glad he decided to stick around for a little longer.

I don't know if his team can hang with the talented teams that hail from Southern California, Texas and Virginia Tech, but a BCS bowl and a Big Ten title are only appropriate for what might be the last year for a man who can truly say he has done it all.

Cedrique Flemming is a junior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

MEN'S GOLF | Wildcats slip to 12th after strong start

Continued from Page 8

3-over-par 216 (72-71-73).

Yonke, along with freshman Robert Streb, who tied for 46th after a 7-over-par 220 (72-77-71), were the lone bright spots for a team that saw its leaders, Kern and Cummins, shoot rounds of 84 and 80 respectively in the final round.

Cummins tied with Streb for 46th after shooting 7-over 220 (68-70-80), and Kern found himself in a tie for 60th after finishing the tournament at a 9-over-par 222 (68-70-84).

Jonathan James tied with Kern for 60th, after he also carded a 9-over-par 222 (74-70-78).

Norris is confident his players can bounce back and take away positives from an experience like this.

"It's a little humiliating I'm sure," Norris said. "But college golf is very competitive and our guys just have to battle back from something like this. It was a shame how we ruined two good rounds with another bad final round, but the guys have a lot of pride and I'm sure they will work hard to try and correct the mistakes."

The Wildcats will get a week off before participating in their last tournament of the fall season. They will play in the Barona Collegiate Cup Oct. 24-25, at Lakeside, Calif. at the Barona Creek Golf Course.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd.
(785) 776-3771
Fax: (785) 776-1009
Mon-Fri 8am - 7pm
Sat 8am - 5pm
Sun 1pm - 5pm
The Best Quality Copying and Printing in Town!

kstatecollegian.com

BE royalpurple yearbook&dvd THERE!
www.royalpurple.ksu.edu
Join us at Rusty's for $1 burgers and $1fries!
Friday we will be at:
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Rusty's Last Chance 1 - 8 p.m.
Friday is your LAST CHANCE!
GetyourRoyalPurpleyearbookpicturetakennow.

Student Phone Numbers at your Fingertips.
Kansas State University
CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
2005-2006
Available Now
in your Residence Hall
or purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

One Dollar Over Invoice on 30 Packs
Till January 2006
The Only Liquor Store that wants Sunday Sales

Best, Best Light, Best Ice 30 Pack Cans	$11.80
Miller High Life 30 Pack Cans	$10.85
Natural Light 30 Pack Cans	$11.85
Keystone Light 30 Pack Cans	$12.85
Busch and Busch Light	$13.40
MGD and Miller Light 30 Pack Cans	$14.95
Coors and Coors Light 30 Pack Cans	$15.95
Bud and Bud Light 30 Pack Cans	$15.80

Quantity Discounts Available - While Quantities Last
Check out Wed Specials at www.537wine.biz

On Sale This Week
Barton, Viaka, Nova Vodka 1.75L $8.99 Save $1.00

Everyday Low Prices

Yellow Tail 1.5 L	$10.99	Yellow Tail 750 ML	$5.99
Mondavi 1.5 L	$11.99	Kendal Jackson Chard 750 ML	$11.99
Columbia Crest 1.5 L	$12.99	Hogue LH Resling 750 ML	$9.99
Clos Du Bois 1.5 L	$17.99	Andre 750 ML	$3.99
Cavit 1.5 L	$11.99	Toasted Head Chard 750 ML	$12.99
Bolla 1.5 L	$12.99	Relax Resling 750 ML	$7.49

Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child - Next to Home Depot 537-9463
For more info Go to www.537wine.biz

For cats who bleed purple.

Wildcat Visa Credit Cards, Check Cards and Gift Cards. Available only at INTRUST Bank.

INTRUST encourages responsible credit card spending. For credit tips, go to www.intrustbank.com/creditcardtips.
INTRUST is the exclusive provider of Wildcat Visa Cards, which benefit the K-State Alumni Association.
800-895-2265
www.intrustbank.com
Member FDIC
yes you can. INTRUST Bank

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

INSIDE

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, October 14, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 38

ABC studies K-State's, 24 other schools nuclear reactors

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Thursday evening, ABC's "Primetime" newscast featured K-State's nuclear reactor facility as one of 25 nuclear research reactors on college campuses across the country.

According to the report, K-State's reactor had no guards, no metal detectors and a closed-circuit TV system. While bags were not allowed inside, the two ABC interns said they were given free reign of the reactor.

On June 29, Hsinching Wei, a public policy major at the Kennedy School at Harvard University, and Melia Patria, from the school of journalism at Columbia University, toured K-State's nuclear reactor facility posing as casual women. They were actually ABC interns at the time.

Prior to touring the reactor, a person has to get clearance and have a background check. While on a tour, two or three employees accompanied them. The women were not an exception, Michael Whaley, nuclear reactor facility manager, said.

After they got clearance, they toured the facility with their video cameras in hand.

Whaley said they were told not to film unless they were given permission.

"I think they were probably filming the whole time because of the way they were holding their cameras," he said.

"Primetime" said the student tour guides allowed the women to take pictures and video while standing directly over the reactor.

Whaley said he is not concerned with a person's exposure to the reactor.

"You find out that they're not deadly," he said. "In fact, they call them disruptive, not destructive."

K-State's reactor is 250 kilowatts, while the largest on-campus nuclear reactor in the nation is at 20 megawatts – or 20,000 kilowatts.

If K-State's reactor exploded, Whaley said it would merely spread contamination around. It would take about a week or two to clean it up.

"Do it during finals week, for God's sake," Whaley said. "The disruptions would only be classes."

Whaley said the only way a person would be killed from the reactor is if they were standing on top of it when it exploded.

For more information
"Primetime" report, visit abcnews.go.com/primetime.
K-State's nuclear reactor, visit www.mne.ksu.edu/research/centers/reactor.

See REACTOR Page 12

SGA holds allocations for referral

By Megan Crane
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Thursday night, at the Student Governing Association meeting, students sat in assigned seats to emphasize unity.

"The activity was great in that we were able to begin discussing ways to have more efficient representation of our college," said Alex Suñé, sophomore in secondary education and newly appointed senator for the College of Education.

Senators discussed a resolution regarding disbursement of the city/university special projects fund for the 2007 calendar year, and recommended the distribution of $374,900 for widening Denison Avenue, continued sidewalk and lighting improvements and construction of a sidewalk on the west side of College Avenue from Claflin Road to Kimball Avenue. The resolution was held for referral.

"Meetings are open to any student and after legislation is passed, it's the administration that actually passes the formal recommendation to the city of Manhattan," said Matt King, junior in political science and governmental relations chair.

The senate also considered four bills for emergency allocations, regarding athletics, the K-State Student Union, recreational services and student health. Each of the bills was held for referral.

Spanish instructor hospitalized

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A K-State Spanish instructor is conscious and talking after suffering a brain aneurysm Wednesday morning.

Ines De La Torre Ugarte will remain at the Via Christi Regional Medical Center-St. Francis Campus in Wichita for about three weeks, Angelique Courbou, Spanish instructor and coordinator, said.

Courbou said she and Yasmin Diaz, instructor in Spanish, found Ugarte unconscious in her office between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Wednesday.

"We think because of her ruptured aneurysm she fainted and either hit her head on the desk or on the floor," Courbou said.

Courbou said she and Diaz rushed Ugarte to Mercy Regional Health Center and later that day she was transported by helicopter to the Via Christi Regional Medical Center.

Wednesday night, Ugarte had an operation to block the aneurysm and stop the bleeding, Courbou said.

Although Ugarte is able to speak now, she won't be back this semester,

See UGARTE Page 12

Walking for fitness

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Caitlin Faddis, senior mass communication, and Sara Deutsch, senior in accounting, walk along Clarenburg Trail in City Park Thursday evening. Power walking is an alternative to jogging and can be done in a group with friends.

Students opt for low-impact alternative to running

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students have somewhere to be, but a lot of them aren't running there.

Larry Noble, professor of kinesiology, cited recent surveys that say fitness walking is the most popular fitness activity for women and senior citizens. It is, however, the number nine activity for young men.

"I know it's prevalent," he said.

Power walking is a low-impact alternative to running, said Amber Long, assistant director of fitness for the Peters Recreation Complex.

Dictionary.com defines power walking as "a type of energetic rapid walking, usually with vigorously swinging arms and sometimes when carrying or wearing weights."

Students, mostly female, can be seen power walking around the tracks at the Rec Complex, around City Park or on campus. Often they're in pairs or groups of three, making it a social form of exercise, Long said.

"It's refreshing and it's a good way to have a good girl talk and a workout at the same time," Hannah Crippen, junior in mass communications, said.

Crippen said she tries to power walk five times per week for 45 minutes, usually after she works out on an elliptical machine.

"My parents got me started on it because we have a four-mile path we walk in Wichita," she said.

Crippen said she feels the work out toning her arms, stomach, butt and legs without taxing her body too heavily.

"It still keeps your heart rate up without putting stress on any muscles," she said.

Long, too, said walkers reap the benefits of cardiovascular work, including expended calories, without placing stress on joints.

"Their joints aren't stressed from constant pounding," she said. "There's less chance for injury and overuse because walking is a normal part of our life."

Walking is less stressful on the lower body, Noble said. When walking, the ground reaction force is 10 percent to 15 percent of a person's body weight, but when running, the ground reaction force is between two and three times a person's body weight.

"It's more comfortable to walk," Noble said.

Long said walking works the lower body, especially the gluteus, the quadriceps and the hamstrings. Noble said walking works the hip and knee flexors, the calves, the thighs, the buttocks and, to some degree, the abdominals. People who swing their arms vigorously while walking also involve their upper body muscles.

However, Crippen said, people can walk wrong. She said some people tell her power walking isn't exercise.

"I think walking is something people can mess up," she said. "You

See WALK Page 12

Today
High 82
Low 52

Saturday
High 76
Low 50

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

85 dead in Russia
At least 85 are dead after militants attacked police and government buildings in Russia's Caucasus region Thursday, taking hostages and turning a provincial capital into a war zone. Chechen rebels claimed responsibility for the offensive in Nalchik as a new front opened in the Kremlin's decade-old battle against Islamic insurgents.

Baby snatcher arraigned
Peggy Jo Conner was arraigned Thursday on charges of attempted homicide and aggravated assault and was jailed without bail after she clubbed her pregnant neighbor over the head with a baseball bat Wednesday in Pittsburg, Pa. She then drove her to the woods and cut her belly with a knife in attempt to steal her baby, police said.

Senator joins race
Sen. Jim Barnett of Emporia announced Thursday that he intends to challenge Gov. Kathleen Sebelius. Barnett was first elected to the Senate in 2000 and was re-elected last year. Other candidates include Dennis Hawver, Ozawkie, Kan.; Robin Jennison, Healy, Kan.; Richard Rodewald, Lawrence; and Doug Mayes, Topeka.

DON'T FORGET

The World Food Day Teleconference will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the Union Flint Hills room.

A Game Live Tour will begin at 7 tonight in the Union Courtyard as a part of After Hours. Free Chili Dogs will follow at 9:30 tonight in Union Station.

The Central States Marching Band Festival will be from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday on Wagner Field.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Comic Atkinson
6 "Lord —"
9 Pack away
12 Out of sorts?
13 Altar constellation
14 Seesaw quorum
15 CIA ex-boss George
16 Kate of "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom"
18 Hit
20 Make
21 Pointed tool
23 Indivisible
24 Hangs in the balance
25 Bard
27 Football Hall-of-Famer Hank
29 Main dish
31 Comical Tracey
35 Praise to the skies
37 Arizona city
38 Ballroom dance
41 Embarrassed
43 Back talk
44 Wings
45 Sausage holder
47 Kate of "Charlie's Angels"
49 Aesopian conclusion
52 Raw rock
53 Glutton
54 Navratilova rival
55 Apt. bldg. components
56 Supplement, with "out"
57 Cut lumber

DOWN
1 Snitch
2 Bullring bravo
3 Kate of "Titanic"
4 Drive the getaway car
5 Explosive liquid
6 Coat
7 "Dies —"
8 Navigation aid
9 Frome or Allen
10 Trophy or medal
11 Suburbs, usually
17 Attractive
19 Smaller 8-Down
21 Unoriginal one
22 Triumphed
24 One of the gang
26 Man with all the answers?
28 Reigns
30 Outside (Pref.)
32 Kate of "Star Trek: Voyager"
33 Chartres chum
34 Forty winks
36 Dutch royal house
38 Primary study
39 Frighten
40 Spiked clubs
42 They ain't worth a nickel
45 Diner staffer
46 PBS science series
48 That girl
50 Exist
51 British "Inc."

Solution time: 25 mins.

A	S	P	S			C	O	B			I	B	I	S
R	O	A	M			A	W	L			T	A	R	E
B	H	I	O			L	E	O			A	C	M	E
S	T	R	O	L	L				B	A	L	K	A	N
			C	A	B				L	I	D
S	I	G	H			A	L	B	A	C	O	R	E
O	N	A				C	J	I				O	U	R
U	N	M	A	S	K	E	R			U	R	G	E
		E	V	E			D	O	S
A	L	B	E	R	T		C	R	A	N	E	S
M	U	I	R			O	V	A			B	A	D	E
E	A	R	S			A	I	L			L	I	N	T
N	U	D	E			D	E	L			E	R	A	S

Yesterday's answer 10-14

1	2	3	4	5	■	6	7	8	■	9	10	11
12					■	13			■	14
15					■	16			17
■	■	18			19			■	20
21	22			■	23			24
25			26	■	27		28			■	■	■
29			30			■	31			32	33	34
■	■	■	35			36		■	37
38	39	40			■	41		42	■	43
44				■	45				46		■	■
47				48			■	49			50	51
52			■	53			■	54
55			■	56			■	57

10-14 CRYPTOQUIP

ZO Z BDCCSCX M YTR IAR LMX DT ZDOYACDSM. Z WACBB ZR HZWLR IC HAUL MULTT MITAR DTRLZDW.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: I'M A TRUE CONNOISSEUR OF SEAFOOD. I SUPPOSE THAT SOME COULD CALL ME AN AFISHIONADO.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: B equals S

BEST BETS

Your guide to the weekend's entertainment

1 | K-State vs. Texas Tech

The Wildcats travel to Lubbock, Texas, to face the Red Raiders at 11:10 a.m. Saturday at Jones SBC Stadium. The Wildcats have a 4-1 record while the Red Raiders are 5-0. They lead series history by 5-3. The last meeting between K-State and Texas Tech was last year at Wagner Field with a 25-35 loss for the Wildcats. The game will be on ABC; check local listings for channel information. For more information visit www.kstatesports.com.

2 | Oleanna

The KSU Theatre Department presents Oleanna at 8 p.m. tonight and Saturday at Nichols Theatre. The play reveals the issues of sexual harassment, power politics on campuses and the value of today's college education. The story exposes how many misconceptions a simple student-teacher conference can have. Tickets are $7.50 for students, $9.50 for seniors and $11.50 for the general public. For more information call 532-6857 or e-mail marcima@ksu.edu.

3 | OZtoberFest

The OZ Museum will present a weekend of over-the-rainbow adventure that will remind you there's no place like home. OZtoberFest begins at 9 a.m. today at The OZ Museum, 511 Lincoln Ave., Wamego, Kan., with the arrival of special guests including several of the original Munchkins. The Columbian Theatre, 521 Lincoln Ave., Wamego, will also present the stage production of "The Wizard of Oz." A buffet dinner begins at 6 p.m., and the performance begins at 7:30 p.m. today and Saturday. The matinee buffet begins at 12:30 p.m. and the performance begins at 2 p.m. Sunday. The weekend's performances will feature special cameo appearances by the original Munchkins. For more information about OZtoberFest, call (785) 458-8687 or visit www.oztoberfest.com.

4 | Cox Bros. American Music Series

Cox Bros. BBQ, 600 S. Fourth St., will be having an Oktoberfest celebration at noon Saturday. The event is a part of Cox's American Music Series and will feature accordion master Rusty Schwerdt and the O.T.'s. A bratwurst platter will be on special. There will be no cover charge. For more information call 587-8566 or e-mail cschreiber@sndesign.net.

5 | Oktoberfest on the VFW Plaza

The second annual Oktoberfest will have a food court from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m., bier garten from 4 p.m. to midnight, children's games and prizes from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and polka band from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday at the VFW plaza, 212 S. Fourth St. All net profits will go to the National Veterans of Foreign Wars Hurricane Relief Fund. Call 776-4177 for more information.

6 | Movies on the Grass

The film "The Education of Shelby Knox" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Coffman Commons, in front of Hale Library. The event is free and open to the public. Don't forget a lawn chair or a blanket to enjoy the movie.

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Wednesday, Oct. 12

- Gerald Good, 6224 Robin Lane, Lot 67, was arrested at 9:15 a.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $50,000.
- Charles Foster, Junction City, was arrested for extradition of imprisonment. Bond was not set.
- Irvin Jones, Topeka, was arrested at 1:55 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $4,000.
- Angelo Aldridge, Topeka, was arrested at 2:19 p.m. for unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $500.
- Jennifer Odrowski, 1947 Crescent Drive, was arrested at 6:20 p.m. for identity theft and a computer crime. Bond was set at $2,000.
- Malcolm Cunningham, 1513 Hillcrest Drive, was arrested at 8 p.m. for two counts of theft, two counts of forgery and obstruction of legal process. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Malcolm Cunningham, 1513 Hillcrest Drive, was arrested at 11:10 p.m. for theft and obstruction of legal process. Bond was set at $1,000.

Thursday, Oct. 13

- Joseph Harris, 2083 College View Road, was arrested at 3:55 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- Portraits for the Royal Purple yearbook will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the K-State Student Union and the last chance for yearbook pictures will be from 1 p.m. to 8 tonight at Rusty's Last Chance Restaurant & Saloon, 1211 Moro St.
- Dr. J. Matthew Shumway, chair of the geography department at Brigham Young University, will present "Amenity Levels, Perception and the Rural West as Sacrifice Zone: The Case of Tooele County, Utah" at 3 p.m. today in the Union Big 12 room.
- The 25th annual international World Food Day videoconference will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the Union Flint Hills room.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Where do you get your beer?
Keystone 30pks $12.49
Miller Lite 30pks $14.49
THE FRIDGE Wholesale Liquor

FRIDAYS $2.00 HURRICANES PLUS TAX
SATURDAYS $2.25 CORONAS PLUS TAX
BUFFALO WILD WINGS GRILL & BAR 1231 Moro AGGIEVILLE

Smile!
This is the last day for portrait pictures!
Royal Purple yearbook
free portrait pictures today at:
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Rusty's Last Chance 1 - 8 p.m.
Get a yearbook and enter to win an iPod!
royalpurple.ksu.edu royalpurple

Manhattan Arts Center
Presents
Pierce Peffis
Saturday, October 15th at 8 p.m.
Part of the Bird House Series
Tickets available at:
Claflin Books and Copies,
The Dusty Bookshelf,
& Manhattan Arts Center
Ad sponsored by Claflin

SAFE RIDE
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11:00 p.m. - 3:00 a.m.
We Drive. You Ride. Every Weekend.
Call:
539-0480
A free service provided by the K-State Student Governing Association

ATTENTION STUDENTS!!!
The KSU Controllers Office is pleased to announce a new tuition billing method.
Beginning October 15, 2005 you will have access to your monthly statement online through a link from your KATS account. A notification of the availability of each monthly bill will be sent to your KSU e-mail account. For your convenience we will continue to send paper bills for the next several months.
For additional information please visit the Cashier Website at HYPERLINK "http://www.ksu.edu/pay" www.ksu.edu/pay, or you may visit our office at 212 Anderson Hall.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Professor John, played by Michael Weiser, sophomore in theater, smokes a pipe during a scene of "Oleanna" in Nichols Theatre.

Play illustrates sexual harassment

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A male professor beat up a female student in Nichols Hall Thursday night. About 300 people witnessed the event. The police weren't called.

In the KSU Theatre Department's production of David Mamet's "Oleanna," Debra Morland and Michael Weiser illustrated a story of a student-teacher relationship revolving around sex and power.

Morland portrays Carol, a student who struggles her way through a class and begs her professor for help when she is failing. As she cries to John, her professor, portrayed by Weiser, comforts her with more than academic advice.

"Don't worry about your paper," John says to her while alone in his office. "Just come into my office. I'll give you an 'A.'"

For Donna Potts, associate professor in English, the alluding invitation reminded her of a harsh college experience – when she was raped.

Potts, along with many women, face sexual harassment during their college experiences, said Marci Mauller, play director and associate professor in speech communication, theatre and dance.

While the play wasn't written about sexual harassment, Mauller said it danced heavily around the issue.

Mary Sprouse, sophomore in mechanical engineering, said if she met a professor behind closed doors, it would make her very uncomfortable.

"He has this power over you, and you need understanding," Sprouse said. "You need something he has already."

Oleanna

When: 8 p.m. today and Saturday
Where: Nichols Theatre in Nichols Hall
How much: $11.50 for public, $7.50 for seniors and $7.50 for students

K-State tuition increase 14th highest

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An Oct. 4 article in USA Today listed K-State as having the 14th highest tuition increase for in-state undergraduate students out of 67 "flagship schools."

For first-year resident undergraduate students, K-State's average tuition for two semesters increased from $4,665 to $5,124, an increase of 9.8 percent. Since the fall 2000 semester, the increase has been more than 84 percent, from $2780.50.

Though these numbers may seem high, they are in line with most other universities, said Bruce Shubert, associate vice president of administration and finance.

"We started out pretty low, and the increases have been highly variable," Shubert said. "In the Big 12, we had the eighth largest increase."

By comparison, the University of Kansas increased its tuition by 14.3 percent since last year, however they have only raised costs by 29 percent.

K-State has had a steady increase in tuition for the past several years, with a 35 percent increase since the fall 2002 semester.

Though the increases may seem random to students, there is a method behind them.

In 2002, K-State administrators started a plan to increase the tuition at K-State over the next five years.

"At the beginning of fiscal year 2003, there was a plan put into place not just to increase tuition," Shubert said. "It was increased to help with technology, to help with instructional equipment needs and to help out the library."

The plan to increase the tuition was formulated several years in advance.

Though some students may believe a decrease in state funding caused their bills to increase, that's not exactly the case, Shubert said.

"The initiative was implemented prior to any decrease in funding," he said.

In fact, if it had not been for the planned increase, K-State would have been in fiscal trouble.

"The fact is, without the tuition increases, we would have been in dire straights," Shubert said. "It would look very different today if we hadn't had the tuition go up."

Though the cost of attending K-State is continuing to rise, the university has plans in place to protect students who have trouble absorbing the extra fees.

"One of the things that the university does is it sets aside 20 percent of the increase to help students with financial needs," said Larry Moeder, director of student financial aid.

"It's to help needy students who can not afford those increases."

Along with the 20 percent the university sets aside, Moeder said federal aid has increased along with the tuition.

This school year marks the second half of the five-year plan, and a new strategy is already in the works.

Shubert said a group of students, faculty and administration will begin meeting next week to discuss the next five-year plan.

"They are going to start to talk about where we want to go from here," he said. "Over the next several months, they are going to talk about the future."

Australian designer discusses traffic ideas

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The design of modern streets and roadways was the topic of a lecture by Michael Wallwork, an expert in traffic design, Thursday afternoon.

The College of Architecture, Planning and Design brought Wallwork to K-State, and the lecture was supported through the Mark K. Jarvis Chair in Landscape Architecture.

Wallwork is a native of Australia, and has brought the design of streets in his native country to the United States.

"Street design in Australia is quite different from what you see here," he said.

The lecture emphasized making civil spaces livable by making residents feel safe and at home there. Trees, green spaces and options in transportation all make streets a better place for pedestrians and drivers alike, Wallwork said.

Wallwork compared a good street to a room. The road itself is the floor, buildings are the walls, and trees make up the roof. By adding boulevards, it makes drivers and pedestrians feel like a room has been added.

"Any good street, no matter where you go in the world, has these things," he said.

Many modern streets in the United States are like deserts, Wallwork said. By moving buildings far away from the street, getting rid of trees in medians and making roadways wider makes many drivers and pedestrians feel exposed.

"You've got to feel cuddled in the street," Wallwork said.

By moving buildings closer to the street, adding a green space on both sides of the road, and adding a median with green space in between, people feel more at home on a street.

"One of the basic marks of success is when you see people in the places you wanted them to be," Wallwork said. "You have to know who your customers are, and you have to know what they need."

Another part of Wallwork's lecture was dealing with the use of roundabouts. Roundabouts lessen traffic accidents, decrease waits at intersections and make them more aesthetically pleasing.

Michael Wallwork, an expert in traffic design, speaks during a lecture Thursday afternoon in the Hemisphere Room of Hale Library. The lecture was aimed at students in the College of Architecture, Planning and Design.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Alison Schmack, senior in landscape architecture, said she enjoyed Wallwork's speech and appreciated most of it, but she disagreed with his views on roundabouts.

"Roundabouts may be a good thing, but I still don't like them," she said.

Derek Taylor, freshman in architectural engineering, said he was impressed with how interesting the lecture was.

"Coming in," Taylor said, "it was just something I was going to do for a class, and I thought it was going to be boring.

"But he did a really good job," Taylor said

Overall, Taylor said the most important point Wallwork made in the lecture was how aesthetic devices can still contribute to the usability of a road.

"Pretty stuff can be functional too," he said.

Religion Directory

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
5:00 p.m. Contemporary Service
6:00 p.m. Dinner for College Students
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

Westview Community Church
Serving God - reaching people
Worship services 9:00 a.m. 10:45 a.m.
Sunday school 9:00 a.m.
Campus ministry director Carol Buchheister - cybuch@juno.com
3001 Fort Riley Boulevard
www.westviewcommunity.com
785-537-7173

LET'S HELP OUR LOCAL CHARITIES
Please consider a contribution to support our local charities.
THINK GLOBALLY. ACT LOCALLY.

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
330 Sunset Avenue
Saturday-
Traditional Worship 6:00 p.m.
Sunday-
Traditional Worship 8:30 a.m.
College Bible Study 9:45 a.m.
Contemporary Worship 11:00 a.m.
Email: stlukes@flinthills.com
(785) 539-2604

ADVERTISE YOUR CHURCH HERE
CALL 532-6560

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00,10:30, 10:40, 12:00
• Sunday School at 9:15
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086

NEW HOPE community church
Pursuing relationships that change the world
WORSHIP SERVICE 9 & 10:45 AM
Small groups for men, women & married couples. College and Family Ministries, www.newhopeks.org
3905 GREEN VALLEY ROAD 537-2389

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road. (South on K-177 across viaduct, left on K-18 1/2 mile)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Day care for toddlers.
A Welcoming Congregation.
For information call (785) 537-2349
Rev. Michael Nelson
www.uufm.net

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

Come Worship With Us
1st Church of the Nazarene
3031 Kimball Ave.
9:30 Sunday School
10:40 Sunday Worship
7:00 Wed. Bible Study, Teens
Youth & College ministry opportunities
Senior Pastor: Pat Weyranch
539-6376

All Welcome to Worship!
Sunday Evening-7p.m. Danforth Chapel
New on Thursday Oct. 20
6p.m. Meal & Dialog at Luther House
1745 Anderson
-SE Corner of Denison & Anderson-
Nov. 5-Walk Konza Trails
ELCA-If ? 313-3895 LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:15 & 10:45 a.m.
Bible Classes For All Ages 9:30 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church
Established in 1879
401 Yuma Street
(1 Bl. North of Ft. Riley Blvd. at 4th Street)
Reverend Penny Pitchford
Pastor
(785) 539-3892 Church (913) 321-0974 Pastor
Sunday School 9:30 AM
Breakfast 10:30 AM
Worship Service 11:00 AM
"Enter To Worship, Depart To Serve"

CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4281
ecm@ksu.edu
www.ksu.edu/ecm
David Jones, Pastor
Saturdays 8:00pm Faith and Film Night
Sundays 5:30pm Table Fellowship (free food!)
Wednesdays 5:00pm Bible Study
Thursdays 6:30pm Fantasy and Spirituality
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

St. Francis Episcopal Campus Ministry
at Kansas State University
Sunday worship at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Sixth & Poyntz, Manhattan
785-776-9427
11:30 a.m. Contemporary Service (followed by lunch for KSU students)
Monday, 5:30 pm, Supper & Conversation at St. Francis/Canterbury House, 1823 Laramie St.
Drew Vining, Program Coordinator, 341-3221

You are welcome at...
FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD

First United Methodist Church
Worship at 8:30, 8:45 and 11:00
Come at 8:30 and 11:00 for more traditional worship with choirs and organ in our beautiful sanctuary.
Come at 8:45 for a BLENDED worship in our auditorium. Free doughnuts. 45 minutes long. Great band. COME AS YOU ARE!
Come at 9:45 for Sunday School in the auditorium. A special class for college students, relating the Bible to YOUR life.
JUST COME.
612 Poyntz, Manhattan Kansas
CAMPUS MINISTRY! Check out the website: Ksu.edu/umcm

For College Students
Christian Fellowship
www.ksuchialpha.com
Wednesday 8:00 p.m. (KSU Little Theater)
Pastor Bryan Elliott
Sunday Services
Sunday School 9:00 a.m.
Morning Worship 10:15 a.m.
Evening Worship 6:00 p.m.
Nursery Provided for All Services
Gary Ave. Candlewood Dr. Seth Childs Rd. Kimball
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr. Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

Celebration Service
CONTEMPORARY WORSHIP SERVICE
For Everyone! All ages and all people who want to worship God. Sundays at 5 p.m.
Fellowship Meal at 6 for College Students
First Presbyterian Church
801 Leavenworth
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-537-0518
Pastor: R.C. McConnell
Associate Pastor: Anne Scheiber
Email: staff@firstpresmanhattan.com
www.firstpresmanhattan.com
"Sing to the Lord a new song, his praise from the ends of the earth..." Isaiah 42:10

TO THE POINT

K-State tuition among best in Big 12 schools

There is much ado made about rising tuition costs and their effects on the student body as a whole.

While having more money to stuff in our pockets is an enjoyable sensation, we must accept that it is not merely tuition that has become more expensive. It is everything.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

Having shed the shell of high school, we have sought a place where we are to glean the knowledge and skills that will provide our means of production for a large portion of our lives. It seems ridiculous to wish to garner this knowledge on the cheap.

Although tuition is rising, and rising rapidly, when viewed from the proper perspective, it's obvious it is rising because it was so low to begin with.

K-State has been, and continues to be, one of the most affordable universities in the region, placing third among Big 12 Conference schools for resident tuition and fourth for non-resident.

In a competitive world we should not want our school to lead the race to the bottom of tuition prices. Certainly it could, but as tuition plummeted, so would the quality of our facilities, technology and faculty.

As much as complaining about tuition is a fun way to pass the time, the reality of the situation is not quite so grim. We attend a successful university with national and internationally renowned programs.

Rising tuition is the price we pay for maintaining the edge of our university. Complaining about it is much ado about nothing.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Unsportsman-like conduct

K-State fans embarrassed themselves at last week's game

K-State beat KU last weekend.

It's definitely cause for celebration and something to be proud of, but some of what I witnessed in the stadium last weekend was not something to be proud of.

ADDIE LAUE

The atmosphere at the football games should be half the fun of going. When the stands are packed shoulder to shoulder, with everyone yelling and cheering on the team, it's impossible not to get a little fired up.

And that's a good thing.

But what's not a good thing is K-State fans harassing and yelling profanities at fans of the opposing team.

As I stood in the stands with friends last weekend, that is exactly what happened. Three men, whom I have known since high school, stood behind me and my friends. At first, their heckling of the KU players was pretty entertaining, but when they turned their attention to two female KU fans a few rows in front of us, it turned ugly.

Dirty feminine pronouns – I'll spare you all the horror of using the actual words, but I'm sure you can imagine – started flying. As if that wasn't shocking enough, I wanted to hide under the bench when one of the guys threatened that he had never hit a girl, but that he was considering it now. I exchanged horrified looks with my friends and prayed no one had noticed we knew these guys. Suddenly something that had been really fun, wasn't.

A man standing with the two KU fans had the maturity to simply ask the guys to stop, at which point they began yelling at him. Instead of starting a yelling match, the KU fans simply ignored them until it stopped. Undoubtedly, this wasn't the only incident that day, and it's likely that it was coming from some KU fans too.

The whole experience reminded me of high school, where our school had such unsportsman-like conduct that the administration had to create a list of people who weren't allowed at the games. It was embarrassing then, but it is shameful now.

Somewhat understandably, the maturity level just isn't there in high school, but as adults in college, it is inexcusable.

Most likely, alcohol is involved in similar events. And there is nothing wrong with a few beers to celebrate a football game. But if you know that a few too many turns you into a ranting embarrassment, maybe you should consider skipping them.

Besides embarrassing ourselves, just a few fans give an impression of the whole university.

I can't understand why we would want to create this impression of our school or make anyone's experience at our school so negative.

I am proud to be a Wildcat fan, and I'd like it to remain something to be proud of. So while we may be able to teach KU a few things when it comes to football, I think we should all take a lesson from the KU fans I saw this weekend and represent our university with maturity.

Addie Laue is a junior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Eric Thompson | COLLEGIAN

Farm bill lacks parity between crops

I've heard talk. City folks who clock in for 40 hours a week and do nothing but hold a chair to the floor are a bit irked about paying for the current farm bill.

I agree. Not for the same reasons, of course. But, hey, Willy WhiteCollar: if the ends justify the means, I'll get in my Chevy, you in the Kia, and let's meet on Capitol Hill to throw a big 'ole fit. You whine and take Ted Kennedy out for a few highballs, and we country knuckle-draggers will take a big-ass vat of White-Out to the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002, aka "the Farm Bill." No more wasting tax money on farmers. Then we'll put 2007 in place of 2002 and hand it over to Congress.

LUCAS MADDY

Secretary of Agriculture Mike Johanns, former governor of Nebraska, has hosted Farm Bill Forums in 17 different states. These "listening sessions" gain perspective on desires for the upcoming 2007 Farm Bill. Johanns has enough frequent flyer miles for a one-way ticket to the moon. Producers may suggest he take it if Congress ignores their views this time around.

There are more faults in the 2002 Act than dogs under porches in Arkansas. The biggest shortcoming? Parity. This act lacks parity between crops and from producer-to-producer. Will we learn?

Within commodities, a stair step of supports exists. At the top of the step are rice and cotton. The United States is in violation of World Trade Organization subsidy regulations due to outrageous payments received by U.S. cotton growers.

Whether we will comply with demands to lower cotton payments is unknown.

At the bottom of these stairs lie fruits and vegetables. These commodities receive zero dollars in price supports. What effect do price supports have on the consumer?

Price supports for cotton, changed little since the 1996 Farm Bill, allowed producers from 1996-2001 to increase production by more than 2.5 million acres despite cotton prices dropping from 69 cents to 30 cents per pound. Conversely, raisins look to be pricey this fall as an absence of subsidies forced producers to harvest while still in their insurance window. This early harvest is producing a low-quality product that expensive imports may replace. Consumers share the cost.

Any action taken must be across the board, not solely for the benefit of corn or soybean growers. Over-the-road truckers suffer the most.

Such a plan would involve temporary United States Department of Agriculture offices for farmers to apply to for their "diesel discount."

This requires interim employees, program and procedure development, and training. More tax dollars. Remember, before government gives to one party, they must remove it from another.

Parity? Under the current farm bill, only 41 percent of farmers eligible to receive payments actually do.

Even worse, 80 percent of last year's checks were cashed by 15 percent of farmers. Topping the list: down-home, sunup to sundown boys like David Rockefeller and Scottie Pippen.

The Farm Bill is like a day-after drunk trying to impress. Scarf to hide hickeys, baggy shirt over the beer belly, cap concealing unkempt hair. The whole outfit clashes.

We won't know what the farm economy is like until we go back to what it was like before all this so-called "assistance." Take off the help. Let's get naked.

Lucas Maddy is a senior in agriculture technology management. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

What's the deal with the huge spork outside of King Hall?

Check out SGA vs. the Collegian today at 5 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

Kody Cooper is one hot college guy.

Jesus loves the sinner but hates the sin.

I heard rumors that Wes and Johanna from the Real World were in Aggieville on Sunday. Can anyone confirm?

Guess what liberal democrats? Jesus loves you, too.

To the guy outside of the military science building last night, thanks for the hamburger pizza. You are awesome.

I just realized the West Wing season six marathon on Bravo has become mentally taxing on me. I am now taking a break from it before I have a nervous breakdown.

If you call in three or more comments about the West Wing marathon does that make you a loser? Because if it does, chalk one up for me.

You should know that Dean Bosco knows everybody. Duh.

Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity is now the new FarmHouse.

We are in love with our statistics GTA.

Some guy just drove by and asked us if we'd seen his pork chop.

Your article forgot to mention the muppet version of Wizard of Oz with Quentin Tarantino in it. Sucks though.

That was my roommate that fell down and skinned her knee right in front of Dickens Hall this evening. Don't worry. She's still hot.

I promise I just saw someone doing a seance on the second floor of Moore. I don't know if that's creepy, but, yeah.

One nation, under Apollo, with liberty and justice only for those who share my religious beliefs.

I found today's Collegian rather shallow and pedantic.

My life's ambition is to win at the Internet.

Now that Boston's out of the playoffs I hope you guys don't get hurt falling off the bandwagon.

After Saturday, USC will have one loss, and my Irish eyes will be smiling.

I, a sophomore girl, gave a freshman boy a hickey against his consent. Is that wrong?

Get it out of there.

I'm pregnant with a goat baby. I'm going to name him Giggles.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Acoustic music series to feature folk singer

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A rising folk music star will perform in Manhattan Saturday.

Pierce Pettis, singer and songwriter, will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Manhattan Arts Center.

Pettis
SINGER/SONGWRITER

His concert will be a part of the Birdhouse Music Series, which has been bringing acoustic musicians to the arts center for the past 11 years.

The series started in 1994. It was organized by David Kamerer, then a journalism professor but now in the private sector; Steve Martini, associate director of the Peters Recreation Complex; and Gretchen Holden, director of Disability Support Services for the Office of Student Life.

"He writes from a distinctly southern perspective, so he's often compared with southern writers like William Faulkner," Kamerer said.

Pettis released "Great Big World," his eighth album, over the summer, according to a release from the arts center.

It was released by the Nashville-based independent label Compass Records.

Holden said that a review by Sing Out! magazine described Pettis' work best.

"What they say about him is that his songs are not as much songs as they are literature," Holden said.

No one could say for certain how many times the artist had performed in the series before, but Kamerer, Martini and Holden said this will likely be his third or fourth appearance in the series.

"Pierce is a fine musician and one of the finest songwriters in the national scene," Martini said.

He said the Birdhouse Music Series' concerts feature a quiet, intimate performance, and performers in the series often talk with members of the audience and tell stories between songs.

Tickets to the concert are $15 for adults and $12 for students at the Manhattan Arts Center, 1520 Poyntz Ave.

Upcoming acts in the Birdhouse Music Series include Kathrin Shorr and Tim Burlingame on Nov. 4 and Zoe Lewis and the Rubber Band on Dec. 3, said Shauna Tominey, program and marketing director for the arts center.

Pierce Pettis
When: 8 p.m. Saturday
Where: Manhattan Arts Center, 1520 Poyntz Ave.
How much: $15 for adults, $12 for students

Wine walk benefits hospice group

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Darlene Wernette, of Clay Center, Kan., tastes some wine as Carolyn Buchmann, also of Clay Center, tries some snacks while participating in the Promenade on Poyntz Thursday evening. The event was presented by the Standard Beverage Corporation as a benefit for Homecare and Hospice Foundation.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Gold, green and purple balloons tied to tissue-wrapped bricks marked each stop last night in downtown Manhattan.

The first Promenade on Poyntz, a wine walk in the city's downtown business district, took fans of fermentation to 10 businesses between 5:30 and 8:00 p.m. Two hundred tickets for the night were made available at $25 each, and they sold out more than a week ago.

The promenade was organized as a fundraiser for Homecare & Hospice, a non-profit organization that provides health and hospice services to people with little or no insurance, said Chris Wernette, community relations and volunteer coordinator for the organization. It was organized by the Standard Beverage Corporation and was a part of the seventh annual Flint Hills Festival of Wines.

Participants began at Homecare & Hospice's office, where they received a map, a glass and tickets for drinks. They followed the map to each business, where they found two new wines and an hors d'oeuvres, then returned to the office for treats before going home.

Scott Benjamin, owner, executive chef and general manager of 4 Olives Wine Bar, served sushi at the Strecker-Nelson Art Gallery. He made a vegetarian roll similar to a California roll, but joked that it was called a "Kansas roll." Why so?

"Because I'm not in California," he said.

Next to Benjamin, Emily Floyd, Delta Chi house mother, poured wine as a volunteer. One of the people she served that night was Nancy Worthington, a retired French teacher.

"Two things," Worthington said of her favorite part of the event. "One, we're kind of amateur wine connoisseurs, so we're hoping to learn about some wines. Two, to support these local merchants."

Tommy Lee Holder, leader of a local 10-piece band, played alone in front of Homecare & Hospice to entertain wine tasters as they went from business to business. He switched between alto, tenor and soprano saxophones throughout the night.

At one point during the evening, Karen Thompson and Nellie Bucholtz, co-owners of The Trust Company, started dancing in front of Holder. Bob Limbocker, Manhattan resident, cut in and proceeded dance with Bucholtz while Holder played "New York, New York."

"She was stepping on my toes," Bucholtz said.

Music was present inside some stopping points as well. At GAIA, Mariah Wagner, junior in violin performance, and Jenna Schreiner, freshman in accounting, played classical arrangements on their violins for wine tasters.

"Just something comfortable to go in the background," Schreiner said.

This was their first gig together, but they said they would likely play together again.

Participants were only given one ounce of each wine to drink from their small glasses, and any excess would be poured into a bucket at the door so no one would get in trouble with the law.

"We haven't had to dump any out," Darlene Wernette said, "but it's nice to have the option."

Wernette's friend Carolyn Buchmann stressed they were both being responsible and her husband, who was not drinking that night, would be driving them home.

She said they live in Clay Center, Kan., and had wanted to take advantage of an opportunity to browse downtown.

"We've seen several shops we've never been in before, and I do plan to come back," Buchmann said.

LIVE
Tonight
12th Street
$2.50 Domestic Bottles, Draws & Pounders
Saturday
Dank Nuggets
Pete's Blue Ribb'n BarBeQue Aggieville
No Cover!
Tuaca Bombs on Special

KSU Meat Sale
FRIDAY • Noon-5:45 p.m.
Rm. 166 • Weber Hall
BEEF
roast, steak, ground beef, bratwurst
PORK
pork chops, pork steaks, sausage, ground pork, bacon
LAMB
chops, roast, ground lamb
PRODUCT OF THE DEPT. OF ANIMAL SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY MANHATTAN, KS 66506
Paid for by Kansas State University.
For information call 532-1279

Rent 1 Movie or Video Game
Get 1 ½ Off
Exp. 10-31-05 • Must have this coupon
Digital Shelf
•776-6959•
706 N 11th
•539-2332•
3232 Kimball
•532-6583•
Student Union Bookstore

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
LANDON LECTURE SERIES
Ryozo Kato
Ambassador of Japan to the United States of America
Tuesday, October 18, 2005
2:00 p.m.
McCain Auditorium

IT'S YOUR LAST CHANCE!
Get your Royal Purple yearbook picture taken now!
Join us today at:
Rusty's Last Chance 1 - 8 p.m.
Join us at Rusty's for $1 burgers and $1fries!
OUTBACK RD.
DOOR
LAST CHANCE DR.
royalpurple yearbook&dvd
www.royalpurple.ksu.edu

Sports Illustrated, Time Inc. actions petty

MATTHEW GIRARD

I'm normally a big fan of Sports Illustrated.

You would be hard-pressed to find another publication that covers every aspect of the sports world better than SI, but on Wednesday I lost some respect for my favorite magazine.

Time Inc., the company which owns SI, asked a judge to throw out its settlement with Texas El-Paso coach Mike Price because he said too much at his press conference this week.

To recap, SI published a story about Price being intoxicated at a Pensacola, Fla. strip club and later having improper relations with two women in his hotel room afterward, while he was the coach at Alabama.

After being fired from Alabama just before the article was published, Price filed a $20 million lawsuit against the magazine and writer Don Yaeger for defamation and slander.

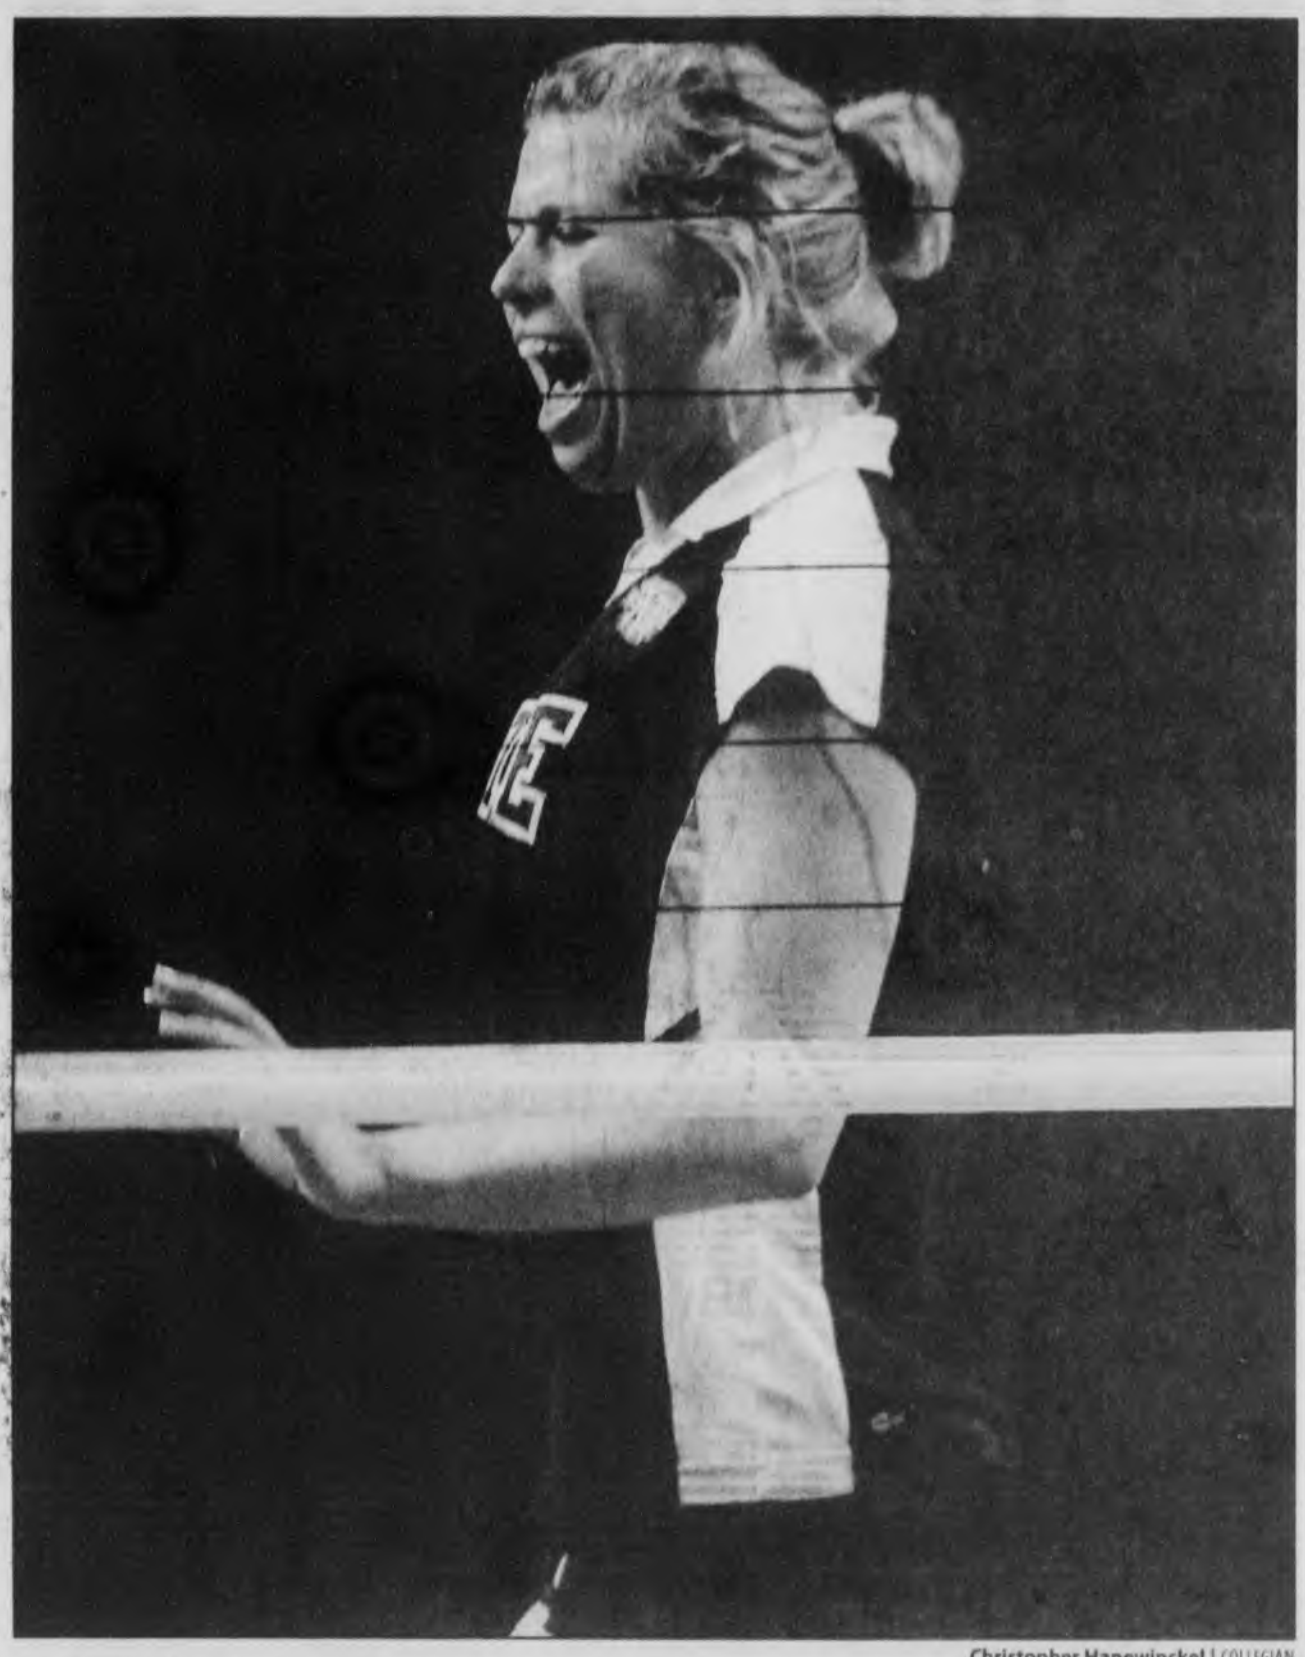
The SI article centered around dancer Lori "Destiny" Boudreaux's claims of Price's actions.

Last Friday, Price and Time reached a settlement to put an end to the lawsuit, and according to the Associated Press story, Price was to make only limited comments about the settlement.

Time released a four-sentence statement about the settlement.

The AP reported Price said he was a happy man about the settlement, that the strip club incident was a mistake, the lawsuit was "amicably resolved," and he could not discuss any details of the settlement.

Apparently that was too much to SI and Time.



How is Price saying that he can't discuss any of the details of the settlement, discussing any of the details of the settlement?

I'm not trying to put Price or his lawyer up on a pedestal, because Price obviously screwed up, but Time seems to be fishing for anything that will get them out of paying Price.

I applaud SI and Time for standing behind their writer and story, but the fact that they are upset about Price and his lawyer saying a few more words than they did is just petty.

Matthew Girard is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Time to regroup

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Junior outside hitter Sandy Werner celebrates after a point against Iowa State. The Wildcats will try to bounce back from a five-game loss to Colorado when they travel to Baylor to play the Bears Saturday.

Rested Wildcats hope to bounce back against Baylor

By Mark Potter
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

On Thursday, K-State's volleyball team did not have its usual practice.

Instead, the 20th-ranked Wildcats (14-4, 5-3 Big 12) watched film and rested up for Saturday's match against Baylor (10-9, 2-6 Big 12).

Coach Suzie Fritz said the rest was badly needed after her team's 2-3 (14-30, 25-30, 30-25, 30-28, 5-15) loss Wednesday night to unranked Colorado in Boulder, Colo.

"The girls got to sleep at 2 o'clock in the morning and had to get to class," Fritz said. "We thought it was more important to just stay rested and get some recovery."

The Wildcats watched film of their performance against Colorado and will only have one practice to prepare for Baylor before leaving tonight for Waco, Texas.

The Bears posted a 4-16 record in the Big 12 Conference last year and have not defeated K-State since Sept. 24, 2003.

Nevertheless, Fritz said the Wildcats must play more consistently than they did against Colorado.

"Our inability to string good play together continues to be an issue," Fritz said. "Coming off a loss, I think it will be important for us to gain some confidence back. If we play consistently, then we will do well."

Fritz said one player who has played with consistency recently is junior outside hitter Sandy Werner.

"The last two weeks, she has been tremendous," Fritz said. "She is in a very good hitting rhythm, and I think she is starting to see the block a little more."

Werner led the Wildcats with 19 kills against Colorado and is the only player on the team with double-digit kills in all eight Big 12 matches this season.

"Her game is maturing," Fritz said. "She has always been powerful and terminal, but I think she is also becoming a smarter volleyball player."

Setter Stacey Spiegelberg, with 50 assists against Colorado and 753 for the season, has played better of late, Fritz said.

"Stacey is continuing to get better with game experience," Fritz said. "She is capable of being the best setter we've ever had, but she still has a lot of room to grow."

No. 20 K-State at Baylor

When: 1:30 p.m., Saturday
Where: Waco, Texas

CROSS COUNTRY

Wildcats gear up for Big 12 meet with Chilli Pepper Invitational

By Chris Patch
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State cross country team's last challenge before the Big 12 Conference meet may be its toughest, as the Wildcats travel to Fayetteville, Ark., Saturday for the Chili Pepper Invitational.

The meet is hosted by No. 1 Arkansas and will feature a collection of top-25-caliber teams.

The Chili Pepper, on paper, is the toughest lineup of teams K-State has faced all year, ending a season that has been progressively harder for the Wildcats.

"It's as big as the last one (OSU Jamboree), so it's 25 or 30 teams," coach Michael Smith said. "This is as competitive as the Big 12, maybe more. So we'll see how they handle that, see what we can do and see how they do against the teams that are in the Big 12 that are there."

The Chili Pepper will be the men's first 10,000-meter race of the year, unlike the women who will run at their normal 6,000-meter distance. Few, if any, of K-State's freshman men have racing experience at that distance.

Freshman Alex Umberger said he is going into the race unsure of what to expect.

"I think every meet, for me at least, as a freshman is pretty hard," he said. "This is my first 10K, so hopefully I'll have the same success I had at OSU."

Smith said the biggest difficulty for the K-State freshmen may be in their heads.

"Psychologically, it's a little tougher for a high school kid to run a 5K in all their races and then come out and pop a 10K next year," he said. "Physically, they can handle it. Psychologically, they may struggle with how far it is."

One constant struggle for the K-State women this year has been the injury bug, which has left the squad at half strength the entire season. Injuries have made it difficult, to evaluate the capability of the team, Smith said.

"We're short-handed, so we're really focused on doing the best we can," Smith said. "We're looking to just see what our individuals can do and see where that takes us."

Freshman Jana Gwinn has led the women for most of the fall.

Gwinn said she put added attention on her individual performance this weekend.

"I guess I'm more focused on time this meet," Gwinn said. "I'll try the best I can to be at the pace I've been during practice. Mid-22 (minutes) or low-22s would be a good time."

Regardless of how tough the Chili Pepper meet is, the team hasn't lost sight of what's on the horizon. The next meet is the Big 12 Championship, something that takes precedence in the minds of the team over previous meets.

"Obviously, the competition is pretty tough," Umberger said. "Arkansas is No. 1 and everything. Like I said, every meet, for me at least, I look at as preparation for the Big 12."

More than anything, K-State will view the results of

See CROSS COUNTRY Page 12

GOLF

Women face many unknowns in Arkansas

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An unknown course and new opponents face the K-State women's golf team as it travels to the Tyson/Embassy Suites Invitational in Fayetteville, Ark.

The Wildcats finished the Marilynn Smith/Sunflower Invitational, their home tournament, on Tuesday, placing third.

The team will face non-conference opponents Arkansas, Augusta State, Missouri State, Michigan, Oral Roberts, Wichita State, Kentucky, Southern Mississippi, Notre Dame, Iowa, Illinois State and Wisconsin, as well as Big 12 Conference foes Iowa State, Nebraska and Kansas. The tournament will take place at the Pinnacle Country Club, Arkansas' home course.

Neal Corral, assistant golf professional at Pinnacle Country Club, said the course is par-72 and scores depend on skill.

"It's very fair and you can see where you're going," he said. "It has a tall rough, so if you miss the fairway, it's very penalizing."

Coach Kristi Knight said although she has no previous knowledge of the course, it shouldn't be a big factor in the team's performance.

"It's pretty common in golf (to not know your course)," she said. "You just concentrate on your game when you get the course and you see what's there."

Sophomore Michelle Regan said she's focusing on her final score.

"I'm looking forward to shooing some lower numbers and trying to score low," she said. "I think we're going to have a good tournament and break out and put up some low team scores."

Regan, who tied her career-best finish with a 12th place showing at the Sunflower Invitational, said while she felt she played well in the fairways, her green work is what she's concentrating on.

"My putting hurt my score," she said. "I'm trying to work

See GOLF Page 12

MLB Playoff Scores

Houston	4
St. Louis	1

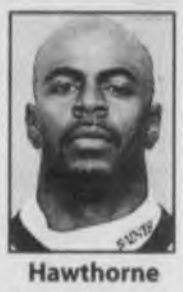
1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

WBB | Defending champ Baylor heads Big 12 poll

DALLAS — Defending national champion Baylor was picked to win its second consecutive Big 12 title in a preseason poll of conference coaches released Thursday.

The Lady Bears, who won their first NCAA title by beating Michigan State, received six first-place votes and 113 points to edge Texas, which was second with 110 points.



Baylor returns Sophia Young and two other starters from last year's 33-3 team.

Texas Tech was a close third with the four remaining first-place votes and 108 points, followed by Oklahoma (91), Nebraska (70) and Kansas (66).

Rounding out the poll were Texas A&M (59), Kansas State (56), Iowa State (45), Missouri (37), Oklahoma State (23) and Colorado (14).

NFL | Rams release safety who lost starting job

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis Rams safety Michael Hawthorne, who lost his starting job in last week's loss to the Seahawks, was released on Thursday.

Hawthorne

Hawthorne, who signed a free agent contract in the offseason, started the first five games at free safety. Mike Furrey replaced him in the second quarter of a 37-31 loss to Seattle and tied for the team lead with a career-high nine tackles.

In recent weeks, Rams coaches have been critical of the lack of discipline at the safety position and Hawthorne was out of position on several plays last week. The overall defense has struggled, allowing 81 points the last two games.

NFL | Holcomb to start second consecutive game

While there has been no official announcement from the team, quarterback Kelly Holcomb will get his second straight start in place of J.P. Losman for the Buffalo Bills.

Holcomb

Bills coach Mike Mularkey has declined to identify his starter, citing the "competitive advantage" of keeping the Jets guessing, but Holcomb has worked with the first unit this week and will get the nod. He will attempt to build on last week's performance, when he helped the Bills snap a three-game losing streak with a 20-14 victory over Miami.

In that game, Holcomb completed 20 of 26 passes for 169 yards, with one touchdown pass, no interceptions and a 106.1 passer efficiency rating.

GLF | British Open qualifying opened to women

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland — Women golfers could be playing at next year's British Open.

The Royal & Ancient Golf Club, the governing body for the sport outside the United States, said Thursday it was changing its entry rules to allow women to qualify for the oldest of the four majors.

The announcement came on the same day 16-year-old Michelle Wie made her pro debut at the Samsung World Championship at Bighorn Golf Club.

Any woman finishing in the top five, including ties, in any of the four majors can try for the Open through regional and final qualifying. In addition, any women meeting the entry requirements for international qualifying, final qualifying and the Open itself can enter at these stages directly.

NBA | LeBron hospitalized for tests for chest pain

CLEVELAND — Cavaliers All-Star forward LeBron James remained hospitalized Thursday with pain in his chest from what the team called a strained muscle.

James was admitted to the Cleveland Clinic for tests Wednesday night, hours after he was wincing during practice. James said he doesn't know how he got the injury, which team doctors initially diagnosed as a strained left pectoral.

You are what you eat

Officials say students don't have to settle for fast food, many healthy options available

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Although eating fast food is inexpensive and quick, new studies have revealed eating nutritious foods can be just as simple.

"I like to eat healthy, I just never have enough time to cook," Katie Conn, senior in marketing, said. "It's much easier for me to make a microwave meal or grab something on the go."

Teresa Sanborn, dietician at Mercy Regional Health Center, said with all of the convenient food innovations, time is no longer an excuse for poor eating.

"Healthy Choice frozen meals are good for you and lower in sodium," she said. "Salad in a bag is great; that should be on everyone's list. Also granola bars, salsa, individually packaged baby carrots, tomato juice, canned fruits or vegetables - those are all easy."

Conn said in addition to lack of time, she is unable to stay educated on what is currently considered to be healthy.

"They keep changing the food pyramid, and there's always new research coming out telling you what the healthiest thing to eat is," Conn said. "I'll think I'm eating healthy, and then find out what I thought was healthy really wasn't that good for me."

The new food pyramid that was recently revised by the Department of Agriculture is now called MyPyramid and recognizes differences in people's eating habits. While the old food pyramid was more strictly constructed, MyPyramid emphasizes flexibility, Sanborn said.

According to mypyramid.gov, adults should eat six ounces of whole grains daily, 2 1/2 cups of vegetables daily, two cups of fruit daily, three cups of milk daily and 5 1/2 ounces of meat and beans daily.

Nick Hannan, freshman in open option, said his diet consists of cereal, bacon, pizza and chicken, with chips and salsa and cheese crackers in between. He said because he lives in a fraternity, he has little control over what his choices are.

"Sometimes I'll eat a banana, but we never really have fruits and vegetables," Hannan said. "It's really not easy eating healthy."

Sanborn said minimal consumption of fruits and vegetables is the biggest problem in young adults' eating habits.

"There's a huge indicator we can do better in the fruits and veggies category," Sanborn said. "Eating the five recommended servings a day really impacts your weight and slows down the rate of obesity."

To stay healthy, students should limit fat, sugar and sodium intake. Make most fat sources from fish, nuts and vegetable oils, go easy on solid fats (butter, margarine), avoid saturated fats, transfats and select food and drinks low in added sugars.

Not only that, but 60 minutes of daily activity for teenagers and 30 minutes for adults is advised.

Tandalayo Kidd, assistant professor in human nutrition, said exercise is just as significant as what people eat.

"Working out is just as important as eating healthy," Kidd said. "You want to have a strong, healthy heart and keep blood pressure down. You want to be able to walk up a flight of stairs when you're older."

One size doesn't fit all

Department of Agriculture's new MyPyramid symbolizes a personalized approach to healthy eating and physical activity.
Activity is represented by the steps and the person climbing them.
Proportionality is shown by different widths of the food group bands.
Personalized Pyramids and food charts are available at www.MyPyramid.gov.

Source: www.MyPyramid.gov

Photo illustration by Emily Lawrence / COLLEGIAN

Grain Group: Make half your grains whole

- Eat at least 3 oz. of whole-grain cereals, breads, crackers, rice or pasta every day.
- 1 oz. is about 1 slice of bread, about 1 cup of breakfast cereal or 1/2 cup of cooked rice, cereal or pasta.

Vegetable Group: Vary your veggies

- Eat more dark green veggies like broccoli, spinach and other dark leafy greens
- Eat more orange vegetables like carrots and sweet potatoes
- Eat more dry beans and peas like pinto beans, kidney beans and lentils

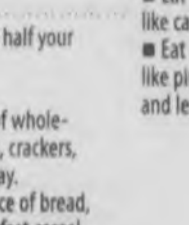
Fruit Group: Focus on fruits

- Eat a variety of fruit
- Choose fresh, frozen, canned or dried fruit
- Go easy on fruit juices

Fats, Sugars and Salts Group: Know the limits

- Make most of your fat sources from fish, nuts and vegetable oils.
- Limit solid fats like butter, stick margarine, shortening and lard, as well as foods that contain these.
- Check the nutrition facts label to keep saturated fats, trans fats and sodium low.
- Choose food and beverages low in added sugars. Added sugars contribute calories with few, if any, nutrients.

Milk Group: Get your calcium-rich foods



- Go low-fat or fat-free when you choose milk, yogurt and other milk products
- If you don't or can't consume milk, choose lactose-free products or other calcium sources such as fortified foods and beverages

Meat and Beans Group: Go lean with protein

- Choose low-fat or lean meats and poultry
- Bake it, broil it or grill it
- Vary your protein routine — choose more fish, beans, peas, nuts and seeds

Dating 101: how to tell if he or she is interested in you

Ask the 5th year

MATT PETERWORTH

How can I tell if a girl likes me?

It depends on the situation. Girls are very hard to read sometimes. The situations I describe here are fairly common, as they have recently happened to me and generally indicate that a girl likes you.

First situation: You meet a girl briefly and as you're leaving you tell her to look you up on Facebook.com. If the next day she sends you a message on Facebook, she might like you. This is the same idea as giving a girl your phone number and seeing if she calls. But these unspoken rules about waiting a few days are stupid and sending a message online is more direct and carries less weight.

Second situation: You meet a girl at a party. You've been talking with her for quite some time and she says she's about to leave with her friends to go to another party. If she asks if you want to go with them, you say yes because it probably means she likes you.

Third situation: You are at Auntie Mae's Parlor on Thursday night for a show and an attractive female sits down next to you. You introduce yourselves and exchange a few words when the music isn't too loud. Between sets she gets up and never sits back down next to you. She must have left with her friends and must not like you, right?

Well, you might be wrong. A couple of days later you are at a show at PJ's Bar. Who do you see? None other than the woman from Thursday. She recognizes you, swings by to say a few words and even remembers your name. She must like you then, right? Except she again leaves with her friends without saying goodbye.

You start drinking to get over the apparent rejection. Before you know it, you're drunk and dancing in the front row with your eyes closed. You're supposed to dance like nobody's watching anyway. Out of the blue, someone puts her arm around yours and starts dancing next to you. It's the same girl. She must like you, right?

The show is about to end and she goes to the bar to talk to her friends. You're still dancing, expecting her to come back, and to this time at least say goodbye to you. But no, she just leaves again. She must not like you after all.

Or she could be married and that was her daughter and her boyfriend at the bar. Maybe she was in town for just the weekend and wanted to go out and have a good time. Nothing may come of it, but at least you got to dance with her and have an awesome story to tell.

How can I tell if a guy likes me?

Did he ask you to call him or look you up on Facebook? If you just met him at a party, when you invited him to go with you and your friends to another party, did he decide to go? When you leave your spot next to him at PJ's to go talk to your friends at the bar, does he look over at you and smile? Did he ask you to go see the new Cameron Crowe film "Elizabethtown"?

These are all good indications that he might like you.

Matt Peterworth is a fifth-year senior in architectural engineering. You can e-mail him at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

MOVIES

- Times for today through Thursday.
- All times are p.m. unless otherwise noted.
- () denotes times that are playing Saturday and Sunday only.

"Domino" R
(12:45), 3:35, 7:05, 10:00

Courtesy art

"Elizabethtown" PG-13
(1:00), 3:45, 7:00, 9:45

"The Fog" PG-13
(1:30), 4:00, 7:00, 9:20

"Wallace and Gromit: Curse of the Were-Rabbit" G
(1:00), (3:15), 5:30, 7:45, 9:55

"In Her Shoes" PG-13
(1:30), 4:20, 7:30, 10:00

"Two for the Money" R
(1:40), 4:30, 7:15, 9:55

"The Greatest Game Ever Played" PG
(1:45), 4:30, 7:15, 9:55

"Serenity" PG-13
(1:30), 4:30, 7:00, 9:40

"A History of Violence" R
(1:55), 4:40, 7:30, 9:50

"Into the Blue" PG-13
7:10, 9:45

"Tim Burton's Corpse Bride" PG
(1:30), 4:25

"Flightplan" PG-13
(1:40), 4:15, 7:00, 9:20

"Grizzly Man" R
(1:15), 4:05, 7:20, 9:50

MOVIE REVIEW

"Elizabethtown"

Movie review by Christina Haensen

Cameron Crowe's latest film, "Elizabethtown," is a beautifully understated celebration of life's highs and lows.

The writer and director of "Jerry Maguire" and "Almost Famous" has created yet another film about characters feel so familiar and authentic that audience members could swear they've known them for years.

Courtesy art

Anyone who has ever experienced the joy of a new love or the sadness of a great loss, can appreciate Crowe's tale of a broken young man whose father's death teaches him how to live.

Drew Baylor (Orlando Bloom) did not just fail at his company — he created a flop. His innovative new shoe design, seven years in the making, resulted in the loss of millions of dollars for his prominent employer and his subsequent termination.

A former slave to his career and life in the fast lane, Drew is alone and depressed in his empty apartment when his sister Heather (Judy Greer) calls to tell him that his father has died unexpectedly.

Numb with disbelief, Drew reluctantly agrees when his grief-stricken mother (Susan Sarandon) asks him to handle his father's funeral arrangements thousands of miles away.

Drew is on a red-eye flight to his father's home state of Kentucky a few hours later when he meets Claire (Kirsten Dunst), a candid young flight attendant determined to help him in his time of need.

At first put off by her disarmingly friendly nature, Drew calls her in a time of need and the two begin a dynamic relationship, somewhere between friendship and romance.

With Claire's help, he embarks on an extraordinary journey of self-discovery that will change him forever.

"Elizabethtown" is not a flashy or cutting-edge film, and may be criticized by some for its length and meandering story line, but this movie has a heart and depth to it that should endear it to audiences.

Crowe has masterfully crafted a bittersweet story about life's messiness and the joys of love that make it worth living.

Classes give students artistic outlet

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Contrary to popular student belief, not everything about Varney's Book Store is expensive. Some things are even free.

Varney's offers free art classes from 7 to 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday in the conference room.

Penny Cullers, Varney's art supplies department manager, said Varney's has been offering these classes since 1997 and plans to do so indefinitely.

"It's a way for people to learn to love art and to be excited about it," she said. "We teach a variety of different techniques. In the past we have taught oil painting, color theory, water color, acrylic painting and more."

Cullers said instructors teach a specific technique for one month. The technique for October is color theory.

She said children, adults, K-State students and some high-school students attend the classes. On-campus seminars are also offered.

"I have a lot of younger students, high school and college, who come because they are unable to get into the art classes at campus," Ben Dickey, art class instructor, said. "It's a way for them to get their art outlet."

Dickey, 2004 K-State graduate, said he has seen some of the same students in his classes for several years.

Cullers said since the classes are free, people seem able to express themselves better.

"They aren't worried about wasting paint or messing up," she said.

Recently, students have been asked to purchase certain supplies for the classes, but Cullers said Varney's generally provides paint, pencils and colors.

The classes are created for 15 to 40 people, depending on the interest level, but the average class size is 20 to 25 students, Cullers said. Water color and acrylic painting seem to be the most popular areas, she said.

No experience is necessary, although Cullers said some talented artists come to the classes as well.

"Many have no experience at all, but have always wanted to do art. It's a way for them to get away from home, away from their routine," said Cullers. "But we also have seen some very talented people come to the classes, just to learn even more about art."

"We like to be a main part of the Manhattan art scene," Cullers said. She said Varney's has an art gallery and students often have their work on display in the gallery.

Tray Ailshie, junior in art, said he had not heard about Varney's art classes, but might be interested.

"It would definitely depend on the subject matter of what is being taught," he said. "Water color would be interesting to me because it's hard for me to paint."

Cullers said Varney's goal is to help and encourage people to do art.

"Art is great for everyone," she said. "It's a great way to express yourself, be creative, and is a wonderful hobby."

Varney's Book Store art classes

When: 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays
Where: Varney's Book Store, 623 N. Manhattan Ave.
Cost: Free

■ Students can sign up for classes or ask questions by calling Varney's art department at 539-0511.

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Working on a photo montage, Rita Dole, laboratory technician for the College of Veterinary Medicine, attends an art class at Varney's Book Store in Aggieville.

Second City to perform at McCain

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Second City Entertainment Company will make its third stop at K-State at 8 tonight in McCain Auditorium.

"Ticket sales are going great and exceed the number of tickets sold last year," said Thomas Jackson, McCain Auditorium marketing and development director. "This is one of the hottest shows with students."

Second City is an international entertainment company with theaters in Chicago, Toronto, Las Vegas, Detroit and Los Angeles. Many well-known comedians have roots in Second City, including Tina Fey, Mike Myers, Chris Farley, Bonnie Hunt, Stephen Colbert, Halle Berry, Sean Hayes and Hinton Battle.

Tonight's performers are from the Chicago theater, which is divided into troupes of performers who remain in Chicago for local performances and troupes that travel the country.

"Second City" came to K-State in 2002 and 2003.

For 2004, McCain officials decided to try something different, so they brought in The Capitol Steps, a group of current and former congressional staffers whose performances are political satire.

"It was about popularity," Jackson said. "Students really loved Second City, so we're bringing it back to them."

The show will contain adult humor and is recommended only for adult audiences.

"I think students would love to see this show," Jackson said. "It's a time to forget about school, forget about homework."

Second City Entertainment Company

When: 8 tonight
Where: McCain Auditorium
How much: $10 for children and K-State students, $18 for seniors, military, K-State staff and faculty, $20 for the public for orchestra seating.

■ Reccomended for adults only

Coffee & the Collegian
The perfect way to start your day!

Sure you rent, but it's WHAT'S INSIDE that makes it YOUR HOME.
Your landlord's insurance covers the building, not your stuff inside.
For around the cost of a DVD a month, you can get Renters Insurance and protect the things that make your place your home.

Joshua K. Salmans, Agent
463 E. Poyntz
Manhattan, KS 66502
Bus: 785-776-8754
josh.salmans.jxd4@statefarm.com
LIKE A GOOD NEIGHBOR STATE FARM IS THERE.
Providing Insurance and Financial Services
State Farm Fire and Casualty Company, State Farm General Insurance Company-Bloomington, IL; State Farm Florida Insurance Company-Winter Haven, FL
statefarm.com

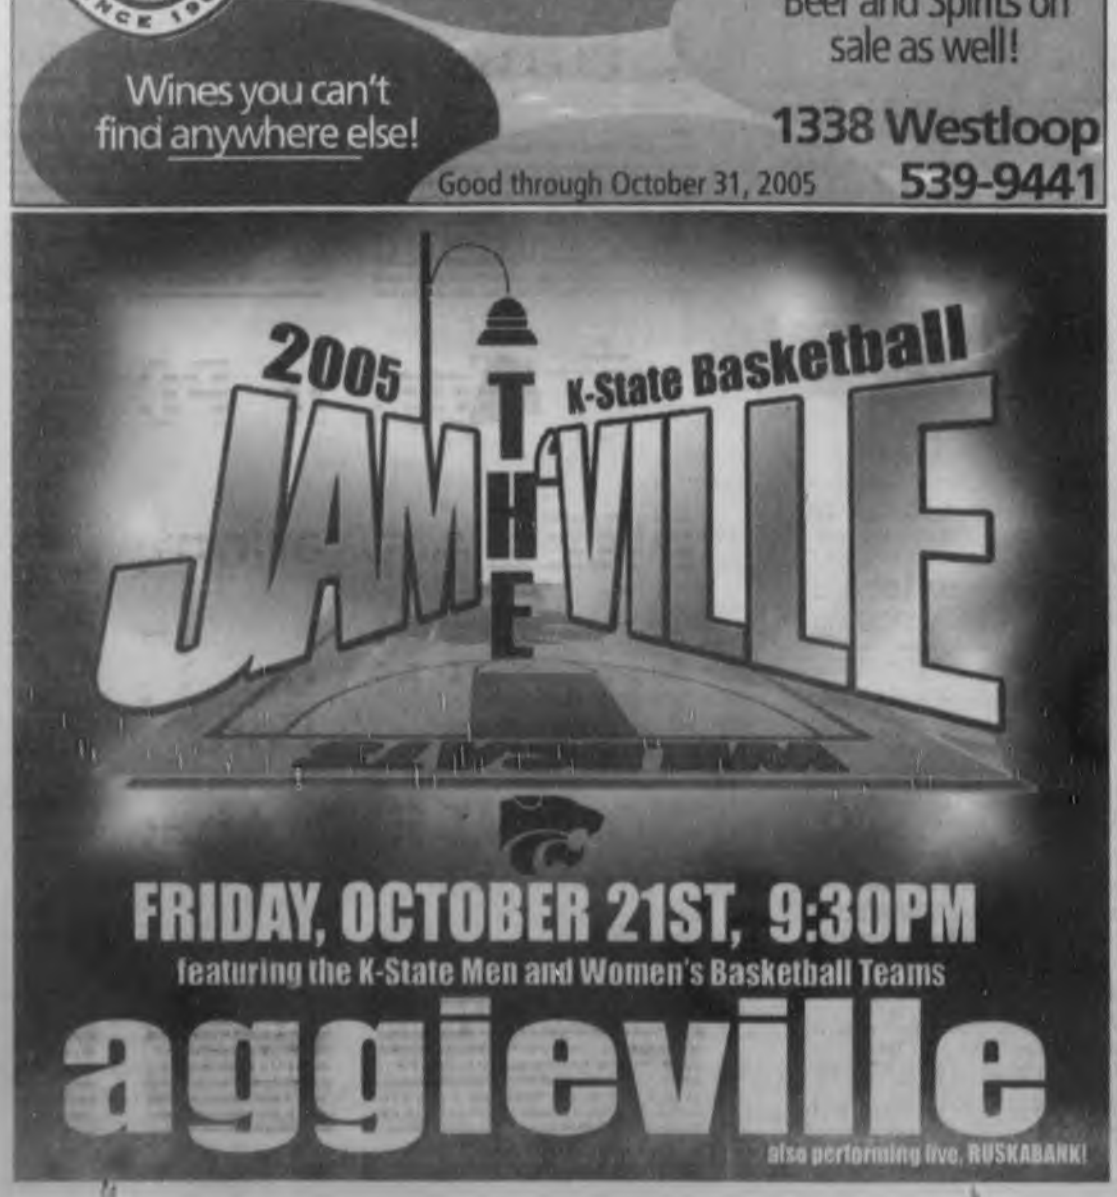
GOODSON AUTO TRIM

Complete Upholstering & Fabric • Custom Made Auto & Truck Seat Covers • Convertible Tops • Headliners • Boat Upholstery & Covers • Vinyl Tops
776-7679
201 SARBER LN • BETWEEN K-MART & WAL-MART

SPOOKTACULAR SPECIALS at SALON 1
3104 Anderson
785-539-3626
All retail Buy 1 Get 1 1/2 OFF!
$50 Foil Hilite
Add another color just $5.00
Add a haircut color just $10.00
$6 Eyebrow Wax
Expires Oct. 29, 2005
Not valid with any other offer

WANTED
Website Project Director
*applications on win.ksu.edu or www.ksu.edu/sga
*apps due Tuesday, Oct 18, 4pm - OSAS office
*interviews Wednesday, Oct 14
Questions? Tyson Moore: jtmoore@ksu.edu Michael Burns: mburns@ksu.edu
Wanna make $6500?

A reminder about individual health insurance.
A "What looks good to you?" reminder.
A Health Savings Account combined with a High Deductible Health Plan from American Family may lower your premiums and allow you the freedom to decide how and where to spend your health care dollars—while the dollars you don't spend accumulate tax-free. To learn more, call your American Family agent today. So you can check health insurance off your list, and off your mind.
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
All your protection under one roof.



Tim Engle Agency Inc
3320 Anderson Ave
(785) 539-9200 Bus
Manhattan, KS 66503
tengle@amfam.com

Britt's Garden Acres
9 a.m. - 7 p.m. Mon. - Sat.
12 - 6 p.m. Sun.
• Large selection homegrown pumpkins 19¢ / pound
• Exotic White & Cinderella Pumpkins 29¢ / pound
• Weekend Hay rides - on the hour - to Corn Maze $2
• Pick a Small or Medium Pumpkin only $2
1400 S. Scenic Dr. • 539-1901

We Kick Ads! 532.6560

Manhattan's Biggest Annual Wine Sale!
20% off ALL WINES
(Some Restrictions Apply)
Beer and Spirits on sale as well!
Wines you can't find anywhere else!
1338 Westloop
539-9441
Good through October 31, 2005

GUMBY Dammit!
LARGE 1 Topping or Pokey Stix $5.99
6.99 minimum delivery
delivery charges may apply small meal deal choose any 2 for $12
• medium 1 topping
• medium pokey stix
• 4 pepperoni rolls
• 10 buffalo wings
GUMBY'S Pizza
702 N. 11th St.
770-3333
The Big Ass 20" pizza 1 topping $11.99 or 2 for $21.99

K-Mart Carnival Days
Rides, Games, & Food
Thursday-Sunday: K-Mart Parking Lot
RIDES
• Zipper
• Tilt-A-Whirl
• Graviscat
• Sizzler
• Grand Carousel
• Super Slide
• Dragon Wagon (roller coaster)
• Various kid rides
K-MART CARNIVAL DAYS
10 Rides for $10
with this coupon
50-70%
In-store coupons also available at K-Mart
Thursday & Friday: 4-close, Saturday: 10 a.m.-close, Sunday: Noon-Close

"We're going to keep the same game plan, with maybe a few kinks here and there."

Bryan Baldwin
K-STATE CORNERBACK

K-State (4-1, 1-1) at No. 13 Texas Tech (5-0, 2-0)
11 a.m., Saturday
History: Texas Tech leads series 5-3
TV: ABC (Ch. 9); Radio: 1350AM, 101.5FM

Texas Tech's Cody Hodges is yet another Red Raider quarterback who is leading the nation in passing yards per game (363.6 ypg). The matchup between Hodges and K-State's pass defense will determine the outcome of the game Saturday.

vs.

OFFENSE

Until the Wildcats get the offensive line injury situation fixed, expect K-State to struggle on offense. In two conference games, K-State is averaging 28.5 rushing yards to rank last in the Big 12 Conference. If redshirt-freshman quarterback Allan Evridge starts, he will need to show poise and leadership to pull out a win.

Texas Tech's stats on offense are gaudy as always. The Red Raiders rank No. 1 in the nation in scoring offense and passing yards and rank No. 3 in total offense. It is nearly impossible to slow this offense down. Quarterback Cody Hodges is the latest in a long lineage of accurate and smart Tech signal-callers.

DEFENSE

The job K-State defensive coordinator Bobby Elliott has done with this defense is impressive after last season. The Wildcats have one thing going for them against Texas Tech, and that is they rank No. 9 in the nation in pass defense, allowing 151.2 yards per game. K-State will need all of that defense and more Saturday.

The Tech defense is often overlooked because of the offense, but the Red Raiders can hold their own. Texas Tech gives up 301 total yards per game, good enough to rank No. 20 in the country. Tech gives up an average of 118.6 rushing yards per game, which could help the K-State running game get back on track.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Coach Bill Snyder expressed concern this week that his special teams have not progressed like he wants. Nevertheless, they are improved over last season, and field position could play a huge role Saturday. If K-State wins the defensive and special teams battle, it may be enough to win the game.

Texas Tech kicker Alex Trlica is second in the Big 12 in scoring at 10.6 points per game, due to the fact that the Red Raiders score so many touchdowns. Texas Tech also holds its opponents to 45.4 kickoff return yards per game. However, Tech ranks in the bottom half of the league in kickoff and punt coverage.

PREDICTION

Get ready to see a ton of offense on Saturday, with the vast majority of it coming from the Red Raider offense. It can not be said enough: the Red Raiders will rack up yards, and score points too.

If the Wildcats want to stay close in this game, the young K-State secondary will have to play its best collective game of the year. The K-State defense will probably have to provide some points too, because at this point, the Wildcat offense is not clicking due to injuries on the offensive line.

In the end, beating Texas Tech at home will be too tall an order for such a young and banged-up Wildcat squad.

— Texas Tech - 30, K-State - 14

Michael Ashford | COLLEGIAN

Added responsibility

Defense to focus on Tech's No. 1 passing offense Saturday

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The question was asked: Is Texas Tech the toughest team in the Big 12 Conference to prepare for?

Coach Bill Snyder sat in silence for nine seconds and finally admitted to what many already know.

"I think all other things being equal, probably so from a defensive standpoint," Snyder said.

Five wide receivers on multiple downs, a running back used more in the passing game than the running game and a deadly-accurate quarterback are all things K-State (4-1, 1-1) has to look forward to Saturday against Texas Tech (5-0, 2-0).

One thing is for certain, K-State will have to be prepared to defend the pass.

"You have to understand that, yeah, there's going to be some completed passes in this ballgame," Snyder said. "You've got to be able to tackle well, and you've got to be able to keep people in the vicinity so they don't get those gargantuan plays, those major, big plays."

Texas Tech enters Saturday's game as the No. 1 passing offense in the country, averaging 433 yards per game through the air. The next closest is Arizona State with 368 passing yards per game.

The Red Raiders possess the top four receivers in the Big 12 in terms of catches per game – wideouts Robert Johnson, Joel Filani and Jarrett Hicks, and running back Taurean Henderson. All four average more than five catches per contest.

Cornerback Bryan Baldwin said the K-State pass defense, which allows 151.2 yards per game to rank ninth nationally, will have an increased responsibility Saturday, but he is confident it can hold up against Tech's air attack.

"Pass rush against a team that's going to throw the football becomes eminent, and we don't have the greatest numbers in terms of pass rush."

Bill Snyder
COACH

"There is definitely more pressure on us if they do throw the ball more," Baldwin said. "As a secondary, we're ready to take that challenge. I don't look at it as intimidation, I look at it as more of a challenge.

"I'm willing, and us as a secondary are willing, to step up to that challenge."

In analyzing Red Raider quarterback Cody Hodges, Baldwin said he has noticed some ways to rattle the senior and first-year starter.

"He gets the ball off quick, he's accurate, he doesn't want to get hit," Baldwin said. "He doesn't like to get hit, so we'll see what we can do."

Hitting Hodges will require pressure from K-State's defensive front. But through the first five games of the season, K-State has recorded seven sacks to rank last in the Big 12.

"Pass rush against a team that's going to throw the football becomes eminent, and we don't have the greatest numbers in terms of pass rush," Snyder said. "There's some other things that we have done that don't show up numerically that have been positive. It's still an issue against somebody that's going to throw it this much."

Snyder, however, warns against being lulled to sleep by Hodges, who is averaging 41 pass attempts per game and the methodical Texas Tech passing game.

"As silly as it sounds, you've got to make sure you don't stretch yourselves out and get beat on the running game," he said.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
K-State's Bryan Baldwin tries to tackle Oklahoma's Travis Wilson during K-State's game in Norman, Okla. The Wildcats will play Texas Tech at 11 a.m. on Saturday in Lubbock, Texas.

kstatecollegian.com

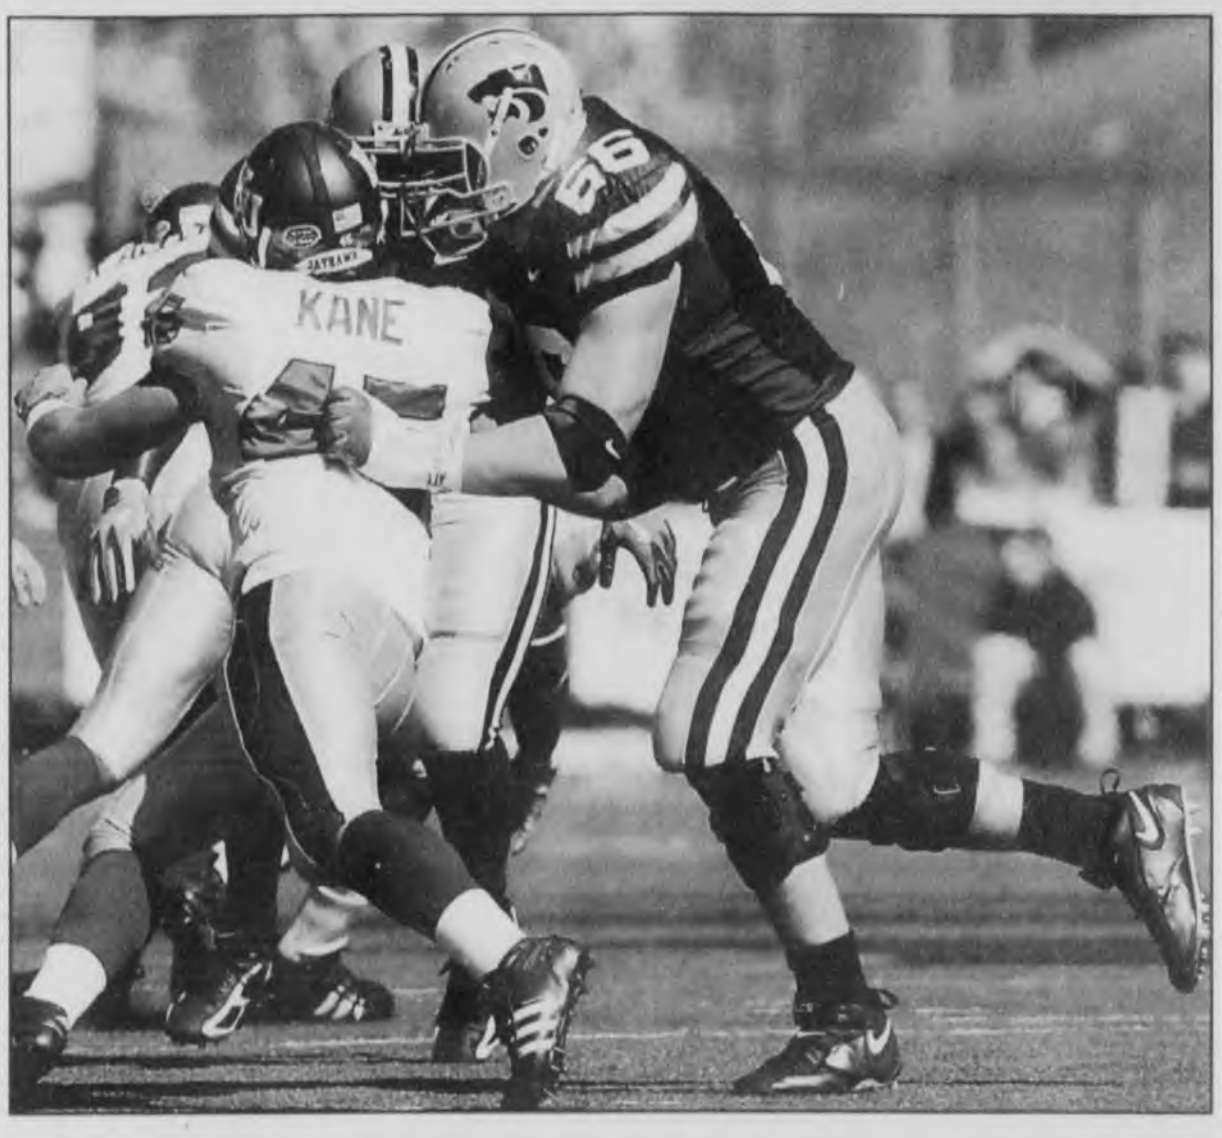
HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
Free Delivery: 537-0886
Fax: 539-9111
Hours: Sun. - Wed. 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
SPEND OVER $25 AND GET A FREE T-SHIRT!!

Junior • Petite
Blue Jeans
Lucky, Gap, Abercrombie & Fitch, and more!
$2.50 – $4.95
Bring in Student ID for 25% off any one clothing item
QUALITY NAME BRAND New & Gently Used CLOTHING AT 50-95% OFF RETAIL
BUY & SELL
The Apple's Heart
Boutique Atmosphere...Thriftstore Prices!
"Where Kansas Meets New York"
1135 5th • downtown poyntz • 317-5475

Before, During & After The Game:
7 TVs, Cold Beer, & Good Friends
Finn's Pub
Manhattan's Favorite Irish Pub!
317 Poyntz-Downtown Manhattan
785-776-2119 www.finnspub.com

WE'VE GOT YOUR RAW HIDE COVERED.
Cinch Cruel Girl Wrangler Levi
Lee's Western Wear
M-F: 10-6 Sat: 10-5 • 8426 Hwy 24 • 776-6715

Oleaslim Essential Oil
to Reduce Cellulite, Lose Inches, and Detoxity
You and a friend
$20 a session ($80 value)
Typical Reduction after 6 Sessions
Waist 2.4 in.
Abdomen 2.6 in.
Hips 1.0 in.
Thighs 3.2 in.
Knees 1.2 in.
Performed by Supervised Students
Crum's Beauty College
Exp. Oct. 31
512 Poyntz Ave. 776-4794



Need Money?
New Name... Same great deals!!
We pay top dollar for:
Tools, electronics, movies, CDs, guns, music equipment, jewelry, & sporting goods
Two Locations
501a Ft. Riley 537-1803
3110 Anderson 565-0046
American Cash Exchange
Cash Advance & Pawn Loans

Happy Valley
Chinese Restaurant
Lunch Specials $4.99
Includes: choice of 2 entrees, rice, soup, appetizer
Dinner Specials
Includes: entree, appetizer, salad, rice, soup, kim chee, daily dessert
$6.95 & up
Dine In & Carry Out
1120 Laramie
539-9888

RadioShack - Manhattan
Sprint PCS
•FREE Activation ($36 Value)
•FREE Case or Cord ($14 Value)
ONLY AT RadioShack
Limited time. See our store for details
See our ad in your purple academic planner
HOURS
M-F 9am-8pm
SAT 9am-7pm
SUN 11am-6pm
RadioShack
614 Ft. Riley Blvd.
MANHATTAN
537-1476

"Your Repair Specialists"
serving Manhattan for 27 years
Manhattan Shoe Repair
Mention This ad and receive 10% discount!
Repairing of:
• Purses • Shoes • Boots • Luggage
• Backpacks • Leather Coats
• Ballgloves • Satin Shoe Dyeing
• Birkenstocks • Harness
216 S. Fourth (corner of 4th and Pierre) • VFW Plaza • 776-1193

Free pool
Every 1st & 3rd Sunday of every month
• Ice Cold Beer, Darts, Big Screen TV
SUNDAY - $1.50 Domestics
MONDAY - $1.50 Imports & Domestics
TUESDAY - $1.50 Busch, Keystone, & Old Mil.
WEDNESDAY - 75¢ Draws, $3.50 Pitchers
THURSDAY - $1.75 Wells, $2 Calls, $2.50 Premiums
LUNCH SERVED Tues. & Fri.
Cock-N-Bull
NEIGHBORHOOD TAVERN
(785) 776-6699
2413 Stagg Hill Road • Behind Briggs
OPEN
3:00 p.m. - Mon., Wed., Thurs.
Noon - Sat. & Sun.
9:00 a.m. - Tues. & Fri.

K-State's Jeromey Clary tries to bring down Kansas's Kevin Kane in K-State's 12-3 win over KU on Oct. 8. K-State will face the Red Raiders of Texas Tech Saturday in Lubbock, Texas.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Offensive line working to correct problems

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Junior running back Thomas Clayton knows K-State will need an effective offense to walk out of Jones SBC Stadium with a win Saturday when the Wildcats travel to Lubbock, Texas, to take on Texas Tech.

"Controlling the clock, establishing the run game and keeping the ball out of their hands," Clayton said. "These are the things we have to do if we are going to beat these guys."

The Red Raiders enter Saturday's game with the nation's top-ranked passing (433.0 ypg) and scoring (52.6 ppg) offense in the country.

In order to maintain time of possession and keep the ball away from the Red Raiders' offense, the K-State offensive line will have to correct "drive-stopping" penalties, coach Bill Snyder said.

"They (offensive lineman) are tentative at this point," Snyder said. "We missed a lot of assignments last week (against Kansas) and made mental mistakes. We had nine penalties on offense last week and six of those were drive-stoppers, which alters field position and consequently puts you in a position where you have to go further in order to achieve success on offense."

Against the Jayhawks, the Wildcats controlled the time of possession by nearly 16 minutes, but managed 35 yards rushing on 45 carries.

Statistics like that will not get it done in a place like Texas Tech, senior offensive tackle Jeromey Clary said.

"You cannot have less than 100 yards rushing and expect to win very often," Clary said. "Tech is a hostile environment, and they are going to throw tortillas at you, but I think we are going to keep our focus, and it's not going to be a problem for us."

The depth chart this week has not changed, and lists the five offensive lineman starters as Clary, junior Greg Wafford, sophomore John Hafferty, and freshmen Jordan Bedore and Caleb Handy.

Hafferty suffered an injury to his right knee in the first quarter of the Kansas game, but Snyder said he practiced and will remain a starter for this week's game.

Sophomore Jacob Voegeli suited up last week but did not play, and redshirt-freshman Matt Boss continues to sit out with a right knee injury he suffered against North Texas.

Injuries have plagued the offensive line this year, but that excuse won't cut it, Clayton said.

"We have had a lot of injuries, so some guys had to step up immediately," Clayton said. "But at the same token, they should have been ready from the beginning because we practice everyday, and they went into this knowing there was a possibility they could play at any given time. So there is no excuse for those guys."

At the same time, Clayton said he is confident that whoever is blocking will make the holes he needs so he can lead this team to victory.

"I absolutely have confidence in our lineman; they are talented guys," Clayton said. "They would not be here if they were not talented. I have said that in the beginning, and I will say that until the end. I know what they are capable of doing, and once we get it together, we will be good."

Special teams remain a concern for Snyder

K-State ranks near the bottom of the Big 12 Conference in category

By Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Punter Tim Reyer not being on the field on a punt attempt during the Oklahoma game may be the play that stands out this season for the K-State special teams.

However, it is not what has defined the unit this season, as the Wildcats have struggled in all facets of the game.

The Wildcats are ranked 11th in the Big 12 Conference in kickoff return yardage, 11th in punting with 30.6 net yards per attempt and ninth in kickoff coverage in all games played. In two conference games, K-State is averaging two yards per punt return.

"Our special teams have been up and down and haven't shown the continued improvement that they need to, and that's a little disturbing to me because most of your special teams is made up of personnel off of your defense," coach Bill Snyder said. "And if our defense is getting better, then our special teams should follow suit and go right along with that, and that hasn't been as consistent as I would like."

K-State's struggles continued last week. After forcing Kansas punt return man Charles Gordon to fumble in the first quarter, Gordon broke two big returns on the Wildcats. Gordon's 54-yard punt return to the K-State 16-yard line set-up a Jayhawk field goal attempt that was ultimately blocked by senior defensive tackle Derek Marso.

Gordon broke loose again in the third quarter, returning a Reyer punt 70 yards to the Wildcat 30-yard line, only to be called back because of an illegal block.

"A couple of times we've shown some good things, like on the punt return and kickoff return," sophomore wide receiver Jordy Nelson said. "Our punt coverage still needs work, just as it did last week. Cover lanes is the main thing, not letting the returner get outside.

"There's always improvements for every special teams, and we're working hard at it every week."

The up and down problems have been evident from the first game. Against Florida International, Yamon Figurs fumbled a punt. Jermaine Moreira replaced Figurs on punt returns and took back his first attempt 67 yards.

Then the K-State special teams took another hit, as a Reyer punt was blocked and returned 17 yards for a touchdown that pulled Florida International to within a touchdown.

Nelson said special teams will play a big role Saturday in slowing down Texas Tech's high-powered offense that is ranked No. 1 in the nation in scoring and passing yards per game.

"If you can make them go 80 or 90 yards, you're definitely at an advantage with field position," Nelson said. "That changes the whole game. If they score on special teams or we score on special teams, that changes the game."

kstatecollegian.com

GOPOWERCAT.COM
The online leader in Kansas State sports and recruiting news
POWERCAT ILLUSTRATED'S GO POWERCAT .com
Officially licensed partner of the Rivals.com network

Once in a Lifetime engagements and weddings —— Everyone's doing it.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560

Read the Gameday edition Fridays before home games.

Wohler's Used Furniture
Visit Wohler's for used: Furniture, Antiques, Appliances and miscellaneous items for all needs.
615 N. 3rd St.
539-3319
10-6 Mon.-Fri. 10-5 Sat. Closed on Sun.

Motorcycle Supply
•Dirt & Street • Parts
•Accessories •Helmets
• Apparel • Tires
•Leather • Service
431 S. 5th
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-6171

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

LONGHORNS SALOON
776-8770 1115 MORO
Fri: DANCE AND COUNTRY PARTY
$2.50 Miller Lite Pounders
"2" cover for 21 & up, "5" for 18-20
Sat: COUNTRY PARTY
$2.50 Miller Lite Pounders
"2" cover for 21 & up, "5" for 18-20
$2.00 Tequila shots
Friday & Saturday

Cats Are On the Road This Week-end..... But Pizza Hut Can Still Be Part Of Your Game Plan!
$9.99 "Purple Pride Special"
1-Topping Large Big New Yorker Pizza, Side Order of Stix, 2-Liter of Soda
$13.99 "Big Willie Combo"
1-Topping XL-16" Full House Pizza, Family Order of Stix, 2-Liter of Soda
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" A KSU Tradition Since 1960 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd Street 231 Moro 776-4334
Pizza Hut
• One discount per coupon • 2- refillable sodas substituted for 2-liter on dine-in orders • Not good with any other special offer or coupon • 1/20 cent cash redemption value • Pizza Huts of Manhattan, Inc. '05 • Expires: Oct. 31, 2005
Go Cats.....BEAT TEXAS TECH!

2 nights of music
playing Oct. 14-15, 2005
Friday & Saturday
The Great Sounds Of Darren & Randy
(2002 Colgate Country Music Festival Contestants)
9-1
RC McGraws
2317 TUTTLE CREEK BLVD.
BLUE HILLS SHOPPING CENTER
776-9588

Where do you Find Your News?
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6560

Voted Sports Illustrated's #12 Sports Bar in America!
Good Luck, Wildcats!
Open @ 10 a.m. for Kickoff at 11!
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON

Coyote Ugly contest
Saturday, October 29
$5 Entry
2 Person Teams
Sign up starts October 8th
• Winners get all contest profits!
END ZONE SPORTS BAR & GRILL
537-8818
7840 E. HWY 24

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

145 Roommate Wanted

FOR RENT: one-bedroom, private bathroom, washer/ dryer, all appliances, fenced yard, private parking. $300/ month and split utilities. Water/ trash/ sewage paid. Pet friendly. (316)253-5549.

ROOMMATE NEEDED. Three blocks east of campus. (785)556-0098.

ROOMMATE WANTED in January, two-bedroom apartment. Walking distance. Excellent condition. Central air, two bath, washer/ dryer, balcony. (785)341-7358.

ROOMMATE WANTED. $450 a month. One-half utilities, big house, fenced yard. 1024 Houston. Call Scott (785)341-5153.

ROOMMATE wanted. House available now through May. Shared bathroom. By Mercy Hospital, KSU football stadium. Call (913)707-5249.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT with two bathrooms. Close to campus and Aggieville, 1031 Bluemont. $275/ month, water/ trash paid, plus one-third utilities. Call (785)539-3779 or (785)456-5040.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

WANTED: MALE or female roommates for three-bedroom. Fun, outgoing, clean and classy. (785)799-4202.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

310 Help Wanted

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

DESPERATE MOM/ office manager needs help organizing , sorting, filing in home and office. Flexible hours for hardworking students who like to clean and organize. $6/ hour. Call Chris (785)456-5835.

FAST PACED, upbeat office that is loosing a senior and looking for new student help. Position will officially start after finals, however, ideal candidate will begin learning the ropes over the next few months. This is great professional experience for a journalism or marketing student. Help promote K-State's Distance Education Programs while gaining real life experience. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with ability to work during the summer semesters and winter breaks as well. The individual who fills this position will manage information and promote knowledge of it by means of various media. Duties include: writing content/ copy, creating desktop publications, managing online course databases, writing press releases, conducting interviews, etc. This position works with three full-time communication professionals and three part-time student communication specialists. Design experience a plus. Our on campus office operates Monday- Friday, 8:00am- 5:00pm and is eager to work around your schedule. Please apply in person at 23 College Court Building, Public Information Office, Division of Continuing Education (785)532-5688.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

INTERNET WORK! $8.75- $38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

MAIL CENTER/ DUPLICATING student help needed. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with availability to work during the fall, spring, and summer semesters, as well as breaks. Monday through Friday 8-5. Duties include: campus delivery route, preparation and handling mail, and copy jobs. Computer skills beneficial and some heavy lifting required. Must have a valid driver's license. Bring your schedule and apply in person at 13 College Court Building. (785)532-5988.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

KITCHEN HELP needed, day and evening shifts. Apply online at kitesliveinc.com. Click on applications in top right hand corner.

310 Help Wanted

PART-TIME HELP wanted. Roof truss manufacturing plant, 5107 Murray Rd. (785)776-5081.

PART-TIME LANDSCAPE designer. Looking for an individual with skills in landscape architecture or horticulture landscape design. Please call (785)539-2842 for an appointment.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SUMMER INTERNSHIP open to all majors. Gain career skills, resume experience. Average earns $800/ week. Call (785)317-0455 for details.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

REFRIGERATOR FOR sale. Free delivery. Good start for a kegorator. $50. (785)564-1629. Have a nice day.

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale, half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

$500! POLICE IMPOUNDS! Hondas/ Chevies/ Jeeps etc. Cars/ Trucks/ SUV's from $500! For listings and information: call (800)426-9668 ext. 7536.

1997 FORD Aspire. Five-speed, four-door, 40 miles per gallon, 59,000 actual miles. $2000 firm. 1996 Ford Taurus, automatic. $1800. (785)226-1076.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

"#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK 2006— Travel with STS, America's #1 Student Tour Operator to Jamaica, Cancun, Acapulco, Bahamas and Florida. Now hiring on-campus reps. Call for group discounts. Information/ Reservations (800)648-4849 or www.ststravel.com.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

This spot is reserved just for you.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

118 Kedzie • 532-6560

advertise with the COLLEGIAN 532-6560

he did.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

EARN YOUR M.D. degree in warm tropical Belize! Contact InterAmerican School of Medical Sciences. 877-DOC-STUDY or on the web at www.interamerican-school.com

WE WANT your picture in the 2006 Royal Purple Yearbook. It's your last chance at Rusty's Last Chance to take portrait pictures October 14. Your 2006 Royal Purple, meeting you at the intersection of the night you forgot and the times you'll always remember. It's your last chance at Rusty's Last Chance. Come take your yearbook portrait picture from 1- 8, October 14.

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

Need a Home in Manhattan?

We offer Apartments and Townhouses throughout Manhattan, with student and non-student housing! For a preview of our properties, please visit our web site at : www.mdi-manhattan.com For more information please contact our office at : 785-776-3804.

McCullough Development

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

Collegian Explore it! kstatecollegian.com

NOW LEASING

• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. • Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook

Open Saturday 10-3

537-9064

www.hillinvestandrental.com

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights. 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM. ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)537-2323.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND

1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

McDonald's Crew Positions

CREW POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Full time and part time
Above average pay
Flexible schedule
Hiring for ALL shifts, including 3rd Shift (11p – 7a)
Uniforms provided
Reduced meals
Advancement opportunities

Come join the team at McDonald's.
Please apply in person at
MANHATTAN: 815 N 3rd Street
or 1013 Westloop Place
JUNCTION CITY: I-70 & Washington Street
or 416 W 6th Street

GTM SPORTSWEAR

GTM Sportswear, a leading seller of quality sportswear is now accepting applications for Part-Time operations. We are looking for quality, dependable people to add to our Warehouse, Screen-print, and Embroidery Operations. GTM offers flexible schedules, competitive wages, and an opportunity for advancement within a growing nationwide business. Please stop by 520 McCall Road, Manhattan, KS 66502 to begin your career at GTM Sportswear. EOE

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
www.ubski.com

ADVERTISE

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING

118 KEDZIE • 532-6560

in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

CLASSIFIED PAGE

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Hailey Berry, sophomore in business, jogs around the south end of City Park. Berry's workout consisted of two laps around the park.

WALK | Fitness walking popular among senior citizens

Continued from Page 1

have to walk fast in order for it to work."

Noble said running has more benefits for the exerciser.

"Brisk walking is better than walking casually but not as good as running," he said.

Running is a higher intensity activity, promotes more aerobic fitness development and provides a greater stimulation for bone density, Noble said. However, he said running is bad on the knees because it is a weight-bearing exercise.

In terms of calories burned, Long said running might burn a few more, but the main benefit comes from the time difference between running and walking a set distance.

"Basically, a mile is a mile is a mile," she said.

According to www.caloriesperhour.com, a 135-pound person burns 306 calories per hour walking at 4 mph, or 76.5 calories per mile. That same person will burn 612 calories running at 6 mph for one hour, or 102 calories per mile.

Long said students can get mini-workouts from simply stepping up the pace while walking to class.

Walking is an exercise that can be done in short spurts, she said, and for life.

"It's a full-body destresser," Crippen said.

UGARTE | Different instructors will take on classes

Continued from Page 1

Diaz said.

"The doctors want to make sure she is OK, and her husband wants her to take a break," she said.

Different instructors will take on most of Ugarte's classes at their scheduled times. However, one section will be asked to exchange sections for a different time.

Chris Martinez, junior in music, was a student in one of Ugarte's classes. He said the news was unexpected.

"I was really shocked and worried about her," he said. "When she wasn't there in class I didn't realize how grave it was."

Booker Davis, junior in history and anthropology, said he is one of the students who has to change class times.

"That is going to be kind of difficult to adjust to, but I guess there is nothing we can do," he said. "You've got to make do with what you've got."

Martinez will also have to switch classes, but he is going to try to test out of the course first.

However, he said having a new teacher would be very different.

"Ines is really energetic," he said. "She could really speak the language quickly like it would probably be spoken. She made class fun."

Courbou said she hopes Ugarte will get better.

"The entire Department (of Modern Languages) is wishing her well," she said.

REACTOR | NRC may investigate ABC's claims

Continued from Page 1

Because of the fear the program instilled, ABC's story was out of context, Whaley said.

"The thrust of ABC seems to be 'people shouldn't be allowed to go into these places,' so it's kind of backward," he said. "They're using experts who are not unbiased authorities. They have an agenda and a point to make and they're not pulling any punches to do it."

ABC was trying to make people fearful of nuclear reactors, Whaley said.

"I'm appalled at the whole situation and the way it developed," he said. "The whole purpose of a radiological dispersion device is just to create panic and havoc. If you have enough people concerned about it, that's when something happens and there's panic and havoc. It seems like they're encouraging this rather than doing something constructive about it."

Whaley is currently documenting the inaccuracies of the program, which he says he will send to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Because of the program, the commission is investigating five campuses across the country.

"I suspect that ABC has taken something out of context and the NRC has said something like 'we'll check to see if what you say is correct' and they've decided, oh, that means an investigation," Whaley said. "It could be wrong."

Whaley said K-State's reactor will remain open for the nearly 3,000 visitors it has each year.

"We want to be open and we want to allow people to come in," he said. "We encourage it. That's one of the reasons we're here."

CROSS COUNTRY | Team travels to Arkansas

Continued from Page 6

the Chili Pepper as an early indication of how it stacks up against the Big 12.

"There will be some teams that we think on the men's side we measure up well against, and in the Big 12 we'll see if we can beat them," Smith said.

"If we can't beat them here, it's going to be hard to beat them at the Big 12 meet."

GOLF | Women face familiar conference foes

Continued from Page 6

on putting and hitting fairways and greens and do whatever I can to help the team out."

Junior Katy Heffel said she is looking forward to the competition.

"We've never been to this tournament, and there's a really good field there," she said. "I'm excited about playing better teams and teams that we haven't ever played with."

More than Names & Numbers.
Student e-mail addresses are included.

Kansas State University
CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
2005-2006

Available Now
for purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

Congratulations
New Deltas on your recent Initiation into Alpha Delta Pi!
Love,
Your ADPi Sisters
ΑΔΠ

LIVE COMEDY
Fri. Oct. 14th @ 9:00 pm
Featuring Comedians
David Kious
&
Tim Gaither
• $2.50 Miller lite Pounders
• $2.00 7 & 7
• $7 At the door
BoWinkle's
Sports Bar & Grill
3043 Anderson Ave. • 776-1022

Peace Corps
Life is calling. How far will you go?
Peace Corps Information Meetings at K-STATE
Tuesday, October 18 — 7 - 8:30 pm — Student Union, State Room
Thursday, October 20 — 6:30 - 8 pm — Smurthwaite Hall
For more information, contact your Peace Corps campus respresentative
Stephanie Springer
144 Waters Hall
785.532.5627 • pcorps@ksu.edu
www.peacecorps.gov

ESTABLISHED IN CHARLESTON, IL IN 1983 TO ADD TO STUDENTS GPA AND GENERAL DATING ABILITY.
JIMMY JOHN'S
Since JJ 1983
WORLD'S GREATEST GOURMET SANDWICHES
OK, SO MY SUBS REALLY AREN'T GOURMET AND WE'RE NOT FRENCH EITHER. MY SUBS JUST TASTE A LITTLE BETTER, THAT'S ALL! I WANTED TO CALL IT JIMMY JOHN'S TASTY SANDWICHES, BUT MY MOM TOLD ME TO STICK WITH GOURMET. SHE THINKS WHATEVER I DO IS GOURMET, BUT I DON'T THINK EITHER OF US KNOWS WHAT IT MEANS. SO LET'S STICK WITH TASTY!
Jimmy John

$3.99 8" SUB SANDWICHES
All of my tasty sub sandwiches are a full 8 inches of homemade French bread, fresh veggies and the finest meats & cheese I can buy! And if it matters to you, we slice everything fresh everyday in this store, right here where you can see it. (No mystery meat here!)
#1 PEPE®
Real applewood smoked ham and provolone cheese garnished with lettuce, tomato, and mayo. (Awesome!)
#2 BIG JOHN®
Medium rare shaved roast beef, topped with yummy mayo, lettuce, and tomato. (Can't beat this one!)
#3 SORRY CHARLIE
California baby tuna, mixed with celery, onions, and our tasty sauce, then topped with alfalfa sprouts, cucumber, lettuce, and tomato. (My tuna rocks!)
#4 TURKEY TOM®
Fresh sliced turkey breast, topped with lettuce, tomato, alfalfa sprouts, and mayo. (The original)
#5 VITO™
The original Italian sub with genoa salami, provolone, capicola, onion, lettuce, tomato, & a real tasty Italian vinaigrette. (Order it with hot peppers, trust me!)
#6 VEGETARIAN
Several layers of provolone cheese separated by real avocado spread, alfalfa sprouts, sliced cucumber, lettuce, tomato, and mayo. (Truly a gourmet sub not for vegetarians only . . . . . peace dude!)
J.J.B.L.T.™
Bacon, lettuce, tomato, & mayo.
(The only better BLT is mama's BLT, this one rules!)

$2.99 PLAIN SLIMS™
Any Sub minus the veggies and sauce
SLIM 1 Ham & cheese
SLIM 2 Roast Beef
SLIM 3 Tuna salad
SLIM 4 Turkey breast
SLIM 5 Salami, capicola, cheese
SLIM 6 Double provolone
Low Carb Lettuce Wrap
JJ UNWICH™
Same ingredients and price of the sub or club without the bread.
YOUR CATERING SOLUTION!!!
BOX LUNCHES. PLATTERS. PARTIES!
DELIVERY ORDERS will include a delivery charge of 49¢ per item (+/-10¢).
★★★★JIMMYJOHNS.COM★★★★
$6.99 THE J.J. GARGANTUAN™
This sandwich was invented by Jimmy John's brother Huey. It's huge enough to feed the hungriest of all humans! Tons of genoa salami, sliced smoked ham, capicola, roast beef, turkey & provolone, jammed into one of our homemade French buns then smothered with onions, mayo, lettuce, tomato, & our homemade Italian dressing.

$4.99 GIANT CLUB SANDWICHES
My club sandwiches have twice the meat and cheese, try it on my fresh baked thick sliced 7 grain bread or my famous homemade french bread!
#7 GOURMET SMOKED HAM CLUB
A full 1/4 pound of real applewood smoked ham, provolone cheese, lettuce, tomato, & real mayo! (A real stack)
#8 BILLY CLUB®
Roast beef, ham, provolone, Dijon mustard, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. (Here's to my old pal Billy who invented this great combo.)
#9 ITALIAN NIGHT CLUB®
Real genoa salami, Italian capicola, smoked ham, and provolone cheese all topped with lettuce, tomato, onion, mayo, and our homemade Italian vinaigrette.
(You hav'ta order hot peppers, just ask!)
#10 HUNTER'S CLUB®
A full 1/4 pound of fresh sliced medium rare roast beef, provolone, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. (It rocks!!!)
#11 COUNTRY CLUB®
Fresh sliced turkey breast, applewood smoked ham, provolone, and tons of lettuce, tomato, and mayo!
(A very traditional, yet always exceptional classic!)
#12 BEACH CLUB®
Fresh baked turkey breast, provolone cheese, avocado spread, sliced cucumber, sprouts, lettuce, tomato, and mayo! (It's the real deal folks, and it ain't even California.)
#13 GOURMET VEGGIE CLUB®
Double provolone, real avocado spread, sliced cucumber, alfalfa sprouts, lettuce, tomato, & mayo.
(Try it on my 7-grain whole wheat bread. This veggie sandwich is world class!)
#14 BOOTLEGGER CLUB®
Roast beef, turkey breast, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. An American classic, certainly not invented by J.J. but definitely tweaked and fine-tuned to perfection!
#15 CLUB TUNA®
The same as our #3 Sorry Charlie except this one has a lot more. Homemade tuna salad, provolone, sprouts, cucumber, lettuce, & tomato. (I guarantee it's awesome!)
#16 CLUB LULU™
Fresh sliced turkey breast, bacon, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. (JJ's original turkey & bacon club)

★ SIDE ITEMS ★
★ Soda Pop ..... $1.29/$1.49
★ Giant chocolate chip or oatmeal raisin cookie ... $1.50
★ Real potato chips or jumbo kosher dill pickle $0.90
★ Extra load of meat $1.25
★ Extra cheese or extra avocado spread $0.75
★ Hot Peppers $0.25
FREEBIES (SUBS & CLUBS ONLY)
Onion, lettuce, alfalfa sprouts, tomato, mayo, sliced cucumber, Dijon mustard, oil & vinegar, and oregano.

WE DELIVER! 7 DAYS A WEEK
MANHATTAN 1212 MORO ST. 785.539.7454
"YOUR MOM WANTS YOU TO EAT AT JIMMY JOHN'S!"
©2005 JIMMY JOHN'S FRANCHISE INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. We Reserve The Right To Make Any Menu Changes

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Monday, October 17, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 39

Sub. Exp. Date
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601
3

IN Tec rec aga
K-State

Sports, Page 6

Off to see the wizard

Photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Joy Albright, from Kansas City, Mo., rides a toy horse at the Cowboys for Christ booth, while Doug Palmer, Cowboy's for Christ booth manager cheers Saturday afternoon in Wamego, Kan. The booth was one of many participating in the OZtoberfest event in Wamego.

Fort Riley soldiers killed in Iraq

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Department of Defense announced Friday that two Fort Riley soldiers were killed in Balad, Iraq on Oct. 12 after their military vehicle collided with a civilian vehicle and overturned.

Sgt. Donald D. Furman, 30, and Sgt. Lorenzo Ponce Ruiz, 26, were part of the 24th Transportation Company, 541st Maintenance Battalion.

Irene Furman, Donald's grandmother, told the Beaufort, S.C. newspaper, the Beaufort Gazette, he was on his second trip to Iraq and loved being in the army.

Donald Furman is survived by his wife and two children, ages 12 and 10.

Ruiz's family told the El Paso Times they did not want to discuss the death of the El Pasoan.

The two deaths bring the number of Fort Riley deaths in Iraq to 58.

City to waive traffic fines, parking fees

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

For those who have traffic or parking warrants, the city is reducing the overall cost of a fine.

The Manhattan Municipal Court will waive administrative fees for people who voluntarily pay their outstanding warrants this week, Manhattan Municipal Court Judge Patrick Caffey said.

Daryl Ascher, Riley County Police Department warrants officer, said the administrative fees cost $20 for traffic warrants and $10 for parking warrants. These fees, until the close of courtroom on Thursday, will be dropped.

"It serves the police department to get these people to serve the system, to pay," Caffey said. "It's a lot simpler than getting arrested. After all, if they're driving around and they have a tail light out, an officer will pull them over and they might get arrested."

See WARRANTS Page 10

Mickey Carroll, a former munchkin from the movie, "The Wizard of Oz," speaks to a crowd Saturday morning in Wamego, Kan. Five original munchkins came to Wamego to take part in OZtoberfest this past weekend.

Nearly 6,000 people attend OZtoberfest

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

No, Ozzy Osbourne did not make an appearance in Kansas over the weekend.

Two blocks of Lincoln Avenue in Wamego, Kan., were blocked off to make room for OZtoberfest, a community celebration organized around the town's Oz Museum. The museum is home to a large collection of memorabilia from the movie "The Wizard of Oz."

The street was filled with vendors and community groups vying for the attention of people walking by. One organizer estimated that 6,000 people attended on Saturday alone.

There were four live performances of the original story throughout the weekend, and three of them featured cameo appearances from five actors who played munchkins in the 1939 film. They were Mickey Carroll, Margaret Pellegrini, Karl Slover, Clarence Swenson and Meinhardt Raabe.

Raabe, who played the coroner – "she's not only merely dead, she's really most sincerely dead" – added to a piece in the museum's collection, said Ellie Coots, manager of the

See OZ FEST Page 10

Marching festival brings 33 high-school bands to Manhattan

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Thirty-three high school bands took over KSU and Memorial stadiums Saturday.

Nearly 3,500 band members converged on Manhattan for clinics, critiques and performances at the 19th Annual Central States Marching Festival, Anthony Pursell, assistant director of the K-State Marching Band, said.

"It's pretty much the largest turnout we've ever had," he said.

The clinics began at 7:30 a.m. Saturday, with each band that wanted a time slot getting one hour with either Pursell or Frank Tracz, director of the marching band.

Tracz and Pursell watched the bands' routines and then worked with them on the aspects the high school directors wanted help with.

The bands broke into sections – such as woodwinds and brass, for individual work, said Ed Stein – graduate student in music education and volunteer with the marching band.

"It's just developing their skills, their core skills for marching," he said.

Jessica Cameron plays the French horn for the Chapman High School band, which chose to participate in a clinic.

"They helped us a lot – mostly technique, tuning, volume," she said.

Starting at 11:30 a.m., each band gave a 15-minute performance at KSU Stadium in front of a panel of six judges and a receptive crowd of 10,000 that came and went throughout the day, Pursell said.

Judges rated each band as superior, excellent or good, based on musical performance, general effect and marching.

Scores were averaged and, at the 8 p.m. closing ceremony, each school's drum majors were called up and given a plaque with the school's name and the band's score. Since this was a festival, not a competition, the bands were not ranked, Pursell said, but they naturally compete against each other.

Caitlyn Lundin, a member of Manhattan High School's band, said its performance was average.

"A lot of (other bands) had a lot more style," she said. "They're a lot more consistent in marching technique."

Cameron said Chapman's performance was worse than other bands' performances, but good for Chapman.

"Considering how fast we've learned our sets, I think we did pretty good," she said.

Pursell said there was a lot of talent at the festival.

See BAND Page 10

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Assisting the drumline of Norris High School, of Nebraska, Chris Exum, junior in applied music and member of the K-State Marching Band drumline, helps refine the skills of band members during the clinic session.

Today

High 84
Low 55

Tuesday

High 86
Low 59

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Saving Salina's Water
Beginning Oct. 24, The Kansas Department of Health and Environment plans to remove 180 cubic yards of contaminated soil, which will stop an underground plume of contaminated groundwater inching toward one of Salina's public water works.

Wrong home entered
At about 3 a.m. Friday morning, police officers in Lawrence broke down the wrong door after receiving a report of a suicidal woman. The dispatcher's computer display didn't show the number or address from where the woman was calling. Instead of tracing the line, the dispatcher called directory assistance. The call actually came from Oklahoma.

Novascone replaced
Andover, Kan., City Councilman Ty Masterson will serve the remainder of Rep. Todd Novascone's term in the Kansas House. He was selected Thursday night to replace Novascone in the 99th District, who resigned from his seat last week to become the chief of staff for Congressman Jerry Moran, R-Kan.

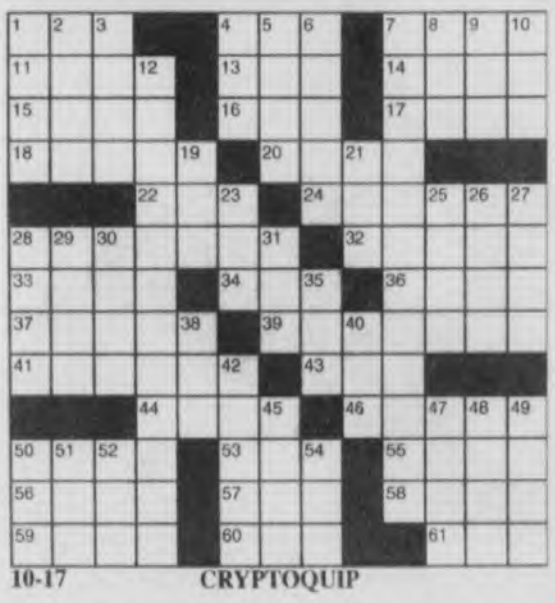
DON'T FORGET

Scott Arford will speak of "Beware the Image" at 5 p.m. tonight in the Union Little Theatre.

K-State Idol Auditions will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Big 12 Room.

Katherine Allen will speak of her recovery from a drunk driving accident at The InterVarsity Christian Fellowship meeting at 8 p.m. tonight in the Union Little Theatre.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009



Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Scepter topper
4 One in a suit?
7 "— Factor"
11 Pinball problem
13 Carton
14 New York city
15 Stravinsky or Sikorsky
16 911 responder (Abbr.)
17 Cameo stone
18 Chocolate tree
20 Cereal selection
22 Office-holders
24 Moose feature
28 Knaves
32 Tolerate
33 Speedy steed
34 "Absolutely"
36 Works with
37 Fashion
39 Authorization
41 Emerson's output
43 Dress in 44 Enthusiasm
46 Amazon.com founder Jeff
50 Gilligan's home
53 Longing
55 Portrayal
56 Burn some
57 — Paulo
58 Malt-shop order
59 Evergreens
60 Frequently
61 Chaps

DOWN
1 Ear-related
2 Latvia's capital
3 United nations?
4 Rushmore figure
5 Barbershop item
6 Additional
7 Positions of priority
8 A billion years
9 Grant or Irving
10 Tyrannosaurus —
12 Pioneers
19 Inseparable
21 Literary collection
23 Pigpen
25 Sax-playing Simpson
26 Paradise
27 Everything else
28 Rose's place?
29 Letters' partners
30 Beams of light
31 Tend a tear
35 Despondent
38 CBS emblem
40 Filch
42 Permission
45 Symbol on Canada's flag
47 Move hastily
48 Shoppe description
49 Penn or Astin
50 Gelid
51 That woman
52 Matlock's field
54 "— to worry"

Solution time: 27 mins.

R	O	W	A	N	■	J	I	M	■	E	A	T
A	L	I	B	I	■	A	R	A	■	T	W	O
T	E	N	E	T	■	C	A	P	S	H	A	W
■	■	S	T	R	I	K	E	■	E	A	R	N
A	W	L	■	O	N	E	■	P	E	N	D	S
P	O	E	T	■	S	T	R	A	M	■	■	■
E	N	T	R	E	E	■	U	L	L	M	A	N
■	■	■	E	X	T	O	L	■	Y	U	M	A
M	A	M	B	O	■	R	E	D	■	L	I	P
A	L	A	E	■	C	A	S	I	N	G	■	■
J	A	C	K	S	O	N	■	M	O	R	A	L
O	R	E	■	H	O	G	■	E	V	E	R	T
R	M	S	■	E	K	E	■	S	A	W	E	D

10-17 CRYPTOQUIP

CA CKM GFZKCGCUJUCPC XZFZ AJQQCOB PO GFZICWZOU, XPLQW MPI ICOB "EJCQ UP UEZ KECZA?'

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF I SNEEZED A LOT BUT HAD NO INFLUENZA, I GUESS IT MIGHT BE MUCH ACHOO ABOUT NOTHING.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: Q equals L

WEEK IN REVIEW

7 things you didn't know 7 days ago

Angry mob protests Neo-Nazi march

J.D. Pooley | THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police are seen in a stand off with an unruly group of protestors, Saturday, Oct. 15, 2005, in Toledo, Ohio, where violence erupted between police and local protestors.

A crowd in Toledo, Ohio, protesting a white supremacists' march turned violent Saturday, throwing rocks at police, vandalizing vehicles and stores and setting fire to a neighborhood bar, authorities said. Mayor Jack Ford said he was threatened and cursed at for allowing the march. He declared a state of emergency and set an 8 p.m. curfew through the weekend. At least 65 people were arrested and several police officers were injured. "America's Nazi Party" said they gathered at the park to demonstrate against black gangs they said where harassing white residents.

SPRINT NEXTEL WORKERS STRIKE

Nearly 1,000 employees of Sprint Nextel Corporation went on strike Monday, protesting the company's calls for benefits cuts. The Communications Workers of America members began striking Monday and are covered during negotiations by terms of expired contracts. Sprint spokeswoman Debra Peterson said the company, based in Reston, Va., will try to prevent service interruptions in affected areas: Bluff City, Tenn.; Hickory, N.C.; Evansville, Ind.; and Ocala, Fla.

LIBERIA VOTES FOR LEADER

Liberia citizens waited in lines Tuesday to vote to elect their first leader since the end of a 14-year civil war. Many voters lined up hours before the polls opened in churches, schools and banks. About 1.3 million Liberians registered to vote at more than 3,000 stations. Twenty-two candidates are competing for the presidency. "This election is the dawn of a new era in Liberia, said U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Jendayi Frazer. "Today the Liberians are voting for peace."

MAN ARRESTED IN LAWRENCE FIRE

A suspect in the Lawrence fire that killed three people was charged Wednesday with three counts of first-degree murder. Jason Allen Rose, 20, was also charged with one count of aggravated arson in the Oct. 7 fire at the Boardwalk Apartments. Each count carries a possible sentence of 20 years to life in prison. Two victims have been identified as Nicole Michele Bingham, a 20-year-old University of Kansas student, and Yolanda Riddle, a social worker for the state Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services.

POLIO CASES FOUND IN MINNESOTA

Four children in a Minnesota Amish community have become infected with the polio virus. State health officials said these are the first known infections in the United States in five years. They said the cases don't pose a threat to the general public because most people have been vaccinated. Other cases may be found within the Amish community because some members refuse immunizations on religious grounds.

INMATE GRANTED ABORTION

A federal judge ordered Missouri prison officials to drive an inmate to a clinic to get an abortion. There is a state law that forbids spending tax dollars in order to facilitate an abortion. U.S. District Judge Dean Whipple ruled the prison system is blocking the woman from exercising her right to an abortion. State officials appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court on Friday. The woman's attorney, James Felakos of the American Civil Liberties Union, said in court papers that the woman is 16 to 17 weeks pregnant and is running out of time because Missouri bars abortions after 22 weeks.

JAPAN SHAKEN BY EARTHQUAKE

A magnitude-5.1 earthquake shook eastern Japan Sunday, with no immediate reports of damage, injuries or risk of tsunamis. National broadcaster, NHK, reported that bullet train service was temporarily suspended but quickly resumed. The Kyodo News agency said Tokyo's Haneda airport also shut runways down, but there were no major flight delays. NHK also reported that a nuclear power plant in Tokaimura, near the quake zone, was also functioning normally.

Source — The Associated Press

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Thursday, Oct. 13

- Barbara Grabhorn, Edgar, Neb., was arrested at 9 a.m. for conspiracy to commit a crime and theft. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Jamerhlatt Jackson, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 12:13 p.m. for aggravated battery. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Hader Rocha, 422 Vattier St., was arrested at 2:45 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $500.
- Malcolm Sistrunk, Junction City, was arrested at 5:20 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $379.
- Steven Johnson, 1210 Vattier St., Apt. 1, was arrested at 5:30 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Warren Moultrie, 1031 Colorado St., was arrested at 7:36 p.m. for two counts of probation violation. Bond was set at $10,000.
- Steven Stanton, 1009 Garden Way, was arrested at 10:45 p.m. for criminal threat. Bond was set at $2,500.

Friday, Oct. 14

- Matthew Johnson, 1110 Thurston St., Apt. 2, was arrested at 1 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Kurt Miranda, Big Springs, Texas, was arrested at 3:36 a.m. for criminal damage to property. Bond was set at $500.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A class on library basics for science and technology will be from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. today at Hale Library's reception desk.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Venkatramana Pegadaraju at 10 a.m. today in Ackert Hall.
- Katherine Allen will speak of her recovery from a drunk driving accident at the InterVarsity Christian Fellowship meeting at 8 tonight in the Union Little Theatre.

Corrections and clarifications

Charlotte MacFarland was the director of the play "Oleanna" instead of Marci Maullar, as was stated in the Oct. 14 edition of the Collegian. There were also errors in "ABC studies K-State's, 24 other schools nuclear reactors" in the Oct. 14 edition. Not all who visit the nuclear reactor are given a background check and the nuclear reactor cannot explode. The Collegian regrets the errors.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza $5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only ALL DAY, EVERYDAY! 1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Wohler's Used Furniture
615 N. 3rd St. 539-3319
Visit Wohler's for used: Furniture, Antiques, Appliances and miscellaneous items for all needs.
10-6 Mon.-Fri. 10-5 Sat. Closed on Sun.

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Britt's Garden Acres
9 a.m. - 7 p.m. Mon. - Sat. 12 - 6 p.m. Sun.
• Large selection homegrown pumpkins 19¢ / pound
• Exotic White & Cinderella Pumpkins 29¢ / pound
• Weekend Hay rides - on the hour - to Corn Maze $2
• Pick a Small or Medium Pumpkin only $2
1400 S. Scenic Dr. • 539-1901

Need Money?
New Name... Same great deals!!
We pay top dollar for:
Tools, electronics, movies, CDs, guns, music equipment, jewelry, & sporting goods
Two Locations
501a Ft. Riley 537-1803
3110 Anderson 565-0046
American Cash Exchange
Cash Advance & Pawn Loans

Looking for a way to save?
You need to insure both your auto and your home, so why not save money in the process? Call today for a free, no-obligation look at auto and home discounts from American Family.
C Clay Taylor Agency (800) 289-6949 Toll Free
American Family Insurance
All your protection, under one roof.

MEAL MANIA

Peace Corps
Life is calling. How far will you go?
Peace Corps Information Meetings at K-STATE
Tuesday, October 18 7 - 8:30 pm Student Union, State Room
Thursday, October 20 6:30 - 8 pm Smurthwaite Hall
For more information, contact your Peace Corps campus respresentative
Stephanie Springer
144 Waters Hall
785.532.5627 • pcorps@ksu.edu
www.peacecorps.gov

Free Dessert
w/ Meal Purchase
Bluestem bistro
Open daily until 11pm
1219 Moro Aggieville
785-587-8888
Exp. Nov. 15

Shake's Frozen Custard
$1 off Build your own Sundae
When you clip this coupon!
5th & Fort Riley Blvd. • 537-9553

Now Available HOT ONES!
Get Em' While They're Hot!
Hot Ones Sub $2.99 Regularly $4.50 expires:11-30-05
Mr. Goodcents Subs & Pastas
We Deliver! 1317 Anderson 539-1900
Get 'Em While They're Hot!

Your Coupon Here
532.6560
Kansas State Collegian

Students clean, paint letters on hillside

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Not every K-State organization's legacy involves sheer cliffs, gallons of whitewash and tons of concrete – but not every group is Tau Beta Pi.

On Saturday, the national engineering honor society performed an annual clean-up of the letters on K-Hill. Dangling from ropes and armed with brooms, paint brushes and whitewash, the group removed a year's worth of debris from the landmark before applying a new coat of paint.

"It's a good project for all the initiates," Eric Lumpkin, senior in civil engineering, said. "It's a good way to kind of get to know them and bond as a group."

The K-State Civil Engineering Society built the "K" in 1921 at a cost of $350. The original design had a bronze star set in the center to honor K-State students killed in World War I. The "S" was not installed until the 1930s and cost about $500.

Dick Hayter, associate dean of engineering, said the emphasis is now on stabilizing the current letters.

Nick Potenski, fifth-year senior in computer engineering, said funds for the project come from the Tau Beta Pi chapter budget, which is fed from the College of Engineering budget.

Sam Bruner, senior in electrical engineering and Tau Beta Pi vice president, said expenses for lumber, concrete, lime, other supplies and after-work celebrations totaled about $450.

While there are some safety concerns inherent to painting the side of a hill, the group makes sure to take precautions.

"It's a lot of fun," Bruner said. "It's not too scary until you slip, but you know there are a couple of people always there holding on to you."

For some, the idea of leaving their mark on the community makes whitewashing two large letters on the side of a hill appealing.

Meagan Miller, junior in architectural engineering, spent time updating the letters' appearance.

"I think it's fun because now I can say, 'Hey, look at the KS letters. That's what I did last weekend,'" she said.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

As part of Tau Beta Pi's yearly maintenance on the large stone "KS" lettering that overlooks Manhattan, Maggie Lock, junior in industrial engineering, sweeps off debris from the landmark Saturday.

New software records, transcribes class lectures

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Microsoft has developed a program that could make life easier for college students.

The program is called Microsoft Office OneNote 2003, and the Web site, www.onenotecampus.com, promises it will benefit students in numerous ways, including keeping all notes and research together and making note retrieval easy.

Tyler Brewton, junior in social science, and Heather O'Conner, senior in fine arts, have been hired to help market the program to college students.

"It's comparative to Microsoft Word, but better," Brewton said. "You can write over PDF files, and there's no set format so you don't have those issues."

Brewton said the program can record lectures.

"If your computer has that option, you can just push a button and record your class lectures," he said.

O'Conner said the program can translate recorded lectures into written notes. She said study groups can interact online through the program.

"Everybody can look at each other's notes and study or discuss," she said.

This could eliminate the need to have group meetings.

Microsoft designed the software for college students, but O'Conner said it is just as beneficial for professors.

The program can be downloaded free at www.onenotecampus.com. It is free until March 31, but Brewton said if students like the program, he has 1,000 free downloads to give away.

MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR
$5 OFF Half soles with heels or full soles offer expires 10-31-05 • No other discounts apply
MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR
VFW Plaza • 216 S. 4th • 776-1193

Junior • Petite
Blue Jeans
Lucky, Gap, Abercrombie & Fitch, and more!
$2.50 – $4.95
Bring in Student ID for 25% off any one clothing item
QUALITY NAME BRAND New & Gently Used CLOTHING AT 50-95% OFF RETAIL
BUY & SELL
The Apple's Heart
Boutique Atmosphere...Thriftstore Prices
"Where Kansas Meets New York"
113 S. 5th • downtown poyntz • 317-5475

Kansas State Orchestra
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18
7:30 P.M. FREE
McCAIN AUDITORIUM
DAVID LITTRELL, CONDUCTOR
OLATHE EAST HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA
RUSSELL PIEKEN, CONDUCTOR
PROGRAM IN HONOR OF WARREN WALKER
PROFESSOR EMERITUS, DEPT. OF MUSIC
TWO PIECES PERFORMED BY OEHS ORCHESTRA
SIBELIUS: VALSE TRISTE
WEBER: OVERTURE TO DER FREISCHÜTZ
PROKOFIEV: ROMEO & JULIET SUITE 2

October Specials
$65 Foil Hilite (add a haircut for $20)
$30 Men's Hilite (add a haircut for $10)
$27 Full Set of Nails
Add brow wax to any service $8
$40 One hour massage
CRIMPERS
"Best Deal in the Ville"
717 N 11th St. • 539-7621

$50 Foil Hilite (add a cut for $10)
$20 Full Set of Nails or Sculptured Toes
$12 Lip and Brow Combo
$18 Clip and Rip for Men (cut and brow wax)
Buy one retail, get the second half off.
CRIMPERS TOO
K-State Student Union Lower Level
Call for Appt. 532-5972

$2 BIG beers
monday night football
Rams vs Colts
20¢ wings til' HALFTIME
In Concert
After the Game
Andrew Zender
Home of the Killer Chicken
JOE'S TAP ROOM
776-3593 • 1127 Moro

GUMBY DAMMIT $5.99 Large 1-Topping Pizza or Large Pokey Stix
GUMBY'S Pizza
702 N. 11th St
770-3333
MONDAY MANIA $3.99 Large Cheese Pizza
SMALL MEAL DEAL Choose any 2 for $12.99 plus tax
•Medium 1-Topping Pizza
•Medium Pokey Stix
•4 Pepperoni Rolls
•10 Buffalo Wings

Borck Brothers
Now OPEN in our new location
Larger Selection Extended Hours
Same Professional Service and Quality Products

537-8636 / 888-642-7848
Across from Panera Bread - Also in downtown Salina
www.borck-bros.com
Mon-Th 9:30am -7pm ... Sat until 6 ... Sun 1-5pm

RICHARD THOMAS in "Play on Words"
Thursday October 20 @ 7:30PM

Kansas State University
McCain Auditorium
2005-2006
Performance Series
Tickets:
Call the McCain Box Office 785-532-6428 and charge your tickets to VISA, Mastercard, AMEX or Discover
weekdays 11am - 6pm
For more information or to buy online go to www.k-state.edu/mccain
All events are presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission,a state agency, the National Endowment for the Arts, a Federal agency and the K-State Fine Arts fee.

Richard Thomas has been called "one of his generation's most versatile and prolific performers." Thomas, star of the popular TV show "The Waltons," presents "Play On Words" an evening of dramatic interpretive readings of great literature, selected by Thomas for their dramatic power, nostalgic value and humor. Mr. Thomas is currently appearing in the Broadway play "A Naked Girl on the Appian Way." Previously he starred in the Broadway hit "Democracy".

Sponsored by: Capitol Federal Savings

TO THE POINT

Remember U.S. soldiers still overseas

Two soldiers from Fort Riley, Kan., died last week, bringing the death toll of Fort Riley soldiers in Iraq to 58.

With more than 3,000 soldiers from Fort Riley in Iraq, the number of deaths in Iraq are sure to rise.

Since the war began, nearly 2,000 U.S. soldiers have died in the Middle East defending the freedom of America and other countries. Others are leaving behind loved ones to fight far from home.

Soldiers heading across seas is an ongoing part of the war, so it is easy to forget those who are laying down their lives to fight for the United States.

However, it's important that we don't forget.

These men and women have left their friends and family to protect the freedom of others. It is up to us at home to maintain our support for these soldiers.

We can do so by placing the "We Support Our Troops" tags on our cars or telling a man or woman in uniform thanks. Letter-writing campaigns and care packages are easy ways to let soldiers know we're still thinking about them and what they do matters to those of us still at home.

Sometimes a simple thank-you can go a long way.

Then these soldiers will know we appreciate their sacrifices in the war.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Learning curve

Media, role models teach us how to label others who are different

LUCAS MADDY

Back when "party" meant cake, Mylar balloons and having the back room of Pizza Hut to ourselves, I learned a simple lesson. Before presidents had scandals, when "connections" were telephone calls and "blogs" described unknown shapes; before I was taught anything about the world, I was taught about people.

I am no better and no worse than anyone in the world. I am different, and being different makes me special. That was all I ever needed to know. We embraced this as children. We did not judge, we accepted. Over time however, inescapable influences shamed us of our differences.

The question of nature vs. nurture is one applied to many subjects. Do we learn to categorize people in the same manner we learn to hit a baseball?

When we fail to see eye to eye with another, are personal differences or circles of influence responsible? Watching my younger brother and sisters grow up, it is apparent they were born with non-judgmental hearts.

When someone moved to our town from a big city, we ogled them. "You had a McDonald's right down the street? Did you see famous people a lot? You had a mall? With a roller coaster?" Now, depending on your home address, "Johnson County" means either "better than you" or "buys friends."

Farmboys were novelties. We understood life's cycle of birth, life and death. We could describe a cesarean section, learned our numbers counting calves and our colors one tractor brand at a time. No one called us hicks, rednecks or backward. I guess no one knew yet. Good work tree-huggers: you are no longer alone in being ostracized.

I didn't know Terry was African-American. I just knew he could run really fast. No one told me he resented me, and I was unaware that I prejudged him. No one told him either. Thanks, Kanye West and Michael Moore.

Media and role models opened a world of new information. I never knew so much about myself. If I call her "Miss" and hold the door, I am a male chauvinist impeding the feminist movement by continually downplaying a woman's role in society. If not, then I am not a gentleman and chivalry is dead. Makes my head hurt.

What is worse than labeling other people is labeling yourself through shame from others. I don't wear pink. Not because it's ugly, but because I am not secure in my sexuality.

I eat meat because I can't stand the screams of carrots and celery when they face the knife. I drive a pickup to destroy the environment while compensating for something smaller. I carry a rifle because I lack education, advocate school shootings, murder innocent animals and to compensate for something smaller.

I wear western jeans because I am a drunk-driving, woman-beating, tobacco-chewing, gun-toting homophobic rebel who believes the South will rise again and I want everyone to know I have no need to compensate for anything.

I liked myself a lot better when I wore a Bugs Bunny hat to school everyday.

All I ever needed to know I learned before kindergarten.

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

Lucas Maddy is a senior in agriculture technology management. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Devotion to kids shouldn't be criticized

CHRISTINA FORSBERG

A recent New York Times article reported a majority of women attending the nation's top colleges are planning on suspending or terminating their future professional careers in their thirties.

In an age when women now outnumber men at numerous colleges and universities nationwide, why on Earth would women leave behind the wonderful potential they have to offer?

It seems many young women plan to interrupt their careers to fully devote their time and effort to raising their children.

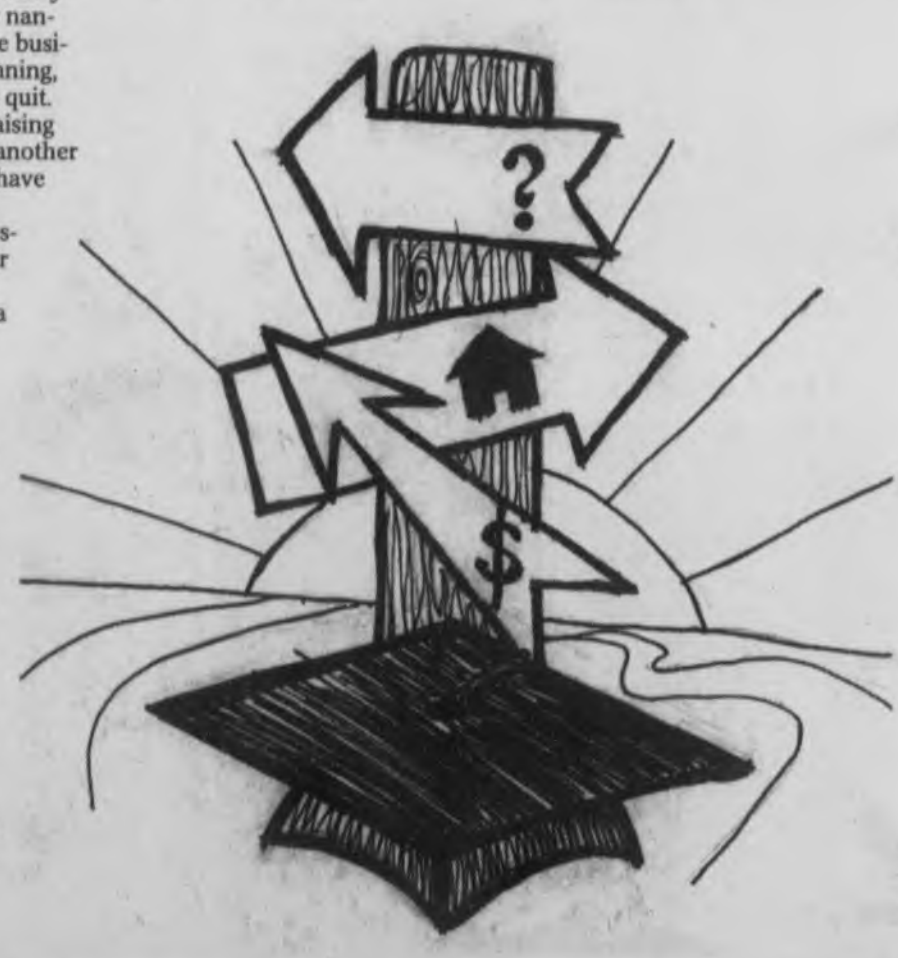
The traditional role of stay-at-home mom has been often looked down upon since the 1970s, when record numbers of women began entering the workforce. But in pursuit to have it all, juggling career and family, many women discovered their children and themselves were losing out – even when husbands were willing to share household and childcare duties.

Taking temporary or permanent leave of the working world isn't a selfish choice as some critics may allege. More often mothers opt to sacrifice both income and career.

Childcare and housework are more laborious, tedious and time-consuming than most office jobs. As an educator and role model for impressionable young sons and daughters, mothers with college educations are in a much better position to help their offspring develop their true potentials than even the most expensive day care centers.

Maternity leave may be enough time to have a child, but certainly not to raise one. That's why nannies, babysitters and daycare businesses exist where breadwinning, career-driven mothers can't quit.

To many homemakers, raising children at home is merely another career stage, and it doesn't have to be the final one.



Many return to the professional world after all of their children are in school full-time, or work part-time on a schedule that matches the time frame of their kids' absence from home.

Either way, children or careers are always going to require a great degree of commitment and sacrifice to be successful.

A woman who stays home with her children is less likely to reach her full potential in her career as quickly as a woman who doesn't have any children, but she could still eventually reach the same career destiny.

The personal decision to stay at home with young children is an elemental part of the human experience and of our future economic well-being that it should bear no criticism of any academic or professional significance.

Women (and men) with college degrees who plan to stay home to raise their children are wholeheartedly investing their higher learning and influence in tomorrow's generations of leader too.

Christina Forsberg is a sophomore in English and Economics. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Let's quit calling in with freaking novels. Geeze.

Too bad I missed the anti-pornography video at the Union they other night. I don't know about you, but I'll never pass up the opportunity to watch a porno surrounded by good Christian girls.

I paid $5 and put $75 worth of liquor in my body. Two hours later I put that $75 worth of liquor on my dorm room floor.

Let's face it, fighting robots is the Tom Jones.

To the person that stole my Ugg purse at the Pike house Thursday — can I have it and everything inside back please? I would tell you how to reach me, but you are more than capable of getting a hold of me. You have my cell phone, drivers license, student ID, and my keys. I bet it feels great to make a girl cry.

OK so we just lost the game. Why is Tech trying to score with 10 sec. left? Oh yeah, Everidge you rock. Keep it up.

K-State will be holding their annual charity event this week, proceeds will go to the Find-A-Defensive-Back Foundation.

So, my friend met a guy in SafeRide, yeah and then they made out ... in SafeRide.

When did if become okay to give away the ending of a play in the first paragraph of an article? Thanks, Collegian, for ruining it for everyone!

Last night, I slammed my hand in the door in my dorm room, got chwasted to make the pain go away, passed out. Then I woke up, went to psych class and realized how drunk I still was.

To Old Man River: I hope your curtains work out for ya so you don't have to see anymore honkeytonk badonkadonk.

So I just saw some people climbing on top of Shellenberger and McCain Halls.

Put the lime in the SoCo shot and drink them both together!

I am in the love with the McDonald's girl. She is an angel in her polyester uniform.

So, a preacher just came to my door while I was watching porn and drinking a beer, is this a sign from God?

To the boy in my sociology class that saw me sleeping: I really don't care what I look like when I'm asleep, at least I'm asleep, unlike you staring at me when I'm asleep.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Martin Wilson, freshman in pre-medicine, Brett Lemmon, freshman in architecture and other members of Phi Gamma Delta, compete in a tug-of-war as a part of the Delta Sigma Phi and Kappa Delta elementary olympics philanthropy Sunday afternoon at Frank Bergman Elementary School. The event included dodgeball, tetherball, four-square and tug-of-war.

Grade school olympics raise $800

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The rain did not stop two sororities and eight fraternities from participating in Delta Sigma Phi and Kappa Delta's first elementary olympics philanthropy event Sunday at Bergman Elementary School.

All K-State fraternities and sororities were invited to enter teams to play four-square, tetherball and tug-of-war in tournament brackets.

Delta Sig and Kappa Delta worked with Manhattan-Ogden USD 383 to put on the event.

The event raised approximately $800 from donations and the $50 entry fees, said Cherish Wood, Kappa Delta philanthropy chair and junior in social work and pre-law.

Proceeds will go to Boys and Girls Clubs of America and Manhattan-Ogden Public Schools Foundation.

"It was a little chaotic with the rain, but it was a success for our first year," Wood said. "The money will go to something that kids benefit from a lot."

Curtis Schwieterman, Delta Sig philanthropy chair and senior in geography and anthropology, said this is the fraternity's first fall philanthropy project, for which planning began last semester.

"We want people to know about it and grow to the level where the event is well-known like other philanthropy projects," he said. "We hope to raise a good portion of money for children's education."

The event brought back elementary school memories said Sinead Leahy, member of Sigma Kappa and sophomore in open option.

"I don't care how we end up placing in the events," she said. "It's been good times, and the event is for a good cause."

Jason Smith, Delta Sig member and senior in psychology, coached Sigma Kappas in the events.

Smith said in addition to a flashback to childhood, the philanthropy project also helped strengthen the greek system's reputation.

"A lot of the time, fraternities get bad reputations," he said. "We're trying to alleviate that stereotype by helping out the community and giving back to the community."

Delta Sigs are also planning a weekly reading time with Bergman Elementary students, Schwieterman said.

"This project is not required, but it's a good thing to be done," he said. "In time, we want to have members go to all elementary schools in Manhattan and read to the students."

Miss Kansas to share experiences of pageant life, state travels during Manhattan visit Tuesday

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

For some, it's a scholarship program.

For others, it's a great time to watch the swimsuit competition.

But for Adrienne Rosel, she said her experiences as Miss Kansas are more than winning a beauty pageant.

From 6-8 p.m. Tuesday at Carlos O' Kelly's, she will share her pageant experience and sign autographs for the Manhattan community.

Miss Kansas Visit

When: 6-8 p.m., Tuesday
Where: Carlos O' Kelly's, 100 Manhattan Town Center
How much: Free

After accepting her title, Rosel said things are quite satisfying.

"Busy, busy, busy and loving it," she said on the Miss Kansas Web site, www.misskansas.org. "I am moving forward and things are going great."

During October, Rosel will travel to Wichita, Lawrence, Manhattan and to the little towns in between.

Rosel
MISS KANSAS

With Rosel's stop in Manhattan, Ann Gregg, freshman in architectural engineering, said she wanted to learn more about pageant life.

"I used to watch it when I was a little girl, but I haven't seen it in five years," Gregg said. "I guess I've always wondered what is the prep work behind it all."

Lizzie Lenz, freshman in architecture, shared the same experiences as Gregg with her pageant watching. While Lenz doesn't follow pageants closely today, she said she has high respect for contestants.

"I just can't imagine doing it all," she said.

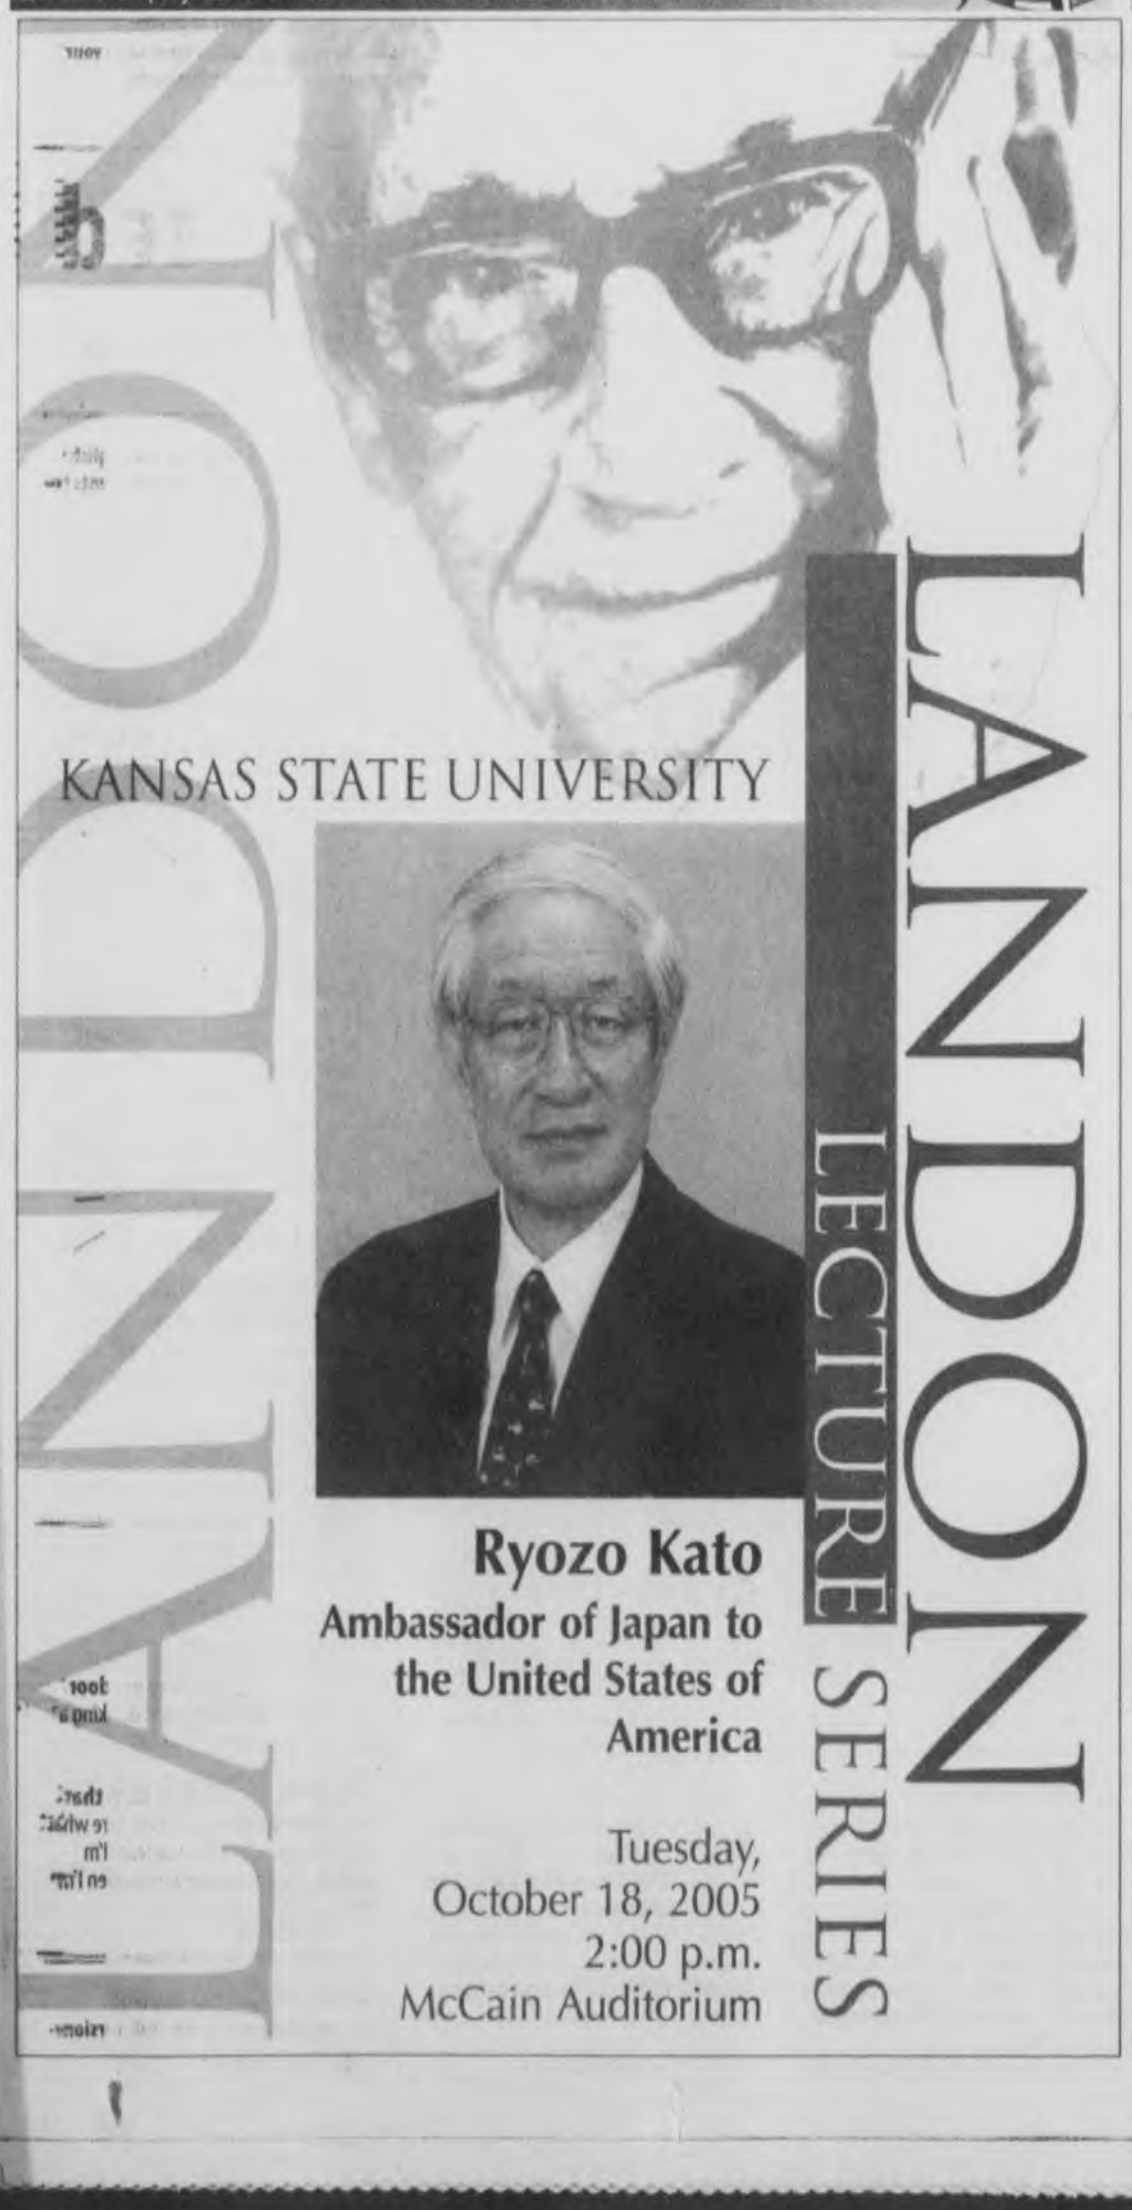
And even for guys like Micah Hoelscher, Manhattan resident, meeting Miss Kansas would be an honor, he said.

"I've never been a sucker for beauty pageant girls, but I'd want to know how this (experience) will help her future," he said. "I wonder if she really thought she was going to be Miss Kansas when she was little."

While some of these questions might be answered during Rosel's visit, she answers questions and posts updates on her experiences through the Web site.

After her stop in Manhattan, she will participate in a cadet competition in Wichita, speak on various radio shows, and participate in the University of Kansas' homecoming events.

Rosel said visits to cities in Kansas are an inspiration. She also said she hopes to carry similar messages through her visits, giving others the knowledge she has received through her experience.



"One person has the potential to affect one other person – who affects one other person – and the numbers continue to multiply," she said.

Kansas State Collegian
Wildcat fan's newspaper of choice

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian
118 Kedzie • 532-6560

Are you looking for a job or internship?
Don't miss your chance to interview on-campus with these employers and others - application deadlines are fast approaching.
Black & Decker/DeWalt
Cargill
CCH Incorporated
Digix Inc. - Xerox Sales
Ferguson Enterprises
Haynes Equipment Company
LaSalle Bank Corporation
Lockheed Martin
Register with Career and Employment Services to view hundreds of jobs with these companies and more. For a complete list of employers and more information go to www.k-state.edu/ces.
Career & Employment Services : 100 Holtz Hall : 532-6506 : www.k-state.edu/ces

CHOOSE YOUR OWN ADVENTURE ESSAY CONTEST
Sponsored by Boy Scouts of America
1st Prize $150 2nd Prize KSU Football autographed by Bill Snyder
Submitting Essay:
Email essay as an attachment to:
robertlhedley@hotmail.com
Requirements:
•Essay should be a maximum of 2 pages, double spaced, picture optional
•Essay should be written about a personal adventure or an adventure that you would like to have.
Winners will be presented at the food court at Manhattan Town Center on Nov. 10 at 6pm. Must be present to win.

UPC COMING EVENTS

Tuesday, Oct 18
K-State Idol Auditions - 8 pm, Big 12 Room, K-State Union
The Buzz - 7 pm, Union Station

Friday, Oct 21
After Hours - 10:30-11:30 pm, Union Courtyard
Christopher Carter, Mentalist
9:30 pm - Pizza, Union Station

Friday - Sunday, Oct 21 - 23
Film: 'Ch arlie & the Chocolate Factory"
Friday & Sunday - 8 pm, Forum Hall
Saturday - 7 & 9:30 pm, Forum Hall
$1 admission - Friday
$2 admission - Saturday & Sunday
Runtime: 141 minutes, Rated 'PG"

www.kdu.edu/upc
UPC hotline: 532-6572
Office phone: 532-6571

K-State comes back against Baylor to win

By Mark Potter
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State's 20th-ranked volleyball team was put in a familiar position Saturday.

After losing its first two games to an unranked conference foe in a hostile environment, K-State came back to force a fifth game for a second consecutive match.

But unlike last Wednesday's match against Colorado, which K-State lost, the Wildcats were able to win game five against Baylor to complete the comeback and win 3-2 (23-30, 21-30, 30-27, 30-20, 15-11).

"Unfortunately, it took us getting our backs against the wall before we started to execute and play with some heart and intensity," coach Suzie Fritz said.

With the win, K-State (15-4, 6-3) has won four of its last five matches and has defeated Baylor (10-10, 2-7) four consecutive times.

In games one and two, Baylor built 20-12 leads and overcame Wildcat scoring rallies to win 23-30 and 21-30. Through two frames, Baylor out-hit K-State .272 to .075.

Fritz said Baylor's size presented problems for her squad, especially early in the match.

"They are big, they are physical and they are fast," Fritz said. "I think blocking is certainly their strength. Even when they don't block the ball, they can control the attack with their block."

Sophomore setter Stacey Spiegelberg said K-State needed

See VOLLEYBALL Page 8

Coach classless for running up score at end

If there ever was a classless football coach, his name would have to be Mike Leach.

MICHAEL ASHFORD

The Texas Tech head coach is a brilliant offensive mind – that much is true – but he obviously has no conception of "calling off the dogs."

Not until Texas Tech starting quarterback Cody Hodges threw a touchdown to give Tech a 59-20 lead over K-State did Leach take Hodges out of the game.

On the next Tech drive, Leach inserted backup Graham Harrell into the lineup, and proceeded to let Graham throw all over the field.

With less than 30 seconds left, Graham was throwing passes to the endzone trying to score once more. Texas Tech failed to score again, but the opinion of Leach was already formed.

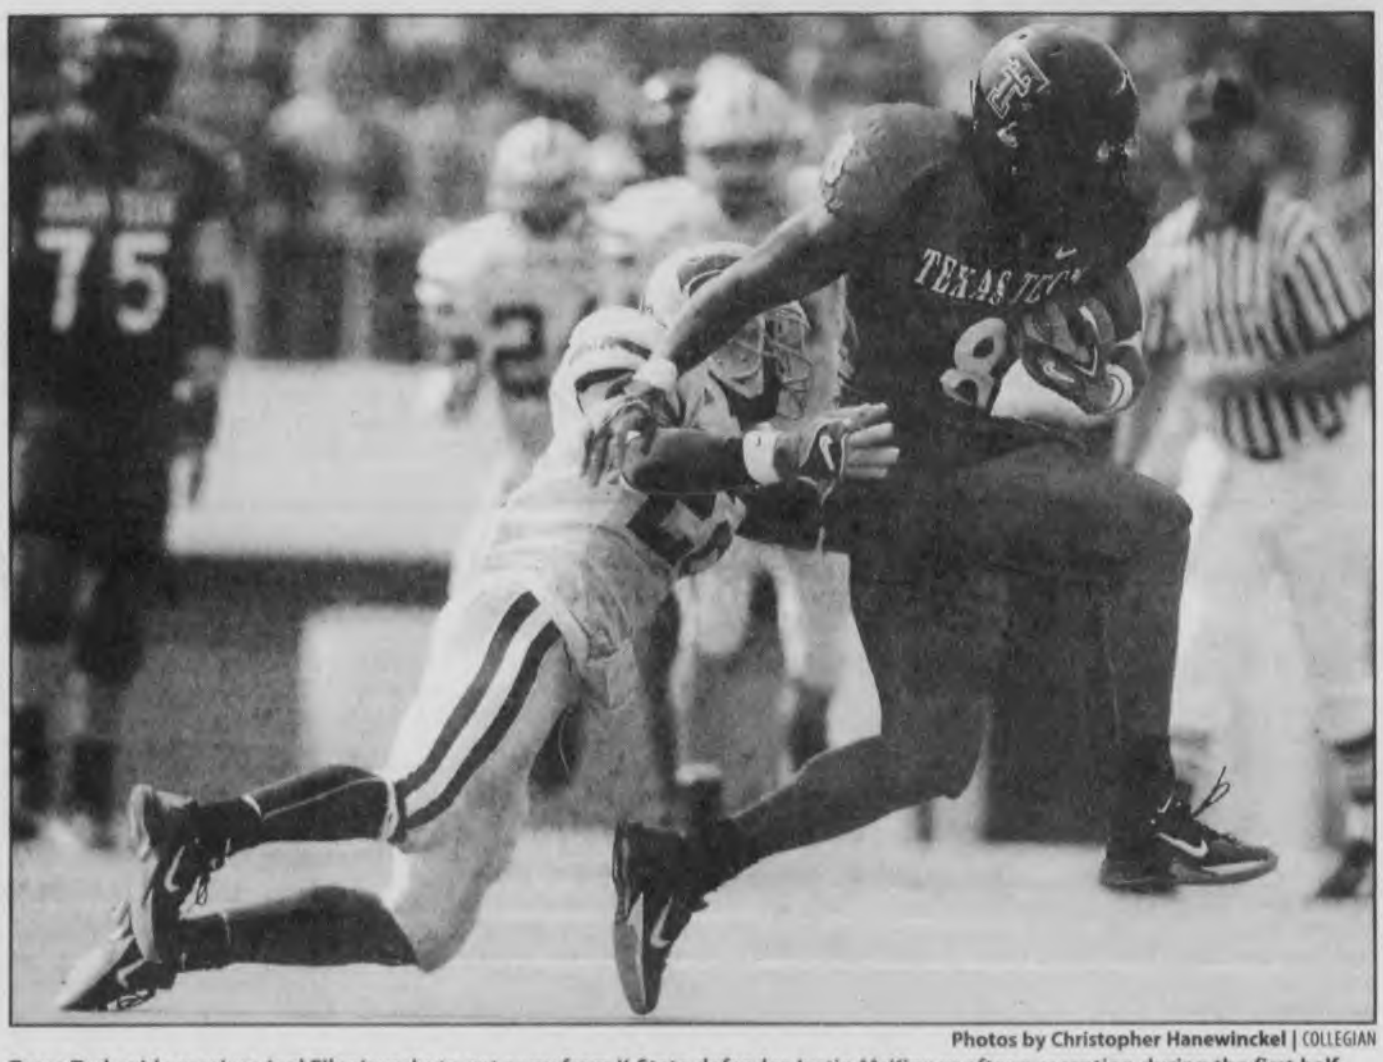
"It's very disrespectful to try and run up the score," defensive back Bryan Baldwin said.

The passing game might be the focal point of Leach's offense, but Leach showed no class by not running the ball and allowing his quarterback to throw for the endzone.

WHERE'S THE LAUNDRY?

One stat jumps out from K-State's loss to the Red Raiders.

Texas Tech pass plays: 72. Texas Tech holding penalties: zero.



The Red Raiders may be a very good offensive team, but it was painfully obvious Texas Tech held K-State's defensive linemen during Saturday's game.

On one play in particular, defensive end Tearrius George came around the right side of Tech's offensive line and had a shot at the quarterback.

That was until the Tech offensive lineman pulled George to the ground by his shoulderpads. All this within five feet of

See COLUMN Page 8

Missed opportunities

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Texas Tech wide receiver Joel Filani works to get away from K-State defender Justin McKinney after a reception during the first half Saturday afternoon. Filani caught 10 catches for 255 yards and one touchdown in the Red Raider's win 59-20.

Hodges torches Wildcats for 643 yards

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

LUBBOCK, Texas – Record-setting performances by Texas Tech quarterback Cody Hodges and wide receiver Joel Filani helped the No. 10 Red Raiders hand K-State its worst conference loss in eight years Saturday.

Hodges threw for a career-best 643 yards and five touchdowns while Filani finished with a Big 12 Conference-record 255 receiving yards, as Texas Tech (6-0, 3-0) gained 684 total yards of offense to cruise to a 59-20 victory over the Wildcats.

The loss was K-State's worst in Big 12 play since 1997, when Nebraska defeated the Wildcats 56-26 in Lincoln, Neb.

"I'm not thinking about dignity right now," coach Bill Snyder said. "I'm just thinking about what happened to us and how it happened, and what we need to do to not let it happen again.

"As bad as the score was, we had the opportunities in the ballgame to make a difference in the ballgame, and we didn't take advantage of the opportunities when they presented themselves."

Quarterback Allan Evridge lies on the ground after a hit in the third quarter against Texas Tech. Evridge started the game against the Red Raiders, being the first freshman to start a game since Paul Watson started in 1988.

K-State (4-2, 1-2) had an opportunity to jump on the Red Raiders in the first half when Kyle Williams blocked an Alex Reyes punt in the second quarter with the Wildcats leading 6-3.

However, the block was called off when Justin McKinney was flagged for defensive holding away from the play, giving Texas Tech a first down, which it converted into a touchdown nine plays later to take the lead 10-6.

"I just do what I'm coached," McKinney said. "I don't have to hold; I don't have to cheat to win. To be honest, it was a missed call to me – something they just made up."

The Wildcats hung around for a half against the nation's No. 1 passing and scoring offense, on the strength of redshirt-freshman quarterback Allan Evridge's first start in a K-State uniform.

In the first half, Evridge was 6-of-8 passing for 128 yards and a touchdown.

Evridge's touchdown pass came on K-State next possession – an 80-yard strike to sophomore wide receiver Jordy Nelson that put the Wildcats ahead 13-10 with 2:27 remaining before the half. Nelson has caught a touchdown in every game this season.

See FOOTBALL Page 8

Red Raiders score 42 in 2nd half

By Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

LUBBOCK, Texas – The K-State defense knew what they were getting themselves into when they stepped onto the Astro Turf at Jones SBC Stadium.

It just took the Texas Tech offense a half before they showed the Wildcat defense why they are the nation's leading scoring and passing offense, in the Red Raiders 59-20 win over the Wildcats on Saturday.

"We were a good first half team," coach Bill Snyder said.

The first half score was still staggering for the Red Raider offense as Cody Hodges completed 22 of 32 for 297 yards, but the defense also forced a turnover and held Texas Tech to only three first quarter points, the first time that has happened this season.

Two different halves for defense

First half
Points 17
Passing yards 297
K-State turnovers 0

Second half
Points 42
Passing yards 384
K-State turnovers 3

"In the first half we were all hyped up," defensive lineman Quintin Echols said. "We were doing a good job of disguising and they weren't sure what we were in. In the first half, our game plan and how hyped up we were took us so far in the first half. In the second half, they got adjusted to some of the schemes we were doing and we did not take advantage of the mistakes we made and they took advantage of every mistake that we made."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

K-State defensive backs Blake Seiler and Maurice Mack try to take down Texas Tech's Taurean Henderson Saturday afternoon at Jones SBC Stadium. Henderson recorded 51 yards rushing and 118 yards receiving to help the Red Raiders to a 59-20 win.

After wide receiver Davin Dennis fumbled at the beginning of the second half, the Red Raider offense began to roll as they took the ball over at their own 41-yard line. Hodges connected with Jarrett Hicks for the first of three unanswered scores by Texas Tech. This one a corner fade over the head of cornerback Byron Garvin from 20-yards out to push their lead to 11 points.

The pass first offense continued to attack the K-State defense, rolling up 42 points in the half to the Wildcats seven points that came from a Yamon Figurs 98-yard kick-off return.

"You think you have them covered and somewhere else

See DEFENSE Page 8

Sunday NFL Scores

NY Jets	17	New England	20
Buffalo	27	Denver	28
San Diego	27	Houston	10
Oakland	14	Seattle	42
Minnesota	3	NY Giants	13
Chicago	28	Dallas	16
Carolina	21	Cincinnati	31
Detroit	20	Tennessee	23
Washington	21	Atlanta	34
Kansas City	28	New Orleans	31
Jacksonville	23	Miami	13
Pittsburgh	17	Tampa Bay	27
Cleveland	3
Baltimore	16

MLB Playoff Scores

Chicago Sox	6	St. Louis	1
LA Angels	3	Houston	2

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

NFL | Holmes scores 2 TDs, Kansas City beats Redskins

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jared Allen had a huge day against Washington, with three sacks and two recovered fumbles.

Allen

But it was the play he didn't get credit for that his teammates said was the biggest of the game. Sammy Knight insists that Allen created the fumble that the defensive back returned for a momentum-swinging 80-yard touchdown in Kansas City's 28-21 victory over the Redskins on Sunday.

"Jared Allen played a great game for us," said Knight, who also tipped the ball away from Santana Moss in the end zone on the game's last play. "He was all over the field making plays."

NFL | Tomlinson scores 3 ways in Chargers' win

OAKLAND, Calif. — San Diego's LaDainian Tomlinson tied an NFL record Sunday by scoring a touchdown in his 18th consecutive game and then became the seventh player to run, pass and catch a touchdown in the same game.

Tomlinson

Tomlinson came out of the backfield to catch a pass from Drew Brees on the Chargers' second drive of the game against the Oakland Raiders. Tomlinson, caught the ball around the 20 and jogged into the end zone.

Tomlinson added a rushing touchdown later in the first quarter, extending his record for consecutive games with a running touchdown to 18.

NBA | More tests needed for Collier cause of death

ATLANTA – Autopsy results in the death of Atlanta Hawks center Jason Collier will not be available until Monday at the earliest.

Collier

The autopsy on the 7-foot, 260-pound player has been performed but other tests are needed, the coroner said Sunday.

The 28-year-old player died early Saturday after he had trouble breathing in his home, according to his father.

NBA | Penn. State's Williams will not return this season

STATE COLLEGE, Penn. — Penn State suffered more than a loss in its heartbreaking defeat at Michigan on Saturday.

The Nittany Lions announced Sunday that star freshman wide receiver Derrick Williams is out for the remainder of the season after breaking his arm in their last-second, 27-25 setback in Ann Arbor, Mich.

College Football AP Top 10

1.	Southern Cal	6-0
2.	Texas	6-0
3.	Virginia Tech	6-0
4.	Georgia	6-0
5.	Alabama	6-0
6.	Miami (Fla.)	5-1
7.	LSU	4-1
8.	UCLA	6-0
9.	Notre Dame	4-2
10.	Texas Tech	6-0

Coffee Craze

Shops allow students chance to relax, study

Reminiscing, Dory Cochran, student at the University of Kansas, chats with her friend from high school, David Woods, student from University of Nebraska, over coffee. Cochran and Woods enjoyed their lattes at Radina's Coffeehouse and Bakery in Aggieville.

Photos by Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Putting the finishing touches on a caramel macchiato, Summer Allen, junior in pre-journalism and mass communications, fixes a drink at Starbucks Coffee. Allen has worked at the Starbucks, in the Dillons Grocery Store on Sarber Lane as a barrista since June.

Below: At Radina's Coffeehouse and Bakery, Mike Baskett, senior in architecture, reads Paris to the Moon after drinking his Macchiato.

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Smooth jazz takes away the quietness as the aroma of black coffee beans fill the air.

Coffee houses can be a place to sit down and relax whether students have studying to do or just want to hang out with friends.

"Coffee houses are an alternative to drinking alcohol and it's a great place to hang out with friends," Stephanie Yeager, junior in biology and pre-med, said. "My favorite place in Manhattan is Java's in Aggieville, and my favorite drink is the Almond Joy Latte."

A lot of students go to local coffee shops in Manhattan.

"The Java Coffee Shop in Aggieville has a great atmosphere, where all kinds of fun people come to have great coffee and great food," Melissa Veldman, junior in biochemistry and barista at Bluestem Bistro, said.

According to www.cosic.org, coffee has been proven to increase levels of alertness and attentiveness and can help lead to a better mood. Coffee shops have several combinations of flavors and drinks.

Students who are regulars at various coffee shops in Manhattan know exactly what they want when they get there.

"My favorite drink is the Starbucks' White Chocolate Mocha," said Alli Krase, junior in communication sciences and disorders.

Many local coffee shops in Manhattan have regular weekly events. Bluestem has live jazz bands that perform on Thursday nights.

Coffee isn't the only item served at local coffee shops – most of them serve lunch items and pastries.

Coffee Shops in Manhattan

- The K-State Student Union Coffee Shop, Union Station
- Bluestem Bistro, 1219 Moro St.
- Kitchen Capers, 100 Manhattan Town Center, Suite 205
- Kansas State University Coffee & Sweet Shop, 2610 Claflin Road
- Radina's Coffee House & Bakery, 616 North Manhattan Ave.
- Campus Grounds Espresso, Durland Hall

Most coffee shops carry other gift items and specialties along with coffee.

"We carry Vera Bradley handbags, which are popular among many of our female customers," Sharon Wahl, manager of Kitchen Capers, said. "The atmosphere is fun and it's just a fun place to be."

Many shops, like Radina's, have places where people can have meetings in reserved areas.

If students don't like to go out and would rather be in the comfort of their own home, they can have their own coffee shop in their home or dorm room.

"I prefer to drink coffee with friends at home," said Rebecca Vail, fifth year senior in secondary education, biology and kinesiology. "We relax, share stories and sip coffee."

If students don't have the time or the wheels to get to any of these coffee shops, there are two coffee shops on campus. Last winter, Campus Grounds Espresso opened in Durland Hall.

"I normally get an espresso in Durland, because it is where most of my classes are," said Jeff Kling, senior in mechanical engineering.

For students and faculty who aren't around Durland Hall, there is a coffee shop in the K-State Student Union.

"I come to the coffee shop in the Union because it's quiet and students can get a lot of studying done," said Alisha Reynolds, sophomore in political science and English. "Students can't get good coffee at the library and it is easier than going to coffee shops off campus when students only have an hour between classes."

Making a stop at the coffee shops in the Union is a daily routine for some students.

FAMOUS QUOTES

"You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes.
You can steer yourself any direction you choose. You're on your own, and you know what you know.
And you are the one who'll decide where you'll go.
Oh the places you'll go."
— Dr. Seuss

Rock

"You know the world is going crazy when the best rapper is a white guy, the best golfer is a black guy, the tallest guy in the NBA is Chinese, the Swiss hold the America's Cup, France is accusing the U.S. of arrogance, Germany doesn't want to go to war and the three most powerful men in America are named 'Bush', 'Dick', and 'Colon.' Need I say more?"
— Chris Rock

"I can't take HIS money...
I can't print MY OWN money...
I have to work for money, why don't I just lay down and die?"
— Homer Simpson

"I'm the one that's got to die when it's time for me to die, so let me live my life the way I want to."
— Jimi Hendrix

"When I'm through with rap, I want to open up an ice cream parlor and call myself Scoop Dogg."
— Snoop Dogg

Osbourne

"When I was a practicing alcoholic, I was unbelievable. One side effect was immense suspicion: I'd come off tour like Inspector Clouseau on acid. 'Where's this cornflake come from? It wasn't here before.'"
— Ozzy Osbourne

"Of course [I believe in aliens]. Are you so arrogant as to believe we are alone in this universe?"
— Tom Cruise

"I fear not the man who has practiced 10,000 kicks once, but I fear the man who has practiced one kick 10,000 times."
— Bruce Lee

"I can't understand why more people aren't bisexual. It would double your chances for a date on Saturday night."
— Woody Allen

"My own dreams fortunately came true in this great state. I became Mr. Universe; I became a successful businessman. And even though some people say I still speak with a slight accent, I have reached the top of the acting profession."
— Arnold Schwarzenegger

Pacino

"My first language was shy. It's only by having been thrust into the limelight that I have learned to cope with my shyness."
— Al Pacino

"I'm shy, paranoid, whatever word you want to use. I hate fame. I've done everything I can to avoid it."
— Johnny Depp

Source: www.saidwhat.co.uk

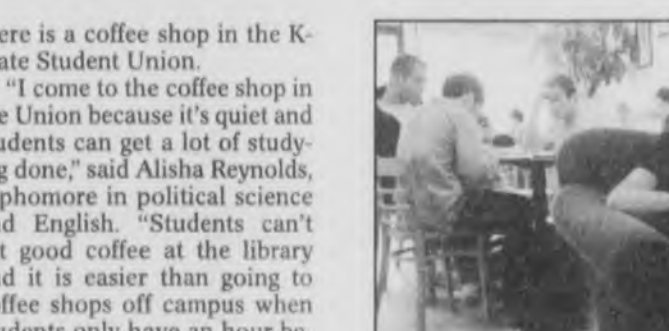
Model-turned-bounty hunter makes for good action movie

Movie review by Alex Peak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

What happens when New Line Cinema crosses director Tony Scott ("Top Gun," "Enemy of the State" and "Spy Game") with writer Richard Kelly ("Donnie Darko"), a slew of eminent actors like Keira Knightley, Mickey Rourke, Lucy Liu and Christopher Walken, and the life story of a supermodel turned female bounty hunter? You get a punk rock, violent, high-energy movie called "Domino."

"Domino" is very loosely based on the life story of Domino Harvey, daughter of British actor Lawrence Harvey and Vogue model Pauline Stone.

Domino Harvey grew up in and around London. Her father died of stomach cancer when she was young and her mother eventually moved on to marry Peter Morton, the Hard Rock Café mogul.



She was a model for Ford Modeling Agency for several years and moved to Beverly Hills, Calif., when she was 19.

Before settling in as a bounty hunter, Harvey was said to have been employed as a ranch hand, firefighter and a nightclub manager, according to www.telegraph.co.uk.

According to an article by the Los Angeles Times, Scott met Harvey in 1993 and began considering and proposing a movie about her life. It has even been said that Harvey was on the set many times during the film's shooting.

As for the movie itself, without some background information it could be fairly confusing to grasp entirely. As if Harvey's story wasn't fascinating already, director Scott and writer Kelly decided to Hollywoodize it a little more, which may have added to the complicated story line.

Characters are introduced with a name title caption and some history, narrated by Domino (Knightley). Because there are so many characters and so many relationships and happenstances, a flow chart is shown to help the audience keep up with the family-tree of the cause and effect affiliation of all the characters.

Beware, since the movie is centered on the story of a Los Angeles-based bounty hunter, one must expect a lot of blood and violence. Audience members with sensitive stomachs need not worry too much because the bloody scenes are provided with upbeat music and lots of cinematography tricks, like color screens, super close ups and quick cuts, as a distraction from the macabre actions that are taking place on the screen.

After reading several short online biographies of Harvey, it became apparent that significant happenings in her life were conveniently left out in the movie. For example, according to www.telegraph.co.uk, the film doesn't once allude to her full-blown heroin addiction, her two years spent in a rehabilitation clinic in Hawaii, or her death in June, which was reported to be related to a painkiller overdose. However, when the film begins, a disclaimer is offered by bluntly telling the audience the movie is based on a true story – sort of.

Aside from the lack of a few noteworthy moments in Harvey's life, the movie is well-written, something that most action movies can't tout. There are a lot of good one-liners and humorous moments.

Knightley leads the film in her normal foxy fashion while Scott managed to take a spellbinding life story and add some religion, romance, washed up 90210 actors and a funky soundtrack to produce this motion picture.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

New James Bond Actor announced

One of the worst kept secrets in the entertainment industry is no longer a secret.

Daniel Craig, a blue-eyed and blond British actor, has become the new James Bond.

Sony Pictures on Friday confirmed media reports that Craig will replace Pierce Brosnan as the suave British spy of the silver screen.

Source: www.cnn.com

Moore sets personal record

By Staff reports
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Senior Joseph Moore set the pace for K-State's 17th-place finish Saturday at the Chile Pepper Invitational in Fayetteville, Ark., with a personal-record time for a 10,000-meter race.

Moore crossed the line with a time of 30 minutes, 56.9 seconds, the 16th-fastest 10K time in K-State history.

Moore was followed by freshman Alex Umberger, who finished 82nd with a time of 31:44.9.

Trailing Moore and Umberger were Christian Smith (107), Matt Swedlund (139), Ben Delay (153), Hiral Bhakta (155) and Casey Johnson (163).

With many of the best cross country teams in the nation in attendance, the Chile Pepper meet gave the men's squad an opportunity to gauge where it fits amongst top-notch talent.

The Wildcats found themselves right in the middle, thanks to the running of Moore and Umberger.

Three other Big 12 Conference foes were in attendance Saturday, giving the Cats a sneak peak at what lies ahead for the Big 12 Championships. Texas Tech and Nebraska beat the Wildcats, while K-State finished ahead of Baylor, which finished 20th.

The injury-battered women's team had a tougher time. Led by freshman Jana Gwinn in 144th place, the K-State women finished 27th in a 38-team field.

Gwinn was followed by Stephanie Lavin (165), Morgan Bonds (180), Emily Dittemore (189), Eleanor Burton (227) and Breanna Yost (233).

The Wildcats have a week off before the Big 12 Championships, which are Oct. 28, in Waco, Texas.

K-State women's finishers

1. Jana Gwinn (144)	23:40.4
2. Stephanie Lavin (165)	24:03.2
3. Morgan Bonds (180)	24:18.8
4. Emily Dittemore (189)	24:34.8
5. Eleanor Burton (227)	25:28.9
6. Breana Yost (233)	25:35.4

K-State men's finishers

1. Joe Moore (53)	30:56.9
2. Alex Umberger (82)	31:44.9
3. Christian Smith (107)	32:09.0
4. Matt Swedlund (139)	32:43.0
5. Ben Delay (153)	32:59.9
6. Hiral Bhakta (155)	33:03.8
7. Casey Johnson (163)	33:18.3

FOOTBALL | Tech quarterback, receiver set records

Continued from Page 6

"We just ran a post, Evridge had time and put it on the money, and we were able to score," Nelson said.

The Red Raiders needed less than a minute and a half to score again, as Hodges hooked up with Robert Johnson on a 34-yard touchdown pass that gave Texas Tech a 17-13 lead at halftime.

In the second half, K-State's offense was virtually non-existent, as Texas Tech out scored the Wildcats 42-7 after the break. K-State's only touchdown came off a 98-yard kickoff return from Yamon Figurs.

K-State gained 144 total yards in the second half to Texas Tech's 339, and turned the ball over three times. All three turnovers led to Texas Tech touchdowns

"We just hit a lull," Evridge said of the Wildcats' second half performance. "We've got to step it up; we've got to be more consistent than that. There's not really much you can say about it. They just stepped up and shut us down."

Hodges threw for 346 and four touchdowns in the second half, completing 22-of-33 passes.

"They're an awfully good offensive football team, and Hodges really did a nice job," Snyder said. "Even when we did confuse him a little bit, he still managed to make some plays."

DEFENSE | Red Raiders take advantage of turnovers

Continued from Page 6

they're not covered," safety Marcus Watts said. "With a team like that, you know you have to limit their yardage and not give up too many big plays, and we gave up too many big plays."

The Red Raiders also took advantage of the K-State mistakes they made in the second half, while the Wildcats failed to capitalize.

All three turnovers that the Wildcats relinquished in the half were turned into touchdowns, while Ted Sims' interception of Hodges gave K-State the ball at the Red Raider 35-yard line. The offense went three and out on the play, which was followed by a missed field goal by Jeff Snodgrass.

Texas Tech then promptly went down the field on a four play, 65-yard drive to extend it's lead to 25 points.

"It's a collective thing," Snyder said. "If your offense is going to give that unit four-down territory, and that's almost any place on the field. If they're in the middle of the field all the time, than yes it is probably pretty difficult for anybody to stop."

VOLLEYBALL | K-State benefits from Baylor errors

Continued from Page 6

to refocus following its two-game deficit.

"After (game two), we talked about getting the fire back that we knew we had and just paying attention to details," Spiegelberg said.

Baylor jumped out to a 20-14 lead in game three, but K-State mounted a 16-7 run to win 30-27.

Senior outside hitter Agata Rezende said K-State benefited from playing with more energy in game three.

"It is really hard for us to keep confident because this team is still maturing, but in the third game, I think we brought up our energy," Rezende said.

After K-State controlled game four, winning 30-20 to force a fifth game, Rezende said the Wildcats needed to close out the Bears.

"We learned our lesson from Colorado, and we told ourselves, 'We are not going to do it again. The fifth game is going to be ours,'" Rezende said.

K-State benefited from three Baylor attacking errors to take a 7-3 lead in game five. The team held its four-point advantage at 14-10 when Spiegelberg set junior outside hitter Sandy Werner for a kill to win the match.

"We knew we needed to put one ball away," Spiegelberg said.

"(Werner) had been hitting well all game, and I knew she would put it down for me."

Werner led K-State with 18 kills, while Rezende added 15. Spiegelberg finished with 47 assists and 10 digs.

K-State won despite lower totals than Baylor in kills, hitting percentage, assists, digs and blocks.

However, the Wildcats had an advantage over Baylor in service aces (12 to 7).

COLUMN | Referees didn't help Wildcats Saturday

Continued from Page 6

the referee, and no flag was thrown.

It wasn't enough that the Wildcats had to battle the No. 1 offense in the country, they also had to fight a war with the guys in the stripes.

EVRIDGE THE MAN AT QB

K-State has a star in the making at quarterback.

Redshirt-freshman Allan Evridge started his first game as a Wildcat, the first freshman to start at quarterback in the Bill Snyder era.

Evridge finished the day with 192 yards on 14-of-25 passing and added another 64 yards rushing.

Evridge is showing the leadership, character, poise and athleticism K-State needs from its quarterback, and he will be very good, very soon.

He will make rookie mistakes, but he is learning, and he will only get better.

If he keeps improving, learning and growing as a quarterback, Evridge could lead K-State to great things in the coming years, if not sooner.

Michael Ashford is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu,

Advertise Kansas State Collegian Advertising 118 Kedzie • 532-6560
in the Kansas State Collegian

UNIVERSITY DISTINGUISHED LECTURE
"Academic Advising is Teaching: A Campus-wide Responsibility"
Tues., Oct. 18, 2005, 1:30 p.m., K-State Alumni Center

Dr. Nancy King, Vice President, Kennesaw State University, will present "Academic Advising is Teaching: A Campus-wide Responsibility." This lecture is sponsored by the University Distinguished Lecture Series, KSU College of Education, KSU Academic Advising Council, the National Academic Advising Association (NACADA), and the KSU Student Affairs Graduate Association (SAGA).

"Dr. Nancy King is an internationally renowned expert in the field of academic advising and student persistence to graduation. As a tenured faculty member and administrator, Dr. King brings the unique perspective of a faculty member from a state university as well as a wealth of experience working directly with an advising model like K-State's. This model blends the efforts of both professional advisors and faculty advisors to provide the highest quality learning experiences for students throughout their higher education."—Dr. Michael Holen, Dean, College of Education

Royal Thai Cuisine
One of the best quality restaurants in town
Beautiful Decor and Friendly Service
Very peaceful & relaxing atmosphere
Variety of Food with many choices of: meat, seafood, tofu, and fresh veggies at affordable prices.
Fast Service, All main dishes served with free tasty soup of the day and Crab Rangoon that everyone loves!
Hours: 11am-10pm, 7 days a week
3003 Anderson Ave. (in plaza west, by Alco)
539-0399

"Confronting the Obesity Epidemic: Exercise and Nutrition versus Drugs"
An Invited Presentation by:
Dr. Jack H. Wilmore, PhD
Distinguished Professor, Department of Health and Kinesiology, Texas A&M University-Retired
Wednesday, October 19th
1:30 p.m.
Alumni Center Ballroom
1720 Alumni Center

Dr. Jack Wilmore who has authored or co-authored over 300 refereed papers and was president of the American College of Sports Medicine from 1978 to 1979 will be addressing the topic of obesity in this lecture. Dr. Wilmore has served on the editorial board of journals ranging from the International Journal of Obesity to Medicine and Science in Sports and Exercise. He has also been a member of the Science Advisory Board for Runner's World Magazine, a member of the Board of Director's for the National Institute for Fitness and Health, and is currently a member of the North American Society for the Study of Obesity. Dr. Wilmore is an internationally recognized scientist and scholar, who will share his insights on the obesity issue in the address.

Sponsored by:
The Kinesiology Student Association
In affiliation with the Community Health Institute and the Kinesiology Department at Kansas State University

ATTENTION STUDENTS!!!
The KSU Controllers Office is pleased to announce a new tuition billing method.
Beginning October 15, 2005 you will have access to your monthly statement online through a link from your KATS account.
A notification of the availability of each monthly bill will be sent to your KSU e-mail account.
For your convenience we will continue to send paper bills for the next several months.
For additional information please visit the Cashier Website at HYPERLINK "http://www.ksu.edu/pay" www.ksu.edu/pay, or you may visit our office at 212 Anderson Hall.

Manhattan authors' book featured at arts center

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Just in time for the Halloween season, four authors shared excerpts from their book "Trespassing Time: Ghost Stories From the Prairie," Sunday night with the audience at Manhattan Arts Center.

The authors decided to do a benefit for the center because they said they felt it was tradition to tell the stories.

"It is a long, time-honored tradition of ghost stories to be told," author Linda Madl said.

She, along with authors Barbara J. Baldwin, Jerri Garretson and Sheri L. McGathy, donated all proceeds from the event back to the center.

Their book was released in July 2005 and has 16 fictional stories.

Yet, some of the stories are loosely based on real ghost stories and places here in Manhattan.

The authors said the locations of the stories were places all Manhattan citizens would recognize, but details have been changed to make the stories more generic.

The basis for these stories come from events that happened on the prairie and here in Manhattan, such as the city underneath the lake that was flooded after the dam was built and the Irish immigrants who settled in Kansas.

"As soon as people hear we're writing a book about ghost stories," Madl said. "They have their own stories to tell."

The book's ghost stories encompass ghosts of all types – ghosts who don't know they are dead, ghosts who are still crossing over and even a story from a ghost's point-of-view.

Each author said she had a different idea as to why ghosts are on Earth, but all agreed that ghosts exist.

"I discovered while I was writing," McGathy said, "that I don't like writing scary stories because I scare myself."

The book is available at Hastings, Claflin Books and Copies and online from www.Amazon.com and www.Barnesandnoble.com.

Cheerful baker

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Scraping the excess batter from the mixer, Ethanni Stalnaker, junior in agricultural economics, and Lisa Steffens, freshman in family studies and human services, make chocolate chip cookies during the cookie baking session at Shellenberger Hall. The session was part of the Collegiate 4-H North Central Regional Conference Oct. 14 -16.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

120 For Rent- Houses

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM, Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)537-2323.

FOR RENT: one-bedroom, private bathroom, washer/ dryer, all appliances, fenced yard, private parking. $300/ month and split utilities. Water/ trash/ sewage paid. Pet friendly. (316)253-5549.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted: $295/ month plus one-half utilities. Close to campus. Non-smoking. Available immediately. Call (785)229-5572.

ROOMMATE NEEDED: Three blocks east of campus. (785)556-0098.

ROOMMATE WANTED in January, two-bedroom apartment. Walking distance. Excellent condition. Central air, two bath, washer/ dryer, balcony. (785)341-7358.

ROOMMATE WANTED. $450 a month. One-half utilities, big house, fenced yard. 1024 Houston. Call Scott (785)341-5153.

ROOMMATE wanted. House available now through May. Shared bathroom. By Mercy Hospital, KSU football stadium. Call (913)707-5249.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

WANTED: MALE or female roommates for three-bedroom. Fun, outgoing, clean and classy. (785)799-4202.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

NOW LEASING

• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillinvestandrental.com

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300, (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

DESPERATE MOM/ office manager needs help organizing , sorting, filing in home and office. Flexible hours for hardworking students who like to clean and organize. $6/ hour. Call Chris (785)456-5835.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

INTERNET WORK! $8.75-$38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

310 Help Wanted

FAST PACED, upbeat office that is loosing a senior and looking for new student help. Position will officially start after finals, however, ideal candidate will begin learning the ropes over the next few months. This is great professional experience for a journalism or marketing student. Help promote K-State's Distance Education Programs while gaining real life experience. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with ability to work during the summer semesters and winter breaks as well. The individual who fills this position will manage information and promote knowledge of it by means of various media. Duties include: writing content/ copy, creating desktop publications, managing online course databases, writing press releases, conducting interviews, etc. This position works with three full-time communication professionals and three part-time student communication specialists. Design experience a plus. Our on campus office operates Monday- Friday, 8:00am- 5:00pm and is eager to work around your schedule. Please apply in person at 23 College Court Building, Public Information Office, Division of Continuing Education (785)532-5888.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

KITCHEN HELP needed, day and evening shifts. Apply online at kiteslive.com. Click on applications in top right hand corner.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

This SPOT is reserved just for you. COLLEGIAN 532-6560

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1997 FORD Aspire. Five-speed, four-door. 40 miles per gallon. 59,000 actual miles. $2000 firm. 1996 Ford Taurus, automatic. $1800. (785)226-1976.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

EARN YOUR M.D. degree in warm tropical Belize! Contact:InterAmerican School of Medical Sciences. 877-DOC-STUDY or on the web at www.interamerican-school.com

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN 539-6560 ADVERTISE.

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND REAL ESTATE PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

ONE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE December or January. $335 to $350. (785)587-0399.

LEE CREST Apartment within one block from campus. One and two-bedrooms, private parking, on site laundries, water/ trash paid. Electric central heat/ air. $455 and $490. (785)539-7961.

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

McDonald's Crew Positions

CREW POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Full time and part time
Above average pay
Flexible schedule
Hiring for ALL shifts, including 3rd Shift (11p – 7a)
Uniforms provided
Reduced meals
Advancement opportunities

Come join the team at McDonald's.
Please apply in person at
MANHATTAN: 816 N 3rd Street
or 1011 Westloop Place
JUNCTION CITY: I-70 & Washington Street
or 416 W 6th Street

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our sales representatives by calling...
532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING

Give us your opinion.
Campus Fourum: 395-4444

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Patrons watch as balloon technicians air up a hot air balloon Saturday evening as a part of the OZtoberfest event in Wamego, Kan.

OZ FEST | Munchkin coroner signs death certificate of Witch

Continued from Page 1

Oz Museum gift shop.

She said the girl who played his part in the weekend's performances is the daughter of the deputy coroner of Shawnee County. He helped arrange for Raabe to be named an honorary coroner for the county and obtained an actual Kansas death certificate for the Wicked Witch of the East, Coots said.

Raabe signed it Friday, and it is on display in the museum.

One part of the certificate reads,: "Was disease or injury in any way related to occupation of deceased?" It answers, "Yes," and specifies the "hazard of broomstick flying."

The museum came to Wamego because of Todd Machin, to whom its collection belongs, Coots said. She said Machin, who grew up in Wamego, put the collection on temporary display in the nearby Columbian Theatre in 1995.

"It's considered one of the broadest Wizard of Oz collections in existence," Coots said.

The exhibit gathered enough attention, so that eight years later, the Oz Museum opened.

The original slippers that Judy Garland wore while playing Dorothy in the film were meant to be on display in Wamego for the weekend, but they were stolen from the Judy Garland museum in August, Coots said.

Outside the museum, there were exhibits and entertainment for all ages. On one side of the street, for example, was "Totos Beer Garden" (sic) for the 21-and-older crowd.

The other side of the street featured an area with a large, inflated playground for small children to bounce their way through. Its name?

"Munchkinland."

Jeff Sipes of St. Marys, Kan., brought his two sons Gavin and Evan on Saturday and once again on Sunday to enjoy the festivities. He approved of his kids enjoying the playground.

"They were so tired they couldn't see straight," he said.

BAND | Festival helps with recruiting

Continued form Page 1

"We've had some real good representation from the state of Kansas," he said. "There's just some outstanding groups."

After each performance, David Montgomery, director of the Bronco Marching Band at Western Michigan University, gave a video critique to the band in Brandeberry Indoor Complex.

"It's one of the only clinics in the country where the kids get immediate feedback," Pursell said.

Before the closing ceremony the marching band performed Bohemian Rhapsody, the routine it did at K-State's Oct. 8 football game against the University of Kansas.

"We want to present to the kids a solid show," Pursell said.

In addition to performing, about half of K-State's roughly 270-member marching band worked at the festival pushing equipment, serving as guides and helping with clinics.

Bands paid $150 to participate in the festival without a clinic and $250 to participate and attend a clinic. The majority of the entry and gate fees went to paying the bills for the event, Pursell said, but it may net a couple thousand dollars in profit, which will go back into the marching band.

"It's our way of doing a service to our music education colleagues," he said.

Putting on the festival is a lot of work, Pursell said, but it's a win-win situation because it works as a recruiting event, too.

"It gives the kids an opportunity to see us," he said. "It helps us get our name out. Sometimes this is the event that sways them our way."

Kansas State Collegian Advertising 532-6560
The Collegian is available at
112 locations near you.

WARRANTS | RCPD to serve outstanding warrants Thursday

Continued from Page 1

Caffey said the court was asked to work alongside with the Riley County Police Department's Oct. 20 "Warrants Day" project, which is a periodic effort RCPD uses to reduce the number of unserved outstanding warrants.

"On Thursday Oct. 20, several officers from the RCPD and surrounding agencies will be serving numerous outstanding warrants in Manhattan and Riley County," a RCPD release stated.

People with outstanding warrants should handle paperwork at the Manhattan Municipal Court, 610 Colorado St.

To handle warrants,
Go to Manhattan Municipal Court
Hours: 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m., Monday through Thursday
Where: 610 Colorado St.
587-2450

Riley County Police, Warrants section
537-2112, ext. 2201

Warrants will remain active until the ticket and fees are paid. Unpaid warrants can lead to an arrest.

For additional information, people are encouraged look at the RCPD Web site or to contact RCPD warrants section at 537-2112, ext. 2201.

dependable, quality-service
YOU are always #1 with us!
Claflin Books and Copies

YOUR AD HERE!
Collegian Advertising
118 Kedzie
532-6560

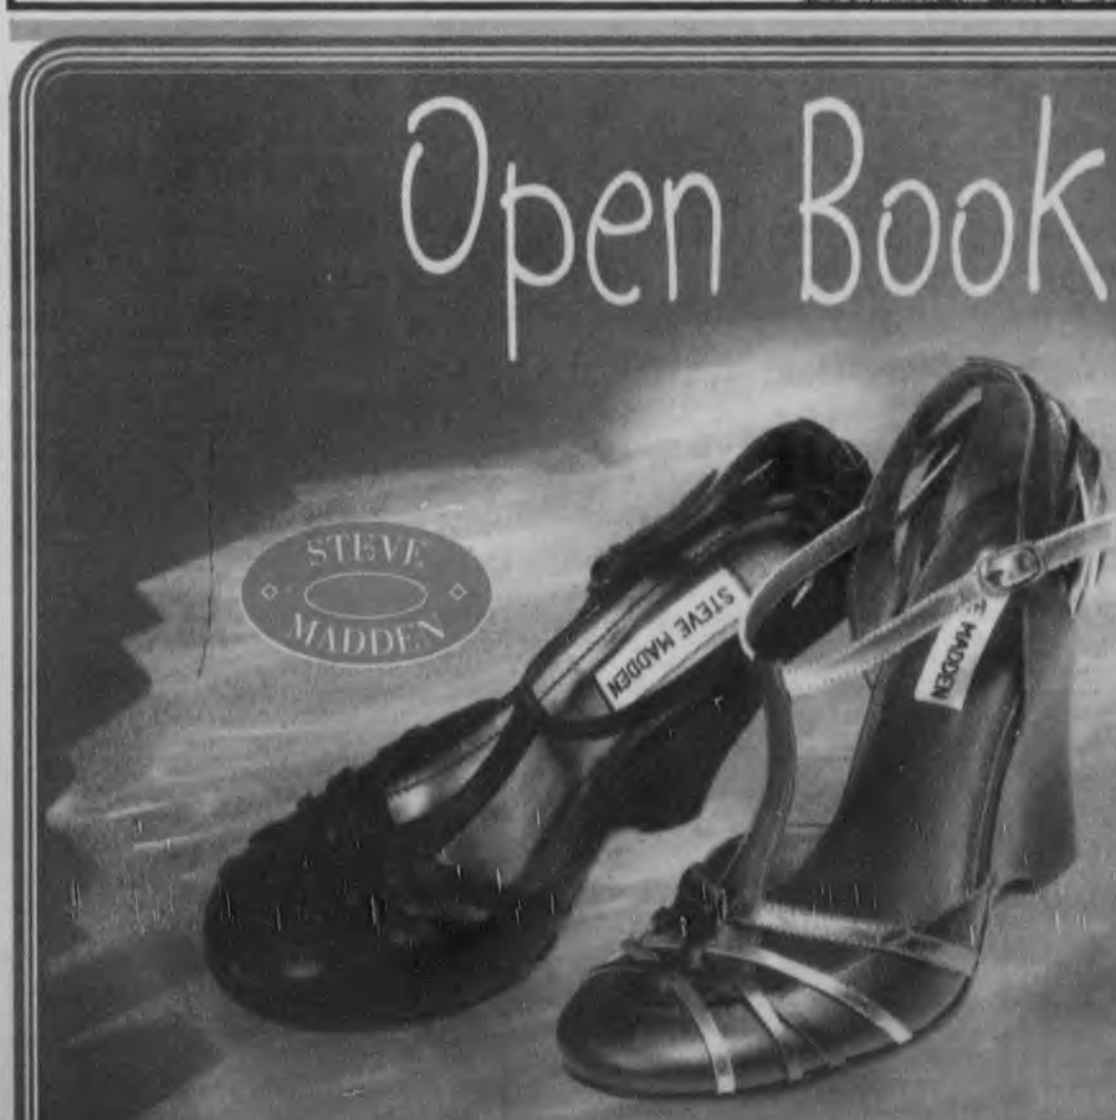
Everything a Wildcat should know is included in the Student Life Handbook section.
Kansas State University
CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
2005-2006
Available Now
for purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

ADVERTISE HERE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
Call • 532-6560

HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
Free Delivery: 537-0886
Fax: 539-9111
Hours: Sun. - Wed.. 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
SPEND OVER $25 AND GET A FREE T-SHIRT!!

WANTED
Website Project Director
•Applications on win.ksu.edu or www.ksu.edu/sga
•Applications due Tuesday Oct. 18, 4p.m.-OSAS Office
•Interviews Wednesday, Oct. 14
Questions? Tyson Moore: jtmoore@ksu.edu
Michael Burns: mburns@ksu.edu
Wanna make $6500?

KSU THEATRE PRESENTS:



DAVID MAMET'S
OLEANNA
WHATEVER SIDE YOU TAKE, YOU'RE WRONG
October 13-15 and 19-22
8:00 p.m. Nichols Theatre
Box Office
Now to 5:00 p.m. Phone: 532-6428
$11.50 General & $7.50 Student/Senior

Monday Night Football
25¢ JUMBO WINGS
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON
Chance to win a Budweiser tool box refrigerator and other prizes!
$2 BIG BEERS

Open Book

Steve Madden
"Potent" $79
Dillard's
Town Center
For Your Convenience We Accept Your Dillard's Charge, Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover, Carte Blanche, Or Diner's Club Card.
SHOP MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY 10 A.M. - 9 P.M.; SUNDAY 12 NOON - 6 P.M.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Tuesday, October 18, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 42

INSIDE

Page, Page 5

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

Students join protest for sweatshop workers' rights

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"We should have a unified voice on campus regarding workers' rights."

Jeff Smith
SENIOR IN POLITICAL SCIENCE

K-State joined 40 other colleges and universities nationwide in a protest on Monday against collegiate apparel produced in sweatshops.

In Bosco Student Plaza, the Kansas State Alliance for Peace and Justice encouraged students to donate old K-State T-shirts that will be tied together and to sign a petition on purple fabric.

A message will be painted on the T-shirts and displayed in an unknown location after the Kansas State Alliance for Peace and Justice's Nov. 3 meeting with Tami Breymeyer, associate director of K-State licensing.

Candi Dunaway, senior in psychology, said the Alliance for Peace and Justice joined the campaign to ensure workers' rights in factories.

"It's sort of a silent protest," she said. "We want it to be as peaceful as possible."

United Students Against Sweatshops is an international network of activists that developed a plan for colleges and universities to require licensees, such as Nike, to produce collegiate apparel at "sweat-free" factories.

According to its Web site, USAS defines "sweat-free" as factories in which workers earn a living wage and have the right to organize.

Students at 40 colleges and universities are working to have their schools accept responsibility for improved wages and working conditions in factories that produce collegiate apparel.

Dunaway said the campaign will last as long as needed until K-State reaches an agreement.

"We are hoping to see progress made by the end of the school year," she said.

Megan Challender, senior in political science, said she signed the petition to encourage the university to think about its decisions in purchasing collegiate apparel.

"I think the university should adopt more human rights-friendly policies," she said.

Jeff Smith, senior in political science, said he agreed.

"We should have a unified voice on campus regarding workers' rights," he said.

Purple T-shirt Drive
When: 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. today
Where: Bosco Student Plaza
How much: free

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Red Smith, junior in architecture, signs his name on a sheet on a table in the Bosco Student Plaza Monday afternoon. The protest involves students petitioning K-State apparel that is suspected to be made in sweatshops. The Purple T-shirt Drive continues today and students have the opportunity to turn in any K-State clothes they have.

Students must assess illness severity

By Ben Spicer
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

As the semester heads into the winter months, students who become sick must decide whether they have the common cold or something more serious.

Karen Armbrust, administrator for Mosier and Mosier Family Physicians, 2900 Amherst Ave., said when determining whether or not to see a doctor it is best to call and speak to a professional.

"Illness is something that has a lot of variables. To say that this time you should go in and see a doctor, while another time you choose not to, is making the illness too general," she said. "Insurance companies often have nurses that you can call if you have questions and they can assess the illness based on the symptoms told."

Students said they often evaluate their health on how able they are to do daily chores.

Ryan Rush, freshman in pre-journalism and mass communications, said he has not been sick this semester.

"If I can't walk too well, or I'm feeling a little nauseous, that's when I decide that I don't go to class," he said.

Rush added the keys signal of the severity of his illness would be clear symptoms like extreme vomiting.

Many students have fears of missing classes for the reason that the work will pile up in their absence.

Abby Windhorst, freshman in biology, said she would have to be pretty sick to miss a class.

"I'm always nervous about missing classes," she said. "It would have to be something really disgusting and gross to make me stay home."

Like many students, Windhorst attempts to get by with over-the-counter medications and skipping the physician, unless the illness is really extreme.

Matt McClanahan, junior in business administration pre-professional, said he doesn't like doctors and does what he can to avoid them.

"The occasion would have to be really bad, and it would have to be where I couldn't get out of bed for numerous days," he said.

Nutritional dilemma

Exercise, low-calorie diet best to lose weight

Low-fat facts

■ If a product is fat-free:
-There are less than five calories per labeled serving.
-There are less than 0.5 grams of total fat per labeled serving.
-There are less than 0.5 grams of saturated fat per labeled serving.

■ If a product is low fat:
-There are 40 calories or less per labeled serving.
-There are three grams of fat or less per labeled serving.
-There is 15 percent less calories from saturated fat.

■ If a product is reduced or less fat:
-There are 25 percent fewer calories per reference amount.
-There are 25 percent fewer fat grams per reference amount.
-There are 25 percent less saturated fat per reference amount.

Source: www.cfsan.fda.gov

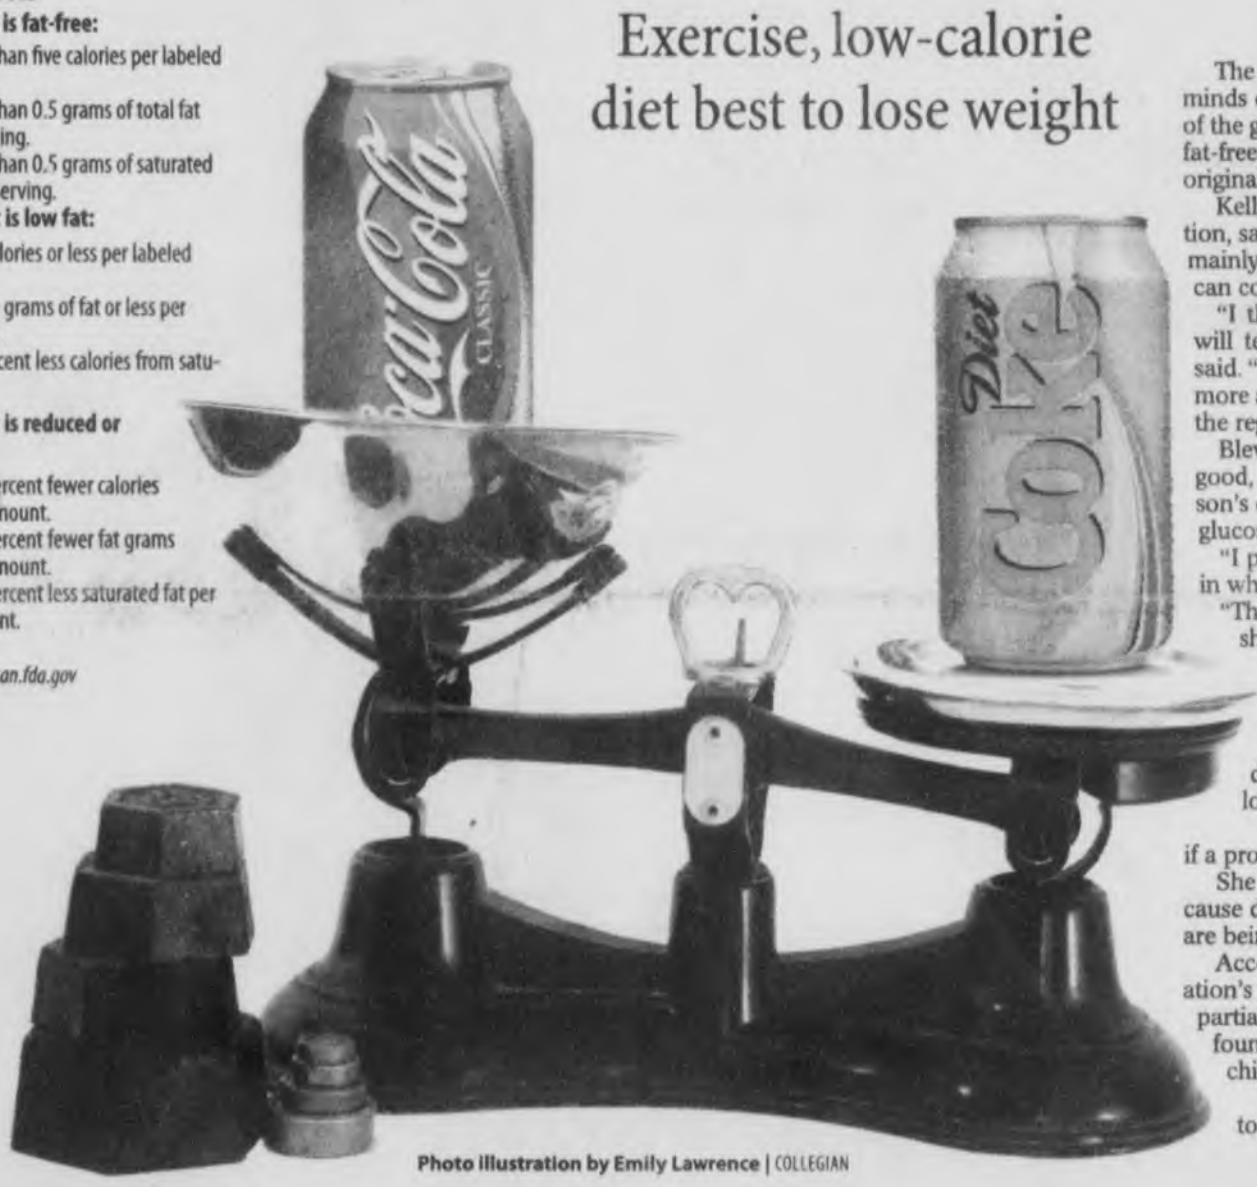

Photo illustration by Emily Lawrence | COLLEGIAN

By Eileen Laux
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The word "diet" can frequently echo in the minds of college students as they sit in the isle of the grocery store pondering whether light or fat-free food will have the same flavor as the original fat-filled product.

Kelly Blevins, senior in public health nutrition, said the terms "low fat" and "fat free" are mainly related to a percentage of calories that can come from fat.

"I think the 'reduced fat' and 'light' foods will tend to make you feel not as full," she said. "So really you will have a tendency to eat more and things will balance out if you choose the regular form of the product."

Blevins said low carbohydrate foods are good, but taking carbohydrates out of a person's diet is bad. The brain tends to prefer the glucose that comes from carbs.

"I personally prefer variety and moderation in what I eat," she said.

"There are health concerns that everyone should look out for when choosing foods to eat, but there shouldn't be constant worrying about dieting."

She said by cutting back on calories and keeping up some activities, students would still see some sort of weight loss.

However, there would be much more if a proper diet was mixed with exercise.

She said many products are "low fat" because different kinds of fats, such as trans fats, are being used.

According to the American Dietetic Association's Web site, www.eatright.org, trans fat is partially hydrogenated oil. These fats may be found in cookies, crackers, muffins, potato chips and stick margarine.

"Since trans fats have been shown to have a similar effect on the body as

See DIET Page 8

Lafene, Mercy Health Center adopt smoke-free policy

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Smokers can enjoy their last cigarette puffs at Lafene Health Center and Mercy Health Center.

After a recent vote by a Mercy medical practitioners board, the area health center campuses will remain smoke free as of January 2006.

Dr. Joe Philipp, chief medical officer at Mercy Regional Health Center, said the vote boiled down toward promoting a healthier campus life.

"Some of our medical staff was concerned about our medical emergency rooms, where people with health problems were walking through hospital (areas) that permitted smoking," Philipp said. "Our plan is to try to be tobacco free. Everyone thinks of hospitals as smoke-free areas, involving their medical needs."

Until January, Lafene and Mercy will restrict tobacco users to smoke outside the facilities. As part of a K-State policy, smokers must be 30 feet away from the building.

However, after January, people will not be able to smoke on any property at Lafene or Mercy, including parking lots, Philipp said.

"We're not in a huge stop smoking campaign, but this was a hospital board decision made by a majority of medical staff," Philipp said.

However, local medical staff aren't the only ones concerned about area smoking.

Danielle Butler, sophomore in business administration pre-professional and president of Students for Clean Air Manhattan, said she, along with members of her student group, believe smoking in Manhattan has become a problem.

"It's all really about public health, and people being able to make the choice to affect their own health, instead of when they are going out to dinner and being forced to breathe in all the toxins and everything," Butler said.

While some may interpret the hospital and S.C.A.M. campaigns as anti-smoking, Butler said she personally believes forcing smoke upon others is wrong, not the act of smoking alone.

People who share a workplace with those who do smoke are 30 times more likely to contract a smoke-related health problem, Butler said.

According to the American Lung Association, since 1999, more than 70 percent of the U.S. workforce has worked under a smoke-free policy.

"Workplace productivity was increased and absenteeism was decreased among former smokers compared with current smokers," an A.L.A. report stated.

In regards to the new hospital policy, Butler said it's a good stepping stone for the city.

"One of the things that bugs me the most is going to the doctors' office and seeing doctors and nurses smoking, when (the) people they are helping have smoking diseases," she said.

Philipp said since the board adopted the policy, people have wondered how receptive the community will be toward enforcing it.

"We realize that it is just changing attitude, and it may take some time to enforce it," he said. "Mainly, though, we're depending on courtesy and diplomacy."

Facts about smoking

■ Secondhand smoke has been classified by the Environmental Protection Agency as a known cause of cancer in humans.
■ Secondhand smoke causes approximately 3,000 lung cancer deaths and 35,000 heart disease deaths in adult nonsmokers in the U.S. each year.
■ A study found that nonsmokers exposed to environmental smoke were 25 percent more likely to have coronary heart diseases compared to nonsmokers not exposed to smoke.
■ Nonsmokers exposed to secondhand smoke at work are at increased risk for adverse health effects.
■ Levels of environmental tobacco smoke in restaurants and bars are found to be two to five times higher than in residences with smokers and two to six times higher than in office workplaces.

For more details about secondhand smoke, visit the American Lung Association Web site at www.lungusa.org.

Today
High 85
Low 58

Wednesday
High 75
Low 56

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Learning English
Employees at Tony's Pizza in Salina are getting a chance to learn English in a six-level English as a Second Language program. About 28 completed the program this fall and 96 employees have graduated since the program started. Company officials estimate 300 of the 1,800 Tony's employees speak a language other than English.

Times Report incorrect
Information in New York Times Reporter Judith Miller's interview with I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby is incorrect. The report stated Dick Cheney's top aide told her the wife of Joseph Wilson worked for CIA's Weapons Intelligence, Nonproliferation and Arms Control Unit. The incorrect information is leading prosecutors to its original source.

Westar rates rise
Westar Energy Inc. might increase its annual rates by at least $84 million to continue recovering from financial problems associated with ex-CEO David Wittig's tenure. The rates would increase by 9 percent for its 352,000 customers in its northern region and 6 percent for its 303,000 customers in the southern region.

DON'T FORGET

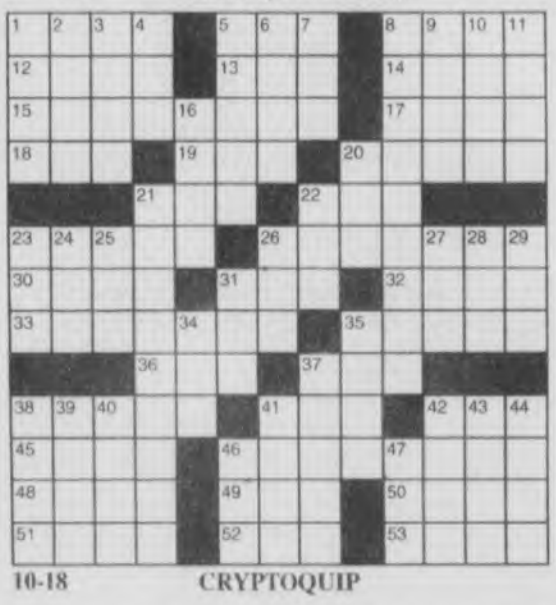
Ryozo Kato will speak in a Landon Lecture at 2 p.m. today in McCain Auditorium.

The Peace Corps will have an informational meeting from 7 to 8:30 tonight in the K-State Union Stateroom.

K-State Idol auditions will be at 8 tonight in the Big 12 Room in the K-State Student Union.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Labyrinth option
5 Aviate
8 Roe provider
12 Wind instrument
13 Appomattox VIP
14 Stereo counterpart
15 Reject
17 Car
18 Pigs' digs
19 Scepter
20 Curtain fabric
21 Pitch
22 Erstwhile acorn
23 Tote
26 Halves of weekends
30 Cruising
31 Make marginalia
32 Toast topper
33 Coven members
35 Used a broom
36 Do-it-yourselfer's buy
37 "— voyage!"
38 Playground fave
41 Menagerie
42 Omega preceder
45 Texas city
46 Torch
48 Acknowledge
49 Bullring bravo
50 Algerian seaport
51 "Death in Venice" author
52 Abbott or Collyer
53 Obtains

DOWN
1 Cookware
2 Touch
3 Conservative
4 Coop dweller
5 Elevator stop
6 Smutty
7 Japanese money
8 WWE event
9 Session with a shrink
10 Con
11 Destine to failure
16 Wagon
20 — Diego
21 Follow a paper trail
22 Away
23 Cornfield call
24 "— was saying, ..."
25 On pension (Abbr.)
26 "Mayday!"
27 Brewery output
28 "Uh-huh"
29 Drunkard
31 Lustrous black
34 Waste not a moment
35 Any day now
37 Ennui-laden
38 Took to the pool
39 Stromboli spillage
40 PC picture
41 South African tribe
42 Skin opening
43 Swing at a fly
44 Hostels
46 Ray's longtime partner
47 Follow relentlessly

Solution time: 21 mins.

O	R	B			A	C	E		F	E	A	R
T	I	L	T		B	O	X		R	O	M	E
I	G	O	R		E	M	T		O	N	Y	X
C	A	C	A	O		B	R	A	N
			I	N	S		A	N	T	L	E	R
V	A	R	L	E	T	S		A	B	I	D	E
A	R	A	B		Y	E	S		U	S	E	S
S	T	Y	L	E		W	A	R	R	A	N	T
E	S	S	A	Y	S		D	O	N
			Z	E	A	L		B	E	Z	O	S
I	S	L	E		Y	E	N		R	O	L	E
C	H	A	R		S	A	O		S	O	D	A
Y	E	W	S		O	F	T		M	E	N

Yesterday's answer 10-18

10-18 CRYPTOQUIP

J W D E U Y D E N O O D B F D G C Z E Z J C D Z L H B D D J D P V H W L L P W E F D I D D Z Z E Y D C I N V D U N E L P O U D J C E N O

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF ICY PRECIPITATION WERE FALLING ON A PRESIDENT, WOULD YOU SING "HAIL TO THE CHIEF?"

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: D equals E

STREET TALK

Will the K-State football team win another game this season?

Swisher

"I hope so. I'm sure we will win a few more."

Jason Swisher
SENIOR IN MANAGEMENT

Saindon

"I absolutely have no clue about football."

Travina Saindon
SENIOR IN ARCHITECTURE

Jensen

"Well, I'm not a big football fan, but I would say at least one more."

Jimmy Jensen
SOPHOMORE IN PRE-PROFESSIONAL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Johnson

"I really hope so."

Latoyia Johnson
FRESHMAN IN NUTRITIONAL SCIENCES

Williams

"Yeah, I think they will win some more games. They've got good players on their team."

Reginald Williams
CUSTODIAL SPECIALIST

Evans

"Yes, it would be sad to say no."

Cindy Evans
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Wilson

"I wouldn't be a good judge of that. I don't go to any of the games. I hear they have a good chance though."

Meg Wilson
FRESHMAN IN OPEN-OPTION

Parker

"I believe they will, it just depends on how well the defense plays and how well they stop the rush."

Garrett Parker
FRESHMAN IN PRE-PROFESSIONAL ARCHITECTURAL ENGINEERING

The planner
Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A topic research class will be from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. today in Hale 408.
- The Public Relations Student Society will meet at 7:30 tonight in Kedzie 105.
- HIPE will meet at 5 tonight in the Cat's Pause Lounge.
- The College of Business Council will meet at 8:30 tonight in Calvin 202.
- Powercat Toastmasters will meet at 5:30 tonight in Durland 1029. The group meets every Tuesday.
- The Up 'Til Dawn letter-writing party will be from 7 to 10 tonight in the Union Ballroom.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.sku.edu

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

The blotter
Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Friday, Oct. 14

- Stephanie Reed, Junction City, was arrested at 10:20 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $750.
- Jeffrey Pollitt, 1510 Pierre St., was arrested at noon for possession of opiates or narcotics. Bond was not set.
- Carl Weisbender, St. George, Kan., was arrested at 1:10 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $120.
- Joel Celestin Jr., Junction City, was arrested at 1:12 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Duane Baughman, 3101 College Ave., was arrested at 1:36 p.m. for theft. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Lionel Dixon, Junction City, was arrested at 2 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $2,500.
- Richard Torres, 1421 Colorado St., was arrested at 2:40 p.m. for possession of opiates or narcotics. Bond was not set.
- Brandon Yonning, 600 Bluemont Ave., was arrested at 2:50 p.m. for two counts of criminal threat. Bond was set at $2,500.
- Shiela Huffman, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 3 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $2,000.
- Shiela Huffman, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 3:24 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $2,000.
- Mekel McAlpine, Junction City, was arrested at 6:15 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was s t at $500.
- Scott Davis, Overland Park, Kan., was arrested at 6:20 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Timothy Flanagan, 3308 Fairman Circle, was arrested at 7:35 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $379.
- John Murphy Jr., 300 N. Fifth St., Apt. 8B, was arrested at 10 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $85.
- Brett Robben, 1632 McCain Lane, was arrested at 11:50 p.m. for unlawful use of a license. Bond was set at $500.

Saturday, Oct. 15

- Bradley Christie, 1919 Platt St., was arrested at 1:56 a.m. for criminal damage to property and obstruction of legal process. Bond was set at $750.
- Petr Hrouda, 1936 Hunting Ave., was arrested at 2 a.m. for obstruction of legal process and disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Aaron Daugherty, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 8:18 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $750.
- Michael Krogh, 2210 Westchester Drive, Apt. 6, was arrested at 10:15 a.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $2,500.
- Junaid Baluch, 3310 Kensington Court, Apt. 1, was arrested at 1:15 for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Carl Privitera III, 1224 Fremont St., was arrested at 5:50 p.m. for purchase and consumption of alcohol and DUI. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Jimmy Niutapuai, 1952 Lincoln Drive, was arrested at 7:40 p.m. for three counts of failure to appear. Bond was set at $880.
- Harry Brelsford III, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 11:50 p.m. for battery, criminal use of a weapon and purchase and consumption of alcohol. Bond was set at $2,000.

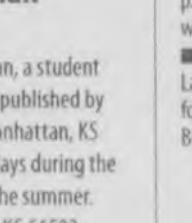
Sunday, Oct. 16

- Alma Williams, 730 Allen Road, Apt. 48, was arrested at 1:11 a.m. for battery. Bond was set at $500.
- Marcus Simmons, 730 Allen Road, Lot 48, was arrested at 1:20 a.m. for battery. Bond was set at $500.
- Joshua Connet, 2421 Wilmar Drive, was arrested at 1:53 a.m. for battery, burglary and witness intimidation. Bond was set at $2,000.
- Matthew Ball, 2513 Candle Crest Circle, was arrested at 3:15 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $1,500.
- John Rychlock, 2106 Oak St., was arrested at 10:08 a.m. for sexual battery. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Diontey Moore, 617 Bertrand St., was arrested at 10:45 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,500.
- James Pendergast, 1010 Bluemont Ave., Apt. 4, was arrested at 1:40 p.m. for battery and witness intimidation. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Christopher Pritchard, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 6 p.m. for two counts of taxation of tobacco. Bond was set at $170.

Monday, Oct. 17

- Denail Carter, 527 Yuma St., was arrested at 3 a.m. for obstruction of legal process, driving with a suspended license and DUI. Bond was set at $1,500.

TAKE A STUDY BREAK
Read the Collegian



dependable, quality service
✓ We can print from your Zip, CD-Rom, or USB flash drive.
Claflin Books and Copies

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

www.kstatecollegian.com

Rent 1 Movie or Video Game
Get 1 ½ Off
Exp. 10-31-05 • Must have this coupon
Digital Shelf
•776-6959•
706 N 11th
•539-3332•
3332 Kimball
•532-6583•
Student Union Bookstore

A reminder about individual health insurance.
A "What looks good to you?" reminder.
A Health Savings Account combined with a High Deductible Health Plan from American Family may lower your premiums and allow you the freedom to decide how and where to spend your health care dollars—while the dollars you don't spend accumulate tax-free. To learn more, call your American Family agent today. So you can check health insurance off your list, and off your mind.
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE

Tim Engle Agency Inc
3320 Anderson Ave
(785) 539-9200 Bus
Manhattan, KS 66503
tengle@amfam.com

STUDENT PHOTO CONTEST
upc 50
Current K-State Students ENTER NOW!
you are invited to participate
Winners will be displayed in the Kemper Art Gallery.
ENTRIES DUE:
OCTOBER 27, 2005
Visit the UPC Office
3rd floor • K-State Student Union for more information contact
UPC at 532-6571
www.ksu.edu/upc

2005 K-State Basketball JAMBOREE VILLE
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21ST, 9:30PM
featuring the K-State Men and Women's Basketball Teams
aggieville
also performing live, RUSKABANK!

Cutting a slice of apple pie, Lauren Smith, junior in agronomy, prepares the dessert for her team's meal at the Beef Cookoff. The cookoff winners were judged on a place setting category as well as taste testing. The teams were composed of members of Sigma Alpha professional sorority and Collegiate Cattlewomen.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Beef stew with cornbread wins cookoff

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Twenty-eight K-State women in six teams made meals for a panel of judges at the Beef Cookoff Monday night in Weber Hall.

The event, sponsored by the Sigma Alpha Professional Agriculture Sorority and the K-State Collegiate Cattlewomen, named winners in the three categories of place setting, most unique entree and the primary beef competition.

The entries were judged by Michael Burns, student body president and senior in agriculture economics; Janice Swanson, professor and interim head of the Department of Animal Sciences and Industry; and Don Boggs, associate dean of the College of Agriculture.

They spent the evening wearing white aprons bearing the words "Official Taste-Tester" in red letters and eating crackers and drinking water between samplings to "cleanse the palate."

The cookoff was organized by Corineah Godsey, junior in animal science and chair of beef promotions for the Collegiate Cattlewomen. She said the cookoff is expected to become an annual event.

The judges came hungry, knowing they would have to consume a substantial amount of food. Burns said he skipped lunch and dinner before the competition.

The judges joked about how safe the food was throughout the evening.

"They all answered their food safety questions fairly well," Swanson said.

Top award from cookoff

The top prize for the night went to the team that made a beef stew with cornbread. The team's members where Katie Carlgren, senior in animal science; Larissa Noonan, senior in animal science; Julie White, freshman in agricultural communications and journalism; Marnda Johnson, freshman in general agriculture; and Katie Schmidt, senior in interior design.

K-State vet complex learns from other schools

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State's Veterinary Medicine Complex is one of the best in the country, said Dennis Ahlvers, facilities manager for the Veterinary Medicine Complex.

About 10 years ago, Ahlvers spoke with Greg Flippin, University of Missouri-Columbia's College of Veterinary Medicine facilities manager. The two discussed some problems with both of their facilities and planned to visit each other.

"We had no idea how we compared to other schools," Ahlvers said.

Flippin and Ahlvers decided to expand their visitation plan and invited other veterinary facilities managers from around the country to participate.

"We decided to get a list of all vet schools in the U.S. and Canada, and there's 26 of them," Ahlvers said. "Then we decided to meet at Columbia for a long weekend."

Thirteen of the 26 invited schools attended.

Ahlvers said there were no officers or a specific meeting format, but the first meeting went well and became an annual event.

Since the meeting location moves from school to school every year, he said the host school organizes the event to suit its taste.

This year's meeting is at Purdue University, and Ahlvers leaves Wednesday to attend.

"The object of the meetings are to visit with each other and bring up problems that we may be having," Ahlvers said. "We'll then go and look at the problem and discuss until we find a solution. The point is to try and keep from making the same mistake that (another school) has made."

The second annual meeting took place in Gainesville, Fla. Ahlvers said the complex at the University of Florida had a tissue digester, a piece of equipment that disposes of animal carcasses.

"I realized we could possibly buy one someday," he said. "I brought that information back to K-State, and, as a result of that meeting, we are starting to use one here."

The trigger for these meetings was Ahlvers' uncertainty of how K-State's Veterinary Medicine Complex compared to those at other schools. He said he discovered it is actually one of the best.

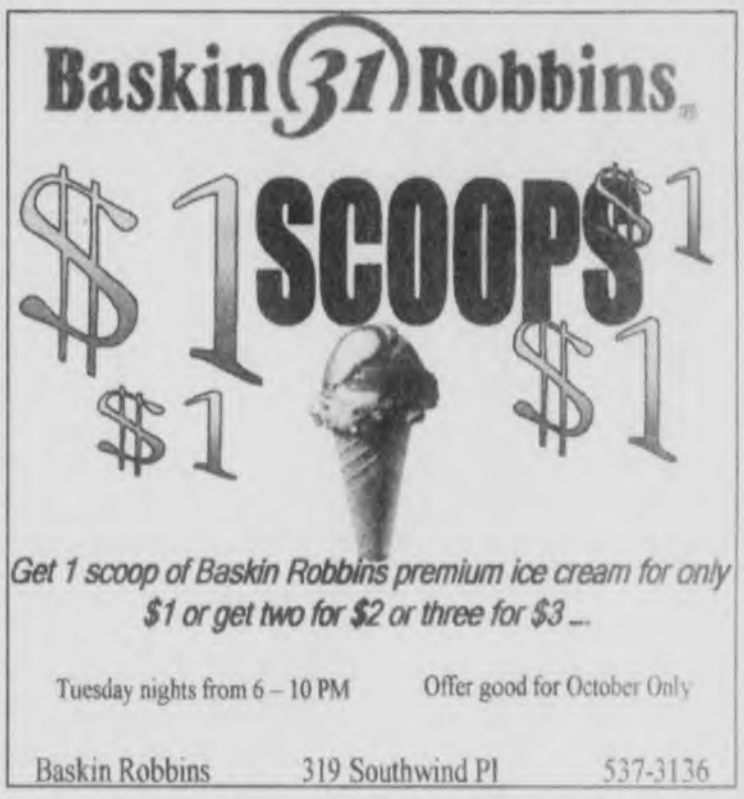
K-State's Veterinary Medicine Complex has the second-highest enrollment and is the second-largest facility with about 500,000 square feet, Ahlvers said.

He said when other schools tour the facility, they are always impressed at how clean it is.

"We're the most sanitary of all other schools I've seen," Ahlvers said. "We also have larger hallways and rooms."

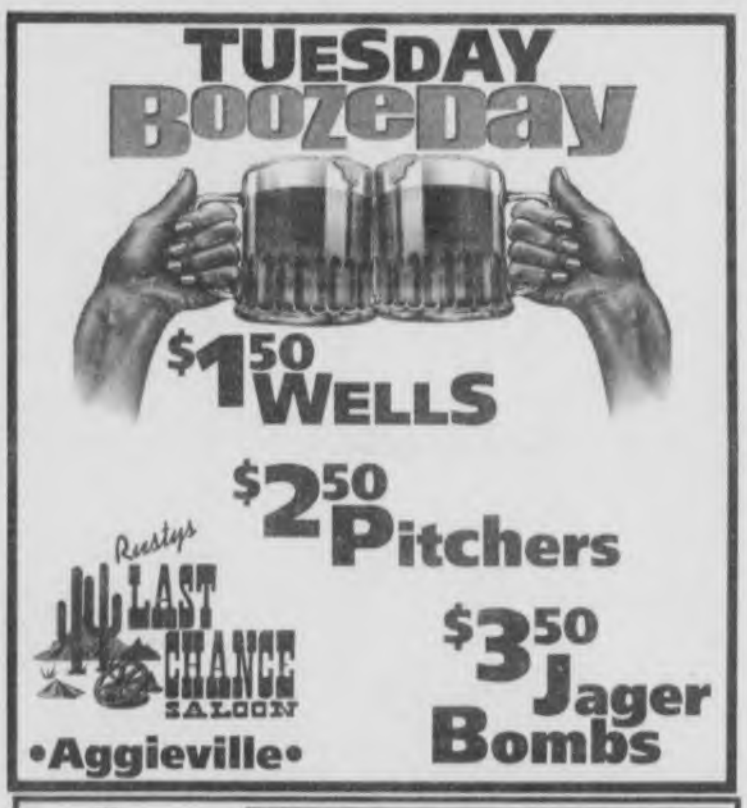
He said K-State also keeps up with the latest technology.

Ahlvers has been the facility manager for 25 years and said he enjoys his job and the annual conference.



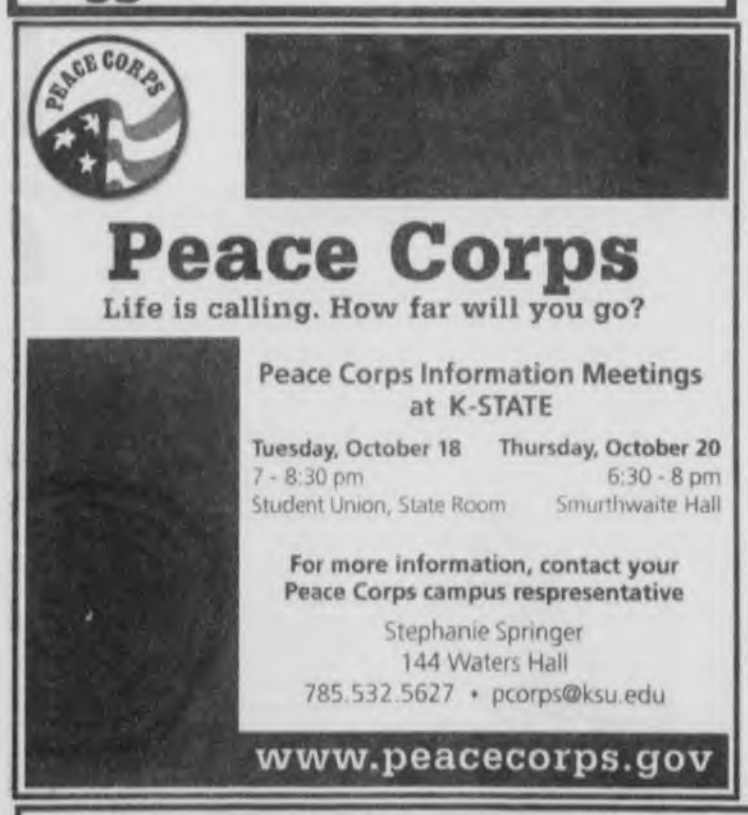
"We all enjoy it so much, and we become familiar with all of the other facility managers and become good friends," he said.

Paul Wagoner, animal science technician in the Veterinary Medicine Teaching Hospital, has attended three conferences with Ahlvers.

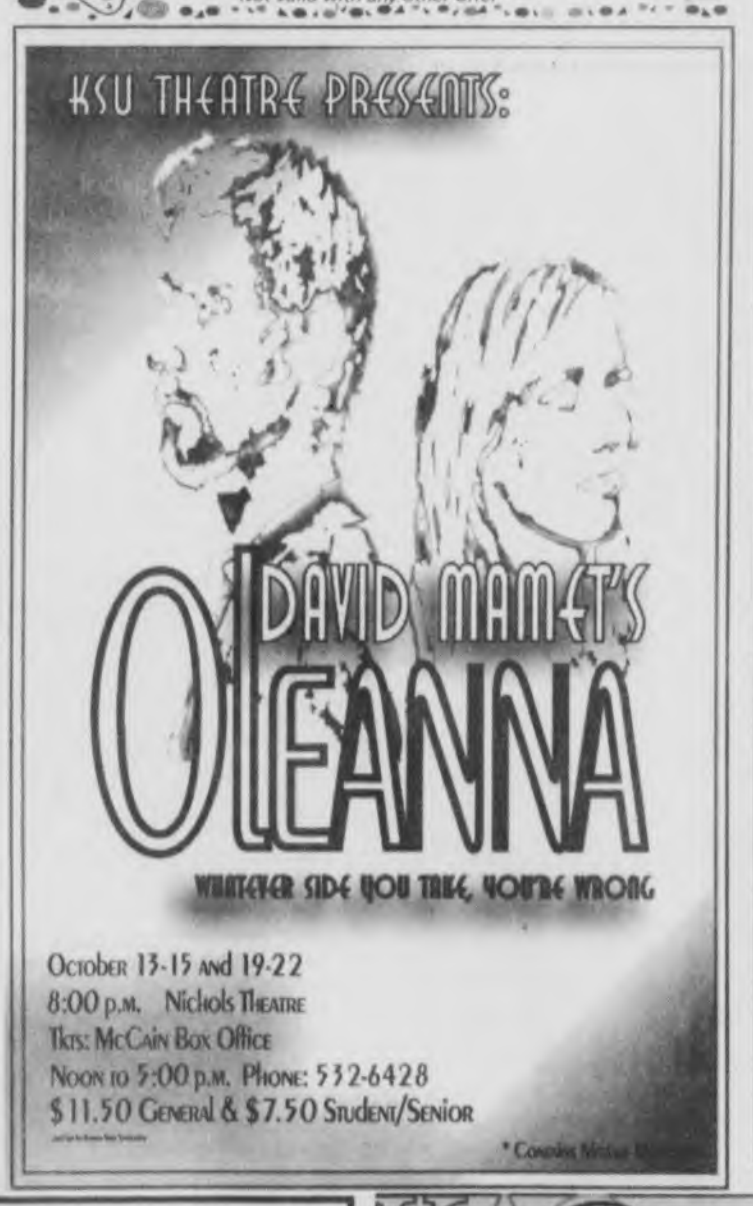


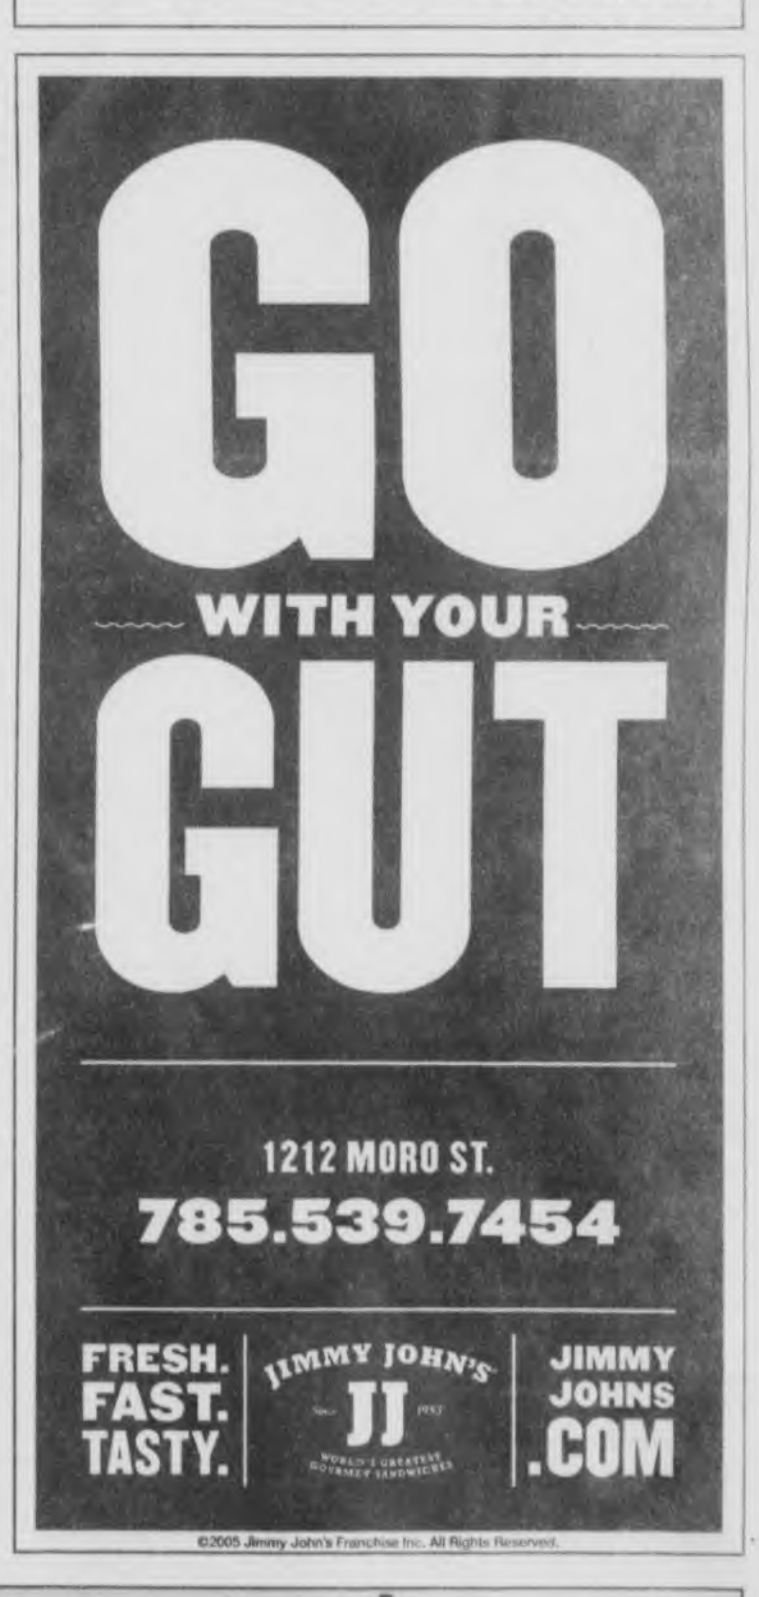
"They're very good conferences to attend," Wagoner said. "You gain a lot and see the good and bad of other universities. It really is very rewarding."

Ahlvers plans to attend these meetings even after he retires. He said he sees no changes for the future as far as the format of the meetings.



"Everyone enjoys these," he said. "Everyone who has ever gone, they keep returning."





OPINION

TO THE POINT

Students should take advantage of Landon Lectures

It's not every day students get to question world leaders. But with the upcoming speeches in the Landon Lectures Series, K-State students will be provided the opportunity to listen to and interact with those who have shaped the globe.

Want to bump elbows with the man who shapes relations with one of America's most important allies? How about listening to a speech from one of the most important figures of the 20th century? Maybe ask the entrepreneur who started with a small, low-budget television station and now owns several international media outlets what the secret to his success is?

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

The Landon Lecture Series provides all these opportunities, free of charge to students, faculty and community members.

This semester will bring Ryozo Kato, Japanese ambassador to the United States, Mikhail Gorbachev, former president of the Soviet Union, and Ted Turner, philanthropist and media mogul.

Students should seize on these opportunities to learn about current and historical events from the people who helped to mold them. The lectures are short events, but volumes of knowledge can be gleaned from attending, and reading about the fall of the Soviet Union in the history books is quite different than hearing it from the man who stayed at the helm while the ship went down.

Finding the time to attend these lectures should be on everyone's "to do" list. After all, billionaires and Nobel Prize winners are not exactly common sightings in the Little Apple.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

God save the 'Kingy'

Regular Joes could make better leaders than traditional politicians

JACI BOYDSTON

Princess wannabes received some bad news last week – instead of attempting to seduce the handsome and charming Prince William in the hopes of becoming the future queen of England, you may have to cozy up to Mike Hastings, a 64-year-old Australian forklift operator.

Royal genealogists believe that Hastings' family line was cheated out of the throne in the 15th century, when the illegitimate son of Cecily of York became king instead of Richard of York's rightful heir, who was Hastings' direct ancestor.

According to an Associated Press report, when a British documentary and research team arrived in Hastings' tiny village of Jerilderie, Australia, to tell him about the connection, he laughed and told them he had no interest in the throne and "wouldn't take it if they offered."

What a smart guy.

Although the British monarchy is no longer the powerful governing body it once was, Hastings, like most other regular folks, knows a life of politics and governing is no life at all.

Quick – think of the smartest, fairest, most compassionate person you know, the one you would most trust with your life.

Is that person planning to run for public office anytime soon? I bet not. One of the biggest reasons why we so often have poor leaders is no one decent wants to lead because the life of a leader sucks.

Imagine being the president for a day. You wake up to newspapers full of insults and criticisms, put on an uncomfortable suit, deliver boring prepared statements and sit through meeting after meeting while reporters constantly film everything you say and do. And then, before bed, you get to watch Jon Stewart make fun of the way you talk while studio audiences cackle with glee.

In addition to the abominable lifestyle of public office that deters many decent people from throwing their hats into the ring, there are only three ways to succeed in politics – coming up with ideas so brilliant everyone likes them, making outlandish promises that will prove impossible to keep, or making the constituents hate all the other candidates more than they hate you.

Decent, smart, hard-working people just don't have the time for all that.

They have families to look after and books to read and – in Hastings' case – forks to lift. The people most qualified to lead are rarely the ones first in line to campaign for office.

And, unfortunately for the public, that can leave us with under-qualified, dishonest, manipulative people, because those are often the characteristics that win elections.

Until there's more respect and privacy for our public leaders, no one with half a brain will want to be subjected to the torture of sitting on the throne.

Especially not Hastings, who now has to deal with the residents of his 1,100-person town singing "God Save the King" to him and jokingly calling him Kingy.

But his reluctance to lead – and the reluctance of others like him – may be to our collective disadvantage.

No one knows what's best for normal people like other normal people, and a rural forklift operator has just as good a chance of being a successful leader as a slick politician who manipulated his way into office.

Maybe, once in awhile, God should save the Kingy.

Jaci Boydston is a senior in mass communications. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell | COLLEGIAN

Age limits, drinking laws serve no purpose

JONAS HOGG

Are you 18? Congratulations. You are now able to enter into contracts that will have implications on the rest of your life. You are legally able to receive a home loan, register a car or buy a rifle. You can participate in the greatest of all forms of government and cast a vote. You can smoke, get into dirty movies and stay out all night.

What more could you want? You might want a beer, but you can't have that.

"Why not?" is often asked. The rehearsed answer is lack of responsibility, inability to make mature decisions, blah, blah. Did I mention you can enlist in the military? Apparently, you are mature enough for national security, but not mature enough for a Budweiser.

Perhaps you have fallen victim to another brand of drinking laws. Driving under the influence is one hell of a moneymaker for local police departments. They should just resort to highway robbery; the ethics of the two are the same.

"But you might hurt someone," is the common rejoinder. You might hurt someone doing a variety of activities. There is no law prohibiting talking on the cell phone while playing with the radio and driving with your knees; might you hurt someone while doing that?

Hold the angry letters. I, too, have lost friends to drunk driving; similarly, I have lost friends to sleepy drivers and just plain bad drivers. Let us also decree a legal B.P.B.C. (blood plain bad content) to qualify as a felony.

Modern drinking laws serve no purpose, they prevent no crime and they merely produce criminals out of thin air. What a wonderful criminal justice system we have.

Of course, at the root of every dumb law is an even dumber social movement.

Both the current age limits and our horrendous driving laws are the product of the government-funded Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Since the group's inception, the tireless crone brigade has spread lies and government propaganda about underage drinking and drunk driving. By use of frequent statistic manipulation – such as including drugs as alcohol, classifying drunk pedestrians as drivers and including accidents where alleged "drunk" drivers were hit by other cars – MADD has spouted mistruths so often it has become accepted as unquestioned fact.

Perhaps some of your parents have told you about drinking at age 18. The federally mandated drinking age of 21 is another product of MADD's imbecility. Any state that dares oppose the all-wise federal government promptly loses federal highway funding, money that is paid by you and me through income taxes each year. State sovereignty, my ass.

Undeterred, MADD continues its crusade against truth and reason. The latest push is for a .06 blood-alcohol content legal limit for drunk driving, the noticeable effects of which are so minimal that every single one of us would need a Breathalyzer test at routine traffic stops.

Meanwhile, thousands are killed yearly – who are sober – by snow, rain, ice, gravel and a laundry list of other things that are all viewed as relatively benign ways to die when compared to the sliver of alcohol-related fatalities each year.

To end the MADDness, we must arm ourselves with fact. It is people, not chemical compounds, that cause accidents. It is lunacy that I cannot buy a friend, recently returned from life-threatening missions in Iraq, a beer, because they "lack maturity."

It's time to tell MADD no thank you. We don't need a mommy-state to have a good time.

Jonas Hogg is a junior in sociology, international studies and Russian. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

The only thing worse than seeing Mangino in person is watching Mangino on wide-screen.

Glued-on eyelashes, fried hair and full-coverage body makeup are not a good look for a girl at barn party.

For the record, it was schwasted.

Well you can't call it a win, the football team put on a stellar performance this weekend.

Aphrodite loves you. No really, she like, love-loves you.

My roommate is eating chicken and dumplings and she said it tastes like monkey and gator. What the crap?

It's so hot. Milk was a bad choice.

I love Jello.

Was there something in the air this weekend making all guys complete jerks?

Let's make like a liberal and protest — make a shirt about it.

My roommate just stuck a smashed pumpkin on his head.

If Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity is now the new FarmHouse, then the FarmHouse fraternity wants to be the new Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

You know you want a happy hug from the love fairy.

We're in like, totally Fourum moods.

Hmmm, that house number is 1,200.

The Burger King's meat is enormous.

Please wake up Green Day because September is over now.

I just slapped my hormones in the face.

It's Sunday night and I am high out of my mind right now, and all I can think of is, "thank God for 'Walker, Texas Ranger.'"

I'll be searching for you longer than the Legend of Zelda.

Did somebody say "Walker, Texas Ranger"? He's like Bruce Lee and Jesus rolled into one.

That Will Smith. Wow. Talk about freshness you could eat.

Did anybody ever see that movie Hitch?

Yeah, it kind of sucked.

Apparently the umpires in the Angels/White Sox series decided to celebrate Helen Keller's birthday by closing their eyes for a week.

I'm wasting Fourum space.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Catching zzzz's

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Marcus Hernandez, junior in English, takes a nap on a bench outside Seaton Hall last week. Hernandez was waiting for a tutor session to start in Leasure Hall.

Caffeine, stress causes of sleepless nights for students

By Kelly Schmitt
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Depending on the person, college students should get six to 10 hours of sleep, but eight hours is the general recommendation.

Carol Kennedy, director of health promotion/nutrition counseling at Lafene Health Center, said it's important to get enough sleep.

"You really can't make up sleep, because the time has already gone by. You can't make up that test you already took," Kennedy said.

She said the most common reason for sleep deprivation in students is they have trouble balancing all of their activities. Late hours from work, school and a social life are common reasons why students don't get enough sleep.

Stress is another reason students spend the night tossing and turning. Kennedy said students frequently stress about money and relationships.

During sleep, the brain re-organizes the information it took in all day, so the information can be recalled the next day. The possibility of recall is lowered if a person doesn't get enough sleep.

"That's why pulling an all-nighter may not be the best way to study," Kennedy said.

Scott Shackelford, senior in geography, said he only gets three and a half to four hours of sleep a night.

"I lay down, all tired, and three hours later, I'm still staring at the ceiling," Shackelford said.

He doesn't drink caffeine, he doesn't stay up late watching television or playing video games, but Shackelford said he can't fall asleep easily. He said he goes to bed, but his brain doesn't switch off. He lies in bed thinking random thoughts, and before he knows it, hours have gone by.

Kennedy said somebody experiencing sleep deprivation should see a health care provider or counselor. She said she wants students to understand they don't have to battle sleeplessness on their own.

Students battling sleeplessness because of stress can take advantage of University Counseling Services. Counseling can help identify stressors and strategies to manage and reduce them.

Shackelford has had professional help in the past. He was discouraged, however, when he was prescribed sleep medication.

"It's just a pill to make me sleep. It doesn't fix why I can't sleep," Shackelford said.

Students aren't the only people not getting enough sleep. According to www.sleep-deprivation.com, Americans in general are getting less sleep now than in previous decades. In 1910, nine hours of sleep a night was the average. Today, 6.9 is the average, and people working a night shift usually get only five.

The Web site said fatigue from a lack of adequate sleep can lead to sadness and anger.

It said sleeplessness can also lead to symptoms of age and early diabetes.

Strategies for better sleep

1. Avoid caffeine.
2. Exercise in the morning, rather than close to bedtime.
3. Sleep in a dark, quiet room.
4. Train the body to only sleep in bed. Don't read or watch television in bed.

Taking a break from class, Lee Rivers, senior in kinesiology, kills time before he goes to work. Rivers slept in the field in front of Anderson Hall.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Love overpowers scholastics, personal hygiene

HOLLY KRAMER

"I was nauseous and tingly all over. I was either in love or I had smallpox." These wise words spoken by everybody's favorite whining, balding pedophile, Woody Allen, got me thinking.

When love is in the air, in your living room and taking up lots of room in restaurants, is there a point when people go beyond being madly in love to being just plain mad?

When people are single and forced to coexist with all the couples, smallpox can seem like a lesser curse. You may be fated to hear endless affirmations, baby talk and horror of horrors, even intercourse. Your life may be a lot more "interruptus" than coitus, but at least you have time for your studies. If you think being the secondary victim of coupledom is troubling, try being the receiver of the baby talk, the giver of affirmations and participant in all the ... you know what I mean.

When you're part of a couple, you can have hours of hand holding, kissing and watching cheesy movies. Yet you can never find time for studying, utility bills or phone calls home. Sometimes your friends might not even know you're still alive. Coupledom can make perfectly intelligent people utter the word "pooky." It can cause a tough man who has the emotional IQ of an eggplant to weep. It has even been known to make people give up their numerous flirtations and little black book in exchange for an actual relationship.

There are many positive aspects. In a monogamous relationship, you always have someone to watch "When Harry Met Sally" with. You have someone (besides yourself) to feign excitement when relatives are around and can have a sleep-over if you're scared or lonely. But the sappy sentiments may end there.

It's a proven fact coupledom is a leading cause of monogamy, annoying stories and the dreaded T.W. ("Third wheel", the tag-along friend, who is almost as sad as your D.U.F.F. or "dumb, ugly, fat friend"). Your life changes dramatically. Some paradoxes arise that you might want to examine closer.

1. Women know if you've gone out with someone for more than four months, you no longer need to shave your legs everyday. Single people shave more in hopes to find someone who's as equally shaven. Coupledom throws off the equilibrium.

2. Single people usually look to date intelligent people with decent grades. Once you're part of a couple, you only seem to want to study each other's eyes and lovely smiles. The homework stacks up next to you, but you're too busy making out to notice. All of a sudden, you're turning in assignments late, if at all, and failing tests. You have to eventually separate from the lip-lock to check your grades online. When the semester ends, you're not any smarter, but you do have a loving (and also lower grade-earning) shoulder to lean on.

3. You forget to do laundry. Most singles have clean, fresh smelling clothes. They look presentable and put-together. As a person in a couple, you may start showing up places in sweatpants and a scrunchie. If you spend all night kissing and/or fighting with your loved one, you tend to forget to change into decent attire. You may shuffle into class and stay there until you catch wind of rumors that you're crazy or homeless or "pulling a Nick Nolte".

4. You figure you can stop working out like a maniac because you found someone who loves you just the way you are. When love has finally arrived, you can kiss crunches and cardio goodbye. This means more time to order the late-night, post-argument pizza or get the "I love you so much" fudge sundae.

5. You stop having crazy sex. This is an inevitable trade-off. Single people can have wild sex but maybe no substance to a relationship and couples start having crazy relationships but perhaps no sexual substance. I know this doesn't include everyone but it's interesting to hear about people when they start to date and then when they've been together for awhile. The juicy stories kind of go from "Booty Call" to "Grumpy Old Men".

Most people emerge from relationships hairier, dirtier and the owner of a broken soul and decidedly lower grades. Suddenly, you're the D.U.F.F.

So, whether you're running away from a couple or naming your fictitious children while spoon-feeding your special someone ice cream, please keep it real. If you're part of a couple, try to remember your friends, family and household bills. If you're single, keep laughing at the frumpy, heartbroken students that wander aimlessly around campus. If you're permanently part of a couple, try not to go on and on about the cute thing your boy/girlfriend said last night. Because everyone knows that being forced to listen to some idiot who thinks they know all about relationships is almost as annoying as reading an article by one who knows even less.

Holly Kramer is a senior in human ecology and mass communications. You can e-mail her at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

NEW RELEASES

Music

Stevie Wonder, "A Time To Love"
Depeche Mode, "Playing the Angel"
Rod Stewart, "Thanks For The Memory... Great American Songbook IV"
Martina Mcbride, "Timeless"
Ashlee Simpson, "I Am Me"
Melissa Etheridge, "Greatest Hits: The Road Less Traveled"
Boards of Canada, "The Campfire Headphase"
Chris Botti, "To Love Again"
Billy Currington, "Doin' Somethin' Right"
Bryan Adams, "Anthology"
Brian Wilson, "What I Really Want for Christmas"
Thrice, "Vheissu"
Herb Alpert & the Tijuana Brass, "Christmas Album"
Various Artists, "Sound of the World"
Cirque du Soleil, "KÀ"
The Silver Jews, "Tanglewood Numbers"
Simply Red, "Simplified"
Brian Setzer Orchestra, "Dig That Crazy Christmas"

Source: www.amazon.com

Movies opening this week

"Doom" R
At a remote research facility on Mars, a team of scientists crack the genetic code. But when communication fails, the place gets a level-five quarantine, and the only people allowed in to investigate are the Marines of the Rapid Response Tactical Squad, including their commander, Sarge (Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson). They discover the researchers inadvertently opened up a portal to hell and unleashed a slew of demons.

"North Country" R
After her marriage hits the skids, Josey Aimes (Charlize Theron) returns to her North Minnesota hometown and takes a job at a local mine with her friend Glory (Frances McDormand). Unfortunately, she's subject to nonstop sexual harassment from her male coworkers. Despite the risk of losing her job, Josey decides to put a stop to it by filing a lawsuit.

"Dreamer" R
Ben Crane (Kurt Russell) was once a great horseman, but now he bides his time training the horses of rich businessmen. Sonya was a great horse whose career was suddenly cut short by a broken leg. Considered as good as dead by her owner, who also happens to be Ben's boss, Sonya is given to Ben as severance pay. Ben's young daughter, Cale (Dakota Fanning), convinces him to pursue a seemingly impossible goal: winning the Breeders' Cup Classic.

"Stay" R
A psychologist (Ewan McGregor) at an elite East coast university tries to prevent the suicide of one of his patients (Ryan Gosling), who keeps seeing dead people and successfully predicting the future. While investigating the case, he meets a woman (Naomi Watts) who claims to know the young man's mother.

Source: www.movies.go.com
Photos: Courtesy art

9 reasons to pack Ahearn Field House

Question: Name an intense, physical, fall sport in which players wear pads and K-State fields a young team led by a head coach who deserves more attention for turning its program into a perennial conference powerhouse.

MARK POTTER

Is it: A) Football, B) Volleyball, or C) Both?

The correct answer is C, but since I'm in a good mood, all K-State students win free entry to the volleyball match at 7 p.m. tomorrow in Ahearn Field House against No. 1 Nebraska.

You may be thinking, "Volleyball is physical and intense? You must be pulling my leg."

It's no lie. Volleyball games are entertaining, and there is actually another sport during the fall besides football worth watching in Manhattan.

In honor of K-State's nine consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances, here are nine good reasons you should go to Wednesday's match.

1. K-State's impressive Big 12 Conference record since 1996.

With a record of 132-57, K-State boasts the second-best Big 12 record since the conference began in 1996 – second only to Wednesday's opponent, Nebraska.

2. K-State's young team deserves more credit.

The Big 12 coaches picked K-State to finish sixth in the conference this year, which appears fairly reasonable considering the team is young and graduated two honorable-mention, American Volleyball Coaches Association All-Americans.

But we're talking about a program that has finished fifth or better in the Big 12 every season since 1997. And K-State was picked to finish one spot behind Kansas, a team the Wildcats have defeated in 21 consecutive matches.

3. Nebraska is undefeated and ranked No. 1.

The last time K-State played the No. 1 team in the country was Oct. 1, 2001, against, you guessed it, Nebraska.

Even if you are not a K-State volleyball fan or you think K-State will get swept, you should go simply because you may not have another chance to see the best team in the nation play at Ahearn. And what if K-State knocked off the No. 1 team?

4. K-State is nationally ranked.

After receiving little respect from Big 12 coaches, K-State has proven it deserves to be a top 25 team. The No. 23 Wildcats have an overall record of 15-4 and are 6-3 in the Big 12 (fourth place). Also, three of K-State's four losses were to other top 25 teams.

5. You could get a free "Keep the Red Out" T-shirt.

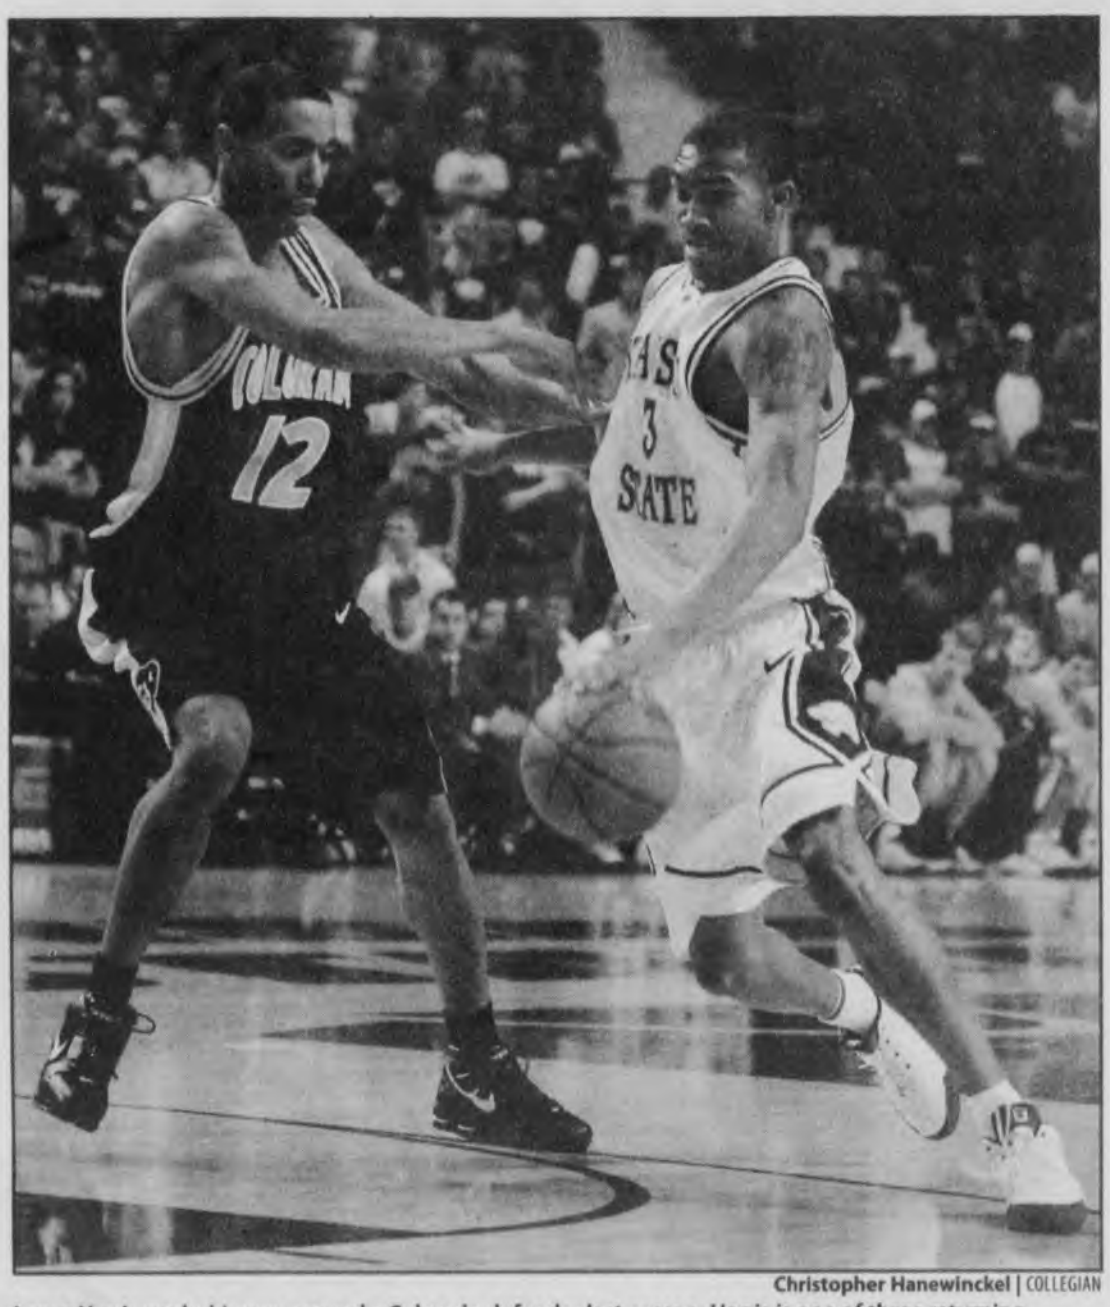
Free stuff is always good, and who couldn't use another oversized K-State shirt? However, you may want to arrive early since only the first 400 fans will receive shirts.

6. You can serve to win fantastic prizes at intermission.

Even if you have a dinner date and can't arrive in time for a free shirt, don't fret. You have the opportunity to win prizes after game two, while also refining your serving skills in preparation for the upcoming intramural volleyball season.

7. It's free for K-State students.

8. Ahearn's atmosphere is rocking.



9. We owe it to coach Suzie Fritz.

Fritz is a great coach, and she loves it when fans come and support her team. Fritz became the fastest coach in K-State history to reach the 100-win milestone against Oklahoma earlier this season, and she led K-State to its first conference title in 2003 by defeating Nebraska twice.

The least we can do to show our appreciation is to go cheer on the Wildcats.

Mark Potter is a senior in public relations. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Youth movement

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Lance Harris works his way around a Colorado defender last season. Harris is one of three returning starters, along with Clent Stewart and Cartier Martin.

Wildcats begin new season without top scorer

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The loss of its leading scorer from a year ago and an influx of young, inexperienced talent doesn't mean the men's basketball team and coach Jim Wooldridge expect anything less this season.

In fact, Wooldridge recently joked with the media about winning 30 games and scoring 70 points a game this season.

All joking aside, the Wildcats began practice for the 2005-06 season Friday without Jeremiah Massey, who averaged a team-leading 17.9 points and 6.9 rebounds a game last season, and with seven newcomers on the roster.

Even so, Wooldridge is optimistic about the makeup of his team.

"We feel like our talent's getting better," he said. "We felt like our talent was better a year ago. We feel like this team could be our most talented team, on paper."

Last season, the Wildcats produced their first winning season in six years with a 17-12 record, which included an 68-62 win over Texas A&M in the Big 12 Tournament.

But now, the Wildcats are faced with the reality of no Massey and the departure of their second-leading scorer, Fred Peete, who left the program and transferred to the University of New Mexico following the season.

K-State returns three starters in guards Clent Stewart and Lance Harris, along with Cartier Martin, who rotates between guard and forward.

Because of the loss of Massey, Wooldridge said his team's style of play will be up-tempo and fast-paced this season to highlight the experienced guards in the program.

"We've lost some offense with Jeremiah – post offense. How are we going to replace that? That's the million-dollar question," Wooldridge said. "If we have better guard play, more play-making ability, more versatility and shot-making ability out there, we hope that will take the place of some of Jeremiah's offense."

Perhaps no player came on stronger last season than Harris, who finished the year averaging 10.4 points per game as a sophomore, and was the Wildcats' top threat from the three-point line, hitting 41 percent of his three-point attempts. His freshman year, Harris averaged 2.1 points per game.

Wooldridge said Harris' play last season was not a surprise.

"We knew he could play, and we had confidence in him that he could play," Wooldridge said. "I knew he could play, but he was our biggest threat down the stretch in games. He didn't start that way at the beginning of the season. He's got more game in him."

K-State welcomes seven new players to the team – guards David Hoskins, Mario Taybron, Justin Winger and Akeem Wright, and forwards Serge Afeli, Darren Kent and Deilvez Yearby.

See BASKETBALL Page 8

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Men's basketball coach Jim Wooldridge calls out plays during a game last season against Colorado at Bramlage Coliseum. Woolridge and the Wildcats will begin practice for the 2005-06 season Friday.

Tennis gears up for national tourney

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"The competition level in practice has picked up. Everyone has to fight to be in the top six. So we're kicking each others butts."

Tamar Kvaratskhelia
SOPHOMORE TENNIS PLAYER

Tamar Kvaratskhelia has seen a change in the K-State women's tennis team.

The sophomore, after aiding her team in two tournaments in Indiana and Missouri, has noticed the competition tightening in practice.

"The competition level in practice has picked up," Kvaratskhelia said. "Everyone has to fight to be in the top six. So we're kicking each other's butts."

Coach Steve Bietau said the heightened level of play is good for the Wildcats, who head into competition Wednesday in the Intercollegiate Tennis Association Regionals in Salt Lake City. The ITA Regionals, which awards the winner a spot at the national tournament, grants 64 players a place in the tournament with the rest of the positions filled by a qualifying round.

"This is always a tough tournament," Bietau said. "The players from basically the quarterfinals on are basically national-caliber players. To do well in this takes a pretty strong performance."

The Wildcats are sending senior Jessica Simosa, Kvaratskhelia and freshman Katerina Kudlackova for automatic seats in the singles tournament while the teams of Kvaratskhelia and Kudlackova and Simosa and Maria Perevoschikova will represent K-State in doubles play.

Bietau said the automatic bids to the tournament were based on how well players performed last year and their play this fall. Kudlackova, who turned heads earlier in the season by defeating then-No. 52 Vlatka Jovanovic of Arkansas, is one of the only freshmen already in the tournament.

"She's been extremely consistent in both single and doubles," Bietau said. "She's really athletic and she's got a really mature game. She's just a great addition to our team."

Bietau said Kudlackova has been playing at a higher level of play than one would expect from a freshman.

"You can count on a good performance from her every time she goes out," Bietau said. "She does some things in her game that can drive people crazy."

Bietau said out of the players on the team, Simosa or Kvaratskhelia have the best chance of winning the singles tournament while the team of Kvaratskhelia and Kudlackova are contenders for the top spot in doubles action.

"I think they'll need to play a bit better than they have, but not so much better that its out of their grasp," Bietau said.

Bietau said he would rather see a solid performance from his team more than a dominant individual outing.

"You can have one player win that tournament, but that doesn't indicate that you have a good team," Bietau said. "If you've got three or four players who are in the round of 16, then that would indicate you're probably stronger. You've got more of the depth required to have a good team."

Simosa, the Wildcats' No. 1 singles player, said she will take her time and not focus on trying to win the whole thing.

"I'm really not thinking about winning the tournament," Simosa said. "I'm thinking of winning rounds. I think a more realistic goal would be to focus on the round you have in front of you, because there are a lot of good players in this tournament."

MLB Playoff Scores

St. Louis 5
Houston 4

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | Game against Buffs placed on 6-day wait list

ABC Sports informed the K-State Department of Intercollegiate Athletics Monday that ABC will exercise its first of three six-day options when selecting its broadcast schedule for Oct. 29.

As a result, the Colorado at K-State game has been placed on a six-day ready list and may be televised by TBS at 6 p.m. If the game is not selected by TBS, the Wildcats and Buffaloes will not be televised and will kick off at 1:10 p.m.

By being placed on the league's six-day ready list by TBS, K-State will not announce the kickoff time for the Colorado game until Oct. 23.

MBB | Wildcats to hold open scrimmage Saturday

K-State's men's basketball team will hold an open scrimmage from noon to 12:30 p.m., Saturday at Bramlage Coliseum prior to the Wildcats' football game against Texas A&M.

The northeast and northwest entrances will open at 11:45 a.m., and fans will be able to watch the last 15 minutes of practice before the open scrimmage.

Fans will be able to register to win a basketball signed by the 2005-06 Wildcats, as well as pick up a team roster and schedule cards on the concourse level.

The Wildcats open the 2005-06 season on Nov. 3, with an exhibition game against the EA Sports All-Stars at Bramlage Coliseum beginning at 7 p.m. The regular season opener is set for Nov. 18, against Georgia Southern at 7 p.m.

MBB | Student ticket pickup dates announced

K-State students can pick up their men's basketball season tickets beginning at 9 a.m., Oct. 24, at the Athletics Ticket Office in Bramlage Coliseum.

Students must present a valid student ID to receive their tickets.

A designated seating area for student ICAT members has been reinstated. Students who have purchased ICAT tickets will have first opportunity to sit in Sections 19 and 20 on a first-come, first-serve basis up until 30 minutes prior to tipoff. After that time, students with general admission tickets will be permitted into those sections.

The areas designated for student general admission seating are Sections 21 through 24. Reserved seating for students will be located in Section 18, rows 11 and above.

Students who have not yet purchased men's basketball tickets may do so beginning Oct. 24. General admission and reserved tickets are available at the cost of $69 for the 19-game men's home schedule. ICAT tickets are sold out.

The Associated Press

NFL | Bruschi says he will return to field Wednesday

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — New England Patriots linebacker Tedy Bruschi plans to return to practice on Wednesday, eight months after having a mild stroke.

Bruschi

Bruschi was cleared Sunday by his doctors to begin practicing this week, but the Patriots left it up to Bruschi and his family to determine when he would return.

Bruschi was one of the defensive stars on a team that has won three Super Bowl titles in the last four seasons. The Patriots are 3-3 so far this season and have allowed 27.3 points per game, most in the AFC.

NBA | Injuries force Knicks guard Houston to retire

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. — New York Knicks guard Allan Houston retired Monday, unable to recover from knee injuries that kept him out much of the last two seasons.

A two-time All-Star and member of the 2000 Olympic team, Houston was one of the NBA's best outside shooters before he was slowed by chronic knee soreness. He was limited to only 70 games over the last two seasons.

The 34-year-old Houston appeared in only 20 games last season and averaged 11.9 points, his worst season since he was a rookie. He did not play in either of the team's two exhibition games.

Bicycle sales surpass automobile sales

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Bicycle sales are on the rise.

And people are trading their four-wheeled vehicles for those with two.

According to a U.S. Chamber of Commerce report, bicycle sales have surpassed car sales in the past 12 months, and in Manhattan, businesses are noticing the change.

Gas prices are reason for the new bicycle sale increase, said Dave Colburn, manager of The Pathfinder, 304 Poyntz Ave.

Colburn has worked at Pathfinder for 26 years, and he said the trends with gas price increases usually correlated with bicycle sales. The American Automobile Association reported in September that gas prices have increased 47.3 percent since last year.

"Every time the gas prices go up, we get a whole new set of customers in the door," he said. "We had the biggest September we've ever had."

Gas prices, however, wasn't the primary reason for student Melody Honnen, fifth year in interior architecture, to become an avid bike-rider.

"I'm happy, cause when I get to class, I don't have to fight everyone for parking," Honnen said. "I'm just happier because I have more money, and I didn't want to burn fossil fuels."

Despite the reasons for the bike riding sales increases, popular national bicycle distribute, Huffy Bicycle Company, reported a record $11.3 million in bicycle sales in September.

Sales this quarter are the best Colburn could remember, and he said all types of people are opting into this healthier mode of transportation.

"There are always people who are really into bicycling as an activity or for exercise," he said. "There are a lot of people who don't enjoy it that much. Then, they say 'that's it,' and they give up the car and get their bikes out of the garage."

While sales of new bicycles at The Pathfinder have increased, Colburn said this year, several people are recycling their old bicycles.

"Many people opted into fixing their 20-year-old ten-speeds than buying new bikes," he said.

During winter, however, he said bicycle sales should remain stable.

"It's pretty safe to predict that we won't stay as busy as we are now, but a lot of it will depend on the weather... and what gas does," he said. "Some winters, we have Texas winters, where it stays pretty warm. Some winters are petty cold."

This winter, he said for those who do bicycle, should learn about important bike-related skills.

"With bicycle commuting, people should learn about how to deal with the cold, (riding) in the dark, how to be visible and how to dress properly," he said.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Melody Honnen, senior in interior architecture, rides down the hill behind McCain Auditorium.

Tips for bicyclists riding in indement weather

- For those who suffer from asthma, recent respiratory problems or other medical conditions that require them to avoid extreme temperatures, be mindful of these warnings. This also includes people who experience pain, shortness of breath or tightness in the chest while riding in the cold.
- Pick shorts or pants that are comfortable and won't get in the way of cycling. Stretch shorts and tights have few seams and the tight fit keeps material from rubbing the wrong places.
- Consider picking fabric that pulls moisture away from the body and keeps it from feeling wet or cold.
- Wear a breathable long-sleeved shirt. Biking jerseys are ventilated and can be purchased in bright colors for higher visibility on the road. Zippers in the front can be used for temperature control.
- Select comfortable shoes that won't interfere with the pedals. Bicyclists can also cover their shoes with waterproof booties as the weather changes.
- Wear full-finger gloves with light insulation — fingers get cold first. Consider waterproof biking gloves if it is rainy outside.
- Pull a light wind jacket over the shirt. Look for one with a front zipper for temperature control.
- Buy lighter-colored clothing, adding a reflective vest or clothing with reflective panels to increase a bicyclist's visibility on the road.

Source: www.eHow.com and www.About.com

2 students receive Luce scholarships for math, engineering

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two K-State students are recent recipients of the Clare Boothe Luce Undergraduate Scholarship.

Alyson Deines, senior in mathematics, and Emily Voigt, sophomore in chemical engineering, were each awarded $18,000 scholarships for the next two years.

The Clare Boothe Luce Program provides private support for women in science, engineering and mathematics. According to the Luce Foundation Web site, Luce appreciated that women face obstacles in their chosen professions, and she encouraged women to study, graduate and teach in the sciences.

Luce, who died in 1987, married the late Henry R. Luce, cofounder and editor in chief of Time Inc. He established the Henry Luce Foundation in 1936, to which the Clare Boothe Luce Program belongs.

The scholarship is an award to support the last two years of undergraduate education, said Kimberly Douglas, director of the Women in Engineering and Science Program.

"The scholarship allows the students to have financial support," she said. "It also allows them to learn more about research and whether they would enjoy a further career in academics."

Selection for recipients was based on grade point average, awards, membership in honor and professional societies, letters of recommendation, two essays and a personal interview.

This is the final year the scholarship will be awarded to K-State students under the two-year grant from the Clare Boothe Luce Foundation, Douglas said.

Deines said she applied for the scholarship her sophomore year, but didn't get it, so she applied again last spring. She said the scholarship will allow her to relax and focus on academics.

"The scholarship will allow me to focus on my research in the summer as opposed to working," said Deines, who is planning to attend graduate school for mathematics.

Voigt said she plans to attend graduate school in either bioengineering or chemical engineering.

"This scholarship will make studying abroad next semester feasible for me," she said. "I'm very excited about it."

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available October 1st. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED. Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

EARN YOUR M.D. degree in warm tropical Belize! Contact InterAmerican School of Medical Sciences. 877-DOC-STUDY or on the web at www.interamerican-school.com

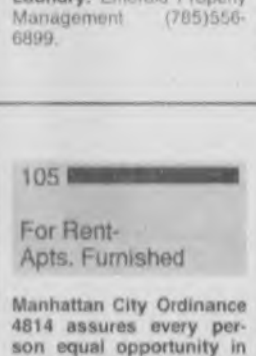
www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.



100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

LEE CREST Apartment within one block from campus. One and two-bedrooms, private parking, on site laundries, water/ trash paid. Electric central heat/ air. $455 and $490. (785)539-7961.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

ONE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE December or January. $335 to $350. (785)587-0399.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)537-2323.

145 Roommate Wanted

FOR RENT. one-bedroom, private bathroom, washer/ dryer, all appliances, fenced yard, private parking. $300/ month and split utilities. Water/ trash/ sewage paid. Pet friendly. (316)253-5549.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted: $295/ month plus one-half utilities. Close to campus. Non-smoking. Available immediately. Call (785)229-5572.

ROOMMATE WANTED. $450 a month. One-half utilities, big house, fenced yard. 1024 Houston. Call Scott (785)341-5153.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

WANTED: MALE or female roommates for three-bedroom. Fun, outgoing, clean and classy. (785)799-4202.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath apartment. Water, trash, and cable paid. $480/ month. (785)587-9638.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

DESPERATE MOM/ office manager needs help organizing , sorting, filing in home and office. Flexible hours for hardworking students who like to clean and organize. $6/ hour. Call Chris (785)466-5835.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

FAST PACED, upbeat office that is loosing a senior and looking for new student help. Position will officially start after finals, however, ideal candidate will begin learning the ropes over the next few months. This is great professional experience for a journalism or marketing student. Help promote K-State's Distance Education Programs while gaining real life experience. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with ability to work during the summer semesters and winter breaks as well. The individual who fills this position will manage information and promote knowledge of it by means of various media. Duties include: writing content/ copy, creating desktop publications, managing online course databases, writing press releases, conducting interviews, etc. This position works with three full-time communication professionals and three part-time student communication specialists. Design experience a plus. Our on campus office operates Monday- Friday, 8:00am- 5:00pm and is eager to work around your schedule. Please apply in person at 23 College Court Building, Public Information Office, Division of Continuing Education (785)532-5888.

310 Help Wanted

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

INTERNET WORK! $8.75-$38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

KITCHEN HELP needed, day and evening shifts. Apply online at kiteslive.com. Click on applications in top right hand corner.

MANPOWER IS now accepting applications for office position in Alma. Weekends only. $9/ hour. Apply in person at 555 Poyntz Ave. Suite 245.

NOW HIRING. Vista Drive In, a locally owned and operated quick service restaurant is adding to our team. Individuals must have a positive attitude and be able to multitask and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We have multiple part-time positions available some daytime hours preferred. KSU students encouraged. Insurance benefits available. We offer meal discounts, flexible hours and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT- Need part-time person to assist with online research, topics are education and criminology. This will be ongoing research until June. Call (785)565-3708 for pay and details.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

NEED ICAT tickets to Texas A&M game. (785)410-5384.

500 transportation

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

"#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

630 Spring Break

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

Graphic Design/GTM Sportswear

This part time position is great for a junior or senior in graphic design. Individual must be dependable, self-motivated, organized, and very creative. Excellent attention to detail is a definite plus. Macintosh experience and knowledge of Quark, Photoshop, Illustrator, and OS X preferred. Duties include: Typesetting and layout of ads and other printed marketing materials, preparing samples for photo shoots, and taking digital photos. Individual would ideally be available for 3-4 hour blocks approximately 15-20 hours a week. Send resumes to: GTM Sportswear 520 McCall Rd, Manhattan, Ks. 66502 Attn: Kathy Lindsay or e-mail kindsay@gtm.com.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

9 reasons to pack Ahearn Field House

Question: Name an intense, physical, fall sport in which players wear pads and K-State fields a young team led by a head coach who deserves more attention for turning its program into a perennial conference powerhouse.

MARK POTTER

Is it: A) Football, B) Volleyball, or C) Both?

The correct answer is C, but since I'm in a good mood, all K-State students win free entry to the volleyball match at 7 p.m. tomorrow in Ahearn Field House against No. 1 Nebraska.

You may be thinking, "Volleyball is physical and intense? You must be pulling my leg."

It's no lie. Volleyball games are entertaining, and there is actually another sport during the fall besides football worth watching in Manhattan.

In honor of K-State's nine consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances, here are nine good reasons you should go to Wednesday's match.

1. K-State's impressive Big 12 Conference record since 1996.

With a record of 132-57, K-State boasts the second-best Big 12 record since the conference began in 1996 – second only to Wednesday's opponent, Nebraska.

2. K-State's young team deserves more credit.

The Big 12 coaches picked K-State to finish sixth in the conference this year, which appears fairly reasonable considering the team is young and graduated two honorable-mention, American Volleyball Coaches Association All-Americans.

But we're talking about a program that has finished fifth or better in the Big 12 every season since 1997. And K-State was picked to finish one spot behind Kansas, a team the Wildcats have defeated in 21 consecutive matches.

3. Nebraska is undefeated and ranked No. 1.

The last time K-State played the No. 1 team in the country was Oct. 1, 2001, against, you guessed it, Nebraska.

Even if you are not a K-State volleyball fan or you think K-State will get swept, you should go simply because you may not have another chance to see the best team in the nation play at Ahearn. And what if K-State knocked off the No. 1 team?

4. K-State is nationally ranked.

After receiving little respect from Big 12 coaches, K-State has proven it deserves to be a top 25 team. The No. 23 Wildcats have an overall record of 15-4 and are 6-3 in the Big 12 (fourth place). Also, three of K-State's four losses were to other top 25 teams.

5. You could get a free "Keep the Red Out" T-shirt.

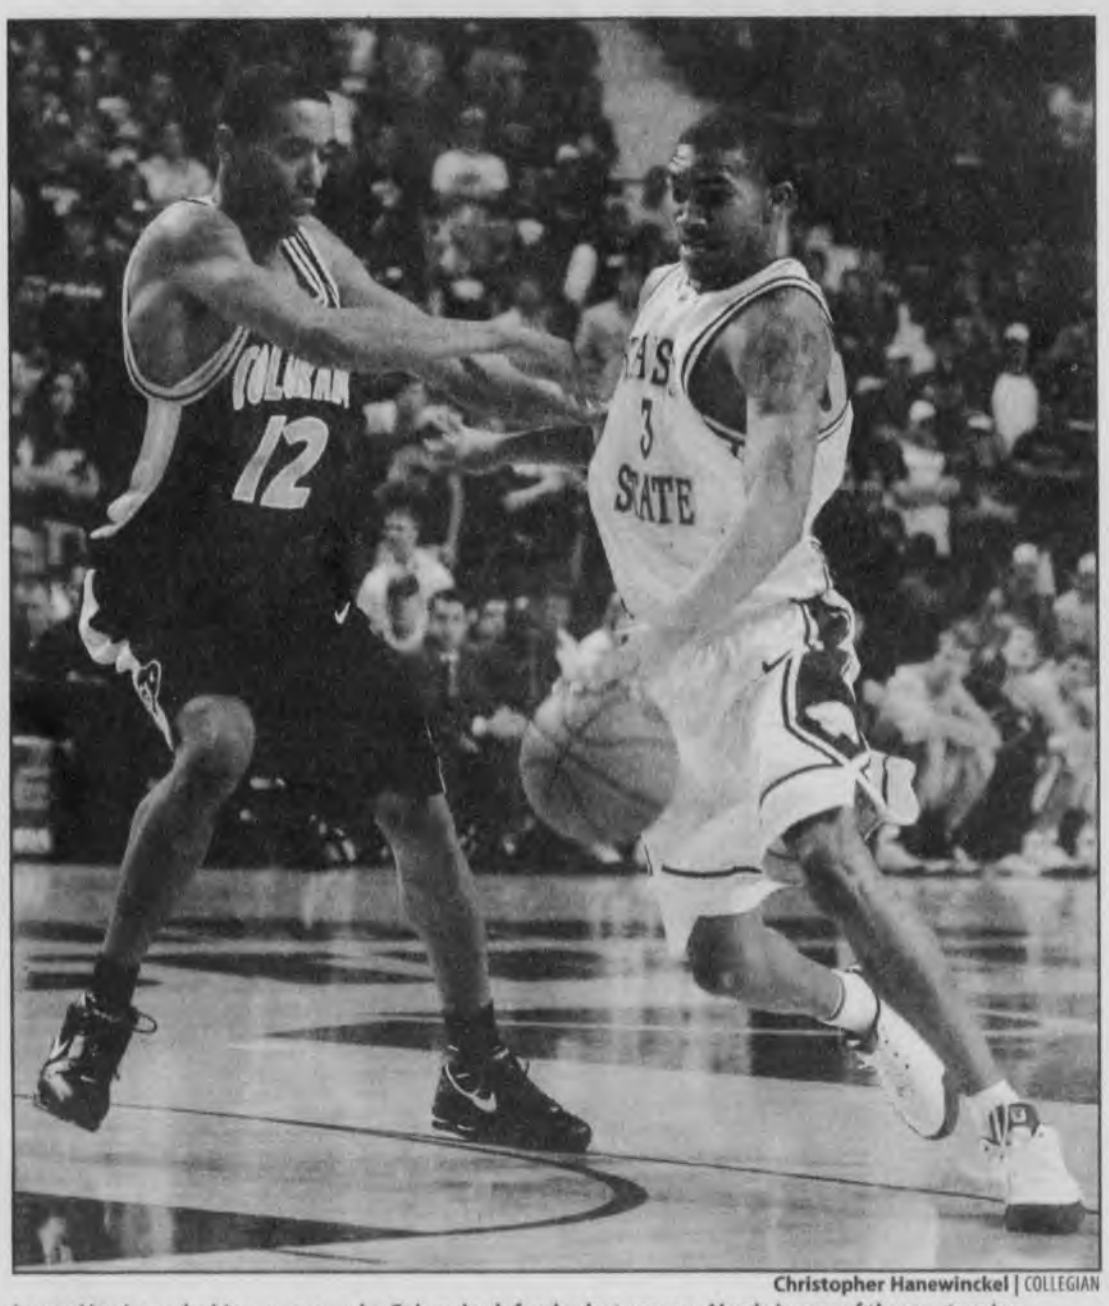
Free stuff is always good, and who couldn't use another oversized K-State shirt? However, you may want to arrive early since only the first 400 fans will receive shirts.

6. You can serve to win fantastic prizes at intermission.

Even if you have a dinner date and can't arrive in time for a free shirt, don't fret. You have the opportunity to win prizes after game two, while also refining your serving skills in preparation for the upcoming intramural volleyball season.

7. It's free for K-State students.

8. Ahearn's atmosphere is rocking.



9. We owe it to coach Suzie Fritz.

Fritz is a great coach, and she loves it when fans come and support her team. Fritz became the fastest coach in K-State history to reach the 100-win milestone against Oklahoma earlier this season, and she led K-State to its first conference title in 2003 by defeating Nebraska twice.

The least we can do to show our appreciation is to go cheer on the Wildcats.

Mark Potter is a senior in public relations. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.kse.edu.

Youth movement

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Lance Harris works his way around a Colorado defender last season. Harris is one of three returning starters, along with Clent Stewart and Cartier Martin.

Wildcats begin new season without top scorer

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The loss of its leading scorer from a year ago and an influx of young, inexperienced talent doesn't mean the men's basketball team and coach Jim Wooldridge expect anything less this season.

In fact, Wooldridge recently joked with the media about winning 30 games and scoring 70 points a game this season.

All joking aside, the Wildcats began practice for the 2005-06 season Friday without Jeremiah Massey, who averaged a team-leading 17.9 points and 6.9 rebounds a game last season, and with seven newcomers on the roster.

Even so, Wooldridge is optimistic about the makeup of his team.

"We feel like our talent's getting better," he said. "We felt like our talent was better a year ago. We feel like this team could be our most talented team, on paper."

Last season, the Wildcats produced their first winning season in six years with a 17-12 record, which included an 68-62 win over Texas A&M in the Big 12 Tournament.

But now, the Wildcats are faced with the reality of no Massey and the departure of their second-leading scorer, Fred Peete, who left the program and transferred to the University of New Mexico following the season.

K-State returns three starters in guards Clent Stewart and Lance Harris, along with Cartier Martin, who rotates between guard and forward.

Because of the loss of Massey, Wooldridge said his team's style of play will be up-tempo and fast-paced this season to highlight the experienced guards in the program.

"We've lost some offense with Jeremiah – post offense. How are we going to replace that? That's the million-dollar question," Wooldridge said. "If we have better guard play, more play-making ability, more versatility and shot-making ability out there, we hope that will take the place of some of Jeremiah's offense."

Perhaps no player came on stronger last season than Harris, who finished the year averaging 10.4 points per game as a sophomore, and was the Wildcats' top threat from the three-point line, hitting 41 percent of his three-point attempts. His freshman year, Harris averaged 2.1 points per game.

Wooldridge said Harris' play last season was not a surprise.

"We knew he could play, and we had confidence in him that he could play," Wooldridge said. "I knew he could play, but he was our biggest threat down the stretch in games. He didn't start that way at the beginning of the season. He's got more game in him."

K-State welcomes seven new players to the team – guards David Hoskins, Mario Taybron, Justin Winger and Akeem Wright, and forwards Serge Afeli, Darren Kent and Deilvez Yearby.

See BASKETBALL Page 8

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Men's basketball coach Jim Wooldridge calls out plays during a game last season against Colorado at Bramlage Coliseum. Woolridge and the Wildcats will begin practice for the 2005-06 season Friday.

Tennis gears up for national tourney

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"The competition level in practice has picked up. Everyone has to fight to be in the top six. So we're kicking each others butts."

Tamar Kvaratskhelia
SOPHOMORE TENNIS PLAYER

Tamar Kvaratskhelia has seen a change in the K-State women's tennis team.

The sophomore, after aiding her team in two tournaments in Indiana and Missouri, has noticed the competition tightening in practice.

"The competition level in practice has picked up," Kvaratskhelia said. "Everyone has to fight to be in the top six. So we're kicking each other's butts."

Coach Steve Bietau said the heightened level of play is good for the Wildcats, who head into competition Wednesday in the Intercollegiate Tennis Association Regionals in Salt Lake City. The ITA Regionals, which awards the winner a spot at the national tournament, grants 64 players a place in the tournament with the rest of the positions filled by a qualifying round.

"This is always a tough tournament," Bietau said. "The players from basically the quarterfinals on are basically national-caliber players. To do well in this takes a pretty strong performance."

The Wildcats are sending senior Jessica Simosa, Kvaratskhelia and freshman Katerina Kudlackova for automatic seats in the singles tournament while the teams of Kvaratskhelia and Kudlackova and Simosa and Maria Perevoschikova will represent K-State in doubles play.

Bietau said the automatic bids to the tournament were based on how well players performed last year and their play this fall. Kudlackova, who turned heads earlier in the season by defeating then-No. 52 Vlatka Jovanovic of Arkansas, is one of the only freshmen already in the tournament.

"She's been extremely consistent in both single and doubles," Bietau said. "She's really athletic and she's got a really mature game. She's just a great addition to our team."

Bietau said Kudlackova has been playing at a higher level of play than one would expect from a freshman.

"You can count on a good performance from her every time she goes out," Bietau said. "She does some things in her game that can drive people crazy."

Bietau said out of the players on the team, Simosa or Kvaratskhelia have the best chance of winning the singles tournament while the team of Kvaratskhelia and Kudlackova are contenders for the top spot in doubles action.

"I think they'll need to play a bit better than they have, but not so much better that its out of their grasp," Bietau said.

Bietau said he would rather see a solid performance from his team more than a dominant individual outing.

"You can have one player win that tournament, but that doesn't indicate that you have a good team," Bietau said. "If you've got three or four players who are in the round of 16, then that would indicate you're probably stronger. You've got more of the depth required to have a good team."

Simosa, the Wildcats' No. 1 singles player, said she will take her time and not focus on trying to win the whole thing.

"I'm really not thinking about winning the tournament," Simosa said. "I'm thinking of winning rounds. I think a more realistic goal would be to focus on the round you have in front of you, because there are a lot of good players in this tournament."

MLB Playoff Scores

St. Louis 5
Houston 4

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | Game against Buffs placed on 6-day wait list

ABC Sports informed the K-State Department of Intercollegiate Athletics Monday that ABC will exercise its first of three six-day options when selecting its broadcast schedule for Oct. 29.

As a result, the Colorado at K-State game has been placed on a six-day ready list and may be televised by TBS at 6 p.m. If the game is not selected by TBS, the Wildcats and Buffaloes will not be televised and will kick off at 1:10 p.m.

By being placed on the league's six-day ready list by TBS, K-State will not announce the kickoff time for the Colorado game until Oct. 23.

MBB | Wildcats to hold open scrimmage Saturday

K-State's men's basketball team will hold an open scrimmage from noon to 12:30 p.m., Saturday at Bramlage Coliseum prior to the Wildcats' football game against Texas A&M.

The northeast and northwest entrances will open at 11:45 a.m., and fans will be able to watch the last 15 minutes of practice before the open scrimmage.

Fans will be able to register to win a basketball signed by the 2005-06 Wildcats, as well as pick up a team roster and schedule cards on the concourse level.

The Wildcats open the 2005-06 season on Nov. 3, with an exhibition game against the EA Sports All-Stars at Bramlage Coliseum beginning at 7 p.m. The regular season opener is set for Nov. 18, against Georgia Southern at 7 p.m.

MBB | Student ticket pickup dates announced

K-State students can pick up their men's basketball season tickets beginning at 9 a.m., Oct. 24, at the Athletics Ticket Office in Bramlage Coliseum.

Students must present a valid student ID to receive their tickets.

A designated seating area for student ICAT members has been reinstated. Students who have purchased ICAT tickets will have first opportunity to sit in Sections 19 and 20 on a first-come, first-serve basis up until 30 minutes prior to tipoff. After that time, students with general admission tickets will be permitted into those sections.

The areas designated for student general admission seating are Sections 21 through 24. Reserved seating for students will be located in Section 18, rows 11 and above.

Students who have not yet purchased men's basketball tickets may do so beginning Oct. 24. General admission and reserved tickets are available at the cost of $69 for the 19-game men's home schedule. ICAT tickets are sold out.

The Associated Press

NFL | Bruschi says he will return to field Wednesday

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — New England Patriots linebacker Tedy Bruschi plans to return to practice on Wednesday, eight months after having a mild stroke.

Bruschi

Bruschi was cleared Sunday by his doctors to begin practicing this week, but the Patriots left it up to Bruschi and his family to determine when he would return.

Bruschi was one of the defensive stars on a team that has won three Super Bowl titles in the last four seasons. The Patriots are 3-3 so far this season and have allowed 27.3 points per game, most in the AFC.

NBA | Injuries force Knicks guard Houston to retire

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. — New York Knicks guard Allan Houston retired Monday, unable to recover from knee injuries that kept him out much of the last two seasons.

A two-time All-Star and member of the 2000 Olympic team, Houston was one of the NBA's best outside shooters before he was slowed by chronic knee soreness. He was limited to only 70 games over the last two seasons.

The 34-year-old Houston appeared in only 20 games last season and averaged 11.9 points, his worst season since he was a rookie. He did not play in either of the team's two exhibition games.

Bicycle sales surpass automobile sales

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Bicycle sales are on the rise.

And people are trading their four-wheeled vehicles for those with two.

According to a U.S. Chamber of Commerce report, bicycle sales have surpassed car sales in the past 12 months, and in Manhattan, businesses are noticing the change.

Gas prices are reason for the new bicycle sale increase, said Dave Colburn, manager of The Pathfinder, 304 Poyntz Ave.

Colburn has worked at Pathfinder for 26 years, and he said the trends with gas price increases usually correlated with bicycle sales. The American Automobile Association reported in September that gas prices have increased 47.3 percent since last year.

"Every time the gas prices go up, we get a whole new set of customers in the door," he said. "We had the biggest September we've ever had."

Gas prices, however, wasn't the primary reason for student Melody Honnen, fifth year in interior architecture, to become an avid bike-rider.

"I'm happy, cause when I get to class, I don't have to fight everyone for parking," Honnen said. "I'm just happier because I have more money, and I didn't want to burn fossil fuels."

Despite the reasons for the bike riding sales increases, popular national bicycle distribute, Huffy Bicycle Company, reported a record $11.3 million in bicycle sales in September.

Sales this quarter are the best Colburn could remember, and he said all types of people are opting into this healthier mode of transportation.

"There are always people who are really into bicycling as an activity or for exercise," he said. "There are a lot of people who don't enjoy it that much. Then, they say 'that's it,' and they give up the car and get their bikes out of the garage."

While sales of new bicycles at The Pathfinder have increased, Colburn said this year, several people are recycling their old bicycles.

"Many people opted into fixing their 20-year-old ten-speeds than buying new bikes," he said.

During winter, however, he said bicycle sales should remain stable.

"It's pretty safe to predict that we won't stay as busy as we are now, but a lot of it will depend on the weather... and what gas does," he said. "Some winters, we have Texas winters, where it stays pretty warm. Some winters are petty cold."

This winter, he said for those who do bicycle, should learn about important bike-related skills.

"With bicycle commuting, people should learn about how to deal with the cold, (riding) in the dark, how to be visible and how to dress properly," he said.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Melody Honnen, senior in interior architecture, rides down the hill behind McCain Auditorium.

Tips for bicyclists riding in inclement weather

- For those who suffer from asthma, recent respiratory problems or other medical conditions that require them to avoid extreme temperatures, be mindful of these warnings. This also includes people who experience pain, shortness of breath or tightness in the chest while riding in the cold.
- Pick shorts or pants that are comfortable and won't get in the way of cycling. Stretch shorts and tights have few seams and the tight fit keeps material from rubbing the wrong places.
- Consider picking fabric that pulls moisture away from the body and keeps it from feeling wet or cold.
- Wear a breathable long-sleeved shirt. Biking jerseys are ventilated and can be purchased in bright colors for higher visibility on the road. Zippers in the front can be used for temperature control.
- Select comfortable shoes that won't interfere with the pedals. Bicyclists can also cover their shoes with waterproof booties as the weather changes.
- Wear full-finger gloves with light insulation — fingers get cold first. Consider waterproof biking gloves if it is rainy outside.
- Pull a light wind jacket over the shirt. Look for one with a front zipper for temperature control.
- Buy lighter-colored clothing, adding a reflective vest or clothing with reflective panels to increase a bicyclist's visibility on the road.

Source: www.eHow.com and www.About.com

2 students receive Luce scholarships for math, engineering

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two K-State students are recent recipients of the Clare Boothe Luce Undergraduate Scholarship.

Alyson Deines, senior in mathematics, and Emily Voigt, sophomore in chemical engineering, were each awarded $18,000 scholarships for the next two years.

The Clare Boothe Luce Program provides private support for women in science, engineering and mathematics. According to the Luce Foundation Web site, Luce appreciated that women face obstacles in their chosen professions, and she encouraged women to study, graduate and teach in the sciences.

Luce, who died in 1987, married the late Henry R. Luce, cofounder and editor in chief of Time Inc. He established the Henry Luce Foundation in 1936, to which the Clare Boothe Luce Program belongs.

The scholarship is an award to support the last two years of undergraduate education, said Kimberly Douglas, director of the Women in Engineering and Science Program.

"The scholarship allows the students to have financial support," she said. "It also allows them to learn more about research and whether they would enjoy a further career in academics."

Selection for recipients was based on grade point average, awards, membership in honor and professional societies, letters of recommendation, two essays and a personal interview.

This is the final year the scholarship will be awarded to K-State students under the two-year grant from the Clare Boothe Luce Foundation, Douglas said.

Deines said she applied for the scholarship her sophomore year, but didn't get it, so she applied again last spring. She said the scholarship will allow her to relax and focus on academics.

"The scholarship will allow me to focus on my research in the summer as opposed to working," said Deines, who is planning to attend graduate school for mathematics.

Voigt said she plans to attend graduate school in either bioengineering or chemical engineering.

"This scholarship will make studying abroad next semester feasible for me," she said. "I'm very excited about it."

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School. three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM. FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM. THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED. Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

EARN YOUR M.D. degree in warm tropical Belize! Contact InterAmerican School of Medical Sciences. 877-DOC-STUDY or on the web at www.interamericanschool.com

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

LEE CREST Apartment within one block from campus. One and two-bedrooms, private parking, on site laundries, water/ trash paid. Electric central heat/ air. $455 and $490. (785)539-7961.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

ONE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE December or January. $335 to $350. (785)587-0399.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300, (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM, Washer/ dryer, fenced 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)537-2323.

145 Roommate Wanted

FOR RENT: one-bedroom, private bathroom, washer/ dryer, all appliances, fenced yard, private parking. $300/ month and split utilities. Water/ trash/ sewage paid. Pet friendly. (316)253-5549.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted. $295/ month plus one-half utilities. Close to campus. Non-smoking. Available immediately. Call (785)229-5572.

ROOMMATE WANTED. $450 a month. One-half utilities. big house, fenced yard. 1024 Houston. Call Scott (785)341-5153.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

WANTED: MALE or female roommates for three-bedroom. Fun, outgoing, clean and classy. (785)799-4202.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath apartment. Water, trash, and cable paid. $480/ month. (785)587-9638.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

DESPERATE MOM/ office manager needs help organizing , sorting, filing in home and office. Flexible hours for hardworking students who like to clean and organize. $6/ hour. Call Chris (785)456-5835.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext 144.

FAST PACED, upbeat office that is loosing a senior and looking for new student help. Position will officially start after finals, however, ideal candidate will begin learning the ropes over the next few months. This is great professional experience for a journalism or marketing student. Help promote K-State's Distance Education Programs while gaining real life experience. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with ability to work during the summer semesters and winter breaks as well. The individual who fills this position will manage information and promote knowledge of it by means of various media. Duties include: writing content/ copy, creating desktop publications, managing online course databases, writing press releases, conducting interviews, etc. This position works with three full-time communication professionals and three part-time student communication specialists. Design experience a plus. Our on campus office operates Monday- Friday, 8:00am- 5:00pm and is eager to work around your schedule. Please apply in person at 23 College Court Building, Public Information Office, Division of Continuing Education (785)532-5888.

310 Help Wanted

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

INTERNET WORK! $8.75- $38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

KITCHEN HELP needed, day and evening shifts. Apply online at kiteslive.com. Click on applications in top right hand corner.

MANPOWER IS now accepting applications for office position in Alma. Weekends only. $9/ hour. Apply in person at 555 Poyntz Ave. Suite 245.

NOW HIRING. Vista Drive In, a locally owned and operated quick service restaurant is adding to our team. Individuals must have a positive attitude and be able to multitask and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We have multiple part-time positions available some daytime hours preferred. KSU students encouraged. Insurance benefits available. We offer meal discounts, flexible hours and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT- Need part-time person to assist with online research, topics are education and criminology. This will be ongoing research until June. Call (785)565-3708 for pay and details.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

NEED ICAT tickets to Texas A&M game. (785)410-5384.

500 transportation

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

"#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

Graphic Design/GTM Sportswear

This part time position is great for a junior or senior in graphic design. Individual must be dependable, self-motivated, organized, and very creative. Excellent attention to detail is a definite plus. Macintosh experience and knowledge of Quark, Photoshop, Illustrator, and OS X preferred. Duties include: Typesetting and layout of ads and other printed marketing materials, preparing samples for photo shoots, and taking digital photos. Individual would ideally be available for 3-4 hour blocks approximately 15-20 hours a week. Send resumes to: GTM Sportswear 520 McCall Rd, Manhattan, Ks. 66502 Attn: Kathy Lindsay or e-mail klindsay@gtm.com.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

DIET | People should read fact labels

Continued from Page 1

saturated fats, it's important to limit your intake of foods containing trans fats," the Web site said. "On average, 2.6 percent of the calories in the typical American diet come from trans fats."

Originally, trans fat was created by replacing saturated fats with vegetable oil. In response to consumers' demand for foods low in saturated fat and cholesterol. The vegetable oil didn't work well, so hydrogenating the oil developed a way to make an ingredient function like saturated fat.

The Web site advises people to use the Nutrition Facts label as a guide to make smart choices.

"A healthy eating plan is one that is low in saturated fats, trans fats, cholesterol, salt and added sugars," according to the site. "(It) emphasizes fruits, vegetables, whole grains and fat-free or low-fat milk and milk products (and) includes lean meats, poultry, fish, beans, eggs and nuts."

Pam Mealiff, senior in dietetics and president of the Student Dietetics Association, said she is sometimes suspicious of foods that state they are "fat-free" or "99 percent fat-free."

"I have to wonder what they had to do in order to make the food that way," she said. "That makes me less inclined to eat that product if they had to take extreme measures to make it that way. I do trust the FDA, but I think about what they put in it to make it that way."

Mealiff said students should be concerned about what they are eating. Not in an obsessive way, but thinking about how it may affect them later in life. She said this is one of the easiest times to form habits that will last for years.

"Health is very valuable," she said. "You may think you can get away with eating whatever you want now, but it may catch up to you later in life. You don't always have to choose the 'light' or 'fat free' items but just think about what you are eating."

BASKETBALL | Wooldridge optimistic about season

Continued from Page 6

The biggest question mark could be Afeli, a 6-foot-9 power forward from the Ivory Coast who joined the Wildcats in August. Afeli will be one of three players, along with junior Tyler Hughes and senior Dramane Diarra, expected to make up for the loss of Massey.

Wooldridge said Afeli has a long way to go before he is prepared for Big 12 play, but Wooldridge said Afeli is working hard to prepare himself for the season.

"I think he's made steady progress," Wooldridge said. "He eventually is going to hit the wall somewhere out there, because this is a brand new experience for this young man. He is a great kid with a great heart, and I think I can see him, when he does hit that wall, take another big step in the right direction in terms of improvement. He's not going to give up on it."

K-State's season starts Nov. 3, with an exhibition match up at Bramlage Coliseum against Global Sports, and officially begins Nov. 18 at home against Georgia Southern.

In the six weeks of practice leading up to the first game, Wooldridge said he hopes to see his team fight to become the team he knows and expects it can be.

"I think they're to the point where they see they're close," Wooldridge said. "They've had enough. They want more. They're more hungry. They understand it more and better, how to get to that point."

Sure you rent, but it's WHAT'S INSIDE that makes it YOUR HOME.

Your landlord's insurance covers the building, not your stuff inside.

For around the cost of a DVD a month, you can get Renters Insurance and protect the things that make your place your home.

Joshua K. Salmans, Agent
463 E. Poyntz
Manhattan, KS 66502
Bus: 785-776-8754
josh.salmans.jxd4@statefarm.com

LIKE A GOOD NEIGHBOR STATE FARM IS THERE.

Providing Insurance and Financial Services

State Farm Fire and Casualty Company, State Farm General Insurance Company-Bloomington, IL; State Farm Florida Insurance Company-Winter Haven, FL

statefarm.com

kstatecollegian.com

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING 532-6560

ADVERTISE HERE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
Call • 532-6560

Service Directory

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 Moro · Manhattan 776-8770
TUESDAY Karaoke Night
Live Oct. 20th
Blue Edmonson & Jackson Taylor
Tickets on Sale Now

www.bobbyts.com
BOBBY TS
Tuesday
60¢ Tacos
$2.00 Margaritas
New Trivia Night
Wednesday
$2.00 Bottles
$7.99 Steak Night
Check out Manhattan's Best Web Site

Oil CHANGE $14.95
Appointment Necessary. No Drop-ins, Please.
WHEN YOU BRING IN THIS AD
Ekart Automotive Services
We Service All Makes of Cars
American & Foreign Cars
• Engine Overhaul • Motor Tune-ups • Complete Brake • Electrical & Automatic Transmission Service • Manual Transmissions & Clutch Repair • Sun Computer Print Out • Diagnostic Center • Air Conditioning Service
776-5110 411 S. 5th St. • 1 Blk. North of Ft. Riley Blvd.

GUMBY DAMN IT
$5.99 Large 1-Topping or Large Pokey Stix
GUMBY'S Pizza
2-FUR TUESDAY
Buy 1 regular priced item get 1 free!
Coupons do not apply.
GUMBY COMBO
$12.99 Large 1Item Pizza 10" Pokey Stix Free 2 Liter
702 N. 11th Street 770-3333

New Donors Can Earn $65 This Week!
EASY INCOME TODAY!
zlbplasma.com
We make it easy for you to earn money today with your life-saving plasma donation.
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway • Manhattan, KS 66502
(785)-776-9177
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.
Good for You. Great for Life.

Your Source for Screenprinting Embroidery Apparel Programs
ARTECH PROMOTIONS INC
1 FREE COLOR on 144 pc. orders thru Oct.
Trophies & Awards Engraving Services Promotional Products
ArTech Promotions • 1126 Moro in Aggieville • 785-539-5775

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:

FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS

Students' Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment

office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 3:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request.

For more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

Low on Cash?
Find savings in the Coupon section.

Kansas State University CAMPUS PHONE BOOK 2005-2006

Available Now
in your Residence Hall
or purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

"Confronting the Obesity Epidemic: Exercise and Nutrition versus Drugs"

An Invited Presentation by:
Dr. Jack H. Wilmore, PhD
Distinguished Professor, Department of Health and Kinesiology, Texas A&M University-Retired

Wednesday, October 19th
1:30 p.m.
Alumni Center Ballroom
1720 Alumni Center

Dr. Jack Wilmore who has authored or co-authored over 300 refereed papers and was president of the American College of Sports Medicine from 1978 to 1979 will be addressing the topic of obesity in this lecture. Dr. Wilmore has served on the editorial board of journals ranging from the International Journal of Obesity to Medicine and Science in Sports and Exercise. He has also been a member of the Science Advisory Board for Runner's World Magazine, a member of the Board of Directors for the National Institute for Fitness and Health, and is currently a member of the North American Society for the Study of Obesity. Dr. Wilmore is an internationally recognized scientist and scholar, who will share his insights on the obesity issue in the address.

Sponsored by:
The Kinesiology Student Association
In affiliation with the Community Health Institute and the Kinesiology Department at Kansas State University

UNIVERSITY DISTINGUISHED LECTURE

"Academic Advising is Teaching: A Campus-wide Responsibility"

Tues., Oct. 18, 2005, 1:30 p.m., K-State Alumni Center

Dr. Nancy King, Vice President, Kennesaw State University, will present "Academic Advising is Teaching: A Campus-wide Responsibility." This lecture is sponsored by the University Distinguished Lecture Series, KSU College of Education, KSU Academic Advising Council, the National Academic Advising Association (NACADA), and the KSU Student Affairs Graduate Association (SAGA).

"Dr. Nancy King is an internationally renowned expert in the field of academic advising and student persistence to graduation. As a tenured faculty member and administrator, Dr. King brings the unique perspective of a faculty member from a state university as well as a wealth of experience working directly with an advising model like K-State's. This model blends the efforts of both professional advisors and faculty advisors to provide the highest quality learning experiences for students throughout their higher education."—Dr. Michael Holen, Dean, College of Education

ATTENTION STUDENTS!!!

The KSU Controllers Office is pleased to announce a new tuition billing method.

Beginning October 15, 2005 you will have access to your monthly statement online through a link from your KATS account. A notification of the availability of each monthly bill will be sent to your KSU e-mail account. For your convenience we will continue to send paper bills for the next several months.

For additional information please visit the Cashier Website at HYPERLINK "http://www.ksu.edu/pay" www.ksu.edu/pay, or you may visit our office at 212 Anderson Hall.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sub. Exp. Date --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

Style Guide, Page 8

www.kstatecollegian.com Wednesday, October 19, 2005 Vol. 110, No. 43

Kato addresses Middle East in lecture

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The United States and Japan are working closely together to rebuild the Middle East, said Ryozo Kato, Japanese ambassador to the United States, in the 139th Landon Lecture Tuesday in McCain Auditorium.

"We have been working to help the devastated country of Iraq get back on its feet – politically, economically and structurally," he said.

Kato said Japan's efforts in rebuilding Iraq include medical assistance and repairing roads and schools.

"Some are skeptical that democracy will not work in the Middle East, but the same was said about Japan," he said. "The skepticism has been proved wrong, and I believe it will be proved wrong in the Middle East, too."

Japan also did not hesitate in its efforts to help the United States after Sept. 11, Kato said.

"The day was a dark one for a friend and an ally," he said.

Japan has supplied approximately 30 to 40 percent of fuel consumed by U.S. and allied vessels in the war, Kato said.

Kato was appointed as ambassador in 2001, and he served as the deputy minister for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs from 1999 to 2001.

During the question and answer session, President Jon Wefald asked Kato when beef trade between the United States and Japan will resume. Japan banned beef imports from the United States in December 2003 after mad cow disease was found in a Canadian-born cow in Washington state.

"The Japanese government has already agreed to the conditions set by Japan's Food Safety Commission," Kato said. "Trade will resume before the end of the year."

John Harder, senior in electrical and computer engineering, said he was impressed with Kato's honesty.

"He was more honest and less political," said Harder, who studied abroad last year in Japan and is minoring in Japanese. "I was very impressed with that aspect of his presentation."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Ambassador of Japan to the United States, Ryozo Kato, shows his love for K-State by flashing the sweatshirt he wore under his suit coat during the 139th Landon Lecture Tuesday afternoon in McCain Auditorium.

Parking, TABOR to be discussed

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Kansas Board of Regents will meet today and Thursday for a monthly state meeting. Board members and university officials will address Board of Regents' policies, university tuition and allocations. Some of the issues, as many student senators said during their last meeting, are pertinent to the K-State student body.

TAXPAYER BILL OF RIGHTS

The Taxpayer Bill of Rights is a resolution that puts caps on government surplus spending, state representative Brenda Landwehr, R-Kan., said. She also said the resolution is designed to save the state up to $8.4 billion.

"We have a 30-year track record that

See BOARD Page 12

Up all night

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Wearing sombreros, Members of Quest and Blue Key Honorary sign letters to send to friends and family for donations to help St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Tuesday evening in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. Teams were asked to fill out 50 letters to mail asking for donations.

Construction begins downtown

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The City of Manhattan started the reconstruction process of Poyntz Avenue this week. City commissioners recently approved the project, which will convert Poyntz Avenue from four to two lanes and add parking stalls in the area, among other improvements.

Robert Ott, Manhattan city engineer, said the city started the project Monday, and people should see some results immediately.

"Employees are out there in the early morning, blocking out existing parking stalls near the 300 block," he said.

City engineers plan to work from the 300 block and move toward the 500 block, making the parking stalls consistent in size. By doing so, Ott said the project will add more than 30 parking

See POYNTZ Page 12

Cheryl Prieb, junior in finance, right, helps Briann Miller, junior in dietetics, put on her angel wings during the Up 'Til Dawn letter signing event Tuesday night. Prieb and Miller were in a part of team angel which consisted of three other girls.

K-State Up 'Til Dawn philanthropy has record amount of teams in nation

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Up 'Til Dawn at K-State has the largest amount of teams involved in the nation this year. The collegiate philanthropy raises money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and has never had a college with more than 100 teams involved, until this year.

The Up 'Til Dawn philanthropy from K-State has more than 130 teams volunteering to help St. Jude raise money.

"This is very empowering and very exciting for the hospital," said Stacia Williams, coexecutive director and senior in mass communications.

All the teams came together at the letter writing party in the K-State Student Union and wrote letters to family, friends and people from Manhattan, asking them

See DAWN Page 12

Miss Kansas 2005 Adrienne Rosel, of Liberal, Kan., left, shows her crown to Izabelle Cunningham, 5, during a visit to Manhattan on Tuesday evening at Carlos O'Kellys.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Miss Kansas visits, talks with students while on school tour

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

All work and little play makes Miss Kansas, well, Miss Kansas.

Adrienne Rosel, 2005 Miss Kansas, came to Manhattan Oct. 18 to greet people at Carlos O'Kellys, 100 Manhattan Town Center.

On July 11, Rosel won the Miss Kansas crown and said she hasn't had a dull moment since.

Rosel is currently on a school tour where she talks to students about challenges, obstacles and how to find success.

Aside from schools, she speaks to community groups such as Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis International. She also models at benefits like the Oct. 17 benefit, which helped to raise money for lupus research.

"It's a full time job. I work 24/7," Rosel said.

The job requires much in the way of time and travel, which she said can be time consuming.

"I don't have any co-workers, I probably sleep in at least 4 different places a week, and so, I'm always on the go," Rosel said.

But despite the difficulties, she

See MISS KANSAS Page 12

Today

High 72
Low 53

Thursday

High 62
Low 45

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Saddam on trial today
Saddam Hussein's lawyer said he will ask a tribunal for a three-month adjournment of Hussein's trial. Hussein goes on trial today to face charges of ordering the killings of nearly 150 people from the mainly Shiite town of Dujail, Iraq.

Page 11

Soldier charged
Rep. Steven LaTourette announced plans Monday to challenge charges brought by the Army against 2nd Lt. Erick Anderson, 26. Anderson, a Fort Riley, Kan., soldier, was charged in the deaths of two Iraqi civilians. Anderson said it was a mercy killing.

Father remains jailed
Jay Daniel Decker, 26, charged with first-degree murder in the death of his 5-month-old daughter will not be allowed to attend the baby's funeral after a judge declined to lower his bond. The child was killed Friday. Her autopsy showed the child died of physical abuse.

DON'T FORGET

Dr. Jack H. Wilmore, retired distinguished professor at Texas A&M, will speak at 1:30 p.m. today in the K-State Alumni Center Ballroom about "Confronting the Obesity Epidemic: Exercise and Nutrition versus Drugs."

The last day to sign up for the A/Pass/F grading option for a course with 56-62 calendar days is Friday.

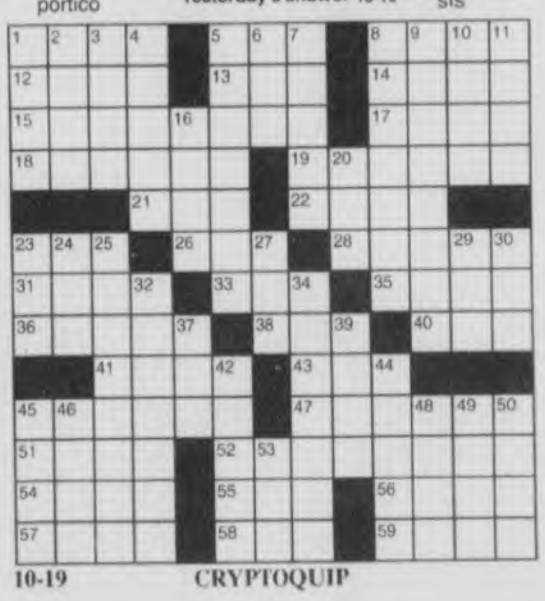
Positive Image Chalking will be from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. today north of Hale library.

See our listings in the Classifieds.
DIAMOND
REAL ESTATE PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
785-537-7701

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 One of the Three Bears
5 — Tech
8 Square
12 Actor Sharif
13 Three-match link
14 Unembellished
15 Not paraphrased
17 Cheese selection
18 Exact amounts of money?
19 Pointed a finger at 21 Carnival city
22 One's performance
23 Gun the engine
26 Moreover
28 Combine crudely
31 Vicinity
33 Part of R.S.V.P.
35 Old portico
36 "Lost Horizon" actress
38 Zero-star review
40 Drone
41 Lummoxes
43 "Of course"
45 Set off
47 Votes off the island
51 First culprit
52 Upright
54 Rudimentary education
55 Mom of 51-Across
56 Therefore
57 Tidy
58 "Awesome, dude!"
59 Concupiscence

DOWN
1 Relocate
2 NYSE counterpart
3 Shopping center
4 Viny shelter
5 Corduroy and calico
6 Blackbird
7 "Silence of the —"
8 Preserves, in a way
9 Martini ingredient
10 Canal zone?
11 Require
16 Met melody
20 Alamos lead-in
23 Aries
24 History chapter
25 Betty's rival for Archie's attention
27 Party bowlful
29 Old French coin
30 Scenery chewer
32 Con
34 In tiers
37 O'er and o'er
39 Barbershop call
42 Cut off
44 Sales pitch
45 "— See Clearly Now"
46 Kaplan who played Kotter
48 Beige
49 Brings up the rear
50 Coin aperture
53 Zsa Zsa's sis

Solution time: 21 mins.

P	A	T	H		F	L	Y		S	H	A	D
O	B	O	E		L	E	E		M	O	N	O
T	U	R	N	D	O	W	N		A	U	T	O
S	T	Y		R	O	D		S	C	R	I	M
			T	A	R		O	A	K
C	A	R	R	Y		S	U	N	D	A	Y	S
A	S	E	A		J	O	T		O	L	E	O
W	I	T	C	H	E	S		S	W	E	P	T
			K	I	T		B	O	N
S	L	I	D	E		Z	O	O		P	S	I
W	A	C	O		B	U	R	N	D	O	W	N
A	V	O	W		O	L	E		O	R	A	N
M	A	N	N		B	U	D		G	E	T	S

Yesterday's answer 10-19

10-19 CRYPTOQUIP

QJ MDT IBDTRBI WYIESCC LWUS VWC LTCI QUYESXQZAS, Q RTSCC MDT VDTAX ZS ESWAAM JDUXW BSE.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: CHEAP MEALS SERVED IN ANCIENT GREECE OUGHT TO HAVE BEEN NAMED BLUE PLATO SPECIALS.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: C equals S

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from the nation's universities

Smoking may lower IQ, brain function

ANN ARBOR, Mich. – Many smokers say one of the main benefits of their habit is a feeling of alertness and an increased ability to focus after lighting up. But smoking to improve mental proficiency may only be a quick fix. According to a new study led by University of Michigan researchers, long-term tobacco use in men is associated with a weakened thinking ability and lowered IQ.

The study did not find a causal relationship between smoking and lowered brain function, said Jennifer Glass, an assistant professor of psychiatry and lead author of the findings. But the correlation – an unexpected finding from a study originally intended to examine the effects of long-term alcoholism on the brain – calls attention to the need for further research on the connection between smoking and brain function, Glass said.

"In looking at cognitive function and how it relates to drinking, I wondered how other variables, such as additional drug use, might have an influence," Glass said. "That is when it was found that smoking had a correlation."

In addition to validating previous findings that alcoholism affects IQ and thinking ability, the researchers discovered that long-term smoking diminished the neurocognitive function and IQ of men, regardless of whether the men had alcohol problems. This impact was evident in many areas, such as short-term memory, verbal and mathematical reasoning and visual spatial processing.

The findings have provoked mixed reactions from some students, especially those who smoke, such as junior Dave Jones.

Jones, who characterizes himself as a "social smoker" smokes once or twice a week and said although there are issues with the sample and procedure of the study, findings like these further deter him from smoking.

"I'm not worried about becoming a long-term smoker, and maybe there would be more of an impact if I was," Jones said, "but, if well-supported, (this finding) is another reason to stop."

In the future, Glass hopes to find whether brain function improves for people who quit smoking, in addition to investigating the association between tobacco use and cognitive function in adolescents and women.

"What we might see is that people start smoking and get temporary benefits, but with negative effects in the long term," she said. "The most important thing is that smoking is related to cognitive function and that further research is needed."

"But (this finding) could be one other reason for people to quit smoking if they are smoking now," Glass added.

U. NEW MEXICO BANS FACEBOOK

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. – University of New Mexico student Nikiyah Gill tried to visit Facebook.com from Dane Smith Hall last week, but a message popped up saying the page could not be found.

After she tried to visit the site from two more computers, she decided to call the university's computing and information resources and technology service.

"CIRT told me that it was legal issues, and that's all they could disclose," she said. "They said someone higher up said the Facebook was no longer allowed."

The site allows users to post a picture of themselves as well as personal information such as phone numbers, class schedules and favorite music, movies and books. Users can send messages to each other and post comments on an individual's page.

Jeff Gassaway, a security administrator for CIRT, said the site was blocked for several reasons. He said the site regularly sent large amounts of unsolicited e-mail to the university's faculty, staff and students, which slows down university servers. He said CIRT regularly blocks sites and computers that send out a lot of spam.

CIRT was concerned with the site because it required students to use their UNM Net ID to register, Gassaway said. He said because the site looked similar to the university site, several students used the same password for their Facebook account as for their university e-mail account.

"If it didn't mandate the use of UNM credentials, nobody would really care about it," he said. "But they're kind of encroaching on UNM's data stewardship responsibilities."

He said the site is not secure, and it would be easy for someone to steal a password, which they could use to access a student's university account.

Gassaway said the detailed personal information available on the site could make students targets for identity theft as well as stalking.

"There are people out there whose intent is perhaps not as socially desirable as it could be," he said. "We don't want by any means to be fear mongering, but identity theft is a real concern."

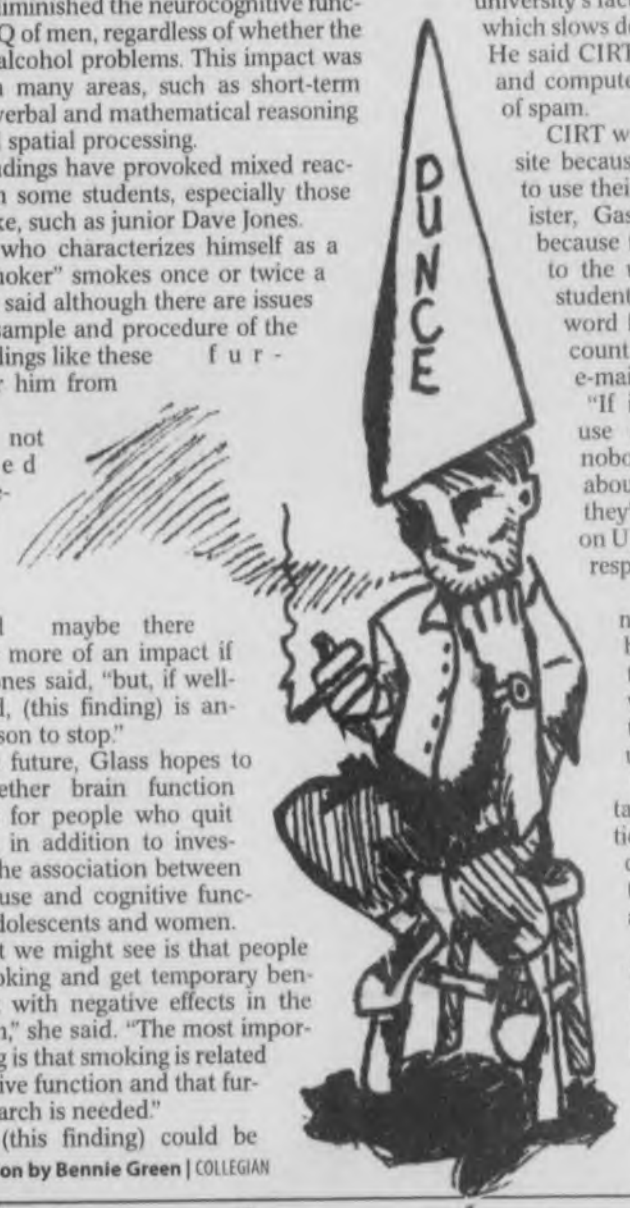

Illustration by Bennie Green | COLLEGIAN

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Monday, Oct. 17

- Kody Kemp, 201 Riverchase, was arrested at 11:55 a.m. for probation violation. Bond was not set.
- Todd Palmer, 2632 Tiana Terrace, was arrested at 1:25 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $35.
- Michelle Merkle, 1519 Pierre St., was arrested at 1:30 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $100.
- Jessica Miller, Burlington, Kan., was arrested at 1:40 p.m. for criminal damage to property. Bond was set at $2,000.
- Savannah Cohn, 4620 Eureka Drive, was arrested at 10:01 p.m. for aggravated battery. Bond was not set.
- Alejandra Juarez, 2410 Greenbriar Drive, Apt. F, was arrested at 11:40 p.m. for burglary and aggravated arson. Bond was set at $5,000.

Tuesday, Oct. 18

- Emmanuel Ross, Leavenworth, Kan., was arrested at 1:35 a.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $500.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A RefWorks class will be from 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. today at Hale 408.
- The Kinesiology Student Association will meet about confronting the obesity epidemic at 1:30 p.m. today at the K-State Alumni Center.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Coors Lt. 12pk $7.99
Miller Lt. 20pk $11.99
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor

78% of our readers clip coupons
Kansas State Collegian
532-6560

Houseplants
Starting at $3.99
plus Lucky Bamboo, Bonsai, Cactus Horticultural Services
35th Year Garden Center
M-Sat 9-6
Sun 12-6
776-5764
2 mi E. of Manhattan Mall on Hwy. 24

Catch the COLLEGIAN GAMEDAY
every Friday before home games.

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips
with student ID
expires 11/20/05
K NAILS
2026 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444

SUMMER STAFF Positions
WE CAMP WAR EAGLE
Camp War Eagle
Come to our Kansas State University Video Presentation:
Wednesday October 19th, at 8:00 p.m.
Room 207
Student Union
A brand new Christian sports and adventure camp for boys and girls ages 7-17, located on Beaver Lake east of Rogers, AR, is now accepting applications for summer staff positions.
CAMP WAR EAGLE... BE A HERO!!!
22820 Camp Eagle Rd. Rogers, AR 72756
(479) 751-8899 www.campwareagle.org

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 776-8770 Manhattan 1115 MORO
W.Dnesday
B 104.7 Birthday Party Live Remote: 8-10
Ladies' Night
$2 Wells • $2 Bottles
In concert tomorrow night:
Jackson Taylor Band & Blue Edmonson
Tickets on sale now!

Gumby Combo
Large 1-item pizza
+ 10" Pokey Stix
+ Free 2-Liter
$12.99
Fast Delivery Dine-In Carry-Out
Gumby Damnit
Large 1-Topping pizza or Large pokey stix for $5.99
GUMBY'S
50¢ Pizza Rolls
Sauces Extra
770-3333
702 N. 11th Street
Sunday 11 a.m.-2 a.m.
Mon.-Wed. 11 a.m.-2:30 a.m.
Thur.-Sat. 11 a.m.-3:30 a.m.

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS
for more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm
Students' Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 3:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request.

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
Free Consumer & Tenant Advice
for more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm
The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.
Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment

200 volunteers serve

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

About 200 volunteers are observing Community Service Week this week by helping 11 local service agencies, Monica Parrish, office manager for the Community Service Program, said.

Volunteers have been raking leaves, doing general clean-ups and participating in activities with residents at Stoneybrook Retirement Community.

The Manhattan Arts Center, 1520 Poyntz Ave., had about five volunteers on Monday and Tuesday, Penny Senften, executive director of the center, said. More volunteers will be there Thursday and Saturday to paint the walls of the lobby.

"It's getting done fairly fast," Senften said. "We always like having them. They do a wonderful job."

The week ends with Saturday's Make a Difference Day, when volunteers will place fish habitats in Tuttle Creek Reservoir. Parrish said she hopes to have 100 volunteers from K-State, the Flint Hills Job Corps Center and the community. On Tuesday, there were 25 K-State students signed up, and Parrish said she would like to see 40 participate.

However, Parrish said the K-State football game against Texas A&M University has hindered recruitment for Make a Difference Day.

Judith Lynch, director of the Academic Assistance Center, requires her University Experience students to complete a career exploration assignment that includes three options: six community service hours and a written paper, a written career action plan or a job shadow and interview. At least one-third of the students choose community service and between 100 and 200 took part in Community Service Week to complete the hours, Lynch said.

She said the volunteer experiences students have can show them what they may or may not want to do as a career.

"A student can learn so much from the experience as well as give back to the community," Lynch said.

Mary Tolar, director of Kansas Campus Compact, said students should give back to their community. Kansas Campus Compact is a statewide organization for community service and civic engagement.

"It gives students an opportunity to connect in meaningful ways to the community they call home during their college years," Tolar said.

Notre Dame Mens' Glee Club visits

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

From singing medieval hymns to belting "Under the Sea," from "The Little Mermaid," the University of Notre Dame Glee Club entertained nearly 100 Manhattan residents Tuesday evening.

St. Thomas More Catholic Church, 2900 Kimball Ave., was the site for the concert and, for some, it was more than just music to the heart.

The concert performance was very special to John Carlin, Manhattan resident and former Kansas Governor.

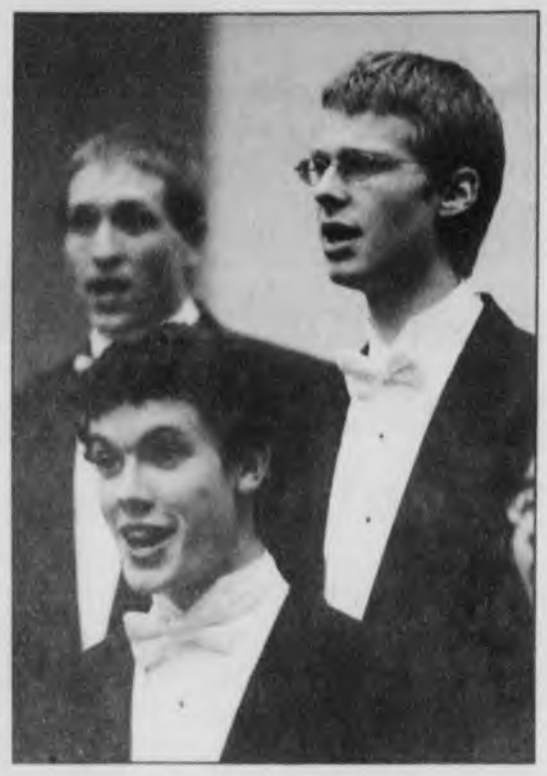
"I love it because my son was a member, and they were here in 1996," he said. "We even got to travel with them before."

Although hosting the concert was more of a spontaneous decision, Carlin said he did not mind working with the community to show the group the city's support.

"We're glad to have them here because they're in of the finest and best men's choirs in the country," Carlin said.

Emily Clement, senior in secondary education, said she also had a special connection to the choir group.

"I actually went to high school with one of these guys, so it was really fun to run into him," she said.



Clement, a member of the St. Isidore Catholic Student Center choir, said based on her experience, the group showed plenty of skill as they sang multiple songs in a variety of languages.

Founded in 1915, the Notre Dame Glee Club has performed extensively around the world, including a three-week trip in Central America, as well as performing in Europe and Asia. More than 2,000 men have sung in the group, and currently, there are 34 choir members.

Throughout the year, the choir performs more than 100 concerts. The glee club has also released six albums.

With a group with that much talent and experience, Clement said the singing throughout the night amazed her.

"It's really impressive to hear the melodies, harmonies and range of dynamics that they sing."

The University of Notre Dame Glee Club performs at St. Thomas More Catholic Church Tuesday evening. The group was founded in 1915.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com

modern woodmen of america

Take control of your retirement planning with a TSA

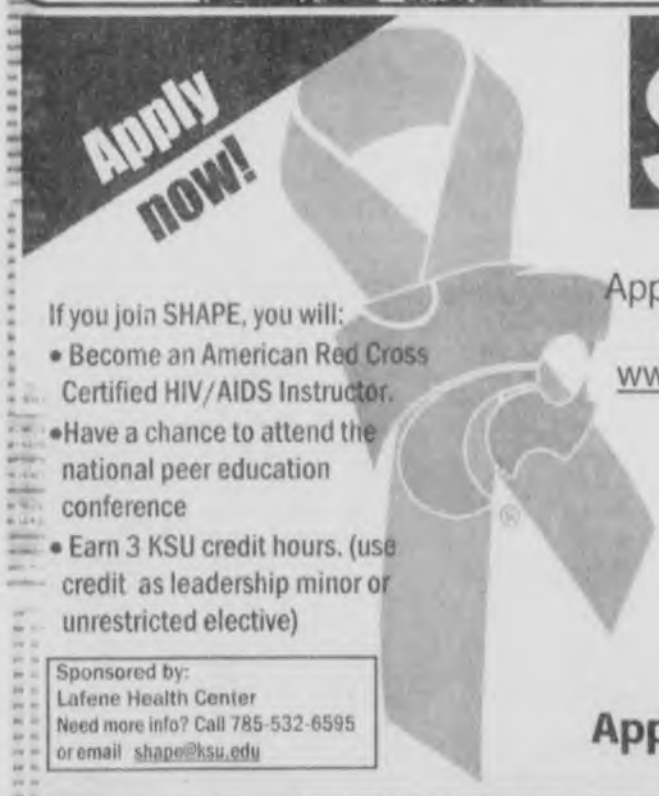
Consider these advantages of a TSA:
- Contributions made on a pretax basis.
- Salary deduction provides for a convenient contribution method.
- Contributions and potential earnings are not subject to federal income tax until time of distribution.

Modern Woodmen provides a number of funding vehicles for your TSA. Select from fixed and variable annuities, as well as mutual funds, to fund your retirement.

We offer fraternal financial services. As a fraternal, we also provide member benefits to enrich your family and community. Call today and find out if a TSA is right for you.

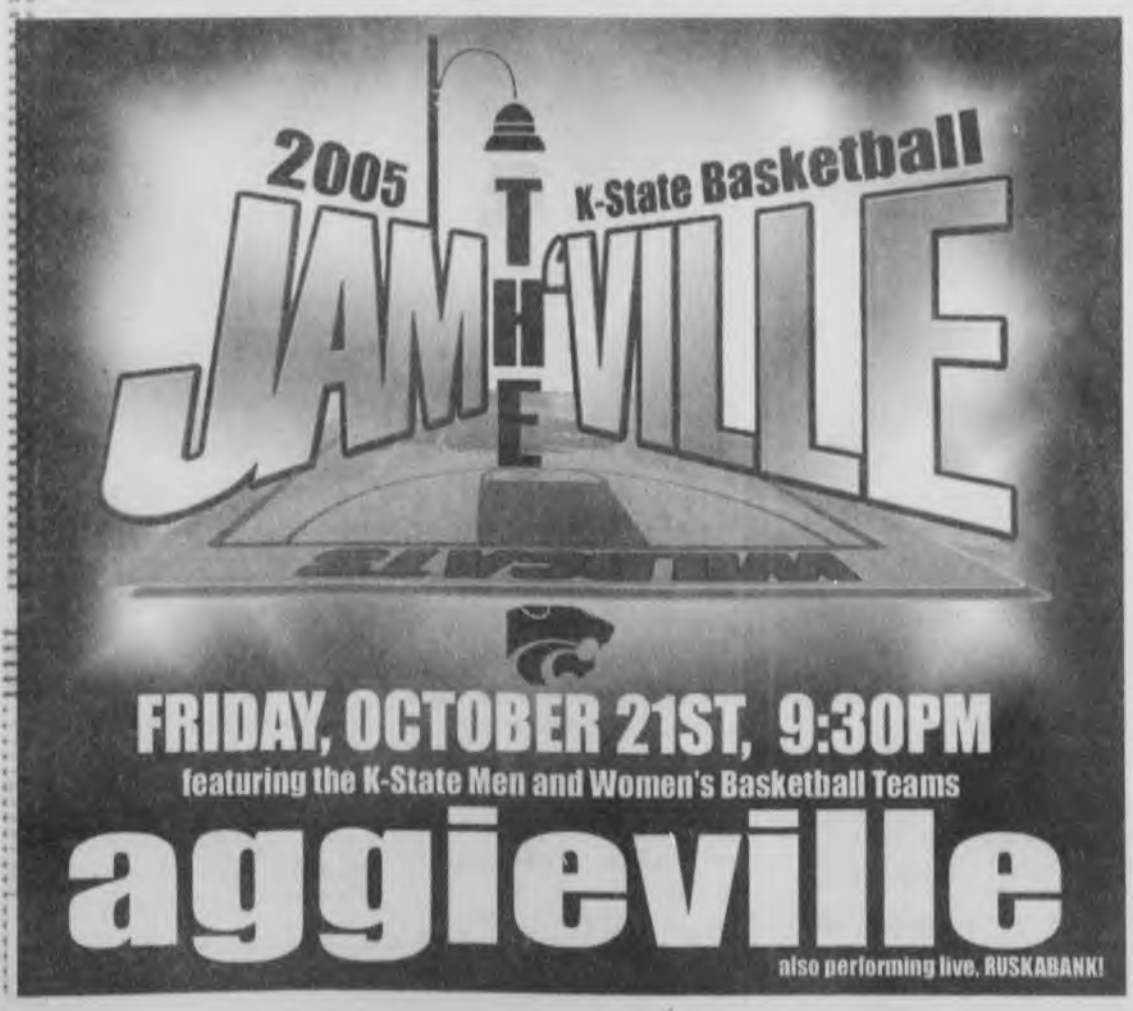
Modern Woodmen is approved by the Kansas Board of Regents as a TSA Provider.

Joe Belardo* FIC, LUTCF
Junction City, KS
785-238-5648



Bruce Burdiff* FIC
Topeka, KS
785-234-8600

MODERN WOODMEN OF AMERICA
Fraternal Financial Services
www.modern-woodmen.org



*Registered representatives. Securities offered through MWA Financial Services, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Modern Woodmen of America. 1701 1st Avenue, Rock Island, IL 61201. 309-558-3100. Member NASD, SIPC.
Shares of securities products are not deposits or obligations of any bank, are not guaranteed by any bank, are not insured by the FDIC or any other agency, and involve investment risks, including the possible loss of the principal amount invested. Fraternal representatives may not be licensed to sell all products.

Touching lives. Securing futures.®

ALPHA XI DELTA

Congratulations to our new initiates!

Danielle Accurso
Abbey Brockman
Joanne Rayer
Elizabeth Qualizza
Paige Schnakenberg
Cara McCoy
Mackenzie Mills
Amanda Hill
Alison Hadley
Jenny Karlan
Mallory Howlett
Catrina Compagnone
Alyssa Kimek
Moriah Davidson
Kate Zimmerman
Nicki Kennedy
Makenzie Provorse
Amy Schultz
Amanda Capehart
Sara Podrebarac
Lauren Hanson
Morgan Walter
Kyndal Potter
Megan Watts
Kelly Hunter
Allie Ryan
Maggie Wright
Gina Newsham
Sarah Pavelka
Meghan Butler
Jenny Gleason
Maggie Gillam
Kim Maguire
Keesha Holste
Jillian Plummer
Amanda White
Kelly Hemeyer

Xi love and TFJ,
Your sisters

OPINION

TO THE POINT

Students should give back to community

K-State students often get a bad rap in Manhattan. There are too many of them, making too much noise and throwing too much garbage in too many people's yards.

As hokey as Community Service Week sounds, it represents a very real chance for students to make a positive impression in the area – and the possibilities are virtually limitless.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

According to the most recent census data, the city has nearly 3,500 residents over the age of 65, many of whom are unable to rake leaves and do heavy labor at their homes to prepare for winter. Take an afternoon to help someone out.

There are also nearly 10,000 residents who reside below the poverty line, representing almost a fourth of the city's population. Consider donating to the Flint Hills Breadbasket or getting in touch with the city's Community Service Program to make life a little easier for the less fortunate.

Even simple things like picking up trash in your yard or visiting the elderly at retirement communities can make Manhattan a better place to live.

Make a Difference Day on Saturday, where volunteers will help build fish habitats in Tuttle Creek Reservoir is a great chance to do something worthwhile – but only 25 K-State students had signed up to help as of Tuesday.

Don't give Manhattan residents a reason to be apathetic toward students.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Out of context

Society placing too much emphasis on people's words instead of their actions

KELSEY CHILDRESS

In London this week, a woman received a stern warning from a policeman after describing the driver who hit her car and sped away as "fat." He reportedly told her that "pudgy" was okay, but she was certainly not allowed to use the "f-word." How ridiculous. It's not the police officer's job to tell a grown woman how to speak as if she was a little girl.

This news story is a good example of the overwhelming concern for political correctness in our society. It seems that almost anything these days can be misconstrued as a slur, a threat or an obscenity. The news headlines reveal our society places more emphasis on words than actions.

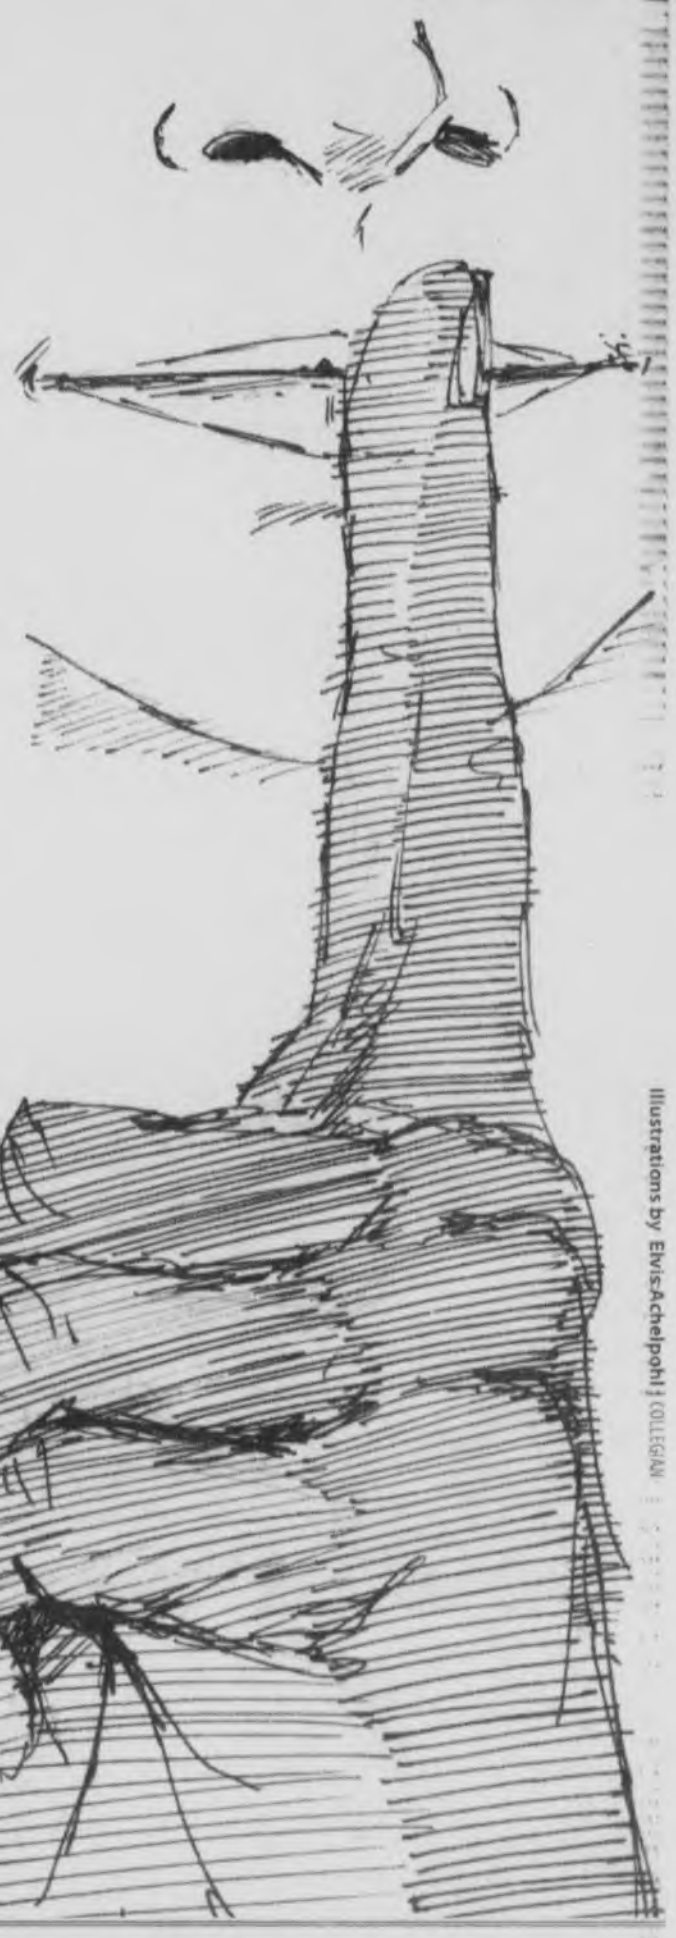
According to Philip Atkinson, a writer who published a study on the "decline of civilization" online at www.ourcivilisation.com, says that political correctness is "to prevent people being offended; to compel everyone to avoid using words or behavior that may upset homosexuals, women, non-whites, the crippled, the mentally impaired, the fat or the ugly."

Most people believe that being politically correct (i.e. using "African-American" rather than "black") will somehow make the "melting pot" that is America a more decent place to live. Contrary to this popular belief, decency to others and respect for all people cannot begin until there is understanding of culture and ways of life.

Clearly, the labels are not only for races but for homosexuals. In today's context, using the word "gay" to mean "stupid" or "ugly" is the best example of what our culture has morphed into – using terms that are taken out of context and placed in conversation to be derogatory.

Each person has his or her own identity: a culture - family traditions, or even a primary language other than English.

In America, we expect those who weren't born here to adapt to our fast-moving, hectic way of life, but when we visit overseas, we also expect signs, menus, newspapers and phonebooks to be written in our native tongue. No wonder everyone dislikes us.



Did anyone ask "Native" Americans what they wanted to be called? It's difficult to say they would have chosen "Indian Americans" or just plain "Indians." (Perpetuating the term "Indian" is ridiculous, considering that is what Columbus called the natives thinking he had reached India.) What about "Asian" and "African" Americans? It's not really okay to label several different races and cultures into one group simply because they may be from the same area.

Should "white" people be called Caucasian-Americans? European-Americans?

It is easy to see where one gets confused. Simply pronouncing a name correctly or observing another's right to a religious holiday is an easy way to be polite without having to worry about political correctness.

In an age where using the term "sexual harassment" must be pronounced HAIR-uss-ment rather than her-ASS-ment because of the "ass," understanding differences first can easily prevent the constant discussion of what to label different races or groups, and then ultimately, people.

Kelsey Childress is a sophomore in English literature and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Elvis Achelpohl | COLLEGIAN

Studying abroad can be dangerous

KODY COOPER

Many K-State students dream of studying overseas at some point in their academic careers. So, as a public service to my peers, I will selflessly use my column to tell a story of epic proportions – the legendary tale known as "The Study Abroadyssey."

Once upon a semester, after warring the last 10 years against the Trojans (and all forms of contraception), the study abroad storms washed our hero onto the shores of the strange land of Spain.

Young Kodysseus awkwardly stuck out among the indigenous Spanish tribes. His blonde hair, adorned with a backwards "KC" hat, was foreign to the trim Spanish brunettes. Khaki shorts, hoodie and flip-flops completed the ensemble.

Little did Kodysseus know, such décor was grounds for death penalty via human sacrifice in Spain. However, he was more clever than your average tenured professor. He simply feigned to those socialist savages that he was a liberal surfer dude from Southern California.

That pacified them, all right. Of course, Spain is quite familiar with pacifism. Just ask al-Qaeda.

Kodysseus marveled at this foreign land. Catholic churches and bars dotted every corner. He admired the beautiful juxtaposition of ornate Virgin Mary murals with ornate beer advertisements. After a condescending chuckle, Kodysseus felt guilty.

"I shouldn't laugh at the Spaniards," he thought, "I should try to reach out and understand this hypocritical culture." So one Sunday, he sat through a Spanish Mass.

¡Que sorpresa! Indeed, he felt a strong desire to go drink alcohol afterwards. Thankfully, Spanish law mandates a bar within a block of every church.

After several months of wandering in search of his beloved homeland of America, Kodysseus was beginning to tire. Would he ever again scale the purple mountains and frolic the fruited plains?

One shadowy Spanish night, our antagonist was allured by the sounds of Sirens. His eyes lit up. Interposed with the Sirens were shouts of "Yeah! Yeah!" Usher's plangent beats irresistibly beckoned Kodysseus.

Little did he know, the Usher Sirens weren't coming from a dance club. Turning the corner, Kodysseus found himself in a deserted alley.

"Americano estupido." The snide insult coincided with a violent shove in Kodysseus's back. Whirling around, Kodysseus saw two silhouetted indigenous Spaniards. The talker set down the beguiling boombox as both drew 9-inch butterfly knives.

With accented anti-American hatred, one sniveling Spaniard hissed, "When the two towers fell, it was so beautiful." His serpent grin was blood curdling.

A helium gas cloud of rage ballooned and rose in the throat of Kodysseus. The characterization of mass murder of Americans as "beautiful" made Kodysseus contemplate Rex Kwon Do-ing both these fools.

Sure, a couple roundhouse kicks would drop them easily, but Kodysseus desired to defeat their inferior worldview. In Sun-Tzuian fashion, he studied the two foes.

Both wore Nike tennis shoes, Levi jeans and Fossil watches. Their Gap blazers bore post-McDonalds ketchup stains. Kodysseus erupted into ecstatic laughter. He explained, "I'm sorry, it's just so funny to me. You say you abhor America and hate Americans, but you sure enjoy American products sold by Americans, don't you?"

The Iberian imbeciles were dumbfounded. Their hypocrisy was laid bare. Intellectually defeated, they lowered their blades and slithered away.

Kodysseus' story whispers words of wisdom: fear not ye study-abroaders, Europeans' anti-American sentiment is actually veiled envy. Embrace patriotism – it just might save your life.

Kody Cooper is a senior in political science and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

I follow my scholastic dreams through the inspiring words of Ralph Wiggum: "When I grow up, I wanna be a principal or a caterpillar."

Hey Jonas Hogg, where do you get off playing the sympathy card about a friend home from Iraq when mothers whose children are dead are just a bunch of liars out to ruin your good time?

To whoever stole my sunglasses last Saturday night, I want them back.

So pretty much you're allowed to date one girl per sorority. Then you're screwed.

Stupidity hurts.

I don't know what to attack first, the poor writing style or the obvious lack of thought behind the argument.

If you pick out a movie, for instance Hitch, and thought it sucked, don't be a whiner. After all, you picked it out.

I'm glad the drinking age isn't 18 so I don't have to put up with all the ditsy freshman sorority girls at the bar.

Where the hell was the rave?

OMG. The Ashlee Simpson show is back on. I can't lie, I love her.

Over the weekend, my roommate tried to microwave a baked potato wrapped in foil. She didn't know that it would catch fire.

I really don't want another anti-Bush event in my e-mail, thanks UFM.

To the person who drives the truck in the parking lot who left their tailgate down — shut it or I'm going to hit it.

So really, who would win in a rumble, the Munchkins or the Oompa Loompas?

Damn Microsoft. They need to update the sarcasm filter because it's just not up to code anymore.

How am I suppose to commit to a guy when I can't even commit to a shampoo?

Boys are like purses, I want a new one like every week.

SWF: looking for SWM, non-smoker, non-ugly.

Does anyone know the physics behind the short cut on Rainbow Road in Mario-Kart 64? I've been trying to figure it out all night.

I just saw Butters the Squirrel foraging for nuts. I feel sorry for the guy he had pinned down on the grass.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Katie Lester | COLLEGIAN
Dave Lewis, KMAN-AM 1350 radio personality, works during his morning news and talk show titled "In Focus" at the KMAN studio. Lewis has worked for the station for nearly 13 years.

'In Focus' host to leave

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After nearly 13 years as a voice for the Manhattan community, KMAN-AM 1350 radio personality Dave Lewis is making his final broadcast.

He is host to the morning news and talk show "In Focus," which is broadcast on KMAN every day at 9:00 a.m. He also has daily airtime on country station KXZB-FM 104.7 FM from 10:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m.

Lewis has been employed with KMAN radio since 1991. A turning point in his career came in 1993, when floods were ravaging the Midwest. Terrified local citizens remained tuned in to KMAN for up-to-date information, which is what Dave Lewis was there to provide to them.

"The '93 floods are definitely up there," Lewis said. "There have been a lot of things that I've been a part of – fundraising events, helping injured families, civic events, Purple Power Play on Poyntz, parades in Aggieville – it's so tough to think about what might be the most memorable."

Just two days after Sept. 11, Lewis organized a rally, allowing local citizens to be together and grieve.

"That is something I'm very proud of," he said.

After 25 years in the radio business, working for both KMAN and smaller stations in the state, he is turning in his headset to pursue another interest.

In 1979, Lewis founded an entertainment company called All Star Midwest Inc. Since then, the company has extended to six states and consists of 65 employees.

"I need to be able to devote more time to a company growing so rapidly," he said.

The entertainment company consists of four separate enterprises: All Star DJ, a special occasion DJ service catering mainly to Manhattan and the surrounding area, BarPoker.com, an online poker tournament extending into six states, the Game Show Road Show and the Lawn Chair Theatre.

The Lawn Chair Theatre consists of a 26-foot-wide inflatable movie screen that can be rented to accommodate large groups (up to 5,000 people). This theater has been used to show five movies outside of Hale Library already this semester.

All Star Midwest Entertainment has also been active in California and Florida, and is currently looking at expanding their business into two more regions, Lewis said.

However, there is more than career endeavors involved in Lewis' decision to leave the station.

He is also looking forward to more time at home with his wife and 10-year-old daughter.

"A lot of people within the community kind of thought of Dave as their voice of what's going on in Manhattan. They tune into him every day," Rich Wartell, President and General Manager of KMAN Radio, said. "He's been a valuable employee and we are going to miss him and the qualities he brings to the station."

New Lafene directors settle in

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With his three-month adjustment period coming to a close, Dr. Robert J. Tackett is settling into his job as the new medical director of Lafene Health Center.

Tackett and Dr. Leslie Garner, the new director of physical therapy at Lafene, were appointed to their new positions in August.

Tackett received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Kansas in 1983 and his medical degree from the University of Kansas School of Medicine in 1987. He did his family practice residency at Wesley Medical Center in Wichita.

In July 1990, Tackett began practicing family medicine at the Cotton-O'Neil Clinic in Wamego, Kan., and continued there until offered the position at Lafene.

"I've been in private practice for 15 years and wasn't looking for anything else," Tackett said. "I considered it, decided to apply and was fortunate enough to get the nod."

As medical director, Tackett's efforts are directed toward both patient care and administrative duties, he said. He was given a transition time of three months to fully adjust to his new employment.

"I hope to continue to carry on and maximize the quality of health care that is given to K-State students," he said.

Garner, a licensed physical therapist, received her bachelor's degree from Newman University in Wichita and her master's degree in physical therapy from Wichita State University.

As an undergraduate student, Garner worked as an athletic trainer and in sports medicine for three years at Via Christi Health System in Wichita.

She was employed by the Hutchinson Clinic, PA, in Hutchinson, Kan., for four years, and is a member of both the American and Kansas Physical Therapy associations.

"I'm hoping to increase awareness of availability of health care services on campus for students," Garner said.

As physical therapy director, she will oversee and perform patient evaluations and treatment for students requiring exercise and rehabilitation.

"My goal is to be there for the students," she said.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING 532-6560

Oct. Special
$50 Free Haircut with Perm or Color
by Kelly & Allysa
Call Today At 776-8830
Candlewood
New Clients Only
TINA'S Studio 32 FOR HIM

KANSAS STATE
2005 VOLLEYBALL
vs. Nebraska
Wednesday, Oct. 19
Ahearn Field House
7 p.m.
First 400 fans receive a FREE T-shirt!
KEEP THE RED OUT
FREE ADMISSION WITH YOUR K-STATE STUDENT I.D.

Congratulations to our newly initiated members!
PI BETA PHI
Love,
your sisters at Pi Beta Phi

LASIK...
"I cannot imagine a better experience than what I had at Heartland LASIK Center. Everyone was very professional and considerate…after the procedure, I could not believe how well I could see...I feel more confident about doing things I wouldn't have been comfortable with when I had glasses or contacts." --K.G.
...A Life Changing Experience
CustomVue™ LASIK can give you the opportunity to eliminate or reduce your need for glasses or contacts with a customized, unique treatment. Dr. Kansal completed a fellowship in refractive surgery with specialty training in LASIK. For your scheduling convenience, we offer an on-site, state-of-the-art laser.
Call today for a FREE consultation!
785-263-6678
Heartland LASIK Center
511 NE 10th, Abilene, KS 67410
An affiliate of Memorial Health System and in partnership with Dr. Sukesh Kansal

United Bank & Trust has teamed up with Kendra Wecker. She will be autographing mini basketballs on the East side of Wagner Field before the October 22, 2005 K-State Football game against Texas A&M.
United Bank & Trust
785-537-3814
1800 Claflin Road Suite 100
Manhattan, KS 66502
member FDIC

BLUEMONT
HALLOWEEN THEME BUFFET
Black and Boo Chicken
Ghoulish Goulash
Scared Stiff Califlower Bake
Green Eye Sautee
Witch's Braided Bread
Black Bread
Haunted House Salad
Bloody Hand Jello Salad
Creamy Worm Salad
Shredded Fingers & Ants
Maggots w/Toasted Finger Nails
Moldy Cheese and Red Skin Potatoes
Assorted Gourmet Desserts
$7.95 (INCLUDES TAX)
CASH & CREDIT ONLY
FOR RESERVATIONS CALL 532-6068
Bluemont Room, 2nd Floor K-State Student Union
THURSDAY• OCTOBER 27• 2005

OPINION

TO THE POINT

Students should give back to community

K-State students often get a bad rap in Manhattan. There are too many of them, making too much noise and throwing too much garbage in too many people's yards.

As hokey as Community Service Week sounds, it represents a very real chance for students to make a positive impression in the area – and the possibilities are virtually limitless.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

According to the most recent census data, the city has nearly 3,500 residents over the age of 65, many of whom are unable to rake leaves and do heavy labor at their homes to prepare for winter. Take an afternoon to help someone out.

There are also nearly 10,000 residents who reside below the poverty line, representing almost a fourth of the city's population. Consider donating to the Flint Hills Breadbasket or getting in touch with the city's Community Service Program to make life a little easier for the less fortunate.

Even simple things like picking up trash in your yard or visiting the elderly at retirement communities can make Manhattan a better place to live.

Make a Difference Day on Saturday, where volunteers will help build fish habitats in Tuttle Creek Reservoir is a great chance to do something worthwhile – but only 25 K-State students had signed up to help as of Tuesday.

Don't give Manhattan residents a reason to be apathetic toward students.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Out of context

Society placing too much emphasis on people's words instead of their actions

KELSEY CHILDRESS

In London this week, a woman received a stern warning from a policeman after describing the driver who hit her car and sped away as "fat." He reportedly told her that "pudgy" was okay, but she was certainly not allowed to use the "f-word." How ridiculous. It's not the police officer's job to tell a grown woman how to speak as if she was a little girl.

This news story is a good example of the overwhelming concern for political correctness in our society. It seems that almost anything these days can be misconstrued as a slur, a threat or an obscenity. The news headlines reveal our society places more emphasis on words than actions.

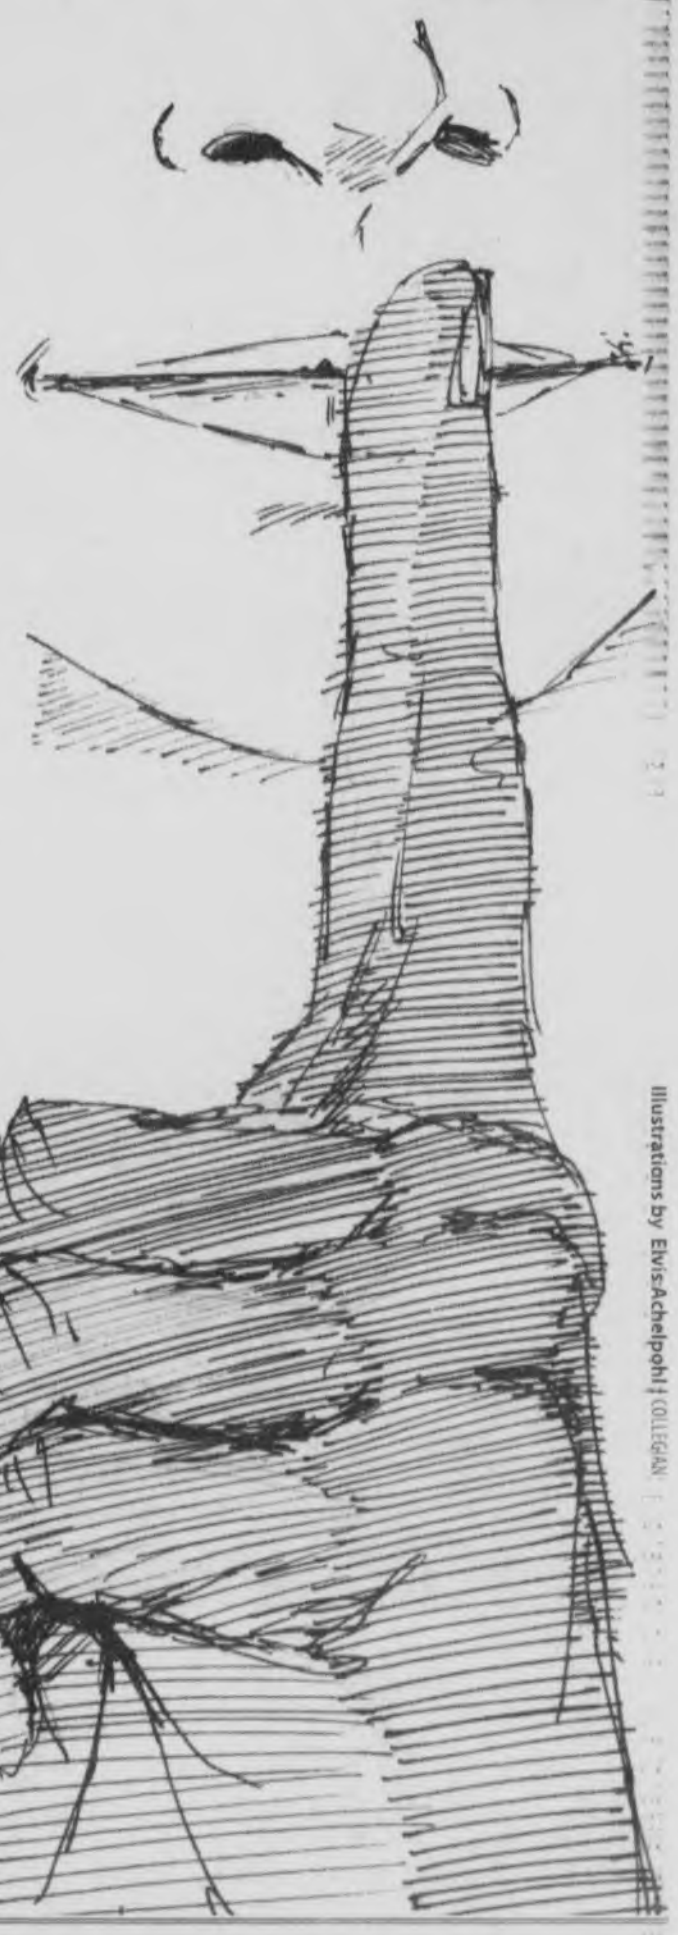
According to Philip Atkinson, a writer who published a study on the "decline of civilization" online at www.ourcivilisation.com, says that political correctness is "to prevent people being offended; to compel everyone to avoid using words or behavior that may upset homosexuals, women, non-whites, the crippled, the mentally impaired, the fat or the ugly."

Most people believe that being politically correct (i.e. using "African-American" rather than "black") will somehow make the "melting pot" that is America a more decent place to live. Contrary to this popular belief, decency to others and respect for all people cannot begin until there is understanding of culture and ways of life.

Clearly, the labels are not only for races but for homosexuals. In today's context, using the word "gay" to mean "stupid" or "ugly" is the best example of what our culture has morphed into – using terms that are taken out of context and placed in conversation to be derogatory.

Each person has his or her own identity: a culture - family traditions, or even a primary language other than English.

In America, we expect those who weren't born here to adapt to our fast-moving, hectic way of life, but when we visit overseas, we also expect signs, menus, newspapers and phonebooks to be written in our native tongue. No wonder everyone dislikes us.



Did anyone ask "Native" Americans what they wanted to be called? It's difficult to say they would have chosen "Indian Americans" or just plain "Indians." (Perpetuating the term "Indian" is ridiculous, considering that is what Columbus called the natives thinking he had reached India.) What about "Asian" and "African" Americans? It's not really okay to label several different races and cultures into one group simply because they may be from the same area.

Should "white" people be called Caucasian-Americans? European-Americans?

It is easy to see where one gets confused. Simply pronouncing a name correctly or observing another's right to a religious holiday is an easy way to be polite without having to worry about political correctness.

In an age where using the term "sexual harassment" must be pronounced HAIR-uss-ment rather than her-ASS-ment because of the "ass," understanding differences first can easily prevent the constant discussion of what to label different races or groups, and then ultimately, people.

Kelsey Childress is a sophomore in English literature and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Elvis Achelpohl | COLLEGIAN

Studying abroad can be dangerous

KODY COOPER

Many K-State students dream of studying overseas at some point in their academic careers. So, as a public service to my peers, I will selflessly use my column to tell a story of epic proportions – the legendary tale known as "The Study Abroadyssey."

Once upon a semester, after warring the last 10 years against the Trojans (and all forms of contraception), the study abroad storms washed our hero onto the shores of the strange land of Spain.

Young Kodysseus awkwardly stuck out among the indigenous Spanish tribes. His blonde hair, adorned with a backwards "KC" hat, was foreign to the trim Spanish brunettes. Khaki shorts, hoodie and flip-flops completed the ensemble.

Little did Kodysseus know, such décor was grounds for death penalty via human sacrifice in Spain.

However, he was more clever than your average tenured professor. He simply feigned to those socialist savages that he was a liberal surfer dude from Southern California.

That pacified them, all right. Of course, Spain is quite familiar with pacifism. Just ask al-Qaeda.

Kodysseus marveled at this foreign land. Catholic churches and bars dotted every corner. He admired the beautiful juxtaposition of ornate Virgin Mary murals with ornate beer advertisements. After a condescending chuckle, Kodysseus felt guilty.

"I shouldn't laugh at the Spaniards," he thought, "I should try to reach out and understand this hypocritical culture." So one Sunday, he sat through a Spanish Mass.

¡Que sorpresa! Indeed, he felt a strong desire to go drink alcohol afterwards. Thankfully, Spanish law mandates a bar within a block of every church.

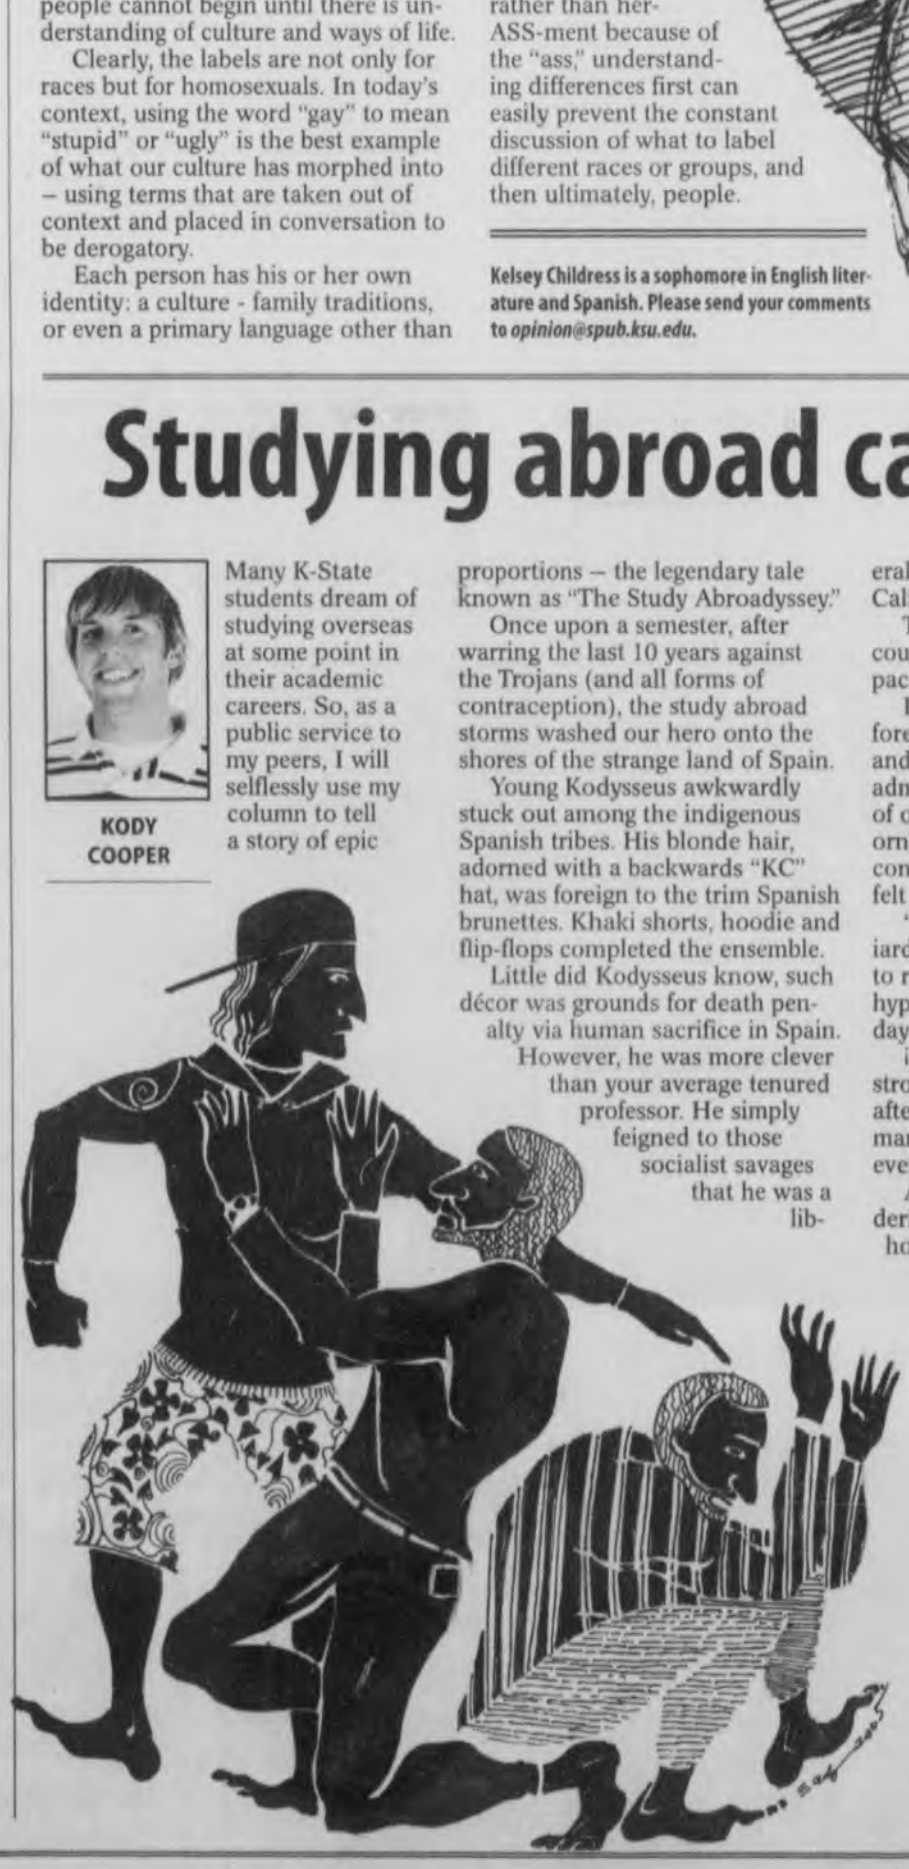
After several months of wandering in search of his beloved homeland of America, Kodysseus was beginning to tire. Would he ever again scale the purple mountains and frolic the fruited plains?

One shadowy Spanish night, our antagonist was allured by the sounds of Sirens. His eyes lit up. Interposed with the Sirens were shouts of "Yeah! Yeah!" Usher's plangent beats irresistibly beckoned Kodysseus.

Little did he know, the Usher Sirens weren't coming from a dance club. Turning the corner, Kodysseus found himself in a deserted alley.

"Americano estupido." The snide insult coincided with a violent shove in Kodysseus's back. Whirling around, Kodysseus saw two silhouetted indigenous Spaniards. The talker set down the beguiling boombox as both drew 9-inch butterfly knives.

With accented anti-American hatred, one sniveling Spaniard hissed, "When the two towers fell, it was so beautiful." His serpent grin was blood curdling.



A helium gas cloud of rage ballooned and rose in the throat of Kodysseus. The characterization of mass murder of Americans as "beautiful" made Kodysseus contemplate Rex Kwon Do-ing both these fools.

Sure, a couple roundhouse kicks would drop them easily, but Kodysseus desired to defeat their inferior worldview. In Sun-Tzuian fashion, he studied the two foes.

Both wore Nike tennis shoes, Levi jeans and Fossil watches. Their Gap blazers bore post-McDonalds ketchup stains. Kodysseus erupted into ecstatic laughter. He explained, "I'm sorry, it's just so funny to me. You say you abhor America and hate Americans, but you sure enjoy American products sold by Americans, don't you?"

The Iberian imbeciles were dumbfounded. Their hypocrisy was laid bare. Intellectually defeated, they lowered their blades and slithered away.

Kodysseus' story whispers words of wisdom: fear not ye study-abroaders, Europeans' anti-American sentiment is actually veiled envy. Embrace patriotism – it just might save your life.

Kody Cooper is a senior in political science and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

I follow my scholastic dreams through the inspiring words of Ralph Wiggum: "When I grow up, I wanna be a principal or a caterpillar."

Hey Jonas Hogg, where do you get off playing the sympathy card about a friend home from Iraq when mothers whose children are dead are just a bunch of liars out to ruin your good time?

To whoever stole my sunglasses last Saturday night, I want them back.

So pretty much you're allowed to date one girl per sorority. Then you're screwed.

Stupidity hurts.

I don't know what to attack first, the poor writing style or the obvious lack of thought behind the argument.

If you pick out a movie, for instance Hitch, and thought it sucked, don't be a whiner. After all, you picked it out.

I'm glad the drinking age isn't 18 so I don't have to put up with all the ditsy freshman sorority girls at the bar.

Where the hell was the rave?

OMG. The Ashlee Simpson show is back on. I can't lie, I love her.

Over the weekend, my roommate tried to microwave a baked potato wrapped in foil. She didn't know that it would catch fire.

I really don't want another anti-Bush event in my e-mail, thanks UFM.

To the person who drives the truck in the parking lot who left their tailgate down — shut it or I'm going to hit it.

So really, who would win in a rumble, the Munchkins or the Oompa Loompas?

Damn Microsoft. They need to update the sarcasm filter because it's just not up to code anymore.

How am I suppose to commit to a guy when I can't even commit to a shampoo?

Boys are like purses, I want a new one like every week.

SWF: looking for SWM, non-smoker, non-ugly.

Does anyone know the physics behind the short cut on Rainbow Road in Mario-Kart 64? I've been trying to figure it out all night.

I just saw Butters the Squirrel foraging for nuts. I feel sorry for the guy he had pinned down on the grass.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Katie Lester | COLLEGIAN
Dave Lewis, KMAN-AM 1350 radio personality, works during his morning news and talk show titled "In Focus" at the KMAN studio. Lewis has worked for the station for nearly 13 years.

'In Focus' host to leave

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After nearly 13 years as a voice for the Manhattan community, KMAN-AM 1350 radio personality Dave Lewis is making his final broadcast.

He is host to the morning news and talk show "In Focus," which is broadcast on KMAN every day at 9:00 a.m. He also has daily airtime on country station KXZB-FM 104.7 FM from 10:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m.

Lewis has been employed with KMAN radio since 1991. A turning point in his career came in 1993, when floods were ravaging the Midwest. Terrified local citizens remained tuned in to KMAN for up-to-date information, which is what Dave Lewis was there to provide to them.

"The '93 floods are definitely up there," Lewis said. "There have been a lot of things that I've been a part of – fundraising events, helping injured families, civic events, Purple Power Play on Poyntz, parades in Aggieville – it's so tough to think about what might be the most memorable."

Just two days after Sept. 11, Lewis organized a rally, allowing local citizens to be together and grieve.

"That is something I'm very proud of," he said.

After 25 years in the radio business, working for both KMAN and smaller stations in the state, he is turning in his headset to pursue another interest.

In 1979, Lewis founded an entertainment company called All Star Midwest Inc. Since then, the company has extended to six states and consists of 65 employees.

"I need to be able to devote more time to a company growing so rapidly," he said.

The entertainment company consists of four separate enterprises: All Star DJ, a special occasion DJ service catering mainly to Manhattan and the surrounding area, BarPoker.com, an online poker tournament extending into six states, the Game Show Road Show and the Lawn Chair Theatre.

The Lawn Chair Theatre consists of a 26-foot-wide inflatable movie screen that can be rented to accommodate large groups (up to 5,000 people). This theater has been used to show five movies outside of Hale Library already this semester.

All Star Midwest Entertainment has also been active in California and Florida, and is currently looking at expanding their business into two more regions, Lewis said.

However, there is more than career endeavors involved in Lewis' decision to leave the station.

He is also looking forward to more time at home with his wife and 10-year-old daughter.

"A lot of people within the community kind of thought of Dave as their voice of what's going on in Manhattan. They tune into him every day," Rich Wartell, President and General Manager of KMAN Radio, said. "He's been a valuable employee and we are going to miss him and the qualities he brings to the station."

New Lafene directors settle in

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With his three-month adjustment period coming to a close, Dr. Robert J. Tackett is settling into his job as the new medical director of Lafene Health Center.

Tackett and Dr. Leslie Garner, the new director of physical therapy at Lafene, were appointed to their new positions in August.

Tackett received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Kansas in 1983 and his medical degree from the University of Kansas School of Medicine in 1987. He did his family practice residency at Wesley Medical Center in Wichita.

In July 1990, Tackett began practicing family medicine at the Cotton-O'Neil Clinic in Wamego, Kan., and continued there until offered the position at Lafene.

"I've been in private practice for 15 years and wasn't looking for anything else," Tackett said. "I considered it, decided to apply and was fortunate enough to get the nod."

As medical director, Tackett's efforts are directed toward both patient care and administrative duties, he said. He was given a transition time of three months to fully adjust to his new employment.

"I hope to continue to carry on and maximize the quality of health care that is given to K-State students," he said.

Garner, a licensed physical therapist, received her bachelor's degree from Newman University in Wichita and her master's degree in physical therapy from Wichita State University.

As an undergraduate student, Garner worked as an athletic trainer and in sports medicine for three years at Via Christi Health System in Wichita.

She was employed by the Hutchinson Clinic, PA, in Hutchinson, Kan., for four years, and is a member of both the American and Kansas Physical Therapy associations.

"I'm hoping to increase awareness of availability of health care services on campus for students," Garner said.

As physical therapy director, she will oversee and perform patient evaluations and treatment for students requiring exercise and rehabilitation.

"My goal is to be there for the students," she said.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
532-6560

Oct. Special
$50 Free Haircut with Perm or Color
by Kelly & Allysa
Call Today At 776-8830
Candlewood
New Clients Only
TINA'S Studio 32

KANSAS STATE
2005 VOLLEYBALL
vs. Nebraska
Wednesday, Oct. 19
Ahearn Field House
7 p.m.
First 400 fans receive a FREE T-shirt!
KEEP THE RED OUT
FREE ADMISSION WITH YOUR K-STATE STUDENT I.D.

Congratulations to our newly initiated members!
PI BETA PHI
Love,
your sisters at Pi Beta Phi

LASIK...
"I cannot imagine a better experience than what I had at Heartland LASIK Center. Everyone was very professional and considerate…after the procedure, I could not believe how well I could see...I feel more confident about doing things I wouldn't have been comfortable with when I had glasses or contacts." --K.G.
...A Life Changing Experience
CustomVue™ LASIK can give you the opportunity to eliminate or reduce your need for glasses or contacts with a customized, unique treatment. Dr. Kansal completed a fellowship in refractive surgery with specialty training in LASIK. For your scheduling convenience, we offer an on-site, state-of-the-art laser.
Call today for a FREE consultation!
785-263-6678
Heartland LASIK Center
511 NE 10th, Abilene, KS 67410
An affiliate of Memorial Health System and in partnership with Dr. Sukesh Kansal

United Bank & Trust has teamed up with Kendra Wecker. She will be autographing mini basketballs on the East side of Wagner Field before the October 22, 2005 K-State Football game against Texas A&M.
United Bank & Trust
785-537-3814
1800 Claflin Road Suite 100
Manhattan, KS 66502
member FDIC

BLUEMONT
HALLOWEEN THEME BUFFET
Black and Boo Chicken
Ghoulish Goulash
Scared Stiff Califlower Bake
Green Eye Sautee
Witch's Braided Bread
Black Bread
Haunted House Salad
Bloody Hand Jello Salad
Creamy Worm Salad
Shredded Fingers & Ants
Maggots w/Toasted Finger Nails
Moldy Cheese and Red Skin Potatoes
Assorted Gourmet Desserts
$7.95 (INCLUDES TAX)
CASH & CREDIT ONLY
FOR RESERVATIONS CALL 532-6068
Bluemont Room, 2nd Floor K-State Student Union
THURSDAY • OCTOBER 27 • 2005

SPORTS

Nelson producing for Wildcats

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Entering the 2005 season, K-State returned three starters at wide receiver in senior Davin Dennis and juniors Yamon Figurs and Jermaine Moreira.

But six games into the season, none of those three have produced quite like defensive back-turned-wide receiver Jordy Nelson.

Nelson's 80-yard touchdown catch Saturday against Texas Tech gave the sophomore a touchdown reception in each of K-State's six games this season, the only receiver in coach Bill Snyder's 17 seasons to accomplish such a feat.

"There's so many things that Jordy brings to the table," redshirt-freshman quarterback Allan Evridge said. "Just look at him. He's just an incredibly gifted athlete – his size, his speed, his strength. You can't find very many people with the combination that he brings to the table."

Nelson is tied for the team lead in scoring with 36 points and leads the Wildcats in receiving with 369 yards on 21 catches to go along with his team-high six touchdowns. Nelson averages 17.6 yards per catch and 61.5 receiving yards per game.

He is 162 yards away from entering the top five in receiving yards for a season by a sophomore at K-State.

Still, Nelson is modest when it comes to his success this year.

He is quick to credit his teammates and his luck for his fast start at wide receiver, a position he moved to during spring practice.

"The offensive line has to block, the backs have to block, other receivers have to run their routes to take another defensive guy out of the way to open up a hole for someone else," Nelson said. "It's a whole team effort on every play. It's great how everyone produces."

Snyder said Nelson's attitude toward his play is admirable, but added Nelson deserves more credit than he is giving himself.

"I appreciate him displaying some humility," Snyder said. "I think it takes a little more than luck to do it continuously as he has. It's not going to happen if you don't have some talent, and he has some talent."

K-State wide receiver Jordy Nelson fights with Texas Tech's Darcel McBath for a reception during the second half. Nelson caught three passes for 98 yards including an 80-yard touchdown reception during the first half.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

WOMEN'S GOLF

K-State battles to place 9th

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Windy conditions during the Tyson/Embassy Suites Invitational kept the women's golf team to a ninth place finish Tuesday.

The Wildcats finished with a combined 55-over-par 919. They finished behind Big 12 Conference rivals Nebraska, which finished at 47-over par for fourth place, and Kansas, which finished eighth with a 54-over-par 918.

Coach Kristi Knight said she can see room for improvement.

"There was a lot of good golf, but we're still wasting some shots," she said. "I'm proud of the way they competed and it's nice to put down a good score, but we really need to learn from having bad holes."

Coming off shooting a 315 on Monday after shooting 306 Sunday, Knight said it's important to record the best score on the final day.

"It's nice to finish strong," Knight said of the team's 298 finish on Tuesday. "It's a good quality as a team and that's going to pay off. I like the way they responded to (Monday's) score."

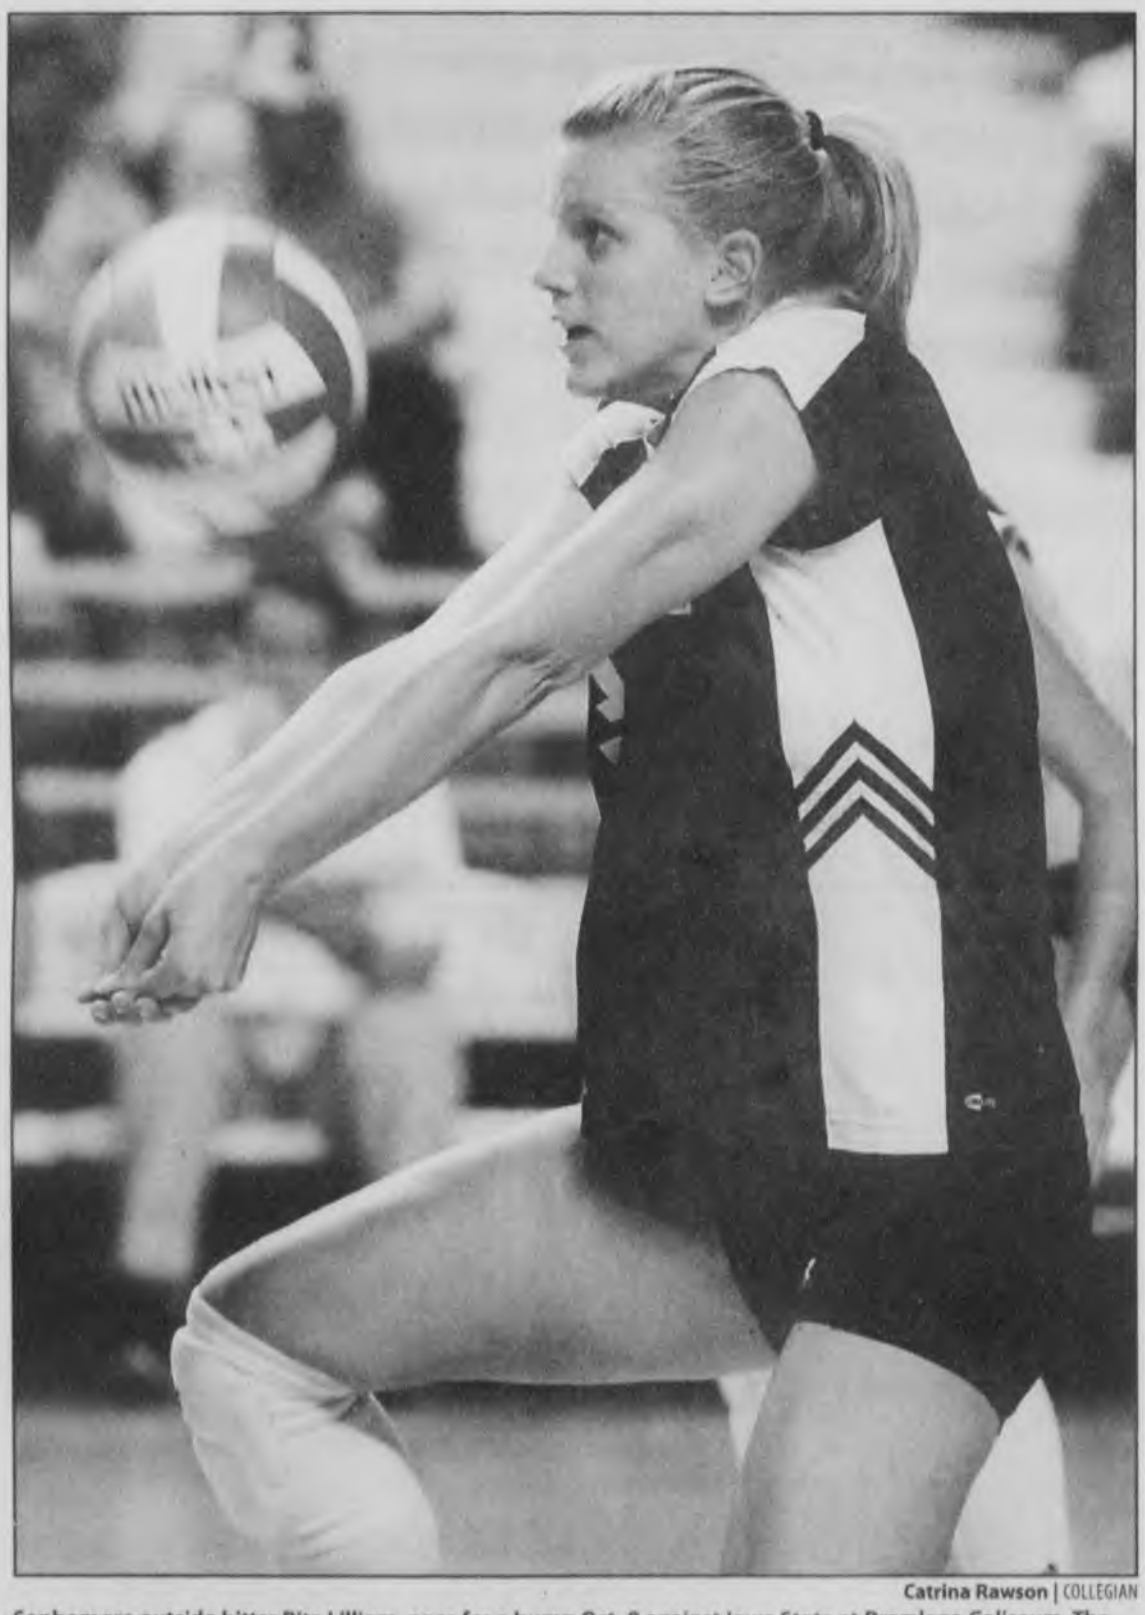
Individually, sophomore Kali Quick tied for 16th with an 11-over-par 227. Ashley Medders from Arkansas finished first with a 4-under-par 212, and Stacy Lewis and Courtney Mahon from Arkansas tied for second at 1-under par.

Knight said Quick had a good round Tuesday but struggled on two of the last three holes, and as a result, Quick was not content with her finish in the tournament.

"Nobody's more frustrated than her, but I'm not upset," Knight said. "I want her to learn from this experience. If she can do that, she's really going to improve as a player."

Junior Helene Robert battled her way from 44th place after the first day to finish in 20th.

"She got off to a tough start," Knight said. "She battled back the next two days. She was a little disappointed because she had quite a few birdies but she also had quite a few bogies."



Junior Katy Heffel, who finished tied for 59th, had problems with her short game, Knight said.

"We have to get Katy's confidence up around the greens," she said. "It's not that she's hitting the ball badly, but she's not scoring, and that's what the game is about."

Other K-State finishers were sophomore Michelle Regan (18-over par, 41st) and sophomore Hailey Mireles (20-over par, 46th).

Next up for the Wildcats will be their final tournament of the fall on Oct. 31, at Oak Point Golf Course in Kiawah Island, S.C., for the Edwin Watts/Palmetto Collegiate.

Rivalry renewed

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

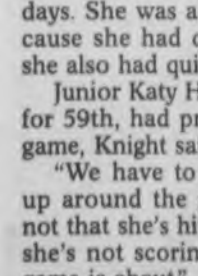
Sophomore outside hitter Rita Lilliom, goes for a bump Oct. 8 against Iowa State at Bramlage Coliseum. The Wildcats face No. 1 Nebraska at 7 tonight at Ahearn Field House.

Volleyball faces No. 1 Nebraska at Ahearn

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In order to upset No. 1 Nebraska tonight, a young K-State team will need to show maturity against a seasoned Cornhusker squad, coach Suzie Fritz said.

"Our youth is a factor in every game, and hopefully it's something we can outgrow," Fritz said. "In 2003, Nebraska was very inexperienced, and we were a veteran-laden team. Now, we're rebuilding, and they're experienced."



The Wildcats might have the home-court advantage, but the undefeated Huskers have the upper hand in the rivalry, leading the all-time series 68-3. K-State (15-4, 6-3) broke through in 2003 with a sweep of Nebraska, but the Huskers avenged the losses with a sweep of the Wildcats in 2004.

No. 1 Nebraska at No. 23 K-State
When: 7 tonight
Where: Ahearn Field House
How much: Free with student ID

"It will be a factor," Fritz said of playing at Ahearn Field House. "It depends on what kind of crowd we get and if your team

See VOLLEYBALL Page 12

NASCAR boosted by dedicated fans, easy access to 'regular guy' drivers

MATT GORNEY

It seems sports have taken a mythic quality in the past five decades and athletes are now seen more as Olympian gods than regular people with the talent to throw a ball, run fast or jump high. However, the sport of NASCAR is still able to boast the quality of having regular people behind the wheel of expensive, high-quality machines.

The problem is too many people believe they are too good to watch a car race. More people should embrace NASCAR instead of pushing it aside as a sport for uneducated, beer-swilling, back-country folks.

As simple as racing cars is, it is also a sport that has evolved around the fans. Just spend a day at the Kansas Speedway during a race weekend and watch how throngs of people swarm their favorite drivers' souvenir stands.

These fanatics are only looking for a shirt, hat or other odd piece of memorabilia to remember their experience of watching a car take left turns for a few hours at 180 mph, with a few stops for gas thrown in.

So what inspires this near-religious fanaticism in people? Is it that everyman quality to the sport?

Most major sports, like baseball, basketball and football, require intense training and practice. While NASCAR does require athleticism, it is more legit to say, "I can drive a car like that," as opposed to saying, "I could stop Darren Sproles when he is running at full speed."

In fact, it is possible to drive a real car on the same tracks as the professionals.

Multiple racing experiences travel the country, allowing fans to sit in the same car, wear the same protective gear and cruise around the same tracks as Jeff Gordon, Tony Stewart or Michael Waltrip. The best part is that it only costs a few hundred dollars.

How often does George Steinbrenner allow people to trot out to the pitcher's mound at Yankee Stadium and throw a few balls, just to feel like Randy Johnson?

NASCAR also connects with its fans in ways other major sports can't. Before each race, fans at the Kansas Speedway are allowed to spend time close to the garages and talk with the drivers who sign autographs.

Even in Kansas, residents have at least two good reasons to be NASCAR fans.

Kansas City, Kan., is home to the Kansas Speedway, a mile-and-a-half track that is a venue for the NASCAR Nextel Cup, Busch Series and Craftsman Truck Series along with the Indy Racing League.

These are four of the premiere racing circuits in the United States and they bring in stars from around the racing world.

See NASCAR Page 12

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

WBB | Coggins named to preseason All-Big 12 team

K-State guard/forward Claire Coggins was named preseason All-Big 12 Conference Honorable Mention in a vote by the league's head women's basketball coaches Tuesday.

A native of Lee's Summitt, Mo., the 5-foot-11 Coggins is the Wildcats' top returning scorer after averaging 9.5 points and 3.1 rebounds per game a year ago.

In two seasons at K-State, she has made 31 career starts in 57 career games played. Last season, Coggins played in all 32 contests with 24 starts.

Coggins was second on the team in steals (40) last season and has scored in double-digits in 16 career games to date.

CBB | 'Jam the Ville' planned for Friday in Aggieville

The Department of Intercollegiate Athletics will have the first "Jam The Ville" event for the Wildcat men's and women's basketball teams in Aggieville this Friday from 9:30 to 11 p.m. The event is free and open to the general public.

Wyatt Thompson, the voice of the Wildcats, will emcee the event that will be in the parking lot on the corner of Laramie Streets and Manhattan Avenue. A live concert featuring the local band, Ruskabank will begin at 9:30 p.m.

Following the concert, there will be appearances by Willie Wildcat, the Classy Cats, the cheerleading team and the K-State Marching Band prior to the introduction of the men's and women's teams at 10 p.m.

They will compete in a three-point shooting contest with each team consisting of a male and female players.

The Associated Press

MLB | Torre to return as Yankees manager in 2006

NEW YORK — Joe Torre considered resigning last week, then decided during a meeting with owner George Steinbrenner to return next season as manager of the New York Yankees.

Torre

Speaking publicly for the first time since the Yankees lost to the Los Angeles Angels in the first round of playoffs last week, Torre said he wasn't sure at first whether he wanted to stay.

Torre, 65, didn't want to make a decision after the Yankees' elimination on Oct. 10 because he was exhausted. He spent several days with his family thinking over his future.

MLB | Heredia suspended 10 games for steroid use

NEW YORK — New York Mets reliever Felix Heredia was suspended for the first 10 days of next season for violating baseball's steroids policy.

Heredia

Heredia became the 11th major league player suspended for steroids. The announcement came Tuesday. Traded from the Yankees to the Mets during the offseason, Heredia appeared in only three games before going on the disabled list in April with a strained left thumb. Doctors then found an aneurysm in his left shoulder after he began having circulation problems and he missed the rest of the season following surgery.

NFL | Big Ben to start vs. division-leading Bengals

A big game for the Pittsburgh Steelers means, of course, Big Ben for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

After sitting out the overtime loss to Jacksonville with a bruised and hyperextended left knee last weekend, quarterback Ben Roethlisberger will start Sunday when the Steelers travel to Cincinnati for an AFC North matchup with the division-leading Bengals.

Thinking of you

Buyers should keep recipient's interests, personality in mind when choosing gifts

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A well-chosen gift can let someone know that he or she is loved and appreciated.

Whether for a friend, spouse or significant other, a gift should be carefully chosen to suit its recipient's personality.

Will Mitchell, junior in secondary education pre-professional, spent weeks preparing for his wife Kim's recent birthday.

"It's her first birthday since we got married, so I want it to be special," he said.

Mitchell had been leading up to the big day with cards and teddy bears, and planed to give his wife jewelry and a gift certificate for an hour-long Swedish massage.

He said he and his wife make it easy to shop for one another.

"We're really good about just asking each other and dropping little hints," Mitchell said. "Once you're in a committed relationship, you should know whether the other person will like something or not."

Price can be another important factor to consider when shopping for presents.

Gabby Hunter, senior in theater, said paying attention to a person's specific likes and interests is more important than the amount of money spent on a gift.

"I don't like expensive gifts," she said. "If you write a card with a really personal note in it, that is way better than diamond earrings to me."

Furthermore, Hunter said she advised against giving practical gifts to celebrate romantic occasions.

"If we're not married, don't buy me a vacuum cleaner," she said.

Becky Klein, senior in social work, said an easy gift, such as a compact disc, movie tickets or even a case of beer, is best for a friend of the opposite sex.

Klein added men should think twice before giving clothing as a gift to a female friend or girlfriend.

"Definitely don't buy clothes unless you know the exact size. We'll feel bad if they're too small," she said.

Diane Meredith, co-owner of Acme Gift, 1227 Moro St., said flowers are a popular purchase at the store.

"The flowers are wonderful, and not very expensive," she said. "And they're not something you have to move with you if you graduate in a year."

Meredith said journals, books, photo albums and more unusual items such as cereal dispensers, are also popular gifts.

"The store's focus is to be fun and happy," she said. "There are lots of silly and lighthearted items good for a platonic gift."

Hunter said she received her all-time favorite present a few years ago on her birthday.

"I was dating someone at another school and he took two days off to come up and visit me," she said. "It was better than anything he could have bought."

Above: Nicole Ellis, fifth-year student in architecture and employee at Acme Gift, arranges gerbera daisies Tuesday evening. Acme Gift, located in Aggieville, sells fresh flowers, books and jewelry.

Left: Natalie Anderson, senior in mass communications, looks through cards Tuesday evening at Acme Gift in Aggieville. Anderson was looking for a birthday card to give to her friend.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

No sophomore slump for Franz Ferdinand

"You could have it so much better"

★★★★☆

Album review by Mark Sibilla

I'm going to let you in on some secrets of us music critics – I mean it can't be that hard to write about music; heck, even I can do it on a weekly basis. I, like most of my fellow critics, have received the memos for how to properly review the latest album from Franz Ferdinand: "You Could Have It So Much Better."

You see, we critics have to keep in contact in order to make outlines and ensure our reviews follow the same basic pattern – all we have to do is add our own cynical, self-righteous, smart-ass remarks, slap on a star rating and send it on to the editors. So without further ado, I will allow you a glimpse into the WWMCAA (World-Wide Music Critics' Association of America) reviewers' manual:

"Hello fellow music critics. I'm sure you know Franz Ferdinand, those lovable blokes from Scotland, have made their second album a mere 18 months after their eponymous debut got our collective hips shaking. As you are reviewing "You Could Have It So Much Better," make sure you are thinking of these five things in your write-up of the album:

1. Include comment about how quickly Franz Ferdinand released album (if review is positive, include thought that FF are musical geniuses; if negative, tell about how album sounds "tossed off" and "sloppy").

2. Include comment about how Franz Ferdinand have changed music scenes and created countless knock-offs.

3. Include comment about how Franz Ferdinand bring back their cheeky homoeroticism as witnessed on first album's song, "Michael."

4. Include comment about how Franz Ferdinand slows down the tempo on three songs on the album indicating musical "growth" (if negative review, comment on how FF are "pandering" to the critics).

5. Include a bad pun on the album title, making your review hip and ironic.

Just go to www.metacritic.com and see all of the reviews conforming to this same standard of writing. Not wanting to stray from my peers, I, too, will present my review of "You Could Have It So Much Better" in this tried-and-true format.

As previously stated, this album was recorded and released only 18 months after the debut, between constant touring of the United States and the world. It is an impressive feat for any band and it is amazing how good this album actually is. Even if this album was simply "tossed-off," I fear for those bands who have capitalized from Franz Ferdinand's initial success – the boys in Franz Ferdinand have this post-punk art-rock genre nailed.

The album is simply bursting with confidence and life; it sounds like Franz Ferdinand knows it has something to prove with this sophomore effort – their debut wasn't just a fluke. The first three numbers burst out of the gate, showing the band has no intention of slowing down.

"The Fallen" opens with a buzz-saw guitar that transforms into an insistent, catchy rave-up. Lead singer Alex Kapranos sings of how the fallen of society's outskirts are the "virtuous among us." Kapranos coyly questions the square community, "What's wrong with a little destruction?"

Lead single "Do You Want To" is a wild and catchy ride. The track begins with vocal harmonization in mono before a guitar line expands the track to stereo and all of the elements quickly fall into place with the insistent beat. "This Boy" tackles the sticky subject of materialism with Kapranos' tongue firmly planted in his cheek. This is where the homoeroticism comes in as Kapranos sings about a spoilt sugar daddy.

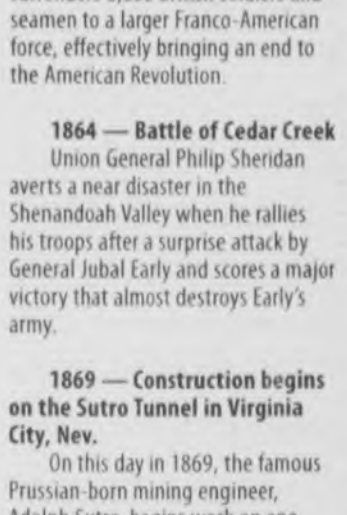
The most interesting aspect of "YCHISMB" is when the band decides to slow the tempo down and explore other aspects of British music. "Walk Away" is a Morrissey-inspired number that begins with a grand guitar line but fades out like a whisper.

"Eleanor Put Your Boots

Courtesy art

On" and "Fade Together" are two piano-driven atmospheric tracks about love that can earn the band more comparisons to The Beatles, which wouldn't be too far off the mark – they've always sounded like The Beatles, only with more high-hat and a four-on-the-floor disco beat.

So the final question is, does this album stack up to the original? Not quite, but it is oh-so-close to last year's debut. This album is more of a grower, but these boys certainly leave their imitators in the dust. Simply put, you really can have it so much better . . . with Franz Ferdinand.



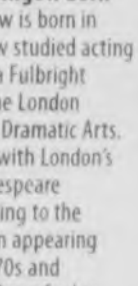
THIS DAY IN HISTORY

1781 — Victory at Yorktown
Hopelessly trapped at Yorktown, Va., British General Lord Cornwallis surrenders 8,000 British soldiers and seamen to a larger Franco-American force, effectively bringing an end to the American Revolution.

1864 — Battle of Cedar Creek
Union General Philip Sheridan averts a near disaster in the Shenandoah Valley when he rallies his troops after a surprise attack by General Jubal Early and scores a major victory that almost destroys Early's army.

1869 — Construction begins on the Sutro Tunnel in Virginia City, Nev.
On this day in 1869, the famous Prussian-born mining engineer, Adolph Sutro, begins work on one of the most ambitious western engineering projects of the day: a four-mile-long tunnel through the solid rock of the Comstock Lode mining district.

1939 — "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" debuts
"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" debuts, starring James Stewart as an earnest young senator persevering against corruption and cynicism. The film, one of the first in which Stewart starred, won him the New York Film Critics Award for Best Actor.



Courtesy art

1945 — John Lithgow born
Actor John Lithgow is born in Rochester, N.Y. Lithgow studied acting at Harvard, then won a Fulbright fellowship to attend the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts. He acted and directed with London's prestigious Royal Shakespeare Company before returning to the United States. He began appearing in films in the early 1970s and was nominated for an Oscar for his portrayal of a transsexual football player in "The World According to Garp" (1983). In the 1990s, he starred in the hit television series "Third Rock from the Sun."

1958 — The first Cold War world's fair closes
In Brussels, Belgium, the first world's fair since before World War II closes its doors, after nearly 42 million people have visited the various exhibits. Officially called the Brussels Universal and International Exhibition, the fair's overall theme was "A World View, A New Humanism." As such, the fair was supposed to celebrate the universality of the human condition and encourage dialogue and peaceful relations among the nations of a world only recently torn asunder by war, and now caught in the clutches of the Cold War.

1972 — Kissinger discusses draft peace treaty with President Thieu

Henry Kissinger and U.S. officials hold meetings in Saigon with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to discuss the proposed peace treaty drafted by Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, the chief North Vietnamese negotiator in Paris.

1987 — Panic attack on Wall Street
The markets were enjoying a record-setting bull run, seemingly unbothered by occasional cocaine scandals or the arrest of Ivan Boesky. However, on Oct. 19, "panic selling" sent the Dow into an unprecedented 508-point freefall. After a day of frantic action, the markets had shed 23 percent of their total value. The staggering loss sent analysts scurrying to find a smoking gun — and they found several. Along with the usual suspects, inflation and rising interest rates, the announcement of a surprisingly steep trade deficit and news of an American attack against Iran were both blamed for Wall Street's woes. Some industry insiders looked even closer to home, speculating that the market's computerized trading system played a role in sparking the crash.

Source: www.thehistorychannel.com

Fall Fashion

Must-haves of the season include clothes, shoes, accessories

COURTNEY LAIR

Moving away from the flowing bohemian and ethnic looks of summer, this fall clothing is more structured. Neutrals like brown, tan and black, along with classic menswear patterns such as tweed and herringbone are playing a huge role in fall fashion for both men and women this year.

However, flashy accessories – animal print, embellished or metallic – and beautiful, rich colors like royal purple, burnt orange and emerald green add a splash of fun to any look. Gorgeous fabrics including velvet, satin, lace and brocade add an element of luxury to the season.

I have compiled a list of the most dominant fall trends, most of which can be worn together in endless combinations.

Photos by Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

LADIES

Knee-high boots are super stylish, whether they are tall and sleek, lace-up, animal-inspired, shearling, buckled and belted, or western. They can be pointy-toe, round-toe, heel, wedge or platform.

Everything is looking vivacious in velvet from blazers, pants, and skirts to clutches and even heels.

Always a wardrobe staple, denim is hotter and more diversified than ever before. Studded pockets, embroidery, rhinestone trim and patchwork are just a few ways to make sure your jeans stand out. Check out Antik, True Religion, Rock and Republic, Habitual and Paige for ultra-flattering fits and distinctive signature pockets.

Black was huge on the runways last spring and is declared to be more chic and sleek than ever.

Shrugs and wraps are absolutely ideal for the transitional fall weather. They can be found in a multitude of styles such as loosely crocheted, snug or slouchy, cropped, sequined and ruffled. Shrugs and wraps can be found in many different stores, from Macy's to Target.

Pom pom detailing lends a whimsical touch to scarves, handbags, etc.

Fur's popularity last winter has definitely not lost any momentum and appears to be especially posh in the form of vests or as trim on coats, jackets, handbags, boots and gloves.

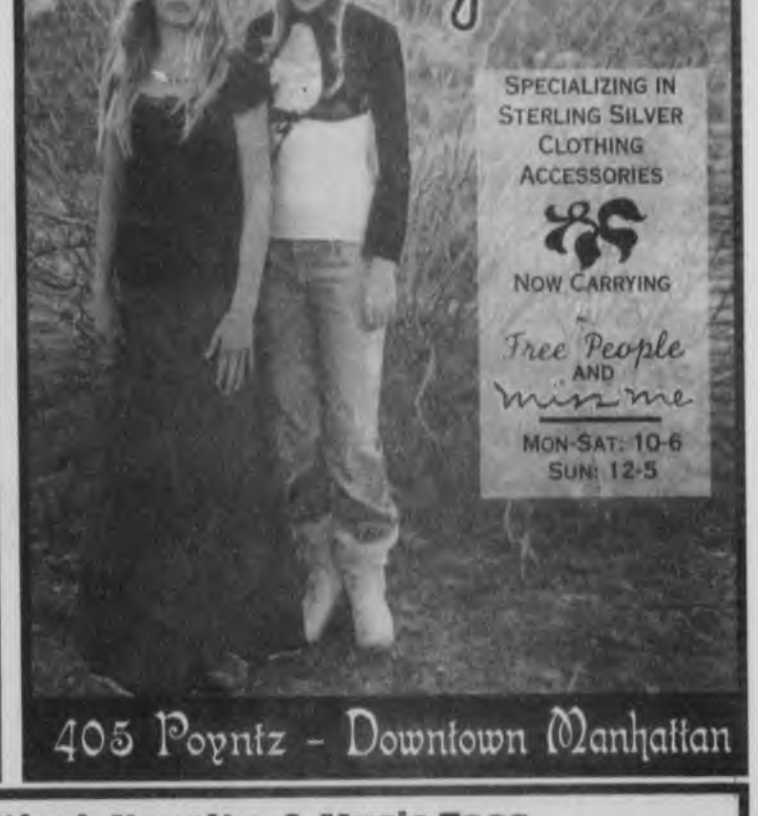
Full skirts add volume under a snug cropped jacket and look refreshingly flirty whether they are velvet, silk, lace, tulle-lined, tiered or pleated.

A jacket or blazer can be worn over anything to instantly update your look. They come in an endless selection of styles and fabrics and are available at every price point. Popular looks this season include: military, cropped, shearling, houndstooth, tweed, velvet and brocade.

Pointy-toed shoes are timeless indeed, but the round-toe is making a huge comeback this season.

Other shoe trends that will be gracing the well-heeled this fall are peep-toe, platform, animal prints, embellished and metallic.

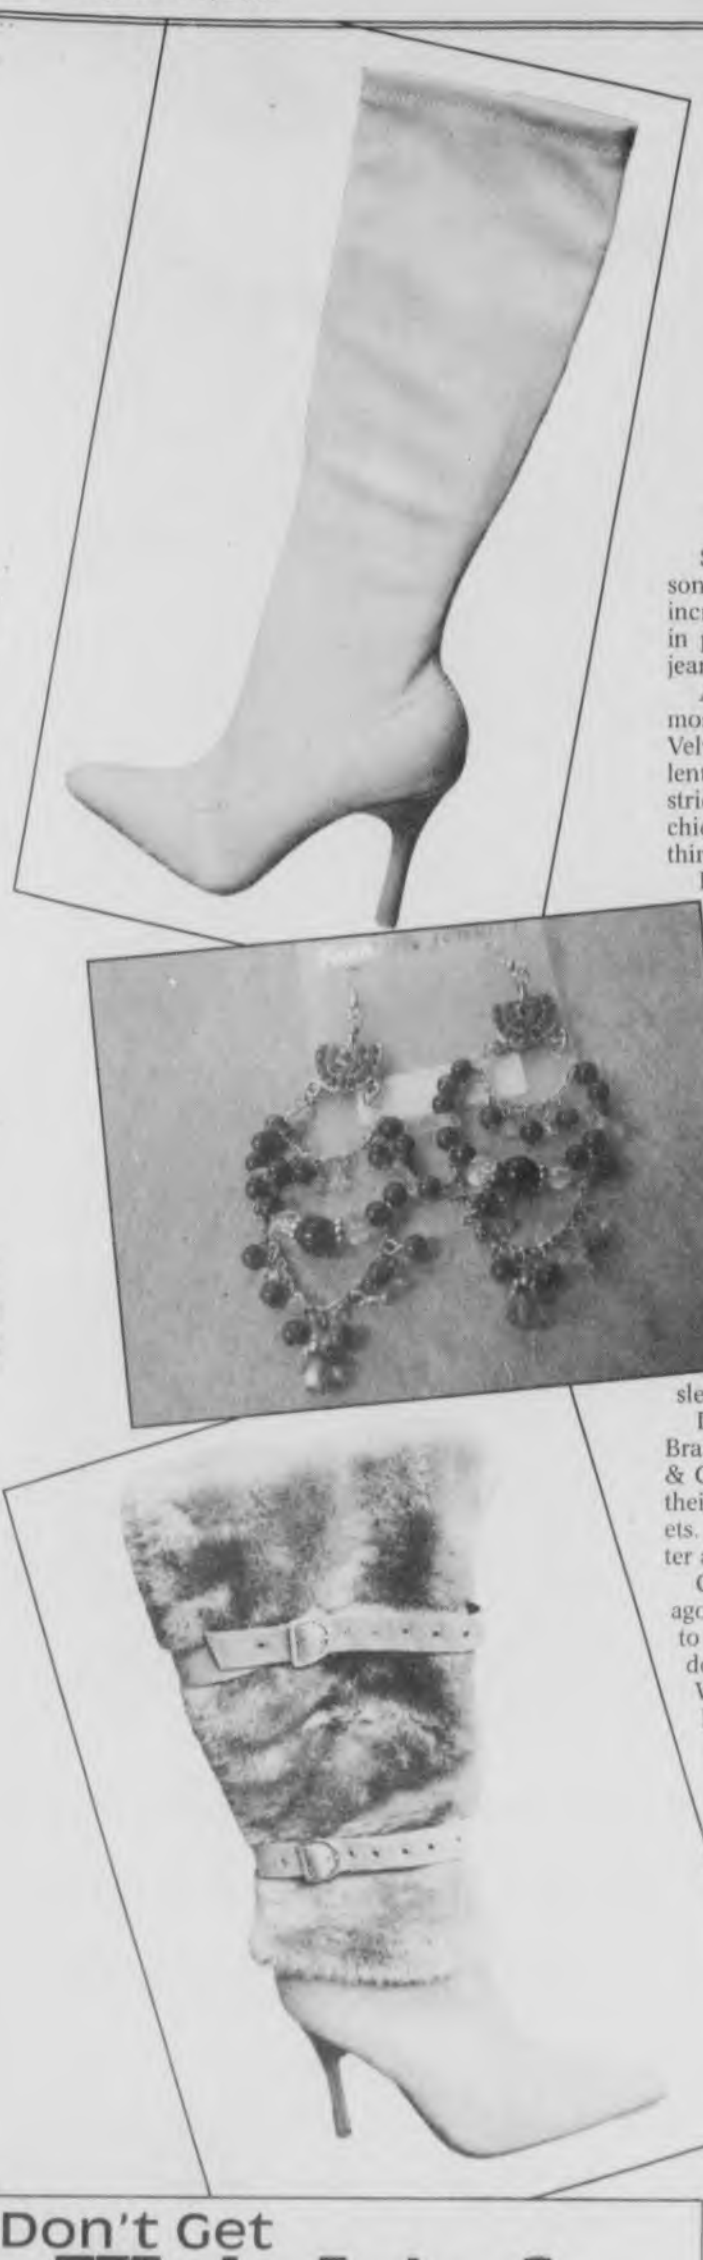
Rock the regal look through Renaissance-inspired jackets, lace and ruffled tops, jewelry and luxurious fabrics.



Sweaters are an absolute winter necessity. This winter, a few key looks include feather-light cashmere, preppy argyles, cozy turtlenecks and long, chunky cables.

Garters are removable so you can wear the corset out.
Patricia's UNDERCOVER Lingerie
NOW on 4th St!
Poyntz
110 S. 4th
S. 4th

We'll keep your pet in STYLE!
565-0612
Bark Avenue Canine Designs
607 N. 11th
·Aggieville·



Relieve stress with a MASSAGE from Trish!
$40 reg. $50
1 HOUR MASSAGE
CALL TODAY FOR AN APPOINTMENT WITH TRISH
776-5632
GALLERY
Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Candlewood Shopping Center · 3266 Kimball Ave.

Krystallos
SPECIALIZING IN STERLING SILVER CLOTHING ACCESSORIES
NOW CARRYING
Free People AND miss me
MON-SAT: 10-6
SUN: 12-5
405 Poyntz - Downtown Manhattan

Garters are removable so you can wear the corset out.
Patricia's UNDERCOVER Lingerie
NOW on 4th St!
Poyntz
110 S. 4th
S. 4th

AGGIE Hair • Shapers
SPECIALIZING in Thermal Hair Straightening
Go From Frizzy to Fabulous
776-3600 • 1220 Moro

•Political, Novelty, & Music Tees
•Men & Women's Fashions •Costumes
•Ethnic & Imported Items •Jewelry
•Stylish Room Decor •Great Gifts
•Local Brands
•Sexy Lingerie
Now In Aggieville!
715 N. 12th St.
537-3778
ROCK STAR & ROGERS

GENTLEMEN

Super shrink me: the past few seasons, menswear silhouettes have become increasingly slimmer and more tailored in practically everything from blazers to jeans and even ties.

Again, a blazer will probably be the most-worn piece in your winter wardrobe. Velvet, corduroy and tweed are all excellent picks. They simply must not be reserved strictly for night wear; blazers are very street chic when layered over vintage tees or anything else completely random.

Dress shoes are taking on a new shape. Round and pointy toes are hot. Sadly, square toes are not. Wingtips and brown dress shoes are two other styles that are flying off the shelves.

Track jackets are still going strong and popular choices include neutrals with bright trim or in crazy colors, of course. Check out Ben Sherman, Puma, Quicksilver Clothing and Fred Perry. Many of these brands are sold at Urban Outfitters – there is one in Kansas City, Mo., and another in Lawrence.

For an alternative to jeans, lots of stores are stocking casual pants in neutral patterns such as glen plaid and houndstooth.

Thermal or cotton jersey henleys are a twist on plain long sleeve shirts and can be found at J.Crew.

Denim for men is increasingly stylish. Brands like Diesel, Seven, Paper Denim & Cloth and True Religion are making their way into lots of trendy guys' closets. Abercrombie & Fitch and Hollister are other tried-and-true favorites.

Crazy-colored corduroys and diagonal-striped ties are a great way to add a splash of color to the dominating neutrals of fall.

With the deliciously diverse selection of fabulous fall finds, not looking amazing this season is not even an option. Remember, as always, to have fun with fashion and interpret these trends in your own special way.

Courtney Lair is a senior in apparel and textiles. You can e-mail her at edge@spub.ksu.edu

Featured items:

(Listed from left to right, top to bottom)

Charcoal knee-length skirt by Just in Time on sale for $19.11 paired with black velvet-stripe jacket by Tulle on sale for $38.64.

Cap-sleeve tee with detachable fur collar on sale for $22.05 by Beau Bois.

Silver earrings $8.25.

Ruffled shirt by KLd Signature $49.00.

Knee-high white boot by Anne Michelle on sale for $15.

Yellow and brown earrings $10.25.

Pink knee-high fur boot by Anne Michelle on sale for $15.

Corduroy jacket with V pocket by Tulle $69.00.

Black Men's T-shirt by 2 Brand $40.

Don't Get Weighted Down

Increase shine and body with AVEDA Light Elements. Perfect for fine hair.

Buy 1 Get 1 for 50% Off

HAYNES
An Aveda Family Salon in Aggieville
718 N. Manhattan Ave. 539-5512

AVEDA

More Shoes, More Service, More Friendly

A steady throb of versatility, adaptability & performance. Delivers instinctive reaction to hard use and varying, multi-sport demands.

MERRELL

Brown's SHOE Fit Co

New Business Hours • Mon.-Sat. 9 AM - 6 PM
311 Poyntz Ave. • 776-6612 • Downtown Manhattan

Pivot Point technique
provides the foundation to create and/or recreate all fashionable hairstyles. Visit your local up-and-coming young professionals at

Hi-Lites • Hair Color • Haircuts • Hair Removal • Facials • Body Treatments • Manicures • Pedicures • Artificial Nails • Relaxers • Straighteners

Crum's Beauty College

*performed by supervised students

REDKEN

october SPECIALS

RELAXER RETOUCH $22 includes cut & style

12 ROD PERM $30 soft waves on long hair

*expires Oct. 31

Crum's Beauty College
512 Poyntz • 776-4794

advertise in the Style guide
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6560

Affordable Style

We carry full lines of brand name hair products & appliances including:

- Redken
- Chi Irons & products
- Helen of Troy
- Paul Mitchell
- Matrix
- Pureology
- Hot Tools
- Many more!

Great weekly specials on products and appliances !

Open to the public!

Special low prices on all tanning beds!

Full Hair Salon with many monthly specials & affordable low prices!

WholesaleBeautyClub
409 Poyntz (Downtown) • 539-5999 • M-F 9-7 • Sat 9-6 • Sun 1-5

Meet Our Team
Come visit us in Manhattan Town Center

Gail, Owner · Molly, Beauty Consultant · Shiloh, Beauty Consultant · Megan, Beauty Consultant · Tasha, Beauty Consultant

MERLE NORMAN COSMETICS
785.539.4400 • Monday - Saturday 10a.m.–9p.m. • Sunday 12p.m.–6p.m.

Visit us for beauty that never goes out of style!
5% Student Discount

THINK PINK

Clothing producers donate profits from sales of certain products during breast cancer awareness month

COURTNEY LAIR

Practically every retailer has some product out this month that donates a portion of its profits to organizations such as the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, the Women's Cancer Research Fund or Hope for Breast Cancer Research.

On this rare occasion, splurging on a few treats for yourself is doing a good deed for yourself and others. Here are just a few items that I found to be particularly splendid.

Diane Von Furstenberg designed a fitted T-shirt which is bejeweled in Swarovski crystals and features the words "Love is life, life is love." These shirts are available exclusively at www.saksfifthavenue.com for $35 – of which $33 will be donated to the Women's Cancer Research Fund.

"Get Tied to the Cause" is Ford Motor Co.'s 2005 breast cancer awareness campaign. The Breast Cancer Awareness scarf was designed by Lilly Pulitzer in her signature style with a fabulous paisley and floral print in pink, turquoise and lime. It can be worn in a plethora of ways ranging from a headscarf to a belt, or even a pocket square for men. This limited-edition scarf and can be found at www.komen.org.

Ralph Lauren has a wide selection of merchandise available including their ever-popular Pink Pony collection. The company's classic polos, T-shirts, baseball caps and tote bags (just to name a few) are all embroidered with the timeless pony and are an outstanding addition to any wardrobe. Furthermore, in honor of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Ralph Lauren is offering free shipping on all orders over $150 at www.polo.com during October.

Target launched its Pink Collection, which will be available until Oct. 31. There are all kinds of pink confections including a cashmere scarf and slippers, umbrella, tote bag and charm bracelets. All items are less than $20, and 100 percent of the profits go to the Breast Cancer Research Foundation.

If beauty is your forté, check out www.sephora.com, for its limited-edition pink ribbon beauty products. There are three "Mixed Pinks" sets of lip glosses, scents, and face and body products, which include an assortment of popular pink product minis from a collaboration of cosmetic brands.

The lip set includes full-size and mini glosses from Tarte, Cargo, and Lorac Cosmetics Inc., among others. The scent set features a selection of perfumes including Carolina Herrera's 212 Sexy, Demeter's Sugar Cookie, and Marc Jacobs' Blush. These assortments are absolutely brilliant and at only $25, are a great way to experiment with new products.

Whether you decide to go on a shopping extravaganza and take advantage of the amazing breast cancer-friendly merchandise out right now, or simply pin a pink ribbon to your backpack, somebody somewhere who has experienced the effects of breast cancer will smile because they will be reminded that there is still hope in finding a cure.

Courtney Lair is a senior in apparel and textiles. You can e-mail her at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

Photo illustration by Emily Lawrence| COLLEGIAN

FREE make-up application with a haircut by Haley
15% off any retail purchase with this coupon
Expires Oct.31
NEW BEGINNINGS
HAIRSTYLING & TANNING
1130 Westport (south of Blockbuster) 537-1003

T-shirts for $1 or less.
Oct. 19-22
T-shirts never go out of style
Visit the Grand Ol' Trunk for that vintage look.
Grand Ol' Trunk
537-2273
1304 Pillsbury Road

Put your best foot foward...
INDULGE IN YOUR FETISH
Keen
Come see us at
Olson's Birkenstock
1214-B Moro • Aggieville
539-8571
You cannot put the same shoe on every foot!

New Fall Fashions are in!
on the Wild Side
Aggieville 776-2252

10% OFF ANY WRANGLER ITEM
• WRANGLER PEARL SNAPS (LARGE SUPPLY)
• BIG SUPPLY OF JEANS
Lee's Western Wear
M-F: 10-6 Sat: 10-5
8426 Hwy 24 • 776-6715

Let us help you discover your style!
A CUT ABOVE
Hair and Nail Salon
1800 Claflin Road, Suite 110
(785) 537-3200
Free Haircut with any color or Hi-Lite service with coupon
Expires: 11-11-05

GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Candlewood Shopping Center 776-5632
3266 Kimball Ave. Tue.-Sat. Evenings by appointment

$5.00 OFF GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Any Haircut, Pedicure or Manicure
Basic or Spa

$2.00 OFF GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Eyebrow Wax

$10.00 OFF GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Facial or Full Body Massage
(reg. 60) (reg. 50)

$10.00 OFF GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Any color of $50.00 or More

20% OFF GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Of 2 or More Retail (Full Size)

Call For Our Weekly Specials
GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Gift Certificates Available • 776-5632

Thirst quencher

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Kyla Pugh, student at Randolph Academy for the Performing Arts in Toronto, gives her eight-week dog Zamore water from the fountain in the Bosco Plaza Monday afternoon. Pugh is in Manhattan visiting her boyfriend.

Saddam's lawyer to ask for adjournment

By Hamza Hendawi
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAGHDAD, Iraq – The lawyer for Saddam Hussein said Tuesday he will ask a tribunal for a three-month adjournment of the former Iraqi dictator's trial for a 1982 massacre.

Saddam and seven senior members of his 23-year regime go on trial Wednesday to face charges they ordered the killings of nearly 150 people from the mainly Shiite town of Dujail following a failed attempt on Saddam's life.

Khalil Dulaimi told The Associated Press he would ask during Wednesday's opening session for more time to prepare Saddam's defense and arrange for Arab and Western lawyers to join him in the defense team.

The defense also will challenge the court's competence to try Saddam.

"We will dispute the legitimacy of the court as we've been doing every day. We will claim it is unconstitutional and not competent to try the legitimate president of Iraq," Dulaimi said.

"Saddam Hussein is Iraq's legitimate president while the court is illegitimate because the U.S. invasion is illegal and everything that has been built upon it is just as illegal."

The court is expected to grant an adjournment if the defense asks for one, court officials have said.

Dulaimi met with Saddam for 90 minutes Tuesday at a location other than the usual place of detention for the ousted Iraqi leader.

Saddam's location has been kept secret since his capture by American troops in December 2003, but it is believed that he has been held at a U.S. facility at Baghdad International Airport.

Saddam was in high spirits and "very optimistic" on the eve of the start of his trial, Dulaimi said.

"I have just left him five minutes ago. His morale is very, very, very high and he is very optimistic and confident of his innocence," Dulaimi said.

If convicted, Saddam and his co-defendants could face the death penalty, but they could appeal before another chamber of the special tribunal set up to try the former leader and officials from his ousted regime.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

120 For Rent- Houses

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ROOMMATE NEEDED for two-bedroom apartment. Very clean/ nice, pets allowed. Great landlords, available now- May 31. Call (913)220-5854.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

ONE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE December or January. $335 to $350. (785)587-0399.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300, (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM, Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

NOW LEASING
• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillinvestandrental.com

LEE CREST Apartment within one block from campus. One and two-bedrooms, private parking, on site laundries, water/ trash paid. Electric central heat/ air. $455 and $490. (785)539-7961.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)537-2323.

FOR RENT: one-bedroom, private bathroom, washer/ dryer, all appliances, fenced yard, private parking. $300/ month and split utilities. Water/ trash/ sewage paid. Pet friendly. (316)253-5549.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted: $295/ month plus one-half utilities. Close to campus. Non-smoking. Available immediately. Call (785)229-5572.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)466-4986.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom. Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath apartment. Water, trash, and cable paid. $480/ month. (785)587-9638.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS: Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

DESPERATE MOM/ office manager needs help organizing , sorting, filing in home and office. Flexible hours for hardworking students who like to clean and organize. $6/ hour. Call Chris (785)456-5835.

NOW HIRING. Vista Drive In, a locally owned and operated quick service restaurant is adding to our team. Individuals must have a positive attitude and be able to multitask and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We have multiple part-time positions available some daytime hours preferred. KSU students encouraged. Insurance benefits available. We offer meal discounts, flexible hours and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT- Need part-time person to assist with online research, topics are education and criminology. This will be ongoing research until June. Call (785)565-3708 for pay and details.

310 Help Wanted

FAST PACED, upbeat office that is loosing a senior and looking for new student help. Position will officially start after finals, however, ideal candidate will begin learning the ropes over the next few months. This is great professional experience for a journalism or marketing student. Help promote K-State's Distance Education Programs while gaining real life experience. Freshman or sophomore status preferred with ability to work during the summer semesters and winter breaks as well. The individual who fills this position will manage information and promote knowledge of it by means of various media. Duties include: writing content/ copy, creating desktop publications, managing online course databases, writing press releases, conducting interviews, etc. This position works with three full-time communication professionals and three part-time student communication specialists. Design experience a plus. Our on campus office operates Monday- Friday, 8:00am- 5:00pm and is eager to work around your schedule. Please apply in person at 23 College Court Building, Public Information Office, Division of Continuing Education (785)532-5888.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

INTERNET WORK! $8.75-$38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

MANPOWER IS now accepting applications for office position in Alma. Weekends only, $9/ hour. Apply in person at 555 Poyntz Ave. Suite 245.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

NEED ICAT tickets to Texas A&M game. (785)410-5384.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air-conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape, 73k asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.usski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

SPRING BREAKERS book early and save. Lowest prices. Hottest destinations. Book 15= 2 FREE TRIPS OR CASH. FREE MEALS/ PARTIES BY 11/7. Highest commission. Best travel perks. www.sunsplashtours.com (800)426-7710.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

EARN YOUR M.D. degree in warm tropical Belize! Contact:InterAmerican School of Medical Sciences. 877-DOC-STUDY or on the web at www.interamericanschool.com

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

120 For Rent- Houses

McDonald's Crew Positions
CREW POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Full time and part time
Above average pay
Flexible schedule
Hiring for ALL shifts, including 3rd Shift (11p - 7a)
Uniforms provided
Reduced meals
Advancement opportunities
Come join the team at McDonald's.
Please apply in person at
MANHATTAN: 815 N 3rd Street or 1011 Westloop Place
JUNCTION CITY: I-70 & Washington Street or 416 W 6th Street

Graphic Design/GTM Sportswear
GTM SPORTSWEAR
This part time position is great for a junior or senior in graphic design. Individual must be dependable, self-motivated, organized, and very creative. Excellent attention to detail is a definite plus. Macintosh experience and knowledge of Quark, Photoshop, Illustrator, and OS X preferred. Duties include: T layout of ads and other printed marketing materials, preparing samples for photo shoots, and taking digital photos. Individual would ideally be available for 3-4 hour blocks approximately 15-20 hours a week. Send resumes to: GTM Sportswear 520 McCall Rd, Manhattan, Ks. 66502 Attn: Kathy Lindsay or e-mail klindsay@gtm.com.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

DAWN | Letter-writing party fundraises for St. Judes to donate money. This is the first year the K-State goal is $200,000.

Continued from Page 1

"We did the math last night and if each team member gets 50 people to donate $6.66, it'll be over $200,000," Williams said.

The hospital is located in Memphis, Tenn., and treats children from around the world diagnosed with diseases such as cancer and operates solely on donations. It takes $1 million per day to keep the hospital running.

At the letter writing party, more than 500 people, in teams between six and eight, came to write letters. The letters summarized the purpose of St. Jude and told why the student was involved in the philanthropy.

"Knowing that you are helping kids and families so the kids can get what they need is amazing," Mallory McCandless, sophomore in elementary education, said.

Students came to the party dressed in costumes, such as Buzz Lightyear, angels, K-State fans and an 80s Prom Queen. Gift certificates from Pizza Hut and Cold Stone Creamery were given to the best dressed.

Mitchell Jost, a patient at St. Judes and Manhattan resident, announced the winners toward the end of the night after telling his story.

"I'm trying to let college kids here know that it is going to a good cause," Jost said. "And if my story can help them to write letters, then it's good."

The teams wrote letters until 10 p.m., and when the 22,000 printed letters and envelopes ran out, people kept writing.

"It's wonderful and really great to see so many students come together and raise money for St. Judes when they could be out doing something else," said Brian Doyle, former patient and regional director of St. Judes.

The Up 'Til Dawn philanthropy will continue throughout the year, and signing up to help is still a possibility. Anyone can register online at www.ksu.edu/uptildawn.com, or pick up a registration packet in Union 214.

MISS KANSAS | Financial education Rosel's platform

Continued from Page 1

said the job is still rewarding. Rosel said her favorite part is the students.

"They look up to you, you are a role model to them and those are big shoes to fill." Rosel said.

Getting to know people is also Rosel's way of increasing her impact on people's lives.

"Who's a role model, unless you know them?" she said. "A lot of times people talk about Miss Kansas (being) one of the most exciting and lonely jobs all at the same time."

Between singing, dancing, modeling, talking with kids, doing luncheons with volunteer organizations, raising money and driving across the state, Rosel also manages to advance her platform of financial education.

The seeds for her platform were sown when she realized, with only five months left in her college education, that she knew very little about topics such as buying health insurance to Social Security reform. She then asked others, only to find that they, too, did not know and, eventually, her platform was born.

Although Kansas recently set a precedent by being the first state to pass a bill providing for financial education, Rosel said she would like to see it one step further.

"I'd like to see that on a national level as Miss America," Rosel said.

BOARD | TABOR, parking garage under discussion

Continued from Page 1

Kansas government spending has grown three times (more) than average Kansans' wages," Landwehr said.

Opponents, however, say the cut backs will deprive important government responsibilities.

The cuts to overall education funding would be the same as eliminating one of the Kansas Board of Regents universities, such as Wichita State University, Matt Wagner, Student Senate privilege fee chair said in a meeting last month.

Donna Shank, chair of the Kansas Board of Regents, said the resolution has the potential to cut 10,000 K-12 teachers' jobs, higher educating funding, insurance for low-income households and road construction.

PARKING GARAGE

K-State is requesting to modify the Fiscal Year 2007 Capital Improvements plan to include the Student Senate approved $17.5 million K-State Student Union parking garage. The garage will accommodate nearly 1,500 vehicles, gaining nearly 1,000 more parking stalls than what exists in the Union parking lot today. Revenue bonds, parking fees and fines will finance the facility.

COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE

The College of Veterinary Medicine submitted a proposal to the regents to combine three master's degrees into one degree. If approved, the college will combine veterinary physiology, veterinary sciences/veterinary clinical sciences and pathology/experimental pathology degrees into a Master of Veterinary Biomedical Science. The change, as stated in the proposal submitted to the Board of Regents, will broaden the knowledge of students in the college, exposing them to more sciences that could potentially enhance their careers.

For issues regarding K-State, Student Body President Michael Burns said students should become active in their thoughts, especially with more controversial legislation like TABOR.

"I think (TABOR) will have an impact on higher education for this year and many years to come," Burns said at a Student Senate meeting last month. "It's important to be proactive – not only educate yourself about it, educate your friends and parents to be proactive about it. They have a lot of leverage."

VOLLEYBALL | No. 1 Nebraska comes to town

Continued from Page 6

comes ready to compete."

If No. 23 K-State wants a repeat of 2003, it can't afford to wait until the second or third game of the match to gain momentum, like the past two matches against Colorado and Baylor, Fritz said.

"We're taking too long to get going," Fritz said. "Against the No. 1 team in the country, you can't do that. They'll take advantage of that."

Nebraska enters tonight's match boasting three victories against top-5 opponents this season. Comparatively speaking, K-State is 1-3 against ranked foes in 2005.

"You certainly don't need a motivator against a team like Nebraska," Fritz said.

Sophomore Rita Lilliom, a middle blocker from Budapest, Hungary, said it's easy to get fired up when competing against a team of Nebraska's caliber.

"It's a good experience to play against another good team," Lilliom said. "I really want to beat them, and I trust my team."

Junior outside hitter Sandy Werner, who led the Cats in kills for the fifth time this season in their victory against Baylor on Saturday, said despite opposition, she is geared up for the touted match.

"We're feeling confident right now," Werner said. "We're ready for Wednesday night."

COLUMN | Emporia native at NASCAR's top level

Continued from Page 6

Kansans also will be able to root for Emporia, Kan., native Clint Bowyer. He is a part of the Richard Childress Racing team and will be racing in the Nextel Cup series in 2006.

There are obvious problems with NASCAR, just like any other sport. The points system needs reworking and competition at super-speedways is not as strong as it needs to be thanks to the asinine restrictor plates.

I'll admit I've slept during the long, green flags runs, and cars driving in circles may not be interesting to watch.

However, rarely would I trade the culture built around the sport, or those fiery, injury-free crashes for the constant excitement of any other sport.

Matt Gorney is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

POYNTZ | Lane reconstruction begins downtown

Continued from Page 1

stalls to the existing 118 in the downtown area.

"Right now, existing parking stalls are sitting at 30 degree angles, and some of the widths vary between nine and 11 feet," he said. "They all vary too much."

After an extensive traffic study in the area, Ott said the commission also approved converting the 300 to 500 block of Poyntz Avenue from four to two lanes. With the existing four-lane Poyntz Avenue, lanes vary from 10 to 12 feet in width. Under the future 2-lane streets, Ott said the lanes will be 18-feet wide, giving motorists more room to drive safely.

Soon, engineers also will begin extending sidewalks to pedestrian crosswalks.

Tired of the same old food?
Try something new by looking in the Menu section.

Kansas State University
CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
2005-2006

Available Now
for purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

WEDNESDAY starts the WEEKEND!
$2.00 Coors & Coors Light Pounders
$1.50 Wells
Free POOL @ the Other Side
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THINKING about changing majors?
For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494
K-State
Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 26 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom

RICHARD THOMAS
in
"Play on Words"
Thursday
October 20
@ 7:30PM

Kansas State University
McCain Auditorium
2005-2006
Performance Series
Tickets:
Call the McCain Box Office
785-532-6428 and
charge your tickets to
VISA, Mastercard, AMEX or Discover
weekdays 11am - 6pm
For more information or to buy online go to www.k-state.edu/mccain
All events are presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission,a state agency, the National Endowment for the Arts, a Federal agency and the K-State Fine Arts fee.

Richard Thomas has been called "one of his generation's most versatile and prolific performers." Thomas, star of the popular TV show "The Waltons," presents "Play On Words" an evening of dramatic interpretive readings of great literature, selected by Thomas for their dramatic power, nostalgic value and humor. Mr. Thomas is currently appearing in the Broadway play "A Naked Girl on the Appian Way." Previously he starred in the Broadway hit "Democracy".

Sponsored by:
Capitol Federal Savings

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

Page 6

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, October 20, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 44

Campus thefts concern police

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A red laminated sign, a few empty anchor holes and some blank wallspace on the second floor of the K-State Student Union are all that remain of Arron Brown's painting, "Year of the Horse #2."

The K-State Police is investigating several major unrelated thefts and wanted the public's help to resolve them, they said in a release Wednesday.

"Horse," worth $1,200, was reported stolen Sept. 8 with three other large paintings, John Connaughton, associate director of the Union, said. Their total value was more than $2,000.

Connaughton said the theft was discovered at 6:15 p.m. that day, and that whoever took them was not recorded in the Union's security cameras. He said the theft prompted the Union to add more security to its art on display.

"We have about 400 pieces of art in the building, and we've been going around to all of them," he said.

The campus police have a more clear image of the perpetrator in a theft from the construction site of the Biosecurity Research Building on Denison Avenue on Sept. 25.

K-State Police Sgt. Don Stubbings said security cameras recorded a subject park a blue or green 1993-1996 Dodge Grand Caravan next to the site and enter a contractor's locked trailer. The subject then took several things out and put them in the van.

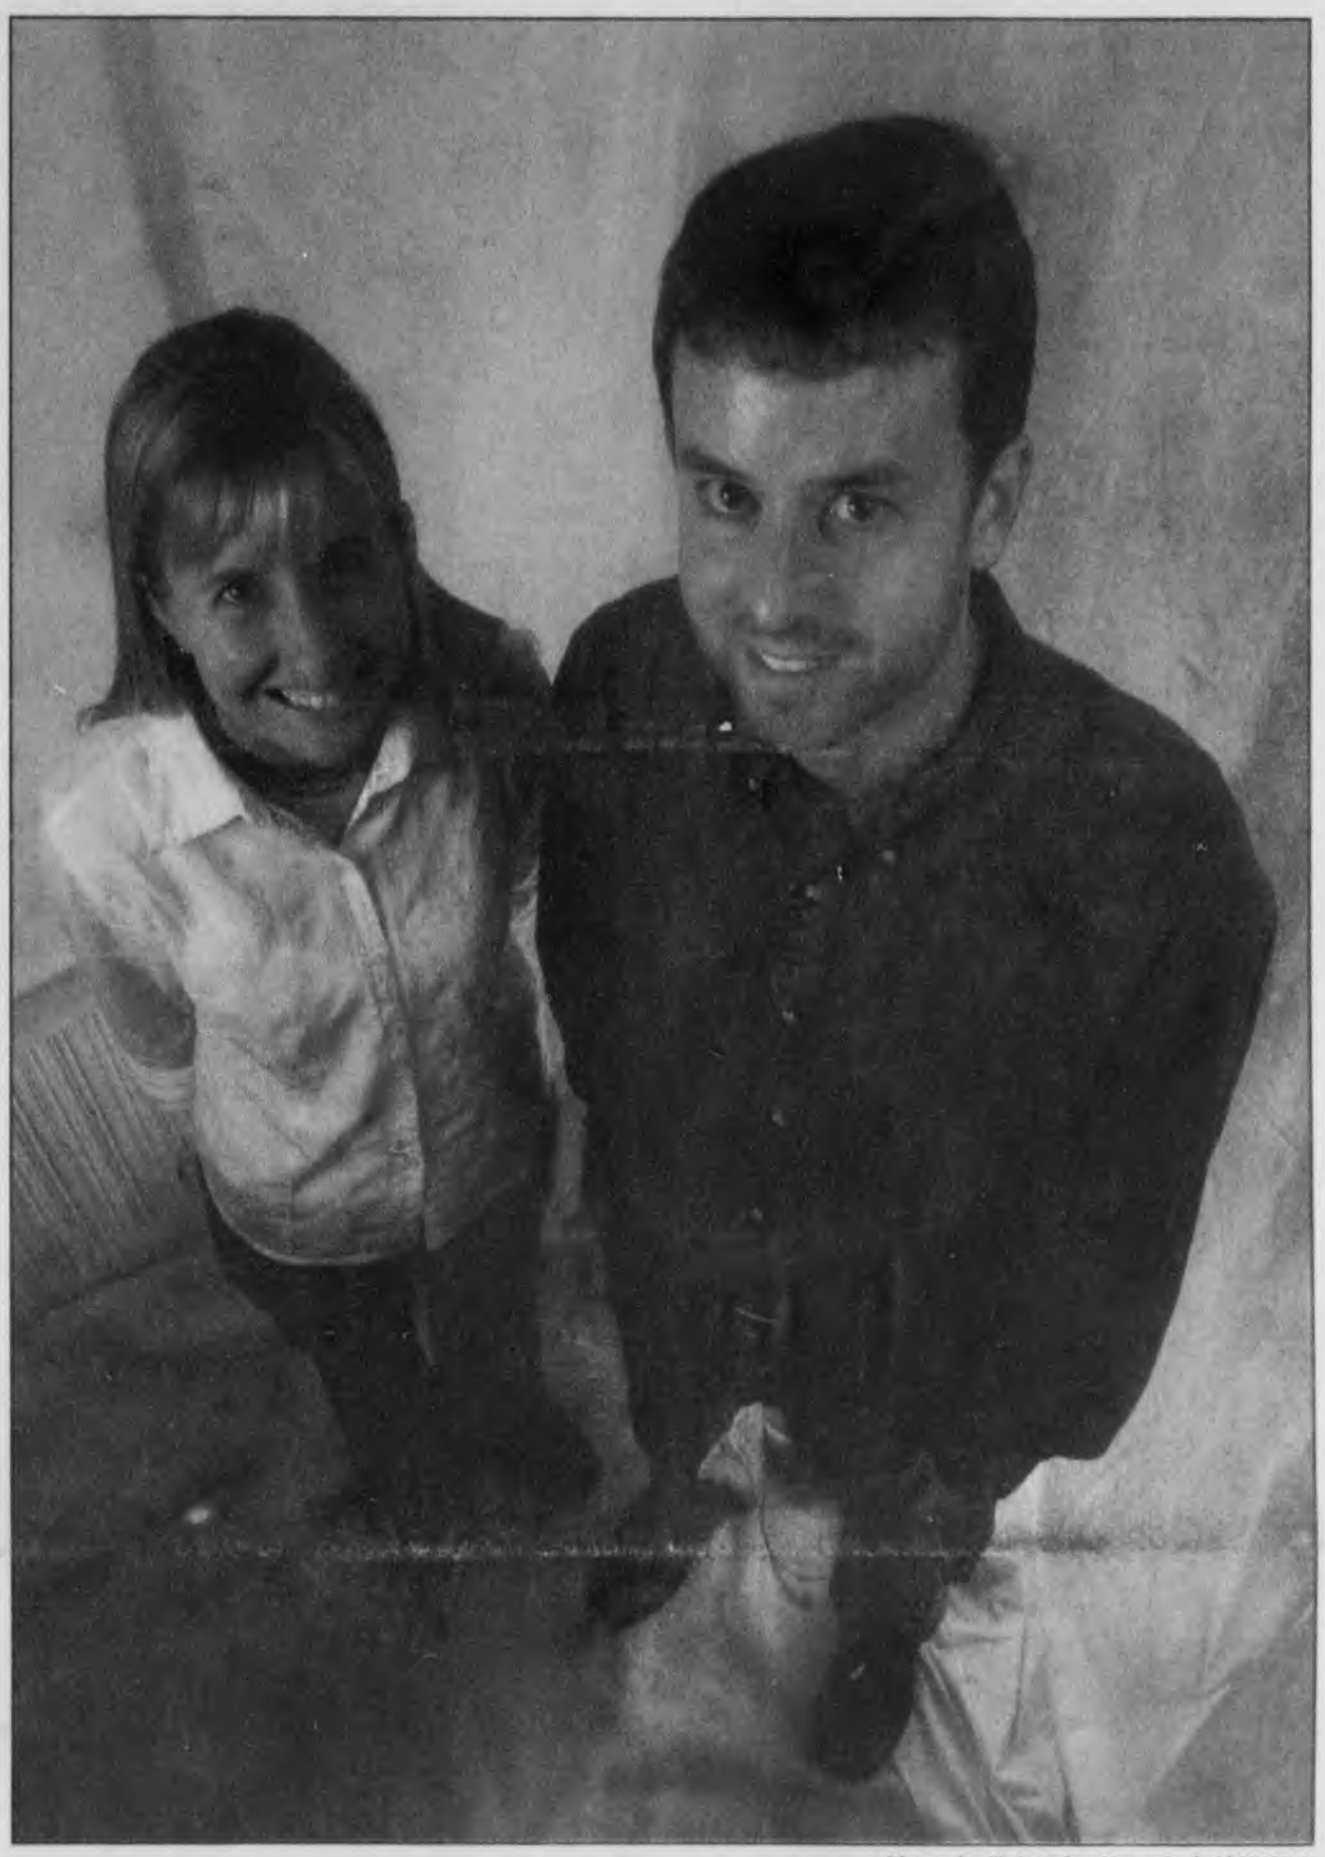
See CAMPUS THEFTS Page 10

Contacting the police
The K-State Police can be reached at 532-6412 or through their Web site at www.ksu.edu/police.

Webmail to receive storage boost

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State's Webmail service will receive a $109,500 upgrade in storage in response to a massive increase in usage, said Elizabeth Unger, vice provost of academic services and technology.



According to the K-State Information Technology newsletter, Webmail usage has jumped from 263,000 messages a day in March to 1,066,000 messages a day for the month of October, with most of the growth occurring in the past four weeks.

"People are just using it more," said Ernie Perez, co-manager for the media development center. "That can attribute it to some of the issues we've been seeing lately."

The main issue is a noticeable drop in the speed of the Webmail server. Students may have difficulty accessing their inbox, said Rebecca Gould, director of the Information Technology Assistance Center.

"The thing that everybody is

See WEBMAIL Page 10

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Stephanie Springer and John Harty have both spent time overseas as Peace Corps volunteers.

A broad opportunity

Peace Corps volunteers build, enhance skills

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

For Adam and Stephanie Springer, the hardest part of their two years with the Peace Corps was not being away from friends and family.

It wasn't even that they were thrust into the country of Lesotho three months after learning the local language.

The Springers said the hardest part was leaving the small African country to come "home." They said the road to Lesotho was a long one. They made the decision to join the Peace Corps in summer 2002.

"I started thinking about joining the Peace Corps when I was a sophomore at K-State," Adam Springer, a 2002 K-State graduate, said. "I've always been interested in living abroad and doing community service, and the Peace Corps was a good program that meshed those two ideas together."

For John Harty, graduate student in Geography, serving in the Peace Corps came naturally.

"I thought about it a good portion of my life," Harty said. "I was very young, probably four or five."

Harty traveled to Uzbekistan from January to October in 2001. He would have served the standard two year term, but he had to evacuate when the United States invaded Afghanistan.

After they applied, the Springers had to wait until June 2003 before they left for training in Lesotho (pronounced La-soo-too) in southern Africa.

"The night before leaving I didn't sleep at all because I was so nervous," Stephanie Springer said.

Neither Adam nor Stephanie was sure what to expect when they arrived, but both were impressed by the people.

"I just remember being struck by how welcoming the people were," Adam said.

Upon their arrival, Stephanie said that the villagers were so excited they began to cry out.

"They were going berserk," she said. "They were all ululating. It was such a

See PEACE CORPS Page 10

Stephanie Springer, Peace Corps representative for K-State, speaks at an information meeting Tuesday evening in the K-State Student Union. Springer joined the Peace Corps in 2002 and traveled to Lesotho, Africa.

Peace Corps Information Meeting
When: 6:30 to 8 tonight
Where: Smurthwaite Scholarship House

Attempted rape reported

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An attempted rape reported early Wednesday morning is not believed to be connected to the serial rapist, said Lt. Mike Quintanar with the Riley County Police Department.

Quintanar said the RCPD received a call at 3:53 a.m. and filed reports for attempted rape, aggravated battery, aggravated burglary and criminal threat.

The victim was a 19-year-old female, and the incident reportedly occurred in the northeast part of Manhattan, Quintanar said.

He said there is no description of a suspect except it was possibly a black male.

Accounts accessible through Internet

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State Controller's Office is switching from paper bills to eBills for student accounts.

Students with outstanding university balances received an e-mail Tuesday night alerting them to the availability of their eBill, which students access through KATS, Jim Bach, director of accounting services, said.

Bach said for several months, paper bills will still be mailed as well.

Bach said students without an outstanding balance may not see the change for some time.

Jim Badders, manager for Student Services, said eBills will allow quicker statement delivery, access anywhere at any time to both current and previous bills, and increased security. It will also help students who are traveling or studying abroad.

"We would hope the majority of the students will see this as a benefit and make use of it," Badders said.

Danna Aves, junior in mass communications, said it is to students' benefit to have account information readily available because some students don't track their account balances.

To access an eBill
- Log in to KATS
- Select "Student Account"
- Select "View Current and/or Previous eBills"
- Select "Click here to proceed to your eBill."
- Once on the eBill Web site, follow instructions given.

She said it's good that K-State is now upgrading its systems.

"I think it's good the university is keeping up with technology," she said.

Students can also create user names for others, like parents or spouses. Those designated by the student can then see the student's eBills and make online payments.

The eBills will look exactly like paper bills and the payment methods will not change, Bach said.

Students can still pay with cash or check in the Cashier's Office or through the mail, with a credit card or by a direct debit from a checking account.

Today
High 55
Low 43

Friday
High 64
Low 42

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Search for Escapees
Authorities from Kansas and Oklahoma are searching for convicted killer Aaron Olsen, 39, and convicted rapist Pharon Johnson, 49, who escaped from an Oklahoma prison during the weekend. The escapees were last seen at a convenience store just east of Arkansas City, Kan.
Page 7

Saddam pleads not guilty
Saddam Hussein pleaded innocent to charges of murder and torture Wednesday. The first session of the trial lasted about three hours and the judge ordered an adjournment until Nov. 28. Saddam and his seven co-defendants could face the death penalty if they are convicted for the 1982 massacre of 148 Shiites.
Page 7

Coaches indicted
Former Barton County Community College track coach Lyles Lashley and basketball coach Shane Hawkins were indicted during an investigation in the school's athletic program. They're charged with lying to a federal grand jury. Lashley is also charged with one count of embezzlement.
Page 7

DON'T FORGET

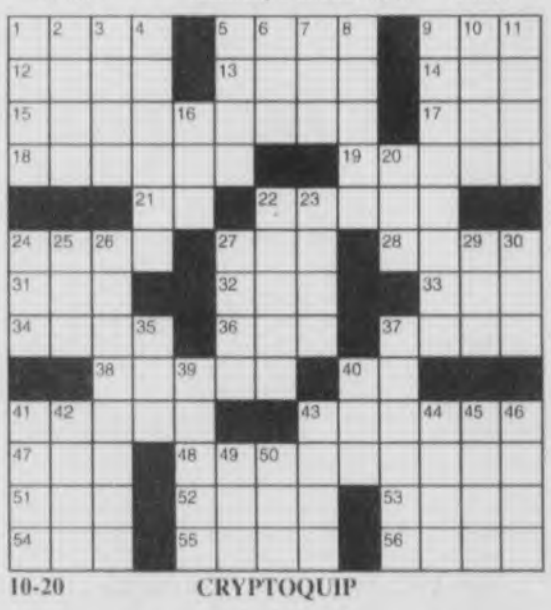
Friday is the last day to sign up for A/Pass/F grading option for a course with 56-62 calendar days.

Actor Richard Thomas will present "Play on Words" at 7:30 tonight in McCain Auditorium. For tickets, call the McCain Box office at 532-6428 or visit www.k-state.edu/mccain.

The deadline for Intramural Cross Country, Bowling and Inner Tube Water Polo is at 5 p.m. tonight. Sign up before then in the administrative office at the Peters Recreation Complex.

See our listings in the Classifieds.
DIAMOND
REAL ESTATE PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
785-537-7701

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Cushions
5 Engage in mockery
9 Flatfoot
12 "— a Song Go Out of My Heart"
13 It takes the cake
14 Mimic
15 Soft cheese
17 Wrestling surface
18 Cutlery
19 Banish
21 Tagged one
22 Gives a hoot
24 Pleasant
27 Discordance
28 Remove a cap
31 Mound stat
32 "What Kind of Fool —?"
33 Rawls or Reed
34 Office part-timer
36 Letter from London
37 "Cheers" wares
38 Reagan's anthropoid co-star
40 "Goodness gracious!"
41 Range of sight
43 Draw
47 In need of repair
48 Averse to posing
51 Miss Piggy's pronoun
52 Door part
53 Faux pas
54 LAX info
55 Undo a dele
56 Logical

DOWN
1 Selection
2 King of comedy
3 Ms. Moore
4 Wonder or Nicks
5 Occupations
6 Rd.
7 Apiece
8 Keyboard key
9 Lingerie item
10 Milky gem
11 Sampras or Seeger
16 Bumped into
20 Took out of context?
22 Bit part
23 Saharan
24 Bottom line
25 Rage
26 Spalding Gray's "Swimming to —"
27 Utah team
29 Adversary
30 Bear hair
35 Dad
37 Avoid
39 Gets amorous
40 Mal de —
41 A few
42 What a stent will prevent
43 Credit card aftermath
44 Madonna's "La — Bonita"
45 Goatee site
46 Ilk
49 Grasshopper's rebuker
50 Curly's cohort

Solution time: 25 mins.

M	A	M	A		C	A	L		E	V	E	N
O	M	A	R		O	N	A		M	E	R	E
V	E	R	B	A	T	I	M		B	R	I	E
E	X	T	O	R	T		B	L	A	M	E	D
			R	I	O		S	O	L	O
R	E	V		A	N	D		S	M	U	S	H
A	R	E	A		S	I	L		S	T	O	A
M	A	R	G	O		P	A	N		H	U	M
		O	A	F	S		Y	E	S
I	G	N	I	T	E		E	X	P	E	L	S
C	A	I	N		V	E	R	T	I	C	A	L
A	B	C	S		E	V	E		E	R	G	O
N	E	A	T		R	A	D		L	U	S	T

Yesterday's answer 10-20

10-20 CRYPTOQUIP

K E K S A D P R Q L X E C D T E S L D M Z D A L I B D P D T D F G I Q R M Q H Z D F G X I Q A G P Z F : " E Q A Q F L I Z H D C Q A B . "

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF YOU THOUGHT ACTRESS JANE WAS JUST INCREDIBLE, I GUESS YOU WOULD BE REALLY FONDA HER.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: F equals N

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time, but hey, it's better than lecture

Where are they now?

MC Hammer "Can't Touch This"

The song topped the charts is 1990 and earned an estimated $30 million.

WHERE IS HE NOW?

After "Hammer Time" was over he was forced to declare bankruptcy in 1996. After breaking his leg and the murder of friend Tupac Shakur, Hammer went back to being a man of God (He grew up in a religious environment).

He is now an evangelist and lives in Northern California with his wife and four children. There have been rumors of him getting back into music, but no albums have come out yet. He also had a surprise performance at the 2005 MTV Video Music Awards.

Sinead O'Connor "Nothing Compares 2 U"

The Irish singer had a controversial career. She defended the IRA, upset Frank Sinatra and tore up a picture of the Pope on Saturday Night Live.

O'Connor

WHERE IS SHE NOW?

In 2001, she married journalist Nick Sommerland. In 2003, she stated "she no longer wanted to be regarded as a famous person." She gave birth to her third child in March 2004. She became a priest in a breakaway group of the Catholic Church in Ireland. She wore a Roman collar and styled herself as Mother Bernadette. She is reportedly in Jamaica recording a reggae album.

Tommy Tutone "867-5309/Jenny"

Founded and led by Tommy Heath and Jim Keller, the early eighties pop band are most remembered for this hit.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

Heath moved to Tennessee and released a solo record in 1992. He later moved to Seattle where he became a computer analyst. Keller now goes by the name Jimmy James. He lives in Tampa, Fla., and runs management company Jimmy James Entertainment. He owns a recording studio, installs custom house audio systems, does session work and guitar product endorsements.

Milli Vanilli "Blame It On The Rain"

Rob Pilatus and Fabrice Morvan, or Milli Vanilli, had many hits including "Blame It On The Rain," "Baby Don't Forget My Number" and "Girl You Know It's True." They won a Grammy in 1990. Then they were caught lip-syncing to their hits and were stripped of their Grammy.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

Producers tried to reinvent the duo in 1991 as "The Real Milli Vanilli" releasing "Moment of Truth", which didn't do well. The duo tried to reform again in 1993 as Rob and Fab, but the record only sold 2,000 copies. Pilatus died in 1998 from a combination of alcohol and pills. Morvan lives in New York and continues to pursue a solo career.

Cyndi Lauper "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun"

She had many hits of the '80s including "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun" and "Time after Time." Her first album, "She's So Unusual" sold 4.5 million copies in the United States.

Lauper

WHERE IS SHE NOW?

She worked on a sitcom at one time, but it was never broadcasted. She has appeared on the TV series "Mad About You" and toured with Cher in 1999. She has starred in several movies, such as "Off and Running" and "Life with Mikey." She also sang for the movie "Rugrats in Paris." She crossed over into adult contemporary music with the albums "At Last" in November 2003 and "Live at Last" in May 2004. She is also concentrating on being a mother.

Source: www.weht.net
Art: Courtesy photos

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Tuesday, Oct. 18

- Mandy Horan, 110 Tuttle Creek View, was arrested at 8:16 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $100.
- Kendalee Schmidt, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 10:30 a.m. for forgery and theft. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Christopher Alves, 2205 Buckingham St., Apt. 9, was arrested at 2:35 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $20,000.
- Clifton Davis, 2453 Hobbs Drive, was arrested at 4 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $500.
- Octavious Woodard, Junction City, was arrested at 6 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Anthony Murphy, 1105 Yuma St., was arrested at 11:45 p.m. for seven counts of failure to appear. Bond was set at $7,750.

Wednesday, Oct. 19

- Scottie Ryan, 715 Allen Road, was arrested at 2:05 a.m. for driving with a suspended license and DUI. Bond was set at $750.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- There will be a class on how to find a journal article from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. today in Hale 408.
- K-State's Relay For Life Committee will meet at 5:30 p.m. today in Union Stateroom 3.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kasee Hildenbrand at 3 p.m. today in Bluemont 368.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Swing City Jazz Series
Manhattan Arts Center presents
Wayne Goins with vibraphonist Dr. Kenneth Jolls
Friday, October 21, 8 p.m.
Tickets available at: Claflin Books and Copies, The Dusty Bookshelf, & Manhattan Arts Center
Ad sponsored by Claflin

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Myers Insurance Agency
AUTO · HOME · LIFE · BUSINESS · HEALTH · SHORT-TERM HEALTH 776-7199
555 Poyntz Ave.
COLONY SQUARE
SUITE 227
Manhattan
Dan & Molly Myers
www.farmers.com
1-888-575-9543

Fat's BAR & GRILL
Thursdays
$2.00 bottles
$3.50 fishbowls
12th & Laramie
Aggieville

LIVE TONIGHT
Jackson Taylor & Bleu Edmondson
Tickets- $8
LONGHORNS SALOON
1115 Moro
776-8770

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday Oct 28.
Your name: _____ ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____
ONLY $5!

Residents may have to relocate

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
From right, Patricia Geraghty and Lenny Arveson, residents of Garcia Quaintance Apartments, laugh while sitting in Arveson's apartment Tuesday. Residents living in this apartment complex may have to relocate because of the progress of the Manhattan downtown redevelopment project.

Lenny Arveson has called 318 Fremont St. "home" for 14 years.

But with progress being made in the Manhattan downtown redevelopment project, he may have to relocate.

Arveson is one of seven disabled tenants who live in the basement apartments of the eight-unit Garcia Quaintance Apartments. The complex was purchased by Scott Quaintance and Richard Garcia in 1995 and currently has 13 tenants.

Arveson, who is unable to drive, has worked at Woodrow Wilson Elementary School for three years as a custodian. He walks to work daily and cannot afford cab services. If he is forced to relocate, Arveson said he will not be able to get a different job.

"You're just not going to find another apartment like this," he said.

The downtown redevelopment district has been split into three areas, which includes Bluemont Avenue, Tuttle Creek Boulevard, Fort Riley Boulevard and 4th Street. The project will consist of retail and residential developments, as well as road improvements.

A public hearing was conducted at the Oct. 11 Manhattan City Commission meeting. The tenants addressed their concerns to Dial Reality, which has invested $50 million into in the redevelopment project.

Shawn Manor, Arveson's roommate, also does not drive and walks to her two jobs at McDonald's and Manhattan Town Center.

"If we're forced to relocate, Lenny and I still want to live together," she said.

Arveson and Manor's friend Patricia Geraghty has lived in the apartment complex for 12 years with boyfriend Robert Tertaglia. She and Manor walk to a ceramics class every Tuesday evening. Geraghty said she will miss her landlords and walking to nearby businesses if she is forced to relocate.

"We're a knit family, even with the landlords," Geraghty said. "I want a place where my friends are."

Other tenants in the apartment are also concerned about the future of the complex.

Stacey Yadon, sophomore in pre-health professions program, has lived in the apartment with her husband Riley, senior in accounting, for almost a year.

"We can relocate, but we don't want to," she said. "But the downstairs tenants ... this apartment is their lives."

Stacey Yadon said the apartment is relatively close to campus, and she and Riley are able to bike to class. She said if forced to relocate, it would be difficult to find a convenient place to live.

"It's quiet at this apartment," she said. "We like having neighbors to look after the apartment and our dog when we're gone."

Quaintance, who owns two other apartment complexes with Garcia, said there are about 10 months left until tenants will be forced to leave the apartment, but no exact date is set. The landlords must agree on a price to sell the apartment to Dial Reality by December.

In addition to being a business situation, the possible relocation involves quality of life in living situations for the disabled tenants.

"We are legally not responsible to help the tenants relocate," Quaintance said. "But we want to help people who cannot look out for themselves."

Board of Education votes to be impartial

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In a five-to-one vote, the Manhattan-Ogden USD 383 Board of Education decided to not take a position in regards to the downtown redevelopment project. Their three options were to support the project, oppose the project, or remain neutral.

"We are not here as experts on development or business affairs," Nancy Knopp, board member, said. "Our job is to look out for our school children, our staff, and in that light, we're the only ones, I think, that are really looking out for the kids. I think this has some very strong dangers for it."

Opinions were mixed on this topic. The main concern was that, if the project does go through, the Tax Increment Finance fund will capture the incremental increase in property taxes within the district, due to inflation and the improvements constructed as a result of the redevelopment efforts.

The TIF fund will also capture the local sales tax of 1.3 percent generated within the proposed business district.

Some board members feared acceptance of the TIF fund would decrease the district budget, while others felt nothing was at stake.

"If the project yields more than 10 additional students, we more than make up for the property tax losses," Peter Paukstelis, board member, said. "I guess I don't see the huge impact on the funding of the district."

USD 383 currently receives $82,749 in property and tax revenue from the entire proposed TIF district. The city has developed an analysis that estimates the property taxes lost over the next 20 years at a 4-percent inflation rate, with the $82,749 kept constant or frozen.

It was feared the constant amount of money received would not allow for future inflation; in other words, district expenses will continue to rise and the amount of money received will not increase.

"Our position is not to be experts on the redevelopment project, but to make sure we won't be abused," Randy Martin, school board president, said.

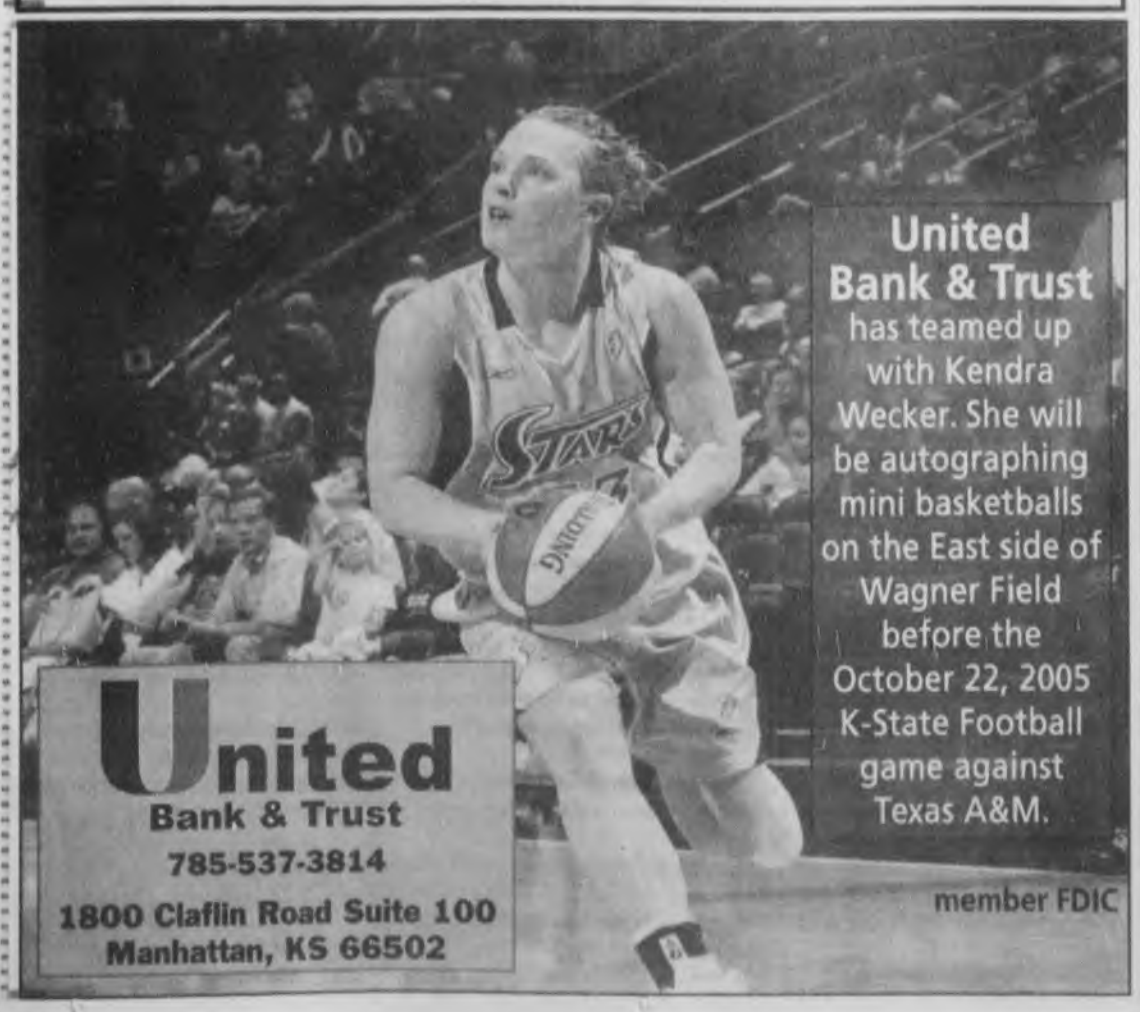
According to the data presented to the board, the development project will also create a substantial number of jobs, estimated at a range between 818 and 1,532. In an effort to be conservative with the job creation, the city has estimated half of the 818 jobs will consist of employees with families.

It is also estimated 67 percent of the new employees will reside within the Manhattan area, and that each household consists of 2.51 persons. Based on census data, about 13 percent, or 45 of these citizens, will be school-aged children, who will possibly attend USD 383.

However, this projection could be optimistic, as many of the jobs that will be provided will be ideal part-time jobs for students, Knopp said.

Coors Lt. 12pk $7.99
Miller Lt. 20pk $11.99
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor

SABHA Presents;
FREE Kathak
Dance Concert
Indian Classical Dance Form
with intricate moves, exhilarating footwork and live music.
Friday, October 21st, 2005
6:30p.m. Little Theater
Sponsored by SGA & UPC



KSU THEATRE PRESENTS:
DAVID MAMET'S
OLEANNA
WHATEVER SIDE YOU TAKE, YOU'RE WRONG
October 13-15 and 19-22
8:00 p.m. Nichols Theatre
Tkts: McCain Box Office
Noon to 5:00 p.m. Phone: 532-6428
$11.50 General & $7.50 Student/Senior
* Contains Mature Situations captivate

THIS IS Dillard's
Town Center

The Collegian is available at
112 locations near you.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
532-6560

www.kstatecollegian.com

United Bank & Trust has teamed up with Kendra Wecker. She will be autographing mini basketballs on the East side of Wagner Field before the October 22, 2005 K-State Football game against Texas A&M.
United Bank & Trust
785-537-3814
1800 Claflin Road Suite 100
Manhattan, KS 66502
member FDIC

OVER STOCKED SALE
Beer Guys Delivered Too Much Beer
Our Loss Your Gain!

PBR Light Suit Cases	$7.99
Miller High Life 30 Pack Cans	$10.85
Natural Light 30 Pack Cans	$10.99
Bud and Bud Light 30 Pack Cans	$14.99
Celebrate Our Win With Andre Champagne 750 ML (Save $1)	$2.99

Quantity Discounts Available - While Quantities Last
Check out Web Specials at www.537wine.biz

On Sale This Week
Barton, Viaka, Nova Vodka 1.75L $8.99 Save $1.00

Everyday Low Prices

Yellow Tail 1.5 L	$10.99	Yellow Tail 750 ML	$5.99
Mondavi 1.5 L	$11.99	Kendal Jackson Chard	$11.99
Columbia Crest 1.5 L	$12.99	Hogue LH Resling	$9.99
Clos Du Bois 1.5 L	$17.99	Marco Negri	$14.99
Cavit 1.5 L	$11.99	Toasted Head Chard	$12.99
Bolla 1.5 L	$12.99	Relax Resling	$7.49

Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child - Next to Home Depot 537-9463
For more info Go to www.537wine.biz

OPINION

TO THE POINT

Financial compensation not enough

Manhattan's downtown redevelopment project might seem like a great idea, with the glitz and glam of trendier businesses and a bigger city. But some people are about to experience the shorter end of the bargain, especially those who may have to relocate.

The City Commission and contractors addressed the downtown redevelopment at the Oct. 11 commission meeting, offering the residents compensation for the move.

The residents of Garcia Quaintance Apartments, however, deserve more than the affirmation and financial compensation the City Commission offered them in the meeting last week.

Money cannot compensate for what they will lose.

The redevelopment plans put non-handicapped people at the advantage.

Non-handicapped people can drive to work, whereas these seven people don't have decent means to travel and commute to their place of employment.

When these people do move in the next 10 months, the city needs to open up their hearts and not compare them to people who are capable of this significant change.

These people have a voice, and now, more than ever, they need the city to come together and do something that will give them a chance to survive.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF | Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR | Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF | Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR | Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR | Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR | Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR | Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR | Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH | Brad Simmons AD MANAGER | Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Right to protest

Toledo citizens wrong for causing riot during neo-Nazi rally

Disheartening news from Toledo, Ohio, filled the air on Saturday after a riot broke out when a group of narrow-minded bigots began marching in support of the National Socialist Movement or "America's Nazi Party".

The citizens of Toledo outraged that their local government would support a hate group in their integrated community, began throwing rocks at the neo-Nazis and then at the police protecting them.

Their actions were an embarrassment to the vast majority of people who oppose these imbeciles. Even without the violent reply to the childish name-calling tactics of the white supremacists, the citizens of Toledo were still in the wrong. The neo-Nazis have a right to protest.

This city could have copied our neighbors to the north, Nebraska. In 1999, when a similar situation occurred, nobody came. The few supremacists who showed their faces were nearly outnumbered by reporters. Their voices went unheard, and they failed to get the reaction they strived for.

ZACHARY T. ECKELS

With only about two dozen neo-Nazis showing up in Toledo a counter rally a few miles away could have easily, and peacefully, outnumbered them.

Instead the citizens chose to do exactly what the hate group wanted. The neo-Nazis not only received national attention, but they now hold their arrogant heads in the air, believing they just proved a point to America. Their idiotic cries that white people are suffering from black gang violence have been heard by a whole nation.

Luckily, according to www.adl.org, the number of dunderheads in America's Nazi Party only ranges between 100 and 200 members. They pose no real threat at this time and spend their lives making asses out of themselves. Why should we let such an insignificant group of people change how we view our freedom of speech?

I, for one, am proud that our nation is one of the few that hasn't tried to take away freedoms in order to prevent hate speech. The idea of accepting laws comparable to Canada's sends a chill up my spine.

Imagine if you had to bite your tongue when talking about any group "distinguished by color, race, religion or ethnic origin" as Canada's law declares. Now think about how many people could be in jail for Muslim statements made after the inappropriate link was made between them and Sept. 11. Even though it would be great for these sayings to cease, I know of no prison that could hold every person I've heard make a reference to Muslims.

Consider the great philosophers of past who might have been stopped due to some degree of hate in their works. From Malcolm X to Karl Marx to nearly all of America's founders. Would we really want all of this to disappear in order to ignore the fact that some people still hate based on skin color or religion?

I've always hoped someday everyone will learn to love each other for who they are. It's an impossible dream to attain in this life, but trying to force it into reality is only going to make matters worse. Instead we all need to take a lesson from Nebraska and remember: when you don't agree with what other people have to say, there is always a more intelligent alternative to violence.

Zachary T. Eckels is a junior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Kent Holle | COLLEGIAN

Group infringing on smoker's rights

No one likes smokers.

They smell all stale and smoky, like Satan might smell if he were a smoker, and, what with all the tar they inhale, their souls are as black as Nancy Drew's, who, let's just say, has a few "skeletons" in her closet – the Hardy Boys' skeletons, that is.

GRANT REICHERT

But this isn't about smokers (or Nancy Drew). This is about a SCAM to restrict freedom. SCAM, as in "Students for Clean Air Manhattan," a group circulating a petition to ban smoking in private establishments, which, disingenuously, they constantly refer to as "public."

I don't know whether they don't understand the public/private distinction, or if they just go socialist and deny it altogether. And, yes, they're really called SCAM. I wish I could've been at the meeting where they came up with that – but only because I'm pretty sure I could've scored some pot.

Seriously, what would they have to do to get you to not sign the petition – dress as Vincent Price and play screeching violin music whenever you approach? Enter your dreams and attempt to kill you as you sleep? Steal Christmas? Threaten to restrict your freedoms? Wait, that is what they're doing.

Freedom means letting owners run their private establishments as they want – if customers dislike smoking, they can exercise their freedoms and leave. But, SCAMmers say "public health" is more important than freedom. According to their flyer – which has "SCAM" reassuringly emblazoned across the top – exposure to secondhand smoke is like "dusting ourselves with dioxin, mustard gas and asbestos."

So I did a controlled experiment. First I subjected myself to secondhand smoke. Results: watery eyes, scratchy throat, persistent, recurring hatred for smokers.

Then, I dusted myself in dioxin, mustard gas and asbestos. Result: severe skin lesions, pulmonary edema, large tumors and persistent, recurring death – which totally sucked.

But, if SCAMmers are truly concerned about health, they'd go after alcohol, which causes more deaths than secondhand smoke. Also, as Radley Balko of the Cato Institute notes, you can choose not to subject yourself to secondhand smoke, but you can't choose not to get hit by a drunk driver.

SCAMmers say allowing smoking discriminates against people with respiratory problems, because they can't enter smoking establishments. Yeah, and roller coasters discriminate against people with heart conditions. If life is dulled to conform to every Bubble Boy out there, it would be about as exciting as a shrink-wrapped salmon, and half as free.

This whole SCAM is an example of "liberal creep" – not meant here to refer to Sen. Ted Kennedy chatting up a young intern after a few highballs. Rather, LC is the tendency of initially benign liberal ideas to creep, and snowball, out of control. Today we end racial intolerance, tomorrow lactose intolerance.

The SCAMmers make an LC argument, saying, since businesses are already regulated, that justifies further regulation. What perverse reasoning, using existing infringements on freedom to justify further ones. If existing regulations justify smoking regulations, then what will smoking regulations justify?

This is a road with no end, save serfdom.

It's an enthusiastic embrace of the slippery slope. Indeed, in New York, where a smoking ban was instituted, there's already a movement afoot to ban trans fats, which would alter the way food tastes, all for "public health."

Don't support "public health" fascism. It doesn't take a Nancy Drew to figure out that "The SCAM of the Missing Freedoms" is not a book we want to act out.

Grant Reichert is a junior in political science. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

My jeans have holes and rips in them for a reason. I live on a farm and know how to work, instead of buying them like that. Yeah, I'm talking to you, sorority girls.

I hate the smell of leaf death.

I'm a real live boy. Woohoo.

In class today, the professor talked about vaginas with teeth and how they eat people. Awkward.

I have four and a half hours of assorted rock music. So, I guess that means I could start a radio station around here.

Why don't you go tackle a tree?

Where have all the good girls gone? Seriously there are no decent girls on campus. If you can disprove this, make a post.

To the girl in my engineering honors seminar class that got hit with the love note. I was not the one that threw it at you. It was from the girl sitting directly behind me.

My initials backwards are STD.

I'm getting jealous. I want to make out in SafeRide.

I'm good at writing papers and such. It's just talking that I have trouble with.

My roommate and I were just sitting in the room one time and all of the sudden we realized how awesome we are.

Kody Cooper you are one funny S.O.B. You and I need to hit the 'Ville, drink some beer and do some good, old fashion liberal-bashing till the wee hours of the morning. I'm buying.

Kody, I don't think I'd be mentioning hypocrisy if I were an American conservative.

I didn't hear it beep. I didn't hear it beep. I didn't hear it beep.

It beeped that time. The Fourum sucks this year because there's no talk about how bad dorm rats are and how sweet greek life is.

This is the K-State Collegian Campus Fourum, what do you have to say?

I say, my feet bleed.

My professor just farted in class. What do I do?

I used to doubt the existence of God, but then I saw a lesbian porn, and I've been a devout Christian ever since.

To the girl standing outside Eisenhower today, try shaking your hand at the tree a little harder next time, and maybe the acorns will stop falling.

Jonas Hogg, still a tool.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Tasty?

Photo illustration by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Odd combinations are treats for some students

By Holly Kramer
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Food preferences can be as individual as one's own fingerprint, but there are always a few people who take it one step further.

These are the people who could clear out a cafeteria in one fell swoop while they eat their culinary concoctions.

These are the people who get stared at incredulously when they come up with random and offensive condiments to flavor their lunches with.

These people have a taste reserved for truly unique and weird food.

"I love to eat artichoke hearts straight out of the jar," said Felisa Osburn, library assistant at Hale Library. "I also used to love mayo, cheese and pickle sandwiches."

Some people prefer more exotic cuisines.

"I had this appetizer called 'Alligator Voodoo' in Detroit," Dan Ireton, Manhattan resident, said. "It was fried alligator meat. It tasted like chicken but was a bit tougher. I liked it."

Students on a budget sometimes must think of creative choices when it comes to food, but a few go above and beyond Ramen noodles or macaroni and cheese.

"I like to eat pancakes with peanut butter and syrup," Ashley Hager, sophomore in open option, said. "My brother likes it, too. I don't really think it's that weird."

Many people said they had a penchant for brussels sprouts, artichoke hearts and lima beans.

"Once I tried peanut butter on a pickle because I heard it was supposed to be good," Nikki Peters, junior in elementary education, said. "It wasn't the best thing in the world to eat, but it was pretty good."

Simple, meaty chili a good way to heat up cold nights

Add spice with jalapenos, onions

By Kelly Schmitt
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The days are getting shorter and the nights are getting cooler. It's a good time of year to be thinking about warm, comforting foods. One of those foods is a meaty chili.

This chili is a mild recipe, but that's not to stop those who desire some extra spice from adding a few ingredients.

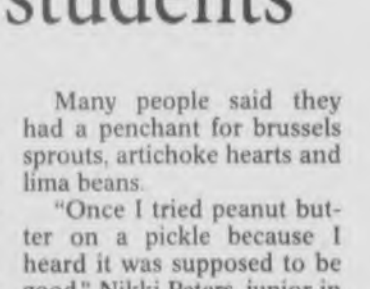
Chopped onions and jalapeno peppers, as well as chipotle seasoning and Tabasco sauce, can be added in the cooking process to kick the heat up a notch or two.

This is a very simple recipe, involving ground beef, canned beans and vegetable juice. The beans listed are navy, chili and pork and beans, which are all smaller beans. For a change in texture, kidney beans can be substituted for the navy beans.

A milder flavor can be achieved when tomato juice is substituted for vegetable juice, which tends to be spicy.

Leftover chili can be utilized in many ways. Reheat with shredded cheese and serve with tortilla chips for a great chili dip. Pour chili, cheese and sour cream over a baked potato for an easy lunch. Even hot dogs are good with chili and cheese on top.

Quick and easy recipe



Chili

2 pounds ground beef
2 cans pork and beans
2 cans navy beans
2 cans chili beans
1 large can vegetable juice
1 packet chili seasoning

In a large pan, brown ground beef on stove top. Mix in chili seasoning. Add all three kinds of beans and vegetable juice. Heat until boiling.

To add some hot flavoring to this chili, add two or three finely chopped jalapeno peppers while browning the ground beef.

Store leftovers in the refrigerator.

Courtesy art

HOROSCOPES

Aquarius (Jan. 21 - Feb. 18)
A hive of naked mole rats will move in with you today. You will find that they are relatively tidy creatures, but it's a trifle difficult to explain their presence to your friends.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
A huge spacecraft will hover over your dwelling structure today and secretly analyze you down to the last parasitic microbe in your epidermal layers. They will be on the point of making contact with humans, and offering us technology to cure all illness, let us live indefinitely while looking like healthy 20-year-olds, and give us the ability to travel interstellar distances in an eyeblink ... when they spot you making something with Spam. After a bit of horrified bleeping at each other, they will zoom off, never to return.

Aries (March 21 - April 19)
Hmm. Hard to read this one. The carrot stopped right between "kidnapped and tortured" and "wins the lottery." Probably a little of both, I'd guess.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)
Today you will discover that you are capable of "channeling," when you start spouting ancient Sumerian curses at a short little dweeb who cuts you off in traffic. You will start taking notes in cuneiform.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Good time to remember that in the beginning was the word. And the word was "Aardvark."

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)
Avoid alternative music today. Also, try to find what's making that nasty smell in the fridge before it gets worse.

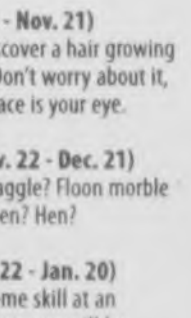
Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22)
Everyone who drives by today will stick their head out their car window, give you a big dopey look, and flop their tongue around in the wind. If you had known this was "act like a dog" day, you might have been better prepared.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
Your incisors will seem to be getting longer today, and you will find sunlight hurts your eyes. Probably just a cold and nothing to worry about.

Libra (Sept. 22 - Oct. 22)
You will find a many-legged creature under the fridge. Unfortunately, it will be the size of a small horse, and actually will be making off with the fridge when you spot it. My advice? Let him have it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
Today you will discover a hair growing in an odd place. Don't worry about it, unless the odd place is your eye.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
Poit twoonie squaggle? Floon morble tid bubbu taha, hen? Hen?



Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20)
Due to your supreme skill at an obscure video game, you will be abducted by aliens, and asked to save their race from annihilation at the hands (roughly speaking) of evil creatures from between the stars.

Source: www.humorscope.com

BILLBOARD CHARTS

Top 20 Singles:

1. Kanye West, "Gold Digger"
2. Nickelback, "Photograph"
3. Mariah Carey, "Shake It Off"
4. Black Eyed Peas, "My Humps"
5. Bow Wow, "Like You"
6. Green Day, "Wake Me Up When September Ends"
7. Young Jeezy, "Soul Survivor"
8. Chris Brown, "Run It"
9. Kelly Clarkson, "Because of You"
10. David Banner, "Play"
11. Fall Out Boy, "Sugar, We're Goin Down"
12. Mariah Carey, "We Belong Together"
13. Pretty Ricky, "Your Body"
14. Weezer, "Beverly Hills"
15. Sean Paul, "We Be Burnin'"
16. Lifehouse, "You and Me"
17. Missy Elliott, "Lose Control"
18. Gorillaz, "Feel Good Inc."
19. The Pussycat Dolls featuring Busta Rhymes, "Don't Cha"
20. Kelly Clarkson, "Behind These Hazel Eyes"

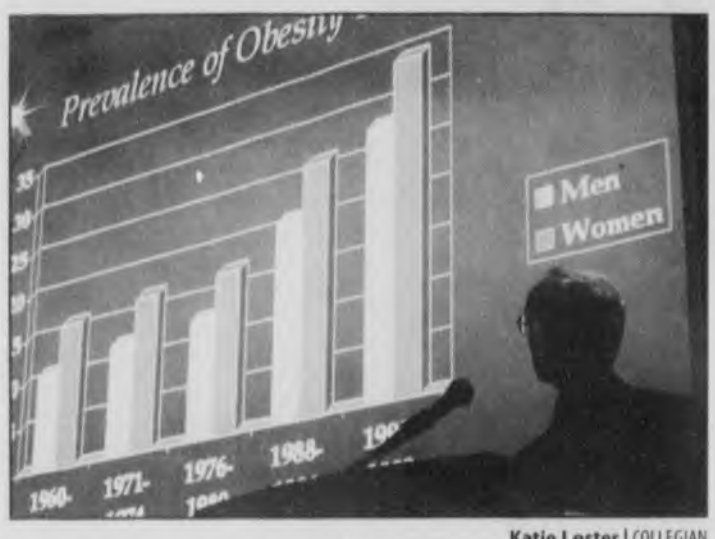
West

Professor lectures on obesity

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sixty-five percent to 70 percent of U.S. adults are overweight or obese, Jack Wilmore, retired Texas A&M University professor, told K-State students and faculty in a lecture Wednesday afternoon.

Wilmore's lecture, "Confronting the Obesity Epidemic: Exercise and Nutrition versus Drugs," touched on the kinds of weight loss that can be expected with diet, exercise and behavior modification and compared those results to the results seen from using diet drugs.



"Drugs really aren't the answer," he said.

Wilmore discussed obesity's prevalence in both adults and children. The rate of obesity in children has increased from four percent to 16 percent in the last 20 years, he said.

"This talk was very timely," Tom Barstow, professor of kinesiology, said.

Kelcii Peck, undergraduate student in nutrition and exercise science, and Heather Martin, freshman in kinesiology, attended the lecture for extra credit in a kinesiology class.

"He helped us realize how much we've grown in obesity in the last 40 years," Peck said.

Katie Lester | COLLEGIAN
Jack H. Wilmore, retired Texas A&M distinguished professor of Health and Kinesiology, gives a presentation entitled, "Confronting the Obesity Epidemic: Exercise and Nutrition versus Drugs," Wednesday at the K-State Alumni Center.

"It's really skyrocketed."

Martin said Wilmore also addressed the health risks of obesity, including cancer, high blood pressure, diabetes, heart disease and osteoporosis.

After his speech, Wilmore allowed the audience to participate in a question and answer session.

Wilmore will speak today and Friday at the Central States American College of Sports Medicine conference in Kansas City, Mo.

For the past four years, the Department of Kinesiology has brought the conference's speaker to Manhattan, Barstow said.

Wilmore was the head of the Department of Health and Kinesiology at Texas A&M. He served as the president of the American College of Sports Medicine in 1978-79. He said he has studied obesity for 35-40 years.

Literary works read at arts center

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Free food and an open bar were set for all who would hear the work of area scribes Wednesday night at the Manhattan Arts Center. The Red Inklings performed for more than a dozen people at their fifth annual literary and culinary event. Performing last night were Tess Purvis, Victoria L'Ecuyer and Gwen Owens-Wilson.

"Very varied," Penny Senften, director of the arts center, said of the troupe's work. "Just in terms of genre alone, they cover everything I can think of."

The name comes from a group of writers, including J.R.R. Tolkien and C.S. Lewis, who met from the 1930s to 1950s to read their work to each other.

"Since we use red ink to mark up each other's papers, we thought 'The Red Inklings.'" L'Ecuyer said. She said the group has existed for seven years.

The writers cooked enough food to cover a large folding table and had several choices of beverages for their audience. No one was charged any money, but donations were suggested.

Purvis, a substitute teacher, went first. She read two excerpts from "Clairvoyage," the third piece in a trilogy of works about three cousins with psychic powers. She said she used to write science fiction, but has changed after a conversation with other writers told her what she was really trying to write.

"I was told I wasn't writing science fiction, there was too much kissing," she said. "I was writing paranormal romance."

Owens-Wilson, associate professor of interior architecture and product design, read two chapters from "Willie Annamarie George and the One Way Gate." The story follows 11-year-old Willie through a gate to a different world, she said, and she cannot return. She said part of the story's goal is to empower young women.

"Part of it is a role model for girls who don't go, 'Oh help me, help me,'" Owens-Wilson said.

William Cook, who lives between Manhattan and Wamego, Kan., said he liked "Willie" the most.

"The premise of a little kid being in a spaceport, it just seems interesting," he said.

The Red Inklings meet at 6:30 on the first and third Wednesdays of every month in the Manhattan Arts Center Annex at 1520 Poyntz Ave.

L'Ecuyer said the group is very open to anyone wanting to become a member.

Female students express self-esteem with chalk

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The phrases "I love my curvy hips" and "I love my eyes" were scrawled in bright green and pink chalk south of Cardwell Hall on Wednesday.

Wednesday was Love Your Body Day 2005, and Ordinary Women decided to celebrate the day by writing down what they loved about themselves.

Under the brightly colored phrase "Love Your Body," the members of Ordinary Women encouraged people to write something they loved about their bodies.

Amanda Bareiss, graduate student in business administration, said the day was about promoting a healthy body image for men and women, but especially targeting women and allowing them an opportunity to speak out about the stress placed on them by society's ideal images.

"Our goal for today is to give women an opportunity and the space to value their bodies and themselves," Bareiss said.

Kathleen Walker, sophomore in food science, said the day was a time of fun designed to help people understand the importance of accepting themselves for who they are.

"We want people to realize you can love your body as opposed to conforming to society's values," Walker said.

Walker, a member of Ordinary Women, said she enjoys the group's ideas and beliefs of how women should be viewed.

"Not every woman fits the image you see in magazines," Walker said.

Bareiss said the group has celebrated "Love Your Body" day with a table and pamphlets about nutrition and positive images in the K-State Student Union in the past, but this year they wanted to add something more tangible.

"We wanted people to participate," Walker said.

Society may idealize a specific body type, but Bareiss said seeing beauty in all body types, sizes and ethnicities is vital.

"It's important to realize the American ideal of beauty as being thin and young is very whitewashed," she said.

Lizet Prieto, senior in apparel textiles, said accepting one's self has to happen before others will do the same.

"Because if you don't love yourself, who's going to love you?" Prieto said. "You have to be the first one to notice it."

Tiffany Hands, freshman in communication sciences and disorders, laughed as she wrote "I love my hands" with bright pink chalk.

When asked why she thought it was important to love one's body, Hands said, "Because God gave it to us, and we should use it as he wants us to."

Ordinary Women will have a table in the Union for the rest of the week with pamphlets and literature about body image, provided with the help of the organization Sensible Nutrition and Body Image Choices.

"We're not perfect, but we're beautiful," Walker said.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
To raise body appreciation, Kathleen Walker, sophomore in food science, writes that she loves her teeth on sidewalks between Willard Hall and Hale Library on Wednesday afternoon.

Once in a Lifetime —Everyone's doing it.
engagements and weddings
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

kstatecollegian.com

Don't look GHOSTLY this year on Halloween!
Tan till '06 for only $96
Halloween Giveaway
For every $25 you spend, you're entered into a drawing to win $200 worth of lotion and tanning.
Xtreme tanning
539-3742
1122 Laramie
Aggieville Handicorner

Do yourself a favor, Buy her some flowers.
The prettiest, most FRESH FLOWERS in town [if we do say so ourselves]
Call for Delivery 785.539.8808
ACMEGIFT
1227 Moro, Aggieville

50¢ Tacos (hard & soft)
$3 Red Bull & Vodka and Jager Bombs
$1.50 any pint
$3 any sandwich & chip 11 - 2
Monday
Pimps & Hoes
Halloween Bash
100 Free T's Halloween Night
706 N. Manhattan Ave
Parker's
537-7151

Racquet Stringing
All types of Racquets
State of the Art Electric Stringer
Cottonwood Racquet Club
3615 Claflin Rd • 776-6060

BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
Spend $25 and get a free T-shirt
Hours: Sun. - Wed., 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
Free Delivery 537-0886 Fax: 539-9111

HAPPY HALLOWEEN!
Shakin' Up Halloween!
Shake's Frozen Custard
Limited time only: try our Pumpkin Custard
Try our new shake-a-ccinos
Serving Waffle cones Fresh Daily
104.7 special every Monday $1.04 cups and cones
10% OFF WITH K-STATE ID
$1 OFF WITH THIS AD
5th & Ft. Riley Blvd.

Happy Newt-a-ween!
$5 OFF Your First Visit
Bark Avenue Canine Designs

Relieve stress with a MASSAGE
from TRESH $40 reg. $50
1 HOUR MASSAGE
CALL TODAY FOR AN APPOINTMENT WITH TRESH
776-5632
GALLERY
Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Candlewood Shopping Center · 3266 Kimball Ave.

2 inmates escape prison

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WELLINGTON, Kan. – Authorities from Kansas and Oklahoma continued their search Wednesday for two men who escaped from an Oklahoma prison during the weekend.

On Tuesday, the escapees were reported seen at a convenience store and restaurant just east of Arkansas City, Kan. But on Wednesday, Capt. Mark Conboy of the Kansas Highway Patrol said there had been no further reports of the fugitives being sighted or of any vehicles stolen in the area where the search was being concentrated.

A break-in was reported late Tuesday night at a Kansas Department of Transportation building, but officials had not determined if the fugitives might have been responsible for it.

Convicted killer Aaron Olsen, 39, and convicted rapist Pharon Johnson, 49, escaped Sunday from the Joseph Harp Correctional Center in Lexington. Police said they kidnapped a woman in the prison parking lot and took her away in her van before leaving her in a ditch in Oklahoma City.

The van was found Tuesday on Interstate 35 about four miles north of the Oklahoma border, near South Haven, Kan.

Conboy said authorities were going house to house and farm to farm looking for any sign of the fugitives. The searchers included officials from the Oklahoma Highway Patrol and Department of Corrections, as well as Kansas troopers and sheriff's deputies.

Conboy said authorities were investigating the break-in at the transportation department building near the Wellington exit on the Kansas Turnpike, about 15 miles north of where the stolen van was found. Glass had been broken to gain admittance, and food was taken.

"It's obvious they had been in the refrigerator, because there was a spill and some meat and a sandwich were missing," Conboy said. "It looks like they probably got out in a hurry."

Conboy said the intrusion set off an alarm at the turnpike office in Wichita, and there was an audible alarm at the building.

Wagon train

From right, Ryan Ward and Mikaela Penabaz sit in a wagon while being pulled across the K-State campus by Becky Lehrman, senior in early childhood education, Oct. 13.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Saddam argues with judge before trial, pleads innocent to charges

By Hamza Hendawi
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAGHDAD, Iraq – A defiant Saddam Hussein pleaded innocent to charges of murder and torture as his long-awaited trial began Wednesday with the one-time dictator arguing about the legitimacy of the court and scuffling with guards.

The first session of the trial lasted about three hours, and the judge ordered an adjournment until Nov. 28.

Saddam and his seven co-defendants could face the death penalty if convicted for the 1982 massacre of 148 Shiites in the town of Dujail, Iraq. They are being tried in the former headquarters of Saddam's Baath Party.

After presiding judge Rizgar Mohammed Amin, a Kurd, read the defendants their rights and the charges against them, which also include forced expulsions and illegal imprisonment, he asked each for their plea. He started with the 68-year-old ousted dictator, saying, "Mr. Saddam, go ahead. Are you guilty or innocent?"

Saddam, holding a copy of the Quran he brought with him into the session and held throughout, replied quietly, "I said what I said. I am not guilty," referring to his arguments earlier in the session.

Amin read out the plea, "Innocent."

The confrontation then became physical. When a break was called, Saddam stood, smiling, and asked to step out of the room. When two guards tried to grab his arms to escort him out, he angrily shook them off.

They tried to grab him again, and Saddam struggled to free himself. Saddam and the guards shoved each other and yelled for about a minute.

It ended with Saddam walking independently, with the two guards behind him, out of the room for the break.

Many Iraqis and others across the Middle East were glued to their television sets to watch the first-ever criminal trial of an Arab leader.

The proceedings were aired with about a 20-minute delay on state-run Iraqi television and on satellite stations across Iraq and the Arab world. However, technical quality was poor, with the sound cutting out frequently and the picture going blank several times.

But a too-busy President Bush did not watch, even as the White House hailed the trial as a key step in Iraq's transition to a functioning democracy.

"Saddam Hussein is facing Iraqi justice," White House spokesman Scott McClellan said. "The trial is a symbol that the rule of law is returning to Iraq. We hope this trial will help bring some closure for the Iraqi people to their country's dark past."

The Dujail trial is the first of about a dozen cases prosecutors intend to bring against Saddam and members of his inner circle in an attempt to hold them accountable for a 23-year regime that saw tens of thousands of Iraqis killed and imprisoned.

Other cases likely will tackle his regime's Anfal Offensive that killed 180,000 Kurds, a poison gas attack on Halabja that killed 5,000 and a crackdown on rebellious Shiites and Kurds in 1991.

The five-judge panel will both hear the case and render a verdict. The identities of the judges have been a tightly held secret to ensure their safety, though Amin's name was revealed just before the trial began. The courtroom camera repeatedly focused on him, without showing the others.

At the trial's opening, Saddam, looking thin with a salt-and-pepper beard and wearing a dark gray suit and open-collared white shirt, stood and asked the presiding judge: "Who are you? I want to know who you are."

"I do not respond to this so-called court, with all due respect to its people, and I retain my constitutional right as the president of Iraq," he said, brushing off Amin's attempts to interrupt him. "Neither do I recognize the body that has designated and authorized you, nor the aggression because all that has been built on false basis is false."

Amin tried to get Saddam to formally identify himself but Saddam refused and finally sat. Amin read his name for him, calling him the "former president of Iraq," bringing a protest from Saddam, who insisted he was still in the post.

-Associated Press reporters Mariam Fam, Omar Sinan, Qassim Abdul-Zahra, Sameer N. Yacoub and Thomas Wagner contributed to this report.

2 more Barton County coaches indicted for perjury

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WICHITA – The track coach and a former assistant basketball coach at Barton County Community College were indicted Wednesday as part of an investigation into the school's athletic program.

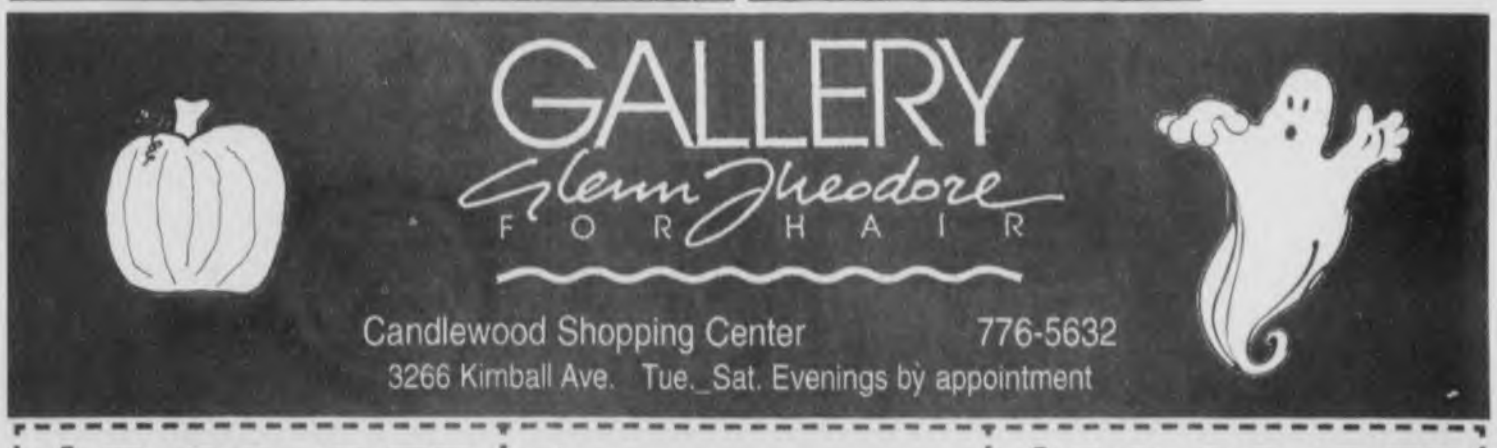
Track coach Lyles Lashley and former assistant basketball coach Shane Hawkins became the fourth and fifth sports officials from the school to be indicted during the investigation, U.S. Attorney Eric Melgren said.

Both men were charged with lying to a federal grand jury. That is the only charge against Hawkins, currently of Centerville, Ill.

Lashley also is charged with one count of embezzlement with student assistance programs, one count of theft from a program receiving federal funds, and four counts of mail fraud. Other former Barton County officials who have been indicted are former basketball coach Ryan Wolf; former basketball coach Dave Campbell; and former assistant basketball coach Matt Skillman.

Skillman has pleaded guilty to embezzlement charges. Wolf and Campbell are awaiting trial.

Prosecutors said the men helped basketball players get government-funded campus jobs and compensation for work they never did.



The investigation also led to the firing of former school President, Veldon Law.

Columnist takes on Wildcat golfers

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

With golf becoming such a popular sport these days with the help of a person by the name of Tiger Woods, I decided to try my luck on a golf course.

Four years ago, I bought a set of clubs from a friend who was nice enough to sell them to me cheap, because I did not, and still do not, have a lot of money.

Come to think of it, I don't recall ever paying him all the money I owe. Sorry Kyle.

Thanks for the clubs though, I really appreciate it.

I've been playing golf since my junior year of high school, and I was good enough to letter on the golf team my senior year.

I feel like I make improvements in my game every time I tee it up.

I have a golf coach now who lived in my dorm last year, and he has helped me become a more consistent player.

My iron play has become more accurate, and I feel more comfortable each time I approach the ball.

I have improved so much that I figured I would try and see how I could fare against some of the best K-State had to offer.

Last Saturday, I played the back nine at Colbert Hills Golf Course with three members of the K-State golf team.

Senior Ben Kern, freshmen Joe Kinney and Robert Streb allowed me the pleasure of playing a few holes with them.

I had never played at Colbert before, so I went into the round knowing these guys would smoke me, especially considering they play the course almost every day.

To my surprise, I actually held my own on a few holes.

I miraculously out-drove all of them on three of the nine holes.

I should probably mention the tees I played from were about 20 yards closer to the hole then theirs, but I was still pleased because my ball was actually going straight and far, which doesn't usually happen.

I'm also happy to say I scrambled well and made a few pars.

The highlight of the day came on the par-4 18th, when I made an incredible putt for par.

The sun set on an eventful day, and it was becoming more difficult to locate the golf balls due to darkness.

I put my tee shot in a bunker and couldn't reach the green with my second shot. I had about 30 yards to the green with a bunker between me and the green. I did the best I could, and chipped onto the green, leaving me with a 40-footer for par.

With my putt, I was just trying to lag the ball close to the hole to give myself a chance at a two-putt bogey.

After I hit the putt, I looked away because the ball appeared as if it was going to miss to the right, then I heard Kinney say, "Do it. Get in there."

I looked up and watched my ball as it broke back toward the hole. It hit the cup dead center and dropped for the par.

Of course, I threw my hands in the air to celebrate this achievement; that's just the way I am.

That putt falling in the hole was an appropriate ending to a fun day with some cool guys.

Being able to play with Kern, Streb and Kinney was a delight, and I consider myself lucky to have had the chance to observe their individual talents in person.

I plan on working hard on my game, so one day I will be able to hang with these guys for 18 holes.

Wishful thinking? We'll see.

Cedrique Flemming is a junior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Seeing red

No. 1 Nebraska sweeps K-State to remain undefeated

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

There's a reason the Nebraska volleyball team is the No. 1 team in the country.

On Wednesday night at Ahearn Field House, in front of a season-high crowd of 3,107, the Huskers lived up to their reputation, dropping K-State 3-0 (30-20, 30-17, 30-18).

"They're very deserving of the best team in the country," coach Suzie Fritz said. "Maybe one of the best teams I've ever seen. They have no weaknesses, in my opinion."

Nebraska (19-0, 10-0 Big 12) had six players hit above .300 Wednesday night for a team percentage of .422. The Huskers also combined for 56 set assists and 54 defensive digs.

"They are really good team," said senior Agata Rezende, who paced the Cats with 13 kills. "They are very talented and very physical. They are just perfect."

While the Wildcats (15-5, 6-4) might not be perfect, sophomore setter Stacey Spiegelberg said she was impressed with her team's performance.

"I thought we improved this game from the last couple of games we've played," Spiegelberg said. "We were stronger overall, and I think we came out fired up and did everything better."

Fritz agreed, and said she was pleased with the Wildcats' lack of unforced attacking errors and ability to touch balls. The Huskers took control of the net, but with nine girls over 6-feet tall and one at 6-foot-5 in Sarah Pavan, that's not a surprise, Fritz said.

"You look across the net at a 6-5 girl, and she's pretty intimidating," Spiegelberg said. "We just have to learn to play with that."

Games one and two were nearly identical, with the Cats showing a renewed intensity in the beginning of both games.

In game one, there were multiple lead changes and six ties. Game two showed four ties and two lead changes.

K-State hung close throughout both games until halfway, when the Huskers went on unstoppable runs, pulling out of the Cats' reach.

Game three, on the other hand, was Nebraska's game from the start.

K-State never led and once the Huskers extended a 7-4 lead to 12-4, the Cats never came within five again.

"We started out slow in game three, and I don't really know why that happened," Spiegelberg said. "We needed to come out with fire, and we didn't."

Still, the team left Ahearn Wednesday night in good spirits, Rezende said.

"It's always good to play somebody better than you, so you can get a better look at your weaknesses," Rezende said.

And it's always good to play in front of a big crowd, Spiegelberg said.

"The crowd was awesome," Spiegelberg said. "It was really fun to play with all our fans and see the purple out there. It definitely helped us get fired up for the game."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Senior outside hitter Agata Rezende swings for one of her 13 kills during the third game against Nebraska Wednesday night at Ahearn Field House. The Wildcats lost to the Huskers 3-0.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Junior outside hitter Jamie Perkins dives for a ball Wednesday night during the Wildcats' loss to Nebraska. K-State's next match is at 7 p.m. Saturday at Texas.

230 participate in intramural volleyball

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The whistle blew, the ball was served, and with that, the intramural volleyball season was underway.

During the second half of the fall semester, team volleyball is the feature sport in intramurals, John Wondra, assistant director of intramurals, said.

"We get a large turnout for women," Wondra said. "That is probably because a lot of the girls played in high school. Volleyball doesn't require as much physical exertion as most of the other sports we offer, so that makes it more popular."

The games began Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

Matches are scheduled for the next five weeks and will be played every Sunday through Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

This season, there are more than 230 teams participating in five different divisions. These divisions include fraternity, independent, residence hall, women and corec.

Matches are played in a relatively standard format with six players on each team and a rally scoring system, meaning a team can score points without serving. Teams with a .500 record or better at the end of division play will advance to the single-elimination tournament beginning in December.

Liz Wolf, freshman in agricultural communications and journalism, and member of the "Small Town All-Stars," said she enjoys the fact that volleyball is so popular at K-State.

"Volleyball is my all-time favorite sport," Wolf said. "It's a great feeling when you get to hit it hard on a spike or when you get a good block on someone."

Intramural volleyball at K-State serves to unite people who at one time played with or against each other in high school.

In fact, Wolf and teammate Cierra Elder, sophomore in microbiology, said they knew most of their teammates from high school.

When asked how intramural volleyball compared to their experiences playing in high school, most players agreed they enjoyed intramurals just as much.

"It's very competitive here," Elder said. "In high school, there were a lot of rules that slow the game down. Here you just play, so the pace of the game is faster."

At least part of the credit for the popularity of volleyball on campus is certainly due to the success the women's volleyball team has had so far this season.

"I think schools with worse programs probably don't see as much participation in their intramural programs," Wolf said.

Gabby Guerre, senior in mechanical engineering, said she has had a great time watching K-State's varsity team play.

"The team is so good," she said. "I have loved going to see them play this season."

Guerre said it was obvious to her students enjoy themselves while playing volleyball.

"Volleyball is a very fun, energetic sport," Guerre said. "I think the players relate to that. It doesn't matter how skilled you are. You can have a good time playing volleyball."

Team No Name member Riley Yadon, senior in accounting, tips the ball back over the net during an intramural volleyball game Wednesday night at Peters Recreation Complex.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

CFB | Former K-State football coach dead at 95

HESSTON, Kan. — Ralph M. Graham, who coached football at both K-State and Wichita State, taking the Shockers to their first postseason bowl game, has died at 95.

Graham, who lived at the Schowalter Villa in Hesston since 1996, died Oct. 14 at Newton Medical Center in Newton, Kan., said Beverly Baumgartner, chaplain at Schowalter. A memorial service was planned for Wednesday at the retirement home.

Graham, from El Dorado, Kan., was a star player at K-State in the 1930s, a fullback known as "Rammin' Ralph" who was a three-year all conference choice in what was then the Big Six Conference. He captained the Wildcats in 1933, and the 196 points he scored at K-State stood as the school scoring record until 1997. After college, he was a starter in the East-West Shrine all-star game.

Graham also played basketball and tennis at K-State, where he graduated in 1934.

CFB | Missouri player's mom joins wrongful death lawsuit

COLUMBIA, Mo. — The mother of a University of Missouri football player who died after collapsing during a July preseason workout has joined a wrongful death lawsuit filed by her estranged husband against university officials.

Deborah O'Neal joined the suit against athletic director Mike Alden, coach Gary Pinkel, team medical director Rex Sharp and 11 trainers and strength coaches on Oct. 11. Her ex-husband Lonnie O'Neal filed the suit on Aug. 23, the same day Boone County medical examiner Valerie Rao released an autopsy report that listed viral meningitis as the probable cause of reserve linebacker Aaron O'Neal's death.

The 19-year-old collapsed on Faurot Field about 45 minutes into the hourlong workout. He died later that afternoon. Rao determined swelling in O'Neal's brain affected his heart and caused him to lose his ability to breathe properly.

MLB | Houston Astros beat St. Louis; World Series awaits

ST. LOUIS — On this wild night of celebration, the Houston Astros owed it all to Roy Oswalt.

Oswalt

He took their dreams, hopes and gritty resolve and pitched his teammates into their first World Series, beating the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 Wednesday night with help from Craig Biggio.

Now that this wild-card team has its first NL pennant, the Astros will travel to Chicago take on the AL champion White Sox in the World Series, which begins Saturday night.

NBA | Jordan admits gambling was 'stupid'

NEW YORK — Michael Jordan admits being "stupid" in his gambling, but never jeopardized his livelihood or his family, he told CBS' "60 Minutes" in an interview to be broadcast Sunday.

Jordan

Jordan, who led the Chicago Bulls to six NBA titles in the 1990s, said his gambling is related to his fierce competitiveness. But he realized when he stepped over the line.

Jordan also discusses his love of basketball, the murder of his father and his pursuit of privacy.

He also addressed critics who expected him to be more political and outspoken.

NFL | Mayor blasts owner for trying to move team

NEW ORLEANS — Mayor Ray Nagin disparaged Saints owner Tom Benson on Wednesday for working with San Antonio officials to permanently keep the NFL team in Texas.

The mayor's comments came after the departures of two top Saints executives who were supportive of keeping the Saints in Louisiana. Nagin is concerned that San Antonio officials said publicly that Benson is working with them to relocate the franchise to Texas.

"We want our Saints, we may not want the owner back," Nagin said while attending the reopening of Cafe Du Monde in the French Quarter. "I'm ready to go to the NFL and to (commissioner Paul) Tagliabue and say, 'Give us the Cleveland plan,'"

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

115 Rooms Available

ROOM FOR rent until January. $250. Two-bedroom at Chase. Call (951)764-8840.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ROOMMATE NEEDED for two-bedroom apartment. Very clean/ nice, pets allowed. Great landlords, available now- May 31. Call (913)220-5854.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED. Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300, (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM. ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)537-2323.

FOR RENT: one-bedroom, private bathroom, washer/ dryer, all appliances, fenced yard, private parking. $300/ month and split utilities. Water/ trash/ sewage paid. Pet friendly. (316)253-5549.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted. $295/ month plus one-half utilities. Close to campus. Non-smoking. Available immediately. Call (785)229-5572.

ROOMMATE WANTED. $250/ month. One block from Aggieville. two from campus. Available immediately. (816)810-5953.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom. Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

TWO-BEDROOM. ONE bath apartment. Water, trash, and cable paid. $480/ month. (785)587-9638.

310 Help Wanted

CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER Geary Community Hospital is actively seeking resumes for a Chief Financial Officer. Applicant must have a Bachelor of Business Administration, Accounting, or related field, CPA preferred. Five to seven years of progressive experience in financial management, CFO experience is preferred with a strong background in Medicare reimbursement and hospital accounting. Some of the required duties are: responsible for the fiscal operations of the hospital, directly overseeing: General Accounting, Patient Accounting and Health Information Management; coordination of the hospital's annual financial audit with an independent auditing firm; preparing department and monthly financial statements and budgets for the Board of Trustees; oversees all investments, lease agreements and capital equipment purchases; hospital wide and authorization of all non-inventory purchases. Benefits and salary are commensurate for this area. Interested and qualified applicants should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, Attn: Human Resources, P.O. Box 490, Junction City, Kansas 66441; email to cwitt@gchks.org or fax to (785) 238-1700.

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

MANPOWER IS now accepting applications for office position in Alma. Weekends only. $9/ hour. Apply in person at 555 Poyntz Ave. Suite 245.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT- Need part-time person to assist with online research, topics are education and criminology. This will be ongoing research until June. Call (785)565-3708 for pay and details.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS: Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

NOW HIRING. Vista Drive In, a locally owned and operated quick service restaurant is adding to our team. Individuals must have a positive attitude and be able to multitask and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We have multiple part-time positions available some daytime hours preferred. KSU students encouraged. Insurance benefits available. We offer meal discounts, flexible hours and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

DESPERATE MOM/ office manager needs help organizing , sorting, filing in home and office. Flexible hours for hardworking students who like to clean and organize. $6/ hour. Call Chris (785)456-5835.

INTERNET WORK! $8.75-$38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

NEED ICAT tickets to Texas A&M game. (785)410-5384.

TWO K-STATE vs Texas A&M reserved tickets. Call (785)537-4947.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air-conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape. 73k asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

600 travel trip

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.ubski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less $8.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $9.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $11.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $12.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $14.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

EARN YOUR M.D. degree in warm tropical Belize! Contact: InterAmerican School of Medical Sciences. 877-DOC-STUDY or on the web at www.interamericanschool.com

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

ONE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE December or January. $335 to $350. (785)587-0399.

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NOW LEASING

• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillinvestmndrental.com

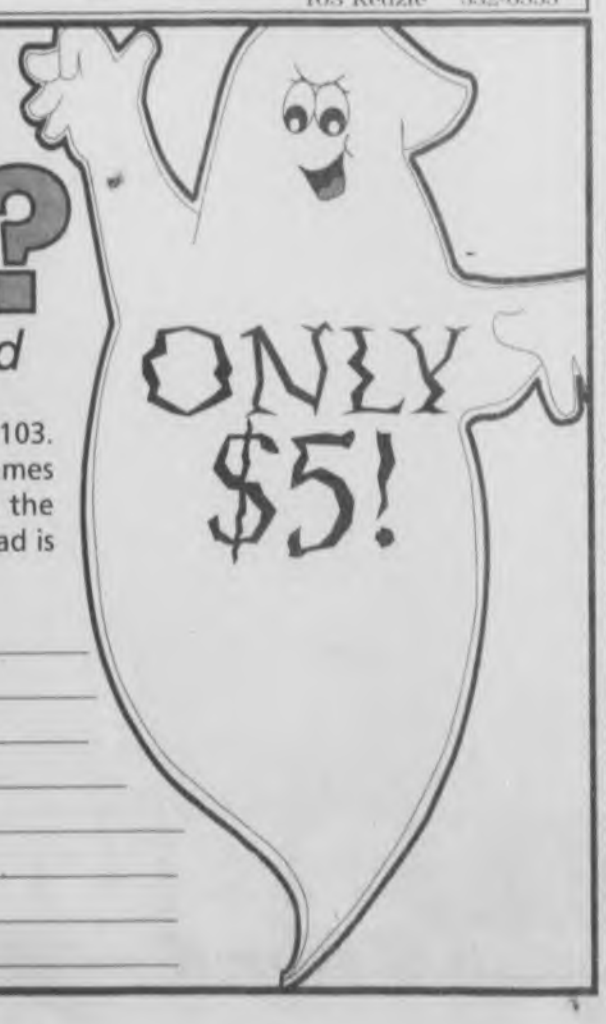
LEE CREST Apartment within one block from campus. One and two-bedrooms, private parking, on site laundries, water/ trash paid. Electric central heat/ air. $455 and $490. (785)539-7961.

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

Graphic Design/GTM Sportswear

GTM SPORTSWEAR

This part time position is great for a junior or si design. Individual must be dependable, self-mot and very creative. Excellent attention to detail Macintosh experience and knowledge of Qua Illustrator, and OS X preferred. Duties include layout of ads and other printed marketing mate samples for photo shoots, and taking digital ph would ideally be available for 3-4 hour blocks 15-20 hours a week. Send resumes to GTM Sportswear 520 McCall Rd, Manhattan Attn: Kathy Lindsay or e-mail klindsay@gt



Reach more readers
Place your classified ad online. Get more bang for your buck.
www.kstatecollegian.com
Ads scheduled to be printed in the Collegian can be published online for an additional dollar.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

Feeling fenced in in that small living space?
Check out the Collegian's Housing/ Real Estate section of the classifieds and find some room to move around.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

Think someone is BOO-tiful?

Then put in a personal ad

Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday Oct 28.

Your name: _____ ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____
_____
_____
_____

Meet Your Match

You sit two rows behind him during your class in that big lecture hall.

You've been admiring him from afar since the first day of class.

You're too shy to go up and talk to him. Let us help you.

Advertise in the Collegian personals, and pretty soon...you'll get to sit right next to him.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

SPORTS

Columnist takes on Wildcat golfers

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

With golf becoming such a popular sport these days with the help of a person by the name of Tiger Woods, I decided to try my luck on a golf course.

Four years ago, I bought a set of clubs from a friend who was nice enough to sell them to me cheap, because I did not, and still do not, have a lot of money.

Come to think of it, I don't recall ever paying him all the money I owe. Sorry Kyle.

Thanks for the clubs though, I really appreciate it.

I've been playing golf since my junior year of high school, and I was good enough to letter on the golf team my senior year.

I feel like I make improvements in my game every time I tee it up.

I have a golf coach now who lived in my dorm last year, and he has helped me become a more consistent player.

My iron play has become more accurate, and I feel more comfortable each time I approach the ball.

I have improved so much that I figured I would try and see how I could fare against some of the best K-State had to offer.

Last Saturday, I played the back nine at Colbert Hills Golf Course with three members of the K-State golf team.

Senior Ben Kern, freshmen Joe Kinney and Robert Streb allowed me the pleasure of playing a few holes with them.

I had never played at Colbert before, so I went into the round knowing these guys would smoke me, especially considering they play the course almost every day.

To my surprise, I actually held my own on a few holes.

I miraculously out-drove all of them on three of the nine holes.

I should probably mention the tees I played from were about 20 yards closer to the hole then theirs, but I was still pleased because my ball was actually going straight and far, which doesn't usually happen.

I'm also happy to say I scrambled well and made a few pars.

The highlight of the day came on the par-4 18th, when I made an incredible putt for par.

The sun set on an eventful day, and it was becoming more difficult to locate the golf balls due to darkness.

I put my tee shot in a bunker and couldn't reach the green with my second shot. I had about 30 yards to the green with a bunker between me and the green. I did the best I could, and chipped onto the green, leaving me with a 40-footer for par.

With my putt, I was just trying to lag the ball close to the hole to give myself a chance at a two-putt bogey.

After I hit the putt, I looked away because the ball appeared as if it was going to miss to the right, then I heard Kinney say, "Do it. Get in there."

I looked up and watched my ball as it broke back toward the hole. It hit the cup dead center and dropped for the par.

Of course, I threw my hands in the air to celebrate this achievement; that's just the way I am.

That putt falling in the hole was an appropriate ending to a fun day with some cool guys.

Being able to play with Kern, Streb and Kinney was a delight, and I consider myself lucky to have had the chance to observe their individual talents in person.

I plan on working hard on my game, so one day I will be able to hang with these guys for 18 holes.

Wishful thinking? We'll see.

Cedrique Flemming is a junior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Seeing red

No. 1 Nebraska sweeps K-State to remain undefeated

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

There's a reason the Nebraska volleyball team is the No. 1 team in the country.

On Wednesday night at Ahearn Field House, in front of a season-high crowd of 3,107, the Huskers lived up to their reputation, dropping K-State 3-0 (30-20, 30-17, 30-18).

"They're very deserving of the best team in the country," coach Suzie Fritz said. "Maybe one of the best teams I've ever seen. They have no weaknesses, in my opinion."

Nebraska (19-0, 10-0 Big 12) had six players hit above .300 Wednesday night for a team percentage of .422. The Huskers also combined for 56 set assists and 54 defensive digs.

"They are really good team," said senior Agata Rezende, who paced the Cats with 13 kills. "They are very talented and very physical. They are just perfect."

While the Wildcats (15-5, 6-4) might not be perfect, sophomore setter Stacey Spiegelberg said she was impressed with her team's performance.

"I thought we improved this game from the last couple of games we've played," Spiegelberg said. "We were stronger overall, and I think we came out fired up and did everything better."

Fritz agreed, and said she was pleased with the Wildcats' lack of unforced attacking errors and ability to touch balls. The Huskers took control of the net, but with nine girls over 6-feet tall and one at 6-foot-5 in Sarah Pavan, that's not a surprise, Fritz said.

"You look across the net at a 6-5 girl, and she's pretty intimidating," Spiegelberg said. "We just have to learn to play with that."

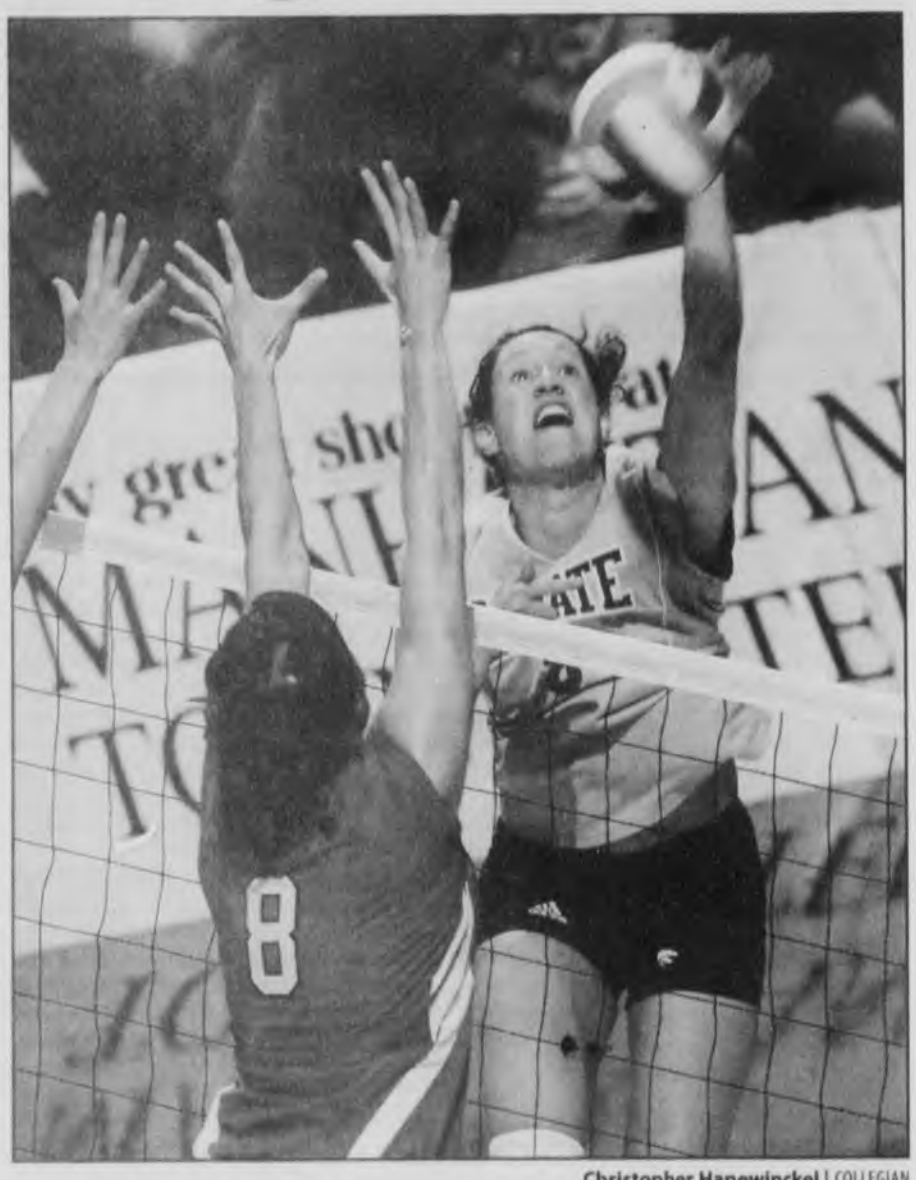
Games one and two were nearly identical, with the Cats showing a renewed intensity in the beginning of both games.

In game one, there were multiple lead changes and six ties. Game two showed four ties and two lead changes.

K-State hung close throughout both games until halfway, when the Huskers went on unstoppable runs, pulling out of the Cats' reach.

Game three, on the other hand, was Nebraska's game from the start.

K-State never led and once the Huskers extended a 7-4 lead to 12-4, the Cats never came within five again.



"We started out slow in game three, and I don't really know why that happened," Spiegelberg said. "We needed to come out with fire, and we didn't."

Still, the team left Ahearn Wednesday night in good spirits, Rezende said.

"It's always good to play somebody better than you, so you can get a better look at your weaknesses," Rezende said.

And it's always good to play in front of a big crowd, Spiegelberg said.

"The crowd was awesome," Spiegelberg said. "It was really fun to play with all our fans and see the purple out there. It definitely helped us get fired up for the game."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Senior outside hitter Agata Rezende swings for one of her 13 kills during the third game against Nebraska Wednesday night at Ahearn Field House. The Wildcats lost to the Huskers 3-0.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Junior outside hitter Jamie Perkins dives for a ball Wednesday night during the Wildcats' loss to Nebraska. K-State's next match is at 7 p.m. Saturday at Texas.

230 participate in intramural volleyball

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The whistle blew, the ball was served, and with that, the intramural volleyball season was underway.

During the second half of the fall semester, team volleyball is the feature sport in intramurals, John Wondra, assistant director of intramurals, said.

"We get a large turnout for women," Wondra said. "That is probably because a lot of the girls played in high school. Volleyball doesn't require as much physical exertion as most of the other sports we offer, so that makes it more popular."

The games began Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

Matches are scheduled for the next five weeks and will be played every Sunday through Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

This season, there are more than 230 teams participating in five different divisions. These divisions include fraternity, independent, residence hall, women and corec.

Matches are played in a relatively standard format with six players on each team and a rally scoring system, meaning a team can score points without serving. Teams with a .500 record or better at the end of division play will advance to the single-elimination tournament beginning in December.

Liz Wolf, freshman in agricultural communications and journalism, and member of the "Small Town All-Stars," said she enjoys the fact that volleyball is so popular at K-State.

"Volleyball is my all-time favorite sport," Wolf said. "It's a great feeling when you get to hit it hard on a spike or when you get a good block on someone."

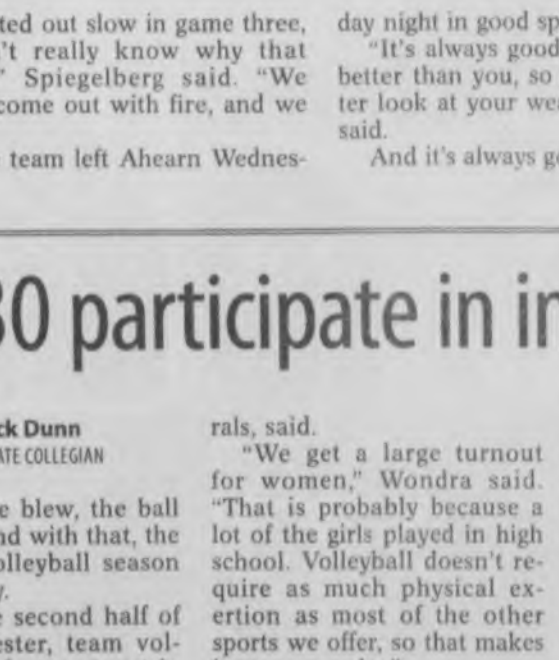
Intramural volleyball at K-State serves to unite people who at one time played with or against each other in high school.

In fact, Wolf and teammate Cierra Elder, sophomore in microbiology, said they knew most of their teammates from high school.

When asked how intramural volleyball compared to their experiences playing in high school, most players agreed they enjoyed intramurals just as much.

"It's very competitive here," Elder said. "In high school, there were a lot of rules that slow the game down. Here you just play, so the pace of the game is faster."

At least part of the credit for the popularity of volleyball on campus is certainly due to the success the women's volleyball team has had so far this season.



"I think schools with worse programs probably don't see as much participation in their intramural programs," Wolf said.

Gabby Guerre, senior in mechanical engineering, said she has had a great time watching K-State's varsity team play.

"The team is so good," she said. "I have loved going to see them play this season."

Guerre said it was obvious to her students enjoy themselves while playing volleyball.

"Volleyball is a very fun, energetic sport," Guerre said. "I think the players relate to that. It doesn't matter how skilled you are. You can have a good time playing volleyball."

Team No Name member Riley Yadon, senior in accounting, tips the ball back over the net during an intramural volleyball game Wednesday night at Peters Recreation Complex.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

CFB | Former K-State football coach dead at 95

HESSTON, Kan. — Ralph M. Graham, who coached football at both K-State and Wichita State, taking the Shockers to their first postseason bowl game, has died at 95.

Graham, who lived at the Schowalter Villa in Hesston since 1996, died Oct. 14 at Newton Medical Center in Newton, Kan., said Beverly Baumgartner, chaplain at Schowalter. A memorial service was planned for Wednesday at the retirement home.

Graham, from El Dorado, Kan., was a star player at K-State in the 1930s, a fullback known as "Rammin' Ralph" who was a three-year all conference choice in what was then the Big Six Conference. He captained the Wildcats in 1933, and the 196 points he scored at K-State stood as the school scoring record until 1997. After college, he was a starter in the East-West Shrine all-star game.

Graham also played basketball and tennis at K-State, where he graduated in 1934.

CFB | Missouri player's mom joins wrongful death lawsuit

COLUMBIA, Mo. — The mother of a University of Missouri football player who died after collapsing during a July preseason workout has joined a wrongful death lawsuit filed by her estranged husband against university officials.

Deborah O'Neal joined the suit against athletic director Mike Alden, coach Gary Pinkel, team medical director Rex Sharp and 11 trainers and strength coaches on Oct. 11. Her ex-husband Lonnie O'Neal filed the suit on Aug. 23, the same day Boone County medical examiner Valerie Rao released an autopsy report that listed viral meningitis as the probable cause of reserve linebacker Aaron O'Neal's death.

The 19-year-old collapsed on Faurot Field about 45 minutes into the hourlong workout. He died later that afternoon. Rao determined swelling in O'Neal's brain affected his heart and caused him to lose his ability to breathe properly.

MLB | Houston Astros beat St. Louis; World Series awaits

ST. LOUIS — On this wild night of celebration, the Houston Astros owed it all to Roy Oswalt.

Oswalt

He took their dreams, hopes and gritty resolve and pitched his teammates into their first World Series, beating the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 Wednesday night with help from Craig Biggio.

Now that this wild-card team has its first NL pennant, the Astros will travel to Chicago take on the AL champion White Sox in the World Series, which begins Saturday night.

NBA | Jordan admits gambling was 'stupid'

NEW YORK — Michael Jordan admits being "stupid" in his gambling, but never jeopardized his livelihood or his family, he told CBS' "60 Minutes" in an interview to be broadcast Sunday.

Jordan

Jordan, who led the Chicago Bulls to six NBA titles in the 1990s, said his gambling is related to his fierce competitiveness. But he realized when he stepped over the line.

Jordan also discusses his love of basketball, the murder of his father and his pursuit of privacy.

He also addressed critics who expected him to be more political and outspoken.

NFL | Mayor blasts owner for trying to move team

NEW ORLEANS — Mayor Ray Nagin disparaged Saints owner Tom Benson on Wednesday for working with San Antonio officials to permanently keep the NFL team in Texas.

The mayor's comments came after the departures of two top Saints executives who were supportive of keeping the Saints in Louisiana. Nagin is concerned that San Antonio officials said publicly that Benson is working with them to relocate the franchise to Texas.

"We want our Saints, we may not want the owner back," Nagin said while attending the reopening of Cafe Du Monde in the French Quarter. "I'm ready to go to the NFL and to (commissioner Paul) Tagliabue and say, 'Give us the Cleveland plan.'"

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

115 Rooms Available

ROOM FOR rent until January. $250. Two-bedroom at Chase. Call (951)764-8840.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ROOMMATE NEEDED for two-bedroom apartment. Very clean/ nice, pets allowed. Great landlords. available now- May 31. Call (913)220-5854.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED. Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

SUBLEASE. CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom. walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

TWO-BEDROOM. ONE bath apartment. Water, trash, and cable paid. $480/ month. (785)587-9638.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS. Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

NOW HIRING. Vista Drive In, a locally owned and operated quick service restaurant is adding to our team. Individuals must have a positive attitude and be able to multitask and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We have multiple part-time positions available some daytime hours preferred. KSU students encouraged. Insurance benefits available. We offer meal discounts, flexible hours and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

DESPERATE MOM/ office manager needs help organizing , sorting, filing in home and office. Flexible hours for hardworking students who like to clean and organize. $6/ hour. Call Chris (785)456-5835.

INTERNET WORK! $8.75-$38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER Geary Community Hospital is actively seeking resumes for a Chief Financial Officer. Applicant must have a Bachelor of Business Administration, Accounting, or related field. CPA preferred. Five to seven years of progressive experience in financial management. CFO experience is preferred with a strong background in Medicare reimbursement and hospital accounting. Some of the required duties are: responsible for the fiscal operations of the hospital, directly overseeing: General Accounting, Patient Accounting and Health Information Management; coordination of the hospital's annual financial audit with an independent auditing firm; preparing department and monthly financial statements and budgets for the Board of Trustees; oversees all investments, lease agreements and capital equipment purchases hospital wide and authorization of all non-inventory purchases. Benefits and salary are commensurate for this area. Interested and qualified applicants should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, Attn: Human Resources, P.O. Box 490, Junction City, Kansas 66441; email to cwitt@gchks.org or fax to (785) 238-1700.

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

MANPOWER IS now accepting applications for office position in Alma. Weekends only, $9/ hour. Apply in person at 555 Poyntz Ave. Suite 245.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT- Need part-time person to assist with online research. topics are education and criminology. This will be ongoing research until June. Call (785)565-3708 for pay and details.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

NEED iCAT tickets to Texas A&M game. (785)410-5384.

TWO K-STATE vs. Texas A&M reserved tickets. Call (785)537-4947.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air-conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape, 73k asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

600 travel trip

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-1451
www.ubski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744. www.ksu.edu/ksfc

EARN YOUR M.D. degree in warm tropical Belize! Contact:InterAmerican School of Medical Sciences. 877-DOC-STUDY or on the web at www.interamericanschool.com

www.bobbyts.com. CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

ONE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE December or January. $335 to $350. (785)587-0399.

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

LEE CREST Apartment within one block from campus. One and two-bedrooms, private parking, on site laundries, water/ trash paid. Electric central heat/ air. $455 and $490 (785)539-7961.

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FOR RENT. one-bedroom, private bathroom, washer/ dryer, all appliances, fenced yard, private parking. $300/ month and split utilities. Water/ trash/ sewage paid. Pet friendly. (316)253-5549.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted. $295/ month plus one-half utilities. Close to campus. Non-smoking. Available immediately. Call (785)229-5572.

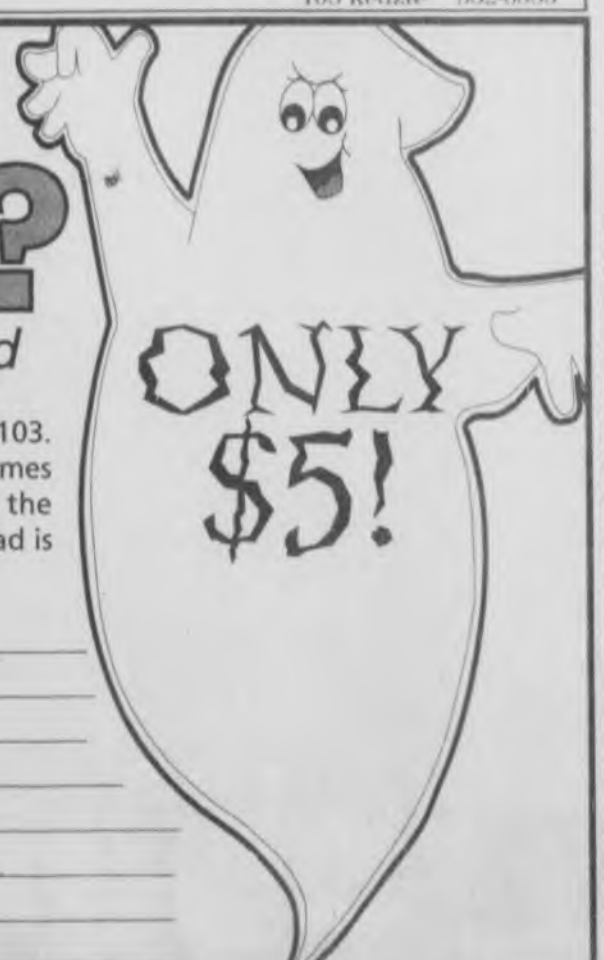
ROOMMATE WANTED. $250/ month. One block from Aggieville , two from campus. Available immediately. (816)810-5953.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

Graphic Design/GTM Sportswear

GTM SPORTSWEAR



This part time position is great for a junior or se design. Individual must be dependable, self-mot and very creative. Excellent attention to detail i Macintosh experience and knowledge of Qua Illustrator, and OS X preferred. Duties include layout of ads and other printed marketing mate samples for photo shoots, and taking digital ph would ideally be available for 3-4 hour blocks 15-20 hours a week. Send resumes to GTM Sportswear 520 McCall Rd, Manhattan Attn: Kathy Lindsay or e-mail klindsay@igt

Reach more readers
Place your classified ad online. Get more bang for your buck.
www.kstatecollegian.com
Ads scheduled to be printed in the Collegian can be published online for an additional dollar.

Feeling fenced in in that small living space?
Check out the Collegian's Housing/ Real Estate section of the classifieds and find some room to move around.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad

Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday Oct 28.

Your name: _____ ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

Meet Your Match

You sit two rows behind him during your class in that big lecture hall.

You've been admiring him from afar since the first day of class.

You're too shy to go up and talk to him. Let us help you.

Advertise in the Collegian personals, and pretty soon...you'll get to sit right next to him.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less $8.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $9.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $11.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $12.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $14.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board
100 housing/ real estate
200 service directory
300 employment opportunities
400 open market
500 transportation
600 travel trip

PEACE CORPS | Volunteers adjust to new families

Continued from Page 1

happy sound."

The first three months in Lesotho were spent learning about the culture of the Besotho people and the local language, known as Sesotho.

"I'm not good at languages, but after three months in training I was prepared to be out there on my own," Stephanie said.

They said adjusting to the local culture was a bit of a challenge for both of them.

"The honeymoon period ends after the first two months, and it sets in that you are going to be here for the next two years and it is tough," Adam said.

One of the biggest differences between the Lesotho and American cultures was the intimacy of the community, Stephanie said.

The Basotho community is like a large, extended family, Adam Springer said.

"In Basotho culture, everyone is called by a family name: brother, sister, mother, father," he said. "From the time I got there, I was called brother and father."

Adam Springer said he was impressed with how happy the Lesotho were, despite their poor state.

"They are incredibly poor, but they are so incredibly happy," he said. "They seem so much happier then Americans, yet they have so much less."

Likewise, Harty said the family structure in Uzbekistan is much different from that in the United States, especially in the age structure. Obeying your elders is not a courtesy in Uzbekistan, Harty said. It is standard, even if the person is a stranger.

Harty was known as aka, which means older brother, to his host brothers. He in turn, referred to them as uka, meaning younger brother.

Harty was able to use his age to his advantage at times. While he was playing soccer with his host brothers, there was a disputed call on whether or not someone's shot was a goal, Harty said. He casually suggested that they had made the shot, and no one argued after that.

"It's easy to win soccer games when you are the oldest person," he said. "If aka says it's a goal, then it must be a goal. No discussion, no one was bitter about it, it was just a fact of life."

While serving in the Peace Corps, Adam Springer taught the local people sustainable agricultural techniques. He also worked with local AIDS orphans, helping them to start gardens they could tend.

Lesotho has been hit hard by the AIDS pandemic, he said, and the result was evident during the Springers' time there. Thirty-one percent of the Basotho have HIV, and the average person lives five years after being infected.

"These people were literally dying all the time," Stephanie said. "There was literally a funeral every weekend we were there, but the people were always so happy and joyous and that was so amazing to me."

One memory that sticks out in Harty's mind about Uzbekistan was when he learned about Sept. 11. He was talking with his host mother, when all of a sudden his host brother started shouting at him in Uzbek, English and Russian.

"It was a mixed method, but I could tell something was going on," he said.

The next day, the director of the school where Harty taught English called Harty into his office.

"He spoke in the slowest Uzbek he could to make sure I understood everything that happened, and how sorry he was for everything that happened in the United States," Harty said. "He kept saying how I was welcome there and how glad he was that I was there."

Adam and Stephanie Springer reluctantly headed back to the United States in August, but said they didn't want their experience with the Peace Corps to end there.

Stephanie is now the Peace Corps representative at K-State, offering advice to students considering serving with the Peace Corp and recruiting new volunteers.

"The Peace Corps was such a rewarding experience, and I wanted other K-State students and faculty to have the opportunity to learn about the Peace Corps," she said.

There are currently 22 K-State graduates serving in the Peace Corps, and 471 students and faculty have volunteered since the corps started in 1961.

The Peace Corps was started by President John F. Kennedy as a challenge to college students at the time. Since then, there have been 178,000 volunteers in 138 nations across the globe.

"I would recommend it because the Peace Corps gives you the opportunity to give to people in need and build skills or enhance the skills you already have," Stephanie Springer said.

She will have an informational meeting about corps from 6:30 p.m. to 8 tonight at Smurthwaite Scholarship House.

Harty said he experienced mixed emotions when he was evacuated from Uzbekistan. While he was glad to be able to spend time with his blood relatives, he was sad to leave his new family behind.

"It's tough to explain having a family that takes you in, and you become a part of that family, and then you are yanked away from them," he said. "There hasn't been a day that's passed that I haven't thought about returning. I miss my host family."

CAMPUS THEFTS | Police release robbery report

Continued from Page 1

The release said the subject took a laptop, tools, a digital camera and a laser transit, a tool used for measurements in construction. Their total value was listed as more than $8,000.

Two cameras were also listed in the release. Student Publications Inc. reported a Canon EOS-1D, valued at $5,000 stolen from its office on Aug. 2 and a student reported a $400 Canon Powershot on Sept. 8.

Also listed in the release was a $900 mountain bike stolen the night before Aug. 10 from a Jardine Apartments resident.

One more recent theft was discovered yesterday morning outside Seaton Hall. Michelle Haupt, chairwoman of the Academic Majors Fair Committee, said a 10 by three-foot banner for the fair was stolen sometime between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning.

"I have no idea why someone would take it," she said. "It's not fancy. It's plain information."

Haupt said the lines that held the banner were cut and were still hanging from the trees. She said it will cost at least $200 to replace it.

Stubbings advised students to keep their things locked up and under watch as many of the thefts the campus police investigate involve victims that did not keep their property secure.

WEBMAIL | Students should empty mailboxes

Continued from Page 1

noticing is that it is slower," Gould said.

Many students have been noticing the drop in speed. Sarah Price, sophomore in kinesiology, said her computer had trouble connecting with the Webmail server.

"It was an inconvenience, because I needed to speak with some of my teachers and I haven't been able to because of it not working," she said.

The sharp increase in e-mails sent through Webmail surprised K-State computing services.

"It caught us unaware," Unger said. "We have ways of predicting usage and they just didn't work."

Along with the increase in messages, an increase in the size of attachments, from 3MB to 10MB, has affected the speed of Webmail, Perez said.

"Since K-State has allowed attachments to be of a larger size, inboxes have been filling up faster," he said.

Gould offered several pieces of advice for students and faculty to help make Webmail run smoother.

"We need people to go in and clean out their trash folder, and if they would do that on a regular basis, that would help with our storage issues," she said. "If you are going to save anything, organize it into folders you can easily find."

Also, Gould said students should adjust their spam filter to a higher setting by visiting the EID Web site at eid.k-state.edu. Further tips can be found at main.itac.ksu.edu/best_practices.htm.

Tips for using Webmail

- Organize e-mail so that it is easier to find mail
- An Inbox is temporary storage. When finshed with mail, put it in an appropriate folder or delete it
- Don't use the Trash folder as a File folder
- Review the Trash folder
- Perform routine maintenance with e-mail.

For more information, visit www.ksu.edu/infotech/email

Source: main.itac.ksu.edu/best_practices.htm

$14 millon in payroll every month.
Are you advertising on pay day?
Kansas State Collegian Advertising
532-6560

New Donors Can Earn $65 This Week!
EASY INCOME TODAY!
zlbplasma.com
We make it easy for you to earn money today with your life-saving plasma donation.
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway • Manhattan, KS 66502
(785)-776-9177
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a social security card.
Good for You. Great for Life.

RAMBLERS
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner-2 complete dinners
$1.75 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

The Collegian is available at
112 locations near you.
Kansas State Collegian Advertising
532-6560

Crossing your fingers won't help...
Emergency contraception can prevent pregnancy if taken within 72 hours of unprotected sex
A prescription is required - contact Lafene, your health care provider or local health department AND call the National EC Hotline 1-888-668-2528
www.not-2-late.com
Paid for by the Peggy Bowman Second Chance Fund Emergency Contraception Fund

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
$1.99 Margaritas
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
Prizes for ALL Singers!
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

A reminder about individual health insurance.
A "What looks good to you?" reminder.
A Health Savings Account combined with a High Deductible Health Plan from American Family may lower your premiums and allow you the freedom to decide how and where to spend your health care dollars—while the dollars you don't spend accumulate tax-free. To learn more, call your American Family agent today. So you can check health insurance off your list, and off your mind.
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE

Tim Engle Agency Inc
3320 Anderson Ave
(785) 539-9200 Bus
Manhattan, KS 66503
tengle@amfam.com

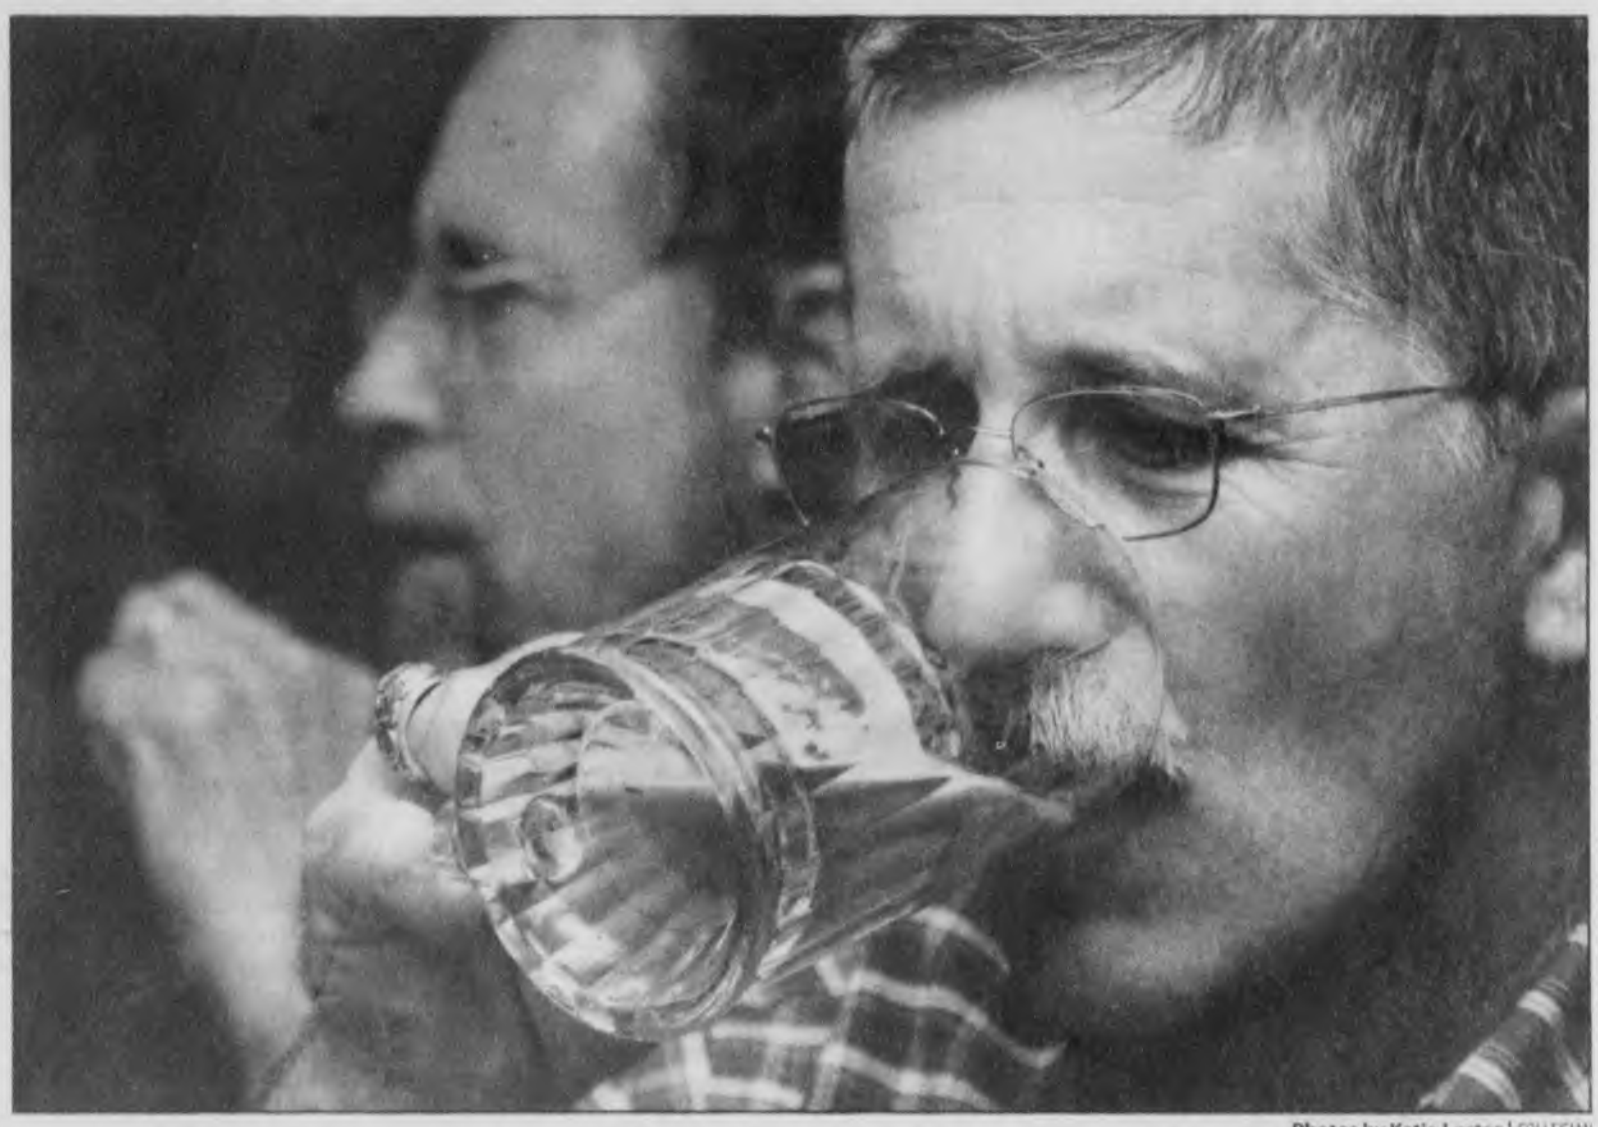
Thursday Mania
$5.99 XL Cheese Pizza
Gumby's Pizza
770-3333 • 702 N. 11th
LIVE MUSIC 9:30
Order a 20" Specialty Pizza & Get a free CD!
the Rest of Us
$1.75 Bud/Bud Light Pints

Borck Brothers
Now OPEN in our new location
Larger Selection Extended Hours
Same Professional Service and Quality Products

537-8636 / 888-642-7848
Across from Panera Bread - Also in downtown Salina
www.borck-bros.com
Mon-Th 9:30am -7pm ... Sat until 6 ... Sun 1-5pm

SAFE RIDE
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11:00 p.m. - 3:00 a.m.
We Drive. You Ride. Every Weekend.
Call:
539-0480
A free service provided by the K-State Student Governing Association

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN



www.kstatecollegian.com

Friday, October 21, 2005

Vol. 110, No. 45

Special Section
Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

Home brew

Photos by Katie Lester | COLLEGIAN

Doug Jardine, professor of plant pathology, taste-tests a beer made by a fellow member of the Little Apple Brew Crew Monday. Mike Wamsley, Manhattan, hosted the event at his house that brought together professors, Manhattan residents and a graduate student to try homemade brews.

Joe Aistrup, professor of political science, reaches for a bottle of beer. More than half a dozen varieties of homemade beer were sampled at the meeting of the brewery club.

Local men meet monthly to drink home-made beer, share brewing tips

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Members of the Little Apple Brew Crew only take a few things seriously. One of them happens to be beer.

The local club's members can sit for hours discussing lagers, stouts, ales and, of course, just plain beer.

Their critiques of regional breweries include names like the Blind Tiger Brewery & Restaurant, Free State Brewing Company, High Noon Saloon, Boulevard Brewing Company and Little Apple Brewing Company.

The brew crew is a group of 37 local residents who meet monthly to share advice on brewing and exchange some of their latest drinks.

The crew started in 1991 when a group local brewers organized to share each other's wisdom in the art of beer making.

"We all wanted to be better brewers," Walter Dodds, professor in biology and one of the crew's founders, said. "We used to have business; then the first order of business was to taste the beers."

> "Oh, that's nice. He must have one hell of a teacher."
>
> Walter Dodds
> PROFESSOR IN BIOLOGY, CO-FOUNDER, BREW CREW

Each month's meeting is at a different member's home, with an average of 15 members attending each one.

"The members are responsible for bringing beer to each meeting," Doug Jardine, professor in plant pathology, said. "There is never a shortage of beer."

Sitting around a table covered in buffalo wings, mozzarella sticks, pretzels and dozens of beer bottles, growlers and coolers, the members' conversation drifts between work, beer and someplace in between.

The biologists and scientists in the club frequently pause to discuss the brains behind their beverages.

"There is actually some science to it," Jardine said.

Whenever the brewers meet, they always take time to share their tips, which range from the proper ratio of ingredients to using Beano to aid fermentation.

"No one really has any hidden recipes that I know of," Gerry Snyder, multimedia specialist with the

See CREW Page 8

Kansas among safest states

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Nine children die from a gun every day.

While gun-related death among children is decreasing according to the National Safety Council, some officials say there is much room for improvement.

A recent report in the American Academy of Pediatrics claims unlocked guns in the United States are to blame for gun-related deaths among children.

In 2002, households contained nearly 20,000 loaded and unlocked firearms on average.

For more information
Riley County Police Department
1001 S. Seth Child Road
Manhattan, Kan. 66502
537-2112

Kansas, however, was among the safest states highlighted in the report, with only 2.4 percent of households exposed to loaded and unlocked firearms.

Despite Kansas' lower numbers, parents need to be proactive and educate their children about gun safety, said Catherine Okoro, an author of the study and epidemiologist with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

"Public health measures are needed to encourage the safe storage of household firearms," Okoro said. "Such measures could include counseling of parents by primary care providers, especially pediatricians, regarding safe firearm storage."

See LOCKS Page 8

Senate allocates more than $500,000

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Student Senate approved spending $374,900 on improvements to streets and sidewalks in and around K-State in 2007 Thursday night.

The money will come from the City/University Projects Fund, which is used to pay for projects that benefit Manhattan and K-State.

Included was $155,047 for the widening of Denison Avenue to include a turning lane.

The resolution also included $75,000 for other improvements and $144,853 to build a pedestrian sidewalk on College Avenue from Claflin Road to Kimball Avenue.

Emergency allocations
K-State Athletics: $15,599.72
K-State Student Union: $13,641.35
K-State Rec. Services: $15,190
K-State Student Health: $124,520.45

The senate also approved five spending bills unanimously with one vote.

Four of them were emergency allocations totaling almost $170,000 to pay employees in four campus offices. They were needed because of an extra pay period that occurs every 11 fiscal years. A fifth allocation of $920 was for a United Black Voices Gospel Choir's trip.

The senate also approved Michael Manley, senior in kinesiology, to fill a vacant seat as a senator for the College of Arts and Sciences.

Exhibit to display photographs of fetuses to educate about abortion

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Photographs of aborted fetuses will e on display Monday through Thurs- y next week.

World Christian Fellowship is bring- g the Justice For All Exhibit to three eas of campus: the quad, Bosco Stu- nt Plaza and the grassy area west of ale Library, Addie Lynn, WCF advis- , said.

"It's to bring awareness of abortion," e said. "There won't be any confron- tions because the exhibit itself is vivid enough."

Justice For All's mission is "to create debate, change hearts and save lives," according to its Web site.

"It's not about taking control away from women and their bodies," said Tammy Cook, director of field operations for JFA. "It's about having respect for both the woman's and baby's lives."

The exhibit consists of photographs and explanations of those photographs, Lynn said. There will also be a board on which observers can write comments.

Cook said the exhibit has 12 panels that will be rotated between the locations each day. She said the photographs have not been retouched or altered in any way.

It is a three-part exhibit, Cook said, focusing on the humanity of the unborn baby, the inhumanity of abortion, and the medical risks of abortion.

"The goal of our exhibit is to educate people about the truth about abortion with information they're not receiving otherwise," Cook said. "We want to elevate the compassion for the unborn baby."

Fourteen to 20 WCF and JFA members will staff the exhibit areas at all times to talk to people, answer questions and provide guidance, Lynn said. Medical staff will also be on hand.

"It could be very emotional," Lynn said.

She said two K-State women have abortions every day.

"We just want to put the word out there," she said. "We want them to know should they choose their other option."

Lynn said universities in Texas and Colorado have displayed the exhibit with minimal confrontation.

Cook said JFA has taken its exhibit to more than 40 schools since its founding in 1993.

Members of Ordinary Women were unavailable for comment.

Justice for All Exhibit
When: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.
Where: Monday-Thursday in the quad, Monday-Wednesday west of Hale Library, Tuesday and Wednesday in Bosco Student Plaza

■ For more information on the exhibit visit www.jfaweb.org.

Today
High 65
Low 43

Saturday
High 58
Low 33

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Gun manufacturers safe
Congress voted Thursday not to allow gun crime victims to sue firearms manufacturers for damages, answering complaints by President Bush and the gun industry that big jury awards could lead to bankruptcy. Bush said "Our laws should punish criminals who use guns to commit crimes, not law-abiding manufacturers of lawful products."

Narcotics scandal
Narcotics officers in Topeka regularly tampered with drug evidence and Police Chief Ed Klumpp knew about the problems, but no officers were disciplined. The Topeka Police Department was forced to dismiss 25 criminal cases filed since 1999 because of questions about officers' conduct.

Defendant kidnapped
A lawyer for one of Saddam Hussein's co-defendants was kidnapped Thursday, a day after the former dictator went on trial. Iraq's premier said he was proud the court gave Saddam freedom to talk at Wednesday's opening session, where he said he did not recognize the legitimacy of the proceedings because he was still president.

DON'T FORGET

Enrollment for students with 116 or more hours begins Monday.

The last day to sign up for A/Pass/F grading option for a course with 56-62 calendar days is today.

Homecoming week will begin Sunday with a 5K homecoming race. Lineup begins at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at the K-State Alumni Center, and the race begins at 10 a.m.

See our listings in the Classifieds.
DIAMOND
REAL ESTATE PROPERTY MANAGEMENT
785-537-7701

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Bush league? (Abbr.)
4 Remove in respect
8 Viscid lump
12 Have bills
13 MPs' quarry
14 Earring setting
15 Humor writer Robert
17 Footnote abbr.
18 Shoe cushioner
19 — Arbor, Mich.
21 Morsel
22 "It Takes a Thief" star Robert
26 Coconut meat
29 Once around
30 Mined-over matter
31 Comical Caroline
32 Demure
33 Work hard
34 Melody
35 Showbiz job
36 Sweetheart
37 Broadway star Robert
39 Swabbie's prop
40 Parisian pal
41 Maroon
45 Tabloid writing
48 "Forrest Gump" director Robert
50 Largest of the seven
51 Cupid's aka
52 Type squares
53 Heckle
54 Egg container
55 Infinitesimal

DOWN
1 Mongolian desert
2 Wister or Wilson
3 Nerd-pack contents
4 Showy flower
5 Young hooter
6 Enemy
7 In need of hairspray, maybe
8 Jewelry (Sl.)
9 Tennis shot
10 Sapporo sash
11 Foundation
16 One leading a charmed life?
20 Siesta
23 Lunch hour
24 One of HOMES
25 Depend (on)
26 Jagged rock
27 Buckeyes' home
28 Indiana city
29 Journal
32 Urban dweller
33 Subject
35 Lapidary's item
36 True
38 South American capital
39 Staff's notes
42 Distort
43 Rickey flavoring
44 Existence, to Caesar
45 Standard
46 NAFTA signatory
47 Claiborne or Phair
49 Preceding

Solution time: 25 mins.

P	A	D	S		J	A	P	E		C	O	P
I	L	E	T		O	V	E	N		A	P	E
C	A	M	E	M	B	E	R	T		M	A	T
K	N	I	V	E	S			E	K	I	L	E
			I	T		C	A	R	E	S
N	I	C	E		J	A	R		D	O	F	F
E	R	A			A	M	I			L	O	U
T	E	M	P		Z	E	D		B	E	E	R
		B	O	N	Z	O		M	Y
S	C	O	P	E			D	E	P	I	C	T
O	L	D		C	A	M	E	R	A	S	H	Y
M	O	I		K	N	O	B		S	L	I	P
E	T	A		S	T	E	T		S	A	N	E

Yesterday's answer 10-21

10-21 CRYPTOQUIP

A S N R O S M T I V O N U I R X U Y U W O U W T J G S X G R N Z R O N M T S J G A R N R L R N N R G U T O Y G N O Z R N Y L T N G N O Z R N Y.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: POPULAR SITCOM ABOUT A WEALTHY ARAB AND HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN: "OIL IN THE FAMILY."

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: N equals R

BEST BETS

Your guide to the weekend's entertainment

1 | K-State vs. Texas A&M

The Wildcats will kick off against the Aggies at 1:10 p.m. Saturday at KSU Stadium. The Aggies have a 4-2 record. The Wildcats also have a 4-2 record. Texas A&M leads the series history 7-4. The game will be broadcast on K-State Sports Network on KMAN-1350 A.M. or KMKF-101.5 F.M. For tickets or more information, call 1-800-221-2287 or visit www.kstatesports.com.

2 | Copus, Placate, L.I.E.

Copus, Placate and L.I.E. will be performing at 10 tonight at PJ's Bar, 1129 Laramie St. This will be Placate's final show. The cover charge is $5 for ages 18-20 and $3 for anyone over 21. Call PJ's at 539-7055 for more information.

3 | SPOOKtacular

Bring the kids to SPOOKtacular for a safe, daytime trick or treat from 1 to 7 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday at the Sunset Zoological Park, 2333 Oak St. Load up on candy at more than 30 candy stations and participate in daily costume contests. Friends of the Sunset Zoo members will receive a discount. For more information, call 587-2737 or e-mail paukstelis@ci.manhattan.ks.us.

4 | Vibraphone performance

A chemical engineering professor at Iowa State University, Ken Jolls, will use the vibraphone at 8 tonight at the Manhattan Arts Center, 1520 Poyntz Ave. He uses the vibraphone to connect his love of science and arts. Jolls has performed across the United States, California to New York. He was last seen at Swing City Jazz in May's "Wayne Goins & Friends" performance. For more information, call 537-4420 or e-mail marketing@manhattanarts.org.

5 | Homecoming 5K Philanthropy Run

The 5K run will begin at the 10 a.m. Sunday at the K-State Alumni Center. The proceeds will go to the Disabled American Veterans. Registration is available online, and the cost is $15. For more information, call 532-5058 or e-mail abryant@k-state.com.

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Wednesday, Oct. 19

- Dedric Riser, 410 Bluemont Ave., Apt. 1/2 was arrested at 7:10 a.m. for falsely reporting a crime. Bond was set at $500.
- Lance Caruthers, 330 Valley Drive, was arrested at 9:55 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $750.
- Stephen Fox, 5381 S. 24th St., was arrested at 10 a.m. for theft and burglary. Bond was set at $2,000.
- Delilah Malone, 1300 Marlatt Ave., Apt. 1107, was arrested at 5:50 p.m. for unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $500.
- Donzell Davis Jr., Kansas City, Kan., was arrested at 6 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $750.
- Steven Gee, 3651 Powers Lane, was arrested at 6:10 p.m. for criminal damage to property. Bond was set at $750.
- Jon McGuire, 423 Denison Ave., was arrested at 9:15 p.m. for aggravated indecent liberty and aggravated criminal sodomy. Bond was set at $10,000.
- Tyrone Fenton, Salina, was arrested at 10:40 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $3,000.

Thursday, Oct. 20

- Jeremy Bailey, Junction City, was arrested at 1:25 a.m. for criminal trespass. Bond was set at $750.
- Jarrod Prindle, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 1:55 a.m. for criminal damage to property and obstruction of legal process. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Gerald King Jr., 244 Westwood Road, was arrested at 3:15 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $750.
- Ashley Smith, 244 Westwood Road, Apt. 1/2, was arrested at 3:20 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $139.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Moudhi Al-Mousa at 2 p.m. today in Justin 247.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Chandini Sankaran at 3 p.m. today in Waters 329.
- A self-defense and mixed martial arts seminar by Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu Black Belt Daniel "Montanha" Nycz de Lima will be from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Manhattan Optimist Wrestling Club. See www.graciebarrakansas.com for more information.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

dependable, quality service
✓Take advantage of our large paper selection.
Claflin Books and Copies

Collegian Explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
$5.00 LARGE
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

We Kick Ads!
532.6560

Coors Lt. 12pk $7.99
Miller Lt. 20pk $11.99
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor

TONIGHT
SABHA Presents
FREE Kathak
Dance Concert
Indian Classical Dance Form
with intricate moves, exhilarating footwork and live music.
October 21st
6:30p.m. Little Theater
Sponsored by SGA & UPC

FREE DIGITAL PHOTOGRAPHY CLASSES!
Whether you're new to photography or an experienced shooter, Wolfe's Digital Photography Class will give you a head start or an outstanding review of photography. Here's your chance to really enjoy your new digital camera and all of its necessary accessories. Experience photography like you've never experienced it before... with information you can use! Let Steve Wilde of Wolfe's show you how to do it right!
- Classes Held At -
VARNEY'S BOOK STORE
623 N. Manhattan Ave.
(785) 539-0511
* Meet in Technology Center *
MONDAY, OCTOBER 10, 2005 AT 7:00 PM
Wolfe's
VARNEY'S

United Bank & Trust has teamed up with Kendra Wecker. She will be autographing mini basketballs on the East side of Wagner Field before the October 22, 2005 K-State Football game against Texas A&M.
United Bank & Trust
785-537-3814
1800 Claflin Road Suite 100
Manhattan, KS 66502
member FDIC

Child actor performs 'Play on Words' at McCain

Actor Richard Thomas jokes with a fan after signing autographs Thursday evening in the lobby of McCain Auditorium. Thomas has been acting since the age of 7, when he played John-Boy on the CBS series "The Waltons."

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

By J. Scott Bowman
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Theatergoers in attendance Thursday night at McCain Auditorium were treated to classic literary pieces in the show "Play on Words."

Richard Thomas, famous for his role as John-Boy in the CBS series "The Waltons," strolled out to a lectern and discussed the purpose for his journey from one Manhattan (N.Y.) to another.

"Isn't traveling great?" he said. "This morning, I left Manhattan, and tonight, I'm in ... Manhattan. But that's fine, I never want to leave Manhattan."

He said some actors tend to want to make a living making contact, in person or through TV, but he prefers to do it in person.

He delved into what he called the "wonderful words" he wanted to share. He read the prologue to "Henry V" and some Mark Twain short stories. Then he stopped for a moment and showed his appreciation of the audience.

"When people come out to a performance in bad weather," Thomas said, "it makes the performer feel good. And I think it's still pretty dreary out there."

Upon setting up the scene in a "Hamlet" piece, Thomas kept the tone of his show humorous by explaining that "this dysfunctional family thing isn't just in 2005."

It was the humor that Mike Dendurent, Wamego, Kan., resident, said he enjoyed.

"I've never been to a performance like this," Dendurent said. "I'm glad he included the humorous stuff because I'm not as much of a Shakespeare fan as what he was.

"But to me, his reading of 'Casey at the Bat' was well worth the admission."

He said he and his wife really enjoyed watching "The Waltons" growing up and the performance was pretty much what he expected. He said he was happy with the bonus at the end.

"I found it interesting that he said he picks his pieces the day of the performance," he said. "The question-and-answer part of the performance at the end was really a nice bonus."

After reading funny reviews of shows, funny church bulletins and an Oscar Wilde fairy tale, Thomas fielded questions from the audience.

One audience member asked how Thomas heard of Manhattan, to which he quipped, "They sent me a contract. But I'm really glad that I came."

Thomas signed autographs in the McCain Auditorium lobby after the performance.

Chinese sculptor discusses art, influences in Chinese

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Chinese sculptor Lu Bin said his emotions and the reality of life influence his art during a lecture sponsored by the Department of Art Thursday afternoon.

He delivered his lecture "From Brick to Fossil" in Chinese. With the assistance of a translator in the K-State Student Union Little Theatre, students listened to the lecture in English.

Lu grew up in Nanjing, China, at the time of Mao Zedong's establishment of China as a communist state.

Living through the Cultural Revolution had a powerful effect on Lu's modern pieces.

"My artwork reflects my emotions when China changed from a traditional society into a communist society," he said.

Lu said while some of Mao's politics were harmful to his country, the leader of the People's Republic of China also was a skilled calligraphist.

Lu featured the written text of a letter written by Mao in one of his pieces.

The artist also said that life situations and Chinese traditions play a central role in his art.

Many of Lu's pieces incorporate the color red, a traditional Chinese celebration color he said signifies good luck.

Others feature everyday items such as fish, fruit and soup bowls that he has observed in the everyday life of local citizens.

Lu, an instructor at the Nanjing Academy of Art, said his work in the past year is all about religion.

"I believe that all religion promotes love, peace and kindness, but (it) has also caused many wars over the years," he said. "I made this work to question why."

Ashleigh Sroufe, sophomore in fine arts, said she enjoyed the lecture.

"It was a little hard to understand the translation," she said, "but the pictures of his art were good."

Amy Troutman, freshman in fine arts, said she appreciated the cultural value of Lu's art.

"It's interesting to see someone else's art from another country," she said. "It's very different from the art we have here."

kstatecollegian.com

Britt's Garden Acres
9 a.m. - 7 p.m. Mon. - Sat. 12 - 6 p.m. Sun.
• Large selection homegrown pumpkins 19¢ / pound
• Exotic White & Cinderella Pumpkins 29¢ / pound
• Weekend Hay rides - on the hour - to Corn Maze $2
• Pick a Small or Medium Pumpkin only $2
1400 S. Scenic Dr. • 539-1901

ΓΦΒ
1985 • 2005
20 YEAR REUNION
Heiney • Bubbles • Burger • Wilson • Horlick • Chester • Snoot • Wies • Ram • Dru • Spaz • Wat
THE ORIGINAL PUSSY CAT DOLLS!
Don't cha wish your girlfriend was fun like us...

KSU Meat Sale
FRIDAY • Noon-5:45 p.m.
Rm. 166 • Weber Hall
BEEF
roast, steak, ground beef, bratwurst
PORK
pork chops, pork steaks, sausage, ground pork, bacon
LAMB
chops, roast, ground lamb
Paid for by Kansas State University.
For information call 532-1279

Religion Directory

Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church
Established in 1879
401 Yuma Street
(1 Bl. North of Ft. Riley Blvd. at 4th Street)
Reverend Penny Pitchford
Pastor
(785) 539-5897 Church (913) 321-6978 Pastor
Sunday School 9:30 AM
Breakfast 10:30 AM
Worship Service 11:00 AM
"Enter To Worship, Depart To Serve"

CrossRoads
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4281
rcm@ksu.edu
www.ksu.edu/rcm
David Jones, Pastor
Oct. 22nd 6:00pm
International Friendship Dinner
Sundays 5:30pm
Table Fellowship (free food!)
Wednesdays 5:00pm
Bible Study
Thursdays 6:30pm
Fantasy and Spirituality
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

Journey Ministry
University Christian Church
2800 Claflin • 776-5440
(across from Taco Hut)
9:45 Contemporary Service
11:00 Breakfast and Bible Study
Chris Herrington • www.uccks.org

JOIN THE DIRECTORY
Call 532-6560

Come Worship With Us
1st Church of the Nazarene
3031 Kimball Ave.
9:30 Sunday School
10:40 Sunday Worship
7:00 Wed. Bible Study, Teens
Youth & College ministry opportunities
Senior Pastor: Pat Weyranch
539-6376

JOIN THE DIRECTORY. YOUR CHURCH COULD BE HERE.

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00, 10:30, 10:40, 12:00
• Sunday School at 9:15
Steve Ratliff, Senior Pastor
Brian Anderson, Assoc. Pastor
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:15 & 10:45 a.m.
Bible Classes For All Ages 9:30 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

St. Francis Episcopal Campus Ministry
at Kansas State University
Sunday worship at
St. Paul's Episcopal Church,
Sixth & Poyntz, Manhattan
785-776-9427
11:30 a.m. Contemporary Service
(followed by lunch for KSU students)
Monday, 5:30 pm, Supper & Conversation at St. Francis-Canterbury House, 1823 Laramie St.
Drew Vining, Program Coordinator, 341-3221

Christian Science Society
Sunday 10:30 a.m.
Danforth Chapel
KSU Campus
Wed. 7:30 in Reading Room
Reading Room open Tues.-Thurs. 11-1
105 N. 4th St.

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
5:00 p.m. Contemporary Service
6:00 p.m. Dinner for College Students
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

NEW HOPE community church
WORSHIP SERVICE
9 & 10:45 AM
Small groups for men, women & married couples. College and Family Ministries.
www.newhopeks.org
3905 GREEN VALLEY ROAD
537-2389

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
330 Sunset Avenue
Saturday-
Traditional Worship 6:00 p.m.
Sunday-
Traditional Worship 8:30 a.m.
College Bible Study 9:45 a.m.
Contemporary Worship 11:00 a.m.
Email: stlukes@flinthills.com
(785) 539-2604

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road. (South on K-177 across viaduct, left on K-18 1/2 mile)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Day care for toddlers.
A Welcoming Congregation.
For information call (785) 537-2349
Rev. Michael Nelson
www.uufm.net

Westview Community Church
Serving God, reaching people
Worship services 9:00 a.m. 10:45 a.m.
Sunday school 9:00 a.m.
Campus ministry director
Carol Buchheister - cybuch@juno.com
3001 Fort Riley Boulevard
www.westviewcommunity.com
785-537-7173

You are welcome at...
FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD

First United Methodist Church
Worship at 8:30, 8:45 and 11:00
Come at 8:30 and 11:00 for more traditional worship with choirs and organ in our beautiful sanctuary.
Come at 8:45 for a BLENDED worship in our auditorium. Free doughnuts. 45 minutes long. Great band. COME AS YOU ARE!
Come at 9:45 for Sunday School in the auditorium. A special class for college students, relating the Bible to YOUR life.
JUST COME.
612 Poyntz, Manhattan Kansas
CAMPUS MINISTRY! Check out the website: Ksu.edu/umcm

For College Students
CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
www.ksuchialpha.com
Wednesday 8:00 p.m. (KSU Little Theater)
Pastor Bryan Elliott
Sunday Services
Sunday School 9:00 a.m.
Morning Worship 10:15 a.m.
Evening Worship 6:00 p.m.
Nursery Provided for All Services
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr. Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

Celebration Service
CONTEMPORARY WORSHIP SERVICE
For Everyone! All ages and all people who want to worship God. Sundays at 5 p.m.
Fellowship Meal at 6 for College Students
First Presbyterian Church
801 Leavenworth
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-537-0518
Pastor: R.C. McConnell
Associate Pastor: Anne Scheiber
Email: staff@firstpresmanhattan.com
www.firstpresmanhattan.com
"Sing to the Lord a new song, his praise from the ends of the earth..."
Isaiah 42:10

TO THE POINT

Children should be educated about firearms

In a recent study of firearm accidents involving children, Kansas placed in the top 10 percent of the safest states. It is easy to surmise that in a predominantly rural, gun-owning state that this is not the result of a lack of firearms.

Many Kansans grow up surrounded by gun culture. Through hunting, target shooting or just plain utility, they become accustomed to being around firearms. Much like growing up around cows, corn and crusty Jayhawk fans, being raised around guns seems to make the mystique disappear.

When it comes to firearms, educating children is the best way to ensure safety. Making something a forbidden object will only increase the allure.

Locks and safes can only do so much. Children are like raccoons – once their curiosity is piqued they can find a way into anything. Creating an air of mystery around a gun cabinet is the best way to cultivate a miniature safe-cracker in the family.

However, if the mystery is dispelled, so too is any desire to meddle with a gun safe or the contents within.

In an age where firearms ingress from Hollywood productions to Golden Girls' reruns, educating children as to the workings and safety of firearms is the best and quickest way to secure safety.

Rather than promote an air of mystery and excitement around firearms, we should strive to make them mundane. We would be on the way to the safest state in the Union if, when asked what was in the gun cabinet, Kansas children replied, "Oh, just some guns."

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF	Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR	Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF	Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR	Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR	Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR	Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR	Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR	Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH	Brad Simmons AD MANAGER	Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

More than courage

Rape victims possess strong will

Illustration by Eric Thompson
COLLEGIAN

ALYSSA ALEXANDER

Your efforts are futile and in result, sporadic. The longer you lie, unable to move, the less you struggle and resist. You are on your back, arms above your head, tightly bound at your wrists. Waves of a tingling sensation begin to crawl through your palms and spread to your fingers from the lack of blood flow.

You are unable to move. The amount of twice your body weight is bearing down on you and makes breathing difficult. You slowly exhale but the dead weight upon your chest won't allow you to take in oxygen.

You try to save your breath, only exhaling in small increments, but you're panicking now. How long can you last without an air supply?

Your eyes move rapidly, drinking in choppy images your brain can't contain or process. Your mind is racing, conjuring up every possible outcome of your situation. None of them seem good.

You open your mouth to scream but the silence isn't broken. Your eyes begin to well up, and tears stream down your face. You close them, say a prayer and pretend to be somewhere else; anywhere else.

At that moment, you have lost your dignity, and hope seems distant; unreal. Perhaps that's what it's like for a rape victim. I may not know, but a few girls in Manhattan do, and a few know from recent experiences.

It's almost surreal to know that across campus, or around the corner or maybe even next door, a girl – a person, just like you – was stripped of her rights and dominated. Maybe she's your best friend, maybe she's your sister or your neighbor. It's kind of eerie how it brings everything into perspective, and you realize just how close to home this sort of thing hits.

How do you go on living after losing your rights and dignity like that? One would think you would lose your sense of self or perhaps feel like a shell, used, abused and discarded.

An experience like that changes you. How and who can you ever trust again?

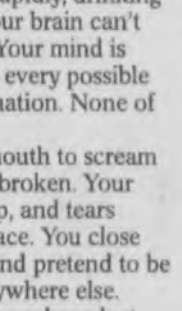
Who can any girl ever really trust? When such a thing happens in your town, a shock wave explodes and sends a negative message to other girls, "It's not over. You could be the next victim."

Believe me, it doesn't feel good to lie awake in the middle of the night, cringing and balling your fists at every noise that rises in your home. It isn't pleasant to not feel safe in your own town, let alone your own home. It doesn't feel good to know rapes are happening all the time, let alone that one man in Manhattan has continued to get away with it since 2000.

I don't understand how one human being could treat another human being like that. No one deserves to be raped, and no one brings it on herself (or himself). Someone takes it upon himself (or herself) to crush another in order to feel dominant, in order to feel superior.

I commend these girls who have suffered. My heart goes out to every girl who goes on living, healing and growing. I know I could never have half the courage or faith of these girls who are victims of such a sickening crime.

These girls who remain unbroken after a life-shattering and life-changing obstacle such as rape are the only ones who can truly be called superior. They have withstood something most of us refuse to even think about and still keep moving on.



One question that continues to cross my mind is, why we can't squash this problem? I'm sure if we put forth the effort we could easily reduce the number of rapes that take place in Manhattan.

Girls could take up using the buddy system, only traveling in groups after dark. They could take advantage of SafeRide to ensure they make it home and into their own beds at night.

Guys, where is your chivalry? Take care of your female friends. Walk them home, watch them lock their doors behind them, be smart and save the women of Manhattan from suffering a cruel and disgusting crime.

Alyssa Alexander is a freshmen in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Terrorism precautions unnecessary

ADDIE LAUE

It is a new age in the United States.

The issue of terrorism has grown drastically over the past five years.

We have watched in horror as countless people are killed and injured by terrorism that has become a daily occurrence all around the world. And we in the United States have experienced the devastation and violation of being attacked ourselves.

This new threat has changed the face of America, making every activity from baseball games to airplane flights an opportunity for disaster and making everyone a suspect.

Naturally, we have become a somewhat paranoid and obsessed country.

But on a recent trip to visit a friend out of town, I experienced one of the simplest yet saddest instances of just how obsessive we have become.

Standing in the kitchen, I noticed a flyer on the refrigerator. It was to inform parents of an upcoming Halloween party for the third grade class of my friend's cousin. As I read it, I came across the line "Remember Parents: No homemade treats. All food items must be store-bought."

I was speechless. I could not comprehend that we have really become so mistrustful that we believe a parent would contaminate a third grade class' party treats.

It is one thing, though horrible, for one country or religious organization to want to terrorize another, but it is incredibly different to believe that someone would want to harm a class of third graders.

Adding to my disbelief, the boy's mother did not seem to think much of it when I told her about my shock at the flyer.

I wondered if she experienced this sort of warning so often as the mother of a grade-schooler that she didn't notice anymore.

Unfortunately, we cannot ignore the way our lives have changed because of the new terrorism threat.

As a country, we would be irresponsible and careless not to use metal detectors and take excessive security measures in airports or around large food and water sources. These things, sadly, are necessary today.

Nevertheless, I refuse to believe it is a practical or effective weapon against terrorism to disallow something as innocent as a homemade cupcake at a child's Halloween party.

I am not naïve. I understand that it is a possibility that someone, somewhere could do something as disgusting as this.

But I don't think the threat is great enough to require such measures be taken. If we believe this is OK, I wonder how far this could be taken.

Will we start using metal detectors on grandparents for visitors' day in grade schools?

Now that it has begun, it is unlikely terrorism will cease to be a threat anytime in the near future. But the precautions being taken should be reasonable and essential.

Our focus should be on improving security where it is really needed, rather than believing everything is an opportunity for disaster.

We cannot protect ourselves from everything, and if we try to, the loss of our freedom will mean the terrorists have already won.

Illustration by Bennie Green
COLLEGIAN

Addie Laue is a junior in mass communications. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

It's 2:45 and I'm a bathroom puking my toilet, and I have to work at 8 a.m. for campus. I love college.

Dude, I just spelled Kansas with "C."

You're so vain, you probably think this comment is about you.

To the girl in the Bishop Carroll hoodie that dropped her cigarette by the library, Thursday at 11:30 on campus, that's just sick dropping it right there on the sidewalk. It's people like you that make our campus look trashy.

To the girls in the library with the loud music coming from their headphones, you suck at dancing. Sit down.

Dude, I drink alcohol a lot. Does anyone think I'm cool yet?

To the guy who found my glasses in the Rathbone Hall restroom, please return them. Thanks.

You're right, there are no decent girls left. You've treated us like crap for too long and now we don't care.

I'm lost. I thought I lived on College View Road. I can only find Campus View River.

I hate rain. Period.

All hail Marduk. The sun god.

Good girls are in the library. But where are all the good guys? Seriously.

I'm not a smoker and Grant Reichert's column is excellent. Liberal's "liberal creep" is creepy and I like how he spotted it.

It depends on what you mean by a 'good girl'. And also if you're hot.

"I was never a bad kid, I just stole stuff." Ah, the joys of 3 a.m. quotes.

Avoiding a CE paper, I found a haunted Gumby action figure on eBay. Anyone want in? It's only $5 with shipping.

I think I'm destined to be a cat lady.

For Sale: Parachute. Only used once, never opened, small stain.

Sometimes that's not light at the end of the tunnel, it's a train.

Like it on top? Then Washburn's your style. They seriously just said that on their TV commerical. Dirty dirty.

I can't wait till the ball turns round. Go KU.

I've made the Fourum 10 times this week and it's only Wednesday. I'm filarious if I do say so myself.

Who can study when Sex and the City is on? I learn more from Carrie anyways.

Kappa Tappa Kegga (KTK) pre-games harder than any other frat parties. Believe it. Do it.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Kicking and screaming

Several ways for students to defend themselves

By Eileen Laux
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Many people say a basic knowledge of self defense is necessary.

Dan Hayes, sensei of the K-State Aikido Club, said the club was started by his parents and is now a part of the dance department. It is available for college credit.

He said about 50 percent of his students are female. Aikido takes advantage of whatever size a person may be. He said there is no single defense against an attacker.

Hayes, 25, said a wide range of people attend his classes. He said Aikido may not be for everyone, but after doing it for 15 years, he can't imagine his life without it.

"It is more about the state of mind that you're in, rather than how big you are or how much training you have had," he said. "Teaching is all about trying to get students psyched about defending themselves."

Aikido teaches people to relax and calm their bodies in order to think clearly. This martial art is different from other martial arts because it is not based on trying to hurt anyone else, he said.

"Aikido is designed to protect yourself, and it can work in almost any situation," Hayes said. "It is not something that is going to try to destroy people. It fits well within the bounds of modern society. However, it is not something that you can learn after one class. It takes a while to progress and learn."

The class meets from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday in Ahearn 301.

Natasha Wright, junior in dietetics, said she would recommend the class to anyone who is interested.

"I wanted a way to defend myself, and I think it is an awesome way to be able to do that," she said.

She said she also went to a women's self defense seminar and would recommend it students.

Nina Rath, fourth-year vet-med student, said she does Aikido for two reasons.

"I love the philosophy of it, and I think I'm kind of a wimp, so it is good for me," she said.

She said she recommends it to friends and other students because it is not just a martial art but a good stress reliever.

According to www.kidshealth.org, people can learn to protect themselves and don't need to be a black belt. Two common self defense techniques are using intuition and voice.

If a person is feeling threatened, he or she should shout or scream to draw attention to the situation, according to the Web site. Practice can also help so the person doesn't freeze up in the situation.

De-escalation and redirecting are also techniques that can be used. By agreeing and direction attention away from the situation (although this method doesn't always work) can keep both people calm.

The Web site said the use of physical force should be a last resort.

If there is no other way to get away from the situation and get to safety, people may have to fight.

"If you are attacked from the front, kick the attacker in the shins or groin, or jab the eyes or throat by wrapping your fingers around your thumb to form a beak," according to the site.

If the attacker comes from behind, students can use their feet to stomp the attacker's foot or kick backward with the heel of the foot. Also elbowing the attacker in the head, throat, area between the rib cage or stomach can be useful.

A person's voice, hands and feet can be very useful in stopping an attack, according to the site.

Photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

For more information

If students are interested in taking classes in self defense, contact any martial arts clubs:
Aikido, 537-1317
Karate in Manhattan, 532-4421
UFM Community Learning Center, 539-8763
ATA Black Belt Academy, 539-9161

Search to find what interests you, do something you love

Ask the 5th year

MATT PETERWORTH

What should I do with my life?

Ah, the question almost every college student is asking. The most common answer is "I want to help people." You could join the Peace Corps. "But I also want to make money." Okay, the challenge is to find something you are interested in, good at, that helps people, but also affords you a level of financial security. The idea that "if you love what you do, you'll never have to work a day in your whole life" does have some truth in it, so you should try to find something you are interested in.

"I'm kind of interested in music. I can play the saxophone pretty well."

But do you think you could make a living out of it?

"I don't know. Maybe."

So your parents buy you a $3,000 saxophone, and three months later it is sitting in a closet collecting dust.

Let's face it, it is hard for some of us to decide what we want to do with our lives. Usually, community colleges are where you should go to figure out what interests you. It can get expensive switching majors at the university if you wind up spending six or more years here. But you're already here, so let's make the most of it.

My first suggestion is to study abroad. This allows you to travel and submerse yourself in another culture, thus widening your perspective and potential interests. I might also suggest learning a foreign language. Spanish offers the most immediate opportunities. But if you have any interest in learning another foreign language, go for it. You can use a study abroad experience to further your understanding of the language.

More immediately though, I suggest attending the Academic Majors Fair on Oct. 26. Anything K-State offers will be trying lure you into their department. If you can't find a program that interests you, what then?

You've still got to make a living doing something. In grade school, we all loved the subjects we were good at. Then we rebelled and didn't love anything about school. But eventually, you'll come to like doing what you're good at. Pick the major you think you'll do well in. If you don't know what you are good at, University Counseling Services offers tests that can help you figure out what you'd be good at.

If you hate what you're good at, then pick a major that you hate the least. Again, you have to make a living somehow.

But above all, if you don't know what you want to do with your life, don't major in art. Only those truly motivated and talented should be majoring in art. You can tell the two people in your art class who should actually be there, and they'll have a hard enough time trying to make a living out of it.

Matt Peterworth is a fifth-year senior in architectural engineering. You can e-mail him at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

MOVIES

Movies times for Friday, Oct. 14, through Sunday, Oct. 16
Times are listed in the p.m. unless otherwise noted
() denotes movie times running Saturday and Sunday only

"Dreamer" PG
(1:15), 4:20, 7:10, 9:35

"Stay" R
(1:55), 4:45, 7:30, 9:55

"North Country" R
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 9:50

"Doom" R
(1:30), 4:15, 7:00, 9:30

"Domino" R
(12:45), 3:35, 7:05, 10:00

"Elizabethtown" PG-13
(1:00), 3:45, 7:00, 9:45

"The Fog" PG-13
(1:30), 4:00, 7:00, 9:20

"Wallace and Gromit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit" G
(1:00), (3:15), 5:30, 7:45, 9:55

"In Her Shoes" PG-13
(1:30), 4:20, 7:10, 10:00

"A History of Violence" R
(1:55), 4:40, 7:30, 9:50

"Flightplan" PG-13
(1:40), 4:15, 7:00, 9:20

"Ladies in Lavender" PG-13
(1:45), 4:30, 7:20, 9:45

CARE FOR A DRINK?

What women think of men, based on what they order to drink:

Beer on tap: Women told me they think a man who orders a beer is reliable, down-to-earth and low-maintenance. But he may put his dog — possibly a Labrador mix named Prince — before them.

Dark beer: Women were divided — is he overtly masculine, or is he a guy who's playing pseudo-sophisticate to the nth degree?

Cosmopolitan: Shops at Pier One. Women immediately place in the "friend" category.

Martini: Just blurt it out : "Let me impress you with my suave, metrosexual ways." Women view this drink as a sign of social skills. On the Westside, this is particularly effective, since the martini will frequently be ordered with a faux British accent.

Mike's Hard Lemonade: A rank amateur. Women, check the ID to make sure he's really 21.

Rum and Coke: Women said, "Average Joe," a joiner, a person so nondescript he's a possible future Supreme Court nominee.

Scotch on the rocks: Elegant, sophisticated, with manly Old World charm. Either that, or he read the book "999 Ways to Impress Chicks" while working the drive-through window.

Harvey Wallbanger: A man's man; the type who goes to football games shirtless with five of his friends, each with a letter across his torso spelling out their team's nickname.

Red Bull and vodka: A bandwagon-jumper who wears a shirt emblazoned in 14-inch "Tommy Hilfiger" lettering and asks "How about our Angels?" even though he's not certain what sport they play.

Wine (red or white): Distinguished and ambitious. Although that vacant staring at the wine list is viewed as a way of avoiding conversation.

Long Island iced tea: "My backseat sleeps two comfortably."

Gin and tonic: Possibly dull, he regales dates with complaints about his failed third marriage.

Margarita: "The party didn't even get started until 4:30 in the morning and then we were still doing Jell-O shooters at 7 p.m. the next day" type.

Tequila: Women surmise a tequila drinker is a free spirit. Always a chance he could cancel a future date due to court-ordered attendance at an AA meeting.

Club soda: First thing a woman thinks is "on the wagon." Second thing she thinks is "cheap."

Zima: Women think you're the type who will invite them back to your double-wide to watch the "Dukes of Hazzard" marathon.

Source: www.latimes.com

Western riders travel to Missouri State

By Jessica Barnard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It has been almost a month since the K-State western riders last saddled up for competition.

With such a long layoff, coach Teresa Slough said she is unsure of which riders will standout on Saturday, when the Wildcats travel to Springfield, Mo., for the Missouri State Western Show.

"It will be interesting to see who turns it on and shines this weekend," Slough said.

The western riders will compete against the 12 teams in their region, including Black Hawk College, Iowa State University, Missouri State University, Washington University in St. Louis and Truman State University.

Although the team has competed in Springfield, Mo., before, it will be competing at Missouri State for the first time since the university changed its name from Southwest Missouri State.

Along with competing at a different university, the team will be riding horses provided by Missouri State and will not have a chance to warm up or get to know the horses.

Kara Taddiken, junior in public health tradition, said riding unpredictable horses is the team's biggest worry.

See EQUESTRIAN Page 8

Jumping a fence, Meghan Felts, English rider, rides during the varsity equestrian head-to-head competition against South Dakota State, Oct. 1. Felts placed second in Equitation Over Fences, first section, at the competition.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Not about winning or losing

By Mark Potter
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Coming off a 3-0 loss Wednesday to No. 1 Nebraska, K-State volleyball coach Suzie Fritz shared a lesson with her team from "My Personal Best: Life Lessons From an All-American Journey," by legendary UCLA basketball coach John Wooden.

"It's not necessarily about winning and losing," Fritz read aloud Thursday. "Sometimes you lose and you feel bad – sometimes very, very bad – but a much worse feeling is knowing you haven't done everything you possibly could have done to prepare and compete."

No. 23 K-State (15-5, 6-4) has played each Big 12 Conference team once and begins its second round of matches on the road Saturday against No. 16 Texas, and sophomore libero Angie Lastra said preparation is exactly what the Wildcats need to focus on.

"Basically, we need to get better at serving more aggressively and passing better and making less errors," Lastra said. "But we are doing pretty good, and we are ready to roll for the next part of the season."

No. 23 K-State vs. No. 16 Texas
When: 7 p.m., Saturday
Where: Austin, Texas

Earlier this season, on Sept. 28, Texas (13-3, 8-2) swept the Wildcats in three games, 30-23, 30-23, 30-28.

Fritz said K-State played poorly against Texas in its first match, but Texas is a very talented team.

"They are a very physical team, they are a very big team, they are a good blocking team, they are quick hitters and they are very, very fast," Fritz said.

Senior outside hitter Agata Rezende said Texas is as talented a team as Nebraska, which has yet to lose.

"I think it will be a big challenge to go into their house and try to beat them," Rezende said.

Fritz said Nebraska is more talented than Texas, but the two are comparable from a physical standpoint.

"Physically, in terms of height and ability, I think there are some comparisons that can be done," Fritz said.

Rezende tallied a team-high 13 kills against Nebraska and leads the Wildcats in kills, averaging 3.91 kills per game. She is 17 kills shy of 500 for her two-year career.

Fritz said Rezende has the potential to be one of K-State's best hitters ever.

"When she hits with range and she hits high, she hits as hard as anybody we've ever had," Fritz said. "She is nearly unstoppable when she hits with range."

Just for kicks

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Janie Wilkinson, junior in biology and club vice president, defends the ball against assistant coach Ernesto Alcantara, junior in elementary education, during a shielding drill.

Women's soccer club team hoping for future as varsity sport

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The question is asked on campuses and playgrounds across the United States: What is the real football?

Although some students at K-State would agree American football is a better sport than soccer, there are others who prefer the latter.

The players for the K-State women's soccer club team are among those that enjoy the rest of the world's version of "football."

Now in its 12th season, the club is playing better than ever.

Dave Darling, in his fifth year as coach, said this is the best season he has seen during his time as coach.

"We have improved every year," Darling said. "This is the best year in terms of commitment. We have girls who could be playing Division I, but instead ended up at K-State for one reason or another."

Jennifer Porter, president of the team, said she was also very pleased with the way the season has unfolded so far.

"We've done really well," Porter, a junior in kinesiology, said. "We have an extraordinary amount of talent."

The soccer club currently has a 10-3 record, which is even more impressive considering two of those losses came against perennial-powerhouse, the University of Colorado. K-State is ranked third out of 45 teams in its six-state region, good enough for No. 15 in the national rankings.

In addition, the team has played outstanding soccer in recent games he said. In three games on Oct. 8-9, they did not surrender a single goal to produce a combined score of 12-0.

However, the players will not be able to compete in the regional tournament this weekend in Lubbock, Texas. They were not allowed excused absences for classes today, and with tests and other obligations, it cut the number of available participants in half.

"That's the only disappointing part of this season," Darling said. "We are not

See SOCCER Page 8

NCAA's ban on American Indian mascots a half-hearted attempt, wrong

MATTHEW GIRARD

One of the greatest college sports traditions is the mascot.

Webster's dictionary defines a mascot as a person, animal or object adopted by a group as a symbolic figure especially to bring them good luck. But mascots are more than a lucky symbol.

Whether it be a Wildcat or fictitious bird, a school's chosen mascot unifies fans, current students and alumni. However, some universities' source of pride and unity came under fire in August when the NCAA deemed 18 schools' mascots derogatory toward American Indian and wanted to ban "abusive" American Indian mascots, logos and nicknames from postseason tournaments.

On Wednesday, the American Psychological Association backed the NCAA's ban on such mascots by stating these symbols create stereotypes and damage the self-esteem of American Indian

Since the August ban, three schools – the Central Michigan Chippewas, Florida State Seminoles and Utah Utes – have won appeals to keep their mascots, on the grounds that the schools have agreements with the respective tribes.

The 15 other schools on the offender list have such "hostile" names as the Indians, Braves, Illini and Fighting Sioux, but why is the NCAA just targeting these 15 mascots?

Why didn't NCAA president Myles Brand go after the Hawaii Warriors [illegible] San Diego State Aztecs?

There are also a number of other human-based mascots (Trojans, Spartans, Cowboys, Ragin' Cajuns) around the NCAA that could possibly offend someone, somewhere.

There is an obvious double-standard going on and it is all around.

Take The Kansas City Star for example. In the stories following Sunday's game between the Kansas City Chiefs and Washington Redskins, The Star only referred to the Redskins as Washington, but had no problem using the word [illegible]

[illegible] change about the use of derogatory mascots, then they need not to half-ass their stance against them.

I myself am not of American Indian descent, and I have no idea what it is like to have a mascot named after me, but I did go to a high school whose mascot is the American Indians. We even have a totem pole in front of our gym, but it wasn't there to demean American Indians. It was to honor them.

Matthew Girard is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

NFL | K.C.-Miami moved to tonight because of Wilma

MIAMI — The game between the Miami Dolphins and the Kansas City Chiefs was rescheduled for tonight to beat Hurricane Wilma's arrival in Florida.

The game will begin at 7 tonight instead of Sunday afternoon, which is about when Wilma is expected to hit Florida's southwestern coast.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said broadcast and television details were being worked out.

It's the third time since the start of the 2004 season that the Dolphins have rescheduled a home game because of a looming hurricane. Last year's home opener against Tennessee was played a day early because of Hurricane Ivan, and the Dolphins' game two weeks later with Pittsburgh was pushed back 7 1/2 hours by Hurricane Jeanne.

MLB | Florida Marlins hire Girardi to replace McKeon

MIAMI — Lured by the chance to manage, Joe Girardi is giving up pinstripes for teal.

The New York Yankees' bench coach accepted his first managerial job, signing a three-year contract with the Florida Marlins, and was introduced at a news conference Thursday.

Girardi, who also interviewed for the Tampa Bay vacancy, spent 15 years as a major league catcher. He went into broadcasting in 2004 and came out of the booth to join the Yankees' staff this season.

CBB | College hoops hall plans unveiled Thursday

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Organizers of the National Collegiate Basketball Hall of Fame unveiled details of the $20 million project on Thursday.

The hall itself will take up only about a quarter of the 40,000-square-foot facility, dubbed "College Basketball: The Experience," which is to be incorporated into Kansas City's new downtown arena. The Sprint Center, now under construction and set to open in 2007, will share lobby space with the college hoops shrine.

The NABC, based in Kansas City, backed the downtown arena plan and plans to move its headquarters into the Sprint Center.

Once College Basketball: The Experience is complete, exhibits honoring college basketball's greats will be on the first floor. On the second floor, visitors will find multimedia exhibits designed to recreate the atmosphere of the college game — by putting them into the middle of the action.

MLB | Peña to manage Dominican Republic team

MIAMI — After months of speculation and rumor, Tony Peña was introduced Thursday as manager of the team that will represent the Dominican Republic in the World Baseball Classic next March.

Peña

Peña, American League Manager of the Year in 2003 with the Kansas City Royals, resigned as manager of Kansas City in May of this year, after the team lost 25 of its first 33 games.

Peña is currently special assistant to the general manager in the Royals organization.

NBA | Felon gets longer sentence to match jersey

OKLAHOMA CITY — A man got a prison term longer than prosecutors and defense attorneys had agreed to because of Larry Bird.

Bird

The lawyers reached a plea agreement Tuesday for a 30-year term for a man accused of shooting with an intent to kill and robbery. But Eric James Torpy wanted his prison term to match Bird's jersey number 33.

"He said if he was going to go down, he was going to go down in Larry Bird's jersey," Oklahoma County District Judge Ray Elliott said Wednesday.

"We accommodated his request and he was just as happy as he could be."

"I've never seen anything like this in 26 years in the courthouse. But, I know the DA is happy about it."

Humane society to host date auction

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

People looking for some companionship can turn to the Riley County Humane Society for help this weekend.

The society will be putting on a date auction at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Main Ballroom at the K-State Student Union.

No, the dates are not animals.

"We don't promote bestiality," Tara Thacker, senior in elementary education, said.

Thacker is a member of the society and is organizing the event.

She said at least 13 people have volunteered to be auctioned so far. There will also be a silent auction for prizes donated by local merchants. Thacker said most of the auctionees will be students in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Lou Ann Chapes, president of the humane society, said members of the K-State Pre-Vet Club are helping with the auction. Emily Gaugh, Pre-Vet Club president, said the club helped the society mostly by arranging for the room in the Union.

The money raised will be used to pay for the society's efforts to rescue abused and abandoned animals in Riley County, Thacker said. She said they are hoping to raise at least $1,000.

The dates will be at Manhattan restaurants that have donated meals to the auction, Thacker said. Winners and their dates will have arrange a time that will work for both people. She said the people up for auction will decide what ages they are comfortable with and announce it before the bidding begins for each one.

Searching for inspiration

Working on a project in Hale Library, Russell Liebeno, sophomore in fine arts, looks at the second floor entrance to figure out how to draw it using one point perspective. Students were assigned to look at the second floor entrance and draw it for their project.

Chrisopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

115 Rooms Available

ROOM FOR rent until January. $250. Two-bedroom at Chase. Call (951)764-8840.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM. FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ROOMMATE NEEDED for two-bedroom apartment. Very clean/ nice, pets allowed. Great landlords, available now- May 31. Call (913)220-5854.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED. Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

1978 SCHULTZ mobile home, 14X72. Three-bedroom, two bath. $6100 or best offer. (785)458-9734.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted: $295/ month plus one-half utilities. Close to campus. Non-smoking. Available immediately. Call (785)229-5572.

MALE STUDENT roommate wanted to share nice mobile home starting now or spring semester. $175/ month plus utilities. Call (620)331-0147, leave detailed message.

ROOMMATE WANTED: $250/ month. One block from Aggieville , two from campus. Available immediately. (816)810-5953.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath apartment. Water, trash, and cable paid. $480/ month. (785)587-9638.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS. Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER Geary Community Hospital is actively seeking resumes for a Chief Financial Officer. Applicant must have a Bachelor of Business Administration, Accounting, or related field. CPA preferred. Five to seven years of progressive experience in financial management. CFO experience is preferred with a strong background in Medicare reimbursement and hospital accounting. Some of the required duties are: responsible for the fiscal operations of the hospital, directly overseeing General Accounting, Patient Accounting and Health Information Management; coordination of the hospital's annual financial audit with an independent auditing firm; preparing department and monthly financial statements and budgets for the Board of Trustees; oversees all investments, lease agreements and capital equipment purchases hospital wide and authorization of all non-inventory purchases. Benefits and salary are commensurate for this area. Interested and qualified applicants should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, Attn: Human Resources, P.O. Box 490, Junction City, Kansas 66441; email to cwitt@gchks.org or fax to: (785) 238-1700

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

310 Help Wanted

INTERNET WORK! $8.75-$38.50/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ summer. $25 Bonus! Studentsurveysite.com/ks3.

MANPOWER IS now accepting applications for office position in Alma. Weekends only, $9/ hour. Apply in person at 555 Poyntz Ave. Suite 245.

NOW HIRING. Vista Drive In, a locally owned and operated quick service restaurant is adding to our team. Individuals must have a positive attitude and be able to multitask and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We have multiple part-time positions available some daytime hours preferred. KSU students encouraged. Insurance benefits available. We offer meal discounts, flexible hours and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

NEED ICAT tickets to Texas A&M game. (785)410-5384.

TWO K-STATE vs. Texas A&M reserved tickets. Call (785)537-4947.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape. 73k asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
www.ubski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

NOW LEASING
• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillinvestandrental.com

LEE CREST Apartment within one block from campus. One and two-bedrooms, private parking, on site laundries, water/ trash paid. Electric central heat/ air. $455 and $490. (785)539-7961.

ONE-BEDROOM. VERY large with washer and dryer. All utilities paid. $525/ month. Call (785)537-2332.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

ONE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE December or January. $335 to $350. (785)587-0399.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath. New Carpet. Fresh Paint. No Pets. No Smoking. Close to campus. Call (785)537-2332.

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

McDonald's Crew Positions

CREW POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Full time and part time
Above average pay
Flexible schedule
Hiring for ALL shifts, including 3rd Shift (11p – 7a)
Uniforms provided
Reduced meals
Advancement opportunities
Come join the team at
McDonald's.
Please apply in person at
MANHATTAN: 815 N 3rd Street
or 1011 Westloop Place
JUNCTION CITY: I-70 & Washington Street
or 416 W 6th Street

Win Big with Collegian Advertising
For information call
532-6560

Coffee & The Collegian
The perfect way to start your day!

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Katie Lester | COLLEGIAN

Joe Aistrup, professor of political science and Gary Naughton, retired professor of forestry, sample different homemade beers including a brew with a peach aftertaste.

CREW | Group home-brews beer

Continued from Page 1

Department of Communications, said.

Jon O'Brien, graduate student in biology, shared his first homemade beer with the group, thanks to Dodds' help.

"Oh, that's nice," Dodds said, tasting O'Brien's English pale ale. "He must have one hell of a teacher."

Jardine said he joined the brew crew to be mentored by some of the more experienced brewers.

"I wanted to improve my brewing skills, and the best way to do that is to gain experience from people who have been doing it longer," he said.

Along with offering advice, strengths and weaknesses of each brew are discussed.

"It's nice to meet with other people who brew beer to tell you how you are doing," said Joe Aistrup, visiting professor of political science.

Club members all brew their own beer, with breweries ranging in size from five to 12 gallons.

"I can get about four cases of beer for about $15 of just ingredients, but that doesn't figure in any equipment costs," Dodds said.

Once a year, the brew crew meets at a member's house to make a club brew. Members then enter the beer in the National Homebrew Competition. For the past two years, the group has earned silver medals.

"We're pretty proud of that," Aistrup said.

Though beer brings them all together, the Little Apple Brew Crew is more about community than beverages, Aistrup said.

"You get around a group of people who enjoy the same things you do, and you sit around for an hour talking about it," he said.

SOCCER | Club sees increase in numbers with continued success

Continued from Page 6

going (to the regional tournament), and that eliminates our chances at going to the national tournament."

However, the club has four more games scheduled over the next few weekends. With no seniors on the team this year, the players said they know they can keep winning the rest of this season and carry that into next season.

Even though the recent success has caused an increase in participation, Darling said that is not all that keeps his players committed to the team.

"I think part of it is winning," Darling said. "This is a much more committed team than I have ever had. Most of that is because we have such a talented group of players who love the game. It's not very hard to get them to come to practice."

Janie Wilkinson, vice president for the club, said her hopes for the future are what cause her to dedicate so much time to the team.

"I believe that eventually there will be a varsity women's soccer team, so someone has to get it started," Wilkinson, junior in biology, said. "If you really love the sport, you'll stick with it. Also, it's a way to meet new people and get involved with the university."

K-State is the only Big 12 Conference school that does not have a varsity women's soccer program.

Overall, the players just enjoy being around each other.

"The camaraderie amongst the girls is what keeps me going out," Porter said.

EQUESTRIAN | Western riders saddle up for Missouri State

Continued from Page 6

"It is the luck of the draw as to what kind of horse you get," Taddiken said.

Although K-State will face many unfamiliarity's this weekend, Slough said the team will be familiar with the judging.

"Well, as luck would have it, we're going to have the same judge from last year," Slough said. "We've pulled out some patterns and tests from last year, and that's what we've been practicing."

Many of K-State's freshmen riders will make their collegiate debut this weekend, Slough said.

"There are several very capable riders on all different levels," she said. "For their first time out, it will be interesting to see how they handle the pressure."

LOCK | Gun-related deaths in Kansas remain fewer than in nearby states

Continued from Page 1

The study reports that while parents are open to gun safety education, states rarely perform such services, leading to a significant number of gun-related deaths in today's youth.

However, a number of studies, including one conducted by American Academy of Pediatrics authors Susan Connor and Kathryn Wesolowski, suggest parents have unrealistic expectations about their child's behavior and even children who are trained to not touch guns cannot resist.

Okoro and authors of her study said another way to reduce gun-related deaths is through child access prevention laws; only 18 states have this type of law, not including Kansas.

Kansas does not restrict purchase of guns through wait periods or a gun permit. The state does not prohibit citizens to buying certain types of guns.

The number of gun-related deaths in Kansas remains lower than others in the area. Seventy-two children in Missouri died by guns in 2002, 55 in Colorado, 38 in Oklahoma, 17 in Kansas and 11 in Nebraska.

Groups like Project ChildSafe, funded through the Department of Justice, work with state officials and law enforcement encouraging states to adopt preventative access to guns and dodge the debate about gun education.

Project ChildSafe also distributes gun locks to every state, including 218,000 to Kansas. Project ChildSafe will distribute more than 32 million gun locks by the end of 2005.

"There continues to be a significant demand for firearm safety education across America and we are pleased that Project ChildSafe is able to meet that demand with millions of additional free firearm safety kits," said Doug Painter, president of the National Shooting Sports Foundation, in a report.

These free gun-locks, however, are a small step toward preventing any forms of gun-related death to children, Okoro said.

"This is of utmost importance for the most vulnerable segments of our population: children and youth, persons with depressive symptoms and those who have threatened suicide."

ExpertTire
EVERYDAY DISCOUNT PRICES
any size one low price!
now thru nov. 12th only!
any size 13" 14" 15" passenger Firestone FR380 55,000 mile $39
any size 13" 14" 15" passenger Bridgestone Insignia SE200 65,000 mile $69
any size 13" 14" 15" passenger Firestone FR440 60,000 mile $49
any size 14" 15" 16" 17" performance Bridgestone Potenza G 009 50,000 mile $79
our guarantee: we'll meet any tire price.
any size 14" 15" 16" suv and light truck Lemans A/T $89
standard oil change and filter
• install new oil filter • refill up to 5 quarts Kendall® Synthetic Blend motor oil • lubricate chassis (if applicable)
fuel saving service
$16.99
Most vehicles add $2.50 for oil disposal fee
Expires 11/15/05
Complete Radiator System Service
• Inspect cooling system & pressure test for leaks
• Refill with correct amount of recycled coolant
• Add sealant / lubricant
• Flush system
Most vehicles
ExpertCare Car Service
help prevent the #1 cause of roadside breakdown
$49.99
Offer Ends 11/15/05
mon.-fri. 7:00 am-6:00 pm sat. 7:00 am-6:00 pm
(*) open sunday 8:00 am-5:00 pm
307 N. 3rd
Manhattan, KS
785-776-8311
90 DAYS INTEREST FREE
ExpertTire EVERYDAY DISCOUNT PRICES
www.ExpertTire.com
Shop supply charges in the amount of 8% of labor charges will be added to invoices greater than $25. These charges will not exceed $25 and represent costs and profits. Shop supply charges not applicable in LA or NY. Non-mandated disposal charges, if any are the closest dollar, may also represent costs and profits. Specific product offerings and tread designs may vary. Rotate, balance, cut service, credit plans and other offers available at ExpertTire; see affiliated dealers nearest for their competitive offers and warranties. If you do not achieve guaranteed mileage, your ExpertTire retailer will replace your tires on a pro-rated basis. Actual tread life may vary. All warranties apply only to original owner on originally installed vehicle. See retailer for details; restrictions and copy of each limited warranty. †Finance charges waived on qualifying Promotional Credit Plan purchases that are paid in full within the plan. MINIMUM MONTHLY PAYMENTS REQUIRED. Regular Rate: 21.64% Annual Percentage Rate. Delinquency Rate: 24.99% APR. Minimum finance charge $1.00. Credit First National Association reserves the right to change APR, fees and other terms without notice. See store for details.

k-state
K-State's Scholarship Workshop
Tuesday, October 25, 2005
K-State Student Union
Invest some time that could pay off later! Attend K-State's Scholarship Workshop.
5:30 to 6 p.m., Union Ballroom
Browse the scholarship expo to learn about college and community scholarships. Fill out an online scholarship application.
6 to 7 p.m., Union Ballroom
Hear presentations by the experts. You'll identify scholarship sources, learn to write a winning application, and get the inside scoop on financial aid.
For more information
Office of Student Financial Assistance
www.k-state.edu/sfa
Adult Student Services
www.k-state.edu/adult
upc

Don't want to see you on page 2.
BE RESPONSIBLE

Meghan McGee
1201 Westloop Place
Manhattan, 785-537-9823
Six years experience in weaves, color, cuts, formal occasion hair, and pedicures
Avalon Hair & Nail Salon

Gumby Damnit
Large 1 Topping or Large Pokey Stix $5.99
Big Ass 1-Topping $11.99 or 2 for $21.99
GUMBY'S
702 N 11th
770-3333

Manhattan's Biggest Annual Wine Sale!
NESPOR'S WINE & SPIRITS SINCE 1968
20% off ALL WINES
(Some Restrictions Apply)
Beer and Spirits on sale as well!
Wines you can't find anywhere else!
Good through October 31, 2005
1338 Westloop
539-9441

2005 THE JAMVILLE
K-State Basketball
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21ST, 9:30PM
featuring the K-State Men and Women's Basketball Teams
aggieville
also performing live, RUSKABANK!

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____
ONLY $5!

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

GAMEDAY

Friday, October 21, 2005

Mid-season Report Card

DISCIPLINE
Football

NAME
Kansas State University Wildcats

DATE
10-21-05

EVALUATED BY K-State Collegian

REQUIREMENTS
Subject Area	Grade	Plus/Minus	Comment
Quarterbacks	B		4
Runningbacks	C	+	9
Wide Receivers	B		6
Offensive Line	N		10
Defensive Line	B		8
Linebackers	A		1
Secondary	B		8

ELECTIVES
Subject Area	Grade	Plus/Minus	Comment
Special Teams	B		5
Coaching	C	+	7

Overall ..... B

Grading:
A = Excellent
B = Above Average
C = Average
D = Below Average
F = Failure
N = Incomplete or Not Applicable

Key to Comments:
1. Well Prepared
2. Shows Initiative
3. Consistent
4. Work Improving
5. Showing Potential
6. Developing Nicely
7. Lacks Creativity
8. Needs Consistency
9. Struggling with Skills
10. Excessive Absences

Hygiene:
☑ Satisfactory
☐ Unsatisfactory

Citizenship:
☑ Satisfactory
☐ Unsatisfactory

REPORT CARD ENCLOSED

Date	Deliver To	Sent By	Regarding

Off the Field Page 2 | Watts Page 3 | Midseason Page 4 | McNeal Page 5 | Mann Page 6 | Evridge Page 7 | Echols Page 8

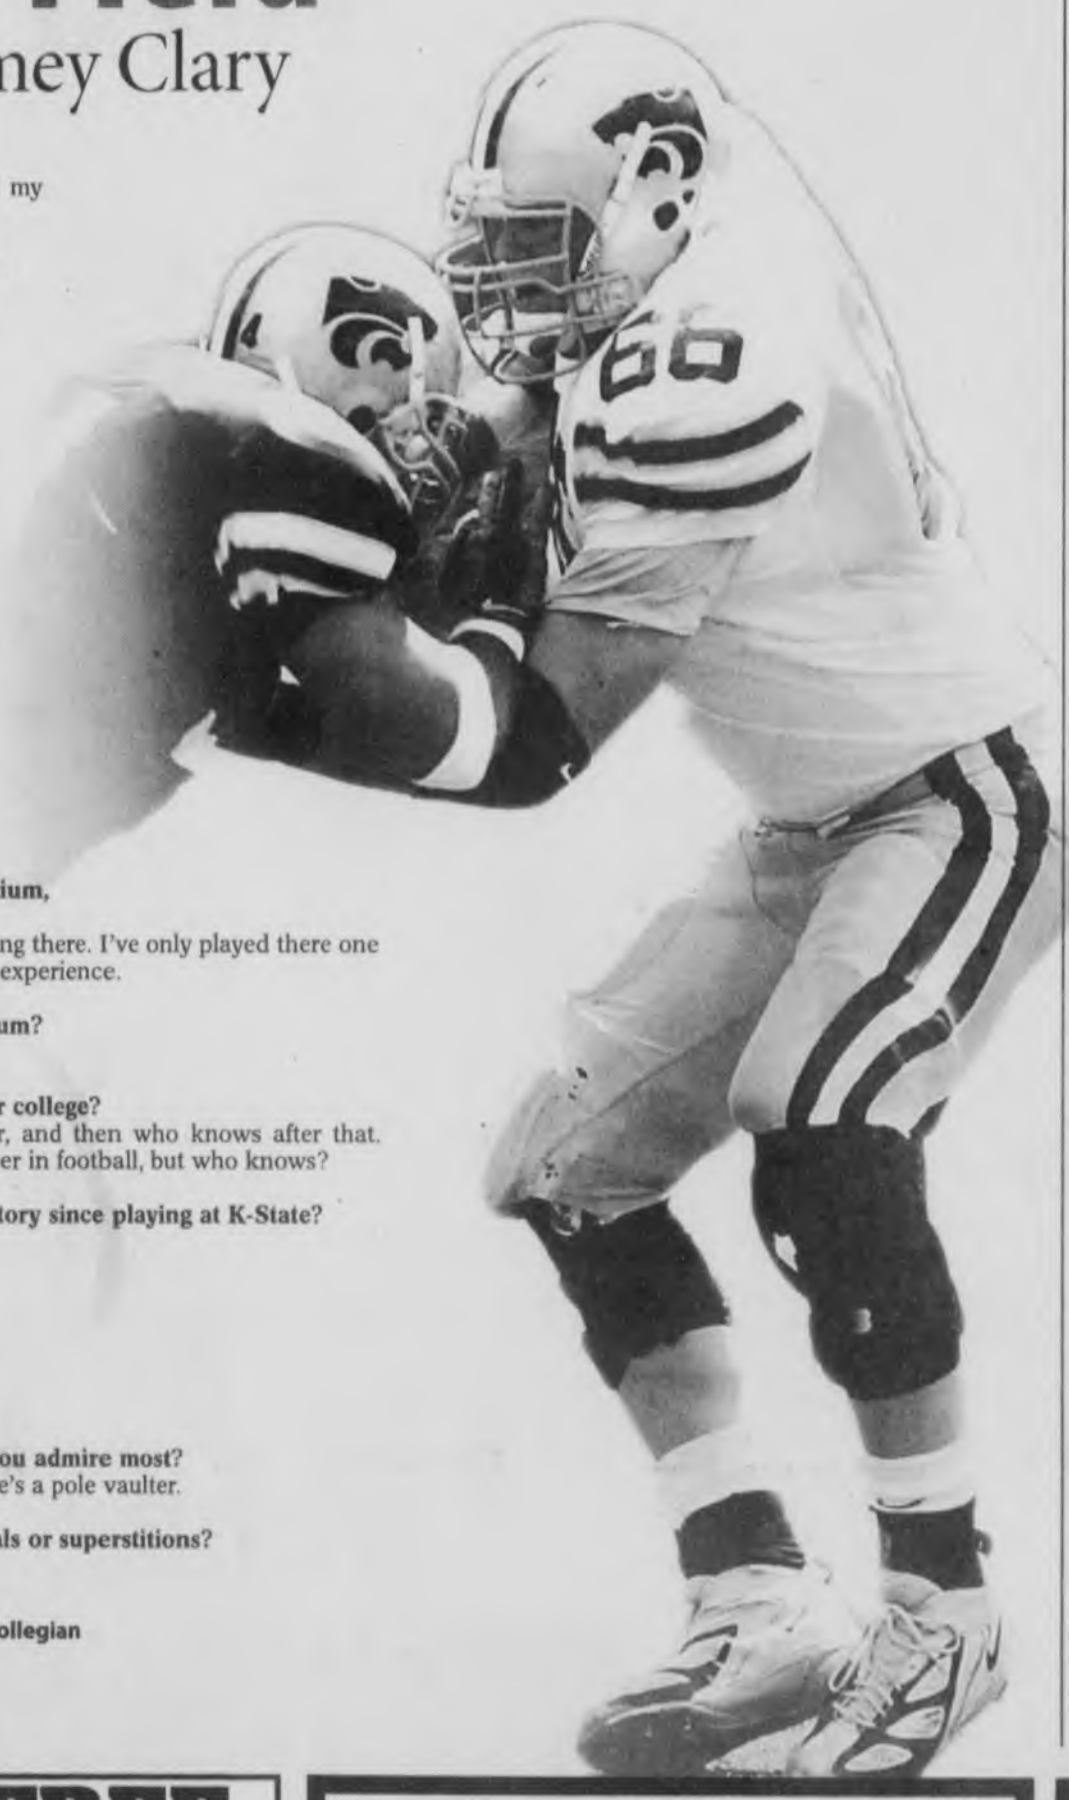
"What's good about this team is we can put things behind us and move on."

Marcus Watts
K-STATE FREE SAFETY

K-State (4-2, 1-2) vs. Texas A&M (4-2, 2-1)

1:10 p.m., Saturday



History: Texas A&M leads 7-4

Radio: K-State Sports Network — 1350AM, 101.5FM

K-State will undoubtedly use a spy on Texas A&M quarterback Reggie McNeal, and the job may fall on the shoulders of linebacker Maurice Mack. Mack has the necessary quickness to contain McNeal and prevent him from scrambling.

Off The Field
with Jeromey Clary

Q. How tall are your parents?
A. I believe my dad is 6-foot-3 and my mom is 5-foot-8 or -9.

Q. What is your favorite class that you have taken at K-State?
A. Probably Drugs and Behavior.

Q. What do you do to get pumped up for games?
A. Listen to a bunch of rap music, a bunch of heavy metal music.

Q. What is your favorite thing about playing football at K-State?
A. Probably the fans on Saturdays. They create an amazing atmosphere. I've played in front of 80,000, played in front of 84,000 down at OU, and it's not the same. You know, we have 55,000, and it sounds like 100,000.

Q. What is your favorite stadium, outside of K-State to play at?
A. I'd say Lincoln (Neb.). I like playing there. I've only played there one time, but we won, and it was a good experience.

Q. What is your least favorite stadium?
A. Probably Colorado.

Q. What do you plan on doing after college?
A. I'm getting married this summer, and then who knows after that. Hopefully pursue a professional career in football, but who knows?

Q. What has been your favorite victory since playing at K-State?
A. Dec. 6th, 2003. OU.

Q. What is your favorite food?
A. Country fried steak.

Q. Favorite restaurant?
A. Ruth's Chris Steak House.

Q. What other K-State athlete do you admire most?
A. My fiancée, Breanna Eveland. She's a pole vaulter.

Q. Do you have any pre-game rituals or superstitions?
A. I write stuff on my hands.

— By Jessica Barnard | Kansas State Collegian

K-State vs. Texas A&M

OFFENSE

☐ Quarterback Allan Evridge has all the tools to be K-State's next star quarterback. He just has to learn to stop exposing himself to so many big hits. Right now, wide receiver Jordy Nelson is the star of the offense, leading the team with 369 receiving yards and six touchdowns. Nelson has a touchdown catch in every game.

☑ Texas A&M's offense begins with quarterback Reggie McNeal. He ranks second in the Big 12 Conference with 303.7 total yards per game. He has completed 53.5 percent of his passes for 1,357 yards and rushes for an average of 84.2 yards per game. The Aggies are the third-best scoring offense in the league.

DEFENSE

☑ Forget about last week's game at Texas Tech. The Red Raider offense is freakishly good. Coach Bill Snyder said K-State's defense was better than it appeared last Saturday and K-State will prove it against Texas A&M. The Wildcats possess the No. 15 rush defense in the nation, holding opponents to 99.8 yards per game. Bottling up Texas A&M's ground game is crucial if the Wildcat's want to win.

☐ Junior linebacker Justin Warren's average of 10.5 tackles per game ranks second in the Big 12 behind Kansas' Nick Reid. The Aggies rank last in the league in total defense, giving up an average of 412.8 yards per game. Texas A&M is last in the Big 12 in opponent third-down conversions and last in pass defense, allowing opponents to pass for 288.3 yards per game.

SPECIAL TEAMS

☑ After some shaky moments early in the season, K-State's special teams have finally provided some consistency. The Wildcats are the only team in the league to have a kickoff return for a touchdown, thanks to Yamon Figurs' 98-yard return last week against Texas Tech. Jermaine Moreira is averaging 22.8 yards per kick return, which ranks him third in the Big 12 Conference.

☐ Texas A&M punter Justin Brantly is second in the league in punting, booming kicks an average of 45.8 yards. However, the Aggies have not been able to get much going in the way of returns, as they rank last in the league in kickoff returns and fifth in punt returns at 18.2 and 12.3 yards a return, respectively. They are also allowing opponents a league-worst 38.2 yards per kick return.

PREDICTION

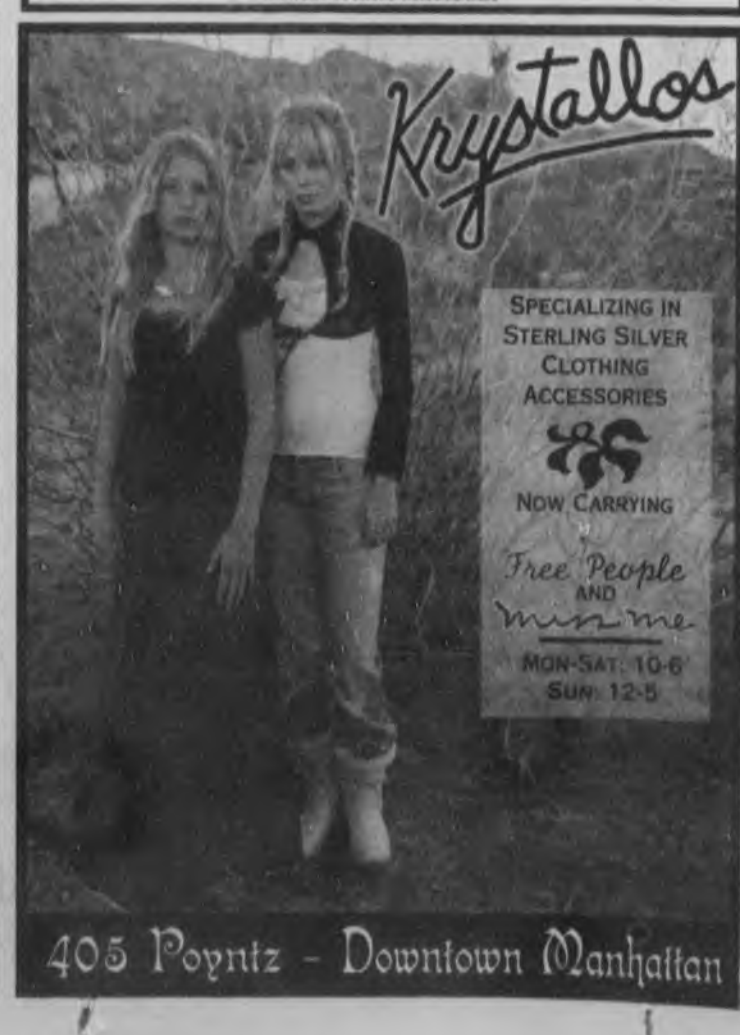
Since 2001, Texas A&M has been one of the Big 12 Conference's worst teams on the road, compiling a 7-15 record away from home, including an 0-2 road record so far this year. Playing in Manhattan, where K-State is unbeaten this season, the Wildcats will be ready move on from the Texas Tech loss. Expect a battle, but K-State's defense wins this one.

— K-State - 27, A&M - 21

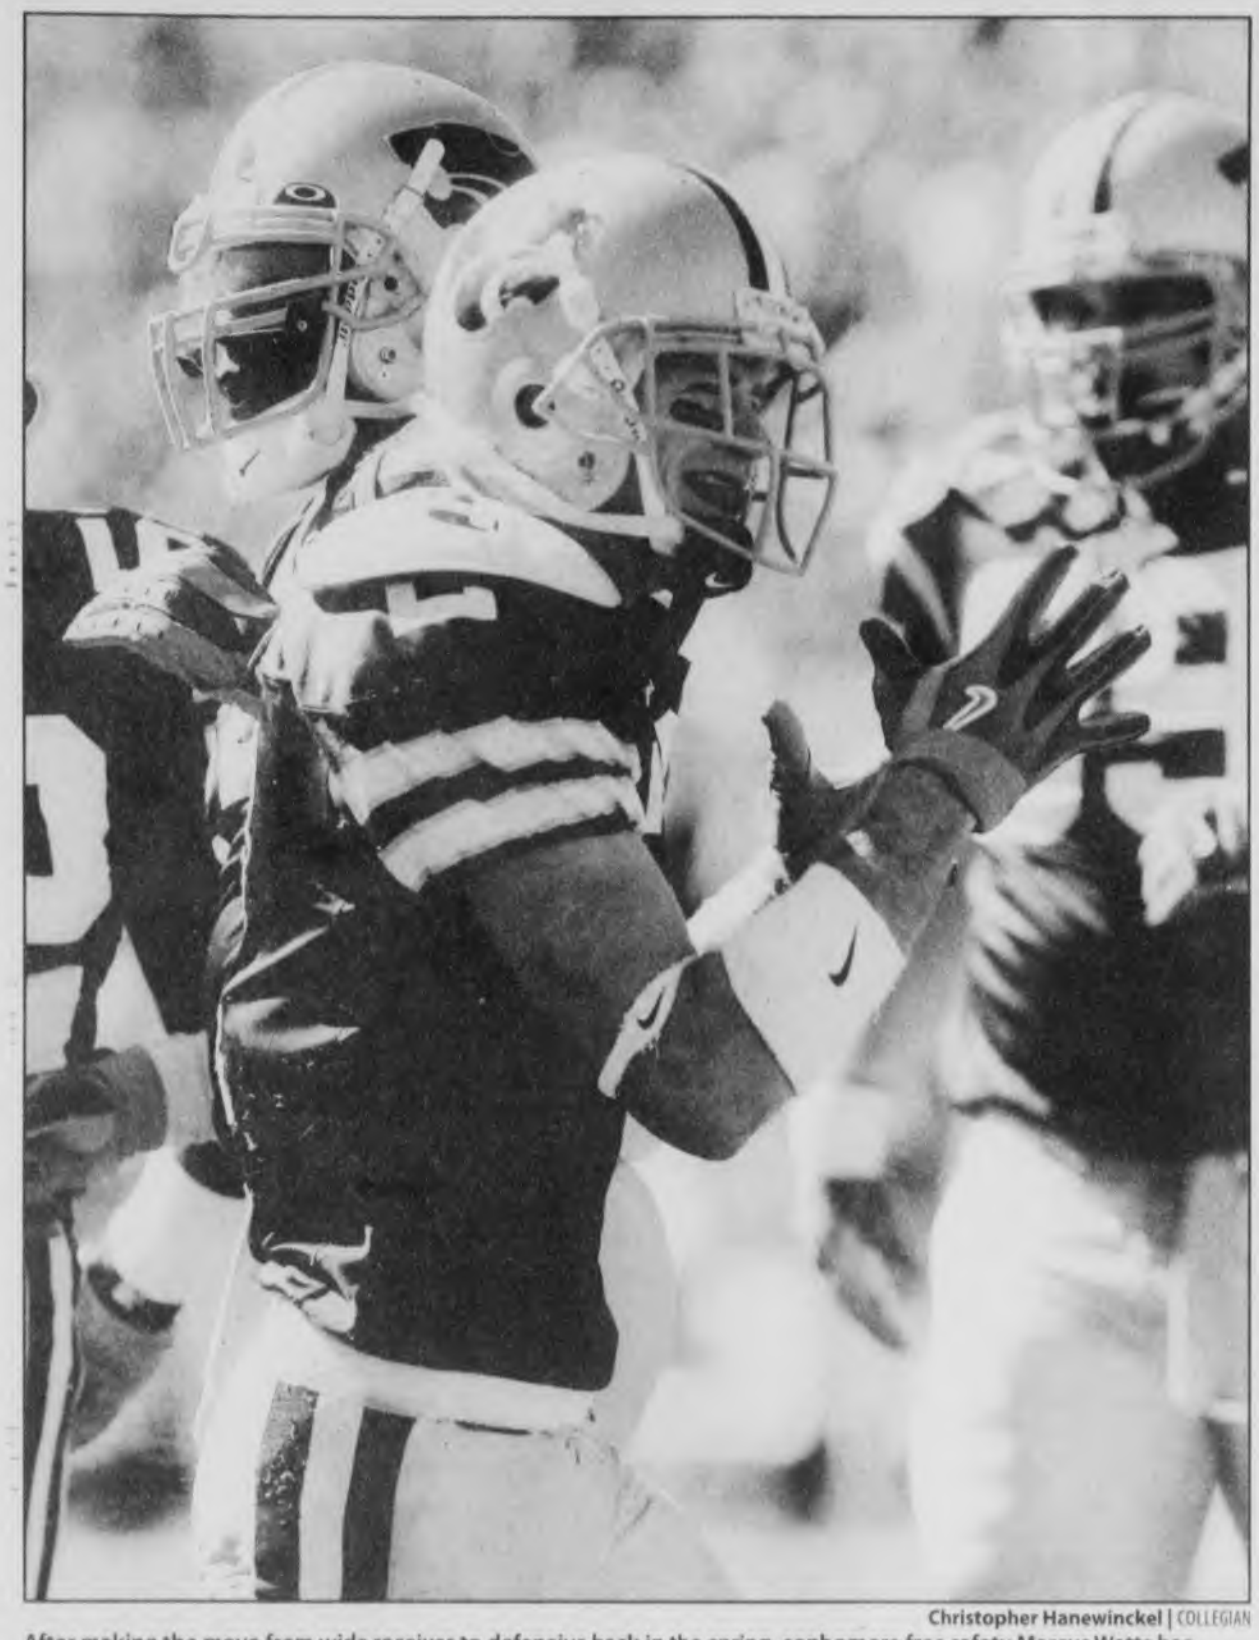
Wohler's Used Furniture
Visit Wohler's for used: Furniture, Antiques, Appliances and miscellaneous items for all needs.
615 N. 3rd St.
539-3319
10-6 Mon.-Fri. 10-5 Sat. Closed on Sun.

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

Motorcycle Supply
•Dirt & Street • Parts
•Accessories •Helmets
• Apparel • Tires
•Leather • Service
431 S. 5th
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-6171



FREE
GAME DAY BUS
SHUTTLES
1st pick up point in Triangle Park
•1200 Blk. Moro
•1100 Blk. Moro
•1200 Blk. Laramie (New Stop)
TOUCH DOWN WEEKENDS @ AGGIEVILLE
Starting two hours before the game!
Before & After The Game
Shopping • Dining • Nightlife



Short Stop
2010 Tuttle Creek
776.0767
OCTOBER SPECIALS
$15.99 Coors-30 pack
$15.89 Bud Light- 30 pack
$14.99 Miller Lite - 30 pack
Marlboro Cigarettes
$6.79 2 pack $9.99 3 pack
$1.29 Pepsi Liter

occasional student, eternal WILDCAT.
Nothing shows Purple Pride like a POWERCAT TATTOO.
• Autoclave Sterilization
• Body Jewelry
• 1000's of designs
• Custom work
• Brilliant Colors
• Personal Service
• 35 Years Experience
• Single Use Needles
FINE LINE INC.
PERMANENT COSMETICS AND BODY PIERCING
TOPEKA 785-233-8288 Tues.-Sat. 12pm-8pm 1915 SW Gage Blvd.
JUNCTION CITY 785-238-8238 Thurs.-Sat. 12pm-8pm 1038 W. 6th
MANHATTAN 785-537-0964 Tues.-Sat. 12pm-8pm 622 N. Manhattan
finelinetattooinc.com

Join us in Cheering on the Cats!
For Every Gift Giving Occasion
Lilacs on the Prairie
327 Poyntz, Manhattan KS
565-0900

RadioShack - Manhattan
OUR DEAL BEST EVER!
FREE Up to 4 TV's Installed* *OAC/Commitment Required
$25 Mail-In Rebate
FREE * One month Programming * 3 Months HBO/ Cinemax/Showtime
FREE Digital Video Recorder
HOURS
M-F 9am-8pm
SAT 9am-7pm
SUN 11am-6pm
RadioShack
614 Ft. Riley Blvd.
MANHATTAN
537-1476

Krystallos
SPECIALIZING IN STERLING SILVER CLOTHING ACCESSORIES
NOW CARRYING
Free People AND mimme
MON-SAT: 10-6
SUN: 12-5
405 Poyntz - Downtown Manhattan

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

After making the move from wide receiver to defensive back in the spring, sophomore free safety Marcus Watts has shined. Watts is currently second in tackles on the team this season with 38.

Free safety Watts having standout year on defense

By Chris Patch
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Ignore the fact that the K-State secondary got torched for more than 600 yards by Texas Tech, or that Texas Tech quarterback Cody Hodges threw five touchdown passes last Saturday.

One player, Marcus Watts, is still having a standout year.

The sophomore free safety is the team's second-leading tackler with 38 on the season. Watts had his best performance when the defense had its worst, producing nine tackles against Texas Tech.

In Watts' first season in the secondary and in a starting role, he's proving he belongs there.

Watts is one of the fastest Wildcats, with 4.3 speed in the 40-yard dash, and has emerged as the leader of a completely reworked K-State secondary.

Watts' play has been enough to make coach Bill Snyder say Watts as a model of consistency on the K-State defense.

"Last week was an aberration for everyone, but I think Marcus Watts has played consistently well through the course of the season," Snyder said. "That name comes to mind more than others."

Watts is one of several new faces in a K-State secondary.

Watts played wide receiver and special teams last year, Maurice Mack has moved from free safety to linebacker, senior Jesse Tetuan isn't starting and strong safety Maurice Porter and cornerbacks Bryan Baldwin and Byron Garvin are first-year starters.

Porter, a senior, said the new secondary looks to Watts for guidance.

"He's an impact player in the secondary," Porter said. "He makes good plays. He's an aggressive guy. He's smart. He basically knows all of my plays and his and some of the cornerbacks'.

"He's like the brain of the secondary. He makes sure everyone is in the right alignment during the plays and stuff at practice."

Watts' next task: stopping Texas A&M quarterback Reggie McNeal and the Big 12 Conference's third-ranked offense.

Watts said the defensive preparation shouldn't be any more difficult than practicing with K-State's quarterbacks.

"I don't think it's that hard," Watts said of preparing for McNeal. "Because if you look at spring ball, during two-a-days, we had a quarterback just like Reggie McNeal in Allen Webb and Allan Evridge. They both can run the ball very well, they both run the option.

"We've seen it a lot, so we'll get prepared for it this week. Other than that, it's not that difficult."

The Texas A&M game has implications for the Wildcats' post-season hopes.

If K-State can stop McNeal and the Aggie offense, the Wildcats will have a victory over a team Big 12 North-opponent Colorado has beaten this year, get back to .500 in the conference and put themselves in control of their own destiny.

If there was ever a time for the secondary to step up, it's Saturday at KSU Stadium, Watts said.

"It's very important," Watts said. "After coming off a loss, the game is always important. You want to get back on the winning streak. It's our last Big 12 South opponent, so it's big for us. We need to get a win.

"Colorado beat A&M, so to keep pace with Colorado, we need to get a win in the South."

kstatecollegian.com

The Collegian is available at
112 locations near you.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING 532-6560

Go Wildcats!
The Library Discount Liquor
Corner of 12th & Laramie
Aggieville
539-5269
BEER WINE & SPIRITS
DISCOUNT LIQUOR
LIBRARY

Need Money?
New Name... Same great deals!!
We pay top dollar for:
Tools, electronics, movies, CDs, guns, music equipment, jewelry, & sporting goods
Two Locations
501a Ft. Riley 537-1803
3110 Anderson 565-0046
AMERICAN CASH EXCHANGE
CASH ADVANCE & PAWN LOANS

Featuring NEW Fall FASHIONS
1201 Moro
537.0330
Located in Aggieville
Gei Gei's ltd

GOPOWERCAT.COM
The online leader in Kansas State sports and recruiting news
POWERCAT ILLUSTRATED'S goPOWERCAT.com
Officially licensed partner of the Rivals.com network

THE Palace Cards & Gifts
K-State Apparel & Jewelry
K-State & Greek Gifts
License plates & Tailgating supplies
Balloons, Cards, Candy Gifts & more!
539-7654
704 N. Manhattan Ave. in Aggieville

Voted Sports Illustrated's #12 Sports Bar in America!
Good Luck, Wildcats!
FREE T-SHIRTS!
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON

Junior • Petite
Blue Jeans
Lucky, Gap, Abercrombie & Fitch, and more!
$2.50 – $4.95
Bring in Student ID for 25% off any one clothing item
QUALITY NAME BRAND New & Gently Used CLOTHING AT 50-95% OFF RETAIL
BUY & SELL
The Apple's Heart
Boutique Atmosphere...Thriftstore Prices
"Where Kansas Meets New York"
113 S. 5th • downtown paytz • 317-5475

ROGER & MELODY- OWNERS
INVITE YOU TO SHOP AT THE
Grand Ol' Trunk
Thrift Shop & Bookstore
1/4 mile south of the viaduct on HWY 177
Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mon-Sat -- Sun 12 to 5
Credit Cards Welcome
785-537-2273
1304 Pillsbury Dr.
Manhattan, KS 66502

SAY TEETH!®
www.sagerdental.com
TEETH WHITENING AND CLEANING
SMILE ENHANCEMENTS BY THE PROFESSIONALS
LAST MINUTE APPOINTMENTS
CALL NOW
785.537.8823

$1 SAVE $1
on your next purchase of a 16 oz. Blizzard® Flavor Treat
Two locations 1015 N. 3rd St.
3116 Anderson Ave
Offer good only 11/21,22,23
Consumer must pay any sales tax. Limit 1 per coupon and 1 coupon per customer. Redeemable only on items selling at regular price. Good only at Manhattan stores.
BLIZZARD Dairy Queen

Midterm evaluation

Inconsistency, penalties, turnovers plague K-State in 1st 6 games; Wildcats need to improve running game

By Mark Potter
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With an overall record of 4-2, K-State has already won as many games as it did last season when it finished 4-7.

Two more victories mean the Wildcats will be bowl eligible for the 12th time in 13 years.

In 2003, coach Bill Snyder's squad also started 4-2, and then went on to defeat No. 1 Oklahoma on Dec. 6, in Kansas City, Mo., for the Big 12 Conference Championship – K-State's last win against a Big 12 South opponent.

So, what mid-season grade would Snyder give this year's team after six games?

"Not good enough to win as consistently as we would like," Snyder said Tuesday.

K-State's offense has played erratically through the first six games, senior offensive lineman Jeromey Clary said.

"It seems like we show up sometimes, and don't at other times," Clary said. "Grade wise, I would say we are probably right around average. Some games we do great things, like when we put up 600-plus (yards) against North Texas, and other games like against Oklahoma and Kansas, we didn't do much."

Sophomore wide receiver Jordy Nelson said despite progress, the offense must keep improving for a chance to win the Big 12 North.

"The last couple games, we have been struggling with the running game and the passing game, but I think we have made some strides," Nelson said. "If we can eliminate turnovers, I think we can be a really good offense."

Entering Saturday's game against Texas A&M, K-State's rushing offense, at 155 yards per game, ranks fourth in the Big 12, while its pass offense averages 200.8 yards per game to rank ninth. K-State trails Texas A&M in both categories.

Snyder said the Wildcat offense might score more points if it can reduce mistakes.

"If the offense can keep the penalties at a bare minimum and not give the ball back, then I think we would have better opportunities than we have had," Snyder said.

K-State has also played inconsistently on defense.

After holding Kansas to three points, the 36th-ranked Wildcat defense gave up 59 points and 643 passing yards to No. 13 Texas Tech last Saturday.

Sophomore safety Marcus Watts – one of two Wildcat defenders Snyder said has played at a consistently high level this season – said penalties have hurt the defense, especially during away games.

"The three away games that we have had, the last two in particular, stupid mistakes and stupid penalties have just killed us," Watts said.

K-State has been penalized 52 times this season for an average of 72.3 yards per game, which ranks ninth in the conference.

However, Watts said there is a simple solution to K-State's penalty problems.

"We have got to be smarter," he said.

Sophomore cornerback Bryan Baldwin, who tallied five tackles, three pass breakups and a sack against Texas Tech, agreed with Watts.

"We need to focus more and take care of responsibilities," Baldwin said.

Despite recent struggles at times on offense and defense, the Wildcats have shown explosiveness on special teams, as juniors Jermaine Moreira and Yamon Figurs have each returned kicks for touchdowns, and place kicker Jeff Snodgrass has kicked a 57-yard field goal.

Photo illustration by Emily Lawrence
COLLEGIAN

Mustang
Gentleman's Club
Open 8 pm to 2 am • 7 days a week
HOME OF THE ULTIMATE
GUYS NIGHT OUT
GROUPS OF 10 OR MORE
CALL AHEAD AND RESERVE A TABLE.
18 & Over
WEDNESDAY:
AMATEUR NIGHT
$50-$100 Cash Prize
You keep the tips!
THURSDAY:
DOLLAR NIGHT
$1 Wells
$1.50 Coors / Coors Lt. Bottles
$1.75 Pitchers 48 oz
ALWAYS HIRING NEW GIRLS
Small Hours Big Money
785-238-7571
1330 Grant, Junction City, KS

The Joy of the Party
Enjoy tempting tastes like
Beef with Broccoli.
Crisp veggies. And everyone's favorite Orange Flavored Chicken, a Panda Express original.
Our flavors are ready to go –
hot, fresh and fast.
Panda Express.
Chinese for: Yummy.
Now Open until 8:00 PM
Located in your
K-State Student Union
pandaexpress.com
FREE ENTRÉE ITEM
Buy a tasty 2 or 3 -Entrée* Plate and get an extra entrée item FREE.
*Excludes shrimp entrées.
One coupon per person per purchase.
Not valid with any other coupons, discounts or promotions. No cash value.
Offer valid at KSU Panda Express.
Expires 6/1/06 Promo%Disc9
PANDA EXPRESS
GOURMET CHINESE FOOD

One man show

Texas A&M's Reggie McNeal is arguably the best dual-threat quarterback in all of college football

Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Last week, the K-State defense failed its test against the No. 1 offense in the nation and the nations leading passer, Cody Hodges of Texas Tech.

This week, the defense will get a different look at an offense that is the complete opposite of the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

The triggerman for the traditional run-first offense of Texas A&M is quarterback Reggie McNeal, and the defense has already begun to prepare for the challenge of slowing down the nation's total offense per game and yards per carry leader.

"We've got a guy on our scout team with a No. 1 jersey, like Reggie McNeal that does nothing but run and do options," strong safety Maurice Porter said.

McNeal doesn't possess the same accuracy Hodges does, and the A&M offense is not as explosive as the Red Raiders. But in the Aggies' win this past Saturday against Oklahoma State, McNeal lit up the stat board for in the win.

He rushed for 150 yards on 12 carries, an average of 12.5 yards per carry. Last week's leading rusher for K-State against a suspect Red Raider defense was quarterback Allan Evridge who carried the ball for 5.3 yards per carry.

McNeal also completed nearly 70 percent of his passes and rolled up 413 yards of total offense by himself. The entire Wildcat offense finished with 306 yards against Texas Tech.

"You go from one oven to the other," coach Bill Snyder said. "Reggie McNeal is a very good player. He offers some things that you haven't seen in the past weeks.

"He's a very talented young guy, so he represents some problems with the pass, but he also presents some problems with the option and quarterback run game."

This will be the first run-first, throw-second quarterback the Wildcats' revamped defense has faced this season. K-State ranks No. 15 in the nation in rush defense and No. 36 in total defense.

"We've got a guy on our scout team with a No. 1 jersey, like Reggie McNeal that does nothing but run and options."

Maurice Porter
STRONG SAFETY

Last year in College Station, Texas, the Wildcats held the dual-threat quarterback in check in the Aggies' 42-30 win over the Wildcats.

McNeal rushed for 84 yards on six carries, but was held to a season-low 213 yards of total offense, nearly 80 yards below his season average.

Defensive lineman Quintin Echols said K-State's defensive preparations have changed from last week in preparation for McNeal.

"Last week's preparation, there was a lot of pass rushing, getting up field and going and attacking them," Echols said. "With Reggie McNeal, you can't really attack him because he has some serious moves. It's more about corralling him."

The only team that has been able to "corral" McNeal this year has been Big 12 Conference North division foe Colorado. The Buffaloes held McNeal to his lowest offensive output in nearly two years, finishing with negative yards rushing and 146 yards passing in Texas A&M's 41-20 loss in Boulder, Colo.

Porter said the defensive line will play an important role in the game Saturday and have to contain McNeal so that the secondary does not have to bust their coverage on a potential quarterback scramble.

"He's a mobile quarterback; he's a scrambler," Porter said. "The secondary has to stay on our receivers because he can run out of the pocket and run in the pocket and stay behind the line of scrimmage and have the opportunity to throw the ball."

Photo courtesy of Texas A&M Sports Information

By the numbers

9.2
His average yards per carry is tops in the nation, among players averaging 55 yards per game

303.8
McNeal's total offensive yards per game ranks him No. 1 in the nation

1,822
McNeal is second in the Big 12 Conference behind Missouri's Brad Smith in total offense

151.4
McNeal's passing efficiency is the third best in the conference overall. He trails Cody Hodges of Texas Tech and Vince Young of University of Texas

8,076
The senior is the Texas A&M leader in career total offense

Fast Fact

McNeal was the first quarterback in the history of the Aggie program to rush for 100 yards and pass for over 300 yards in the win against Southern Methodist University. He was the second player in the Big 12 Conference to accomplish the feat, the first was Michael Bishop of K-State. During the game, McNeal also broke the Aggies 37-year old total offense record with 449 yards.

Bishop
FORMER K-STATE QUARTERBACK

GOLDEN WOK BUFFET
All You Can Eat
Grill Table • Mongolian BBQ • Free Soda
Seafood Dinner Buffet Daily • Desserts • Large Salad Bar • Big Party Room
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
3003 Anderson Ave. in Manhattan (behind ALCO)
587-9111
Coupon Good for $1.00 OFF Golden Wok Buffet (1 Coupon Per Person) or 10% off with a student I.D.

Go State!
Win or lose, the difference in score is the amount you save!
If the diference is 10 Points You get 10% Off With Student ID
Valid M-F the week following home games
Grizzly's Grill
3003 Anderson Ave Suite 945
Mon-Thurs: 11-9 Fri-Sat: 11-10 Sunday: 11-2:30

Every Friday
Open at 4pm
21 to enter
THE PURPLE PIG EST. 1996
4.99 Steak Night
(6oz. sirloin, salad, side)

7 TVs. Cold Beer Good Friends
Before, During & After The Game
Finn's Pub
Manhattan's Favorite Irish Pub!
317 Poyntz-Downtown Manhattan
www.finnspub.com 785-776-2119

Royal Thai Cuisine
One of the best quality restaurants in town
Very beautiful & relaxing atmosphere
Variety of choices, including seafood & vegetarian
Large portions at affordable prices
Lots of seats available, even for large parties.
No reservations necessary.
Hours: 11am-10pm, 7 days a week
3003 Anderson Ave. (in plaza west, by Alco)
539-0399

Cold weather is coming!
Carhartt Hard at work since 1889. Coveralls Coats
10% OFF any Carhartt Item
Expires 10-29-05
Only at Lee's Western Wear

25¢ pizza
Domino's Pizza *call for details
776-7788
Please mention # when ordering.
we deliver free to you
www.campusfood.com
#1 One Large Cheese or 1-Topping Pizza $7.77
#2 One Medium 2-Topping Pizza & a 20 oz. Soda $7.77
#3 One Small 1-Topping Pizza & Your Choice of Bread Item $7.77
#4 10 pc. Buffalo Wings or kickers & Your Choice of Bread Item $7.77
EXPIRES: 12/31/05
DEEP DISH $1 MORE • SM. HANDTOSSED ONLY • ADD. TOPPING EXTRA

KANSAS STATE
2005 VOLLEYBALL
vs. Missouri
7pm - Wednesday, Oct. 26
Ahearn Field House
K-STATE STUDENTS, FREE ADMISSION WITH YOUR STUDENT I.D.

Fullback leading Cats on offense

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Victor Mann knows what it means to step up.

The senior did so last week against Texas Tech when he took a swing pass in the second quarter from quarterback Allan Evridge down to the Red Raider 32-yard line.

The play fired up Mann's teammates, who had the opportunity to watch the Wildcat fullback rumble down field, refusing to go down while driving his 6-foot-2, 255-pound frame into Red Raider defenders.

"I knew if I could get it in his hands, he'd do something with it," Evridge said. "He's a good athlete and a lot more nimble than people would think. He definitely put a smile on my face while he was putting a few moves on some people."

The play, which accounted for more than half the yards K-State gained on the drive, sums up what Mann believes is his role as a Wildcat.

"I just do whatever I can and try to help contribute," Mann said. "Every time I touch it, I try not to go down. I don't get too many opportunities, so when I do get the chance, I do everything I can to help the offense with production."

Coach Bill Snyder said Mann, a native of Fort Worth, Texas, is not afraid to say what needs to be said.

"He's not one of those guys who is going all the time in terms of dialogue with other players and trying to motivate players to do certain things," Snyder said. "He is a guy, when he recognizes a need, he will step up and be a vocal leader as well as being a guy who will lead by example."

Mann said the 59-20 loss to Texas Tech showed the Wildcats still have some of the problems the team had last year when it was unable to play strong for an entire game.

"Playing for four quarters and not finishing a game off, that's one thing we did last year and that's one thing that we do not want to get back into, and I know we're not going to do it," Mann said. "You can see a difference in everybody going out and trying to make a change and do what they can."

Mann, who has seen action at the fullback position since his freshman season, earned the respect of his fellow teammates by being a quality person and not just a quality athlete.

"He's a great leader on the field and off," senior offensive tackle Jeromey Clary said. "He does a lot of things for the community. He's very vocal and he's a talented player who not only leads by example, but leads by his actions. He's an extremely talented guy and I love having him on our team."

Mann said the K-State running game, which gained 114 yards against Tech after averaging a dismal 28.5 in the first two Big 12 Conference games, still needs improvement to get the offense back on track.

"Being running backs, we have to go out and make plays," Mann said. "That's one thing we're not doing as a running back group is making plays and that's one thing that the guys are focusing on. We have to go out and make plays on our own."

If Mann continues to make plays like his catch against the Red Raiders, the big target will be hard to ignore.

"If he's ever open in the zip or out on the flats, I'll throw it to him," Evridge said.

Senior fullback Victor Mann tries to elude Texas Tech defender John Saldi during last Saturday's game.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

AP Top 25

1. Southern Cal
2. Texas
3. Virginia Tech
4. Georgia
5. Alabama
6. Miami (Fla.)
7. LSU
8. UCLA
9. Notre Dame
10. Texas Tech
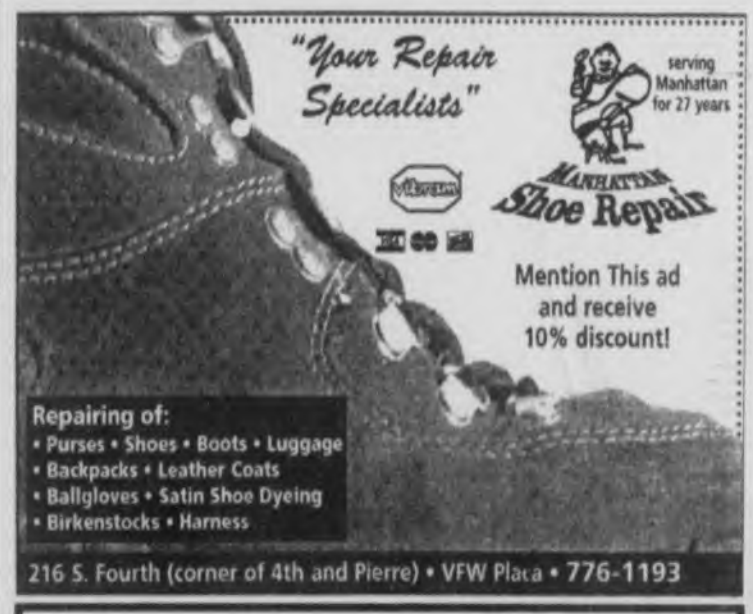
11. Florida State
12. Penn State
13. Boston College
14. Ohio State
15. Oregon
16. Auburn
17. Tennessee
18. Florida
19. Wisconsin
20. West Virginia
21. TCU
22. Michigan State
23. Virginia
24. Fresno State
25. California



5 Games to watch

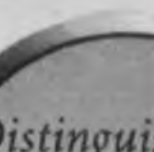
Collegian football picks

	Michael Ashford (13-2)	Matt Girard (10-5)	Anthony Mendoza (11-4)	Mark Potter (8-2)
K-State vs. Texas A&M	K-State 27-21	K-State 21-14	K-State 24-21	Texas A&M 28-21
No. 10 Texas Tech at No. 2 Texas	Texas 42-28	Texas 48-35	Texas 42-24	Texas Tech 35-31
Nebraska at Missouri	Missouri 20-14	Nebraska 14-10	Nebraska 14-10	Nebraska 30-17
No. 17 Tennessee at No. 5 Alabama	Alabama 24-17	Tennessee 28-21	Alabama 24-21	Alabama 21-14
No. 20 West Virginia at South Florida	South Florida 34-28	West Virginia 31-20	West Virginia 36-17	West Virginia 32-10

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian
118 KEDZIE • 532-6560
Kansas State Collegian Advertising

Free pool
Every 1st & 3rd Sunday of every month
• Ice Cold Beer, Darts, Big Screen TV
SUNDAY - $1.50 Domestics
MONDAY - $1.50 Imports & Domestics
TUESDAY - $1.50 Busch, Keystone, & Old Mil.
WEDNESDAY - 75¢ Draws, $3.50 Pitchers
THURSDAY - $1.75 Wells, $2 Calls, $2.50 Premiums
LUNCH SERVED Tues. & Fri.
Cock-N-Bull
NEIGHBORHOOD TAVERN
(785) 776-6699
2413 Stagg Hill Road • Behind Briggs
OPEN
3:00 p.m. - Mon., Wed., Thurs.
Noon - Sat. & Sun.
9:00 a.m. - Tues. & Fri.

Fat's
BAR & GRILL
$2.50 Miller Lite Pounders
$3.00 Coronas
50 Free Shirts
12th & Laramie
Aggieville



Valentino's
Grand Italian Buffet
10% discount with student ID
Now Delivering!
Largest Italian buffet in the state of Kansas
3003 Anderson • 539-6444

HUNAN
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Fall Specials
$1 Off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best Chinese and Mongolian BBQ in Town
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888
1 coupon per customer • Can not be combined with any other offers

Lots of Smokin' Great Deals!
• cigarettes • cigarette cases • cigars • chew & snuff • roll your own supplies • pipes • pipe tobacco • ash trays • lighters • zippos • zippo fluid, flints, wicks • incense • flasks • smoking accessories
Tobacco Alley
3037 Anderson Ave. • 770-3641
Hours:
8 a.m. - 8 p.m. Mon. - Fri.
8 a.m. - 4 p.m. Sat.
Closed Sunday

Distinguished Insurance Agency
J.D. Power and Associates
We're a J.D. Power and Associates Distinguished Insurance Agency
This means we're among a select group that demonstrated the ability to consistently deliver "An Outstanding Customer Experience." We're proud of this honor, and we want to show you our ongoing commitment to serving your needs. Contact us today for a personal insurance review or to purchase a policy.

C. Clay Taylor Agency
An Outstanding Customer Experience
J.D. Power and Associates certified Distinguished Insurance Agency
(800) 289-6949 Toll Free
(785) 539-6949
ctaylor@amfam.com

Jim Feeney Agency, Inc.
An Outstanding Customer Experience
J.D. Power and Associates certified Distinguished Insurance Agency
(800) 937-1064 Toll Free
(785) 776-4518
jfeeney@amfam.com

Jon Harper Agency
An Outstanding Customer Experience
J.D. Power and Associates certified Distinguished Insurance Agency
(877) 776-1855 Toll Free
(785) 776-1855
jharper@amfam.com

American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office – Madison, WI 53783
www.amfam.com
© 2005 001781–5/05
American Family Insurance
All your protection under one roof

Fall Enrollment
• Financial Aid Offered to Students who Qualify
• Evening Course
• Manicuring Classes
• Classes Offered Monthly
Crum's Beauty College
512 Poyntz Ave.
Manhattan, KS
785-776-4794

2 nights of music
Oct. 21st & 22nd, 2005
playing
Friday & Saturday
Shootin' Blanks
9-1
RC McGraws
2317 TUTTLE CREEK BLVD.
BLUE HILLS SHOPPING CENTER
776-9588

Evridge taking control of Wildcat offense

Redshirt-freshman quarterback visualized being the Wildcats' starter

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

All you need to know about Allan Evridge is this: He came to K-State determined to be the Wildcats' starting quarterback.

He just didn't know it would be this soon.

"Nobody comes in to sit on the bench," Evridge said. "I definitely could picture myself being the quarterback as I came in. I'm not going to say that I came in knowing that was going to happen."

If things go according to plan Saturday, Evridge, a redshirt-freshman, will make his first start at home as a Wildcat.

Evridge became the first freshman signal caller to start a game under coach Bill Snyder last Saturday against Texas Tech, where he threw for 192 yards on 14-of-25 passing and rushed for a team-high 64 yards.

"He gets in the huddle, and you assume that a redshirt-freshman would be a little fidgety and out of control, but he handles himself with great composure," senior offensive tackle Jeromey Clary said.

And to think Evridge almost never made it to K-State.

As a senior in 2003 at Papillon-LaVista High School in Papillon, Neb., Evridge committed to play at the University of Nebraska for then-coach Frank Solich.

But Solich was fired after the 2003 season, and the search for Solich's replacement lasted nearly two months, which frustrated Evridge to the point where he began to look elsewhere. That's where the Wildcats came in.

The idea of K-State wasn't totally foreign to Evridge. Snyder had been recruiting Evridge along with Nebraska and several other schools, but the history goes back even further.

"It's actually kind of ironic; my dad used to watch some Bishop guy for the Wildcats when we were up in Montana and he said he liked him," said Evridge, who at one point lived in Great Falls, Mont. "It's kind of interesting the way it played out."

That "Bishop guy" was none other than former K-State All-American Michael Bishop, who led the Wildcats to an 11-0 regular-season record and a No. 1 ranking in 1998.

"I never really knew about him, I just kind of remember a few things my dad would say every now and then," Evridge said.

Fast forward to the present – the present in which Evridge is the youngest K-State quarterback since 1988, when a freshman by the name of Paul Watson began the season as the Wildcats' starting quarterback. That was one year before Snyder arrived at K-State.

Evridge may have solidified his status as the starter in K-State's matchup Oct. 8, against rival Kansas.

In relief of then-starter Allen Webb, Evridge directed the Wildcat offense to a touchdown and a field goal to help K-State win 12-3 and regain control of the Governor's Cup, which the Wildcats lost to the Jayhawks in 2004.

Against Tech, Evridge kept the Wildcats close for a half. But the Tech offense got untracked and reeled off 42 points in the second half, changing the score from 17-13 at halftime to a 59-20 final.

In both games, Evridge took a beating. Snyder criticized Evridge for running with his pads too exposed, leaving him open to vicious hits from the likes of Kansas' Nick Reid and Texas Tech's Dwayne Slay.

Reid's hit shook Evridge up enough to where he left the game for a few plays. Slade's hit forced a fumble and left Evridge on the ground for several moments afterward.

"He forgot about where his pads needed to be," Snyder said. "That's kind of a common sense thing. It says 'Here I am. Hit me,' or minimize the target. You have two options."

But in both instances, Evridge returned to the game, which Snyder said showcased Evridge's toughness.

"I was impressed," Snyder said. "He got up, and was a little woozy, shook it off, as they say, and had some anger about the situation – at himself, not at anybody else.

"He wasn't looking for any sympathy, he wasn't looking for a way out, he was ready to go back in and play and that sent a major message to me."

When Evridge trots out onto the turf at KSU Stadium Saturday against Texas A&M, it will be another step in Evridge's progression.

Never mind that it may be sooner than some expected.

Evridge saw it coming all along.

"That's one thing I try to do is visualize and prepare," he said. "I worked hard. I know where I want to be, and I'm no where near where that is.

"I'm just going to keep working hard every day and improve."

Sun Connection

1125 Laramie
776-2426
2 Month Unlimited Super Bed Tan
$60.00
(w/lotion purchase)

HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
Free Delivery: 537-0886
Fax: 539-9111
Hours: Sun. - Wed., 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
SPEND OVER $25 AND GET A FREE T-SHIRT!!

Find K-State Gifts and Jewelry Online
KGifts
kgifts.com
Good Luck, Cats!

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our sales representatives by calling...
532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING

GO WILD for the CATS!
on the Wild Side
776-2252 Aggieville

Bring in this ad and receive
$25 Month Unlimited Tanning
Expires: 11-15-05
Southern Sun
3230 Kimball • Next to Bobby T's • 776-8060

Southside Auto Sales

2002 Pontiac Sunfire
4 cyl, Auto, Air
$5,895

1999 Honda Accord
4 cyl., Auto, Sunroof
$6,995

2000 Mazda Protege
4 cyl, Auto, Air
$4,995

1998 Ford Ranger
4.0L, V-6 Auto
$4,795

2000 Chevy S-10 Blazer LT
4.3 V-6, Leather
$6,495
'00 Olds Cutlass 4DR, Auto, 56K $4,995
'98 Chevrolet S-10 Blazer LT 4.3 L 4x4, Leather $4,995
'00 Chevrolet S-10 P.U. V-6, Auto, Air $4,995
'00 Chevrolet Grand Voyager 3.3L, Loaded $5,495
'91 Jeep Wrangler 4.0L, 5 speed, 4x4 ..... $4,500
'85 Chevrolet El Camino V-8, Auto, No rust $3,495
'96 Eagle Vision 4DR, Auto, Loaded $2,650
'96 Olds Cutlass 2DR, Auto, Air $2,995
425 Yuma, Manhattan, KS
785-776-2170 800-837-2170

END ZONE SPORTS BAR & GRILL
Monday Specials: $2 Margaritas 50¢ Tacos
Tuesday $4 Pitchers
Wednesday Karaoke Night $2 Wells
Thursday Specials: $1.75 Domestic Bottles
Friday Bartenders Choice
Daily Food Specials
Home of the Home Run Burger
•Game day specials
•12 TV's
•Pizza menu
•16 oz. drinks
•Daily lunch & drink specials
7840 E Hwy 24 537-8818

Choose a window seat, not the driver's seat...
Low Fares Manhattan to Kansas City Roundtrip
All Day • Every Day
Call 1.800.428.4322 for flight info or visit usairways.com
MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT
5500 Fort Riley Boulevard
3 Miles West of Manhattan on K-18 Highway
MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT online at www.ci.manhattan.ks.us/Airport.asp
CITY OF MANHATTAN KANSAS MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT

Echols becoming vocal leader of the Wildcat defense

Snyder says defensive lineman consistent, displays 'dramatic leadership' in junior season

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Baltimore Ravens all-pro linebacker Ray Lewis is considered the vocal leader of his team.

His teammates look to him for inspiration before every game and he provides it in many ways.

He is the guy in the middle of the huddle yelling at his teammates trying to get them jacked up and making sure they are ready to play.

If you ask his teammates, K-State's equivalent to Lewis is junior defensive tackle Quintin Echols.

"Without a doubt he is like Ray Lewis," senior fullback Victor Mann said. "He is very vocal and a very physical player. He brings a lot to our defense from an overall standpoint. Before every game he is our motivator, he leads the chants and he really gets us ready to play."

Echols can't help but see the similarities.

"You can say that I do compare," Echols said. "Everybody knows that I am hyped for every game. Sometimes I get a little too excited, but I really can't help it."

In six games this season, Echols has recorded nine solo tackles and 12 assisted tackles. He had his biggest game against Marshall, recording his lone sack of the season and also providing a deflection on a pass that fell into the hands of cornerback Justin McKinney to secure the Wildcats' victory.

Echols said he has made improvements to his game to where he now feels more comfortable relying on his teammates to back him up rather than trying to make the big plays himself.

"I have improved as far as that when I was a little bit younger, I was relying so much on my athletic ability, or the athletic ability that I thought I had," Echols said. "I was just relying on my strength, but now I have been here for four years, so it's easy for me to rely on my teammates more.

"I just think I am more comfortable on the field and I know that this team relies on me a lot more than they used to, so I have to step it up."

Coach Bill Snyder agreed that Echols is ready to take his game to another level.

Snyder said Echols has made strides in helping the nation's 15th-best rush defense, 47th-best pass defense and 36th overall defense, and is a big reason why the K-State defense is playing as well as it has this season.

Quintin Echols
Defensive tackle

Specs
Echols is a 6-foot-2, 305-pound junior from Fort Worth, Texas.

Stats
Has nine solo tackles, 12 assisted tackles and one sack this season.

"He is one of those young guys that has stepped himself up into a more dramatic leadership role, even though he is still young in the program," Snyder said.

"I think he is playing with some consistency now more than he has in any particular point in time, and he has provided some leadership that has been beneficial as well. I think Quintin can become a very fine defensive lineman over time."

His teammates on the defensive side of the ball say Echols is their vocal leader, and they look to Echols to get them ready for each game.

"Quintin has done a good job for us this year," sophomore free safety Marcus Watts said.

"He has been the vocal inspiration; the guy that tries to get everybody fired up before games. He has done a good job."

Echols said he doesn't let all the compliments go to his head, and he knows he has room to grow.

"I would give myself a C-plus right now," Echols said. "In my mind, I want to give myself a better grade, but I am holding myself to a higher standard than I did when I was younger. I think I have so much more to offer and if I just keep working then hopefully I can get to an A one day."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Junior defensive lineman Quintin Echols celebrates a stop during K-State's game against Kansas. Echols finished the game with three total tackles in the Wildcats' 12-3 win over the Jayhawks. Echols' teammates have referred to him as the vocal leader of K-State's defense this season.

Advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN 118 KEDZIE • 532-6560

Halo Photography Inc.
Travis Brown
•Wedding •Portrait •Special Occasion
785-776-5352 (home) or
785-317-1688 (cell) or E-mail me at
HaloInc@hotmail.com

Happy Valley
CHINESE RESTAURANT
LUNCH SPECIALS $4.99
Includes: choice of 2 entrees, rice, soup, appetizer
DINNER SPECIALS
Includes: entree, appetizer, salad, rice, soup, kim chee, daily dessert
$6.95 & up
DINE IN & CARRY OUT
1120 Laramie
539-9888

LONGHORNS SALOON
776-8770 1115 MORO
Fri: DANCE AND COUNTRY PARTY
$2.50 Miller Lite Pounders
"2" cover for 21 & up, "5" for 18-20
Sat: COUNTRY PARTY
$2.50 Miller Lite Pounders
"2" cover for 21 & up, "5" for 18-20
$2.00 Tequila shots
Friday & Saturday

Whether rooting for your Wildcats takes you across the street or across the country, you can be sure State Farm® will support you as much as you support your team. We have a streak of more than 60 years as the No. 1 car insurer, with more than 40 million fans nationwide. Join the winning team today. Find a State Farm agent in your local yellow page listings or at statefarm.com®.

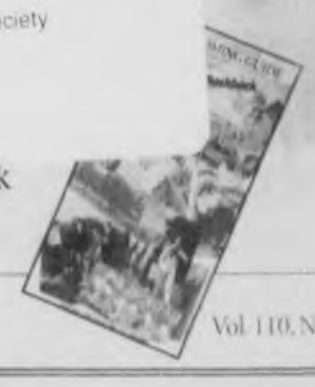
State Farm is a proud supporter of Kansas State University athletics.

LIKE A GOOD NEIGHBOR STATE FARM IS THERE.®

Providing Insurance and Financial Services

State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, State Farm Indemnity Company • Bloomington, IL • statefarm.com®

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN



www.kstatecollegian.com

Monday, October 24, 2005

Vol. 110, No. 46

Sub. Exp. Date --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

place this week

Miller case harms journalism profession

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The case of Judith Miller, the New York Times reporter jailed after refusing to identify the source who leaked a CIA agent's identity, lowers public expectations of journalists and destroys their credibility, said former New York Times reporter and K-State journalism professor Fred Brock.

"The only thing journalists have that is valuable is the trust and the fact that you want people to believe you," he said.

Miller was arrested and booked in July for contempt of court by refusing to testify before a federal grand jury investigating a leak naming Valerie Plame as a secret CIA agent.

According to CNN.com, Miller turned over her notes Oct. 11 to Special Counsel Patrick Fitzgerald from her June 23, 2003 contact with I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby, Vice President Dick Cheney's Chief of Staff.

White House aide Karl Rove and Libby discussed their contacts with reporters about an undercover CIA officer in the days before her identity was published before the grand jury Thursday.

According to The New York Times, Miller's notes refer to Bush administration critic and former U.S. Ambassador Joseph Wilson, who is married to Plame.

The New York Times published an

See MILLER Page 10

Spring enrollment begins today

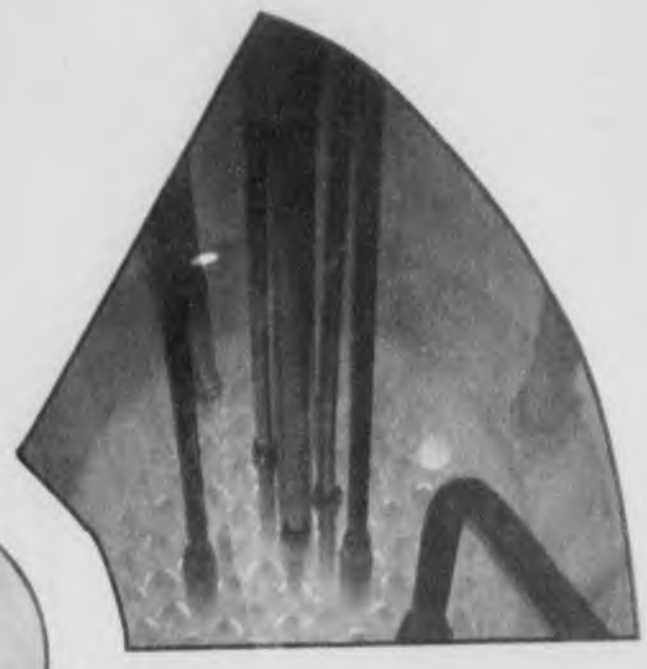
Enrollment for spring 2006 begins today for graduate students and students with 116 or more credit hours.

Several new courses and majors are being offered, including Food Writing, a course through the College of Human Ecology. Also, students majoring in philosophy can take a pre-medicine track, according to press releases from K-State Media Relations and Marketing.

This week's enrollment schedule is as follows:

Oct. 24
7 a.m. — Graduate students
10 a.m. — 130 hours and above
Noon — 125-129 hours
2 p.m. — 120-124 hours
4 p.m. — 116-119 hours

Oct. 25
7 a.m. — 111-115 hours
10 a.m. — 107-110 hours
Noon — 103-106 hours
2 p.m. — 100-102
4 p.m. — 98-99



Oct. 26
7 a.m. — 96-97
10 a.m. — 94-95
Noon — 92-93
2 p.m. — 90-91
4 p.m. — 88-89

Oct. 27
7 a.m. — 86-87
10 a.m. — 84-85
Noon — 82-83
2 p.m. — 80-81
4 p.m. — 78-79

Oct. 28
7 a.m. — 76-77
10 a.m. — 75
Noon — 74
2 p.m. — 73
4 p.m. — 72

Nuclear reactions

PHOTOS COURTESY OF K-STATE MEDIA RELATIONS AND MARKETING
TOP LEFT: ABC News interns, Hsinching Wei, Maple Glen, Pa., public policy major at Kennedy School at Harvard University; and Melia Patria, Pasadena, Calif., of the School of Journalism at Columbia University, visit K-State posing as casual visitors.

TOP RIGHT: The core of the reactor. The reactor core is submerged in a tank of purified water.

LOWER: The nuclear engineering faculty and student assistants pose atop the reactor work area in Ward Hall.

Photo Illustration by Kelly Olson | COLLEGIAN

ABC News uses own list of recommendations for safety

By JP Wilson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An ABC News report on security failures at K-State's TRIGA Mark II Nuclear Research Reactor that aired Oct. 13 did not evaluate the facility on policies required by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said Mike Whaley, nuclear reactor facility manager.

Instead, ABC's expert evaluated the reactor against its own list of security measures on its "Primetime" program. Viewers that turned off the program after K-State's segment were not informed that K-State was graded on procedures not required by the NRC.

"It was a larger question of whether the government is demanding enough of the universities," said Brian Ross ABC News chief investigative correspondent. "The fact that the NRC fails to require this is the real scandal."

"We have not found anything to date at any of the reactors that we feel might be a violation of their security requirements," commission spokeswoman Beth Hayden said. "We've asked for the footage to see if there were any violations in their security requirements and they have refused to give it to us."

Turning over footage to government agencies is not the practice of ABC News, Ross said.

The NRC was shown parts of the footage six weeks prior to the program airing, but Ross says if the NRC wants all footage it should get a subpoena.

In June, 10 Carnegie Fellows hired as ABC interns visited 25 university reactors under the pretense of tourists. Two interns visited K-State on June 29, where they reported several security failures.

"ABC seems to have prepared a grade card based on what they think the right answer is for reactor security," Whaley said. "They did not talk to me and I'm the one that helped prepare the measures for this facility. They did not talk to the NRC, they just invented a series of checkmarks."

ABC reported that the commission opened five separate investigations after the perceived security lapses, but Hayden says no investigations have been opened at any of the research reactors.

Although the interns were working undercover and did not identify themselves as ABC interns, Whaley said he knew they were coming after another university notified both the commission and the FBI that two females were taking tours at university research reactors and asking questions about security measures.

When the interns called the university to set up a visit, Whaley scheduled the tour with enough time to alert the FBI and campus police. An FBI agent and campus police suggested Whaley get a photograph of the girls and to avoid

See NUCLEAR Page 10

Homecoming 5K raises money for disabled veterans

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Windy, 30-degree weather did not stop about 750 people from participating in the third annual All-University Homecoming Philanthropy 5K Race Sunday.

Andrea Bryant, All-University Homecoming chair, said the race went well.

"It was a cool morning but people came out energetic and ready to support a great Manhattan organization," she said.

Bryant said the race is the main philanthropic event of Homecoming. Proceeds from the race went to the Manhattan-area chapter of Disabled American Veterans.

"It is a good way to kick off the week with a positive impact on the Manhattan community," she said.

Drew Ladd, of Atlantic, Iowa, ran as a replacement in the race for his brother's girlfriend. Ladd, a sophomore in high school, said proceeds from the race help support veterans.

"It lets them know we haven't forgot about them," Ladd said.

Rese Ripley, senior in human ecology, won the female student division of the race. She said she had to pace her breathing because of the cold weather, but the race went well.

"It's important to raise money for certain organizations," she said. "In being close to a military base, it was an important organization to give money to."

Race winners
- Male non-student: Trevor Smith
- Female non-student: Robin Blanton
- Male student: Michael Manley
- Female student: Rese Ripley

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Jeni Rzeszut, junior in biology, front, Katie Lewis, senior in psychology, run in front of Anderson Hall during the All-University Homecoming 5K run Sunday. The run marked the start of Homecoming and the proceeds went to the Manhattan-area chapter of Disabled American Veterans.

Today
High 55
Low 32

Wednesday
High 57
Low 33

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Homosexual ruling
The American Civil Liberties Union wants Matthew Limon, serving a 17-year and two month sentence for performing a sex act on a 14-year-old boy, to be released. If it had been a girl, he would have served 15 months. Attorney General Phill Kline won't appeal the ruling the state cannot punish illegal underage sex more harshly if it involves homosexual acts.

Warrants Day
During the annual Warrants Day on Thursday, Oct. 20, 44 people were arrested by the Riley County Police Department for outstanding warrants. Between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., about 25 officers served warrants. During the week, 116 people were arrested for warrants.

Attorney disbarment
The Kansas Supreme Court is considering whether to disbar Bret D. Landrith, a Topeka attorney who is seeking the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. There were accusations that he made false allegations against court employees, judges and lawyers and failed to provide adequate representation to his clients.

DON'T FORGET

Enrollment begins today for students with 116 completed credit hours or more.

David Orr will give a speak about "Learning from Katrina: landscape, politics and global change" at 3:30 p.m. today in Forum Hall.

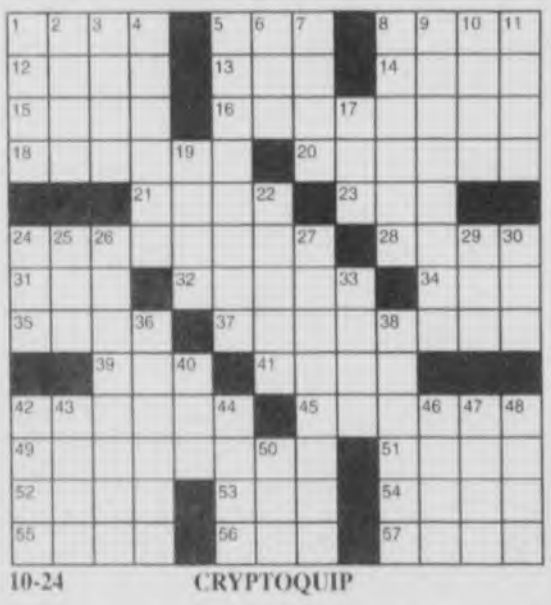
The sidewalk chalking contest for All-University Homecoming is from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. today at the Bosco Student Plaza.

Wildcat Request Live is at 8 tonight in Bramlage Coliseum.

Xtreme Tanning
Bring this ad in for a FREE sample when tanning!
1122 Laramie 539-3742



Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Contra-bassoon cousin
5 Potential syrup
8 Requests
12 What beach goers "catch"
13 Way back when
14 Old portico
15 Actor Baldwin
16 Loss of a stripe, maybe
18 Iguana, e.g.
20 "Mission: Impossible" name
21 Juror, theoretically
23 Raw rock
24 Conduct
28 Halt
31 "— been robbed!"
32 Pictorial poser
34 Pirouette pivot
35 Right on the map?
37 Wicker-cased bottle
39 Chips accessory
41 Prank
42 Played slowly (mus.)
45 Interstellar cloud
49 Madness
51 Raised
52 State for sure
53 Charged bit
54 "Zounds!"
55 Rolling stone's lack
56 Snip
57 Ohio nine

DOWN
1 Exam format
2 "— Ha'i"
3 Court officer's call
4 Houdini's specialty
5 Turned blue?
6 Time of your life
7 "— and Circumstance"
8 Late-summer flowers
9 Heel type
10 Former surgeon general
11 Without
17 Discoverer's cry
19 Bring up
22 Clad like a jurist
24 Conk out
25 Zsa Zsa's sis
26 Monsieurs' mates
27 Cud chewer
29 La-la lead-in
30 Corral
33 Faction
36 Princeton's team
38 Small-scale wholesaler
40 Brooch
42 Leading man?
43 "Whip It" group
44 Ear-related
46 Incite
47 Graphite
48 Puts in the mix
50 Debtor's letters

Solution time: 27 mins.

G	O	P	■	D	O	F	F	■	B	L	O	B
O	W	E	■	A	W	O	L	■	L	O	B	E
B	E	N	C	H	L	E	Y	■	I	B	I	D
I	N	S	O	L	E	■	A	N	N	■	■	■
■	■	■	B	I	T	■	W	A	G	N	E	R
C	O	P	R	A	■	L	A	P	■	O	R	E
R	H	E	A	■	C	O	Y	■	T	O	I	L
A	I	R	■	G	I	G	■	H	O	N	E	Y
G	O	U	L	E	T	■	M	O	P	■	■	■
■	■	■	A	M	I	■	E	N	I	S	L	E
P	U	L	P	■	Z	E	M	E	C	K	I	S
A	S	I	A	■	E	R	O	S	■	E	M	S
R	A	Z	Z	■	N	E	S	T	■	W	E	E

10-24 CRYPTOQUIP

MQ T RYMPPKN YKNK FX RCXASMQF QNXP T RDAKNPTNZKF, M RDAAXRK CK YXDSB FTZK T BMA.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: BUREAU COMPARTMENTS THAT HOLD UNDERWEAR COULD BE REFERRED TO AS DRAWERS FOR DRAWERS.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: K equals E

WEEK IN REVIEW

7 things you didn't know 7 days ago

Hurricane Wilma approaches Florida

Tourists leave the airport of Key West while hurricane Wilma heads towards Florida's southwest coast October 20. Hurricane Wilma weakened slightly from its record strength in the Caribbean sea on Thursday, but threatened to pound tourist resorts on Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula with a 10-foot tidal surge and 145 mph winds.

Carlos Barria
REUTERS

Forecasters predicted Hurricane Wilma would pick up speed on Sunday toward Florida after flooding the Mexican coast. The National Hurricane Center in Miami Deputy Director Ed Rappaport said the storm's strength is unpredictable, but residents should be prepared for a Category 3. "We're ready for Wilma and, whatever the storm brings, we're set to go," Federal Emergency Management Agency spokesman Butch Kinerney said.

SUSPECTED WAR CRIMINAL ARRESTED

Somali Abdi Hassan Awale, a suspected militia leader during the 1993 "Black Hawk Down" battle, was arrested Monday at a conference in Sweden. The former interior minister is suspected of war crimes in the battle that left 18 Americans and hundreds of Somalis dead and was featured in the movie, "Black Hawk Down." Awale's lawyer, Pieter Kjessler, said he denies the allegations against him.

BIRD FLU DECLARED GLOBAL THREAT

European Union foreign ministers declared the bird flu as a global threat, Tuesday in Luxembourg. The Swiss manufacturer of the anti-bird flu drugs announced it was building a new U.S. plant to increase production. The disease has recently been discovered in Greece, Romania and Turkey, leading to bans on poultry from those countries. There is no human vaccine for the current strain, but the drugs Tamiflu and Relenza could be effective.

FAST-FOOD CHAINS NOT LIABLE

The House of Representatives voted to protect fast-food chains from obesity lawsuits on Wednesday. The measure stems from lawsuits that blame fast-food chains for making people obese. "You cannot litigate personal choices and lifestyles," Rep. Mike Rogers, R-Mich, said. A food industry lobbyist said lawsuits against food companies are the wrong way to fight obesity in America.

TEENAGER CHARGED WITH RAPE

Lee Donton, 17, was charged with sexual battery Thursday for raping a disabled boy, 15, at the juvenile detention center in Tallahassee, Fla., where they lived. Guards at the center allegedly ordered to the teenage sex offender to bathe and change the severely mentally retarded boy. Juvenile Justice Secretary Anthony Schembri said the sexual battery charges were "weak", because one of the witnesses has lied to authorities four times.

MOTHER CHARGED WITH MURDER

The woman accused of throwing her children into San Francisco Bay pleaded innocent Friday to three counts of murder. Lashaun T. Harris was reportedly diagnosed with schizophrenia and said voices told her to do it. The middle son's body, Taronta Greeley, 2, was discovered Wednesday. The other two, Tayshaun Harris, 6, and Joshua Greeley, 16 months, remain missing, but are presumed dead. Harris' next court hearing is scheduled for Oct. 28.

STUDENT KILLED IN FIELD RUSH

Richard Thomas Rose, 20, a University of Minnesota-Morris student, was killed Saturday after football fans rushed the field and tore down the goal post. Minnesota-Morris Chancellor Sam Schuman said the presumption was his death was caused by a blow from the goal post. The school will offer counseling to students, staff and family. No one else was hurt.

Source — The Associated Press

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Thursday, Oct. 20

- Kenzie Abbey, 1020 Bluemont Ave., Apt. 301, was arrested at 10 a.m. for writing a worthless check. Bond was set at $500.
- Jacqueline Murrell, 2500 Farm Bureau Road, Lot 283, was arrested at 10:47 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $50.
- Justin Copp, 621 N. Juliette Ave., was arrested at 10:58 p.m. for using a non-driver ID card. Bond was set at $1,000.

Friday, Oct. 21

- Cameron Poe, Wamego, Kan., was arrested at 12:15 p.m. for unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $750.
- Raymond Stubblefield Jr., 3101 Lundin Drive, Apt. 5, was arrested at 2:40 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.

— RCPD collected 44 outstanding warrants on Thursday as part of Warrant Day. For a complete listing of arrests, go to www.kstatecollegian.com.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A class on how to find a journal article will be from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. today in Hale 408.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Alexandre Robert-Seilaniantz at 10:30 a.m. today in Throckmorton 4031
- The International Association of Business Associates will meet at 6 tonight in Union 202.
- The American Red Cross Club will meet at 6:30 tonight in Union Stateroom 1.
- A free student recital by Ben Worchester on trumpet will be at 7:30 tonight in the All Faiths Chapel.
- How to work an education career fair will be at 4 p.m. today in Union 212.

Corrections and clarifications

Richard Thomas performed on "The Waltons" when he was about 17 years old, not 7. He started acting when he was 7 years old. The Collegian regrets the error.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

$2 BIG beers
monday night football
20¢ wings til' HALFTIME
Live Music After the Game
Home of the Killer Chicken
JOE'S TAP ROOM
776-3593 • 1127 Moro

Looking for a way to save?
You need to insure both your auto and your home, so why not save money in the process? Call today for a free, no-obligation look at auto and home discounts from American Family.

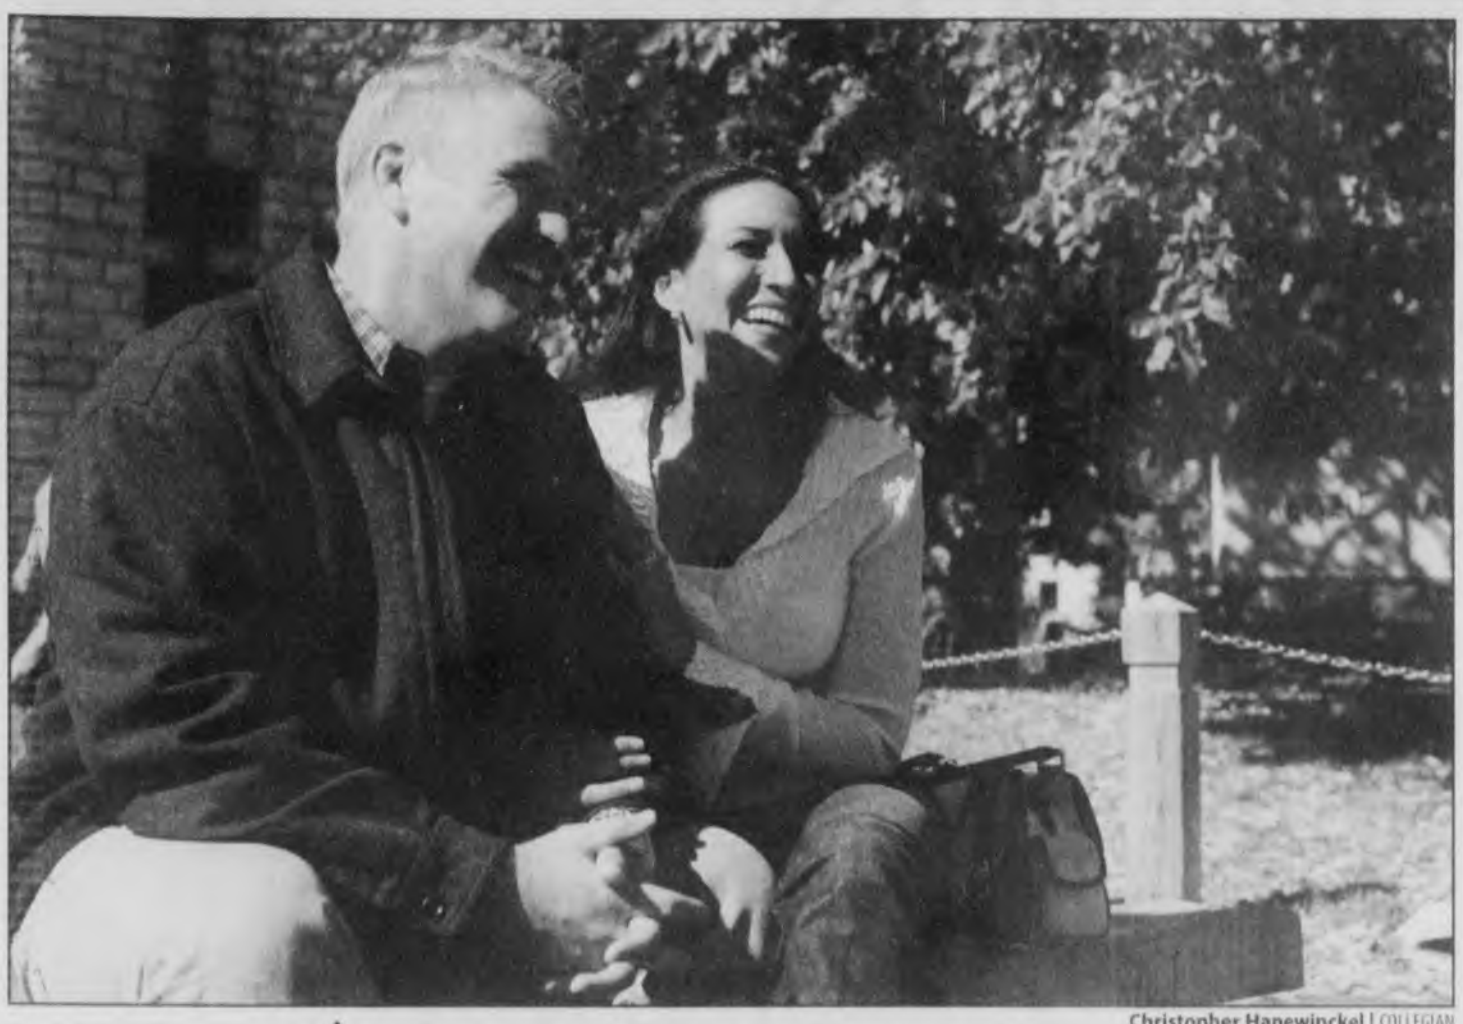
C Clay Taylor Agency
(800) 789-6949 Toll Free
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE

Avalon Hair & Nail Salon

Meghan McGee
1201 Westloop Place
Manhattan, 785-537-9823
Six years experience in weaves, color, cuts, formal occasion hair, and pedicures

Junior • Petite
Blue Jeans
Lucky, Gap, Abercrombie & Fitch, and more!
$2.50 – $4.95
Bring in Student ID for 25% off any one clothing item
QUALITY NAME BRAND New & Gently Used CLOTHING AT 50-95% OFF RETAIL
BUY & SELL
The Apple's Heart
Boutique Atmosphere...Thriftstore Prices
"Where Kansas Meets New York"
113 S. 5th • downtown poyntz • 317-5475

HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
Free Delivery: 537-0886
Fax: 539-9111
Hours: Sun. - Wed., 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
SPEND OVER $25 AND GET A FREE T-SHIRT!!



"I think I'll drink more this semester."
"We gotta turn down the slut-volume on campus."
"Happy Birthday, Sean! I looooove you!"
"Hey Library Guy, my name's Amy, and I wanna have your children."
watch this space!

MEAL MANIA

Monday Night Football
25¢ JUMBO WINGS
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON
Chance to win a Budweiser tool box refrigerator and other prizes!
$2 BIG BEERS

Shake's FROZEN CUSTARD
$1 off Build your own Sundae
When you clip this coupon!
5th & Fort Riley Blvd. • 537-9553

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Melissa Holovach, former contestant of "The Apprentice," right, and her husband Matt, 1999 K-State graduate, share a laugh Friday afternoon. Melissa was eliminated at the end of the first episode of the fourth season of the show.

'Apprentice' competitor visits K-State

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Those two little words at the end of the first episode of the fourth season of "The Apprentice" sent Melissa Holovach packing.

"You're fired," Donald Trump said, and she was the first to go.

"I stopped caring. I was just done," she said of why she wound up leaving the show. "You play a game, you compete, and I just got to the point where I was fed up."

Holovach was in Manhattan for the weekend with her husband, Matt, who graduated from K-State in 1999. They wandered the campus together and attended the football game against Texas A&M before returning to Tampa, Fla.

Matt Holovach said he enjoyed being able to show his wife his hometown and alma mater.

"I lived over right by CiCo Park, that's where I grew up," he said.

They said they brought their dogs with them to have them checked out at the Veterinary Medicine Complex. They also said they enjoyed a trip to Call Hall.

"I'd be 100 pounds heavier if honestly I had gone here," Melissa Holovach said. "I just ate a huge sundae and half of his double-scoop thing."

Matt Holovach said he's been teaching his wife, a graduate of the University of Denver, everything he knows about K-State. They said he taught her the school fight song six months into their relationship, and sang it spontaneously to prove it.

"You know what? I should be an honorary graduate, they should give me an honorary graduation," she said.

She also said she looked forward to doing the "Wabash Cannonball" and wondered if they should ask President Jon Wefald for a diploma.

Melissa Holovach said she'd developed a strong love for Kansas and K-State, and even said she planned to send her children to the campus for college.

"We can't really tell them that because then they're going to want to go away," she said.

While in Manhattan, she said she was happy, smiling and laughing often; a distinct change from her on-screen depiction. She said the show's producers painted her in a bad light, something she said they told her they would do before it was aired.

"They told me ... when each person gets fired, they cut the show around that. The firing, the person, the decision."

Melissa Holovach said she is still good friends with four of the girls from the show. She said she was pleased to see Kristi get fired last week in the season's fifth episode. Kristi was the project manager who took her into the board room with her to face the axe.

"I was very happy, I really was, because America finally got to see her true colors," she said.

Who does she want to win, then?

"Randal, I love Randal," she said. "As a person, he's better. He's a good person. He's Christian, he's kind, he's fair, he's honest and very hard-working."

She said Trump was much kinder to her than the show depicted, and confirmed that his hair was real, since it stayed attached to his head even while boarding his helicopter.

"I did ask him and he goes 'I am comfortable with my hair, the world's infatuated with it but I like my hair and it will not change,'" she said.

Now that she's done with the show, she said she's been benefitting from the exposure and planned to keep busy, both with her Tampa-based real estate company Mozaic Enterprises, LLC and some potential endeavors with the Donald himself.

"I can say that Trump is very fond of me of me as a business professional," she said.

Piven to address domestic cost of war

By Lola Shrimplin
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Frances Fox Piven, incoming president of the American Sociological Association, will deliver a Lou Douglas Lecture, "The War at Home: The Domestic Causes and Consequences of Bush's Militarism," at 7 tonight in Forum Hall.

"She is well known as a scholar of poverty and U.S. politics, specializing in social welfare policies and electoral politics," said Olivia Collins, assistant professor of educational leadership and coordinator of the Lou Douglas Lecture Series.

Piven said she will speak on the domestic causes and consequences of the United States' current military action.

"Wars are usually explained as aggression against foreign peoples and territories, or the need to defend against foreign aggression," she said. "Yet wars always have a domestic side."

After the lecture, Piven will sign her book "Why Americans Still Don't Vote: And Why Politicians Want It That Way," and her most recent work "The War at Home: The Domestic Costs of Bush's Militarism."

She will be in Manhattan for two days, visiting with faculty in the Department of Sociology and talking about the future of sociology as a profession, Collins said.

Piven will also do a radio interview with KMAN-AM 1350 and speak to classes.

"We really try to get speakers here that will deliver more than a 45-minute lecture," Collins said.

Piven received a doctorate from the University of Chicago and is now a distinguished professor of political science and sociology at the Graduate School and University Center, City University of New York.

Students build chicken coop for ABC's 'Extreme makeover'

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Six students and two faculty advisers spent three weeks designing a chicken coop for a Rose Hill, Kan., episode of "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition."

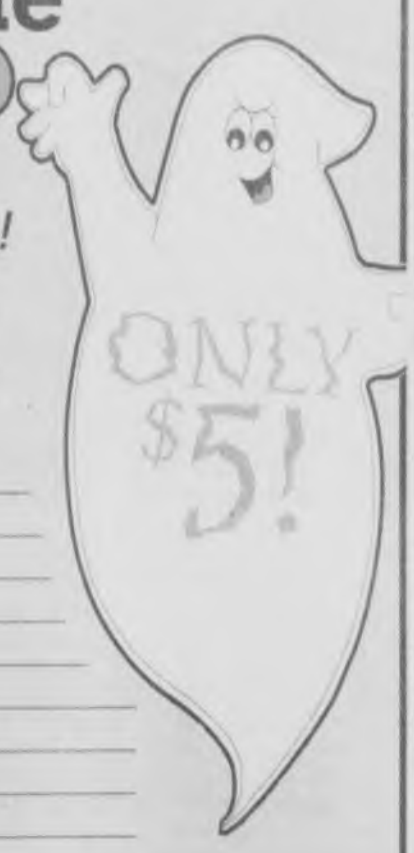
The ABC show surprises homeowners who have been through some difficulty with a total renovation of their home and a vacation for the family while the house is being redone.

This segment's family was on vacation when a propane leak caused their home to burn down. The week-long renovation took place Oct. 15-21 and included rebuilding the home and building a chicken coop.

"Someone obviously noticed they had chickens running around so it was suggested that this was something that could be added," said Todd Gabbard, assistant professor of architecture and team adviser.

Constance Ramos, one of the of the show's designers, is a K-State graduate. She contacted the university to arrange for a team of K-State students to help with design and construction. About 30 total K-State students and faculty went to the site to help with construction.

Mike Rieger, fifth-year senior in landscape architecture, was on the design team. In designing the chicken coop, he said the team consulted an employee of the KSU Poultry Farm about the best environment for chickens.



Rieger said it took a lot of energy to work all night, but he enjoyed the project.

"It's fun to design something and see it built so quickly," he said. "It's satisfying."

The family came home Sunday, Staci Wayne, senior in architecture, said, and the show will air in about eight weeks.

Think someone is BOO-tiful?

Then put in a personal ad!

Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.

Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____
_____
_____
_____
_____

Show Me The Money!

Presented by:
Sonya Britt, Advisor
Family Studies and Human Services

Local Panel Members:
Kathy Lindsay, GTM Sportswear
Ancel Sapp, Keating & Associates
Dan Scott, Auth Florence Mfg

Learn how to understand and evaluate company benefit options as well as investigate and think strategically about topics related to job offer negotiation.

TUESDAY, OCT. 25 4:00pm Union 212

Sponsored by Career & Employment Services - www.k-state.edu/ces

The Rouletter Ghost

The leaves are changing and the air's growing cold
It's time for us to remember, the cowboys of old
So dust off your buckle, and slip on your boots
It's time for us to get back to our roots

It's the party you should never miss
With a girl by your side and a beer in your fist
There's no other place where the whiskey's as smooth
To be with our brothers, the ones that we choose

If you have the heart, you might finally see
That Rouletter Ghost amidst those old trees
He's the one that surely can claim
It's the best barn party and never should change
So AGR brothers, it's time for Rouletter
It's the boots, the beer, the brothers together!

Signed, The Rouletter Ghost

We can't get you girls, Or boys.

We can't get you beer or cigarettes.

You won't be any cooler.

You won't be more attractive.

You won't be thinner, smarter,

or suddenly wealthy.

But maybe, just maybe,

you'll get the experience you need to land a job that CAN get you those things...after college.

The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:

Executive Positions Spring 2006
- Editor in Chief
- Advertising Sales Manager

News Positions Spring 2006
- Managing Editors • News Editors
- Desk Editors • Reporters
- Copy Editors • Designers
- Photojournalists • Graphic Artists
- Graphic Artists • Online Journalists

Advertising Positions Spring 2006
- Assistant Advertising Managers
- Advertising Sales Representatives

Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.

Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. Nov. 16.

Get the experience you NEED.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

TO THE POINT

Network wrong for using sneaky tactics

On a recent "Primetime" episode, ABC made claims of the danger and insecurity of several university nuclear reactors, including the one housed in Ward Hall at K-State.

Nuclear power has long been the whipping boy of slow news weeks and dullard broadcasters who seek to avoid such journalistic traditions as "work" and "research."

It is through such idiocy that broadcast journalism continues to fritter away its already paltry reputation.

In addition to poor journalism, the ethics of sending interns to sneak about the country, seeking news and making uninformed comments about security, is dubious at best.

To say nothing of a major network using deception as a primary journalistic tool, instead of as a last resort.

ABC arbitrarily created it's own list of security measures, and failed to alert its viewers that all "recommendations" of the show were those of ABC itself, hardly a credible institution of nuclear safety.

The so called danger posed by the reactor is nonexistent. Perhaps if one were nearby when Ward Hall collapsed, the dust in the air might warrant a sneeze or two.

As one of the major faces of broadcast journalism, ABC should be ashamed of itself for promoting such sensationalist, uninformed and just plain wrong information to the American public.

But, recent events have shown us broadcast news is less concerned with promoting fact and more interested in unsubstantiated hype. If this is the extent of ABC's journalism then perhaps it is time for them to step to the side. Dan Rather and his memos could use some company.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

Revolutionary thought

'Metrosexual' movement should be met with feminine response

JONAS HOGG

We can take great solace in the fact that almost all bad ideas have an extremely short shelf life. In light of this, one can hardly keep from bursting into song upon hearing of the decline of the corporate-sponsored sissyness of the "metrosexual."

For the man who is not ready to join the ranks of men, whatever shall he do? Fear not, oh cucumber masked one, for the trio of women who made a mockery of masculinity with "metrosexual" have come up with a new term and a new book to help market it.

According to Marian Salzman, Ira Matathia and Ann O'Reilly's new book, "The Future of Men," the latest fashion in Y chromosomes is known as "m-ness" and apparently the revolution is already under way.

Holy marketing-scam Batman. What is m-ness? According to the book: men who "do exactly what it takes to get what they want, when they want it." As a man I've never felt the need to behave like a hyena. This is attractive?

But one good revolution deserves another, yes? So, if men are to set off in search of our "m-ness" then I declare that so too must women seek their own revolution (viva equality).

For women to keep up with men in the revolutionary world, they must abandon their belching, unflattering, falling-down drunk, NASCAR watching ways. As men seek their "m-ness" women, too, must set off in search of their "p-ness."

Many trendsetting women will want to know, "Where can I find my 'p-ness? Do they have it at Target, or is it a Victoria's Secret special?'" Much like the search for enlightenment, finding "p-ness" is not a physical journey, it is a spiritual one. Women must look inside themselves and reflect upon where their "p-ness" has gone and to what lengths they will go to get their "p-ness" back.

Of course, as the search for "p-ness" broadens into a countrywide, and then global craze, many entrepreneurs will seek to market "p-ness" to the forlorn woman who cannot find hers. It will be important to remember, ladies, that store-bought "p-ness" is never as good as old-fashion home-brewed "p-ness;" resist the marketing temptation.

"P-ness" will be different for each woman. Some women will find theirs easily while others will labor for months, or even years bereft of their prized "p-ness." Don't fret, once one of your friends has found her "p-ness" she will often be able to assist her "p-nessless" friends in finding their fulfillment.

For some women, the wait for "p-ness" will be simply too much. They will revert to a "pre-p-ness" state, and will spend their lives watching "Everybody Loves Raymond" reruns, while feeding their 56 cats. "P-ness" is a must have for women to advance in this "m-ness" world.

But what is "p-ness," you may want to know. As "metrosexuals" look to Gregory Peck and Steve McQueen to try to fathom what it is to be a "man," so too should the modern she-grouse look to intelligent, capable yet ladylike figures such as Julia Child or Margaret Thatcher to plan a return to the femininity that men so desire.

A woman's "p-ness" need not be rumpled and old-fashion. "P-ness" can be fresh and new and empowering to all that possess it, and ladies might be shocked to know that men like ladies who have "p-ness" too.

So as men take advice from women on how to be men, women should take advice from me.

Every woman should know that it is time to seize your "p-ness." Because, through "p-ness" the world is made a better place.

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell
COLLEGIAN

Jonas Hogg is a junior in sociology, international studies and Russian. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Moran works hard for Kansas citizens

LUCAS MADDY

Sixty-nine counties. Nearly 58,000 square miles. Millions of bushels of grain and pounds of beef and pork flow from the "Big First District," and somebody spilled a big glass of Moran all over the Kansas Congressional District map.

We often think of politicians as people too lazy to work and too scared to steal. The day I spent with Rep. Jerry Moran totally refutes the former. Whether or not he has the gall to kipe some milk money is undecided. Occupants of the First District of Kansas, I give you a day in the life of Jerry Moran.

6 a.m. – Moran wakes up and puts on gym clothes. His six-bedroom apartment is shared with five other congressmen. A short walk, made shorter by his feverish walking pace, gets him to the Rayburn House Office Building. He does not own or rent a car in Washington D.C.

9 a.m. – After working out in the House gym, Moran applies a suit and ascends to office 2443. The secretaries schedule appointments in 15-minute increments. The majority of appointments are simply visiting constituents.

11 a.m. – On the day I attended, the subcommittee on General Farm Commodities and Risk Management met, of which Moran is the chair. Though not from a farm background, his knowledge of agriculture issues is widely-respected.

Growing status and tenure moved Moran into a more prominent office in the Rayburn building. This also means the walk to the Capitol for votes is about five minutes longer. On my day, Moran made the trip three times, foregoing the tram less motion-inclined people use.

In about three hours in the office, Moran did three radio interviews by phone (only once using notes), met with more than half a dozen constituent groups, and found time to discuss farming, school and family with me. He and his secretary said it was a very slow day.

The interns handle mail from constituents. They also answer every single letter. If it concerns a common subject, they usually have a pre-made letter to send back. If it is about a new subject, they research it and consult with staff and the congressman to draft a new letter.

The doors close on the Rayburn building at 11 p.m. Moran often does not make it out before then. He flies home every weekend to meet with constituents and see his family. After flying back on Monday, he starts it all over again.

Everyone employed in his office is from Kansas. One of the staffers jokingly told me Jerry hates people who aren't from Kansas – there may be some truth in that. Not that he hates them; just that he doesn't like them nearly as well because Kansans are so cool.

Just thought you all might want to know: like him or not, our congressman works hard. No fat-cat politicking around a table with big cigars. Long hours and fast-paced, our Kansan is working hard at the Capitol.

Lucas Maddy is a senior in agriculture technology management. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

My liver is working faster than my waitress. This is not a good thing if you want to get drunk.

Hey RCPD, way to ticket SafeRide. That's great PR.

I'm pretty sure the fellow pilots would agree, K-State Aviation is the best major, we get to buzz the KU campus.

To the girl with her two friends at the Arby's on Bluemont after the game with the blonde hair, you're gorgeous. The guy sitting in the corner.

I bet your mom is pro-choice now.

Hooray, first down for the Wildcats. Oh wait, Yamon Figurs dropped another one.

Wow, so how many first downs would the offense have had if Yamon Figurs would have actually caught the ball?

Hey Yamon Figurs, catch the ball and we might actually get a first down.

We start on the 26 yard line and don't score. We have second-and-one on the five and we don't score. Horrible coaching is going to make this hurt for awhile.

Second-and-one, five yards from a touchdown, two chances to get one yard and our coaches make horrible play calls. At least push the quarterback forward once?

So why didn't we QB sneak at least twice on second-and-one on the five-yard line? That doesn't make sense to me.

I had a dream last night that I beat up Danny Bonaduce.

Haha, Collegian you thought you could sneak an anti-Republican remark in the Edge side column, but I caught you red-handed.

No, no. Jesus is not like Darth Vader.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Fundraiser benefits cancer research

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Every 13 minutes, a woman dies of breast cancer, according to about.com.

This is why Kennita Tully, owner of Wildflower Yarns and Knitwear, decided to support those who struggle with the battle against cancer with the national "Stitch to WIN Against Breast Cancer" campaign.

Dozens of local women gathered at Wildflower Yarns and Knitwear, 106 S. 4th Street, and stitched geode bags and chemo caps which they donated to cancer organizations, including the Johnson Center for Basic Cancer Research.

"The event is worthwhile because a lot of women are knitters," Tully said. "It affects many women."

Last year, Wildflower Yarns and Knitwear hosted the first "Stitch to WIN Against Breast Cancer" event, and nearly 300 knitted caps and scarves were donated.

For Meghann Lustgarten, second-year vet-med student, her contribution was more than just knitting a cap.

"A woman I worked with in Omaha died of cancer, and we decided to drop by," she said.

Lustgarten and friend Melissa Haase, second-year vet-med student, both said they consider themselves to be avid knitters. Haase said she considers knitting to be a craft anyone can learn.

"I had help, a lot of help on how to knit," she said. "It's really neat that (Lustgarten) was able to participate, to knit a few rows."

With events like this, Tully said she aims to increase awareness about breast cancer and give people an opportunity to donate toward local organizations assisting with the project.

Throughout the year, Tully said her business will continue to contribute to the national campaign, which aims to raise $250,000 toward breast cancer research and education.

"We've had a lot of community support with businesses and people," she said. "We brought in so much support with last year's event. This year I'm not going to speculate, but I am hoping for the best."

Breast Cancer Facts

- One in eight women, or 12.6 percent of all women, will get breast cancer in her lifetime.
- Breast cancer risk increases with age and every woman is at risk.
- Nearly 77 percent of women with breast cancer are over 50 years old.
- More than 1.7 million women who have had breast cancer are still alive in the United States.
- Breast cancer is the leading cause of cancer death in women between the ages of 15 and 54, and the second cause of cancer death in women 55 to 74.
- About 71 percent of black women diagnosed with breast cancer experience a five-year survival rate, while 86 percent of white women experience five-year survival.
- The first sign of breast cancer usually shows up on a woman's mammogram before it can be felt or any other symptoms are present.
- Risks for breast cancer include a family history, atypical hyperplasia, delaying pregnancy until after age 30 or never becoming pregnant, early menstruation (before age 12), late menopause (after age 55), current use or use in the last ten years of oral contraceptives and daily consumption of alcohol.

Source: www.about.com

Honor pledge violations increase by 38 percent

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Cheaters lose.

At least that's what Phil Anderson, former K-State honor system director, said about honor system violators.

"The primary purpose of the honor system is to promote academic honesty as the cornerstone of our university's academic integrity," Anderson said. "It's to educate. People need to realize it's important."

In Anderson's annual honor system report, he said during the 2004-2005 school year honor system violations increased 38 percent.

"The increase in cases doesn't mean that there is an increase in cheating," Anderson said. "All it means is that there is increased awareness of the system, that more reports are coming in."

In a recent report to Faculty Senate, Anderson said of the 123 honor system violations, most were standard to his expectations.

"Plagiarizing was the single most common Honor Pledge violation and was the chief factors in 77 cases," he said. "Usually the plagiarized source was from the Internet and faculty have become more adept at detecting those transgressions."

Other Honor Pledge violations include students sharing classwork, using false interviews in reports, falsifying a returned test, claiming to have completed an exam in a large lecture class, saying papers were inaccurately graded and falsely claiming to have attended a class by having a friend sign the attendance roster.

With the substantial increase in violations, Anderson said teachers are trying to crack down these cases. Numerous faculty have shown interest in subscribing to Turnitin.com, a Web site that detects plagiarized work. The site costs $12,000 annually for K-State to access.

While teachers may crack down on cheating, Afton Smith, sophomore in sociology, said technology will beat out the teachers.

"In a large class, students have more potential to cheat with the access of technology in classrooms today," Smith said. "Personally, I don't think teachers will find them all.

"Some students are so desperate that they'll do anything for a good grade," Smith said

Some students, however, forget the honor code is to benefit them in the long run, Naomi Moka-Moliki, junior in electronic journalism, said.

"People should protect themselves," she said. "If I came up with something, something I created myself, I would want something to protect me."

Students are starting to realize the value of the system, especially once they are aware of the consequences, Anderson said. "Students are really the ones with the responsibility in the honor system, telling teachers about the problem."

Overall, Anderson said the honor system could improve and students and teachers should communicate about what they consider a violation.

"Faculty need to make certain, to clearly articulate their expectations to the students," he said. "If a student leaves a classroom and talks about the exam they just took, they might be violating the honor code. But if a teacher blatantly says, 'don't talk about the exam,' they should violate it."

Throughout Anderson's seven years as honors system director, he said the system isn't to intimidate students.

"In our most serious honor code violation this year, we had a student who altered his grades," Anderson said. "In cases like this, it was a positive outcome. We've had any number of students that realize their mistakes that lead them to an unethical direction, but they learned."

Honor pledge violations

By College:
- Arts and Sciences — 45
- Engineering — 37
- Agriculture — 21
- Human Ecology — 18
- Business Administration — 14
- Education — 9
- Architecture — 3

By Class size:
- Large class (More than 100 students) — 20
- Medium class (25-99 students) — 49
- Small class (1-24) — 82
- Distance education (Internet courses) — 2

By academic year:
- Freshman — 42
- Sophomores — 29
- Juniors — 44
- Seniors — 38
- Graduate students — 8

By sex:
- Male — 109
- Female — 53

Source: Phil Anderson, former director of the honor system

NISTAC contract approved by city

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Manhattan City Commission unanimously approved a $4 million construction contract for the National Institute For Strategic Technology Acquisition and Commercialization last week.

Cheney Construction of Manhattan gave the lowest bid for the project and should start the construction process of the 30,000 square foot building in mid to late November. The building will be located at the K-State Research Park site.

City Commissioner Tom Phillips said he is glad the construction is ready to begin.

"I wasn't on the City Commission when initially approved, wondering if a project like this is appropriate for the city," Phillips said. "But it's a very successful business in town – to facilitate entrepreneurs to capitalize on their research and service to us."

NISTAC is a nonprofit corporation created by K-State and the State of Kansas via the Kansas Technology Enterprise in 1994. It was begun to expand the technology industry and develop start-up companies.

Once developed, NISTAC officials said the company will provide 200 jobs for the area, with annual salaries averaging about $45,000.

While the facility gained much support at last week's meeting, Phillips said the city planned around a possible fall-out of the site.

"The city will still own the building and our risk isn't limited," he said.

If the NISTAC business doesn't succeed, Phillips said the city will be able to use the building for other purposes.

Though Manhattan mayor Ed Klimek supported constructing the NISTAC building, at the meeting he questioned other investments in the building.

"I'm not sure how far we go in furnishing the building," he said.

Ron Fehr, Manhattan City Manager, said the commission will review NISTAC furnishings, among other NISTAC business, at a later date.

"Things are exciting, though, and I'm glad we're starting up this process," Phillips said.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Terror worried about too often

I'd like to commend Addie Laue for her piece in Friday's Collegian. We do live in a culture of fear, brought upon us by a vaguely paranoid government and a hyperactive media.

Ms. Laue should be cautious to read into the Halloween flyer a change brought about by our recent bout with terrorism.

There was a time, when trick-or-treaters received cookies. Next, store-bought candy, then wrapped candy, and now we X-ray our children's candy. Who actually knows someone who has ever been injured by tainted candy?

The irony in the culture of fear is those who live in secure places are frequently the most paranoid. I just moved to Manhattan from an urban environment where parents had far more on their minds than the source of their kids' school treats.

Only those who build walls between themselves and the world and take their news via their glazed-over eyeballs could get so overly excited about such a remote threat to their precious little children.

The galling part of such a flyer is that most parents take it in stride. I would not want to be the teacher that presents such a ridiculous request.

As a parent of two young children, I refuse to raise them to believe everyone is a potential suspect, including the parents of their school friends. I'd like them to have a somewhat rosier picture of the world. Depravity is not new to the world; children and innocents have been victims for millennia. Why pretend that somehow we are different from those who came before us?

Dale Askey
WEB DEVELOPMENT LIBRARIAN
KSU LIBRARIES

The Collegian is available at
112 locations near you.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
532-6560

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

More Shoes, More Service, More Friendly
A steady throb of versatility, adaptability & performance. Delivers instinctive reaction to hard use and varying, multi-sport demands.
MERRELL
Brown's SHOE Fit Co.
New Business Hours • Mon.-Sat. 9 AM - 6 PM
311 Poyntz Ave. • 776-6612 • Downtown Manhattan

Where is LSP
Leadership Studies Programs
Course Prefix is Now
EDLST
• Enter Course Schedule Online
• College of Education
• Educational Leadership
• Scroll to bottom to find "EDLST"
Questions? Call 532-6085

October 25
Christmas in October!
Come celebrate with us on Tuesday, October 25
One Day Only!
25% OFF* your $25.00 or more purchase
* Some exclusions apply. See store for details. Cannot be comined with other offers or coupons.
Rod's Hallmark
1300 Westloop
Open 9am-8pm Tuesday, October 25th

FREE DIGITAL PHOTOGRAPHY CLASSES!
Whether you're new to photography or an experienced shooter, Wolfe's Digital Photography Class will give you a head start or an outstanding review of photography. Here's your chance to really enjoy your new digital camera and all of its necessary accessories. Experience photography like you've never experienced it before... with information you can use! Let Steve Wilde of Wolfe's show you how to do it right!
- Classes Held At -
VARNEY'S BOOK STORE
623 N. Manhattan Ave.
(785) 539-0511
* Meet in Technology Center *
Monday, October 24, 2005 at 7:00 p.m.
Wolfe's
VARNEY'S

k-state
K-State's Scholarship Workshop
Tuesday, October 25, 2005
K-State Student Union
Invest some time that could pay off later! Attend K-State's Scholarship Workshop.
5:30 to 6 p.m., Union Ballroom
Browse the scholarship expo to learn about college and community scholarships. Fill out an online scholarship application.
6 to 7 p.m., Union Ballroom
Hear presentations by the experts. You'll identify scholarship sources, learn to write a winning application, and get the inside scoop on financial aid.
For more information
Office of Student Financial Assistance
www.k-state.edu/sfa
Adult Student Services
www.k-state.edu/adult
K-STATE STUDENT UNION
upc

SPORTS

Longhorns down Wildcats in 4 games

By Mark Potter
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State's recent struggles against Texas continued Saturday in Austin, Texas, as the Longhorns defeated the Wildcats 3-1 (30-25, 24-30, 30-27, 30-21).

No. 16 Texas dropped No. 23 K-State for the second time this season. The Wildcats have not defeated the Longhorns in Austin since Nov. 7, 2001.

Coach Suzie Fritz said K-State came close to pulling off an upset, but Texas was simply too much.

"I thought we competed very well," Fritz said. "We came out and we were very aggressive, and we served extremely well. But I think there are some little details that we are lacking."

Game one was back and forth, producing 10 lead changes and 15 ties. However, Texas finished with a 5-0 run to win 30-25.

K-State was down 19-15 in game two until it went on a 7-0 run to lead 22-19, forcing Texas to take a timeout. Following the break, the Wildcats stretched their lead and won 30-24.

K-State led 20-15 in game three before Texas climbed ahead 25-24. The game remained close, yet Texas won 30-27, building a two game to one advantage.

Texas finished the Wildcats 30-21 in game four to win the match.

The Longhorns out-hit K-State .264 to .148 and out-blocked the Wildcats 26 to 17. Texas committed only two blocking errors compared

See VOLLEYBALL Page 8

Fans should show more support

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The scene Saturday at KSU Stadium was appalling.

It was disgusting, embarrassing and downright pathetic.

MICHAEL ASHFORD

But in no way are these words intended for the K-State football team. At least they had enough heart and character to play until the last seconds trickled away.

What was disturbing was the performance of the fans.

In a game that had a huge effect on whether K-State would return to a bowl game this year, the fans, particularly the students, let this team down.

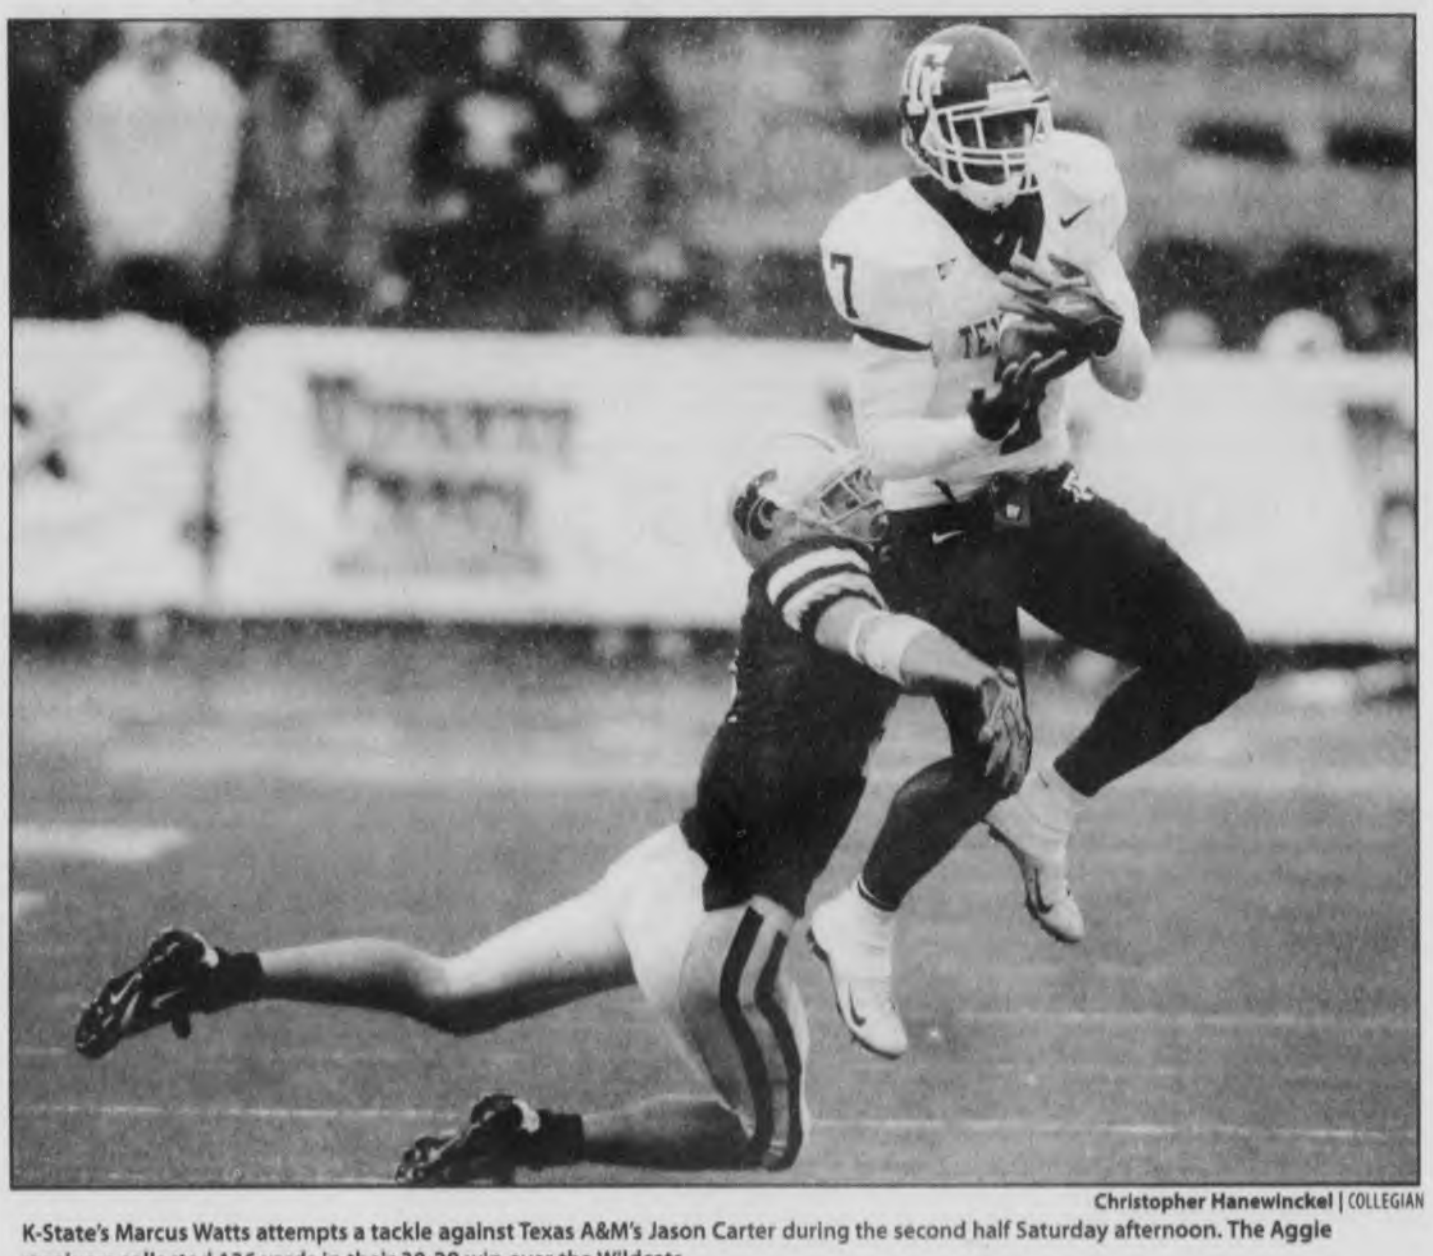
How could only 45,915 fans show up? How could almost an entire section of the student allotment be empty after halftime? How could the once-deafening roar of 50,000 K-State fans be nothing more than an afterthought?

The answer is simple: K-State fans have become so spoiled, so jaded, that anything less than 11 wins and a bowl game is reason to bail on their team.

To the 20,000 or so fans who left after Texas A&M scored a touchdown to go ahead 30-21, and even those students who bailed out after halftime and never returned, you let this K-State football team down.

Last week, senior offensive lineman Jeromey Clary beamed with pride when he spoke of KSU Stadium and the fans. He went as far to say 50,000 Wildcats fans sounded louder than 84,000 Oklahoma fans.

My question is: Where did that go? Because on Saturday, it was nonexistent.



It sure was easy to fill KSU Stadium when the Cats were consistently in the top 20 of the national rankings. I guess that's the magic of bandwagon fans.

Now more than ever, this team needs fan support, and it didn't

See COLUMN Page 6

Texas A&M 30 | K-State 28

Digging a hole

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

K-State's Marcus Watts attempts a tackle against Texas A&M's Jason Carter during the second half Saturday afternoon. The Aggie receivers collected 136 yards in their 30-28 win over the Wildcats.

Texas A&M capitalizes on early mistakes, penalties

By Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The start of Saturday's game was an all too familiar beginning of a K-State Big 12 Conference home game.

Just like they did against Kansas, the Wildcats gave up 30-yards in penalties on the opponents' opening drive, and safety Marcus Watts was whistled once again for a personal foul after the first play from scrimmage.

Unlike the Jayhawks, Texas A&M capitalized on the Wildcats' early mistakes and won.

Texas A&M quarterback Reggie McNeal took the third play from scrimmage to the endzone, going 26 yards untouched to give the Aggies the 7-0 lead, and once again put K-State into a hole to start a game.

The run came after Watts was penalized for a late hit. The Aggies were already in good field position after Yamon Figurs was penalized for kick catch interference on K-State's punt after the Wildcat offense went three and out on its opening drive.

"It's discipline, and discipline falls right back into my lap," coach Bill Snyder said. "You have to have the discipline to make the right decisions and do the right things that don't put your team in jeopardy. Now there are a couple of them (penalties) that I take issue with just being on the sidelines, but by and large, it still falls into the category of not to get penalized, and that's something that a player has control of."

In total, K-State was whistled eight times for 99 yards against Texas A&M. Six of the penalties came in the first half. In four conference

See FOOTBALL Page 10

Rushing woes

■ In Big 12 Conference play, the Wildcats have more penalty yards than rushing yards. K-State has 106 more penalty yards than rushing yards, and are only averaging 62 yards per game on the ground in conference play.

K-State loses control of own destiny

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With K-State's 30-28 loss Saturday to Texas A&M, the Wildcats' future was ripped from their hands.

For the second consecutive year, K-State (4-3, 1-3 Big 12) will finish the year without a regular-season win against a Big 12 Conference South opponent.

The only remaining chance for K-State to beat a South team would be if the Wildcats make it to the Big 12 Championship Game, but that scenario could be considered a long shot.

Big 12 North co-leader Colorado improved to 3-1 in conference play Saturday with its 44-13 win over Kansas. That includes two victories over Big 12 South opponents Oklahoma State and Texas A&M.

"We don't control our own destiny," sophomore wide receiver Jordy Nelson said. "We've got to hope Colorado loses games now. That's not a good feeling to be in when you're trying to win the Big 12 North, because you can't control what Colorado does."

The Wildcats will get the first crack at knocking Colorado from its spot atop the division, as the Buffaloes visit KSU Stadium Saturday in the Wildcats' All-University Homecoming game.

"They're a great team," Nelson said. "Hopefully we can beat them. That's just not good when you put what's going to happen to you later in the season on other teams. We want to control our own destiny, and we lost that (Saturday). We need to come back next week and get focused and win out, and hopefully we'll go to a bowl game."

K-State's situation is not entirely unlike the one it faced last season, when the Wildcats entered the Colorado game with a 4-5 record overall, a 2-4 Big 12 record and an outside shot at winning the Big 12 North title if they could win their remaining two games.

However, the Wildcats lost 38-31 to the Buffaloes on a last-second, 64-yard touchdown pass from Colorado quarterback Joel Klatt to Ron Monteilh that dropped the Wildcats out of championship contention. K-State lost 37-23 the next week to Iowa State at home to finish the season 4-7.

"It sounds like a broken record, but I can remember going into the last two games last season wondering how we could be so bad and still control our own destiny," coach Bill Snyder said. "We could have won the North Division and played in the championship game, and we had control over that. We fiddled away two opportunities.

"Now, that exists in something we couldn't do last year, and that is go to a bowl game. That's next on the poll. Now there are some must-wins in that category."

For K-State to be eligible for a bowl game, the Wildcats must find a way to win two of their last four games to reach the six-win mark – the point where a team is considered eligible for a bowl game.

"We'll come ready to play, and we'll come ready to work on Monday," sophomore free safety Marcus Watts said. "It's going to be a challenge. Colorado's a very good team. We're frustrated right now, but we're not down.

"We'll use that frustration to make things positive," he said.

ABOVE: Defensive end Tearrius George combines with Derek Marso, bottom, for a sack during the first half of K-State's 30-28 loss to Texas A&M.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

LEFT: Sophomore wide receiver Jordy Nelson, runs down the line as Texas A&M defensive back Devin Gregg tries to tackle him during the Wildcats' loss to the Aggies Saturday afternoon. The Wildcats will play their next game against Colorado on Oct. 29.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

World Series Scores

Houston	6
Chicago Sox	7

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | K-State announces 1:10 p.m., start for Colorado

The Wildcats' game Saturday against Colorado at KSU Stadium will start at 1:10 p.m.

There will be no live television for the game, marking the third consecutive season that K-State's matchup against the Buffaloes will not be televised as part of the Big 12 Conference's weekly package.

Either K-State or Colorado has won the Big 12 North Division every year since 2000, with the Wildcats playing the league's title game in 2000 and 2003 and the Buffaloes representing the North in 2001, 2002 and 2004.

The game will air live on radio over the K-State Sports Network with Wyatt Thompson calling the action and Stan Weber providing the analysis.

ATH | Weiser inducted into ESU Hall of Honor

K-State Athletics Director Tim Weiser was one of five individuals inducted into the Emporia State University Athletics Hall of Honor Saturday.

Weiser

Weiser, in his fifth year as the Wildcats' AD, is a 1981 graduate of Emporia State. He also received a master's from ESU in 1982.

While at Emporia State, Weiser pitched two seasons for the Hornets and led ESU to a pair of CSIC and NAIA District 10 championships.

A native of Great Bend, Kan., Weiser attended the Hall of Honor induction ceremonies at Emporia State Saturday morning prior to Kansas State's game against Texas A&M.

The Associated Press

CAR | Gordon wins; Stewart takes points lead

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Jeff Gordon held on in a three-lap dash with Tony Stewart, who still grabbed a 15-point lead over third-place finisher Jimmie Johnson in the Chase for the Championship Sunday at Martinsville Speedway.

Gordon

Gordon, a four-time champion who didn't qualify for the 10-race, Nextel Cup playoff, completed a sweep of the season's two races on the half-mile speedway — the oldest, shortest and tightest run in NASCAR's premier stock car series.

The runner-up finish was the second in a row for Stewart here.

NFL | Rams defensive tackle kicked out of game

ST. LOUIS — Rams defensive tackle Damione Lewis was ejected in the first quarter of Sunday's game after punching a New Orleans Saints player after the whistle.

Replays appeared to show Lewis giving center LeCharles Bentley a hard left to the groin region with 8:41 to go. Lewis, a first-round pick in 2001, does not start but is part of a rotation in the interior line.

NFL | San Antonio is team's likely home next season

Saints owner Tom Benson declared this week that nothing will be decided on the franchise's future until after the season. But ESPN's Chris Mortensen reports that the team has probably played its last game in New Orleans.

According to Mortensen, San Antonio is a likely home for 2006 and Los Angeles is the preferred destination beyond that. The NFL could still include New Orleans as a Super Bowl site when the city is reconstructed, and expansion might even be a possibility, but that's 10 to 15 years away.

College Football AP Top 10

1. Southern Cal	7-0
2. Texas	7-0
3. Virginia Tech	7-0
4. Georgia	7-0
5. Alabama	7-0
6. Miami (Fla.)	5-1
7. LSU	5-1
8. UCLA	7-0
9. Notre Dame	5-2
10. Florida State	6-1
Other Big 12 teams:
17. Texas Tech	6-1

Brain freeze

'Stay' may confuse audiences, retains artistic elements

"Stay"
★★★☆☆
Movie review by J. Scott Bowman

Warning – if you go see the movie "Stay," do not take any drugs.

In fact, don't think about drugs.

I went fairly sober, and I'm not sure, but I think I had two strokes, an aneurysm and, when I finally came to, I think I was bleeding from my eye sockets.

I'm not saying the movie is bad, it is a good movie, and it is art, but it is a movie that could quite possibly melt your brain if you are not properly mentally prepared.

Henry Letham (Ryan Gosling) is a depressed college student who hears voices and plans on killing himself "Saturday at midnight," the night of his 21st birthday.

Sam Foster (Ewan McGregor) is a psychiatrist who is trying to help Henry and is filling in for Dr. Beth Levy (Janeane Garofalo) who is taking time off due to a mental breakdown.

Henry can predict trivial events in the future. He also claims his parents are dead, but eventually, Henry meets Sam's friend Leon and swears that Leon is his father.

Take a moment and let that sink in.

This was one of several confusing situations in the movie.

Another interesting tidbit is that later on, Henry is Sam and Sam is Henry, the real Sam talks to Henry's dead mother and gets bitten by a dog that was euthanized years ago.

If that explanation hurts your brain at all, then the surprise ending will leave you catatonic.

Besides the several tricks the movie plays on the audience, the movie is art.

The cinematography was great and surreal scenes, such as Sam chasing after Henry, play with the mind but are beautifully shot.

It is also full of art.

There are several paintings, some by Henry who is a fine arts student and a talented painter. Sam's girlfriend Lila (Naomi Watts) is also a painter, and there are a lot of artistic references that most people can't comprehend, except for a reading of Shakespeare's "Hamlet."

McGregor plays a great, curious psychiatrist, and he seems to truly care about Henry and his girlfriend and pretty much everything else.

Gosling is intense on the screen. He is smart, creative and creepy.

The acting, cinematography and writing are great but the plot completely depends on your IQ.

If you are dumb, and you survive watching the movie, you will probably be confused for the rest of your life.

However, if you are somewhat intelligent, you will probably notice that the plot works on several layers and is very complex.

Director Ryan Forster (who also directed "Finding Neverland" and "Monster's Ball") plays with reality and illusion with "Stay." He created a great piece of art with this movie, but it's too bad it will probably leave most of the audience confused.

For instance, everything I described happening in the movie is wiped clean with the surprise ending, and what one thinks to be reality isn't quite what it seems.

Photos courtesy 20th Century Fox

Fast food restaurants offer healthier options to customers

By Holly Kramer
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With Americans eating fast food each day and many people looking for quick, healthy options, fast-food restaurants are adding healthier items to their menus.

One in four Americans eat fast food each day, according to www.helpguide.org, and companies are now posting nutrition facts online.

Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers has a nutrition guide on its Web site that offers customers tips for healthier eating.

Some of the tips include getting a side salad with nonfat dressing and either a bowl of chili, a junior hamburger or a plain baked potato to keep calories low. The Web site also said to choose low-fat condiments and toppings like ketchup, lettuce, tomatoes and mustard.

"I like how Wendy's gives you the choice of sides, like baked potatoes and salad," Jenny Vruwink, junior in accounting, said. "I think (healthy choices) are popular because people still want to eat out, but they might be lying to themselves about how healthy they really are. I think if people are going to go out, they should order some grease."

McDonald's offers low-fat sandwiches and salads in addition to hamburgers and french fries.

"I always choose (healthier items) because I don't (like) the grease," Becca Fisher, senior in accounting, said. "I would rather have the choice going to a fast food restaurant to choose healthier items. A lot of my friends and my fiancé always choose them."

Burger King has also joined the healthy trend by adding low-fat items to its menu.

Its nutrition brochure has several ideas to cut fat and calories from its meal choices.

The brochure suggests ordering a side salad instead of fries with a meal, or choosing ham instead of sausage on breakfast sandwiches and asking for burgers without cheese.

"It can give people a false sense of security, but I don't think there's anything wrong with restaurants having healthier menus," said Graham Fox, junior in pre-professional secondary education. "People shouldn't rely on fast food to make them healthy."

Photo illustration by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Healthy alternatives at McDonald's include a fruit/yogurt parfait or a grilled chicken sandwich without mayonnaise. Wendy's offers a side salad with low-fat honey mustard dressing, a bowl of chili, plain baked potato or a junior hamburger.

MOVIE QUOTES

Courtesy art

"Oh, Shrek. Don't worry. Things just seem bad because it's dark and rainy and Fiona's father hired a sleazy hitman to whack you."
Donkey ("Shrek 2")

"You're about as useful as a poopy-flavored lollipop"
Patches O'Houlihan ("Dodgeball: A True Underdog Story")

"Momma always says there's an awful lot you could tell about a person by their shoes. Where they're going. Where they've been. I've worn lots of shoes. I bet if I think about it real hard I could remember my first pair of shoes. Momma said they'd take me anywhere. She said they was my magic shoes."
Forrest Gump ("Forrest Gump")

Hanks

"I tried taking pictures, but they were so mediocre. I guess every girl goes through a photography phase. You know, horses ... taking pictures of your feet."
Charlotte ("Lost in Translation")

"This city is headed for a disaster of biblical proportions."
Dr. Peter Venkman ("Ghostbusters")

"But first you have to give up. First, you have to know, not fear, know that someday you are going to die. Until you know that, you are useless."
Tyler Durden ("Fight Club")

Pitt

CELEBRITY QUOTES

Courtesy art

"I tried college for three months, but I was desperately unhappy. I just wanted to perform. I was getting straight As but I had no friends and cried every day."
Keira Knightley (actor)

"When me and Eminem are in the studio, all we're thinking about is, who can we piss off next?"
Dr. Dre (musician)

Dre

"If I hadn't gotten into entertainment, I always thought I'd be a street person."
D'Arcy Wretzky (musician)

"I would not want to live in a country that would have me as a leader in any sort of political bent."
Tom Hanks (actor)

"Everybody smokes! Models, actresses, everyone! Don't they realize that it's gross? I understand it's an addiction, but it still pains me to see my friends do it."
Kirsten Dunst (actor)

Dunst

"No one is immune to the trials and tribulations of life."
Martin Lawrence (actor)

Source: www.saidwhat.co.uk

Equestrian suffers 1st loss of season to Black Hawk

By Jessica Barnard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"We just were not focused overall as a team. We were careless and unprepared."

Sarah Haltom
SENIOR

The equestrian team saw a new side of competition Saturday, because for the first time this season they didn't have a victory.

The Western riders traveled to Springfield, Mo., to compete at the Missouri State Western Show, in an Intercollegiate Horse Show Association match-up against other schools in their region.

The Western team competed in two shows this weekend, with both the qualifying and the final show taking place on Saturday.

The riders started the day by losing the first show. Coach Teresa Slough said the loss was a result of lack of focus.

"We had such a big lead in the region, we had practiced well, we were too relaxed and too comfortable with our lead, we weren't focused," Slough said.

Black Hawk College, K-State Equestrian's rival, beat the Wildcats for the first time this season in the first show Saturday morning by a final score of 24-16.

"Black Hawk is always tough," Slough said. "They kind of kicked us."

The Black Hawk team was high-point team in the first show, with the high-point rider from Black Hawk College as well.

Senior Sarah Haltom said the loss was caused by mental errors and mistakes.

"We just were not focused overall as a team," Haltom said. "We were careless and unprepared."

Although the team suffered its first loss on Saturday morning, it gained focus and made a comeback to win the final show on Saturday afternoon.

Slough said the loss was a wake-up call, causing the team to come back to competition more focused and ready to ride.

The team earned 38 points in the second competition, beating second-place Missouri State with 20 points.

Riders shared high-point honors, while K-State finished the second show as high-point team.

Haltom said the team regained its focus and won the second show because of Slough.

"We had a little pep talk from the coaches, and we did not want to have another loss like we had in the first show," Haltom said, "We got in the zone and got prepared. It was important to maintain our lead over Black Hawk."

Because this was an IHSA competition, each show had its own results. Therefore, there was no overall first-place finish. Although the team is no longer undefeated, Slough said she is not worried about the team's overall standings in the region.

"We've got a 35 point lead on Black Hawk and then Missouri State is way far back, like 60 points behind," Slough said.

Even with such a large lead in the region, Haltom said she was a dissatisfied with the weekend.

"I wouldn't say necessarily I was disappointed with specific individuals, some people did a great job and pulled their weight," Haltom said, "But overall, yeah, I was a little disappointed. We were undefeated. I was hoping we would be able to keep that."

Wildcats ready for last tourney

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After a week off, the K-State men's golf team has geared up to participate in the last tournament of the fall season.

The Wildcats will travel to Lakeside, Calif., to play in the Barona Collegiate Cup today and Tuesday.

The tournament will be played on the par-72, 7,088-yard Barona Creek Golf Club and will consist of 18 teams, including defending-champion BYU and host school San Diego State.

The weather for the practice rounds over the weekend was overcast, but the forecast is sunny for the opening round today.

Coach Tim Norris said he did not expect this to slow down his players.

"The change from practicing in overcast weather to sunny tournament weather will not affect these guys," Norris said. "They have played enough golf to be able to adapt to any changes in the weather."

In their last tournament, on Oct. 10-11, at the Alister MacKenzie Invitational, K-State slipped six spots after a final-round 302 to finish 12th.

The Wildcats hope to rebound on that performance, and senior Ben Kern said he feels confident about his and his teammates' chances this week.

"I was a little skeptical after that last round," Kern said. "But the week off has been good for myself and my teammates. I got a chance to finally relax for a week, and to catch up on everything. Now my swing feels good and my putting is coming back.

"That final round is the last thing on my mind. In order to play well, I need to go out and get a good display of putting."

Kern, senior Tyler Cummins, sophomore Kyle Yonker and freshman Robert Streb are four of the five players participating this week, and all played in the Alister MacKenzie Invitational.

Freshman Joe Kinney is the only golfer who did not play at Alister, but he used the extra week to his advantage, he said, making necessary improvements on his swing.

"I got one more week off than the other guys did," Kinney said. "I would rather have been with my teammates on the course the last time out, but the time off has not been bad, it's actually been refreshing.

"I was able to take care of things with my swing that I needed to fix and now I'm ready to go."

COLUMN | Fans should give all they've got at games

Continued from Page 6

happen Saturday.

K-State fans were spoiled by the six, 11-win seasons from 1997-2003. The K-State students have made the games a joke, using them more as an excuse to get drunk by halftime rather than cheer on a football team in need of fan support, especially from its classmates.

Have K-State fans forgotten what coach Bill Snyder did for this program?

For the last decade and a half, K-State was dominant because the teams didn't want to return to the pre-Snyder days – the days when K-State was the laughing stock of the college football world.

The fans knew this, were passionate and filled KSU Stadium every Saturday.

Now, it's considered a good crowd if 45,000 show up.

This K-State football team is desperately trying to correct the mistakes of the 2004 season. While the team may be young and prone to miscues, the fans are an integral part of helping this team break away from last season.

The Wildcats are two games away from being bowl eligible, and a rowdy crowd at home could help K-State earn those two wins.

For the fans who once prided themselves on being some of the best fans in the nation, start acting like it and get out to the games. Once you're there, stay in your seat until the last snap.

Give this team all you've got, because the Wildcats will be doing no less.

Michael Ashford is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

VOLLEYBALL | Lilliom leads K-State with 16 kills

Continued from Page 6

to K-State's 10. The Wildcats, however, tallied 11 service aces, while Texas could muster just three.

Junior middle blocker Joy Hamlin said the Wildcats could have won the match but lacked focus.

"I felt like we were in it and we were playing really well, and then we let a few small details get away from us," Hamlin said.

Sophomore middle blocker Rita Lilliom said losing to Texas for the second time this season was disappointing, especially because K-State played poorly in game four.

"We did not put ourselves in position to win the match," Lilliom said. "In the last game, we let them do whatever they wanted. We tried to keep up with them, but we couldn't do it."

Lilliom, who has earned more playing time of late, led the Wildcats with a career-high 16 kills. The Budapest, Hungary, native also added eight digs and two service aces.

Fritz said Lilliom played well in all aspects.

"She took some big swings," Fritz said. "She had a pretty tough match-up against a 6-foot-5 blocker. It was probably her best performance yet."

Hamlin contributed with 13 kills and five blocks, and led K-State with a .571 hitting percentage.

Fritz said Hamlin had been struggling somewhat, but showed improvement Saturday.

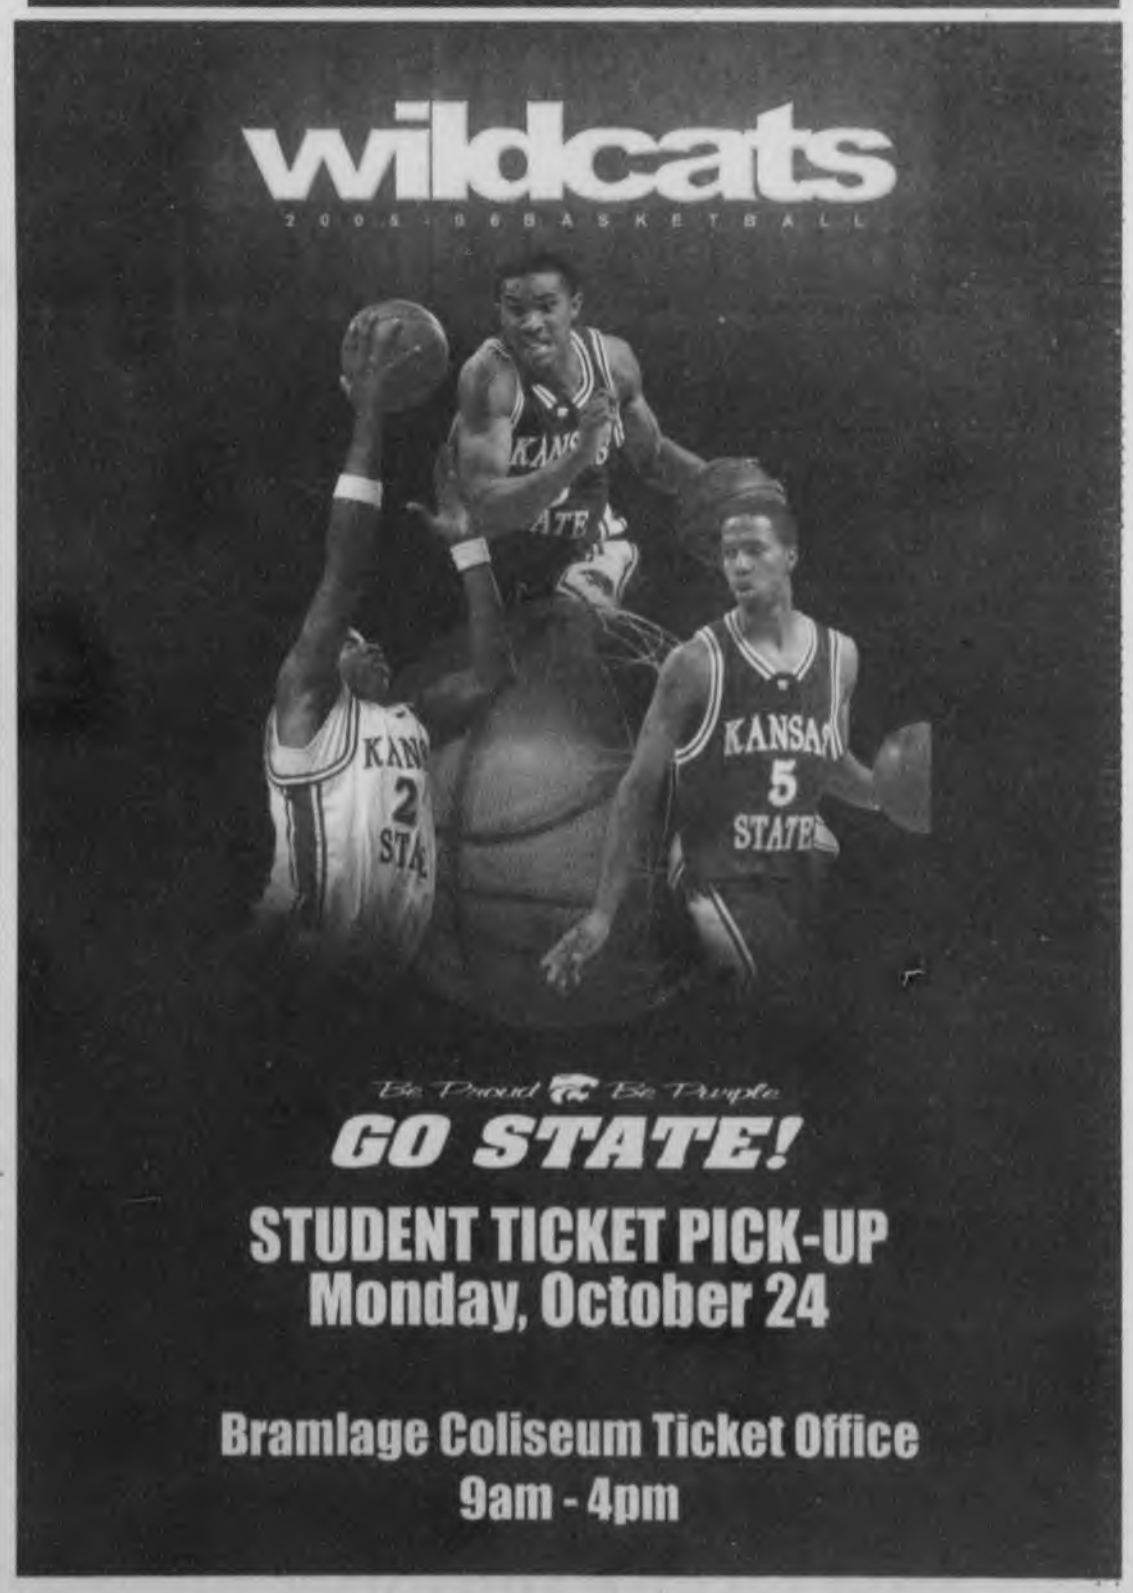
"Joy got her rhythm back again," Fritz said. "She was getting up on time and getting on the ball nice and fast, hitting with some range and making herself available in transition. It was nice to see her get back on track."

K-State's next match will take place 7 p.m. Wednesday at Ahearn Field House against No. 10 Missouri.

kstatecollegian.com

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips with student ID and coupon expires 11/28/05
KNAILS 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444

WiN. Ksu.Edu



Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

NOW OPEN FOR DINNER
Monday-Friday
4:30 p.m.-8 p.m.
•Nightly Specials•
•Same breakfast & lunch hours•
EARLY EDITION
3210 Kimball Ave.
Candlewood Shopping Center

Try our NEW DAGWOOD CLUB
Ham, Turkey, Roast Beef, Cheese, & choice of toppings and sauces
1131 MORO • 537-3995
The Pita Pit FRESH THINKING HEALTHY EATING

Garters are removable so you can wear the corset out.
Patricia's UNDERCOVER Lingerie
NOW on 4th St!
Poyntz
110 S. 4th
S. 4th

e-CHUG
An Online Alcohol Use Self-Screening Instrument
KSU Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service offers KSU students free access to the e-CHUG (electronic Check-Up to Go). The e-CHUG is a brief assessment tool that takes about 6-7 minutes to complete, is self-guided, requires no face-to-face contact time with a counselor, is completely anonymous, and provides immediate individual feedback.
To take the e-CHUG go to: www.ksu.edu/counseling

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810. (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628. (785)341-4073.

115 Rooms Available

ROOM FOR rent until January. $250. Two-bedroom at Chase. Call (951)764-8840.

120 For Rent- Houses

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ROOMMATE NEEDED for two-bedroom apartment. Very clean/ nice, pets allowed. Great landlords, available now- May 31. Call (913)220-5854.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

120 For Rent- Houses

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

1978 SCHULTZ mobile home, 14X72. Three-bedroom, two bath. $6100 or best offer. (785)458-9734.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

MALE STUDENT roommate wanted to share nice mobile home starting now or spring semester. $175/ month plus utilities. Call (620)331-0147, leave detailed message.

ROOMMATE WANTED: $250/ month. One block from Aggieville , two from campus. Available immediately. (816)810-5953.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE/ MALE subleaser for spring/ summer semester(s), nice house, walk to campus, washer/ dryer, $290/ month plus utilities. Call (316)706-7272

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage -disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

TWO-BEDROOM, ONE bath apartment. Water, trash, and cable paid. $480/ month. (785)587-9638.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS. Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer

GRADUATE ASSISTANT, Bachelor's Degree Completion Program, KSU Division of Continuing Education. Facilitate undergraduates in K-State's external degree program, Bachelor's Degree Completion. Required: Hold a bachelor's degree and be accepted into a graduate degree program at KSU. Have excellent oral and written communications skills, good interpersonal skills and good attention to detail. Have experience in word-processing, e-mail and computer applications. Preferred: Have experience advising adult non-traditional undergraduate students and be able to work with minimum supervision. Have experience using KSU's SIS system and database software. Request a detailed position description at 226 College Court or call (785)532-5575. Applications will be accepted October 24-November 4. Applicants should submit a letter of application, a resume, and name, addresses, and phone numbers of three references. Starting date: January of 2006.

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

MANPOWER IS now accepting applications for office position in Alma. Weekends only, $9/ hour. Apply in person at 555 Poyntz Ave. Suite 245.

NOW HIRING. Vista Drive In, a locally owned and operated quick service restaurant is adding to our team. Individuals must have a positive attitude and be able to multitask and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We have multiple part-time positions available some daytime hours preferred. KSU students encouraged. Insurance benefits available. We offer meal discounts, flexible hours and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air-conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape, 73k asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744. www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866.

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300, (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

McDonald's Crew Positions

CREW POSITIONS AVAILABLE
Full time and part time
Above average pay
Flexible schedule
Hiring for ALL shifts, including 3rd Shift (11p - 7a)
Uniforms provided
Reduced meals
Advancement opportunities

Come join the team at McDonald's.
Please apply in person at
MANHATTAN: 615 N 3rd Street or 1011 Westloop Place
JUNCTION CITY: I-70 & Washington Street or 416 W 6th Street

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Need a roommate? Advertise. It works.
Kedzie 103 • 532-6555

Graphic Design Internship
Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

Advertising Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Got it? Don't want it? Sell it.

Sell your stuff to Collegian readers by placing an ad in the classified section. Anything and everything goes!

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Call 532-6560

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

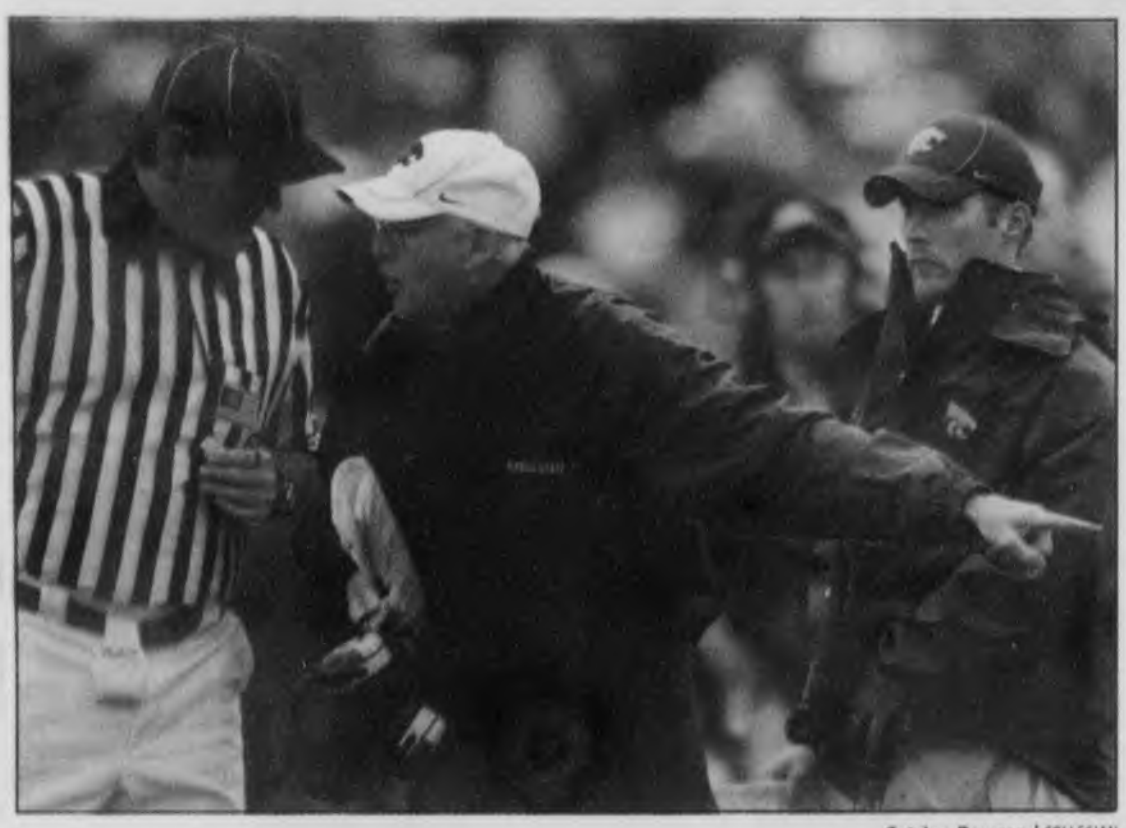
FREE FOUND ADS

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS



If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board
100 housing/ real estate
200 service directory
300 employment opportunities
400 open market
500 transportation
600 travel/ trips

FOOTBALL | Wildcats unable to contain Aggies

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

K-State head coach Bill Snyder argues with a referee Saturday afternoon during the Wildcats' game against Texas A&M. The Wildcats lost 30-28.

Continued from Page 6

games, the Wildcats are averaging nine penalties for almost 88 yards a game.

"It seems like we never get a break, but I guess we have to be more disciplined," linebacker Brandon Archer said.

Penalties were a problem, but they were not the only things that went wrong for K-State. The Wildcats had trouble all game containing the Texas A&M offense, especially on third down.

The Aggies converted 10-of-22 third downs, extending their drives nearly half the time they were faced with a third-down situation.

On the other hand, the Wildcats completed just 3-of-14 times on third down, good for a 21-percent success rate.

"We have to play better," Watts said. "We have to start making key plays on defense. We have to start doing the right things, hitting the right gaps, especially on third down. We know we have to get off the field and in that first half it felt like we were on the field the whole first half."

All the Aggies' scores were setup either by a K-State penalty, a third-down conversion by the Aggies or a failure to make a play on third down by the Wildcats.

After the Aggies' first score, they followed up with a two-yard run on third down by Jorvorskie Lane.

A Texas A&M safety came on a blocked punt after quarterback Allan Evridge's screen pass to Thomas Clayton got K-State one yard when it needed four.

Finally, Lane's game-winning, two-yard touchdown run was setup by a third-down quarterback run by McNeal that went for 32-yards.

"They had 10 third-down conversions," Snyder said. "It's one of those things that something is happening that is seemingly positive, then bang, you breakdown on third down and your back on your heels again."

NUCLEAR | Reactor security allegations incorrect

Continued from Page 1

alerting the interns they were being investigated.

"No one told us that [the FBI was involved] from Kansas State and I don't believe it is true, but if it is, hats off to them," Ross said. "We would have been happy to report that."

The interns were given the same tour that any visitor would receive. Whaley conducted the beginning of the tour and then allowed two reactor operators, who are licensed by the commission, to finish the tour and take the picture.

Commission licensing requires a minimum training period of six months, followed by a written exam and a walk-through test inside the reactor that is administered by a commission representative.

The operators discussed the best way to obtain the picture for the FBI and chose flattery.

One intern, Melia Patria, said in an article on ABC's Web site that after she and fellow intern Hsinching Wei posed for the picture, they were amused by the photo request and "realized the power of our pseudo-celebrity status, as the girls who visited the K-State reactor. So for the next hour, as the two engineering students scoped us out, we scoped out the reactor and security."

The interns reported that they were able get security information, but K-State's operators said they intentionally flattered the girls to take the picture for the FBI.

"My roommates are never going to believe that two cute girls visited the reactor," reactor operator Troy Unruh said in a segment that was aired twice during the program.

Patria reported that after she realized they were alone with the operators, they could have caused "serious damage" if they were terrorists. Patria also reported having free reign of the reactor, but security camera footage shows that during the entire tour, the interns were accompanied by the two operators. Once during the visit, operators said Patria tried to go unaccompanied to the restroom, but security footage shows an operator walked her out of the facility and waited for her to come back, never leaving her in the reactor unattended.

After leaving the reactor, the interns were stopped by K-State Police near Hale Library. The interns were allowed to leave after answering some questions, and during "Primetime" they reported that security at the library is better than security at the reactor.

"They have no idea what the security measures are at the reactor and that's part of their problem," said Kenneth Shultis, professor of mechanical and nuclear engineering. "They have no background in this area."

"In my point of view the Kansas State people have conducted a malicious smear against the interns," Ross said, "which is sexist in nature and reprehensible at best."

Brian Mitchell of the Poynter Institute, a non-profit organization whose mission is to uphold journalistic integrity, said he had not seen the program, but undercover reporting should only be used in limited situations.

"Journalists should consider using such techniques, such as deception or going undercover, as a last resort," Mitchell said.

"I don't consider this undercover, the students just showed up as strangers." Ross said. "When I think of undercover I think of people who have hidden cameras and we went in with our camera open as any member of the public could."

ABC security expert Ronald E. Timm said security at K-State's reactor failed when the interns were brought to the top of the reactor during a tour. Timm gave security at K-State's reactor a failing grade because the interns were able to reach what he called "ground zero".

"This so-called expert has a very checkered past," Shultis said. "He has tried to sue the U.S. Department of Energy twice and the courts have thrown out the suits. He could possibly be a disgruntled employee, hardly an unbiased observer."

The commission allows tours at K-State that visit the top of the reactor because they do not pose a significant security threat. K-State reactor operators conduct more than 2,500 tours every year and all tours involve a stop to the top of the reactor.

Patria reported that she posed above K-State's reactor, which contained highly-enriched uranium. However, K-State's reactor contains only low-enriched uranium, which significantly diminishes the potential threat. Ross was not aware that Patria's article reported highly-enriched uranium at K-State but said ABC will correct the article.

"If all the uranium at the reactor was extracted, ground up and dispersed across campus, no one would be harmed. We would just have to clean it up," Whaley said.

The threat of car bombs or other attacks on the reactor is also minimal because of the structure of the facility.

"The reactor is in a vessel with eight and a half-foot-thick concrete walls. The core is five feet below ground level, under 20 feet of water. You can never hurt the core," Shultis said.

"This show was trying to be sensational," Shultis said. "They had a preconceived opinion. In my opinion, they were trying to look for some information to justify it, and I think they found nothing."

MILLER | Case decreases public's trust in news media

Continued from Page 1

op-ed piece by Wilson on July 23, 2003, that suggested the Bush administration had twisted intelligence to exaggerate the threat from Iraq's nuclear weapons program.

Columnist Robert Novak exposed Plame's identity as a CIA officer on July 31, 2003, saying his information had come from two administration officials.

Miller never wrote a story about Wilson or Plame. She spent 85 days in jail for refusing to cooperate with Fitzgerald's probe, and she testified Sept. 30 before the grand jury after getting a waiver from Libby.

Brock, a former business editor and columnist at The New York Times, said the case decreases public belief and trust in the press.

"Cases such as this are extremely harmful to the press and harmful to democracy because it rests on the premise that the press will inform the public correctly," he said.

Adrienne Carraway, junior in mass communications, said she does not understand why Miller chose to stay in jail for 85 days.

"I think it is strange and skeptical, and it shows fishy journalism," she said. "People need to understand if they are going to be in this profession, they need to be fair and balanced."

A reminder about individual health insurance.
A "What looks good to you?" reminder.
A Health Savings Account combined with a High Deductible Health Plan from American Family may lower your premiums and allow you the freedom to decide how and where to spend your health care dollars—while the dollars you don't spend accumulate tax-free. To learn more, call your American Family agent today. So you can check health insurance off your list, and off your mind.
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
All your protection under one roof
American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office - Madison, WI 53783
www.amfam.com

Tim Engle Agency Inc
3320 Anderson Ave
(785) 539-9200 Bus
Manhattan, KS 66503
tengle@amfam.com

Britt's Garden Acres
9 a.m. - 7 p.m. Mon. - Sat. 12 - 6 p.m. Sun.
• Large selection homegrown pumpkins 19¢ / pound
• Exotic White & Cinderella Pumpkins 29¢ / pound
• Weekend Hay rides - on the hour - to Corn Maze $2
• Pick a Small or Medium Pumpkin only $2
1400 S. Scenic Dr. • 539-1901

GUMBY DAMMIT $5.99 Large 1-Topping Pizza or Large Pokey Stix
GUMBY'S Pizza
702 N. 11th St
770-3333
MONDAY MANIA $3.99 Large Cheese Pizza
SMALL MEAL DEAL Choose any 2 for $12.99 plus tax
•Medium 1-Topping Pizza
•Medium Pokey Stix
•4 Pepporoni Rolls
•10 Buffalo Wings

Crossing your fingers won't help...
Emergency contraception can prevent pregnancy if taken within 72 hours of unprotected sex
A prescription is required - contact Lafene, your health care provider or local health department AND call the National EC Hotline 1-888-668-2528
www.not-2-late.com
Paid for by the Peggy Bowman Second Chance Fund Emergency Contraception Fund

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THIN'KING about changing majors?
For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494
K-State
Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 26 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom

Western Civilization
MIA
Mia "Daisy"
$99
Dillard's
Town Center
For Your Convenience We Accept Your Dillard's Charge, Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover, Carte Blanche, Or Diner's Club Card. SHOP MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY 10 A.M. - 9 P.M.; SUNDAY 12 NOON - 6 P.M.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

HOMECOMING GUIDE

Monday, October 24, 2005

Wildcat flashback

Illustration by Emily Lawrence | COLLEGIAN
Photos courtesy Royal Purple

Calendar Page 2 | Wildcat Request Live Page 3 | Float building Page 4

'Wildcat Flashback' activities: Homecoming 2005

Monday, Oct. 24

"Wildcat Flashback" coloring contest displayed, Manhattan Town Center.

Sidewalk Chalking Contest - 2-4 p.m., Bosco Student Plaza.
Campus organizations decorate the Bosco Student Plaza north of the K-State Student Union with the Homecoming theme.

Crazy Cat Kickoff, 6:30 p.m, Weber Arena.
This series of comical games is sponsored by the K-State Association of Residence Halls. Residence halls and cooperative houses governed by K-State enter teams of five men and five women with points awarded for the top four finishes and participation.

Wildcat Request Live, 8 p.m., Bramlage Coliseum.
During this lip sync and dance competition greek Homecoming pairings perform to a song of their choice. The event is at Bramlage Coliseum and is open to the public.

Tuesday, Oct. 25

Paint the 'Ville contest, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m., Aggieville.
Campus organizations and Homecoming pairings decorate business windows in Aggieville with the Homecoming theme.

Pant the Chant, 8 p.m., Ahearn Field House.
Homecoming pairings and student organizations show their enthusiasm at this high-energy event. Groups must be 50 percent male and 50 percent female and have one and a half minutes to show their creativity through chants and actions.

Right: Emily Reding, senior in family studies and human services, laughs while participating in the annual Crazy Cat Kickoff in Weber Arena Oct. 25, 2004.

Photos Courtesy of Royal Purple

Wednesday, Oct. 26

Yard Art Competition Judging, 2 p.m., greek houses
The annual yard art competition showcases the talents of the greek chapters on campus with spectacular creations on display at one house of each pairing.

Thursday, Oct. 27

K-State Ambassador Elections
8:30 a.m. - 5:30 p.m., K-State Student Union
11:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m., residence hall dining centers
During the week, the student body elects a male and a female student to serve as K-State Student Ambassadors for the following year. Several finalists are selected through an interview process and the finalists participate in the Homecoming activities.

Fright Night, 6 p.m., Thursday, Bramlage Coliseum
To celebrate the start of the K-State men's and women's basketball season, this evening at Bramlage Coliseum is full of Halloween fun and chances to meet players from both teams. Homecoming pairings and numerous student organizations participate, offering booths and activities for kids of all ages.

Left: The largest pep rally crowd of the season gathers for a late rally on Homecoming eve in 1961.

Far Right: Record crowd of 17,000 attends homecoming game at memorial stadium in 1939.

Friday, Oct. 28

Purple Pride Day
Everyone is invited to wear purple and show their K-State spirit.

Trick or Treating in Aggieville, 3:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.
This is an afternoon of safe Halloween trick-or-treating with the Aggieville Business Association. Come in costume and stay for the Homecoming parade, pep rally and block party that evening.

Homecoming parade, 5 p.m., downtown Manhattan and Aggieville
This is a highlight of Homecoming week as the Manhattan community and K-State students show off their parade entries and Homecoming floats. General Richard Myers, 1965 K-State graduate and former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will serve as the Grand Marshall.

Fill the 'Ville Pep Rally, Approximately 6:15 p.m., intersection of Moro Street and Manhattan Avenue
After the parade, join the Homecoming festivities with a spirit-filled pep rally and block party and get pumped up for the big game. Join Willie the Wildcat, the K-State Marching Band, cheerleaders, Classy Cats, Big Cats, Wyatt Thompson and other guests for food specials, games and activities.

Saturday, Oct. 29

Pregame Party, K-State Alumni Center.
At the K-State Alumni Center fans can attend a Homecoming pregame party three hours prior to the football game.

Tailgate Competition
Check-in 3 hours prior to game time, stadium parking lot.
Don't miss the opportunity to compete in the Homecoming tailgate competition. Help show everyone why K-Staters are the best fans in the country.

K-State vs. Colorado football game, 1:30 p.m., KSU Stadium.
Homecoming committee recognized and new ambassadors announced during football pregame.

Source: www.ksu.edu

STREET TALK

What is your favorite homecoming moment?

Lawver

"I don't have any. They're all bad"

Sarah Lawver
SENIOR IN PHILOSOPHY

Boisclair

"I don't really have any."

Leota Boisclair
FRESHMAN IN BAKERY SCIENCE AND MANAGEMENT

Conner

"When a friend of mine made homecoming king in high school."

Cien Conner
SOPHOMORE IN MUSIC EDUCATION

Keech

"Going to the Missouri/ Oklahoma State game when I was six."

Corbin Keech
SENIOR IN ARCHITECTURE

Parrott

"I like the football game. It's the best part."

Erin Parrott
SOPHOMORE IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Scherling

"Going out to the parties during the week."

Ryan Scherling
SOPHOMORE IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION PRE-PROFESSIONAL

Robben

"I jumped over a bonfire and missed."

Kayle Robben
FRESHMAN IN AGRICULTURAL TECHNOLOGY MANAGEMENT

Masterson

"Working on Pant the Chant."

Maggie Masterson
FRESHMAN IN ELEMENTARY EDUCATION PRE-PROFESSIONAL

Marquez

"Painting the spirit signs."

Andrew Marquez
FRESHMAN IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION PRE-PROFESSIONAL

Levalley

"I got really really wasted on tequila and got caught and suspended for five days."

Andrew Levalley
SOPHOMORE IN OPEN OPTION

中國厨 Chinese Chef
Authentic Chinese Food

DINE IN or CARRY OUT

DRIVE THRU

Call in advance for your orders

Catering also available

Phone 537-3333 • 2704 Anderson Ave.

1 Free Egg Roll*
--or--
2 Free Crab Rangoons*
--or--
Free Soup
*With the purchase of daily special
Coupon Expires 11/25/05

Daily Special $4.75
Mon. - Thurs. 11:00 a.m. -10:00 p.m., Fri. - Sat. 11:00 a.m. -10:30 p.m.
NOW OPEN SUNDAYS 11 a.m.-8:30 p.m.

ΚΑΘ ΑΓΡ
KSU
FH
STATE
Go State!
Homecoming 2005

Homecoming a time to remember

JONAS HOGG

Whose footsteps are you walking in?

Amidst beer, floats, parades, drink specials and mid-semester insanity, it is easy to become trapped into thinking All-University Homecoming is "just another week" at K-State.

But, setting aside the glitz and glamour for more mundane things, how much do you really know about your university?

Do you know, for instance, our university was the first of more than 60 universities created under the Morrill Act?

Do you know what the name of our proud university was when it was founded?

Do you know when it was founded?

If you answered no, no and no to the last three questions then it's about time you found out.

Without history as a base, our current accomplishment can seem almost without foundation.

Don't put the paper down just yet, there won't be too much fussing about history lessons and the such. Rather, neat little factoids about our university to try to prod you into learning more on your own.

Did you know we used to be known as one of the worst football programs in the NCAA? Along comes 1989 and a fellow named Bill Snyder and, after some blood, sweat and tears, we sucked a little less.

Although we have sort of, ahem, "struggled" in recent years, Wildcat Men's basketball has seen NCAA Tournament action 22 times.

It's been said so much that it's become almost a cliché, but being the leading university for Rhodes, Marshall, Truman, Goldwater and Udall scholars is a feat that bears repeating.

Our lecture program is one of the best in the nation. There are many more prestigious schools that will not hear Mikhail Gorbachev speak any time during the year.

From its inception in 1863, K-State has seen student protests, fires, growth, decline, boom, recession and everything in between.

Although 150 years is a blip on the screen when compared to the thousands of years that marks history in most of the rest of the world, the history of our university is something we should all take the time to educate ourselves on.

Many of us may be aware that Tiger Woods' father, Earl, attended K-State. But, upon closer research you can learn that Earl, along with K-State baseball, helped shatter race barriers in the Big 7 Conference and NCAA baseball as a whole, starting a legacy of diversity and open-mindedness that K-State perpetuates to this day.

From our halls have come:

Ernest Fox Nichols – a distinguished physicist and former president of the backwards and slow-paced Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Susanna M. Salter – the first woman to be elected mayor in the United States.

Margaret Grosh – the senior economist of the World Bank.

Claude McKay – influential Jamaican writer and activist who participated in the Harlem Renaissance of the 20s, 30s and 40s.

K-State has infused purple blood in to politicians, actors, scientists, military leaders and entrepreneurs the world over.

So in addition to Homecoming drink specials, billboards and whether the "Animal House" pirate-mobile will appear for the parade this week, we should take a moment to reflect on the accomplishments and the history of our prodigious university.

Starting with Kansas State Agricultural College, to Kansas State College, to Kansas State University, the Wildcats have a long tradition of diversity and excellence. Take a moment and explore what has been accomplished, and who has been educated right here in Manhattan. You may be surprised.

Jonas Hogg is a junior in sociology, international studies and Russian. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu

Illustration by Bennie Green | COLLEGIAN

Homecoming pairs to compete in dance, lip-sync

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Wildcat Request Live
When: 8 tonight
Where: Bramlage Coliseum
How much: free

Eleven pairings of K-State greek houses will compete in tonight's Wildcat Request Live, a dance and lip-sync competition that follows this year's All-University Homecoming theme, Wildcat Flashback.

Each pairing must have an equal ratio of men to women, must stay within a cost limit for costumes and sets, and must present their routine to judges in less than four minutes and 30 seconds.

"It really gets the crowd involved and the music and expressions are very visual," said Allie O'Donnell, Kappa Delta's WRL chair and junior in architecture. "Dancing is something everyone likes and it's something you can get excited about."

Andrea Bryant, associate director of the K-State Alumni Association and K-State's Homecoming chair, said each judge's criteria is different, but choreographers from the greek houses are free to be as creative as they choose.

"WRL really sets the tone for the whole week," said Ryan Foster, Delta Chi Homecoming chair and senior in secondary education. "It's the first real competition that we get for the past few weeks of work. It really gets the ball rolling."

Pairings have been practicing an average of two to three times per week for the past three weeks.

"It is competitive," O'Donnell said. "But that's what makes it fun."

Bryant said Bramlage Coliseum prepares for several thousand people to watch the skits.

"This is probably the best chance for houses to show their dedication to the greek community," Foster said. "This is the best chance to get involved."

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Call
532-6560

SQUISH COLORADO
STATE
Homecoming 2005
ΧΩ
ΠΚΦ
Triangle
ΒΘΠ

Your HOMECOMING Homecoming Party
Headquarters
Natural Light 30pk $10.99
Miller High Life 30pk cans... $10.85
Bud & Bud Light 30pk cans.... $14.99
Buy in Singles, Buy in Bulk,
Cheapest Beer in Town!
We'll help you load it with our forklift
Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child-next to Home Deopt
537-9463
Reserve your bulk order
For more info go to www.537wine.biz

Building begins on parade floats for Homecoming

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With the All-University Homecoming parade on Friday, K-State fraternities, sororities and residence halls have officially started work on their Homecoming floats.

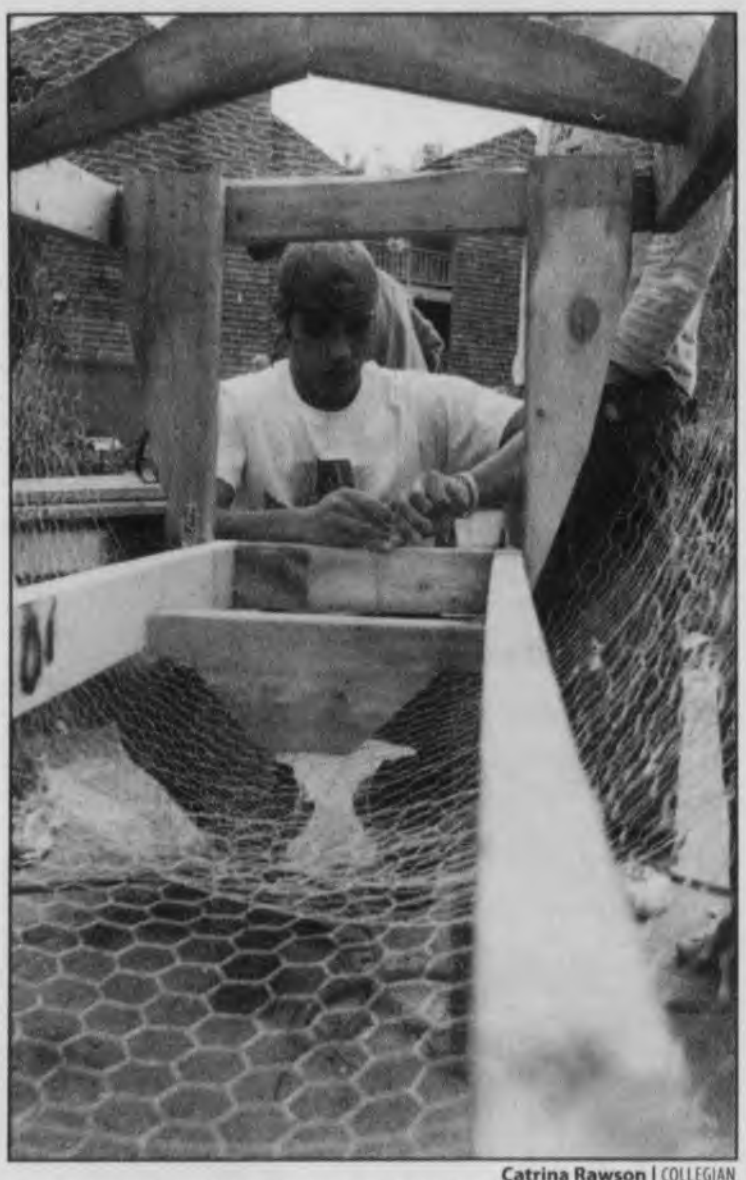
"We've been planning our float for the past two weeks, but technically we haven't been able to pomp until today," said Josey Heller, Homecoming co-chair for Kappa Kappa Gamma and senior in mass communications.

Many of the groups have been working for the past week and have been planning floats even longer.

"I'd say we started planning the second week of school," said Ben Bower, sophomore in business administration pre-professional and Pi Kappa Alpha Homecoming committee chairman. "Thursday was the first day we worked, and we've been working every day since then."

The floats are being made for the Homecoming parade, which will be at 5 p.m. Friday through downtown Manhattan and Aggieville.

The greek houses and residence halls are separated into groups of several houses or halls that compete as a team throughout Homecoming.



In order to level the playing field, the groups cannot spend more than $1,250 on their floats.

"Right now we are under $1,000, but we will probably use the whole budget when it's all said and done," said Zack Morrison, junior in agribusiness and chairman of Alpha Gamma Rho's Homecoming committee.

One of the hardest parts about putting together a float is coordinating resources, Jerrad Boyle, senior in architectural engineering, said.

"Just the organization part of it, making sure everybody knows what to do, the idea is not that hard, the pomping is not that hard, it just takes time," said Boyle, chairman of Theta Xi's Homecoming committee.

Ryan Spencer, Homecoming chairman for Boyd, Van Zile, Putnam, Ford and Haymaker halls, said obtaining materials for the float was challenging.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Ryan Grier, sophomore in business administration pre-professional and Tau Kappa Epsilon member, works Sunday afternoon on a float for the All-University Homecoming parade. Floats for Homecoming week are supposed to be completed by Friday.

"It's actually been hard getting all the materials together," Spencer, senior in fine arts, said.

"Getting the trailer, getting all the wood and materials together, it can be tough."

One of the most time-consuming parts of making a Homecoming float is pomping, said Ali Leitnaker, junior in sociology and Homecoming chair for Alpha Chi Omega.

Pomping is the process of pushing small pieces of tissue paper through the holes in chicken wire, making the final product look solid.

Though coordination between the greek houses or the residence halls within pairings can be tough, Bower said it is fun working together.

"It's been a pleasure working with all the other houses," he said.

Building a Homecoming float is a good opportunity to get to know other students, Heller said.

"It's a great week for everyone to get to know each other in the greek community," she said.

Pant practice

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Gina Newsham, freshman in open option, left, and Chris Zimmerman, senior in life science, both members of Alpha Xi Delta, practice their Pant the Chant routine at Memorial Stadium Sunday afternoon. Alpha Xi and their homecoming partners Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon will compete at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Ahearn Field House.

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian
118 Kedzie • 532-6560

ΦΚΘ TKE
"Let's Rock Em"
We are so excited to have you as our Homecoming 2005 Partners!
Love, The Women of ΔΔΔ
Wildcat Flashback

Let's Go Wildcats
Homecoming 2005
Alpha Delta Pi
Delta Upsilon
Beta Sigma Psi

BASH THOSE BUFFS
Rustys Last Chance Saloon = Homecoming headquarters!

Shake's Frozen Custard
Shakin' Up Kansas State Homecoming!
with free junior cones ALL WEEK!
Also serving Shake-a-ccinos, pumpkin custard, & waffle cones
10% OFF WITH K-STATE ID
Special every Monday $1.04 cups and cones
104.7
5th & Ft. Riley Blvd.

Carhartt Season
New Fall Arrivals
Coveralls & Coats
Cold weather is coming!
10% OFF any Carhartt Item
Expires 10-31-05
Carhartt
Only at Lee's Western Wear

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com

Tuesday, October 25, 2005

Vol. 110, No. 47

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

INSIDE

Sports, Page 6

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Megan Challender, senior in political science, passes out papers and condoms telling people to "protect their right to choose" Monday afternoon in the quad area North of Hale Library. An abortion display will be in the quad, outside Hale and in the Bosco Student Plaza until Thursday.

Pro-life display creates discussion, tension

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students might need a strong stomach for the next few days.

For the next three days, Justice For All will display graphic depictions of abortion in both the Bosco Student Plaza and the quad, with smaller displays scattered about campus.

Tammy Cook, director of field operations for JFA, was at the quad display Monday, where she took questions from Melissa Divine's women's studies class.

"Our mission is to travel to universities and set up the exhibit so that university students can learn about abortion, because they're not going to recieve this information in most classes," Cook said.

Both supporters and dissenters attended the first day of the display.

"There's still going to be people on both sides of the issue on all campuses so we do hear from people on both sides," Cook said.

Divine, instructor in women's studies, said although she did not support the group, she supports free speech on campus.

"I can't do that unless I'm willing to support all speech even speech that I find reprehensible," she said.

The graphic nature of the display elicited a variety of emotions.

"It's graphic; it's disturbing, but if we're going to look at the issue from every angle we have to," David O'Neil, Manhattan resident, said.

Inger Leslie, senior in social work and family studies, said she was less enthusiastic.

"I think whether you're pro-life or pro-choice it's incredibly offensive to see these pictures," Leslie said.

Dr. Scott Stringfield, K-State alumnus, was on campus in support of JFA. Stringfield said he agreed with how the group tried to communicate their message. As director of Choices Medical Clinic he said that the purpose of his practice was to educate women.

"They know about abortion. The question is, do they know the alternatives?" Stringfield said.

A smaller display in front of the English/Counseling Services Building caused some tension. At least one passerby complained about its location. Psychologist Dan Wilcox, assistant director of University Counseling Services, said he disliked the display's proximity to the building.

"We're concerned that there will be some intimidation,"

See ABORTION Page 8

Rosa Parks, civil rights pioneer, dies at 92

By Bree Fowler
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT – Rosa Lee Parks, whose refusal to give up her bus seat to a white man sparked the modern civil rights movement, died Monday. She was 92.

Mrs. Parks died at her home of natural causes, said Karen Morgan, a spokeswoman for U.S. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

Mrs. Parks was 42 when she committed an act of defiance in 1955 that was to change the course of American history and earn her the title "mother of the civil rights movement."

At that time, Jim Crow laws in place since the post-Civil War Reconstruction required separation of the races in buses, restaurants and public accommodations throughout the South, while legally sanctioned racial discrimination kept blacks out of many jobs and neighborhoods in the North.

Parks

The Montgomery, Ala., seamstress, an active member of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was riding on a city bus Dec. 1, 1955, when a white man demanded her seat.

Mrs. Parks refused, despite rules requiring blacks to yield their seats to whites. Two black Montgomery women had been arrested earlier that year on the same charge, but Mrs. Parks was jailed. She also was fined $14.

Speaking in 1992, she said history too often maintains "that my feet were hurting, and I didn't know why I refused to stand up when they told me. But the real reason of my not standing up was I felt that I had a right to be treated as any other passenger. We had endured that kind of treatment for too long."

Her arrest triggered a 381-day boycott of the bus system organized by a then little-known Baptist minister, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., who later earned the Nobel Peace Prize for his work.

"At the time I was arrested I had no idea it would turn into this," Mrs. Parks said 30 years later. "It was just a day like any other day. The only thing that made it significant was that the masses of the people joined in."

Faces of the future

Ryan Flickner

Shea Larson

Chance Lee

Mary Kate Ludwig

Mardell Maxwell

Chancy Montera

Ashley Smit

Joe Vossen

Student ambassador candidates answer questions about K-State

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Eight K-State student ambassador finalists were announced Monday night at Wildcat Request Live.

Tom Roesler, associate director of alumni programs at the K-State Alumni Association, said the finalists go through a nomination and interview process before being selected.

"I think we have eight very qualified students and a great selection for the student body to choose from," Roesler said.

Students will vote Thursday on the university's two student ambassadors. The winners will be announced during pre-game activities at Saturday's K-State football game.

The eight finalists answered these questions:

1. What do you like about K-State, and why is K-State important to you?

2. What qualities will help you be a good ambassador?

3. What is the greatest challenge to overcome in talking to prospective students and giving K-State a positive image?

Ryan Flickner, senior in agronomy

1. I've grown up as a K-Stater. Both of my parents went here, and I practically grew up at Ahearn. There are endless possibilities here. It has given me a lot of opportunities to give back to future students. I want to give my overall experience to keep getting more K-Staters here.

2. I'm a good leader and very fond of the time I've had here. I'm a very well-rounded individual, working on two majors and a couple of minors. I had an internship for the White House as a liaison this summer. I think I'm qualified because of my real-world experience, and I want to use that to try to get prospective students fired up.

3. Increased tuition costs. It's putting a lot of people out of the market for college and a lot of students have to work more than they should.

Shea Larson, junior in communication sciences and disorders

1. Ever since I was a young girl, K-State was in my family,

See AMBASSADORS Page 8

Workshop to show students how to apply, write for scholarships

By Dayne Logan
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tonight's university scholarship workshop aims to help students maximize their financial aid by teaching them effective strategies for finding and winning scholarships.

The workshop will be divided into two segments.

Students can browse through available scholarships at the scholarship expo from 5:30 to 6 tonight in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. Representatives from each major will be on hand to talk about the scholarships offered within their respective programs. Students can also fill out an online scholarship application for K-State's general scholarships.

The remainder of the workshop will be devoted to experts' presentations on financial aid.

Scholarship workshop
When: 5:30 to 7 tonight
Where: K-State Student Union Ballroom
How much: free

Ben Kohl, assistant director of Student Financial Assistance, said he will tell students how to find scholarship sources, how to apply for scholarships and how to write successful applications.

"I think that most people who haven't had experience writing applications need some sort of guidance because (scholarship review committees) always have something specific they're looking for," Richard Jensen, junior in management, said.

In the past the workshop has seen turnouts of between 250 and 300 students.

"We hope to have the same amount or more this year," Kohl said.

Today

High 59
Low 35

Wednesday

High 65
Low 40

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Sheriff murder case
Darrell E. Cooper, 43, and Rhonda O'Brien, 37, pleaded guilty Monday in drug charges in a case that led to the shooting death of Greenwood County, Kan., Sheriff Matt Samuels. Samuels was killed Jan. 17 while trying to serve a search warrant. Scott Cheever, 23, is charged in the death and the government is seeking the death penalty.

Assassination plot
A federal judge ruled Monday that prosecutors can use a confession by a man charged with joining al-Qaeda and plotting to assassinate President Bush. The ruling came after a six-day hearing in which Ahmed Omar Abu Ali testified that Saudi Arabian security officers whipped his back, kicked him in the stomach and pulled his beard.

Olathe murder
Mark Mangelsdorf, 45, of Olathe, Kan., pleaded not guilty Monday in the 1982 murder of David Harmon. No trial date has been set, but Judge Thomas Bornholdt ordered Mangelsdorf to appear in court when defense motions can be heard. Harmon's wife, Melinda Raish, was found guilty of murder earlier this year.

DON'T FORGET

Students with 98 hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

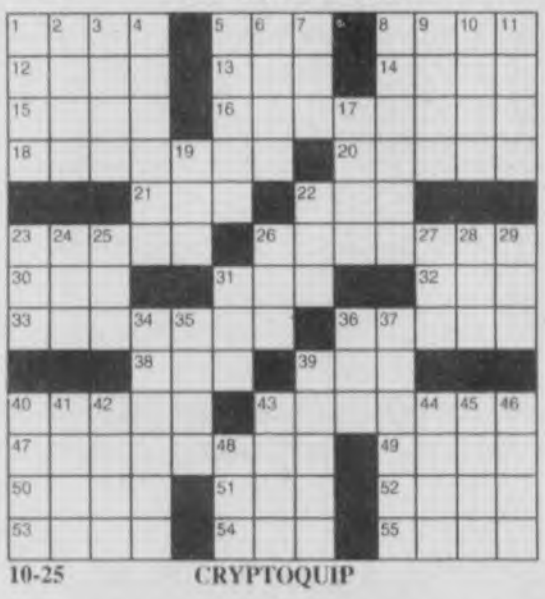
Paint the 'Ville will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today in Aggieville.

Union Program Council will meet at 5:30 tonight in Union Station.

Pant the Chant will be at 8 tonight in Ahearn Field House.

Xtreme tanning
Bring this ad in for a FREE sample when tanning!
1122 Laramie 539-3742

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 River structures
5 "King Kong" actress Wray
8 Sound of dull impact
12 Persia, now
13 Pub request
14 Hindu royal
15 Antitoxins
16 Broad range
18 Rye guy?
20 Overact
21 Youngster
22 Hiatus
23 Chasm
26 Brought the banquet
30 Caviar, essentially
31 Scale member
32 Bullring bravo
33 Afternoon siestas
36 Beany's pal
38 "This — surprise!"
39 Office seeker, e.g.
40 Streamlined
43 List
47 Boos
49 Recording
50 Dermatology subject
51 Make 41-Down
52 Send forth
53 Arthur and Lillie
54 Modern-day evidence
55 Rick of "Disco Duck" fame

DOWN
1 Frisbee, for one
2 Type of rug
3 Shopping site
4 Appetite spoilers
5 Confronted
6 Winglike
7 Nevertheless
8 — l'oeil (artistic illusion)
9 Head light?
10 It may be monetary or military
11 Backgammon needs
17 What calories measure
19 Owned by a man
22 Cowboy's companion
23 Joan of —
24 Squeezing slitherer
25 On the other hand
26 Lettuce variety
27 Sinbad's flyer
28 Yale student
29 N.J. neighbor
31 Resort
34 They may cry "Uncle!"
35 "— silly question, ..."
36 Barracks bed
37 On cloud nine
39 Trattoria supply
40 Wound cover
41 See 51-Across
42 Sicilian spouter
43 Family
44 Weak, as an excuse
45 Mayberry moppet
46 Obtains
48 "Inc." in the U.K.

Solution time: 21 mins.

O	B	O	E		S	A	P		A	S	K	S
R	A	Y	S		A	G	O		S	T	O	A
A	L	E	C		D	E	M	O	T	I	O	N
L	I	Z	A	R	D		P	H	E	L	P	S
			P	E	E	R		O	R	E
D	E	M	E	A	N	O	R		S	T	O	P
I	V	E		R	E	B	U	S		T	O	E
E	A	S	T		D	E	M	I	J	O	H	N
		D	I	P		D	I	D	O
A	D	A	G	I	O		N	E	B	U	L	A
D	E	M	E	N	T	I	A		B	R	E	D
A	V	E	R		I	O	N		E	G	A	D
M	O	S	S		C	U	T		R	E	D	S

Yesterday's answer 10-25

10-25 CRYPTOQUIP

Z E E S J E L Z U J W Z R J Q M H ' P X B B K M J , Z W Z L R J P K R Q X Q E S J I X X L L J Z I P " U J Q K M J , Z Q H X Q J ? "

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A SWIMMER WERE TO SHOPLIFT FROM A SUPERMARKET, I SUPPOSE HE WOULD TAKE A DIP.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: X equals O

STREET TALK

What are you going to be for Halloween?

Sanchez

"Some kind of a vampire."

Matt Sanchez
JUNIOR IN ECONOMICS

Shain

"I don't know, but my friends and I have talked about being firefighters."

Austin Shain
FRESHMAN IN OPEN-OPTION

Taponpanh

"I'm going to be a golfer."

Vanna Taponpanh
SENIOR IN FINANCE

Witherspoon

"A pregnant lady."

Parishae Witherspoon
FRESHMAN IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION PRE-PROFESSIONAL

Gower

"My friends and I are going to be Double Dare contestants. We even have the goggles and sweatbands."

Vanessa Gower
JUNIOR IN MARKETING

Smith

"A vampire."

Tammy Smith
SENIOR IN ANIMAL SCIENCES AND INDUSTRY

Gray

"I haven't decided yet, but I'm thinking about being a billionaire playboy."

Donald Gray
JUNIOR IN COMPUTER ENGINEERING

Rintoul

"Probably a pirate."

Joey Rintoul
FRESHMAN IN OPEN-OPTION

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A class on library basics for science and technology will be from 3 to 4 p.m. today, meeting at Hale Library's reception desk.
- An effective web searching class will be from 10 to 10:45 a.m. today in Hale 408.
- An opera workshop will perform scenes from operas at 7:30 tonight in All Faiths Chapel.
- Show Me the Money will be at 4 p.m. today in Union 212.
- Wildcat Toastmasters will meet at 5:30 tonight in Durland 1029.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Friday, Oct. 21

- Curtis Childs, Topeka, was arrested at 12:45 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $500.
- Ricky Roper, Topeka, was arrested at 1 p.m. for worthless check. Bond was set at $150.
- Trent Karmann, Junction City, was arrested at 3:45 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $750.
- Zachary Edmond, Junction City, was arrested at 6:30 p.m. for possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and possession of drug paraphernalia. Bond was set at $2,500.
- Michael Porter, Hilton Head, S.C., was arrested at 8:30 p.m. for obstruction of legal process and DUI. Bond was set at $1,000.

Saturday, Oct. 22

- Tracy Robinson, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 1:18 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
- Alexis Collier, 4704 McIntyre Road, was arrested at 9:20 a.m. for theft and forgery. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Cody Pankratz, Beloit, Kan., was arrested at 10:40 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Nickolas Newell, Moore 242, was arrested at 6:50 p.m. for possession of marijuana and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Chad Friess, Sterling, Kan., was arrested at 11:20 p.m. for purchase or consumption of alcohol by a minor, possession of a simulated controlled substance and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Preston Winter, 3129 Lundin Drive, Apt. 8, was arrested at 11:20 p.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $750.
- Jesse Thompson, Assaria, Kan., was arrested at 11:40 p.m. for criminal trespass. Bond was set at $750.

Sunday, Oct. 23

- Brandon Logan, Ottawa, Kan., was arrested at 2:30 a.m. for unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Max Alexis, 2453 Hobbs Drive, was arrested at 2:38 a.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Anthony Thomas, Junction City, was arrested at 2:38 a.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond set at $1,500.
- Nicole Modica, 1314 Fremont St., was arrested at 3:30 a.m. for disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $750.
- Kendra Ramsey, Salina, was arrested at 5 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
- Michael Price, 5950 Tuttle Creek Blvd., was arrested at 12:35 p.m. for extradition of imprisonment. Bond was set at $7,500.
- Hunter Taylor III, 615 Fairchild Terrace, was arrested at 3:30 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $500.
- Kenneth Sanders, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 8:25 p.m. for battery and witness intimidation. Bond was set at $500.
- Hunter Taylor III, 615 Fairchild Terrace, was arrested at 8:30 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $745.55.
- Curtis Norland, 1020 Houston St., Apt. 2, was arrested at 9:10 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $50.

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

WiNKsuEdu

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

shout outs
"I would give my left arm to be ambidextrous."
"Judy and Marleen, you are the best house moms. Delta Tau Chi."
"Hi, Mom!"
"It's my birthday and I'll cry if I want to."
"I just saw a naked cowboy walking down the street."
watch this space!

New Donors Can Earn $65 This Week!
EASY INCOME TODAY!
zlbplasma.com
We make it easy for you to earn money today with your life-saving plasma donation.
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway • Manhattan, KS 66502
(785)-776-9177
Good for You. Great for Life.

Microbuff and Mud Wrap
You and a friend $20
Stimulate circulation, exfoliate and renew your skin
Crum's Beauty College
512 Poyntz Ave. 776-4797
Services performed by supervised students

Wichita to Las Vegas
FROM $79* ONE WAY
Only at allegiantair.com
Nonstop air service from Wichita. Packages include over 30 of Vegas' most exciting casino-resorts.
allegiant air
www.allegiantair.com
800-432-3810 or call your travel agent.

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 Moro
Manhattan 776-8770
TONIGHT Karaoke Night
1/2 price EVERYTHING
Live Nov. 2
RANDY ROGERS BAND
with special guest Full Throttle

Anderson steam system overloads

K-State Police arrive at Anderson Hall to find clouds of steam rising above the building Monday night.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

About 9:30 p.m. Monday, the steam system of Anderson Hall overloaded sending large clouds into the air and making a racket.

Officer Jared Hays and Sgt. Glenn Brown were first on the scene and said they spotted it just driving by.

The two officers stayed on the scene until a plumber arrived and then followed him into the basement.

Ron Salladay, division of facilities senior plumber, turned off the building's steam system.

"The steam pressure got up over 15 pounds here in the basement, and it set the steam pop-off off," Salladay said. "It's some new piping. I just went ahead and turned it off for the night. They'll find out what was going on with it in the morning."

City, county discuss health, redevelopment

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Manhattan City Commission and Riley County-Manhattan Board of Health will have meetings this week, addressing issues with downtown redevelopment and county health. Several of these issues, officials in both groups said, are pertinent to Manhattan residents.

MANHATTAN CITY COMMISSION

After several meetings regarding the downtown-area landscape and street structures, the City Commission will meet tonight, only this time to discuss the costs for the area changes. Some of the current downtown reconstruction is associated with the downtown redevelopment plans, City Engineer Robert Ott said.

"Right now, existing parking stalls are sitting at 30 degree angles, and some of the widths vary between nine and 11 feet," he said. "They all vary too much."

After an extensive traffic study in the area, the city decided in a recent City Commission meeting to convert Poyntz Avenue from a four-lane to two-lane street. Streets and other downtown aesthetic funds will be addressed at the meeting, including money allocated to parking garages, benches and fountains. Officials said they anticipate to see a budget tonight.

RILEY COUNTY-MANHATTAN BOARD OF HEALTH

With the increased concerns about avian influenza coming to the United States, the Riley County-Manhattan Board of Health will address safety precautions people can take, said Charles Murphy, Riley County Health Department director.

Murphy said the board will also discuss constructing additional sidewalks and trails around the health department building.

Manhattan City Commission work session

When: 5 tonight
Where: City Commission Room, City Hall, 1101 Poyntz Ave.
This session will also be televised on Cox cable channel 3

Riley County-Manhattan Board of Health

When: Noon, Oct. 28
Where: 2030 Tecumseh Rd.

Service • Auto • Car • Eye Care • Clothing • Oil Change
SERVICE DIRECTORY
• Beauty • Refill • Planning • Heating • Plumbing

TUESDAY 60¢ Tacos $2.00 Margaritas Trivia Night
WEDNESDAY $7.99 Steak Night $2.00 Bottles
BOBBY Ts 3240 Kimball Ave 537-8383 www.bobbyts.com

Oct. Special
$50 Free Haircut with Perm or Color
by Kelly & Allysa
Call Today At 776-8830
Candlewood
New Clients Only
TINAZ Studio 32

Oil CHANGE
Appointment Necessary No Drop-Ins, Please
$14.95 When you bring in this ad
Ekart Automotive Services
We Service All Makes of Cars
American & Foreign Cars • Engine Overhaul • Motor Tune-ups • Complete Brake • Electrical & Automatic Transmission Service • Manual Transmissions & Clutch Repair • Sun Computer Print Out • Diagnostic Center • Air Conditioning Service
776-5110 411 S. 5th St. • 1 Blk. North of Ft. Riley Blvd.

TUESDAY Boozeday
$1.50 WELLS
$2.50 Pitchers
$3.50 Jager Bombs
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON •Aggieville•

Baskin 31 Robbins
$1 SCOOPS
Get 1 scoop of Baskin Robbins premium ice cream for only $1 or get two for $2 or three for $3 ...
Tuesday nights from 6 – 10 PM Offer good for October Only
Baskin Robbins 319 Southwind Pl 537-3136

Your Source for Screenprinting Embroidery Apparel Programs
ARTECH PROMOTIONS INC
1 FREE COLOR on 144 pc. orders thru Oct
Trophies & Awards Engraving Services Promotional Products
ArTech Promotions • 1126 Moro in Aggieville • 785-539-5775

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____
ONLY $5!

K-State Business
Are You Looking for a Major?
Top 10 Degrees in Demand (Bachelor's Degree Level)
1. Accounting
2. Electrical Engineering
3. Mechanical Engineering
4. Business Administration/Management
5. Finance/Economics
6. Computer Science
7. Computer Engineering
8. Marketing/Marketing Management
9. Chemical Engineering
10. Information Sciences and Systems
SOURCE: National Association of Colleges and Employers, Job Outlook 2005
For more information, visit the College of Business at the Majors Fair in the Student Union, Wednesday, October 26, 2005

UPC COMING EVENTS
Union Program Council

Tuesday, October 25
General UPC Meeting: 5:30 pm, Union Station
Scholarship Workshop: 5:30-7 pm, Union Ballroom

Thursday, October 27
Student Photography Contest: Entries are due to UPC office by 5 pm
Hocus Pocus Children's Carnival: 4:30-6 pm, Union Courtyard

Friday, October 28
After Hours: Salsa Night 7:30-9 pm, Union Courtyard
Rocky Horror Picture Show: Program: 10:30 pm
Film: Midnight, Main Ballroom, $5

Saturday, October 29
Film: "The Exorcist," 7 & 9:30 pm, Little Theatre, $1

Sunday, October 30
Film: "The Exorcist," 8 pm, Little Theatre, $1

William T. Kemper Art Gallery:
Kathi Haynes, MFA exhibit, Oct 17-30

Attention film makers: Check out www.ksu.edu/upc for information on the Little Apple Film Festival.

www.kdu.edu/upc
UPC hotline: 532-6572
Office phone: 532-6571

TO THE POINT

Shock value won't help spread message

The pro-life abortion display sponsored by Justice for All contains content that is shocking and gross.

Although it is respectable for an organization to be concerned about educating the public on abortion and the risks involved, it does not need to be done in such an abrasive manner.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Johanna Barnes
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

JFA relies too heavily on the shock value of gruesome pictures to make its point. Instead of two-story photos of aborted and dismembered fetuses, more information and facts should be offered.

The graphic nature of the exhibition is too inappropriate to be displayed on a college campus. It is offensive because of its excessive size. Students and faculty are forced to go out of their way to avoid it this week.

It is important to have learning experiences and opportunities accessible on college campuses, but they should be available in less caustic manners.

If JFA wants to make a statement that informs and teaches students about abortion, it should use other methods. Yes, there needs to be a way for students to learn about abortions, contraceptives and unwanted pregnancies, but the methods being used by JFA are not conducive to learning such information.

Overall, the display is a crass menace to our campus' quad. It is more likely to unnerve and disgust passersby than change opinions or educate.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF	Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR	Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF	Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR	Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR	Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR	Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR	Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR	Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH	Brad Simmons AD MANAGER	Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Taking control

Reproductive freedom a right, not a privilege

LOLA SHRIMPLIN

"Two K-State women have abortions every day," World Christian Fellowship Adviser Addie Lynn told the Collegian Oct. 21.

That's astonishing. I never knew a requirement of getting an abortion was stating school attendance, or that K-State kept records of students who obtained abortions.

But this is just an example of a sound byte in the war on reproductive rights.

The Justice For All Exhibit is coming to K-State to try and get the message out and stop this horrendous trend of K-State women having abortions right and left.

This exhibit attempts to teach the "truth" about abortion and its effects on women and men.

The exhibit Web site states that "selfishness should not be lawful if it harms another person."

We're making selfishness unlawful? I didn't realize wanting control over your body was selfish.

There are a multitude of reasons a woman has an abortion, and 99.9 percent of them have nothing to do with selfishness. Simplifying a complex issue like abortion and creating a sound byte that appeals to the ignorant and the religious right is moronic.

What's next? Ultraconservatives saying that since you are a woman, and capable of having a baby, you have to?

Oh, wait. That is what they're saying.

Some of the same groups who spout propaganda from the pulpits about every life being precious, allow molestation of young children, who are already breathing on their own and can indisputably feel pain.

I've heard all the stories about the people who volunteer to raise the infants of women who are seeking abortions. I've seen some of these people first hand, and let me tell you, if I ever have a kid, they aren't coming within ten miles of my child.

People who scream obscenities at complete strangers, who grab at them and shout quotes as threats from whatever religious book they believe in, don't deserve to have children, and should have all been sterilized at birth. How's that for governmental control?

The pro-life movement is misogyny disguised as religious fervor, hatred unleashed upon half the population for simply wanting control over their own bodies.

Reproductive freedom isn't a privilege. It's a right. And groups like these are trying to take it away.

They're already in your bedroom, telling you who you can be with. In your car, telling you how to drive. At airports and train stations, profiling you to keep the masses "safe."

Now they want back in the womb, where they haven't been since 1973.

It has to stop somewhere. Before we become so complacent we aren't only not allowed to make our own decisions, we are incapable of doing so.

Lola Shrimplin is a senior in pre-journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Primetime TV needs new material

JACI BOYDSTON

Go ahead – throw out your TV.

Well, maybe that's a bit hasty. You still need a TV to play DVDs and watch all that good stuff on cable and satellite. But as for network programming, it's dying a slow, painful death that many people aren't bothering to watch.

After NBC chose not to return "Scrubs" to the fall lineup this year there are officially zero network shows worth watching anymore.

Let's be honest. As entertaining as all the hour-long dramas about lawyers and doctors and police officers (oh, my) may be, if you've seen one, you've seen them all. The formula is simple enough – a crime is committed. Someone dies. Dramatic music plays. An investigation ensues. Lather, rinse, repeat.

Reality shows are even easier to formulate: take a dozen fame-hungry drama queens, sprinkle in some cat fights and personal interviews, add challenges and other degrading activities and simmer for 12 weeks.

Haven't we seen enough of these?

Surprisingly, there are still some sitcoms brave enough to try wading through the polluted waters of primetime television. Unfortunately, they're either boring, over-the-top or, in the case of Fox's "The War at Home," offensive and racist.

Despite the 18 million people who, according to Nielsen Media Research, watched "Survivor: Guatemala" last week, some people are starting to speak out against all the crap on TV.

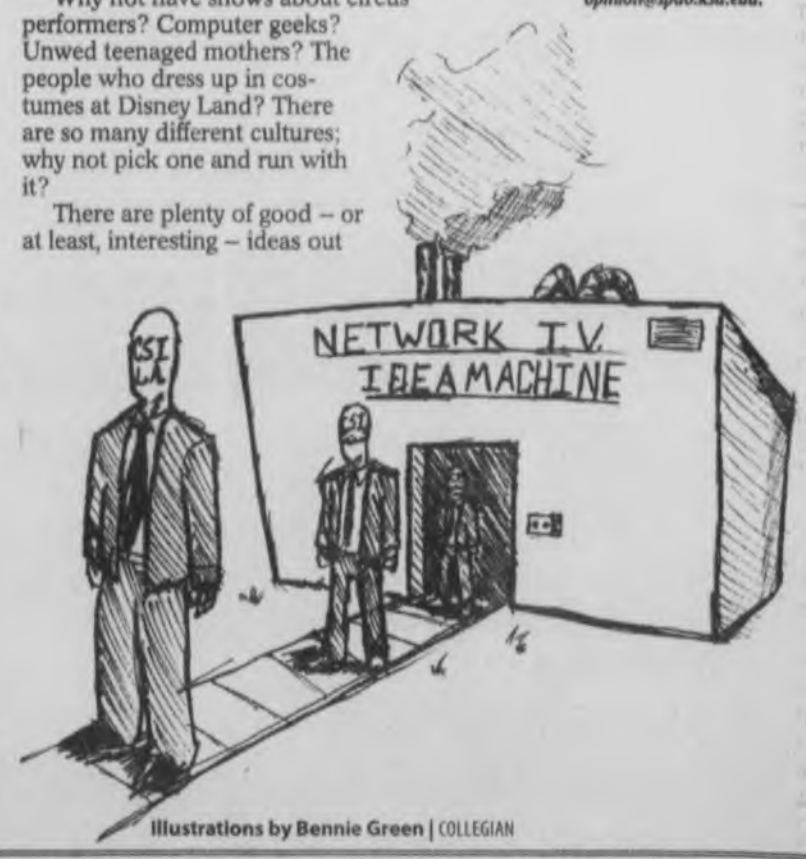
The Parents Television Council released its annual list of the best and worst primetime shows for family viewing. Predictably, shows like "CSI," "Desperate Housewives," "Family Guy" and "The O.C." all made the naughty top-10 list, but the nice list was more surprising.

According to The Associated Press, the list of shows recommended for family viewing stopped at nine. Apparently, the Parents Television Council couldn't find ten shows suitable for family viewing in all of primetime.

Maybe networks have run out of ideas. ABC recently told Hollywood producers that if someone can produce a program for less than $500,000 per episode – very cheap by industry standards – that person can have a slot in ABC's Saturday night lineup. According to The AP, the network doesn't even care what kind of show it is, as long as it can be produced cheaply.

No wonder all the networks have to offer are carbon-copy crime dramas and reality shows that appeal to the lowest echelon of society – they're so low on ideas they have to auction off time slots to anyone who can think of a way to use them.

It can't be true that every idea has been done before. Premium channels like HBO and Showtime continue to churn out inventive offerings like "Weeds," a 2005 Showtime debut about a drug-dealing suburban mom, and "Big Love," an HBO drama about Mormon polygamists scheduled to air next summer.



These channels have the right idea – there are more interesting segments of society to work with than middle-class families, 30-something groups of friends and world-weary doctors/lawyers/forensic pathologists.

Why not have shows about circus performers? Computer geeks? Unwed teenaged mothers? The people who dress up in costumes at Disney Land? There are so many different cultures; why not pick one and run with it?

There are plenty of good – or at least, interesting – ideas out there. Network execs don't need to keep focusing on uninspired detective stories and crass reality shows. They should put on their thinking caps and come up with some quality ideas.

Right after they bring back "Scrubs."

Jaci Boydston is a senior in mass communications. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Bennie Green | COLLEGIAN

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

To the girl I walk by every Monday, Wednesday and Friday near Bluemont Hall — thanks for smiling back. You're beautiful.

To the creepy guy sitting in the corner — stay away from my sister.

Anyone else get pissed at the football game when they show that Coors Light train commercial when it's 45 degrees and they can't serve beer?

To those pro-choice individuals who will complain about the anti-abortion displays on campus — if you support abortion, why are you so offended by the outcome?

Do you think if I make a human sacrifice to the furnace gods they'll turn on the heat in Seaton Court?

Jonas Hogg has a little p-ness too.

In honor of the pro-lifers, we should get a huge billboard with pictures of dead soldiers all over it. That way they can see what their leader has done. Just a thought.

So should I be mad that all these people get to make out with SafeRide and I can't even get them to pick me up?

I think we should form a group of retaliation against the group SCAM. We shall call it Students Against Closed Minds (SACM).

To the jackass who spilled the hot chocolate in Econ 120 yesterday — thanks a lot.

Sometimes it's hard to look truth in the face.

Two kegs: $160. Costume rental and accessories: $30. Being mistaken for Reba McEntire at Wal-Mart: priceless.

My name's Yamon Figurs. I like to drop passes.

The wind freaking blows. The wind blows.

You know what really grinds my gears? You, Lindsay Lohan, you.

You know what's not sexy? The Collegian.

Mr. Clean, homosexual or bi-sexual? You decide.

I have many delicious cheeses.

I'm just going to take a guess, but I'm guessing that every person that calls in and makes fun of Yamon Figurs has never played D-1 ball, so I don't think you have any idea what it's like.

I learned two important life lessons today, dishwashers don't wash your clothes and microwaves definitely don't dry them.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Women should stop reading Cosmo

I was in a bar in Kansas City, Mo., this weekend playing a game of pool, and this girl came up and started flirting and touching me. I didn't think anything of it because she was drunk and with a group of her friends just trying to have fun. Once again, I experienced and heard things women do that can only be described as bitchy.

JOHN BECKER

It was suggested to me to do some outside research on this article, so I looked at an issue of Cosmopolitan magazine and here's what I got: women seem to love lists of things on what to do and what not to do. Women love "experts" telling them what to do in nearly every aspect of life.

So here we go again with another list that includes all of the weird and stupid things I saw that you probably got from Cosmo:

1. If I'm playing pool and you start flirting and want to play, that's cool. However, if I win, don't go crazy and say I'm a jerk. It's not my fault you're drunk and suck at pool.

2. Say you're dating a guy for five years and you live with him and a few friends and you want to break up. Find a respectable way to break up with him. Don't sleep with his roommate or best friend.

3. The October issue of Cosmo had an article called "His Sexiest Time." It was about the meaning behind the times when guys get horny. Let me clear that right up: there is no meaning behind it. According to our anatomy, guys are ready for sex at any time.

4. Many men don't like the advice Cosmo offers, which is odd since so many articles include quotes from "real guys."

"I used to date this girl who read Cosmo and those girl magazines all the time," Nick Callegari, junior in geography, said. "It didn't take me too long to figure out that she was nuts and doing only what she read in those things and not what she felt."

5. Another thing I don't like about Cosmo is there are countless articles on sex tips from guys all over the country that seem faulty. Think about it; they could be made up names and ages.

It could be some random jerk making stuff up and putting a name next to it. So the next time you see Cosmo's 101 top sex tips, don't read too much into it, because chances are if you start sucking on a guy's toes, he's going to wonder why you aren't doing something else.

6. I had another girl walk up to me in the bar this weekend and tell me she knew what I was thinking because she read an article in Cosmo. Of course I put her to the test. She failed miserably. She said I was thinking about getting her in bed, while I was really thinking, "Move out of my way so I can order another beer."

7. This girl I was talking to in a chat room said she could tell how her boyfriend felt about her from his phone habits. I asked her where she got this wonderful technique. Wait for it ... Cosmo. That, too, is crap. Guys call if and when they remember.

Girls would have a lot less to worry about if they stopped reading Cosmo. Case in point, the pool girl probably got her flirt and play technique from the October issue of Cosmo that I read. It said men derive intimacy from engaging physical activities. Well, we only derive intimacy if we are remotely attracted to you. It has nothing to do with playing pool. On the slim chance that the girl from the bar in Kansas City, Mo., actually reads this, I destroyed you three games to none.

John Becker is a junior in theater. You can e-mail him at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

Courtesy photo

Antwan Patton (Big Boi), left, and Andre Benjamin (André 3000), right, from Outkast. The duo will be releasing "Idlewild," the soundtrack to its new musical film on Dec. 6. The film is scheduled for release in January 2006.

Atlanta duo continue to shape pop culture

By Mark Sibilla
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Sugarhill Gang brought rap to the mainstream's consciousness. Public Enemy, along with beatmakers the Bomb Squad, brought a new sonic palette that revolutionized how hardcore rap was viewed.

Meanwhile, N.W.A. forwent Public Enemy's sociopolitical conscience to bring the hardcore streets of Los Angeles directly into the homes of the suburbs, much to the dismay of troubled parents.

In the early 90s, Dr. Dre breathed new life into gangster rap with his patented "G-Funk" beat stylizations and caused tensions between the East and West coast rap labels and legends to rise.

Once rap is declared dead, there are always new innovators who rise up and breathe new life into the fledgling genre. It has only been a few years since, along with the Goodie Mob, Andre Benjamin (André 3000) and Antwan Patton (Big Boi) combined forces and formed Outkast, giving rise to a new style, the dirty south, straight from the streets of Atlanta.

For one to say that Outkast is prolific and influential would be an understatement. Few groups have been able to transverse genres and influence popular culture like Outkast. It has barely been two years since "Hey Ya" had the entire world shaking it "like a Polaroid picture," and that is simply a small example of their impact.

Benjamin and Patton attended the same high school in the Atlanta borough of East Point. Through a variety of several lyrical battles, the two gained respect for each other's skills on the microphone.

Together, the two formed Outkast and were signed to local record label, LaFace, immediately following high school. Together, with production group Organized Noize Productions, the duo released the single "Player's Ball." The single rose to the top of the rap charts and created the initial buzz for their first full-length, "Southernplayalisticadillacmuzik" in 1994. The album was certified platinum by the end of the year.

Outkast returned in 1996 with its second album, "ATLiens," bolstered by the hit single, "Elevators (Me & You)," causing the album to reach No. 2 and platinum status.

"Aquemini" followed in 1998. It was a critical success because of its unified vision. The harmonica-fueled lead single, "Rosa Parks," caused tension between the band and the civil rights pioneer of the same name.

Outkast shook the world with their fourth album, "Stankonia," in 2000. The album debuted at No. 2 and went triple-platinum, partially due to the forward-looking singles "Ms. Jackson" and "B.O.B." The latter song is No. 2 on Blender magazine's special edition list of "The 500 Greatest Songs: Since You Were Born," and the album itself is on several music critics' lists of the greatest albums of the new millennium.

In 2003, Big Boi and André 3000 released the double-album "Speakerboxxx/The Love Below." The concept saw each member release a solo album under the Outkast moniker, and each member would contribute to the other's disc. The world rode the wave of good vibes carried by "Hey Ya" and "The Way You Move" for the remainder of 2003 and most of 2004.

What does this duo have in store for the world now? On Dec. 6, Outkast will be releasing "Idlewild," the soundtrack to its new musical film set for release in January 2006. The film is set in the Depression-era and tells the story of a struggling musician (André 3000) and the owner of a speakeasy (Big Boi).

Big Boi told Rolling Stone that the new album sounds like an Outkast record on film. Such media dominance makes one eager to hear and see the latest that this inexhaustible duo has to offer.

Illustration by Mark Sibilla | COLLEGIAN

NEW RELEASES

Music

Aerosmith, "Rockin' the Joint"
Al Franken, "The Al Franken Show Party Album"
Bette Midler, "Sings the Peggy Lee Songbook"
The Cardigans, "Super Extra Gravity"
Children of Bodom, "Are You Dead Yet?"
Collin Raye, "Twenty Years and Change"
Dead Can Dance, "Momento: The Very Best of Dead Can Dance"
Destiny's Child, "#1's"
George Harrison, "The Concert for Bangladesh"
Great Big Sea, "The Hard & the Easy"
Il Divo, "The Christmas Collection"
Joe Nichols, "III"
Kate Bush, "King of the Mountain"
NSYNC, "Greatest Hits"
Robbie Williams, "Intensive Care"
Sarah Brightman, "Love Changes Everything"
Stephen Sondheim, "Sondheim Sings, Vol. 2: 1946-1960"
Stream of Passion, "Embrace the Storm"
Various Artists, "This Bird Has Flown: A 40th Anniversary Tribute to the Beatles' Rubber Soul"

Source: www.amazon.com

Movies in theaters Friday

"Saw II" (R)
Serial killer Jigsaw is back, only this time instead of locking up two people in a room, he's got eight victims. They're all complete strangers and must play a disturbing game to determine who, if anyone, survives.

"The Legend of Zorro" (PG)
It's 1850, and after fighting to help California become the 31st state, Zorro (Antonio Banderas) has promised his wife, Elena (Catherine Zeta-Jones), that he'll give up his secret identity and go back to living as Alejandro de la Vega. But he has second thoughts when an old villain threatens to unleash a threat that's been years in the making.

Banderas

"The Weather Man" (R)
Dave Spritz (Nicolas Cage), a TV weatherman in Chicago, gets his big chance: a spot on a popular morning show in New York City. While his career takes off, he finds that his relationship with his wife (Hope Davis) and his kids flounders. Before long, he's in the middle of a painful divorce. He then turns to his father (Michael Caine), a successful novelist, for advice on how to get his life in order.

"Prime" (PG-13)
Rafi (Uma Thurman), a 37-year-old divorced New Yorker, meets and quickly falls for a 23-year-old painter from Brooklyn. Rafi's therapist, Lisa (Meryl Streep), thinks the new relationship is a great idea, even if it's not meant to last. But when Lisa discovers that her son is actually the guy dating Rafi, she finds it increasingly difficult to serve as her therapist.

Thurman

Source: www.movies.go.com

DVDs

"Alias — The Complete Fourth Season"
"The L Word — The Complete Second Season"
"The Wizard of Oz (Three-Disc Collector's Edition)"
"Looney Tunes — Golden Collection, Volume Three"
"Titanic — Special Collector's Edition (1997)"
"Herbie — Fully Loaded"
"The Concert for Bangladesh (Limited Deluxe Edition)"
"Bewitched"
"Little House on the Prairie — The Complete Season 9"
"The Wizard of Oz (Two-Disc Special Edition)"
"The Munsters — Complete Second Season"
"American Gothic — Complete Series"
"Tales From the Crypt — The Complete Second Season"

Source: www.amazon.com

Kvaratskhelia falls in semifinals of ITA Central Regional

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tamar Kvaratskhelia had her eye on the prize.

The sophomore came within one game of playing in the finals of the Intercollegiate Tennis Association Central Regional, advancing all the way to the semifinals before losing to Arkansas' Ela Kaluder.

Coach Steve Bietau said Kvaratskhelia displayed a higher level of play in the regional tournament.

"If you don't have a sense of urgency in a tournament like this then you won't last long," Bietau said.

"Her intensity got better as the tournament went on."

Kaluder, who was the eventual winner of the tournament, has proven to be bad news for the Wildcats, sporting a 3-0 singles record against K-State on the year.

The ITA Central Regional tournament, held at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City, was the first indoor tournament of the year for the Wildcats.

Bietau said moving inside to play to tennis is not as difficult as moving outside to play tennis.

"What makes this tournament harder is the higher altitude," Bietau said. "So this tournament should help us when we go back to that area later this year for team competitions."

Senior Jessica Simosa started the tournament with a loss before advancing to the championship match of the consolation bracket.

"She was really disappointed, but didn't play that badly," Bietau said. "She definitely played better as it went on."

Bietau said Simosa finished second in the consolation bracket by fighting back and not hanging her head after being eliminated in the first round.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Tamar Kvaratskhelia hits a forehand shot against Texas last spring. Kvaratskhelia lost in the semifinals of the Intercollegiate Tennis Association Central Regional.

"She was kind of down after that loss, and she had to battle to win early rounds," Bietau said.

The K-State doubles teams consisting of Katerina Kudlackova and Kvaratskhelia, and Simosa and Maria Perevoschikova, both advanced to the quarter finals of the event.

"Both teams played well," Bietau said. "Kudlackova and Kvaratskhelia learned some things in this tournament as far as being more aggressive. They got started in the right direction."

Bietau said he was impressed by the play of his two freshmen, Kudlackova and Perevoschikova, competing at both the singles and doubles levels in their first regional event.

K-State's next tournament, the ASU Thunderbird Invitational in Tempe, Ariz. The ASU invitational will be the final tournament in the first part of the Wildcats' season.

"Our fall season is winding down, and it is getting colder," Bietau said, "so we will be practicing less but more intense."

Surprise talent

Canadian native leads K-State women golfers

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State found Helene Robert by accident.

"I was at the Canadian Juniors recruiting a girl from Ontario, who was paired with Helene," coach Kristi Knight said.

The British Columbia provincial coach talked Knight into watching Robert, who was paired with the girl Knight was recruiting in 2002.

"I only watched about three or four holes," Knight admitted. "She hit nice shots, and had a good swing."

Knight thought Robert had already committed to a university, but after asking Christine Boucher, a former Wildcat golfer from Quebec, Knight discovered Robert was only a senior and hadn't graduated from high school as Knight had thought.

"Helene wanted to come to the states to play," Knight said. "She had good word-of-mouth. It wasn't on research, it was just one of those things."

Robert committed to play for K-State, and since then, Robert has found success as a Wildcat golfer.

She was the 2004-05 Team Player of the Year, and has already won one tournament this year, the Marilynn Smith/Sunflower Invitational on Oct. 10-11.

Robert said there were several things that brought her to K-State.

"Colbert Hills (Golf Course) was probably the thing I liked the most," she said. "We have a great range, and the golf course is amazing, so it's a great place to practice. I also liked the town. Everybody was friendly and involved around the campus."

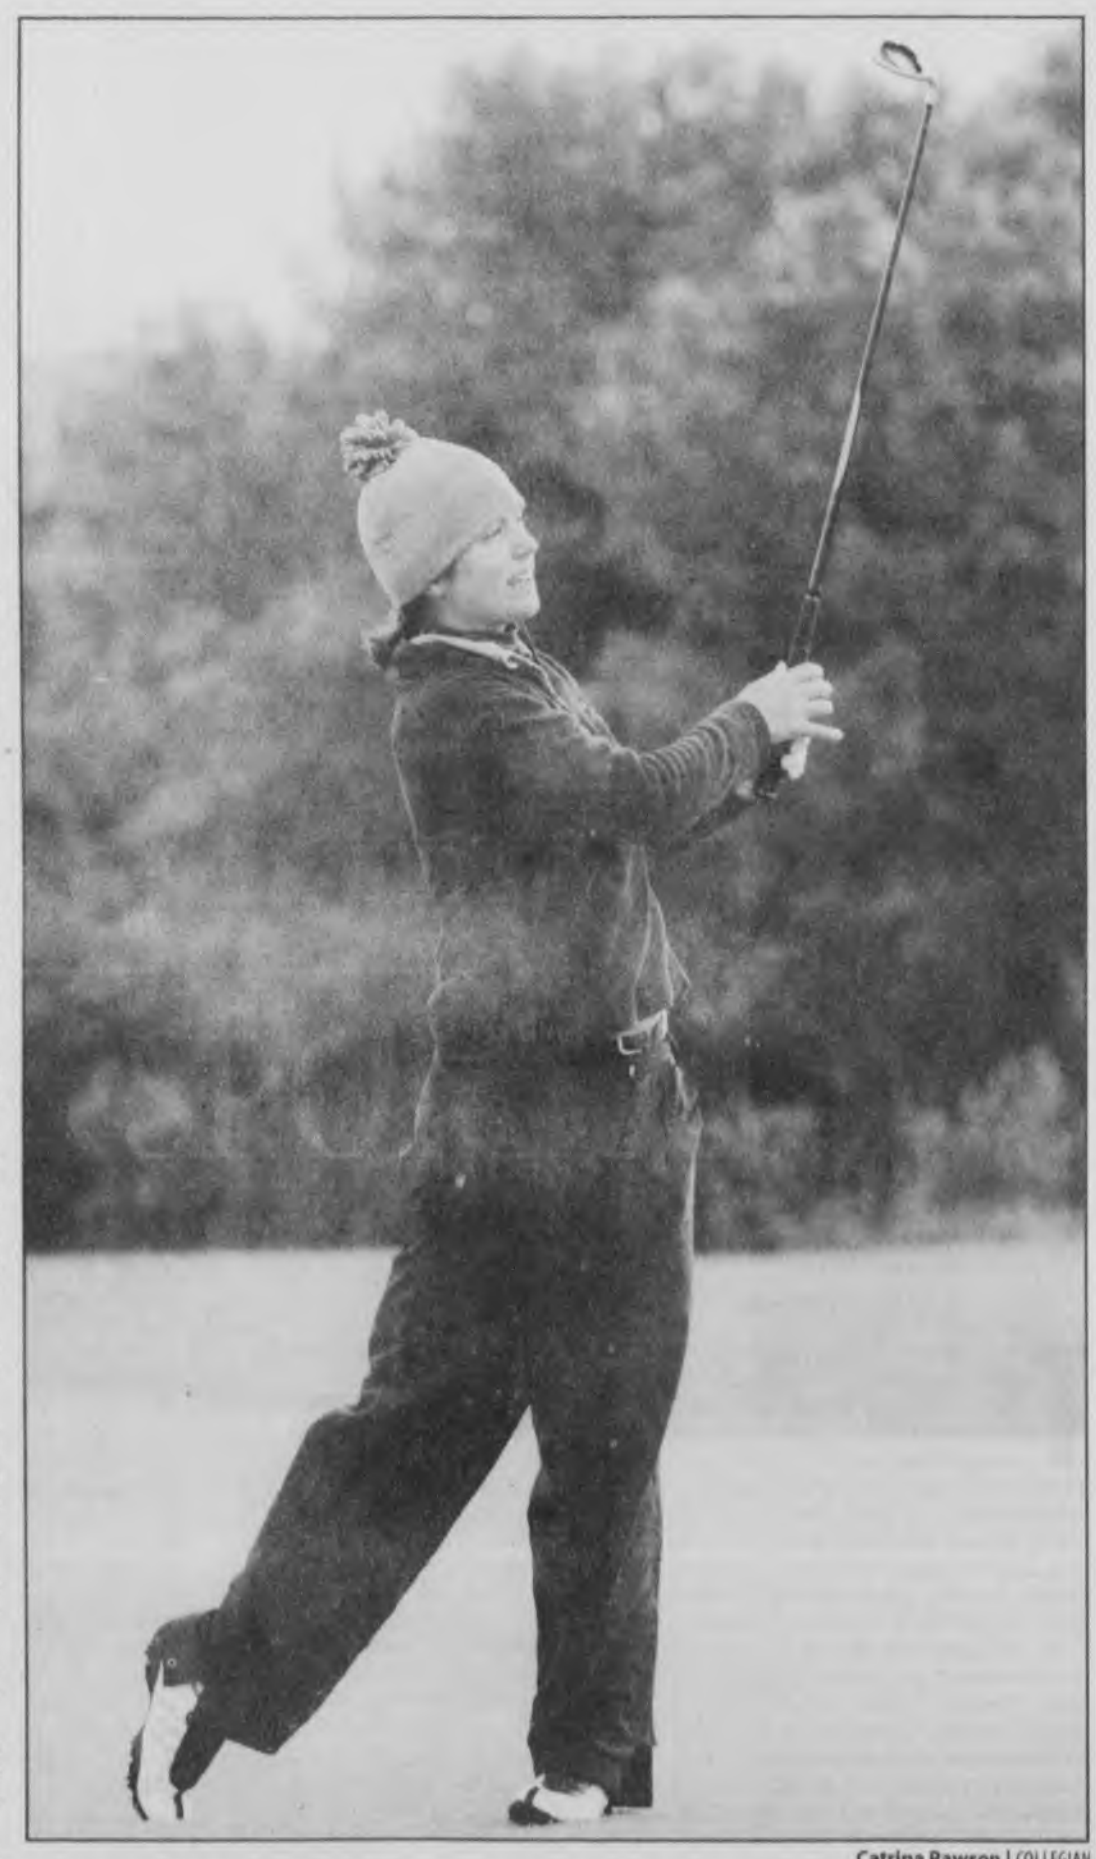
Robert said she can see differences in her game between her freshman and junior years.

"I'm just being more patient," she said. "My swing hasn't changed. I try to just play as much as I can, so I try to keep the same swing every time I go out there."

Knight said Robert's greatest advancement has come from the mental side of the sport.

"The biggest improvement she's made is her patience on the course," Knight said. "She doesn't let a bad hole affect future holes. She's not losing her temper, and she has high expectations for herself."

But Robert doesn't restrict the high expectations to her sport.



"She sets high expectations in both golf and school," Knight said. "She has done a good job of staying out of the way of herself and her ability."

One thing Knight said she likes about Robert is her desire to win.

"She's a talented competitor," she said. "Competitiveness is an asset."

Robert said although she has done a lot at K-State, she still has some unfinished business.

"Winning some more tournaments would be great," she said with a laugh.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

K-State's Helene Robert competes in the Marilynn Smith/Sunflower Invitational at Colbert Hills Golf Course on Oct. 10. Robert earned a first place finish in the tournament at 1-under-par 215.

NBA players should comply with new dress-code regulations, stop complaining

MARK POTTER

I don't like to dress up, and I doubt most college-aged men like to dress up either.

Yet, sometimes preference doesn't matter. On certain occasions, I am forced to dress up because it is required by someone superior to me, such as my boss, my mom or my fiancée.

Since I have frequently given in to dress guidelines, my guess is if I earned millions of dollars to play basketball for a living, I would have no problem complying with National Basketball Association Commissioner David Stern's new dress code.

Just a hunch.

Here's the basic gist of Stern's "business casual" requirement, which was announced Oct. 17 and will go into effect Nov. 1.

When engaged in "team or league business," players are forbidden to wear:

-Sleeveless shirts, shorts and T-shirts.

-Chains, pendants or medallions worn over the player's clothes.

-Sunglasses while indoors.

-Headphones (unless traveling or in the team locker room).

Also, jerseys and head gear such as baseball caps and 'do rags will be banned from post-game press conferences, and players on the bench not in uniform must now wear sport jackets, dress shoes and socks.

A number of players have openly expressed dissatisfaction with the limitations, which still allow players to wear jeans, except on the bench.

"I think it's a load of crap," Spurs forward Tim Duncan said in a report by the San Antonio Express-News.

"I think I'm just going to continue to dress how I feel," Celtics guard Paul Pierce said to Steve Bulpett of the Boston Herald. "I think there's some days I may take a fine."

Pacers swingman Stephen Jackson told Mark Montieth of the Indianapolis Star he has no problem dressing up because he's a "nice-looking guy." However, Jackson thinks race was involved in Stern's decision.

"As far as chains, I definitely feel that's a racial statement," Jackson said.

Are these NBA All-Stars' opinions perplexing? You bet. Are they surprising? Not a bit.

Look, the NBA has all but lost control of its players, and Stern knows it. The league has more than just an image crisis on its hands, and Stern's decision had nothing to do with race.

Philadelphia guard Allen Iverson's comments are a perfect example of the NBA's main problem: a lack of discipline.

"I feel like if they want us to dress a certain way, they should pay for our clothes," Iverson told an Associated Press reporter.

Come on AI, is there really no money to spare on a couple of new outfits in the more than $16 million you will make this season? Give me a break.

Many NBA players think they can say or do whatever they want. Who's going to stop them? After all, Stern needs players like Duncan, Pierce, Jackson and Iverson to cooperate, or else his league suffers.

NBA coaches are forced to obey strict dress regulations. And basketball is not the only sport with a dress code as the National Hockey League also enforces one.

Exhibit 14, paragraph five of the NHL collective bargaining agreement reads:

"Players are required to wear jackets, ties and dress pants to all club games and while traveling to and from such games unless otherwise specified by the head coach or general manager."

I'd take the NBA's business casual dress code over this one any day.

More NBA players should follow the lead of 20-year-old Cavaliers swingman LeBron James, who reportedly told the Cleveland Plain Dealer that the new dress code is "no big deal."

"Sometimes you feel lazy, and you don't feel like putting some clothes on, but this is a job," James said.

Mark Potter is a senior in public relations.
You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

WBB | Women to have open practice on Oct. 29

The K-State women's basketball team will have an open practice on Saturday at Bramlage Coliseum prior to the Wildcats' football game against Colorado.

Doors to the northeast and northwest entrances of Bramlage Coliseum will open to the public at 10:30 a.m. with practice ending at 11:45 a.m. Fans can register to win an autographed basketball signed by the entire 2005-06 squad as well as pick up team roster and schedule cards on the concourse level.

First action this season for the Wildcats will be when Emporia State comes to town for an exhibition matchup scheduled for 7 p.m. on Nov. 8. To order tickets, call 1-800-221-CATS.

The Associated Press

CFB | Missouri's Smith garners Big 12 honors

DALLAS — Brad Smith of Missouri, LaMarcus Hicks of Iowa State and Oklahoma's Garrett Hartley were named Big 12 players of the week Monday.

In his sixth offensive player of the week honor, Smith broke a school record with 480 of total yards in a 41-24 win over Nebraska and became the first player in Division I-A history to throw and rush for 230 yards in a game.

The senior was 21-of-36 for 234 yards and one touchdown and also ran 28 times for 246 yards and three TDs.

LaMarcus Hicks of Iowa State won for defense, grabbing two interceptions for the second time this season in a 37-10 win over Oklahoma State.

Oklahoma's Garrett Hartley won special teams honors, completing all three of his field goal attempts from 32, 25 and 39 yards in a 37-30 win over Baylor.

NFL | Rams coach to miss rest of season

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis Rams coach Mike Martz will miss the rest of the season due to a bacterial infection of a heart valve that has already sidelined him for two games.

Martz

Martz told the team Monday that after being examined and evaluated by his treating physician, Dr. Victoria Fraser, that his illness will prevent him from performing his duties. Fraser is co-chief of the division of infectious diseases at Barnes-Jewish Hospital.

Martz, 54, has had what his doctors have termed an acute bacterial infection since the beginning of the season and was admitted to a hospital on Sept. 30 for treatment. On Oct. 5, Martz announced that he had been sick for several weeks and that his condition prevented him from attending practice.

NFL | Green Bay loses Ahman Green for year

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Packers running back Ahman Green is out for the season with a torn thigh tendon.

Coach Mike Sherman said Monday that Green will undergo surgery this week to repair his right thigh tendon, which was torn in the fourth quarter of the Packers' 23-20 loss at Minnesota on Sunday.

MLB | Clemens' status for Game 5 unclear

CHICAGO — Roger Clemens' left hamstring was sore enough late Saturday night that he was given a cortisone shot after the game, ESPN was told by a baseball official who was updated Sunday on Clemens' condition.

Clemens

Because Clemens has responded to these shots in the past, the Astros haven't ruled out the possibility that he can pitch again in this World Series.

BCS Standings

1. Texas	.9763
2. Southern Cal	.9756
3. Virginia Tech	.9164
4. Georgia	.8679
5. Alabama	.8513
6. UCLA	.7384
7. Miami (Fla.)	.7114
8. LSU	.7065
9. Penn State	.6450
10. Florida State	.5735
Other Big 12 teams:
16. Texas Tech	.4222
24. Colorado	.1067

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

1026 BLUEMONT. One and two-bedroom apartments available immediately and for second semester. Pets okay. (785)539-1713.

A LARGE TWO-BEDROOM apartment, pets okay, central location, dishwasher, disposal, central air. Short term lease available. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

115 Rooms Available

ROOM FOR rent until January. $250. Two-bedroom at Chase. Call (951)764-8840.

120 For Rent- Houses

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ROOMMATE NEEDED for two-bedroom apartment. Very clean/ nice, pets allowed. Great landlords, available now- May 31. Call (913)220-5854.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

120 For Rent- Houses

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM, Washer/ dryer, fenced 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

1978 SCHULTZ mobile home, 14X72. Three-bedroom, two bath. $6100 or best offer. (785)458-9734.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

MALE STUDENT roommate wanted to share nice mobile home starting now or spring semester. $175/ month plus utilities. Call (620)331-0147, leave detailed message.

ROOMMATE WANTED: $250/ month. One block from Aggieville , two from campus. Available immediately. (816)810-5953.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed, Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

FEMALE/ MALE subleaser for spring/ summer semester(s), nice house, walk to campus, washer/ dryer, $290/ month plus utilities. Call (316)706-7272

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

SUBLEASE AVAILABLE immediately or whenever. One-bedroom next to Aggieville, utilities paid, except electric. August lease. Call anytime (785)317-0235.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM, quiet and responsible, 12/15/05- 7/28/05, December rent free. 1014 Bluemont. $540/ month plus deposit. (913)706-6927.

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER WANTED. $375/ month, washer, dryer, furnished, University Crossing. Call (913)909-5448.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom. Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

SUBLEASERS WANTED for two-bedroom apartment. One block from campus, washer/ dryer, water/ trash paid. Second semester. (316)288-9629.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

310 Help Wanted

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS: Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today.
www.freecarkey.com

GRADUATE ASSISTANT, Bachelor's Degree Completion Program, KSU Division of Continuing Education. Facilitate undergraduates in K-State's external degree program, Bachelor's Degree Completion. Required: Hold a bachelor's degree and be accepted into a graduate degree program at KSU. Have excellent oral and written communications skills, good interpersonal skills and good attention to detail. Have experience in word-processing, e-mail and computer applications. Preferred: Have experience advising adult non-traditional undergraduate students and be able to work with minimum supervision. Have experience using KSU's SIS system and database software. Request a detailed position description at 226 College Court or call (785)532-5575. Applications will be accepted October 24- November 4. Applicants should submit a letter of application, a resume, and name, addresses, and phone numbers of three references. Starting date: January of 2006.

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

LUTHERAN CAMPUS ministries is seeking candidate for the position of peer minister. Duties include outreach to college students, assist in operations of Luther House and assist with worship activities. Monthly stipend available. Email resume and letter of interest to cheryll@kaukis.com.

MANPOWER IS now accepting applications for office position in Alma. Weekends only, $9/ hour. Apply in person at 555 Poyntz Ave. Suite 245.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air-conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape, 73k asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

600 travel/ trip

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

SPRING BREAKERS book early and save. Lowest prices. Hottest destinations. Book 15= 2 FREE TRIPS OR CASH. FREE MEALS/ PARTIES BY 11/7. Highest commission. Best travel perks. www.sunsplashtours.com (800)426-7710

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1100 Hylton Heights · Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

Advertising Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 484
Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Graphic Design Internship
Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian
If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS
Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.
The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.
Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.
Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.
Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.
Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

NEED A ROOMMATE?
WANT FOOTBALL TICKETS?
TRYING TO SELL YOUR CAR?
TRY THE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.
103 Kedzie 532-6555

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board
100 housing/ real estate
200 service directory
300 employment opportunities
400 open market
500 transportation
600 travel/ trip

AMBASSADORS | 8 finalists speak at Wildcat Request Live Monday

Continued from Page 1

and I've always been part of a K-State family. I want to be an ambassador to recruit people to this amazing place and to do the Wabash.

2. I have studied abroad to Spain, and I've met amazing people through my sorority and made amazing friends. I know the campus fairly well by working at New Student Services and giving campus tours.

3. People may see it as a disadvantage because it's in Kansas, but I want to show what K-State has to offer and what Manhattan as a community has to offer. The location makes K-State more attractive.

Chance Lee, junior in sociology

1. The student body is from all over Kansas and all over the country. They're very diverse and fun and give a great atmosphere.

2. I've lived here all my life, and I know the community really well. That's important for an ambassador to know because you have to sell the community, too. I have a lot of love for the university.

3. A lot of students have thought of K-State as a small, land-grant Midwest school, but that is really not the case anymore. We're nationally recognized and are competing at a national level.

Mary Kate Ludwig, junior in history

1. What I love most about K-State is that it is such an inviting place to go to school. The people are very unique, and they make sure that each person feels welcomed.

2. I'm an excellent communicator, and I've been involved with a lot of leadership organizations where I've learned to relate with people from all corners of the university. Also, working with alumni, I think I will really be able to help them remember why they loved K-State.

3. The biggest challenge is to help look beyond what they have heard about the university. We want to attract as many students as we can.

Mardell Maxwell, sophomore in music education

1. I want to give back to the university. K-State has given me an opportunity to meet different people, mature and become an adult. It offers more than just academics.

2. I work very well with people, so this is right down my alley. By working in New Student Services, I feel my knowledge and skill is that of an upperclassman. I enjoy working with prospective students. I even have started sharing the three P's of K-State: people, pride and purpose. These three things are K-State's trademark.

3. I think the greatest challenge is in diversity. K-State is changing that, but that would definitely be one of the challenges. As an African-American, I feel I can help with that concern.

Chancy Montera, junior in marketing

1. The people here are very down-to-earth. K-State has given me the opportunity to really grow.

2. I'm involved in a lot of different organizations. I've lived in the dorms as a freshman, a sorority house and an apartment. I've also been involved with a variety of levels of involvement. I really love K-State.

3. A lot of prospective students are afraid of meeting people and getting involved. Also, more and more students want to see diversity, and K-State is working on that. There's a lot more diversity programs you can get involved with.

Ashley Smit, junior in biology

1. If you find something good, you tell others about it. I'm a shout-it-from-the-rooftop kind of person. K-State has helped me grow in every aspect of myself. Socially and spiritually I've grown.

2. I relate well to all ages of people, and I'm very optimistic and incredibly enthusiastic.

3. We have 23,000 students that you are representing, so being an accurate representation is difficult. It's hard to give answers without giving a cliché and not just saying, "It's awesome." It's hard trying to connect with a huge, diverse group.

Joe Vossen, junior in political science

1. I came here because of the personal nature the university took recruiting me. There are so many amazing people here, not just students, but faculty and staff, that are going out and doing great things for the university.

2. I'm very empathetic that each student is a little different and has different concerns, and I'll have a lot of purple pride to go out there and see that those needs are met.

3. The most difficult questions are when students want to compare your university to others, and then you just say what great opportunities K-State has to offer here. Then there are the negative perspectives students are worried about, but K-State's a very welcoming place.

ABORTION | Organizations hand out information at exhibit

Continued Form Page 1

Wilcox said.

Although neither Ordinary Women nor the Manhattan branch of the National Organization for Women have staged any group activities around the display, both groups are encouraging individual members to get involved.

Shannon Babcock, president of Manhattan N.O.W., said she would carry a coat hanger on her backpack as a form of silent protest. Additionally, members from the group will hand out information on where to get emergency contraceptives and free condoms.

Megan Challender, president of Ordinary Women, released a statement listing Ordinary Women's disagreement with the exhibit.

Michelle Mazur, president of students for the right to life, said her group is not affiliated with the display.

"We are not endorsing them, we are not giving our club support, but we have encouraged our individual members to go and volunteer," she said.

For Cook, the graphic images are necessary for what she does, she said.

"Our goal is to show people what abortion is, it just happens that the pictures happen to be shocking," she said.

Members of groups like Manhattan N.O.W. and Ordinary Women said they will be taking steps to ensure that JFA's voice is not the only one being heard on campus.

"Being pro-choice does not mean I'm pro-abortion," Babcock said. "I don't know anybody who's pro-abortion, but I also don't believe I have any right to tell another woman how to treat her own body."

kstatecollegian.com

ALL KEGS $5 OFF
Natural Lt. 30pk $10.99
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor

Put your best foot foward...
INDULGE IN YOUR FETISH
Keen
Come see us at
Olson's Birkenstock
1214-B Moro • Aggieville
539-8571
You cannot put the same shoe on every foot!

GUMBY DAMMIT
$5.99
Large 1-Topping
•or• Large Pokey Stix
GUMBY'S Pizza
770-3333
702 N. 11th Street
Limited Delivery Area
Delivery Charges May Apply

Don't Get Weighted Down
Increase shine and body with AVEDA Light Elements.
Perfect for fine hair.
Buy 1 Get 1 for 50% Off
HAYNES
An Aveda Family Salon in Aggieville
718 N. Manhattan Ave. 539-5512
AVEDA

Think You can Do Better?
Executive Position
Editor in chief
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 11
•Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Photo Journalsits • Desk Editors
• Graphic Journalists • Reporters
• Graphic Artists • Designers
• Online Journalists • Copy Editors
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 16
Pick up Applications in Kedzie 103

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THINKING about changing majors?
For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494
K-State
Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 26 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom

Are you a Jedi Master?
Can you control people with your mind?
Do you like bending them to your will?
Ever consider a career in advertising?
the Kansas State Collegian is now accepting applications for spring '06
• Collegian Advertising Manager
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives
Applications for Ad Manager are due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Staff applications due Nov. 16.
We're looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and job description in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

$60 CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?
2 GREAT SPECIALS
1 GREAT PRICE
$60 COLOR AND HAIRCUT OR STYLING
*with Jess, Heather, & Nichole
*additional costs may be included on additional colors
*call for details
GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
3266 Kimball • Candlewood • 776-5632

e-CHUG
An Online Alcohol Use Self-Screening Instrument
KSU Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service offers KSU students free access to the e-CHUG (electronic Check-Up to Go). The e-CHUG is a brief assessment tool that takes about 6-7 minutes to complete, is self-guided, requires no face-to-face contact time with a counselor, is completely anonymous, and provides immediate individual feedback.
To take the e-CHUG go to: www.ksu.edu/counseling

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com Wednesday, October 26, 2005 Vol. 110, No. 48

INSIDE

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

Capacity crowd expected at Gorbachev Landon Lecture

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A capacity crowd is expected to hear former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's Landon Lecture at McCain Auditorium Friday.

Landon Lecture chair Charles Reagan said there will be increased security for Gorbachev, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1990 and helped bring an end to the Cold War. A bag check will be conducted under the supervision of the K-State Police and Bramlage Coliseum inspectors, Reagan said.

"He has been out of office for so long, so the risk level is not as high," Reagan said. "We are still taking appropriate security measures."

Overflow seating will be available in Forum Hall, and the lecture will be broadcast live on Channel 8 and on the Landon Lecture Web site.

While a capacity crowd of 1,500 is expected, Landon Lecture officials decided not to move Gorbachev's lecture to Bramlage Coliseum, which seats 5,000 for lectures. They were concerned that conflicts such as the All-University Homecoming parade may affect attendance.

Another reason for not having the lecture at Bramlage is the modest student turnout for recent lectures, Reagan said.

Gorbachev

The lecture is 3:30 p.m. to accommodate Gorbachev's schedule.

Gorbachev will be delivering the lecture in Russian with an interpreter doing a voice-over in English.

In addition to the Landon Lecture at K-State, Gorbachev will visit Lindsborg, Kan., on Saturday to open a worldwide campaign promoting peace through the game of chess.

Gorbachev introduced glasnost ("openness") at the 27th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union in 1986, which gave new freedoms to people, like the freedom of speech. He also tried to reform the Communist Party and state economy by introducing perestroika ("restructuring") and uskorenie ("acceleration" of economic development).

Landon Lecture
When: 3:30 p.m. Friday
Where: McCain Auditorium
How much: Free

Overflow seating will be in Forum Hall in the K-State Student Union. The lecture will also be broadcast live on K-State's Educational Communications Center KSTB Cox Cable Channel 8, and through streaming video and audio provided by K-State's Division of Continuing Education at www.k-state.edu/landon.

Dale Herspring, professor of political science, said Gorbachev is one of the important figures of the past 50 years.

"He was most important in the change from Communism to Western-style democracy," said Herspring, who was a Foreign Service Officer in Russia for the Department of State from 1971 to 1991. "He could have done the exact opposite."

Leshia Hansen, sophomore in life sciences, has done research on Gorbachev's life and career in preparation for the lecture.

"I think it's a great opportunity to see someone who had a big impact on the world," she said. "Students should be exposed to those who have impacted the world."

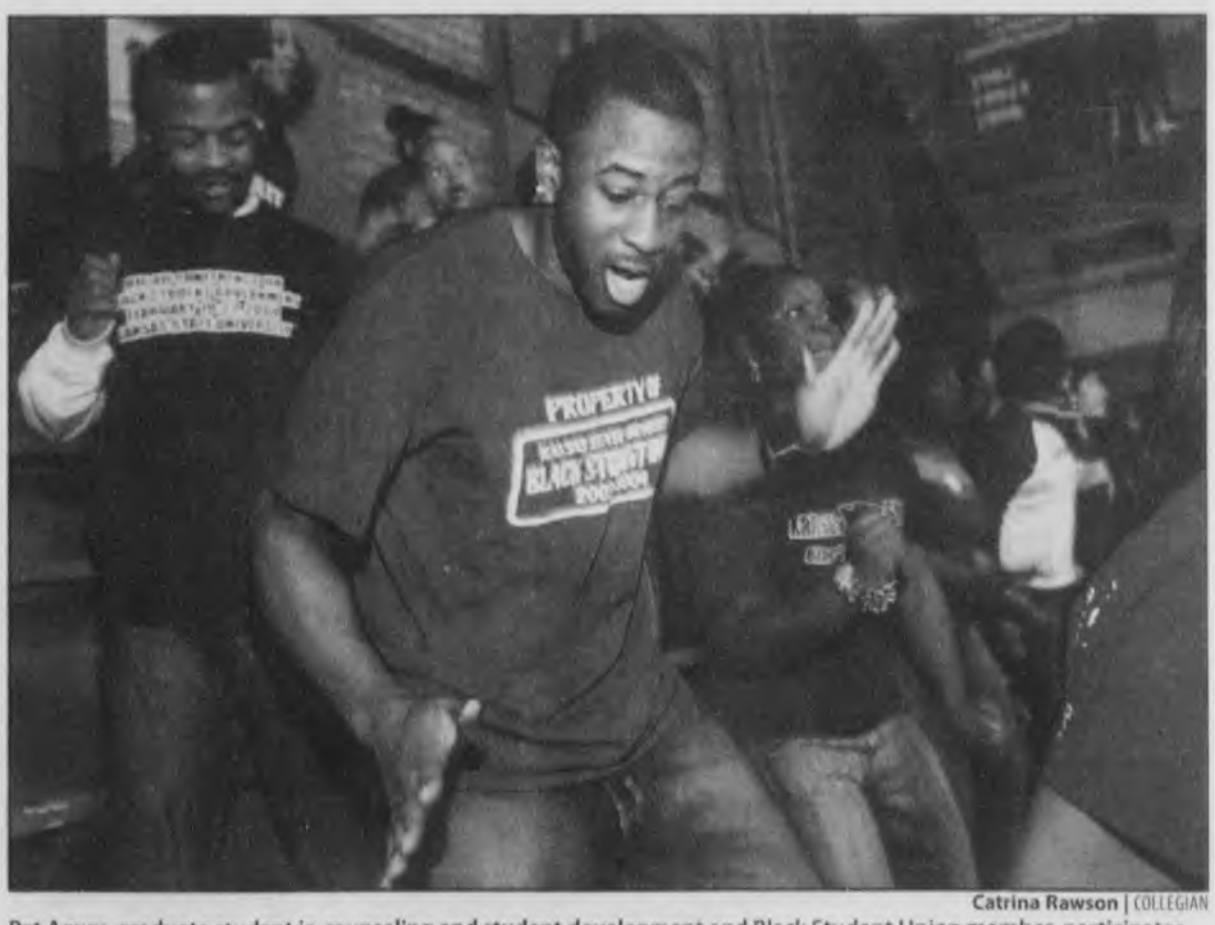
School pride

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Yelling during Pant the Chant, Sean Hafferty, freshman in electrical engineering, cheers with other members from Kappa Kappa Gamma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Theta Xi and Delta Lambda Phi. Student organizations, greek houses and residence halls competed in the annual Pant the Chant competition.

Students dance, cheer at annual 'Pant the Chant'

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN



Loud music pounded through the speakers and students waited with anticipation as dozens of competitors danced and cheered in the aisles, preparing for the annual Pant the Chant competition.

Eleven greek pairings, two residence hall groups and one student organization, the Black Student Union, performed original cheers at Tuesday night's event in Ahearn Field House.

The groups put much effort and time into preparing for the competition, Mike DeVader, sophomore in pre-journalism and mass communications, said.

"Overall the experience was good, but it was hard to make it to all the practices, because we were all busy doing our own thing," he said. "In the end we realized what it was all about, and it feels like we completed something as a whole."

Pant the Chant is one of the first activities during Homecoming week that brings greek houses, residence halls and student organizations together in one place.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Pat Agwu, graduate student in counseling and student development and Black Student Union member, participates with other BSU members in Pant the Chant Tuesday evening at Ahearn Field House.

"Pant the Chant was a great activity to get everyone's spirits up for homecoming," said Christy Martin, freshman in business administration pre-professional.

Up to 100 students could compete in each greek life chant group and up to 50 students could compete in each residence life group. There is no limit to the number of students who can participate in student organization chant groups.

"Pant the Chant is one of the longest running events we've had here at K-State," said Andrea

See CHANT Page 10

Avian flu outbreak causes concern

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Avian influenza – or bird flu – will eventually come to the United States.

"It's not really if it comes, it's when it comes," Larry Hollis, associate professor of animal sciences and industry, said.

Wild birds are natural hosts to the virus, which is highly contagious among birds. When the illness infects domestic poultry, it begins to spread.

The virus was first isolated from birds in South Africa in 1961. In 1997, the first case of infection in humans was reported in Hong Kong. The virus caused severe respiratory illness in 18 people, six of whom died.

"When you look at the countries over in Southeast Asia, wherever they've had problems, the fatality rate in humans is running right at 50 percent," Hollis said. "This is partly because they don't have the medical facilities and infrastructure that we have here. I think we'd have a higher survival rate."

Infected birds shed the virus in saliva, nasal secretions and feces. As a result, it is primarily individuals who have direct contact with such substances who are most likely to contract the disease.

However, as this strain of the virus can mutate, it could become as contagious among humans as it is among birds.

See FLU Page 10

Evolution activist to run for Board of Education

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

One more moderate Republican has entered the battle over evolution in the Kansas classroom as it continues to draw national attention.

Harry McDonald, a retired biology teacher and president of Kansas Citizens for Science, has announced his intention to run for the State of Kansas Board of Education. McDonald said the issue of evolution is important in his campaign, but it is not the sole reason for his candidacy.

"To put it in a nutshell, I'm tired of the fiasco created by our current board of education," he said. "I believe they're out of line with our district and along with the vast majority of Kansas."

Board member Kathy Martin, whose jurisdiction includes Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, said she expects a vote next month to decide on standards that would "allow for criticisms of evolution."

McDonald will run against incumbent John Bacon of the third district in the Aug. 1,

See BOARD Page 10

Today

High 63
Low 37

Thursday

High 65
Low 42

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Psychologists sued
On Tuesday, Kansas Attorney General Phill Kline sued two Massachusetts psychologists hired by a state agency to interview BTK serial killer Dennis Rader prior to sentencing. Segments of the interview were broadcast by "Dateline NBC" five days before Rader's sentencing in August.

2,000 killed
As of Tuesday, 2,000 Americans have died in Iraq since the war began. In response, President Bush warned the U.S. public to brace for more casualties in the fight against "as brutal an enemy as we have ever faced, unconstrained by any notion of common humanity and by the rules of warfare."

Cancer grant
The National Institutes of Health has renewed a $10.4 million federal grant to support cancer research done at universities in Kansas. K-State will receive some of this money. The new grant focuses on "promising cancer research efforts of junior faculty members," the University of Kansas said.

DON'T FORGET

Students with 88 hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

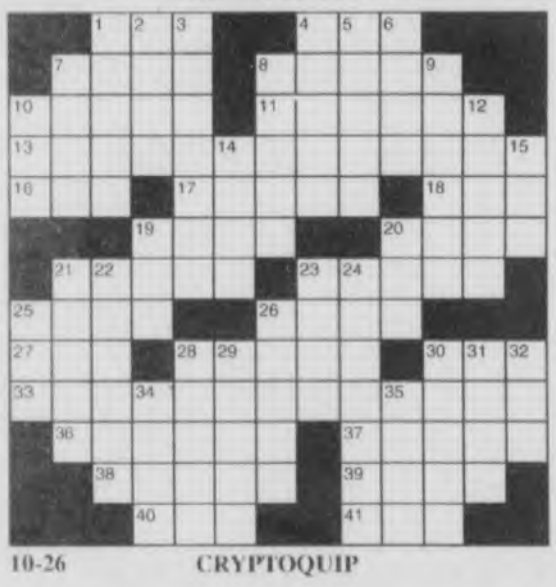
K-State Volleyball will play Missouri at 7 tonight in Ahearn Field House.

Judging for Yard Art will be at 2 p.m. today for the art displayed at the greek houses.

The Academic Majors Fair will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. today in the Union Grand Ballroom.

Xtreme tanning
Bring this ad in for a FREE sample when tanning!
1122 Laramie 539-3742

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Humpty Dumpty
4 Physique
7 Speak unclearly
8 "From Here to Eternity" author
10 Grassy plain
11 Critter
13 "Where have you been all these years?"
16 Foundation
17 "Finished at last!"
18 Spotted
19 Greets the villain
20 "Pretty Woman" actor
21 Choker fastener
23 Small, round and shining
25 "Come again?"
26 Observe Ramadan
27 Attila, e.g.
28 Morrison's group
30 Nursery item
33 Grimm opener
36 Pets' shelter
37 Eastwood's "Rawhide" role
38 Active ones
39 Verve
40 123-45-6789 org.
41 Hideaway

DOWN
1 Gazelle's kin
2 — -ho (zealous)
3 Caverns
4 Lulu of a slip-up
5 Cat- — -tails
6 Showroom sample
7 Blackthorn
8 First name of 8-Across
9 Talked back
10 Law deg.
12 Denis of "Rescue Me"
14 Breakfast franchise acronym
15 Ram's mate
19 Belfry dweller
20 Roscoe
21 Thick piece
22 Defeated at a joust
23 Cow palace?
24 Gave it a shot
25 Abbott's first baseman
26 4/1 victims
28 Beach sights
29 Phantom's bailiwick
30 Tennessee footballer
31 Portent
32 "Of course"
34 Eve's grandson
35 Story

Solution time: 21 mins.

D	A	M	S		F	A	Y		T	H	U	D
I	R	A	N		A	L	E		R	A	N	I
S	E	R	A		C	A	T	H	O	L	I	C
C	A	T	C	H	E	R		E	M	O	T	E
			K	I	D		G	A	P
A	B	Y	S	S		C	A	T	E	R	E	D
R	O	E			S	O	L			O	L	E
C	A	T	N	A	P	S		C	E	C	I	L
			I	S	A		P	O	L
S	L	E	E	K		C	A	T	A	L	O	G
C	A	T	C	A	L	L	S		T	A	P	E
A	C	N	E		T	A	T		E	M	I	T
B	E	A	S		D	N	A		D	E	E	S

Yesterday's answer 10-26

10-26 CRYPTOQUIP

RP HGF PGOOGQ N IGISANRC QRAE N CRPPXZXMA CZRMS, R JFXWW HGF TRJEA IENWX TNMENAANM

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: AT THE TRAVEL AGENCY'S OFFICE, A LARGE SIGN ON THE DOOR READS "VENICE, ANYONE?"

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: F equals U

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from the nation's universities

Runners throw clothes, caution to wind

GAINESVILLE, Fla. – A stampede of scantily clad students scurried from the University of Florida campus at midnight Saturday.

In a pair of black boxer-briefs, graphic design major Beau Bergeron sprinted the first steps of The Great Underwear Dash II and more than 500 students followed from the Hub, through parts of campus, down University Avenue and back again.

As the runners tore through the city bar scene, shouts echoed among the sea of skivvies bellowing enjoyment, embarrassment, exhaustion and just how great it is to be a University of Florida Gator.

"It was bigger than I ever could have imagined," Bergeron said afterward.

The run, which was advertised mostly by word-of-mouth, easily reached its goal of 500 runners, Bergeron said. He said Sunday that the rave reviews posted on Facebook.com left him thrilled.

"So many people had a great night," he said.

On the runners' return trip, some on-campus traffic was blocked, but drivers were mostly content to honk, high-five, join in or stare. The half-naked horde returned to the Hub less than 15 minutes after they had left, now sporting wider smiles and breathing deeply.

For some, the race was not over.

Some runners had left their clothes at the Hub under bushes and in Alligator distribution bins.

A handful of students, who insisted on being identified only as the Knicker Knockers, had snagged about 20 runners' clothes during the dash. A homemade sign was left in their place.

"Want to see your precious knickers again? Been to Gator Nights recently?" it read.

Moments later the confused runners gathered outside the Reitz Union, where they found a second clue that pointed them to the infirmary.

Clues led the group from the infirmary to the chemistry labs, on a dash across the Plaza of the Americas, to the rear of Criser Hall, and to a sculpture at the architecture building, each stop leading them closer to their missing clothes.

Finally on the third floor of Little Hall, almost an hour after the run, the runners found their "knickers," the several "knockers" who had nabbed them.

After the success of Saturday's run, a Great Underwear Dash III is guaranteed, Bergeron said, adding that he wanted to control the next run with the help of university police and he wanted to wait until spring.

"I want people to forget about it, and then I want it to come back again," he said.

GOOGLE OFFERS RESEARCH ALTERNATIVE

DURHAM, N.C. – In the continual process to reshape the landscape of research and information access, the Google enterprise has extended into the academic world with Google Scholar, an innovation that is rapidly gaining play at Duke University.

Google Scholar provides an all-purpose search engine for scholarly publications to help researchers of all levels "stand on the shoulders of giants," as its homepage touts.

Over the years, Google has gained a reputation as the general stop-and-go site for anyone needing to find basic information on countless topics. Google Scholar launched last year to give students and scholars alike a more straightforward way to do academic research.

Duke library officials, optimistic about the development, named Google Scholar in its online listing of popular databases, alongside LexisNexis Academic and Encyclopaedia Brittanica Online.

Emily Werrell, Perkins Library coordinator for instruction and outreach, said students should keep in mind that they can still use InterLibrary Loan to obtain documents electronically, but she noted that Google Scholar can be easier for less-experienced researchers to use.

"It allows for a user-friendly interface and doesn't necessarily require students to know how to use databases," she said.

Linda Martinez, librarian at the Vesic Library for Engineering, Mathematics and Physics, said some FOCUS classes have received instruction on how to use Google Scholar for their first research experiences on campus.

Like the original Google search engine, Google Scholar offers students the most useful references at the top of the page, but it also considers an article's author, the publication in which the article appeared and the number of previous citations in scholarly literature.

Despite recognizable benefits, some Duke librarians cast doubt on the organizational strength of Google Scholar.

"With our proprietary databases, I can tell you exactly which journals are available, but with [Google] you have no indication of what scholarly resources are being covered," Martinez said.

Taking into account that Duke is paying millions of dollars to maintain student access to over 300 databases of about 38,000 current journal titles, Google Scholar represents a thin slice of digital research.

"Faculty are concerned that students are using only Google," Martinez cautioned. "Fast food's good, but we've got steak."

The search engine has been well-received by students.

Freshman James Tager noted that the renewed sense of remote research is ushering in a new class of "Google scholars."

"Google has been pulling ahead of the pack because of its effectiveness," he said. "If Google Scholar makes research more efficacious, that can't be bad for students."

Illustration by Bennie Green COLLEGIAN

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Monday, Oct. 24

- Christopher Herrmann, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at noon for worthless check and failure to appear. Bond was set at $2,050.
- Steven Gilbert, 314 Kearney St., was arrested at 4:50 p.m. for obstruction of legal process, failure to appear and driving with suspended license. Bond was set at $1,879.
- Valerie Green, Wichita, was arrested at 7 p.m. for worthless check. Bond was set at $200.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A topic research class will be from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. today in Hale 408.
- Applications for Wildcat Warm-up director positions are available by calling 532-5165 or e-mail Emily Lehning at lehning@k-state.edu. Applications are due Nov. 7.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of John C. Means at 1 p.m. today in Ackert 341.
- An opera workshop will perform scenes from operas at 7:30 tonight in All Faiths Chapel.
- The Lutheran Student Fellowship will meet from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. Oct. 30 in the Union Big 12 Room.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips with student ID and coupon
KNAILS 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444
dependable, quality service
We deliver A+ service with a smile.
Claflin Books and Copies

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

win.ksu.edu Guess the Score
Online Market
Upcoming Events
Win Pizza
Wildcat Information Network

ALL KEGS $5 OFF
Natural Lt. 30pk $10.99
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor

www.kstatecollegian.com

"My teacher wears a tweed tie. He's DEFINITELY an Autumn."
"My Stats prof never showed up for the test yesterday—what's that about?"
"There would be fewer typos in the Collgeian if we didn't hvae to wear gloves to stay warm."
"Hello, World? It's me. If you could have a job ready for me after Christmas, that'd be great. Thanks."
watch this space!

Catalyst:
A Self Development Experience
Sponsored by Blue Key
Application Deadline: November 3 in Waters 119. Open to freshmen and sophomores.
To apply, go to www.ksu.edu/bluekey/selfdevelopment

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 776-8770 Manhattan 1115 MORO
W.Dnes.day Ladies' Night
$2 Wells • $2 Bottles
In concert November 2:
Randy Rogers Band & Special Guest, Full Throttle

GUMBY DAMNIT
$5.99 Large 1-Topping •or• Large Pokey Stix
770-3333
GUMBY'S Pizza
50¢ PIZZA ROLLS Sauces Extra

Painting the 'Ville

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Kara Frets, senior in interior architecture, paints on the window of Gei Geis in Aggieville Tuesday afternoon. Paint the 'Ville contest had members from greek houses, campus organizations and residence halls paint Homecoming-theme related scenes on Aggieville business' windows.

Schools not meeting standards

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

According to a Kansas Department of Education report, 121 Kansas public schools are not meeting standards set by the No Child Left Behind Act. Manhattan High School is among schools that failed to meet the 2005 standards, also known as Adequate Yearly Progress.

While the school is lagging behind federal guidelines, the district is not too concerned, said Karen Roberts, executive director of teaching and learning for Manhattan-Ogden USD 383.

"The thing we didn't excel in was reading in the free-reduced subgroup and the African-American subgroup," Roberts said. "We're working on improving those scores and finding out why we're slipping in these areas."

Currently, the No Child Left Behind Act requires public schools to show academic progress through standardized testing. Schools must also show full proficiency in reading and math by the year 2011.

Those that do not meet guidelines are susceptible to losing state and federal education funds.

Schools must achieve a 58 percent average to meet AYP, Roberts said.

"Overall, our students had 64.7 percent and above, free-reduced we had 47 percent and African-American had 25 percent," she said.

Reading assessment reports state nearly 75 percent of Manhattan High School African-American students fail to read at state levels.

One of the district's largest concerns is with the education gap between black and white students, said Michele Jones, Manhattan-Ogden USD 383 spokeswoman.

Though scores were low, Jones said the district is making academic progress. She said Manhattan High School has implemented a required remedial reading course for students who perform below proficiency levels.

To additionally help close the achievement gap, a diversity commission emerged from USD 383.

"It's not just for students of color," Jones said.

With Manhattan High School's scores being so low, Roberts said she is aware that state funding might be revoked.

Roberts said the school district will continue teaching students to the best of the its abilities.

"We're working to continue to develop an understanding and to put the instructional practices into place that will enhance their learning," Roberts said. "We know that at-risk funding has increased at the state level this year, and that certainly will give us more funding to get things like extra help and tutoring programs into place."

K-State-Salina passes privilege fee

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State-Salina students voted last week to pay for a recreation center in a proposed student life center.

In the first-ever campus referendum, 66.9 percent of the votes cast approved the creation of a new student privilege fee that will pay for the center's recreational area, Brendan Haiduk, K-State-Salina student body president, said.

To pass, the referendum needed a 60 percent positive vote.

The privilege fee will be $8.65 per credit hour for the first 12 credit hours in the fall and spring semesters. In the summer, the privilege fee will be $1.61 per credit hour for the first 12 credit hours, Haiduk said.

The fee, which will be instated fall 2006, will run for 20 years, Haiduk said, and raise about $3.3 million.

Haiduk said he was satisfied with the voter turnout of about 25 percent for the Oct. 20 and 21 referendum.

Conceptual models of the student life center also have an auditorium, a cafeteria, a book store and office space.

Kristin Magette, K-State-Salina coordinator of public and alumni relations, said plans for the center have been sent to the Kansas Board of Regents. Upon approval, a design team will be hired, she said, during spring 2006.

Brandon Lundy, sophomore in aeronautical technology-professional pilot, voted for the referendum.

He said he thought about $200 per year in privilege fees was not much to pay for a new recreation center.

Lundy said K-State-Salina's Recreation Center, about a mile south of the campus, is small.

"It works," he said, "but it'd be nice to have something like Manhattan does."

Money taken from vending machines

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A series of six thefts over the past two days involving Manhattan vending machines has caused more than $1,500 in damage, according to Riley County Police Department reports.

The robberies involved forced entries into the machine, Lt. Mike Quintanar with the RCPD, said.

"Preliminarily, I would say they are probably tied together," Quintanar said.

The thefts all happened near Manhattan along Kansas Highway 18. Machines at Carson Homes Sales, 5016 Skyway Drive; Superior Salvage Inc., 2801 W. 56th Ave.; Meier's Ready Mix, 1408 Walnut Drive; the Stagg Hill Golf Course, 4441 Fort Riley Blvd.; and the soccer fields at Anneberg Circle.

Francis Terry, general manager of Five Star Vending, who owned two of the machines that were broken into, said thefts involving vending machines tend to be random.

"It's kind of funny, we may go six months without having any, then they will all happen at once," Terry said. "This last weekend, there were six that were broken into. It makes you wonder if it's not somebody going cross country doing it."

While the money stolen ranged from $35 to $200, the damage done to the machines was between $250 and $600.

"A vending machine costs several thousand dollars, and it's not uncommon for a machine to be totaled," Jake Wassenberg, general manager for Pepsi-Cola in Manhattan, said.

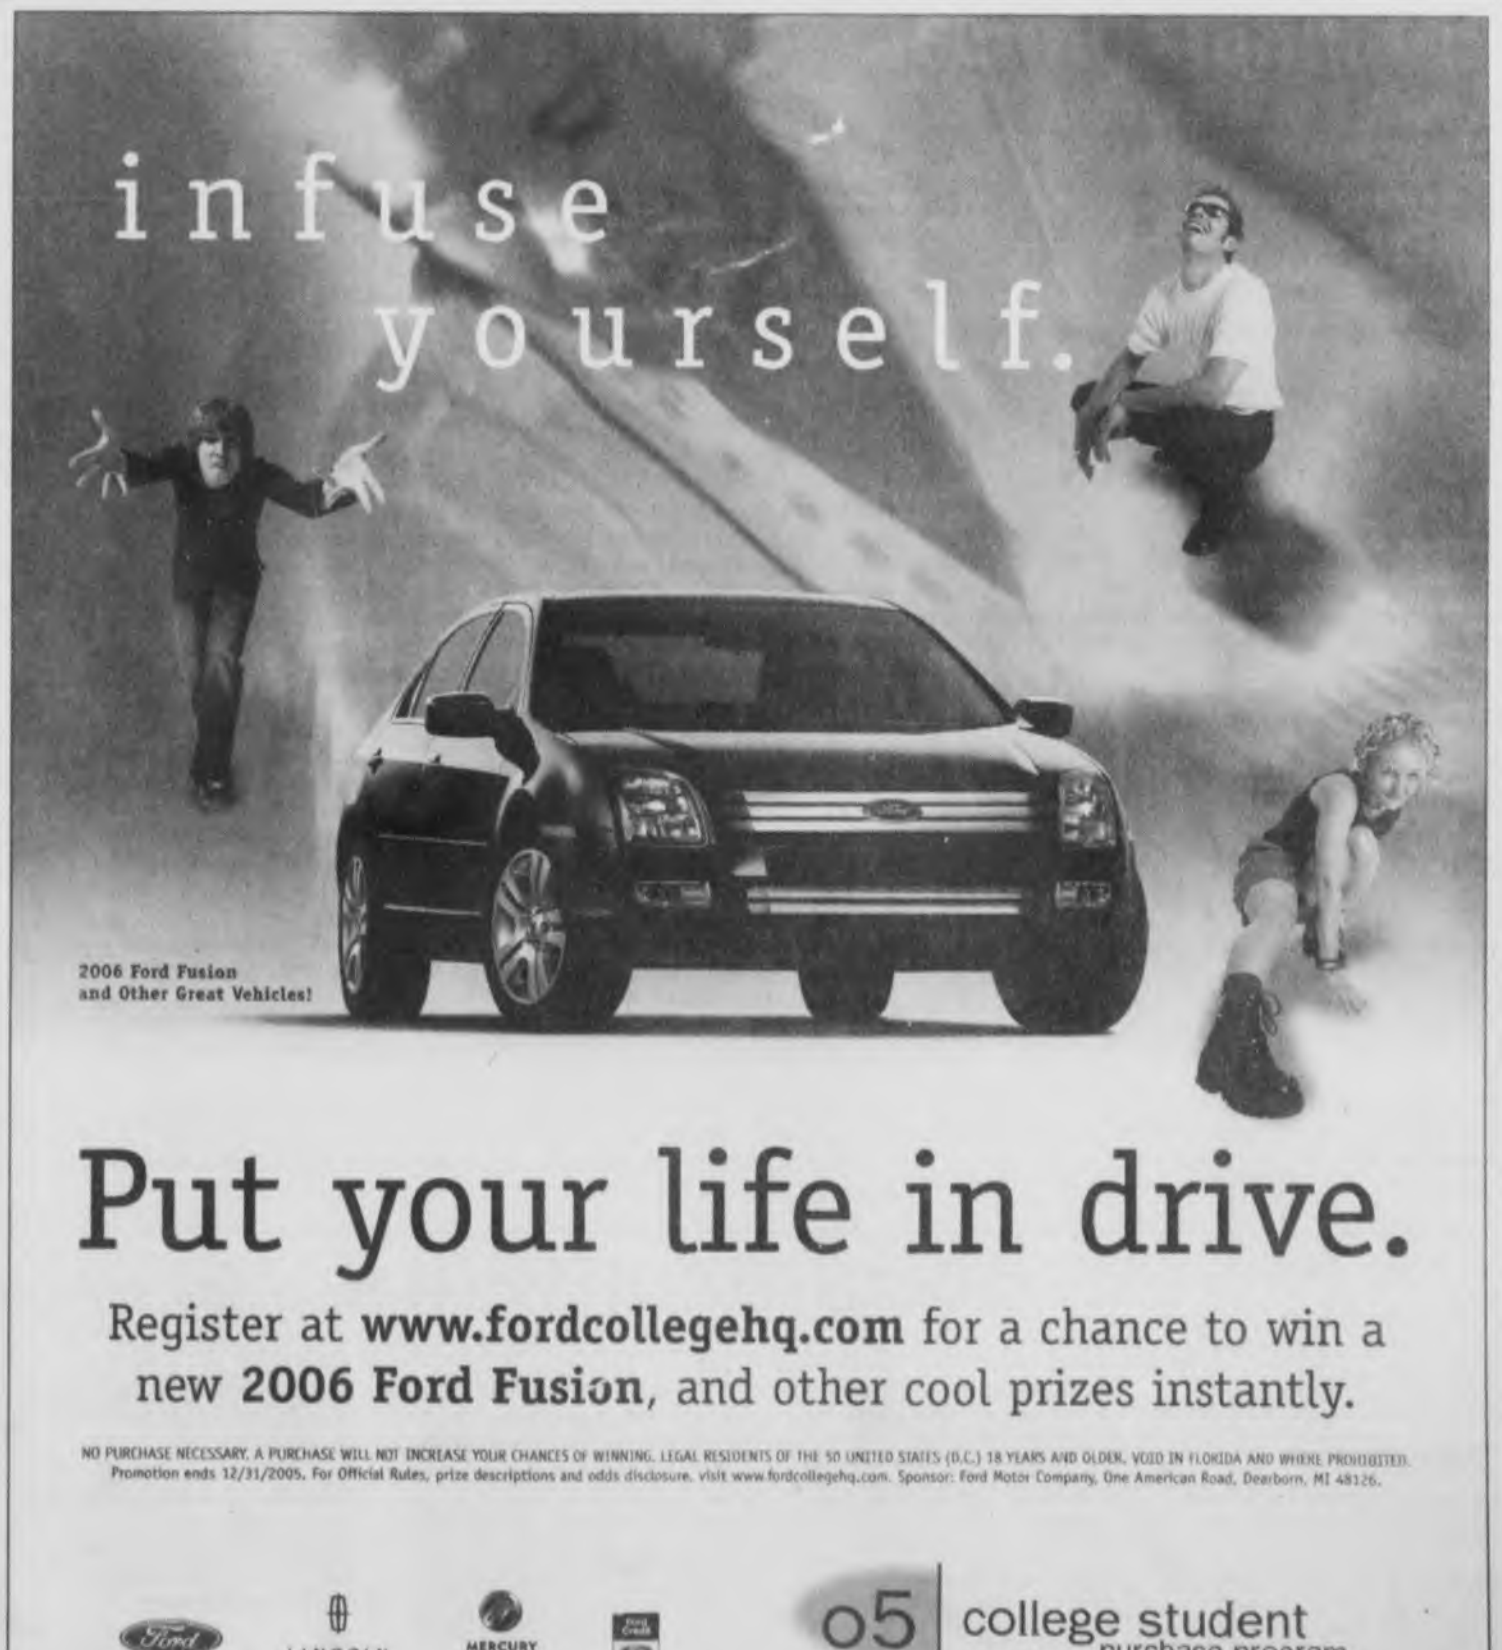
Wassenberg said he had seen evidence of people using everything from pipe bombs to hack saws to get into vending machines. Some even hit them with their vehicles.

"I'd say 90 percent of the time they don't get anything out of the machine," he said.

FRESH AS THE DAY IT WAS MADE, WHICH WOULD BE TODAY.

Chipotle

GOURMET BURRITOS & TACOS. IN AGGIEVILLE



WEDNESDAY starts the WEEKEND!

$2.00 Coors & Coors Light Pounders

$1.50 Wells

Free POOL @ the Other Side

Rusty's LAST CHANCE SALOON

Put your life in drive.

Register at www.fordcollegehq.com for a chance to win a new 2006 Ford Fusion, and other cool prizes instantly.

NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. A PURCHASE WILL NOT INCREASE YOUR CHANCES OF WINNING. LEGAL RESIDENTS OF THE 50 UNITED STATES (D.C.) 18 YEARS AND OLDER. VOID IN FLORIDA AND WHERE PROHIBITED. Promotion ends 12/31/2005. For Official Rules, prize descriptions and odds disclosure, visit www.fordcollegehq.com. Sponsor: Ford Motor Company, One American Road, Dearborn, MI 48126.

Ford LINCOLN MERCURY

05 college student purchase program

www.fordcollegehq.com

Wichita to Las Vegas

FROM $79* ONE WAY

Only at allegiantair.com

Nonstop air service from Wichita. Packages include over 30 of Vegas' most exciting casino-resorts.

allegiant air

www.allegiantair.com

800-432-3810 or call your travel agent.

*All fares are one-way. Fares do not include PFCs, segment taxes and September 11th security fee of up to $10.20 per segment. Travel purchased at an Allegiant Air ticket counter or through Allegiant Air call centers will incur an additional $5.00 per segment. A segment is defined as one take-off and one landing. Seats are limited and fares may not be available on all flights. Fare rules, routes and schedules are subject to change without notice. 7-day advance purchase required. Restrictions Apply. Blackout dates: Nov. 23-28, Dec. 21-31, 2005; and Jan. 1-4, 2006. Fare valid through Jan. 31, 2006.

OPINION

TO THE POINT

Special-needs students should be recognized

Congratulations Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, you made the Adequate Yearly Progress.

However, Manhattan High School was one of 121 schools in Kansas that did not make the yearly grading standard mandated by the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001. While the required 58 percent of students made the AYP standards in math, they didn't make it in reading.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

The program is a good start in helping the United States catch up to other countries in education. However, school districts where the majority of students are learning English as a second language or have difficulties learning are having trouble keeping up.

These children have special needs that should be met before putting them through the same standards as the so-called "normal" students. If they are put to the same test as students who do not have a learning barrier, they are going to struggle and have lower self-esteem than if they were merely learning in the same classroom as the "normal" students.

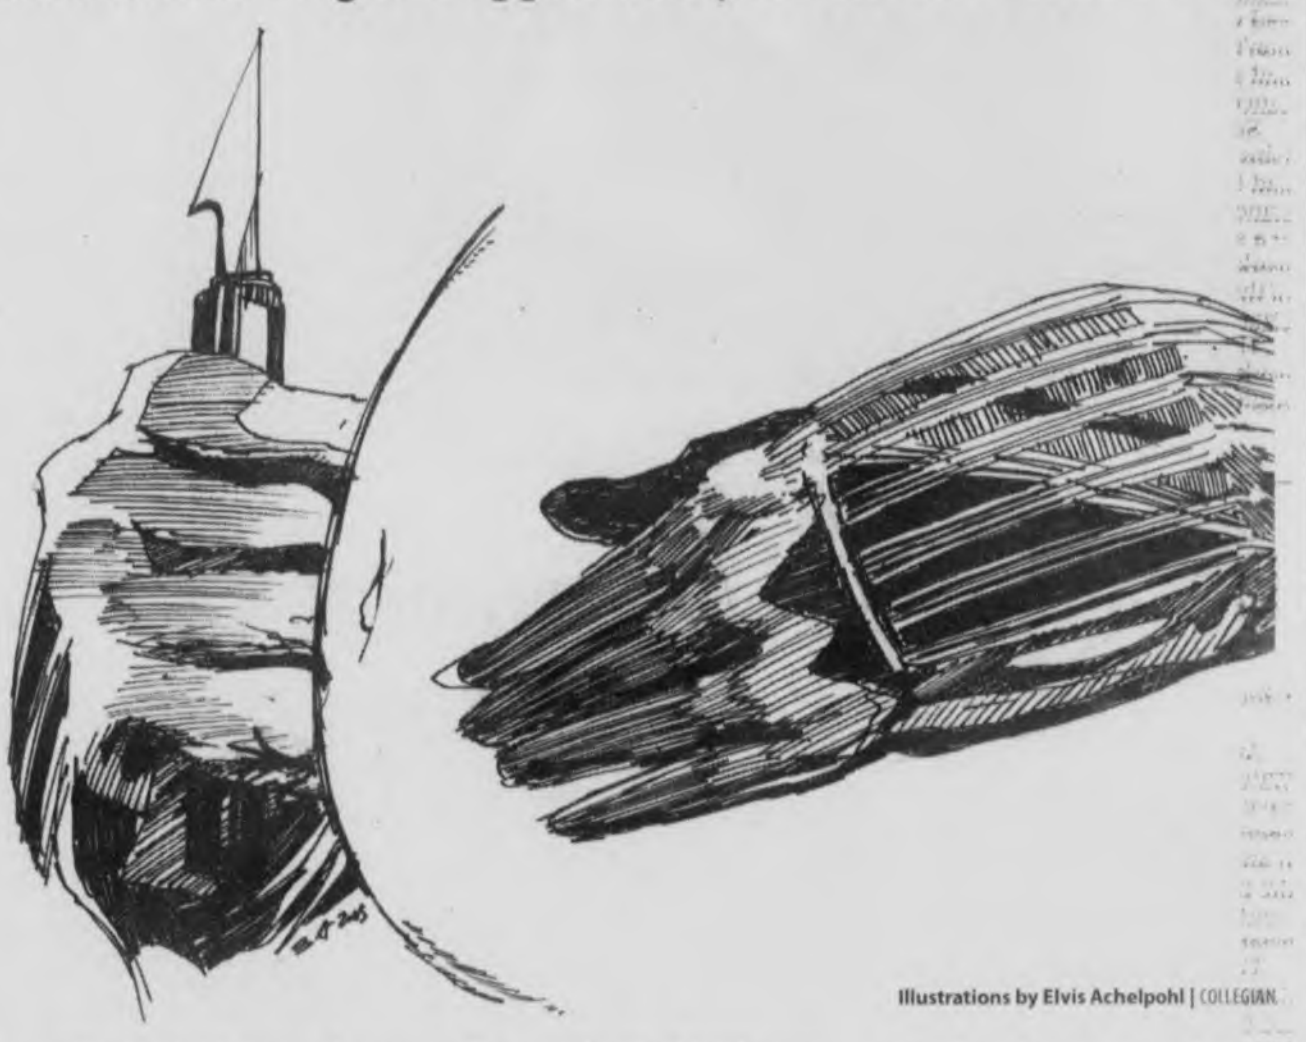
Those with difficulties in learning should not worry about bringing the rest of the school down. They should simply worry about overcoming their obstacle.

AYP is also showing students more as numbers and statistics than actual people. Students shouldn't be asking whether they're going to be one of the 58 percent who are going to make their school fail a part of the No Child Left Behind act.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN



Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Force of perversion

Campus demonstrations are a good opportunity for debate on abortion

Illustrations by Elvis Achelpohl | COLLEGIAN

Playing all week on campus: Abortion Wars Episode VI: Return of the Feti. In this installment, the devious fetuses enlist pro-life Feti Knights to their cause.

KODY COOPER

Don't fret, dark side abortionists. My column this week will teach you how to defeat those simpleton Christian demonstrators so you can continue to murder fetuses at will.

The key to winning the rhetorical war is two-fold: pervert and mischaracterize. This is precisely how dark side abortionists declaimed victory in the first trilogy.

Recall Episode I: The Constitutional Menace. Since no right to kill fetuses exists in the Constitution, anti-lifers had to pervert it, somehow, to achieve their wanton ends.

In order to pervert the Constitution, anti-lifers cleverly enlisted perverted Supreme Court justices to decide Griswold v. Connecticut and Roe v. Wade.

Seven black-robed thugs, high on holocaustic hallucinogens, pipe-dreamt a fictitious "right to privacy," reasoning that fetuses are too young to read – they'd never realize a "right to privacy" is absent from the Constitution.

Then came Episode II: Attack of the Pro-lifers. Following these asinine Court rulings, the fetal sympathizers formulated opposition under the banner of "pro-life." The ugly truth was revealed – dark-siders are "anti-life."

To mischaracterize the debate, the fetus-haters adopted the label of "pro-choice" – the faddish slogan of the reprobate liberal cognoscenti. This manufactured term effectively mischaracterized opposition to murder as "anti-choice."

However, this dark side demonization of "pro-lifers" as "anti-choicers" enjoyed only temporal success. Dark side successes are eroding lately.

In current debate, these perversions and mischaracterizations are increasingly rejected. A growing majority of Americans feel fetus murder should be outlawed or restricted only to cases of rape or threat to maternal health.

Some pundits estimate such restriction would preclude 97 percent of all abortions, cutting the yearly feticide death toll from 1.5 million victims to 45,000.

Listen up dark-siders, before its too late. You must stem the persuasive tides back in your favor. You must not allow the nation to be blessed with a million more children per year.

Learn from history. The keys to dissuading a pro-lifer are perversion and mischaracterization. For example, take this infamous Thomas Jefferson quote:

"What signify a few lives lost in a century or two? The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants."

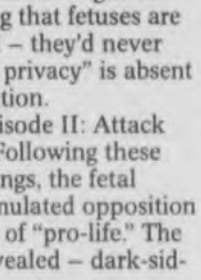
Since fetuses can't read, and pro-lifer Christians are illiterate backwater hicks, they'll never know if you pervert Jefferson's words:

"What signify a few million lives lost in a decade or two? The blackened withering tree of farcical female liberty must constantly be refreshed with the blood of tyrannical fetuses."

Explain to the pro-lifer that 45,000 abortions per year simply won't supply enough fetal blood to preserve a woman's liberty.

A pro-lifer may ask, "How are fetuses tyrannical?" Just tell them that a "heartbeat" and "brain-waves" are despotic encroachments on a woman's right to have selfish sex divorced from any responsibility.

The pro-lifer might then retort that a woman's body is not her own, but God's – created by Him and for Him, and that true freedom comes through the blood of Jesus Christ, not the blood of fetuses.



My dear dark-sider, when a pro-lifer invokes Jesus, just remember what I taught you. Pervert and mischaracterize. Perversely mischaracterize him or her as a radical religious right-wing nut. That works every time.

May the Force of perversity and mischaracterization be with you.

Kody Cooper is a senior in political science and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Parents need to be looked after too

It seems that more and more news headlines are filled with stories of parents lacking in the "sanity" department. Last Wednesday, Lashaun Harris, a mother in San Francisco, took her three young children to a pier, undressed them and threw them into the freezing water.

KELSEY CHILDRESS

In another instance, about a year ago, a mother was arrested for throwing teenage drug and sex parties in her home because she wanted to be the "cool mom."

Maybe these mothers are the exceptions, but it appears that cases of child neglect are popping up increasingly, around the country. Or maybe we are just beginning to hear about them. Either way, there is something that needs to be done.

Harris claims she heard voices in her head that told her to throw her kids off the pier. Apparently, she was battling schizophrenia.

Both of these mothers reportedly made comments to their friends and family that should have tipped them off that life wasn't all lollipops and roses.

There's a saying that "It takes a village to raise a child." What happened to the village?

I'd be a little concerned if my daughter or sister was living in a Salvation Army homeless shelter and taking medicine for a severe mental illness. Harris' cousin has said she knew her cousin was taking medication but would "never hurt her children." However, Harris also allegedly told her family she wanted to "feed her children to the sharks."

There should be a support system surrounding every core family. That is what extended family, churches and neighbors are there for. We all need someone to take care of us every once in a while.

But when Harris was fighting with her six-year-old as she tried to throw him off the pier, bystanders reportedly just stood there and watched. One father with his son called 911 when he noticed Harris acting suspicious and undressing her young boys, who were 1, 3, and 6 years old.

But no one tried to stop her. If something looks wrong, if the warning signs are there, it should be our duty as fellow human beings to intervene and help.

However, this could easily have been prevented if the children had been removed from Harris' care at an earlier time.

In July 2005, the boys' grandmother requested custody of the three young boys, but child protection services believed Harris was sane and capable of caring for her children.

When it comes to children, their care is usually best decided by the parents, but in some extreme cases it should be the extended family and the government to step in and do what is best for the child's sake.

Let's face it - not all parents are going to be good ones, so it is up to other responsible adults to make sure to protect those who cannot protect themselves. There have been enough cases of child neglect and death by now that we should have learned what the warning signs are.

As hard as it is to take a child away from his parents, life away from a bad home situation is certainly better than death.

Kelsey Childress is a sophomore in English literature and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

The end of life is never pretty. Neither is the end of a woman's right to choose. Thanks for putting the responsibility on us, JFA. Why not encourage men to get vasectomies? Or is that too scary an operation for you to show huge pictures of?

But Yamon Figurs has made it to D-1 football and should be able to play like that. This isn't high school football anymore. Unless he has a case of fumble-itus; but there is a cure to that, like sitting on the bench.

K-State must not regard students very highly if they would allow their students entering counseling to be harassed. My money and I are going to another college.

I believe all pro-lifers should have to adopt at least two kids, right now. One should have to be of a different ethic group and both from the United States. No feeling like a good person for saving an outside child from poverty.

So abortion happens naturally in the world. Is that "God" saying that he made a mistake or did he just hate that child?

Lola you are really going to gain support by calling pro-life people molesters. What were you thinking?

So I just got done interviewing Bosco for my public speaking class and he told me my roommate is a stud.

Hey, Mo Rocca is wearing a K-State shirt.

Kappa Kappa Gamma, next year try choreographing your own routine, not stealing a high school one.

Hey Kappa Kappa Gamma, Olathe North wants their dance back.

Thank you K-State IFC for ruining Homecoming.

I came to K-State thinking that Homecoming was the greatest part of being here. Thanks for screwing it up IFC.

Call me crazy, but shouldn't man have a right not to see a bloody fetus when he's just done eating lunch?

Hey RCPD, last time I checked you could only exceed the speed limit when you have your lights on.

I thought that Homecoming was when you got to know the houses you are with a little better. I'd like to thank IFC for completely ruining the ability of greek houses to bond during Homecoming week.

So a girl was actually hitting on John Becker and he went and whined about it in the Collegian. No wonder he's single and bitter.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Smoke-free laws becoming common

Editor,

To respond to Grant Reichert's article "Group infringing on smoker's rights."

Everyone has friends and family members who smoke and we still like them, we just don't like to watch them die and suffer from tobacco related cancers and diseases.

Secondhand smoke contains more than 200 poisons and 60 cancer-causing substances. During an 8-hour shift at a smoking establishment, a worker inhales the equivalent of three-fourths of a pack of cigarettes.

The college students who work and patronize the bars in Aggieville are the ones who are being exposed. I applaud the K-State students who have joined SCAM.

Nine states: California, Delaware, New York, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Montana and now Vermont have enacted smoke-free workplace legislation for all workers, including restaurant and bar workers.

The Blackfeet Tribal Business Council passed the Blackfeet Tobacco Free Act on July 2005. All public places are now smoke-free and spit tobacco-free on the Blackfeet Reservation. This is exciting because minorities have been targeted by the tobacco industry – now, they are fighting back.

Smoke-free workplace laws are spreading throughout the world. Entire countries: France & Scotland are joining Italy, Ireland, Malta, Norway, and Sweden – there are entire countries that have already eliminated smoking in all workplaces, including restaurants and bars.

Joe Cherner, founder of BREATHE – Bar and Restaurant Employees Advocating Together for a Healthy Environment says, "all workers deserve a safe, healthy, smoke-free work environment." Bar and restaurant workers should have the same right to a smoke-free work environment as everyone else.

Charlene Brownson
CHAIRPERSON, CLEAN AIR MANHATTAN

Display addresses reality of abortion

Editor,

As is the case with arguments on both sides of the abortion issue, there haven't been many new points made since 1973. That said, I wasn't at all surprised with Lola Shrimplin's case in her Oct. 25 opinion piece. Her position did not disturb me, but the fear and vitriol with which it was encased was very telling to say the least.

I am pleased that Justice For All has come to our campus. Taking a position on abortion has consequences, and their presentation is a graphic display of those consequences. Kudos to World Christian Fellowship for bringing JFA to K-State. What better place than the college campus to dialogue over ideas and their results? Shame on other pro-life groups for distancing themselves from the realities of the abortion debate.

This is not to say that I don't understand the anger and hate aimed at JFA and their activities. If they were decrying other "basic" medical procedures, such a display would not be effective.

Can you imagine anybody being so upset at pictures of tonsils and appendixes? Hardly.

These pictures display abortion for what it is: a destruction of humanity. I can't imagine how abortion advocates such as Shrimplin can look at JFA's display and not feel guilt over their philosophies and politics. In fact, I believe guilt is the reason for such a strong response.

Pro-choice advocates may disagree, but their rabid responses and ad hominem attacks betray their argument every time.

Bryan Elliott
DIRECTOR OF CHI ALPHA CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Exhibit promotes lies, misconceptions

Editor,

Anyone in the vicinity of Waters Hall on Monday would have been treated to an anti-abortion photographic farce. If anybody stopped to view the pictures of dead babies, it would have been easy to miss what Justice For All was doing.

They were lying. Organizations such as Justice For All are trying to deceive people. They do this by implying many associations that are simply untrue, offensive and dangerous.

Posted as caution to pedestrians are bulletins proclaiming that the exhibit "contains disturbing photographic images of real victims of genocide." The implication that anyone who is pro-choice is pro-infanticide is so completely untrue that no explanation is needed.

Lie number one exposed.

"Pro-life" is a misnomer. The hacks that support the pro-life movement are the same ones that support, or have supported, America's continuing efforts in Iraq. Life is not necessarily important to these folks, only certain lives.

Lie number two exposed.

The brochure states abortions are preformed because babies' "tiny bodies are now ironically deemed to be vital to human research." One assumes the sentence refers to stem cell research. Basic research in this field is done without seriously damaging or killing anything that even resembles a human life. Information on the research being done can be obtained from the National Institutes of Health.

Lie number three exposed.

For those who do not understand being pro-choice, let the air be cleared. Pro-choice means just that: choice.

For those who do not understand what pro-life means; pro-life means taking away choice. It means making every woman obey the pro-life law. The whole movement is implicitly totalitarian and, for that matter, scary.

Christopher Hayden
SENIOR IN HISTORY AND ANTHROPOLOGY

Group distributing false information

Editor,

I am sure many of you have seen the graphic anti-choice display on campus. While the organization behind this exhibit has the right to exercise their free speech, I think it is important to recognize they are propagating false information.

According to the display, abortion is a risk factor for breast cancer. And in keeping with their approach in this display, they picture giant images of a woman's breast being cut open.

Disgusting and disturbing, yes. Anything to do with abortion, no. While they cite "The Journal of the National Cancer Institute" (1994), just a little work reveals that this information is very out of date.

According to a panel of more than 100 expert scientists convened by the National Cancer Institute in 2003, "having an abortion or miscarriage does not increase a woman's subsequent risk of developing breast cancer."

This is not obscure information. It has been widely discussed in the press. One can only conclude that this organization is willing to lie about the current status of science in order to argue their point. One wonders if other parts of their display are similarly misleading.

Angela E. Hubler
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR AND ACTING DIRECTOR, WOMEN'S STUDIES PROGRAM

kstatecollegian.com

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:

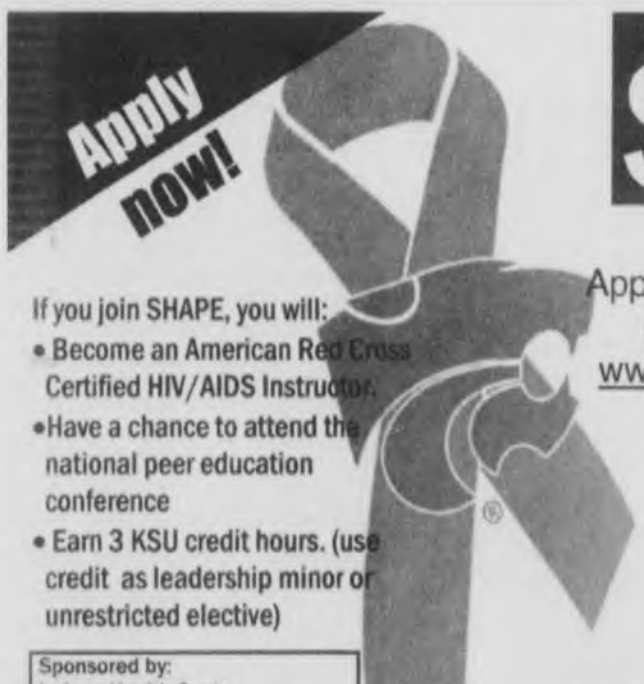
Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

for more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/ossa/cta.htm

The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.

Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:



FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS

for more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/ossa/legal.htm

Students' Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment

office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 3:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request

SHAPE

Applications available at Lafene, room 268 or print it online at: www.k-state.edu/lafene/SHAPE

If you join SHAPE, you will:
- Become an American Red Cross Certified HIV/AIDS Instructor.
- Have a chance to attend the national peer education conference
- Earn 3 KSU credit hours. (use credit as leadership minor or unrestricted elective)

Sexual Health Awareness Peer Educators

Sponsored by:
Lafene Health Center
Need more info? Call 785-532-6595 or email shape@ksu.edu

Applications due Nov. 4th

We can't get you girls. Or boys.
We can't get you beer or cigarettes.
You won't be any cooler.
You won't be more attractive.
You won't be thinner, smarter, or suddenly wealthy.
But maybe, just maybe,
you'll get the experience you need to land a job that CAN get you those things...after college.

The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:

Executive Positions Spring 2006
- Editor in Chief
- Advertising Sales Manager

News Positions Spring 2006
- Managing Editors • News Editors
- Desk Editors • Reporters
- Copy Editors • Designers
- Photojournalists • Graphic Artists
- Graphic Artists • Online Journalists

Advertising Positions Spring 2006
- Assistant Advertising Managers
- Advertising Sales Representatives

Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. Nov. 16.

Get the experience you NEED.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

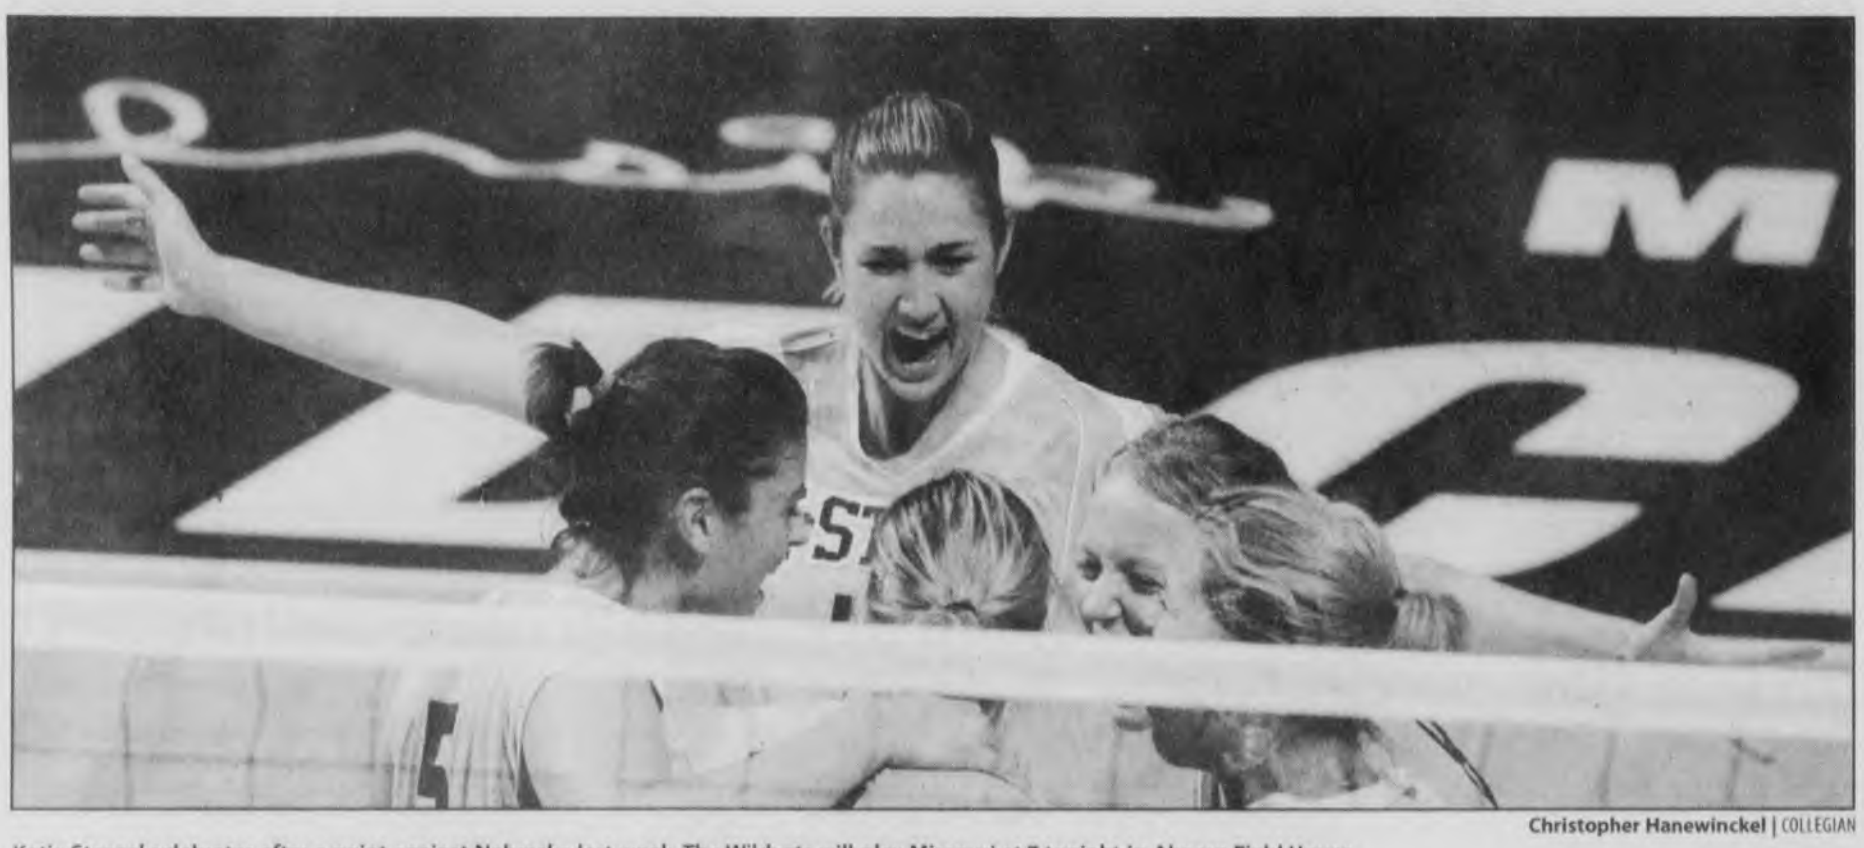
CONGRATULATIONS GREEK, FACULTY & ALUMNI OF THE MONTH

FACULTY
CANDI HIRONAKA, LEADERSHIP PRACTICUM
"Candi is very deserving of the Faculty of the Month award. The genuine care that she has for each of her students is unlike any other. Every student feels valued and important when they walk into Candi's classroom. Not only are Candi's students valued, but they are challenged. She always asks thought-provoking questions and encourages students to think about things from other perspectives. The passion that Candi brings to the classroom is both inspiring and refreshing. K-State is lucky to have such a wonderful teacher on their staff." –Monica Thome

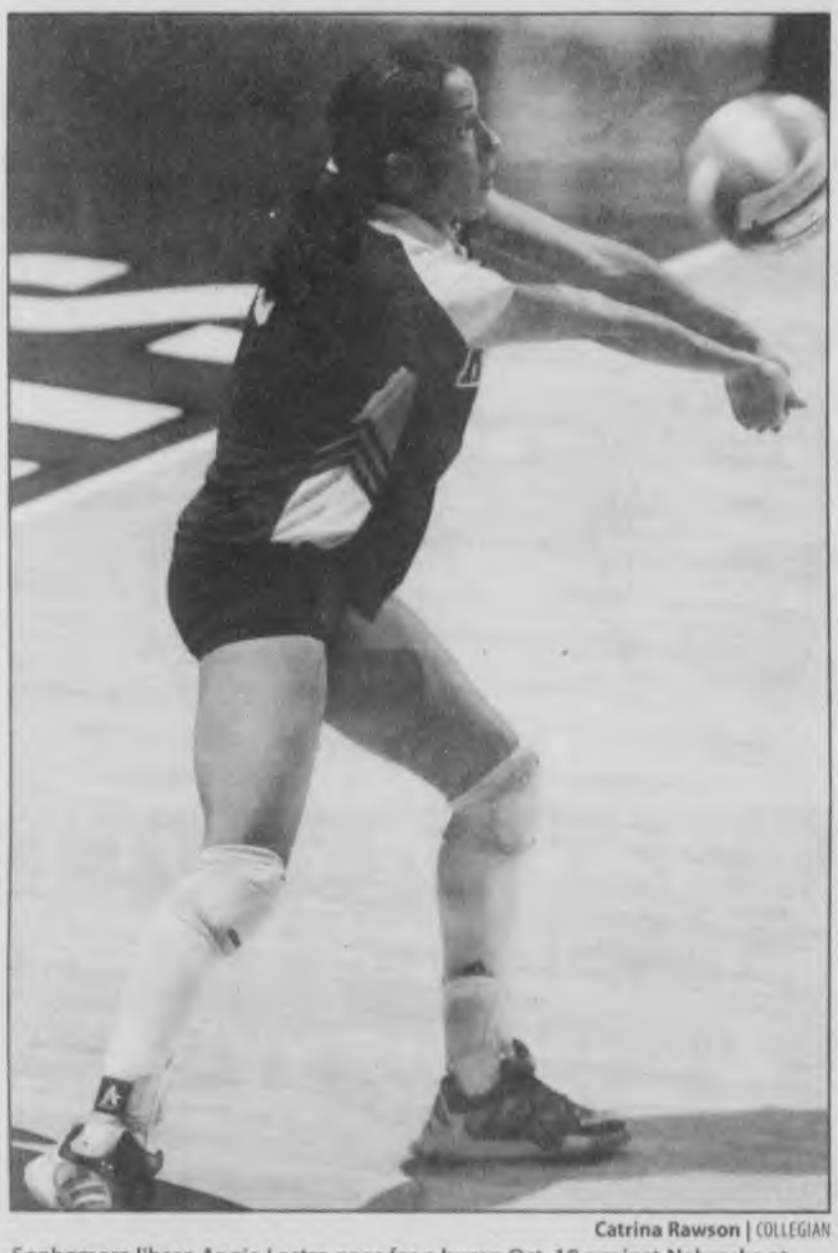
GREEK
EMILY HAAKE, KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA
"I have a strong passion for the Greek system and the relationships, memories and opportunities that it has given me. I am constantly involved in different areas of the Greek system, whether it is attending roundtables, serving on committees or speaking with new students as a Greek Ambassador. As president of my chapter, I have had the opportunity to build relationships with more women in my chapter and to gain a better appreciation for Greek organizations."



ALUMNA
CAIT DAY, SIGMA KAPPA
"Cait was very active when she was a Sigma Kappa, and she is even more involved in our chapter now that she has graduated. She is on our advisory board chairman, an advisor for our president, and an advisor for our recruitment chair. Although she lives an hour away from Manhattan, she comes to every important Sigma Kappa event, and uses a week of vacation every year to come help us out. I cannot imagine a more deserving woman for this award. She gives everything she has to our chapter and without her, we would not be as successful as we are today." –Emily Willis

TOP 10 TIPS TO SURVIVE HOMECOMING

1. Go to class
2. Follow the Rules
3. Watch out for your brothers and sisters
4. Show your KSU spirit!
5. Don't make anyone do anything they do not want to do.
6. Have a sober night
7. Don't use a fake ID
8. Don't forget to take time for yourself.
9. Study
10. Have fun!



SPONSORED BY THE GREEK COMMUNITY

Home security

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Katie Stanzel celebrates after a point against Nebraska last week. The Wildcats will play Missouri at 7 tonight in Ahearn Field House.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Sophomore libero Angie Lastra goes for a bump Oct. 19 against Nebraska at Ahearn Field House.

Wildcats look to avenge road loss to No. 8 Tigers

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State might lead the overall series against Missouri, 35-27, but that didn't matter when the Tigers swept K-State 3-0 in Columbia, Mo., earlier this season.

When the No. 24 Cats (15-6, 6-5 Big 12) take the court at 7 tonight against No. 8 Missouri (15-2, 9-2 Big 12), they hope to protect their home court against the Tigers – who have not won at Ahearn Field House since 1993 – and halt their two-game losing streak against top-25 teams.

"We're playing really good teams," sophomore libero Angie Lastra said of K-State's matches against No. 1 Nebraska, No. 16 Texas and the match tonight against Missouri. "Missouri is very aggressive. Their middles are very good and they serve very aggressive."

Senior outside hitter Katie Stanzel said the Tigers will potentially bring a triple threat to tonight's match.

"They have a good defensive team. They're really good diggers and they have a good setter," Stanzel said. "All around, they're a good team."

Missouri's setter Lindsey Hunter is No. 1 in the Big 12 Conference in assists-per-game, averaging 14.41 per game. Na Yang, an outside hitter for the Tigers, ranks fifth in the conference in kills with 227 total and 4.05 per game.

No. 24 K-State vs. No. 8 Missouri
When: 7 tonight
Where: Aheran Field House
How much: Free with Student ID

While K-State has won 21 of its last 23 outings against the Tigers, it was Missouri's balance that hurt the Cats the last time around, coach Suzie Fritz said.

"They beat us in almost every statistical category last time," Fritz said. "We didn't play particularly well in that match. We had a lot of room for improvement."

One thing her players have been working on is establishing consistency, Fritz said.

"I know that we're becoming a more spontaneous team, but we're still looking for longer stretches of play," she said. "We're trying not to make great plays but good plays over time."

An inability to concentrate in practice is one reason the team can't notch continual success, Lastra said.

"We're wanting to build that (consistency) in practice, so we can do it in games," Lastra said. "I don't think we're focusing very hard in practice, so that's showing in games."

Fritz said the coaching staff has looked at K-State's overall statistics and set four new goals for Missouri

See VOLLEYBALL Page 10

Coaches need to be less conservative with play calling

ANTHONY MENDOZA

There's a reason the K-State football team is 4-3 at this point in the season and slowly creeping below Baylor in the power rankings of the Big 12 Conference in football.

It's not because the offensive line is a patchwork group at best due to injuries, or that redshirt-freshman Allan Evridge has not picked up the offense, because he has.

The problem is the coaching staff - a staff with offensive play calling and game management that is more conservative than the state for which they are employed.

Earlier in the year when K-State reeled off three consecutive wins against weak non-conference opponents, the Wildcats got by on being a more physical and athletic team than Florida International or North Texas.

There wasn't a reason to mix up the play calling to show K-State's hand to the rest of the Big 12 Conference.

Now, you have to wonder after Saturday's loss to Texas A&M if the offense even has the capability or the players to take a chance down field with frequency, mix in a wide receiver reverse or set up in an empty backfield?

The Wildcats don't need to be the "Air Raid" offense that Texas Tech is, but screens and five-yard outs are nice on first down. However, they don't work in third-and-long situations where a pass comes up seven yards short of a first down.

Look back at Saturday's game and you'll find questionable calls from the sideline cost the Wildcats at least nine points in their two-point loss.

Trailing 23-8 in the third quarter, the Wildcats' conservative play-calling cost them.

Following an Aggie touchdown, K-State moved the ball down the field with a balance of the run and pass.

At the five-yard line, the Wildcats decided to run the ball twice with Thomas Clayton.

The first time was up the middle for no gain on third down. On fourth down, with behemoth fullbacks Victor Mann and Ayo Saba in the game, the call was to pitch the ball back to Clayton on the left side, which was bottled up for a two-yard loss and the loss of possession.

Then there is the option call on K-State's two-point conversion play that would have tied the game. Evridge was grabbed behind the line of scrimmage and thrown to the ground.

The option has not been a consistent part of the offense all year. Why it was run at that time is unclear, and questions arise about what the coaches saw from their point of view.

K-State is ranked near the middle of the conference in almost all the offensive statistical categories.

The Wildcats are going to remain that way unless they find another playmaker besides Jordy Nelson.

Big players can't make big plays all the time on a six-yard out.

They really can't make big plays when they are restricted by the offensive play calling as they have this year.

Anthony Mendoza is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Men's golf ends fall season with 10th-place finish

Staff Reports
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State men's golf team ended the fall season Tuesday by shooting its lowest final-round score of the year with a 5-under-par 279 to move up four spots to finish in 10th place at the Barona Collegiate Cup.

The Wildcats shot their lowest 54-hole score of the season and tied the second-lowest 54-hole score in school history with a 15-under-par 849 (282-288-279) at the par-72 Barona Creek Golf Club in Lakeside, Calif.

"We left some shots out there, but this was a really good way to end the fall," coach Tim Norris said in a release.

Because the second round was postponed after a rain delay halted play Monday, the Wildcats had to finish the round before the third round began Tuesday morning.

Brigham Young University defended its title in dominating fashion. BYU fired a 42-under-par 822 (273-268-281) to win the tournament by 12 strokes over Fresno State, who finished with a 30-under 834 (274-285-275).

Senior Ben Kern was the low Wildcat for the third time in five tournaments this season.

He finished tied for 23rd after firing a 6-under-par 210 (69-70-71). His 210 tied for the fourth lowest 54-hole score in school history.

It was only his third-best score this season however.

Senior Tyler Cummins shot the lowest round of the tournament with a 67 in the final round to finish in a tie for 37th at 3-under-par 213 (75-71-67).

Cummins' 67 bested his previous low round of the season by one stroke and was the second-lowest round in his career.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Ben Kern lines up a putt at the KU Invitational Oct. 19, 2004, in Lawrence.

Freshmen Robert Streb (72-75-69) and Joe Kinney (71-72-73) each fired their lowest rounds of their careers, both tying for 48th after shooting even-par 216.

One stroke behind Streb and Kinney was sophomore Kyle Yonke, who tied his second lowest 54-hole score with a 1-over-par 217 (70-75-72), good enough to tie for 61st.

The Wildcats have concluded their fall season and will begin the spring season Feb. 13-14 at the Matlock Collegiate, which will be at the Grasslands Golf Course in Lakeland, Fla.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | Iowa State game set for 1 p.m. kickoff

K-State's football game at Iowa State on Nov. 5 has been set for a 1 p.m. kickoff at Jack Trice Stadium in Ames, Iowa.

The game will not be televised, marking the third consecutive meeting between the Wildcats and Cyclones in Ames not to be televised.

The game will air live over the K-State Sports Network with Wyatt Thompson calling the action and former K-State quarterback Stan Weber providing the analysis.

CBB | 10th annual Fright Night set for Oct. 27

Fans are invited to join the K-State men's and women's basketball teams for the 10th annual Fright Night festivities on Oct. 27 at Bramlage Coliseum.

Young fans will be able to safely trick-or-treat at the arena after doors open at 6 p.m.

Both teams, as well as Willie the Wildcat, will be available for autographs on the concourse.

Prizes will be given out to the participants with the best costumes, while the first 400 children will receive free T-shirts.

Fans are encouraged to trick-or-treat for the first hour until the program begins at 7 p.m. Performances by Willie, the Classy Cats, the cheerleading squad and "Wildcat Request Live" winners as well as introductions of the basketball teams highlight the activities.

BSB | K-State announces 2006 baseball schedule

K-State baseball coach Brad Hill announced the team's 2006 schedule Tuesday, which includes 20 games against teams that advanced to 2005 NCAA Regional play and nine games against teams that advanced to last season's College World Series.

The Wildcats open the 2006 slate February 17 in Arlington, Texas, against the Oral Roberts Golden Eagles, a 2005 regional team.

For a complete schedule, visit www.k-statesports.com.

The Associated Press

MLB | White Sox take 3-0 lead over Astros

HOUSTON — Ten, 11, 12, 13 innings. No one could break through.

Not the White Sox, who waited 46 years to get back to the World Series. Not the Astros, who've never been here before.

Finally, in the 14th inning, Geoff Blum won the longest game in World Series history with a tiebreaking, two-out solo homer, and Chicago beat Houston 7-5 Wednesday morning to move within a win of a Series sweep and its first title since 1917.

NFL | Giants co-owner, NFL Hall of Famer Mara dies

NEW YORK — Wellington Mara of the New York Giants, one of the NFL's most influential owners for more than a half century and the last of the league's founding generation, died Tuesday. He was 89.

Mara

Mara, who was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1997, died of cancer at his home in Rye, N.Y., the team said.

Mara's influence went far beyond the Giants. He clearly was one of the most important figures in NFL history.

"Wellington Mara represented the heart and soul of the National Football League," NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue said.

NBA | Granik to step down from NBA position

NEW YORK — Russ Granik announced Tuesday that he'll be stepping down as deputy commissioner of the NBA at the end of the upcoming season, bringing an end to his 30-year tenure at the league office.

Granik

The news came as the NBA Board of Governors gave commissioner David Stern a new five-year deal which will keep him at the league's helm though the 2009-10 season.

Granik, who become a senior adviser to Stern at season's end, will remain the league's main representative to USA Basketball and board chairman of the Basketball Hall of Fame.

All Bundled up: Students find affordable, simple ways to stay warm

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

By Iris Kalkofen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

As the winter months quickly approach, worries about the projected increase in natural gas prices and subsequent increase in heating costs are filtering through the air.

A few options, such as heating pads, space heaters and warm beverages can help students keep warm and possibly cut down on heating expenses.

"If I were really cold, I would pile on eight million blankets," Emily Boos, junior in life sciences, said.

Boos also said she wears sweat pants and sweatshirts when it's cold outside.

"I have considered putting heat packs in my socks, too," she said.

Students can also wear lots of layers to keep the cold out, Erin Allerheiligen, junior in kinesiology, said. She said she wears a big coat, gloves and a scarf when it's chilly outside.

Students could also invest in a throw blanket or quilt to wrap up in when watching television or studying. Blankets are usually less than $15 and can be found at Wal-Mart, Target and other stores.

"I sleep under a down comforter," Allerheiligen said. She also said she drinks hot chocolate with lots of marshmallows.

Many students have the same idea and coffee shops such as Bluestem Bistro, 1219 Moro St., have seen a boost in sales since the cold weather has moved in.

"I think it's just the cold weather and everyone's just like, 'I need something hot,'" said Adam Robertson, Bluestem employee and senior in philosophy. "We've been selling hot chocolates out the wazoo."

There are also ways to protect students' homes from excessive heat loss.

"Students check insulation around windows and doors and fill any cracks in walls to keep in heat," Jeff Franzen, senior in electrical engineering, said. "Additional insulation may be required around windows and simply covering them with blankets and sealing up any permanent window air conditioners can make a large difference."

Lastly, electric heaters can be purchased to help warm a room. However, students should take care when using space haters, Jim McDiffett, fire marshal for the Manhattan Fire Department, said.

"If used as the primary heat source, space heaters will easily overheat," McDiffett said. "Heaters need to shutdown and cycle because otherwise they will build up too much heat."

Electric blankets and heating pads are other sources of heat.

McDiffett also suggests students use care with electric blankets.

"Watch for mechanical damage, especially in blankets because folding can damage the wires," McDiffett said. "Generally, students should follow the manufacturer instructions on use and placement. Be sure to not exceed those limits."

— Alex Peak and Eileen Laux contributed to this story.

Throw Blankets
Available at: Target
Price: $19.99-$74.99

Heaters
Available at Wal-Mart:
Price: $17.64 - $44.88

Hot Beverages
Available at:
Bluestem Bistro
Price: $2 -$4.50

Supergrass' new album has more somber, mature sound

"Road to Rouen"
★★★★☆
Album review by Alex Peak

Supergrass, a band native to Oxford, England, has a discography that began about 10 years ago. Its first album, "I Should Coco" was released in 1995 and was No. 1 on British music charts. The records, "In It for the Money" (1997), "Supergrass" (1999), "Life on Other Planets" (2002) and "Supergrass Is 10" (2004) were also listed within the top 10 of music charts in the United Kingdom.

While many fans thought its compilation "Supergrass is 10" was probably the end, "Road to Rouen" was released this fall.

For die-hard Supergrass fans, in order to truly appreciate this album, you might have to first erase any memories about Supergrass. Begin by forgetting that the band was once more energetic and raucous and accept that it has reached a new, more somber and mature sound.

Try not to compare the music on this album to any past music or maybe the first couple of times, basically forget that you're listening to Supergrass.

The new album sounds like the love child from a three-way affair between the Beatles, David Bowie and Pink Floyd. The songs seem to draw influence from these bands.

The beats and melodies are slowed down – not enough to put fans into a deep slumber, but maybe a relaxed state. Listeners who enjoy Blur, Oasis or Doves might like this compact disc.

The album begins slowly and sets the mood for the rest of the CD with the song "Tales of Endurance (Parts 4, 5 & 6)." This record is perhaps more folkish and reflective than others as vocalist Gaz Coombes sings "We hail commercial suicide/Kiss the love you leave behind/And let it bother you/Well you do what it takes to get what you can." The group seems to be embracing the new, mellowed sound.

Courtesy art

After a few times of listening to the quickie CD (it's only about 40 minutes long), most, if not all, of the songs will grow on you. My favorite songs on the CD are "Tales of Endurance," "St. Petersburg," and "Sad Girl."

Fans need not worry too much, the band's passion, emotion and beats are still there in the music, just in a different form on this CD.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

1825 — Erie Canal Opens

The Erie Canal opens, connecting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean via the Hudson River. Governor DeWitt Clinton of New York, the driving force behind the project, led the opening ceremonies and rode the canal boat Seneca Chief from Buffalo to New York.

Courtesy art

1864 — Bill Anderson killed

Notorious Confederate guerrilla leader William "Bloody Bill" Anderson is killed in Missouri in an ambush.

1881 — The Earps shoot it out at the OK Corral in Tombstone, Ariz.

After years of feuding and mounting tensions, on this day in 1881, the "law and order" Earps and the "cowboy" Clanton-McLaurys engage in their world-famous shoot-out near the OK Corral in Tombstone, Ariz., leaving three men dead and three more wounded.

1900 — Henry James and Edith Wharton begin corresponding

On this day writer Henry James first writes to Edith Wharton, whom he will finally meet in 1903. Wharton, then 38, had published her first collection of stories, "The Greater Inclination," the previous year. An enormous admirer of James, she modeled parts of her work after his, including his attention to form and his interest in ethical questions. The two became great friends and James encouraged her writing.

Courtesy art

1942 — The United States loses the Hornet

The last U.S. carrier manufactured before America's entry into World War II, the Hornet, is damaged so extensively by Japanese war planes in the Battle of Santa Cruz that it must be abandoned.

1948 — An abused wife gets revenge

Betty Ferreri kills her husband, Jerry, in their Los Angeles, home with the help of house caretaker Alan Adron. When Jerry, a notorious womanizer, brought a young model to the couple's home in the upscale Hancock Park neighborhood, Betty became upset and threatened him with a large wrench. Although Jerry fled, Betty was worried that he would return in a violent state, so she asked for Adron's assistance. When Jerry later returned, he began dragging Betty by her hair. Adron shot him twice, but the gun jammed before he was dead, so Betty finished him off with a meat cleaver, striking him in the head 23 times.

1955 — Birth of an outlaw racer

Sprint car racer and record-holder Sammy Swindell was born on this day. The second-winningest driver in Pennzoil World of Outlaws Series history, with 229 "A" Feature victories, Swindell holds the record for Chili Bowl midget championships, compiled the first clean sweep in Outlaws history in 1995, and is the only driver to win "A" features at two different tracks on the same day — at the New York State Fair Speedway and Rolling Wheels Raceway on Oct. 12, 1991. In 1998, Sammy broke the single lap world record at the Springfield Mile when he ran a 24.71-second lap over a one-mile oval at 145.63 mph.

Courtesy art

1965 — Beatles receive medals

The Queen of England awards the Beatles the prestigious Member of the Order of the British Empire at Buckingham Palace. Lennon famously commented to a newspaper reporter, "We're more popular than Jesus Christ right now."

Source: History Channel

Moms balance work, family

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Stephanie Bannister is a busy woman.

She is working on her doctorate and is the assistant director of the Department of Housing and Dining Services at Jardine Apartments. She also has three children, ages 8, 4 and 4 months.

Bannister said a big part of her balancing act is her husband.

"He is always willing to compromise and has come to adjust," she said.

The hardest thing Bannister said she deals with is a lack of time with her children.

"Other people are raising your children, for the most part," she said. "You begin to question if this is right or not. It's hard not to feel guilty, because you are missing some of the intimate parts of their lives."

Bannister said selecting childcare for her children is also hard and she has not found a daycare that would accept three children of such different ages.

"Each child goes to a different place," Bannister said. "It's a hard choice, trusting them to raise your child in your absence. But I know that they are truly loved where they are now."

Bannister spends time with her children every night and they eat together as a family.

Soontae An, assistant professor of journalism and mass communications, is familiar with the difficulties of working and raising children.

She and her husband have a 10-year-old daughter.

"It is always a balance between my work and time for my daughter," An said.

Her husband also is part of her daughter's success, An said.

An said she also feels guilty at times because of her schedule.

"I try to compensate for this by giving her many extracurricular opportunities," An said. "I have realized that some things are not possible and I try to think about efficiency."

Her daughter, Frances, takes violin, piano, Spanish, Korean, tennis and golf lessons. An said she and her husband monitor Frances' schoolwork as well.

"She has a very hectic schedule and is excited to learn many things," An said. "But I do as much as I can. She is older now so we do not have to worry about childcare."

Jan Coles, instructor of biology, has one 4-year-old son, Liam. She said she always wishes she had more time for both her son and her work.

"When I'm with him, I wish I had more time for him. When I'm at work, I wish I had more time at work," Coles said.

The Census Bureau found there were 5.4 million stay-at-home mothers in 2003.

Coles said she often considers quitting work to be a full-time mom. The enjoyment she gets from her job, however, keeps her from doing so.

"I love what I do," she said.

An, however, said she has never considered quitting.

"I think it does have to do with the desire of the working mom," she said.

Bannister said she often feels like she is missing things, and she notices that her children feel her absence.

"They'll say, 'So-and-so's mom isn't working,' and that is hard," she said.

According Thayer White's book, "Be Your Own Therapist," children can be positively influenced by their working mothers. A mother's self-esteem seems to counteract any ill effects that may result from a loss in her availability, White said in the book.

"I think it is good for my daughter to see me juggle everything and realize that when she grows up she can do what interests her," An said.

Going to classes can be stressful and Bannister said sometimes both she and her daughter will have homework to do.

"Sometimes it feels like gaining my doctorate is almost selfish," Bannister said. "I hope that it will be good for them, so that they can eventually do what they want."

Her goal is to eventually teach classes at K-State and spend more time at home with her family.

"It's motivation to get home and be with them," Bannister said. "I don't take for granted the time I have with them."

Coles said prayer inspires her when her life is so busy.

"It's a lot of prayer," she said. "I pray for him every day and try to set a godly example and show him what I want him to emulate. I'm not raising a child, I'm raising a future adult."

She said she knows her struggle to balance work and family is not uncommon.

"Anyone with a sense of commitment will struggle with it," Coles said. "But I know that what I'm doing right now is the most important thing for me to be doing."

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Monday evening at their home, Stephanie Bannister holds her daughter, Grace, 4 months, while helping other daughter Sydney, 8, with her homework as her son Will, 4, observes.

UPC sponsors photography contest

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State student photographers have an opportunity to display their work by entering the 31st Union Program Council Photography Contest.

The competition is open to any K-State student and entries will be accepted at the UPC office on the third floor of the K-State Student Union until Thursday.

The competition is divided into three divisions: color, black and white and digital. There is a $50 first prize and $25 second prize in each division.

The first-place prize is funded by a $3 entry fee for the competition.

There is also a limit on the number of entries, Beth Bailey, assistant director of the Union, said.

"Part of the reason we institute a fee is so someone doesn't turn in an entire roll of film, so that way you determine which of your photos is the best," she said.

Rules and information are available in an A-frame outside the Union Food Court.

Kurt Fenster, junior in theater and co-chairman for the UPC Arts Committee, said the contest is only one side of the Arts Committee.

"Part of what we try to do is try to bring in art from reputable artists," he said. "We also use it as a way for emerging artists to display their work."

The winning entries from each division will be on display from Oct. 31 to Nov. 18 in Kemper Art Gallery in the Union.

"It's to serve the students, to give them a place to display their work," Fenster said.

Collegian
Explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

the provost's lecture series 2005-2006
10:30 a.m. - noon
Thursday, October 27
Hemisphere Room
The Cholera-Climate Paradigm for Science in the Twenty-first Century: Interdisciplinary, International and Complex
Dr. Rita Colwell
Former head of NSF (1998-2004)
Chairman of Canon US Life Sciences, Inc.
Distinguished University Professor at University of Maryland at College Park and Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health
Provost M. Duane Nellis
Host
Presentations followed by Q & A
For more information, visit the Provost's web site:
<www.ksu.edu/provost/academic/lecture/index.htm>
Students Welcome

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THINKING about changing majors?
For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494
K-State
Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 26 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom
We would like to thank the following businesses and colleges for supporting the Academic Majors Fair through the donation of door prizes for students and faculty.
Blockbuster
Ceramic Canvas
College of Architecture, Planning,and Design
College of Arts and Sciences
College of Business Administration
College of Education
College of Human Ecology
Dillon's
Dry Clean City
Famous Dave's
Gaia Salon
Geometrics
Hormel
J's Salon
KSU Athletics
KSU Bookstore
McDonald's
Pfeifley Jewelry
Texas Star
Wildflower Yarns & Knitwear
Zuckey Bowl

YOU ARE WHERE YOU EAT
1212 MORO ST.
785.539.7454
WE DELIVER!
JIMMY JOHN'S JJ
JIMMY JOHNS .COM
©2005 Jimmy John's Franchise Inc. All Rights Reserved.

ΔΔΔ Congratulations ΔΔΔ
to our new initiates!
Jenny Beaver
Sarah Berger
Chelsea Blumer
Courtney Callegari
Brooke Carney
Jennifer Clary
Danielle Cereola
Andrea Crabaugh
Jeahn Creviston
Lindsay Creviston
Tina Fancher
Maggie Field
Molly Hamm
Elizabeth Hicks
Katie Holliday
Danielle Hoskins
Ashlie Kirk
Allison Klinock
Beth Korpi
Lauren Krause
Brianne Leese
Meghan Murphy
Jenn Nickloy
Emily Patee
Kehley Pfrang
Laura Prince
Anne Reardon
Beth Rippe
Libby Ritz
Tierney Ross
Jill Saragusa
Brigette Schnake
Courtney Sebree
Jenny Sherrill
Ashley Smith
Stephanie Sommers
Stephanie Taylor
Lauren Turner
Erin Tyson
Jordan Walters
Ashley Weixelman
Δ Love, Your Tri Delta Sisters

KANSAS STATE
2005 VOLLEYBALL
vs. Missouri
7pm - Wednesday, Oct. 26
Ahearn Field House
K-STATE STUDENTS,
FREE ADMISSION WITH YOUR STUDENT I.D.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT, close to campus, available now. All utilities paid. Washer/ dryer. $375 (785)317-7713.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

115 Rooms Available

ROOM FOR rent until January. $250. Two-bedroom at Chase. Call (951)764-8840.

120 For Rent- Houses

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED. Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT. Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lot$ of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost-and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

LET'S HELP OUR LOCAL CHARITIES.

Please consider a contribution to support our local charities.

THINK GLOBALLY. ACT LOCALLY.

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights. 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

GET YOUR AD HERE. Call Today 532-6560

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

1978 SCHULTZ mobile home, 14X72. Three-bedroom, two bath. $6100 or best offer. (785)458-9734.

145 Roommate Wanted

CHRISTIAN FEMALE housemate wanted for five-bedroom house. Residential neighborhood. Washer/ dryer, two-car garage. $300/ month plus utilities. (913)636-9152.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

MALE STUDENT roommate wanted to share nice mobile home starting now or spring semester. $175/ month plus utilities. Call (620)331-0147, leave detailed message.

ONE-BEDROOM AVAILABLE in three bedroom house. Washer/ dryer, walking distance to college. Male or female. Brick home. Rent negotiable. (785)443-2229

ROOMMATE WANTED: $250/ month. One block from Aggieville , two from campus. Available immediately. (816)810-5953.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

we kick ads.
CLASSIFIEDS • 532-6555

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed, Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE/ MALE subleaser for spring/ summer semester(s), nice house, walk to campus, washer/ dryer, $290/ month plus utilities. Call (316)706-7272.

SUBLEASE AVAILABLE immediately or whenever. One-bedroom next to Aggieville, utilities paid, except electric. August lease. Call anytime (785)317-0235.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM, quiet and responsible, 12/15/05- 7/28/05, December rent free. 1014 Bluemont. $540/ month plus deposit. (913)706-6927.

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER WANTED. $375/ month, washer, dryer, furnished. University Crossing. Call (913)909-5448.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

SUBLEASERS WANTED for two-bedroom apartment. One block from campus, washer/ dryer, water/ trash paid. Second semester. (316)288-9629.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

Need a roommate? Advertise. It works.
Kedzie 103 • 532-6555

310 Help Wanted

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS: Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer

ENERGETIC, RESPONSIBLE students needed to distribute fliers on 10/31, 11/1, and 11/2. Flexible hours. $10/ hour. Call Staceylee at (866)313-8184.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

GRADUATE ASSISTANT, Bachelor's Degree Completion Program, KSU Division of Continuing Education. Facilitate undergraduates in K-State's external degree program, Bachelor's Degree Completion. Required: Hold a bachelor's degree and be accepted into a graduate degree program at KSU. Have excellent oral and written communications skills, good interpersonal skills and good attention to detail. Have experience in word-processing, e-mail and computer applications. Preferred: Have experience advising adult non-traditional undergraduate students and be able to work with minimum supervision. Have experience using KSU's SIS system and database software. Request a detailed position description at 226 College Court or call (785)532-5575. Applications will be accepted October 24-November 4. Applicants should submit a letter of application, a resume, and name, addresses and phone numbers of three references. Starting date: January of 2006.

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

LUTHERAN CAMPUS ministries is seeking candidate for the position of peer minister. Duties include outreach to college students, assist in operations of Luther House and assist with worship activities. Monthly stipend available. Email resume and letter of interest to cheryll@kaukis.com.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air-conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape. 73k asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

SPRING BREAKERS book early and save. Lowest prices. Hottest destinations. Book 15= 2 FREE TRIPS OR CASH. FREE MEALS/ PARTIES BY 11/7. Highest commission. Best travel perks. www.sunsplashtours.com (800)426-7710.

Need a tutor? Check the classifieds category 205.
Kedzie 103

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1109 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

Advertising Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 484
Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Graphic Design Internship
Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian
If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

LOST? & FOUND
Report any lost or found items for FREE in the Collegian.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN 103 Kedzie 532-6555

Need a Roommate?
Advertise in the Collegian to find a "roomie" to share the rent and make memories.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
532-6555

GREAT PHOTO IN THE COLLEGIAN? GET A PRINT.
Call (785) 532-6304 to order your reprint for only $25. (plus s & h)

NOON

is the deadline for classifieds
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

Advertise
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 KEDZIE • 532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Moms balance work, family

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Stephanie Bannister is a busy woman.

She is working on her doctorate and is the assistant director of the Department of Housing and Dining Services at Jardine Apartments. She also has three children, ages 8, 4 and 4 months.

Bannister said a big part of her balancing act is her husband.

"He is always willing to compromise and has come to adjust," she said.

The hardest thing Bannister said she deals with is a lack of time with her children.

"Other people are raising your children, for the most part," she said. "You begin to question if this is right or not. It's hard not to feel guilty, because you are missing some of the intimate parts of their lives."

Bannister said selecting childcare for her children is also hard and she has not found a daycare that would accept three children of such different ages.

"Each child goes to a different place," Bannister said. "It's a hard choice, trusting them to raise your child in your absence. But I know that they are truly loved where they are now."

Bannister spends time with her children every night and they eat together as a family.

Soontae An, assistant professor of journalism and mass communications, is familiar with the difficulties of working and raising children.

She and her husband have a 10-year-old daughter.

"It is always a balance between my work and time for my daughter," An said.

Her husband also is part of her daughter's success, An said.

An said she also feels guilty at times because of her schedule.

"I try to compensate for this by giving her many extracurricular opportunities," An said. "I have realized that some things are not possible and I try to think about efficiency."

Her daughter, Frances, takes violin, piano, Spanish, Korean, tennis and golf lessons. An said she and her husband monitor Frances' schoolwork as well.

"She has a very hectic schedule and is excited to learn many things," An said. "But I do as much as I can. She is older now so we do not have to worry about childcare."

Jan Coles, instructor of biology, has one 4-year-old son, Liam. She said she always wishes she had more time for both her son and her work.

"When I'm with him, I wish I had more time for him. When I'm at work, I wish I had more time at work," Coles said.

The Census Bureau found there were 5.4 million stay-at-home mothers in 2003.

Coles said she often considers quitting work to be a full-time mom. The enjoyment she gets from her job, however, keeps her from doing so.

"I love what I do," she said.

An, however, said she has never considered quitting.

"I think it does have to do with the desire of the working mom," she said.

Bannister said she often feels like she is missing things, and she notices that her children feel her absence.

"They'll say, 'So-and-so's mom isn't working,' and that is hard," she said.

According Thayer White's book, "Be Your Own Therapist," children can be positively influenced by their working mothers. A mother's self-esteem seems to counteract any ill effects that may result from a loss in her availability, White said in the book.

"I think it is good for my daughter to see me juggle everything and realize that when she grows up she can do what interests her," An said.

Going to classes can be stressful and Bannister said sometimes both she and her daughter will have homework to do.

"Sometimes it feels like gaining my doctorate is almost selfish," Bannister said. "I hope that it will be good for them, so that they can eventually do what they want."

Her goal is to eventually teach classes at K-State and spend more time at home with her family.

"It's motivation to get home and be with them," Bannister said. "I don't take for granted the time I have with them."

Coles said prayer inspires her when her life is so busy.

"It's a lot of prayer," she said. "I pray for him every day and try to set a godly example and show him what I want him to emulate. I'm not raising a child, I'm raising a future adult."

She said she knows her struggle to balance work and family is not uncommon.

"Anyone with a sense of commitment will struggle with it," Coles said. "But I know that what I'm doing right now is the most important thing for me to be doing."

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Monday evening at their home, Stephanie Bannister holds her daughter, Grace, 4 months, while helping other daughter Sydney, 8, with her homework as her son Will, 4, observes.

UPC sponsors photography contest

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State student photographers have an opportunity to display their work by entering the 31st Union Program Council Photography Contest.

The competition is open to any K-State student and entries will be accepted at the UPC office on the third floor of the K-State Student Union until Thursday.

The competition is divided into three divisions: color, black and white and digital. There is a $50 first prize and $25 second prize in each division.

The first-place prize is funded by a $3 entry fee for the competition.

There is also a limit on the number of entries, Beth Bailey, assistant director of the Union, said.

"Part of the reason we institute a fee is so someone doesn't turn in an entire roll of film, so that way you determine which of your photos is the best," she said.

Rules and information are available in an A-frame outside the Union Food Court.

Kurt Fenster, junior in theater and co-chairman for the UPC Arts Committee, said the contest is only one side of the Arts Committee.

"Part of what we try to do is try to bring in art from reputable artists," he said. "We also use it as a way for emerging artists to display their work."

The winning entries from each division will be on display from Oct. 31 to Nov. 18 in Kemper Art Gallery in the Union.

"It's to serve the students, to give them a place to display their work," Fenster said.

Collegian
Explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

the provost's lecture series 2005-2006

10:30 a.m. - noon
Thursday, October 27
Hemisphere Room

The Cholera-Climate Paradigm for Science in the Twenty-first Century: Interdisciplinary, International and Complex

Dr. Rita Colwell
Former head of NSF (1998-2004)
Chairman of Canon US Life Sciences, Inc.
Distinguished University Professor at University of Maryland at College Park and Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health

Provost M. Duane Nellis
Host
Presentations followed by Q & A
For more information, visit the Provost's web site:
<www.ksu.edu/provost/academic/lecture/index.htm>
Students Welcome

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THINKING about changing majors?

For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494

K-State

Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 26 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom

We would like to thank the following businesses and colleges for supporting the Academic Majors Fair through the donation of door prizes for students and faculty.

Blockbuster
Ceramic Canvas
College of Architecture, Planning,and Design
College of Arts and Sciences
College of Business Administration
College of Education
College of Human Ecology
Dillon's
Dry Clean City
Famous Dave's
Gaia Salon
Geometrics
Hormel
J's Salon
KSU Athletics
KSU Bookstore
McDonald's
Pfeifley Jewelry
Texas Star
Wildflower Yarns & Knitwear
Zuckey Bowl

YOU ARE WHERE YOU EAT

1212 MORO ST.
785.539.7454

WE DELIVER!
JIMMY JOHN'S JJ
JIMMY JOHNS .COM

©2005 Jimmy John's Franchise Inc. All Rights Reserved.

ΔΔΔ Congratulations ΔΔΔ
to our new initiates!

Jenny Beaver
Sarah Berger
Chelsea Blumer
Courtney Callegari
Brooke Carney
Jennifer Clary
Danielle Cereola
Andrea Crabaugh
Jeahn Creviston
Lindsay Creviston
Tina Fancher
Maggie Field
Molly Hamm
Elizabeth Hicks
Katie Holliday
Danielle Hoskins
Ashlie Kirk
Allison Klinock
Beth Korpi
Lauren Krause
Brianne Leese
Meghan Murphy
Jenn Nickloy
Emily Patee
Kehley Pfrang
Laura Prince
Anne Reardon
Beth Rippe
Libby Ritz
Tierney Ross
Jill Saragusa
Brigette Schnake
Courtney Sebree
Jenny Sherrill
Ashley Smith
Stephanie Sommers
Stephanie Taylor
Lauren Turner
Erin Tyson
Jordan Walters
Ashley Weixelman

Δ Love, Your Tri Delta Sisters

KANSAS STATE
2005 VOLLEYBALL

vs. Missouri
7pm - Wednesday, Oct. 26
Ahearn Field House
K-STATE STUDENTS,
FREE ADMISSION WITH YOUR STUDENT I.D.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT, close to campus, available now. All utilities paid. Washer/ dryer. $375. (785)317-7713.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

115 Rooms Available

ROOM FOR rent until January. $250. Two-bedroom at Chase. Call (951)764-8840.

120 For Rent- Houses

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed, Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE/ MALE subleaser for spring/ summer semester(s), nice house, walk to campus, washer/ dryer, $290/ month plus utilities. Call (316)706-7272.

SUBLEASE AVAILABLE immediately or whenever. One-bedroom next to Aggieville, utilities paid, except electric. August lease. Call anytime (785)317-0235.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM, quiet and responsible, 12/15/05- 7/28/05. December rent free. 1014 Bluemont. $540/ month plus deposit. (913)706-6927.

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER WANTED $375/ month, washer, dryer, furnished, University Crossing. Call (913)909-5448.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

SUBLEASERS WANTED for two-bedroom apartment. One block from campus, washer/ dryer, water/ trash paid. Second semester. (316)288-9629.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

310 Help Wanted

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS: Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

ENERGETIC, RESPONSIBLE students needed to distribute fliers on 10/31, 11/1, and 11/2. Flexible hours. $10/ hour. Call Staceylee at (866)313-8184.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

GRADUATE ASSISTANT, Bachelor's Degree Completion Program, KSU Division of Continuing Education. Facilitate undergraduates in K-State's external degree program, Bachelor's Degree Completion. Required: Hold a bachelor's degree and be accepted into a graduate degree program at KSU. Have excellent oral and written communications skills, good interpersonal skills and good attention to detail. Have experience in word-processing, e-mail and computer applications. Preferred: Have experience advising adult non-traditional undergraduate students and be able to work with minimum supervision. Have experience using KSU's SIS system and database software. Request a detailed position description at 226 College Court or call (785)532-5575. Applications will be accepted October 24-November 4. Applicants should submit a letter of application, a resume, and name, addresses, and phone numbers of three references. Starting date: January of 2006.

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

LUTHERAN CAMPUS ministries is seeking candidate for the position of peer minister. Duties include outreach to college students, assist in operations of Luther House and assist with worship activities. Monthly stipend available. Email resume and letter of interest to cheryll@kausis.com.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air-conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape, 73k, asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

SPRING BREAKERS book early and save. Lowest prices. Hottest destinations. Book 15= 2 FREE TRIPS OR CASH. FREE MEALS/ PARTIES BY 11/7. Highest commission. Best travel perks. www.sunsplashtours.com (800)426-7710.

Need a tutor? Check the classifieds category 205. Kedzie 103

All Apartments within Walking Distance to Campus

ONE BEDROOM
$400- $500

TWO BEDROOMS
1829 College Heights
$600
1029 McCullum
$750

AGGIEVILLE PENTHOUSE
$500

3 BEDROOM HOUSE
1508 Hillcrest
$700

DIAMOND
1105 Hylton Heights • Manhattan, KS 66502
537-7701

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc.

www.bobbyts.com. CHECK OUT. Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lot$ of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

LET'S HELP OUR LOCAL CHARITIES.
Please consider a contribution to support our local charities.
THINK GLOBALLY. ACT LOCALLY.

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights. 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

GET YOUR AD HERE. Call Today 532-6560

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

1978 SCHULTZ mobile home, 14X72. Three-bedroom, two bath. $6100 or best offer. (785)458-9734.

145 Roommate Wanted

CHRISTIAN FEMALE housemate wanted for five-bedroom house. Residential neighborhood. Washer/ dryer, two-car garage. $300/ month plus utilities. (913)636-9152.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

MALE STUDENT roommate wanted to share nice mobile home starting now or spring semester. $175/ month plus utilities. Call (620)331-0147, leave detailed message.

ONE-BEDROOM AVAILABLE in three bedroom house. Washer/ dryer, walking distance to college. Male or female. Brick home. Rent negotiable. (785)443-2229.

ROOMMATE WANTED: $250/ month. One block from Aggieville , two from campus. Available immediately. (816)810-5953.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

we kick ads.
CLASSIFIEDS • 532-6555

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Advertising Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 484
Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Graphic Design Internship
Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian
If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

Need a roommate? Advertise. It works.
Kedzie 103 • 532-6555

Need a Roommate?
Advertise in the Collegian to find a "roomie" to share the rent and make memories.
Kansas State Collegian
103 Kedzie
532-6555

GREAT PHOTO IN THE COLLEGIAN? GET A PRINT.
Call (785) 532-6304 to order your reprint for only $25. (plus s & h)

NOON

is the deadline for classifieds
Kansas State Collegian
103 Kedzie 532-6555

LOST? & FOUND
Report any lost or found items for FREE in the Collegian.
Kansas State Collegian 103 Kedzie 532-6555

Advertise
Kansas State Collegian
118 Kedzie • 532-6560
Kansas State Collegian

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

000 bulletin board
100 housing/ real estate
200 service directory
300 employment opportunities
400 open market
500 transportation
600 travel/ trips

The winners

In the greek life division of the competition, first place went to Kappa Delta, Clovia, Sigma Chi and Delta Tau Delta. Second went to Kappa Alpha Theta, FarmHouse and Alpha Gamma Rho. Alpha Xi Delta, Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon received third; Kappa Kappa Gamma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Theta Xi and Delta Lambda Phi received fourth place. Fifth place went to Alpha Chi Omega, Pi Kappa Alpha, Phi Delta Theta and Acacia.

The Black Student Union received first place in the student organization category.

In the residence hall category, Marlatt Hall and Moore Hall received first place, and second went to Haymaker Hall, Ford Hall and the Strong Complex.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Members of Alpha Delta Pi, Delta Upsilon and Beta Sigma Psi perform in front of other judges and Homecoming participants at Ahearn Field House Tuesday evening.

CHANT | Order of Omega collects cans, money at Homecoming event

Continued from Page 1

Bryant, associate director of alumni programs.

"It's an event that a lot of students can get involved in."

The Pant the Chant competition was also a fundraising opportunity; the Order of Omega collected canned goods and monetary donations to benefit the Flint Hills Breadbasket.

Spectators were asked to donate a couple of canned goods or a couple of dollars as an admission fee.

Donations were also received at last year's Pant the Chant event, during which the Order of Omega collected 1,732 pounds of food and $282.35.

"It's Homecoming week, so we want to involve the community and help out the community as much as possible," said Stephanie Biggs, senior in history and secondary education.

"It's a good opportunity; there will be a lot of people there."

BOARD | McDonald starts campaign early to bring attention to issues

Continued from Page 1

primary. Bacon was elected to his seat in 1999.

"If John Bacon ever votes in the interests of the citizens of district three, it's purely by accident," McDonald said.

He said Bacon doesn't communicate enough with his constituents or school administrators.

McDonald said he is starting his campaign early to get the attention and interest from the moderates in his district, who he believes have been underrepresented in previous elections.

McDonald said he is currently trying to introduce himself to every newspaper in his district, a goal he expected to complete by next week. He said he also intends to speak to the superintendents of all the school districts in his district by the end of the year.

"I think he's an ideal person for the position," said Keith Miller, assistant professor of geology and member of Kansas Citizens for Science. "He's just the kind of person we need at the state level."

Five seats on the board will need to be filled next year, with four of them currently held by conservatives.

Bacon was not available for comment.

FLU | Students should stay informed about preventative measures

Continued from Page 1

"I think that people need to be realistic in the fact that it could come to the U.S.," Ashley Fay, freshman in psychology, said. "A lot of people think that it won't come to the U.S. and that people who are afraid are overreacting, but I think it should be a very real thought in the back of people's minds."

Even so, there is nothing that can be done locally on a proactive basis about the virus.

The most important thing for students to do right now is simply to stay informed, Hollis said.

"The thing is to pay attention and do the smart things," Hollis said.

Several countries in Asia and Europe have recently confirmed cases of Avian Influenza (or the bird flu) existing in domestic poultry.

Beginning in late June 2004, new outbreaks of lethal avian influenza A of the strain H5N1 were reported in Cambodia, China, Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand and Vietnam.

Since May 2005, additional cases have been reported in Russia, China, Kazakhstan, Turkey and Romania. The H5 strain of the virus has also been detected in Greece, though further tests are needed to determine whether it is the lethal variant of the flu.

"We could certainly get it here with jet transportation the way it is," Hollis said.

He said it won't take much to bring the virus to the United States.

"With worldwide travel the way it is, it's going to be really hard to keep it out of the U.S. probably virtually impossible," Hollis said. "We'll just have to hope that if we get it, we get a milder strain than they're experiencing in Southeast Asia."

According to the World Health Organization, influenza pandemics are a concern, as they are expected to occur, on average, three or four times per century. The recent outbreaks could escalate into such a pandemic.

"All the people at the federal level are watching this, because it could be the worse things we've ever seen," Hollis said.

VOLLEYBALL | K-State has won last 21 of 23 matches against Missouri and the second half of the Big 12 season.

Continued from Page 6

"We want to try to refine our passing to find more perfect pass situations, we want to develop our defensive eyes, we want to serve without spin to make the ball float a little more and we want to get blocked less," Fritz said.

In such a talented and competitive conference, the numbers of the game can prove obsolete, Stanzel said.

"Everybody in the Big 12 is great, so if you do lose, it may not mean that you played horrible," Stanzel said. "It might just mean that you didn't do enough to win at the time."

Because it's been more than a month since K-State's first meeting with Missouri, the Cats feel more confident entering tonight's match, Stanzel said.

"They're going to be just as strong, if not stronger," Stanzel said. "But I think we've gotten a lot better in the last few weeks and hopefully we can put up a better challenge against them."

The Collegian is available at 112 locations near you.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING 532-6560

ExpertTire
EVERYDAY DISCOUNT PRICES
any size one low price!
now thru nov. 12th only!
any size 13" 14" 15" passenger Firestone FR380 55,000 mile $39
any size 13" 14" 15" passenger Bridgestone insignia SE200 65,000 mile $69
any size 13" 14" 15" passenger Firestone FR440 60,000 mile $49
any size 14" 15" 16" 17" performance Bridgestone Potenza G 009 50,000 mile $79
our guarantee: we'll meet any tire price.
any size 14" 15" 16" suv and light truck Lemans A/T $89
standard oil change and filter
• install new oil filter • refill up to 5 quarts Kendall® Synthetic Blend motor oil • lubricate chassis (if applicable)
fuel saving service
$16.99
Most vehicles add $2.50 for oil disposal fee
Expires 11/12/05
Complete Radiator System Service
• Inspect cooling system & pressure test for leaks • Refill with correct amount of recycled coolant • Add sealant / lubricant • Flush system
Most vehicles ExpertCare Car Service
help prevent the #1 cause of roadside breakdown
$49.99
Offer Ends 11/12/05
mon.-fri. 7:00 am-6:00 pm sat. 7:00 am-6:00 pm
(*) open sunday 8:00 am-5:00 pm
307 N. 3rd
Manhattan, KS
785-776-8311
90 DAYS INTEREST FREE
ExpertTire EVERYDAY DISCOUNT PRICES
www.ExpertTire.com
Shop supply charges in the amount of 6% of labor charges will be added to invoices greater than $25. These charges will not exceed $25 and represent costs and profits. Shop supply charges not applicable in CA or NY. Non-mandated disposal charges, if any are also charged above, may also represent costs and profits. Specific product offerings and tread designs may vary. Prices, warranties, other service, credit plans and other offers available at ExpertTire; see affiliated dealers listed for their competitive offers and warranties. If you do not achieve guaranteed mileage, your ExpertTire retailer will replace your tires on a pro-rated basis. Actual tread life may vary. All warranties apply only to original owner on originally installed vehicle. See retailer for details, restrictions and copy of each limited warranty. Finance charges waived on qualifying Promotional Credit Plan purchases that are paid in full within 90 days. MINIMUM MONTHLY PAYMENTS REQUIRED. Regular Rate: 21.84% Annual Percentage Rate. Delinquency Rate: 24.84% APR. Minimum finance charge $1.00. Credit First National Association reserves the right to change APR, fees and other terms without notice. See store for details.

You're Invited!
What: Dining Etiquette Workshop
When: 5:30pm on November 3rd
Where: Gold Room, Derby Dining Center
Attire: Business Casual
Many employers host interviews during meals. Prepare yourself, avoid embarrassing moments and career-crushing table manners.
The cost is $6.50 for students or free for students with a meal plan, living in the residence halls. Reservations are required and must be made by October 27th. To make your reservation call 532-6506 or stop by 100 Holtz Hall.
Sponsored by Career and Employment Services
Guiding You from College to Career
100 Holtz Hall : 532-6506 : www.k-state.edu/ces : ces@k-state.edu

JOIN A CLUB GET INVOLVED
Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.
ONLY $5!
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

Now Available! HOT ONES! Served on Multi-Grain Bread...Goodcents Gold
Get Em' While They're Hot!
Roast Beef 'N' Cheddar
Pastrami 'N' Swiss
Philly Jack Cheese Steak
Get Em While They're Hot!
Mr. Goodcents Subs & Pastas
We Deliver! 1317 Anderson 539-1900
– Limited Time Offer –
Buy any regular price 1/2 Sub Sandwich and get the second 1/2 Sub Sandwich for only 99¢
Mr. Goodcents Subs & Pastas
Valid on subs of equal or lesser value. Offer Valid at Participating Topeka, Manhattan, and Salina Mr. Goodcents locations. Not valid in conjunction with any other offers. Offer expires 11-30-05.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, October 27, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 49

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

INSIDE
Edge, Page 9

Student elections held today

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Next year's K-State student ambassadors will be chosen in a campus-wide election today.

All students are encouraged to participate in the elections by voting, said Tom Roesler, K-State Alumni Association associate director of alumni programs.

"It's important for students to vote in order to determine who will represent their student body in events around the state," he said.

Students will be able to vote at the K-State Student Union and the Van Zile, Kramer and Derby Dining centers. Voting will be done by casting paper ballots instead of online ballots, Roesler said. Because of this, students must vote at the appointed places and times.

"We are looking into doing something online, but as of present, there is no other way to vote," he said.

K-State student ambassador elections
When: 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union
11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. today in the Van Zile, Derby and Kramer Dining centers

The K-State student ambassadors, one man and one woman, will be the faces of K-State students to prospective students, alumni and K-State fans, and it is important that students choose who they feel would best represent the student body as a whole, said Kent Hildebrand, senior in mass communications and current student ambassador.

"All of the candidates are qualified," said Hildebrand, whose term as ambassador will end Saturday. "The students should ensure that they are represented by who they want to represent them, so that all the alumni and prospective K-State students have the right idea about what K-State is."

The main quality students should look for in the candidates is knowledge of and enthusiasm for K-State, Lindsey George, senior in agricultural education and current student ambassador, said.

See AMBASSADORS Page 10

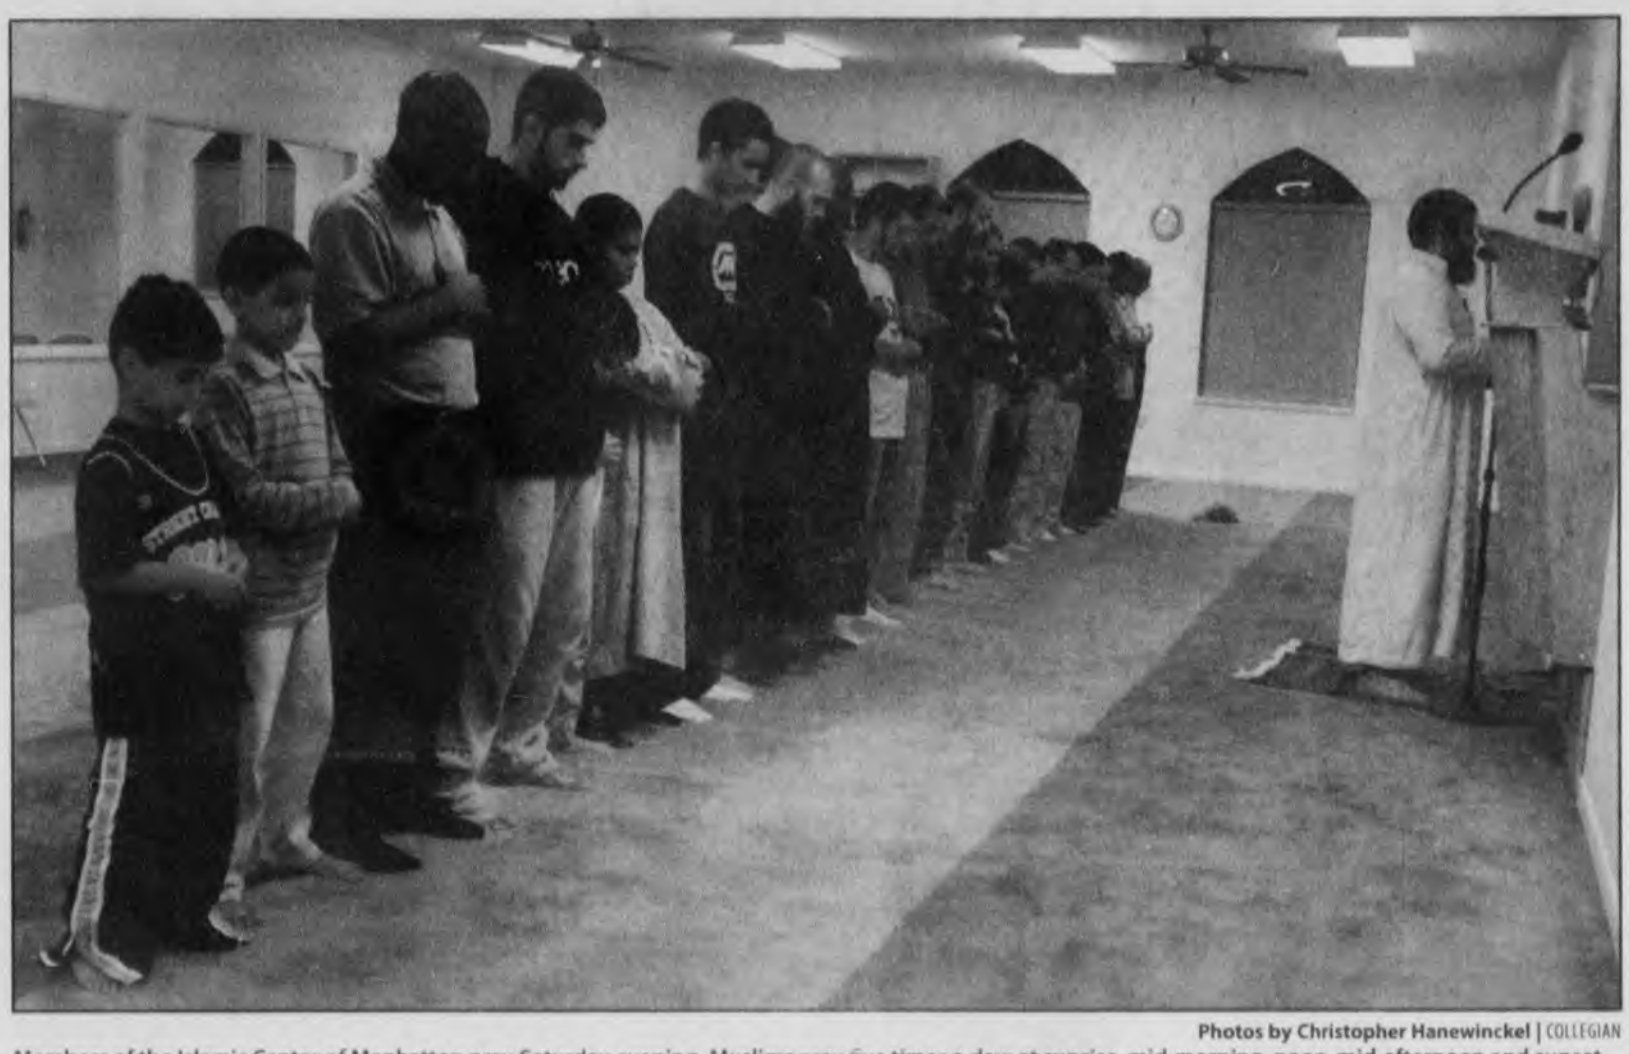
Food, money stolen from 2 buildings

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An unusual number of people are losing their lunches in Seaton and Waters halls, the K-State Police said.

Sgt. Don Stubbings, investigator for the K-State Police, said a large number of small thefts have been happening in the two halls this year. He said students and faculty have reported meals, snacks and small amounts of money taken from unattended desks.

Report a crime
Call the K-State Police at 532-6412.



Stubbings said the thefts happen mostly when people leave their offices and rooms unlocked and unattended.

Sonny Ramaswamy, head of the Department of Entomology in Waters Hall, said his department was hit often in the spring and early summer this year. He said the thief or thieves would rummage through desks in laboratories in the hall's basement and take mostly candy, cookies, sodas and pocket change.

"What's bad is that we have all these laboratory chemicals in the lab and expensive equipment, and none of it is taken," Ramaswamy said.

He said many of the thefts happened in

See THEFTS Page 10

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Members of the Islamic Center of Manhattan pray Saturday evening. Muslims pray five times a day: at sunrise, mid-morning, noon, mid-afternoon and sunset.

Holy month

Muslim students celebrate Ramadan, observe rituals

FAITH ON CAMPUS
The third of a five-part series exploring the beliefs of religious groups on campus.

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Muslim students at K-State are currently celebrating Ramadan.

According to www.irvine-worldnews.com, Ramadan is the month in which God sent the Quran, Islam's holy scripture, as a guide. Ramadan lasts a month and does not allow Muslims to eat, drink, smoke or have sex between sunrise and sunset.

Muslims pray in a line at the Islamic Center of Manhattan.

Muslims believe following this ritual allows a stronger relationship with God because followers have been asked by God to fast. Muslims have five pillars God told them to follow; confession of faith, ritual prayer, alms giving, fasting during Ramadan and pilgrimage to Mecca.

"It's another way of worship," said Fayez Husseini, professor of interior architecture and product design and Muslim Student Association advisor.

Ibraaheem Pinsince, Junction City resident, talks with Ayman Al-Ashtal, sophomore in industrial engineering, during a break at the Islamic Center of Manhattan Saturday evening.

"It gives the body a break from eating all the time. It's a spiritual connection, it purifies the body and spirit because we think about those without food and feel how they feel and this encourages people to give, it allows the person to have control over the body instead of the body controlling the person."

Muslims pray five times a day: at sunrise, mid-morning, noon, mid-afternoon and sunset.

Muftau Lawal, senior in chemistry, said during Ramadan, the prayers become more special because of the increase of spiritual activities during the month.

"It's a reflection for every Muslim," he said.

Muslim men and women pray in different rooms throughout the year, as well as celebrate religious times in different rooms. Everything is separate between genders.

"The sisters have their own room for prayer," said Sandy Burnett, senior in political science and president of the sisters committee. "The reason is that when we pray, it's very physical and you do not want a man behind you."

Muslims do not believe in what Burnett calls "free mixing," or having men and women socialize together. In mosques, men and women have

See MUSLIM Page 10

Student Senate to vote to increase campus privilege fee

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Student Senate will convene tonight to vote on an increase in campus privilege fees for University Counseling Services.

The legislation will increase Counseling Service fees approximately 3 percent every year for the next three years, said Matt Wagner, Student Senate Privilege Fee Chair.

If applied to K-State's current enrollment count, these fees would cost each student about $25 per year.

In the request, Counseling Services requests a privilege fee increase of $561,399 for fiscal year 2007, $578,241 for FY 2008 and $595,588 for FY 2009.

These fee increases were recommended by the university, with predictions on monetary increases and inflation, Wagner said.

The increases are necessary for the survival and development of this campus center, said Fred Newton, director of University Counseling Services.

Student Senate Meeting
When: 7 tonight
Where: Union Big 12 Room

"What they are doing is reviewing the maintenance budget and continuation of our services," Newton said.

He also said most of the money goes to counseling, the primary function of the 15-member staff at Counseling Services.

Throughout FY 2005, the center interacted with more than 26,715 patients, including people who sought counseling, stress-management and career planning help.

Throughout the year, Newton said privilege fees support 55.3 percent of Counseling Services' budget. The state funds 31.7 percent of the budget, grants fund 8.5 percent, service fees fund 3.8 percent and other accounts fund 0.7 percent.

Today
High 63
Low 40

Friday
High 71
Low 48

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Woman reports rape
The Riley County Police Department received a report of rape early Wednesday morning, Lt. Mike Quintanar said. The victim is a 20-year-old female. Quintanar said the incident happened early Tuesday morning in the south central part of Manhattan and the suspect is known to the victim.

Fatal shooting justified
The fatal shooting of Theodore M. Lavoie, 46, by two Concordia, Kan., police officers last month was justified, the Cloud County attorney's office said Wednesday. Lavoie was shot Sept. 22 when the officers tried to arrest him on a warrant related to domestic battery. Robert Walsh said no criminal charges will be filed.

Port Authority remiss
A jury ruled Wednesday that the Port Authority was negligent in the bombing of the World Trade Center in 1993 that killed six people and wounded 1,000. The jury took one day to reach the verdict, but it came after almost 12 years of legal delays in the civil case.

Story, Page 10

DON'T FORGET

Students with 78 hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

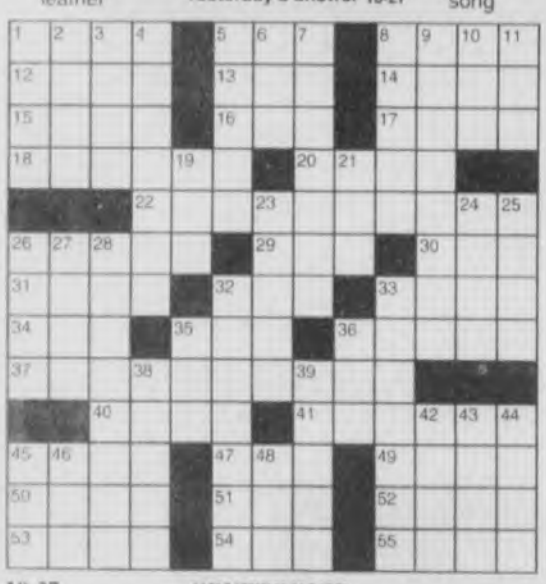
Rita Colwell will speak at the Provost's Lecture Series from 3:30 to 5 p.m. today in the Hemisphere Room in Hale Library.

The Hocus Pocus Children's Carnival is from 4:30 to 6 tonight at the Union Courtyard.

Entries for the Student Photography Contest are due at 4 p.m. today in the UPC office in the K-State Student Union.

Xtreme Tanning
Bring this ad in for a FREE sample when tanning!
1122 Laramie 539-3742

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 As well
5 Min. fraction
8 Belligerent deity
12 "— et mon droit" (British royal motto)
13 Afternoon social
14 Miles of film
15 "Consarn it all!"
16 Wapiti
17 Mountain goat
18 Polygraph component
20 Jacob's brother
22 Serving to embellish
26 Saunter
29 Fade out
30 Place-kicker's pride
31 Unfriendly
32 "The Simpsons" network
33 Prepares leather
34 Greek mountain
35 Energy
36 Small spot of land
37 Serving to embellish
40 Gordius's poser
41 Deadly
45 "Phooey!"
47 — polloi
49 Organism's body
50 Aunt Bee's charge
51 Bambi's aunt
52 Squared
53 Borscht maker's need
54 Roulette bet
55 Fax

DOWN
1 Gets to the bottom of things?
2 Old Italian bread
3 Penn or Connery
4 Surpassed in retailing
5 "King of All Media"
6 Slithery sort
7 Baker's shortcut
8 Birdlike
9 Counterargument
10 Prior to
11 Clinton's instrument
19 Mined-over matter
21 Bishopric
23 Take as one's own
24 Top-notch
25 For fear that
26 Alkali neutralizer
27 Fashion
28 Formal
32 Kind of pillow
33 Sleeping-sickness carriers
35 Expert
36 Adjective suffix
38 Beginning
39 Trojan War epic
42 Steer a ship a certain way
43 Congregational call
44 Crow's-nest cry
45 Filch
46 Mimic
48 "A Chorus Line" song

Solution time: 25 mins.

Yesterday's answer 10-27

10-27 CRYPTOQUIP

L R K U K E A P Q H Z L K V K L K Y L Q H K Z O K U Y B R Z J P K Y K U L N B Z V W A L K V L R K J N W O Z U "E K A P B R Z P V K P."

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF YOU FOLLOW A COCKTAIL WITH A DIFFERENT DRINK, I GUESS YOU MIGHT CHASE MANHATTAN.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: E equals W

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time, but hey, it's better than lecture

The truth behind horror films

THE BLAIR WITCH PROJECT

Myth: The film is based on a documentary by four student filmmakers who then disappeared.

Status: False

The legend of the Blair Witch was invented by the film's writer/directors and hired three young actors, explained the outline of the story, gave them character advice and dropped them off in the woods.

The actors received notes and supplies and a Global Positioning System (GPS) device for tracking purposes, which gave the film the real documentary feel.

The students give interviews to this day, so there is no way they were killed by the Blair Witch.

THE TEXAS CHAINSAW MASSACRE

Myth: The film was based on a true story.

Status: Sort of

The director said the main character, Leatherface, was based on Ed Gein, a Wisconsin farmer who robbed graves, allegedly engaged in necrophilia and cannibalism and murdered at least two women in the 1950s. One of the corpses was supposedly found hanging naked, decapitated and disemboweled, in Gein's residence.

Police later discovered the remains of 15 different mutilated female bodies in his farmhouse, mostly skin and bones that had been made into drums, bowls, masks, bracelets, purses, knife sheaths, leggings, chairs, lampshades and shirts.

Gein was supposedly also the inspiration for Psycho because of the relationship he had with his mother.

POLTERGEIST

Myth: A large number of unusual deaths have occurred to the former cast of the Poltergeist trilogy.

Status: True

There have been four deaths among the cast of the trilogy. Dominique Dunne, who played older sister Dana Freeling; Heather O'Rourke, who played the main character, Carol Ann Freeling; Will Sampson, Taylor, a good spirit; and Julian Beck, Kane, the evil spirit.

Dominique Dunne, 22, died in 1982, four days after her boyfriend choked her into a coma.

O'Rourke, 12, died of septic shock in 1988. She went into cardiac arrest on the way to the hospital because of a bowel obstruction and died on the operating table after trying to remove the obstruction.

Julian Beck, 60, died of stomach cancer in 1985 and had been battling cancer for 18 months.

Will Sampson, 53, died after receiving a lung transplant in 1987. The cause of death was pre-operative malnutrition and post-operative kidney failure and fungal infection. It has been said he knew his chances for survival were slim.

This has been referred to as the "curse" of "Poltergeist."

THE EXORCIST

Myth: The film is based on a boy who was really possessed and the spirit of the Devil was exorcised from him.

Status: Never been determined

Some people say it was just a movie, others say it is based on the real account of a young boy named Robbie, 13, who was allegedly possessed with by the Devil.

In January 1949, the family of the boy began to hear scratching noises in the house, walking in the house and objects were moved without explanation. Robbie's bed began to shake and his blankets and sheets were torn from the bed.

As his family grew desperate, they went to the Catholic Church in Mount Rainier, Md., and contacted a priest. The boy supposedly spoke to the priest in Latin, a language he didn't know.

He was admitted to the Georgetown hospital, where the exorcism was performed. He became violent, thrashed about and spoke in tongues. The area around his room was fine, but inside was always ice cold.

After it was performed, he was believed to be normal and his family moved to St. Louis. Unfortunately, the events continued, one of which, a stool was seen flying across the room. Scratches were apparently all over the boy's body and words such as, spite and hell were scratched into his skin. They finally completed the exorcism in the Catholic Church and Robbie was supposedly cured. The priests kept a diary of the incidents, and supposedly became a novel and the inspiration for the film.

Sources: www.snopes.com and www.prairieghosts.com/exorcist.

Art: Courtesy photos

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Tuesday, Oct. 25

- Kelly Knutson, Wamego, Kan., was arrested at 6:50 a.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $500.
- Joshua Ohlmeier, Wamego, Kan., was arrested at 12:26 p.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $750.
- Mark Lawrence, 4440 Tuttle Creek Blvd., Lot 103, was arrested at 2:15 p.m. for violation of protective order. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Tonya Moffett, 6240 Partridge Lane, Apt. 75, was arrested at 3:15 p.m. for theft. Bond was set at $500.
- Manfred Davis, 3000 Tuttle Creek Blvd., Apt. 208, was arrested at 4 p.m. for manufacturing of drug paraphernalia, unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $2,000.
- Stephen Levier, 1120 Yuma St., was arrested at 5 p.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $750.
- Donald Roach, Wichita, was arrested at 6:35 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Curtis Baumbach Jr., 1000 Bertrand St., was arrested at 6:55 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $1,560.

Wednesday, Oct. 26

- Chase Scott, 1729 Pierre St., was arrested at 3 a.m. for possession of marijuana, unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia and DUI. Bond was set at $2,250.
- Sheldon Burch, Clay Center, Kan., was arrested at 3:11 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- Konza Prairie Chamber Players will perform at 7:30 tonight in All Faiths Chapel.
- The Lutheran Student Fellowship will meet from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. Oct. 30 in the Big 12 Room.
- The Graduate School Open Forum for electronic thesis, dissertations and reports is from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. today in the Union Little Theatre.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Rent 1 Movie or Video Game Get 1 1/2 Off
expires: 11-15-05
706 N. 11th 776-6959 Digital Shelf

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Fat's BAR & GRILL
Thursdays
$2.00 bottles
$3.50 fishbowls
12th & Laramie
Aggieville

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Boobs Are Worth Fighting For Purchase T-shirts at Porter's & O'Malley's
Oct. 27, 28, & 29
Proceeds go to American Cancer Society
RELAY FOR LIFE of KSU

Porter's
50¢ Taco's Hard & Soft
$1.50 Any Pint on Tap
$3.00 Jager bombs
$3.00 Red Bull & Vodka
706 N. Manhattan • 553-7715

O'Malley's ALLEY
$1.75 Dom. Pints
$2.00 Boulevard Pints
$2.00 Btls. & Wells
• Pizza by the Slice
1210 Moro • 537-0775

shout outs
are coming
November 9
to the Classifieds section
of the Collegian.
Check out our table in the Union for one FREE SHOUT OUT coupon!
Nov. 7,8,9
11 a.m. - 1 p.m.
$2 Guarantees YOU a voice in the Collegian!

Jardine program earns national honor

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A 1950s-style diner, bicycle obstacle course and car-repair demonstration made one K-State event such a hit that it earned a national award.

Car and Bike Night, an educational program at Jardine Apartments, was the best educational program at a college or university in September, according to the National Residence Hall Honorary.

A Jardine staff member submitted a report on the event, and it competed against hundreds of other entries from across the nation to win the honor, said Craig Wanklyn, fifth year student in architectural engineering and area coordinator at Wiley Apartments.

"It won first at the local, then at the regional and national levels to get the award," Wanklyn said.

The program was judged on whether a need was addressed, whether the program had a long-lasting effect on residents and whether it was original or a creative take on a traditional program.

"Their program was really well-written," said Rachel Trowbridge, vice president of K-State NRHH. "It brought a lot of different people together in that community and was sort of a different spin on that type of program."

Car and Bike Night also helped keep Jardine residents safe, Wanklyn said.

"We have a lot of international students and a lot of children, so we thought it was important to focus on car and bike safety," Wanklyn said.

About 100 residents gathered on Sept. 30 and learned basic car repair techniques, such as changing the oil and checking tires, in preparation for winter.

A bicycle police officer taught residents and their children about helmets and bicycle safety. They also learned to check bike pads and brakes.

"It's good because the kids might go out there and go crazy on their bikes, and not realize something is broken," Wanklyn said.

Staff members created a 50s-style diner in Thomas J. Frith Community Center at Jardine, and helped kids build model cars.

One staff member brought out his classic car for the event.

"A lot of the kids hadn't seen anything like the diner or the old-style cars," Wanklyn said. "It was a lot of fun."

5 students receive design awards

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Katie Lester | COLLEGIAN
Philip Korthanke, junior in architecture, uses Powerpoint to demonstrate his design for a Konza Prairie Research Natural Area visitor and educational center Wednesday in the Pierce Commons in Seaton Hall.

Five third-year architecture students presented their designs for a Konza Prairie Research Natural Area Visitor's and Learning Center Wednesday afternoon.

In Seaton Hall's Pierce Commons, Whang Jin Suh, Philip Korthanke, Betsy Pribula, Ondrej Strejcek and Joseph Vessell presented models, drawings and digital slide shows of their projects to a five-member jury in the seventh annual Bowman Design Forum.

Two levels of achievement and scholarship money were awarded to the students. Jin Suh, Pribula and Vessell received $700 scholarships. Korthanke and Strejcek received $250 scholarships.

Each student represented one of each of the five third-year architecture studios, Patrick Rhodes, assistant professor of architecture, said. Some presenters were voted upon and others were chosen by the professor and visiting critics, Korthanke said.

All third-year architecture students worked on this five-week project to develop a type of visitor's center for the Konza Prairie, Rhodes said.

"It's a problem and each student is charged with coming up with a solution," said Diane Potts, assistant to the dean of the College of Architecture, Planning and Design.

Approaches to the building depended on the studio professor, Rhodes said. Different professors stressed sustainability, how the building framed the landscape or the spiritual aspect of the building with the prairie.

"In some ways it was a study of the environment," he said.

Korthanke said he designed his building to flow with the Flint Hills. It stepped down a hill in a way that related to the landscape, he said.

The five students chosen to present represented the most complete projects from the studios, Rhodes said.

The jury included two visiting judges, Mitchell Hall and Marianne McKenna, of the Toronto, Canada, Kuwabara Payne McKenna Blumberg Architects. Following the presentations, Hall and McKenna gave a lecture, "KPMB: Architectural Innovation in the Canadian Context," in Forum Hall.

Before the forum, the five student presenters, their studio professors and the judges went to the Konza Prairie and ate lunch with forum sponsor and local architect Brent Bowman of the architecture firm Bowman Bowman Novick, Inc.

Library software helps Manhattan residents with physical disabilities

By Lola Shrimplin
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Because of Arnold Levenson's age, he can't see well.

He said his sight loss prevents him from completing daily tasks like reading.

But with the help of the Manhattan Public Library's Assistive Technology Center, Levenson and Manhattan residents benefit from the use of disability software.

Levenson, a World War II veteran, uses library software that enables him to read the daily newspaper and use the Internet.

People with visual and physical disabilities like Levenson have several choices for technology assistance, including the Assistive Technology Center and K-State's Adaptive Technology Center located on the second floor of Hale Library.

The Assistive Technology Center at the Manhattan Public Library, 629 Poyntz Ave., specializes in one on one training, and schedules appointments to assist patrons from the area.

"If you want training, then that is something you come to the center for," Ann Pearce, supervisor of the Assistive Technology Center, said.

Levenson said since he is older, he visits the library regularly and is learning how to type more efficiently at the center, which has existed for six years.

Manhattan Public Library worked with the City of Manhattan, Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, Southwestern Bell, the Chamber of Commerce and Hale Library to create the center.

The Assistive Technology Center is equipped with three workstations, all of which assist people who are visually or mobile-disabled. The center features numerous computer and software programs, including voice-activated programs for those with impaired vision or mobility. Other programs use joysticks or Braille.

Levenson said he also uses the talking books section in the basement of Manhattan Public Library. Lists of new books are sent out regularly, and he can listen to the books on tape or compact disc.

"It's a great, great service," Levenson said.

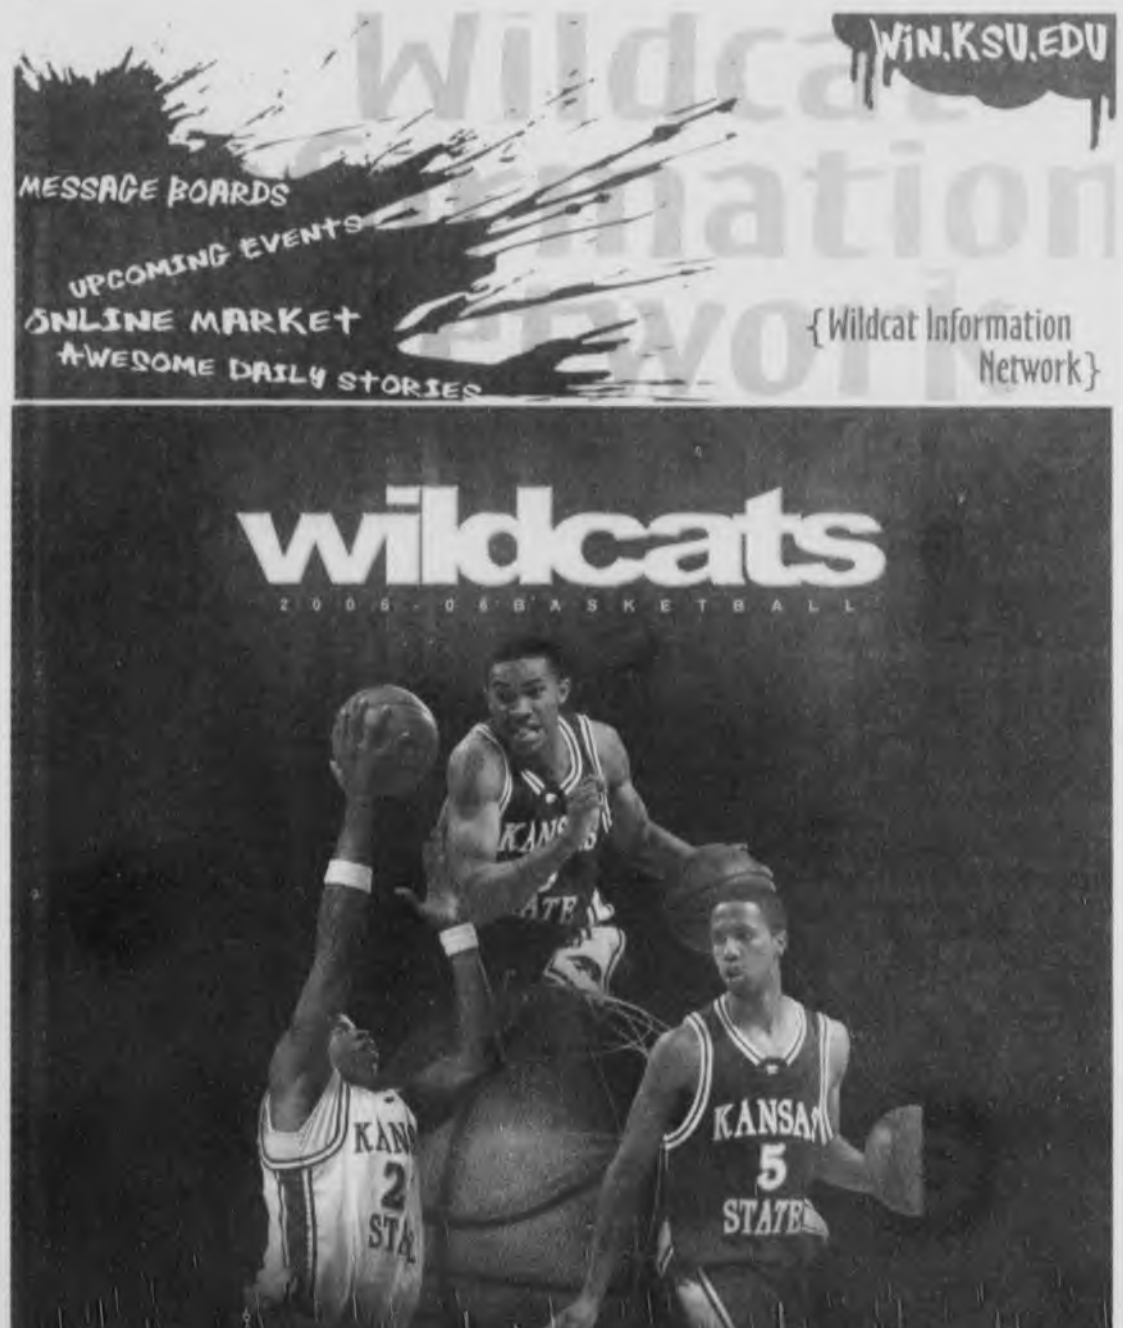
The Adaptive Technology Center, located in Hale Library, also supplies a variety of programs and equipment available for those with disabilities.

The Adaptive Technology Center offers closed caption television, which is designed to enlarge and enhance images and print material. It is connected to a 21-inch monitor.

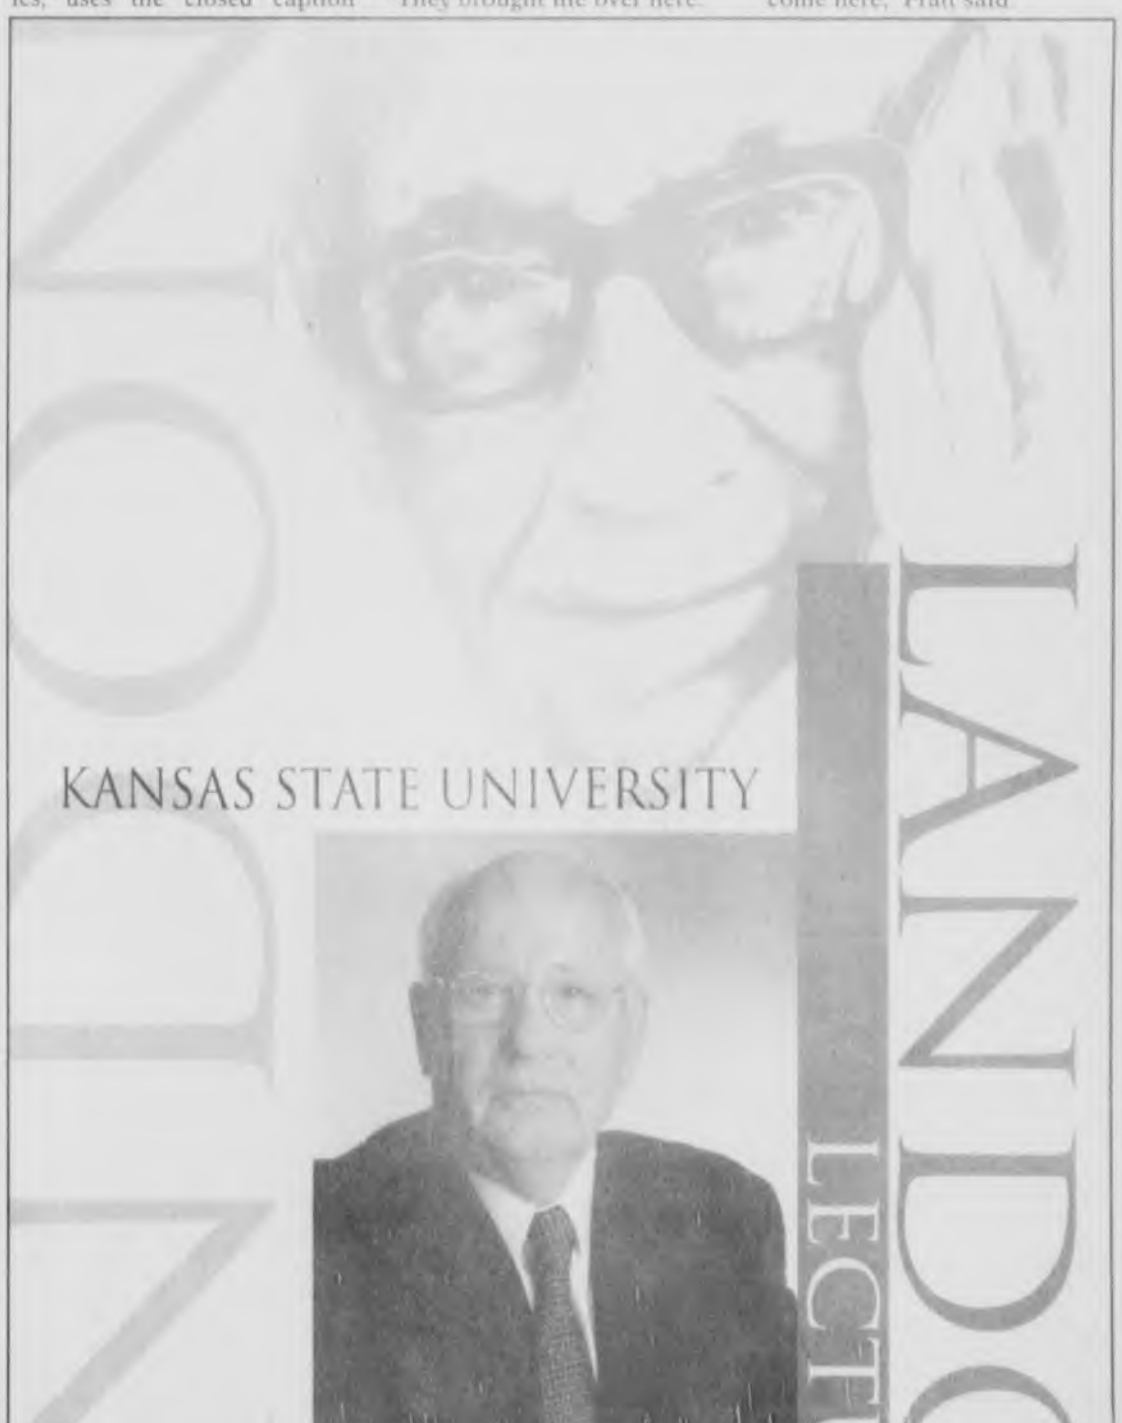
JAWS for Windows is also available at the Adaptive Technology Center. This program, like others offered at the center, allows for research on the Internet, which the program reads aloud.

Jennifer Pratt, junior in physics, uses the closed caption television and text reader programs.

"Every person with a disability goes to DSS (Disability Support Services)," Pratt said. "They brought me over here."



Pratt's eyes are light-sensitive, and she uses the center every day, she said.



"I can't grab my textbook and do my homework, so I come here," Pratt said.

Common accommodations for people with disabilities

- Accessible parking or accessible public transit stop nearby — 19 percent
- Need for an elevator — 17 percent
- Adaptations to work station — 15 percent
- Special work arrangements (reduction in work hours, reduced or part-time hours, job redesign) — 12 percent
- Handrails or ramp — 10.4 percent
- Job Coach — 5.6 percent
- Specific office supplies — 4.5 percent
- Personal Assistant — 4 percent
- Braille, enlarged print, special lighting or audio-tape — 2.5 percent
- Voice synthesizer, TTY, Infrared System, or other technical device — 1.8 percent
- Reader, Oral or Sign Language Interpreter — 1.8 percent

Source: Department of Labor

TO THE POINT

Increasing fees not the answer to funding issue

Student Senate is convening to discuss increasing the privilege fee for University Counseling Services.

Counseling Services is important to campus, and we must maintain high standards and wages to keep qualified personnel from leaving.

However, charging students more money seems a poor way to address this problem.

Student Senate seems keen on adopting the "more money" solution to many problems on campus. However, we must examine our priorities.

Certainly, Counseling Services is something worth preserving on campus. But the challenge should fall onto the Senate to find money for the program rather than simply increasing the "privilege tax" each student must to pay.

If such necessities as Counseling Services need funding why do we continue to dicker over luxuries like parking garages and activities centers? What programs could be reduced to provide for Counseling Services?

The "tax and spend" pattern of our student government should not inspire confidence, and as potential future political leaders, we should hope this is not an accurate forecast of our political future.

The Student Senate should not take the easier, more expensive, route out of this problem. It is time for them to roll up their sleeves and do some good old-fashioned brain storming and number crunching.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF	Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR	Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF	Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR	Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR	Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR	Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR	Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR	Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH	Brad Simmons AD MANAGER	Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Sense of self

Retaining own identity important when dating

LAUREN ROHRER

Here's the scenario: you're out with your friends having a good time. Everyone seems happy and for one brief, shining moment, there is no drama. And then, crushing the serenity of the evening, comes my biggest pet peeve of all time.

They show up. The "they" I am referring to is that irritatingly in love couple we all know. May this column serve as cautionary for those of you who are in relationships and do not wish your friends to despise your existence.

For starters, I believe it is possible to be in a relationship without sacrificing yourself. For example, if you constantly hear yourself making statements like, "We can't make it tonight," or "We don't like that bar," then your relationship has completely taken over your identity.

If you are in a relationship like this, then it is very likely your friends have already made you aware (that's what they're there for). If they haven't, then I can guarantee you have annoyed your single friends at one time or another.

Not to worry, with a little effort, this behavior can be modified.

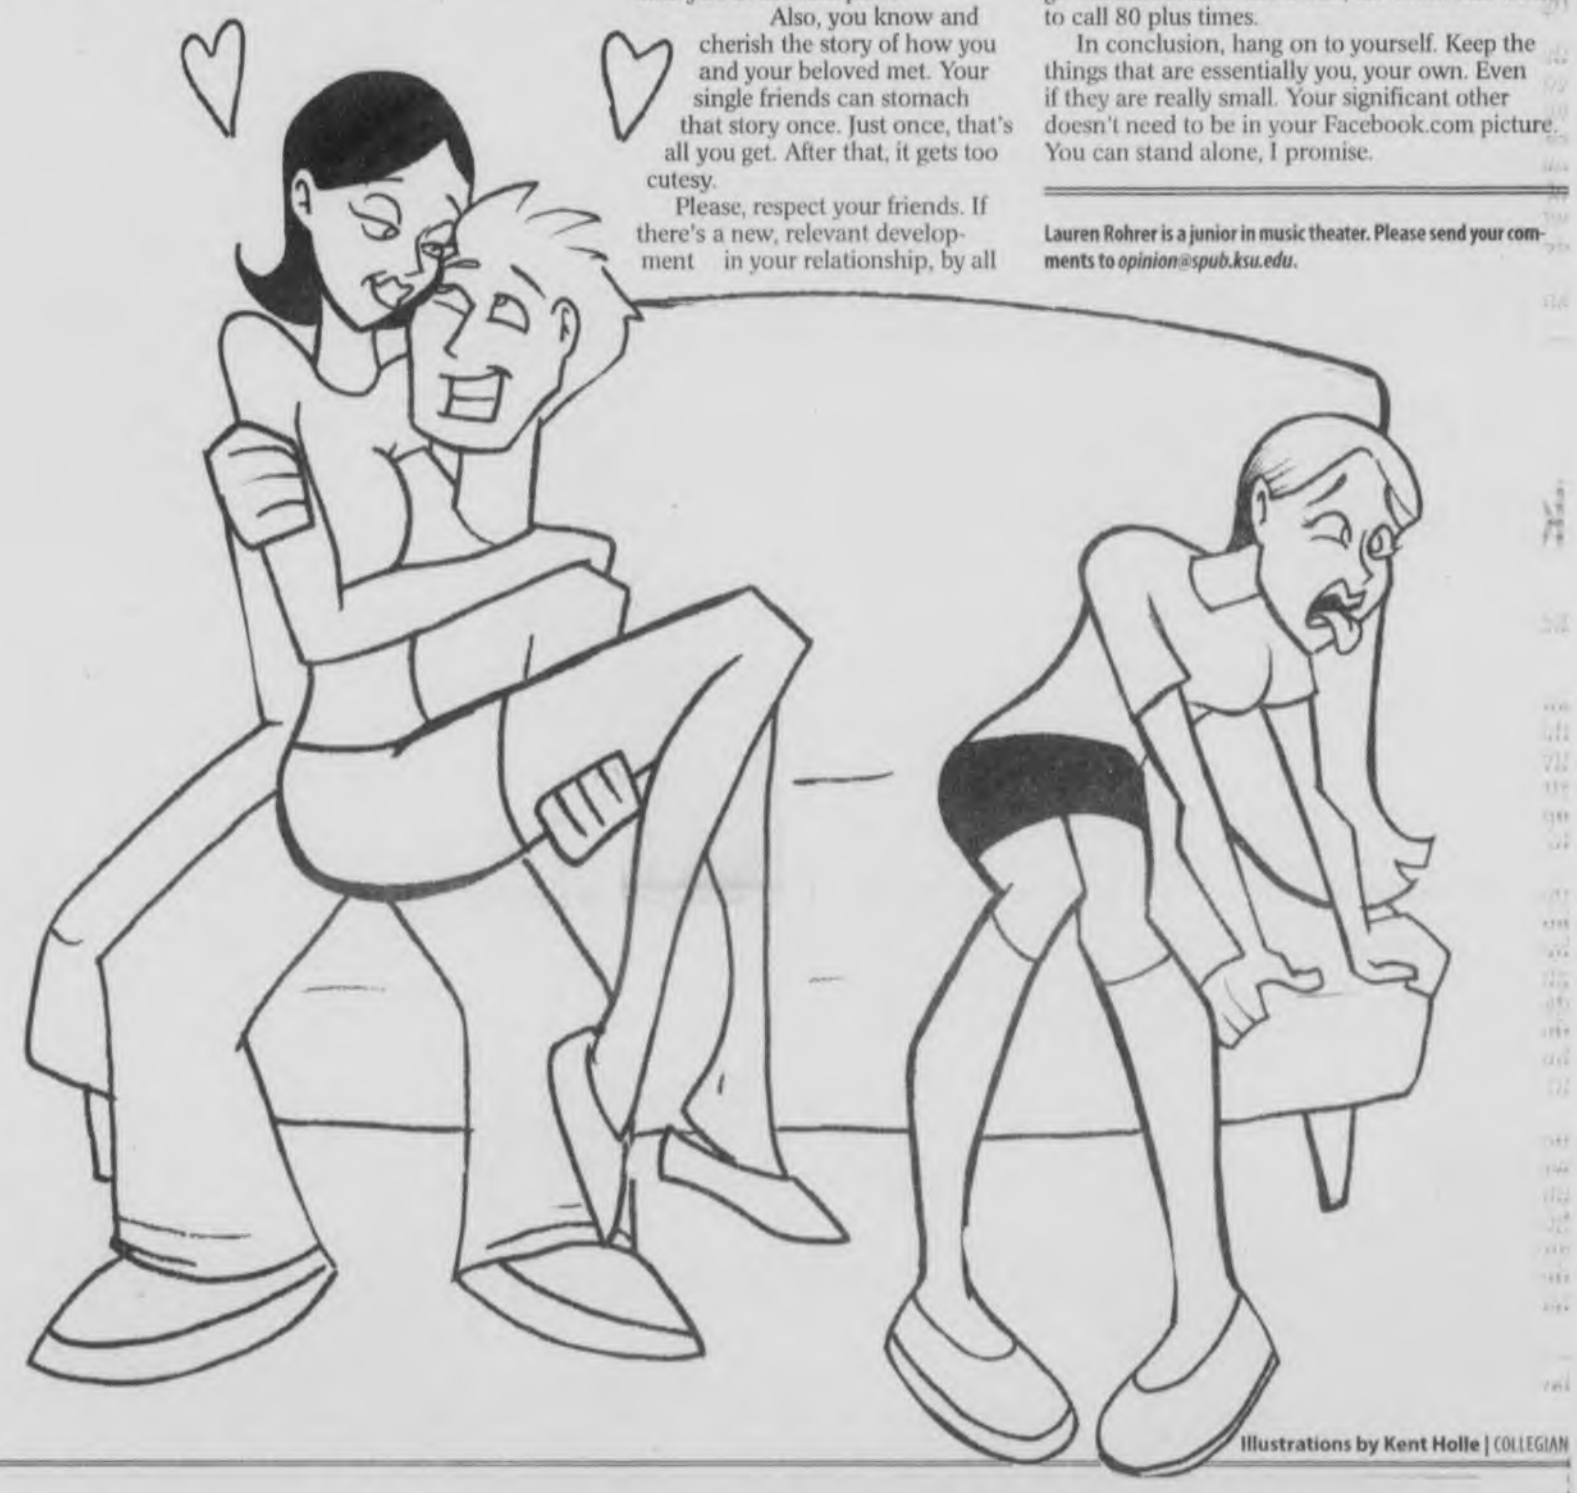
First, you must understand that even though your relationship may be one of the most important things in your life, it's not the only thing in your life.

Maintain your activities and interests. There's nothing more irritating than someone who has nothing to talk about other than his or her relationship. You shouldn't sacrifice everything that was entertaining for you while you were single just because you are in a relationship now. There is a balance, and remember, there's also a reason why that someone decided to date you in the first place.

Also, you know and cherish the story of how you and your beloved met. Your single friends can stomach that story once. Just once, that's all you get. After that, it gets too cutesy.

Please, respect your friends. If there's a new, relevant development in your relationship, by all means, spill away. When it comes to discussing your relationship, less is more.

Another thing that may irritate your friends is introducing them to the ridiculous pet names in your relationship. This is one that speaks personally to me. I have had to suffer through my good friend referring to her boyfriend Seth as "Seth-Let" for about two weeks now.



As a single girl (or human, for that matter) I find this nauseating. It's not difficult. If your guy's name is Shane, call him that. There is no need to refer to him as "Snugly Shane" or "Shane Bear."

Now, if you really want to distance yourself from the old ball and chain, I would try a night out. Enjoy hanging out with your buddies. But here's the catch. You absolutely must leave your cell phone at home.

I know, it's a crazy concept. But it seems to me that when people in these kinds of relationships go out minus their other half, the other half tends to call 80 plus times.

In conclusion, hang on to yourself. Keep the things that are essentially you, your own. Even if they are really small. Your significant other doesn't need to be in your Facebook.com picture. You can stand alone, I promise.

Lauren Rohrer is a junior in music theater. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Kent Holle | COLLEGIAN

Torture, disrespect lose-lose situation

ZACHARY T. ECKELS

One of the hardest lessons I've learned is to not lower myself to someone else's level. It's one of the most frustrating things in the world to have a cocky adversary constantly crossing the line while you must remain calm.

Difficult as it may be, our military must learn this lesson immediately.

The line we must no longer continue to cross is one we should all be proud to be a part of. Last revised on Aug. 12, 1949, the Geneva Conventions let us know exactly where that lower level lies.

Sadly, another instance of soldiers blatantly ignoring these treaties made national headlines this week. Australian photojournalist Stephen Dupont captured the burning of two deceased Taliban fighters due to the smell of their rotting bodies.

The problem with this action is that the first Geneva convention states "bodies shall not be cremated except for imperative reasons of hygiene or for motives based on the religion of the deceased."

While cremating the bodies – which is banned under Islam, – may be considered a good hygiene reason, the soldiers seemed to actually work on crossing that line.

The bodies of both Muslim men were burned facing west (toward Mecca). For Muslims this position is reserved to pray five times a day, not to be desecrated facing their god.

The soldiers continued to make matters worse as they then drove Humvees, with loudspeakers, into the city. A Psychological-Operations team announced what had just taken place and called the Taliban "cowardly dogs" for not retrieving the bodies.

Obviously, this isn't the first time such an event has occurred.

Our military has used various tactics of torture and mistreatment of the prisoners and dead bodies from this war.

It is imperative we remember during these times that torture only leads to false information. In a situation of immense pain, a prisoner will say anything to make it stop. This goes for both conventional and nonconventional wars.

Instead of putting a quick end to all questions about America's view on torture, we are now wasting time debating it in Congress.

A provision that would ban "cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment" of anyone being held by the U.S. government seems too restrictive for the current administration.

Yes, our vice president, Dick Cheney is actually arguing that our president should exempt covert agents from outside the Defense Department from the Senate approved ban on torturing detainees.

Luckily, my favorite Republican has stepped up to the plate and is being the voice of reason in this discussion.

Sen. John McCain, himself an ex-prisoner of war, is leading the charge against the exemption.

Right now, America needs to sit down and realize torture is a lose-lose situation.

The world will hate us even more than it already does and we won't be getting anything out of it.

Zachary T. Eckels is a junior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Can a man with no hands throw a fit? Think about it.

Can a man with no feet kick it with you? Think about it.

Lug nut. Fixed it.

Bill Snyder is old school like Nintendo and Atari. We need to upgrade to PS3 and XBox 360. Chunk him. He sucks.

Hey Lola, Webster's dictionary defines selfishness as "seeking or concentrating on one's own advantage, pleasure or well-being without regard for others." So by definition, killing another human that's inside your womb is selfish.

Volunteer military, dead soldiers. At least they were able to choose.

Some comments in the Fourum make me wish I was pro-choice.

Stop complaining about what our leader is doing. Would you rather have an anti-war billboard picturing thousands and thousands of dead Americans as a result of terrorist attacks?

OK girls — October has hit; it's time to put away the short shorts and mini skirts. We all know you just want the guys' attention. Cover up some skin and show a little class instead.

To my cute neighbor who finally broke her silence by saying "hi." Thanks, you make my day.

Tip of the day: don't eat a footlong from Subway before going to yoga and doing the seated spinal twist, it will do you in.

After seeing how ugly those babies are after they're born, that so makes me want to get an abortion instead.

Those with a choice keep killing our military before it has a chance to grow up. Just a thought.

To all those anti-abortionist individuals who support the grotesque displays on campus. If you're pro-sex, does that mean you should have porn plastered all over the quad?

All humans have the right to be alive — even unborn humans. Therefore, the only time abortion might be appropriate is if the mother's life is at risk due to pregnancy complications.

To the anti-abortion protesters, what were you guys thinking scheduling your protest during senior day? I'm sure the 50 pictures of dead fetuses really made them want to come to KSU. Next time you want to force your beliefs on people do a little more research. Congratulations on increasing KU admissions.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Couples, victims should have options

Editor,

The victims of sex crimes should be given every possible means of birth control, starting with emergency contraception at the hospital and finally abortion if all else fails or was medically unavailable.

If abortion is necessary or desired as a result of a sex crime, this is certainly a choice a woman should have available. It is not for you or I to decide.

Abortion should be available but not a primary means of birth control.

Couples engaging in sex should address this issue before hopping between the sheets.

Eight years ago I tried to support my wife when she got pregnant despite using birth control. Abortion is a touchy subject, and I was a firm believer in "It's my body," so I left the decision to her. She chose to terminate, and I supported her.

I should have said something, but I was trying to do the right thing. "It's my body" seemed like a logical stance on abortion. It's not. I'm not talking about men controlling women. The couple decided to get into bed together, why shouldn't it be a consensual decision of how to proceed?

Two people caused the situation, two people need to resolve it.

The bottom line is, you fit in one of the two categories above. Either sex was consensual or it wasn't.

If you regret it the morning after, I'm sorry, it was consensual and now you must be responsible for the possible consequences. If someone slipped something in your drink or otherwise forced you, why haven't you called 911?

Keith L. Kovala
SENIOR IN ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

Self-defense takes commitment

Editor,

For almost four years I have been a member of the K-State Aikido Club. I was a little upset when I read the article "Several ways for students to defend themselves" (Friday, Oct. 21), which prominently features our club. Primarily because the article conveys a terribly distorted picture of what Aikido is.

The article mixes quotes from some of our members with advice given by a random Web site. The advice given there – namely kicking the groin and poking the eyes – is crude and poor, has nothing to do with Aikido and can often be counter-productive, as it may turn ambivalent situations openly violent.

The art of Aikido is deeply pacifistic. Aikido aims to develop skills to nonviolently control your body, and the body of an opponent, not just to "win fights," but to build character and to develop personality, superiority and ultimately to defeat violence itself.

Kicking groins and poking eyes has nothing to do with Aikido. Self-defense isn't learned from a webpage. It takes commitment and constant work.

The picture, with the guy in black, getting his jewels kneed by a smiling girl, does not show what Aikido looks like. If you are really interested, go to www.k-state.edu/aikido/, or even better, drop by class. That should give you a more accurate idea of what Aikido is about.

Please be more careful with your research and about how faithful the picture is which you convey.

Georg Jung
GRADUATE STUDENT IN COMPUTER AND INFORMATION SCIENCES

Individuals should make own decision

Editor,

Frankly, the abortion issue is no issue at all. Why is it the business of the entire country whether abortion is morally right or wrong?

There is no other cause for this other than politics and votes for our legislators. The morality question is one that each one of us must answer for ourselves. Just like the question of morality for every woman who has ever had to make a decision such as abortion.

Abortion is a highly personal and difficult thing for anyone who has ever had to even entertain the notion. It is not a topic to simply be debated and legislated in the belly of Capitol Hill, nor one to be cheered and jeered in a public forum like it has been recently on our campus.

I will never support the gross perversion that has been brought on our campus by special interest groups trying to shock us all into "education." There is no education in a 30-foot tower full of pictures of bloody humanity.

Nor is there education in zealous argument over something as deeply personal as abortion is, calling people names and generalizing the beliefs of individuals into a neat little package that fits into someone's idea of who and what the object of your opposition is.

These kinds of things help neither our country nor the First Amendment.

All it serves to do is to divide us and to make it easier for those that would try, to destroy us.

Matthew Cooper
SOPHOMORE IN BUSINESS MARKETING

Reproductive freedom a privilege

Editor,

I, too, had some issues with Lola Shrimplin's article in Monday's paper.

Reproductive freedom isn't a privilege? About 6 years ago, a friend of mine was told she would not be able to have children due to a chromosomal disorder she has. I challenge anyone to try telling her that reproductive freedom isn't a privilege.

Her future for having children is dependent on a young woman having the courage to take responsibility for her actions and carrying her baby to term. Also, I wonder if she really believes that 99.9 percent of reasons for abortion have nothing to do with selfishness. Take a look at the train of thought being displayed in pro-choice arguments – you don't have the right to tell me what to do with my body.

What they need to realize is that when you're pregnant, it's not just your body anymore. You have a little person growing inside you. He's got a beating heart, brain-waves and a body full of little internal organs.

He even has fingerprints.

Some vegetarians say they can't eat meat because it used to be an animal with a face. Look at the pictures in the Justice for All display. That's a little person with a face. How can his right to live be so flippantly taken away from him?

The basis of maternal instinct is her looking out for the well-being of her offspring. Well, one of the most helpless states your offspring will ever be in is in utero. If his mother is not going to protect him, who will?

Megan Duffy
JUNIOR IN ANIMAL SCIENCE

Abortion display not keeping with Christianity

Editor,

Warning: Jesus reference ahead. But before you write this off as another conservative Christian rant and skip straight to the Fourum, listen up. There's a point I'm trying to make here.

So Jesus is walking down the street, minding his own business, when he's confronted by a group of Pharisees, the pious religious right of the day. They caught a woman in the sack with someone else's husband, and they want Jesus to decide her punishment.

Now, Jesus has some options here. He could call the woman a whore and berate her until she's in tears. He could hold her up as an example for anyone else who might even think about committing adultery.

He could have her stoned – that was, after all, what the law dictated.

He could even put up a 50-foot-tall billboard that graphically proclaims the consequences of extra-marital sex. He would have been perfectly justified.

But instead, Jesus simply said, "If anyone here is perfect, then that person can throw the first stone at her."

And to the woman, he said, "You've got to live with what you did, and that's punishment enough. Now go home and don't do it again." See, Jesus realized something.

He realized that we all might be better off if we spent a little less time worrying about other people's faults and a little more time worrying about our own. He realized that sometimes the best way to get through to people is just to love them. Smart guy, that Jesus.

Austin Meek
JUNIOR IN PUBLIC RELATIONS

A reminder about individual health insurance.
A "What looks good to you?" reminder.
A Health Savings Account combined with a High Deductible Health Plan from American Family may lower your premiums and allow you the freedom to decide how and where to spend your health care dollars—while the dollars you don't spend accumulate tax-free. To learn more, call your American Family agent today. So you can check health insurance off your list, and off your mind.
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE

Tim Engle Agency Inc
3320 Anderson Ave
(785) 539-9200 Bus
Manhattan, KS 66503
tengle@amfam.com

RAMBLERS
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner-2 complete dinners
$1.75 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

Advertise
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
118 KEDZIE • 532-6560

CATCH!
Collegian Gameday every Friday before home games.

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 MORO
Manhattan 776-8770
$1.50 WELLS/DRAWS
OPEN FOR HALLOWEEN ON MONDAY
$500 CASH PRIZE FOR 1ST PLACE IN COSTUME CONTEST

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS
for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm
Students' Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 3:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request.

Fright Night
2005-06 BASKETBALL
Thursday, October 27
Bramlage Coliseum
Doors Open at 6pm for trick-or-treating KIDS, COME EARLY FOR A FREE T-SHIRT!
OCTOBER 27, 2005
WILLIE WONKA & THE WILDCATS
FRIGHT NIGHT IO
For More Info: 1.800.221.CATS
WAL★MART Always

OVER STOCKED SALE
Beer Guys Delivered Too Much Beer
Our Loss Your Gain!

PBR Light Suit Cases	$7.99
Miller High Life 30 Pack Cans	$10.85
Natural Light 30 Pack Cans	$10.99
Bud and Bud Light 30 Pack Cans	$14.99
Celebrate Our Win With Andre Champagne 750 ML (Save $1)	$2.99

Quantity Discounts Available - While Quantities Last
Check out Web Specials at www.537wine.biz
On Sale This Week
Barton, Viaka, Nova Vodka 1.75L $8.99 Save $1.00
Everyday Low Prices

Yellow Tail 1.5 L	$10.99	Yellow Tail 750 ML	$5.99
Mondavi 1.5 L	$11.99	Kendal Jackson Chard	$11.99
Columbia Crest 1.5 L	$12.99	Hogue LH Resling	$9.99
Clos Du Bois 1.5 L	$17.99	Marco Negri	$14.99
Cavit 1.5 L	$11.99	Toasted Head Chard	$12.99
Bolla 1.5 L	$12.99	Relax Resling	$7.49

Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child - Next to Home Depot 537-9463
For more info Go to www.537wine.biz

Fair helps students choose major

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

At the geology booth, Lesley Ostmeyer, sophomore in open-option, signs up to receive more information about the major during the Academic Majors Fair on Wednesday afternoon at the K-State Student Union.

Booths provide information, showcase different majors offered

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Many students face a question they don't know how to answer: What is your major?

With the availability of open-option, students can put off deciding right away what they want to study. But eventually they have to choose.

The K-State Academic Majors Fair gave students an opportunity to look more intently at possible majors, secondary majors and minors.

"It's helpful for those undecided on which major they want," John Schulte, junior in elementary education, said.

Schulte, an education ambassador, directed students upon arrival at the fair.

"It's very informative and good for students to talk to the representatives from different majors," he said.

Booths were set up for a range of majors. Other booths featured University Counseling Services, Housing and Dining Services and UFM.

Mike Higgins, senior in mathematics, volunteered at the mathematics major booth and encouraged students to consider mathematics as a potential major.

"Math is another way to think about the world, to deduce conclusions," he said. "I like to spread the methodology of math."

Students entered door prize drawings as well, with prizes from area merchants.

Justin Atwood, freshman in open-option, attended the fair for his university experience class.

"I'm also trying to figure out a major," he said. "I'm thinking about history."

Some students knew exactly what they want to do, and gave others advice and information.

Admissions officer and 1st Lt. Jameson Nichols worked the military science booth. He said joining the ROTC program is simple.

"It's as easy as signing up for a class, and it's only five hours a week," he said. "No scholarship is necessary and you're guaranteed a job after four years."

Natalie Del Rosario, sophomore in pre-professional architectural engineering, also likes being a part of ROTC, she said.

"I'm having a blast doing both (engineering and ROTC)," Rosario said. "I don't have that worry that many students have about finding a job after college. I have a lot of opportunities."

Other students said they were just as confident in their future. Jamel Wilcox, freshman in computer science, attended the fair for a class but is already certain of his major.

"I plan to work for a big accounting firm eventually," he said. "I'm trying to do things big."

Katelynn Hasler, sophomore in pre-journalism and mass communications, said she enjoys the dance program at K-State.

"I've danced all my life and wanted to continue to do so in college," Hasler said.

Originally a dance major, she recently switched majors and is now a dance minor.

"It's great to be able to dance in college, and even outside of college, at other universities," she said.

Megan Smith, junior in architectural engineering, also chose her major partially based on personal interests.

"I chose to major in architectural engineering because of my interest in both architecture and math," she said.

She plans to earn her master's degree and eventually work in the industry.

Ellie Shoup, on the other hand, said she doesn't know what to major in.

"I'm currently in business, but I'm also interested in working with people," said Shoup, freshman in business administration. "I'm hoping to get a better idea of what's out there."

She said she didn't know about many available majors.

"I've talked to other people who sound like they have really cool majors," Shoup said. "I ask them how they heard about it, but they say that they just kind of figured it out."

Top 10 bachelor's degrees in demand

1. Accounting
2. Electrical engineering
3. Mechanical engineering
4. Business administration/management
5. Economics/finance
6. Computer science
7. Computer engineering
8. Marketing/marketing management
9. Chemical engineering
10. Information sciences and systems

Source: National Association of Colleges and Employers, Job Outlook 2005.

Riley County participates in diversity study

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Race can influence many things.

An ongoing federal government study is analyzing data to determine if race influences teenage crime.

For Riley County, this is an opportunity to understand disproportional minority contact, said Travis Linnemann, area coordinator for the study and graduate student in criminology.

He said DMC refers to the over-representation of minority youth who come into contact with the juvenile justice system relative to their numbers in the general population.

"Kansas has complied with the provisions of that act, and this initiative represents a whole-hearted investigation of DMC as a phenomenon," Linneman said. "It's a collaborated effort between the state, select people that answer to the government and the Kansas Juvenile Justice Authority – basically the mother entity for justice system in the state of Kansas."

Riley is one of three Kansas counties participating in the study. Finney and Sedgwick counties are the other two.

As to why Riley County was selected, Linneman said the area represents a majority of small-town Kansas life.

"Sedgwick and Finney County have a large minority population," he said. "Manhattan offers a different population of a military community and the diversity its brought in. It's a smaller town that best represents Kansas."

The study will be completed by 2007, and Linneman said the study has the possibility of breaking down stereotypes, explaining why juveniles commit crimes and how they handle the court system. Thus far, Linneman said he is surprised most by the decrease in juvenile crime nationally and locally.

Despite juvenile crime being low, some studies state juvenile crime is deeply associated with a teenager's social life, said Randall Shelden, senior research fellow for the Center on Juveniles and Criminal Justice. Schools are a primary location where law enforcement detect juvenile deliquency.

Several studies conducted throughout the country are studying too much in particular areas, Linneman said.

"Schools have often been described as 'day prisons' where U.S. high school students will have to walk by numerous hidden cameras, outdoors and indoors, and go through an institutionalized-size metal detector manned by guards just to get into school each morning," Shelden said.

Once there, students will have to sift through drug-sniffing dogs and locker raid searches to determine who is a possible felon, he said.

However, studies like the one conducted within the county are more constructive, Linneman said.

He also said the study will focus on nine decision-points in the juvenile justice system.

"The initiative is in the community corrections office, but we think it's a really important issue, not just for the juvenile justice system, but for all social issues," Linneman said. "We're happy to be a player in the state and on the federal level. Hopefully it'll be to benefit the community."

LET'S HELP OUR LOCAL CHARITIES.

Please consider a contribution to support our local charities.

THINK GLOBALLY. ACT LOCALLY.

get results. advertise.

Collegian Explore it! kstatecollegian.com

BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
Spend $25 and get a FREE T-shirt
Hours: Sun. - Wed. 11 a.m. - Midnight; Thurs. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St., Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
Free Delivery 537-0886 Fax: 539-9111

Racquet Stringing
All types of Racquets
State of the Art Electric Stringer
Cottonwood Racquet Club
3615 Claflin Rd • 776-6060

Happy Howl-a-ween!
$5 OFF Your First Visit
Bark Avenue Canine Designs
607 N. 11th • Aggieville • 565-0612

Treat yourself... to a relaxing hand & foot treatment.
Buy 1 Get 1 ½ off!
HAYNES Aveda Family Salon
718 ½ N. Manhattan Ave.
539-5512
AVEDA

The Place to make your space Look and Smell Good!
Wild Side
Aggieville 776-2252

Happy Homecoming, K-State!
The Pita Pit • Fresh Thinking • Healthy Eating
KSU
Come in before AND after the game, or call for delivery.
Sun: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. • Mon: 11 a.m.-3 a.m. • Tues-Sat: 11 a.m.-4 a.m. • 537-3995

$1.50 all drinks
Premium, Wells, Calls
ladies & EIGHTIES NIGHT
$2 Shots
20¢ Wings 4-9
$2 Domestic Bottles
Costume Contest
Halloween Night
with live music & DJ
776-3593 • 1127 Moro
Home of the Killer Chicken
JOE'S TAP ROOM

Military couples cope with separation

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Christie and Jay Henning of Fort Riley, Kan., visit with each other Wednesday evening at Bluestem Bistro in Aggieville. The Hennings, who also have two children, have been a military couple for nearly 16 years.

Christie Henning's husband Jay expects to be deployed soon, but it won't be the first time they've had to deal with separation.

He went to Saudi Arabia in 1990 and Korea in 1998. The couple, who lives in Fort Riley, Kan., with their two children, have been dealing with the challenges of a military marriage for almost 16 years.

"When we got married, he had just gotten out of basic and was going into the reserves," she said. "At the time, no war was going on, so we weren't worried. He left for Desert Storm three weeks before our first anniversary."

She said although she was worried about him, she knew he had to go.

"Initially, I didn't want him to go," she said. "Once he left, it was OK, because that was his job."

Henning said her husband's job is not much more dangerous than some other jobs. Her father was a police officer in Milwaukee, and she said that has given her a different perspective than most military wives.

"It may sound really cruel and hard-hearted, but when I said goodbye to him, I didn't expect him to come home," she said. "But then when he did, it was a blessing."

Briana Nelson Goff, associate professor of family studies, conducted a study on military marriages. She surveyed and interviewed 50 male soldiers and their female partners.

"Our study focused on understanding the impact of war on soldiers and their spouses," Goff said.

The study found that deployment was one of the most traumatic events in soldiers' lives, as well as in their spouses' lives.

Chaplain Maj. Bob Owen of Fort Leavenworth, Kan., said separation, not danger, is the key source of stress for those in the military.

"Certainly for the guys who go into direct combat in Iraq or Afghanistan, it's more dangerous than, say, delivering mail in central Kansas," he said. "But the vast majority come back without being injured or shot at directly."

Owen, an ordained Presbyterian minister, provides counseling for soldiers and their families both before and after deployment. He said they deal with reunion issues as well as getting back in sync with daily life, especially after a very traumatic incident.

"Sometimes, we begin counseling within hours," he said. "The sooner or closer to the event you can help people, the more long-term healing and the less damage they'll have."

He said young soldiers often have trouble going back to their normal lives.

"You return to Kansas and everything's nice, beautiful, nothing even remotely like Afghanistan," he said. "You have to kind of gear down and realize that people are just getting on with their lives and not experiencing anywhere near what you were. Some young folks have a lot of resentment or some anger about that."

He said they deployment is often difficult for young soldiers, but even those who have been deployed before face new challenges. Owen, a father of eight, struggled when he went to Afghanistan recently.

"I had seen dead people before, but when I saw dead people the ages of my two oldest kids, it had an impact on me," he said. "That actually made it more difficult to be away from them. It gives me a deeper appreciation for life."

Henning said it was more difficult for her when Jay left the second time in 1998, because their children were old enough to miss their father.

"It was tough because you have to be a single parent for the whole time they're gone," Henning said. "When they come back, you have to give them the authority they had before, otherwise you're going to butt heads."

Another Fort Riley family will soon face a missing parent.

Capt. Jamie Peer and her husband, 1st Lt. Mark Peer, both serve in the army. Though they have been deployed before, Mark is preparing to deploy for the first time since they have been together.

"I can't think of a much harder thing than to be dual military and have a successful family," Jamie Peer said. "We're both goal-oriented, so we try to give both careers equal attention, but then we also want to spend as much time as possible with the kids."

The couple, both K-State graduates, have two children, ages 2 1/2 and 4 months.

"To kids, a year seems like five years," Peer said. "I know they'll be fine, but it's just the day-in, day-out stuff. They'll say, 'Where's Daddy?' And I'll tell them, 'He's at work far away. He'll be back.'"

Students spend late nights on campus completing art projects

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Passers-by did not exist to four drawing students in Hale Library last night. The other people just moved too much.

Each of them was working on a perspective drawing, which uses lines that converge on a single "vanishing point" to illustrate depth. They drew things that stayed put while the traffic did not register.

Some had chosen the hall themselves, others had it assigned specifically.

"I have this due tomorrow," Meryl Wallace, sophomore in graphic design, said from her corner on the west side of the hallway.

She said she felt safe working late at K-State because she lives close to campus.

Wallace was using graphite pencils to map out the lines of the wall's structure. She said she was limited to the physical makeup because of the absence of sunlight that normally pours in through the large windows on the library's south side.

"You can't really make it up, so I'm coming back tomorrow to get the lights," she said.

Jeff Ballantine, sophomore in secondary education, sat in the opposite corner of the room.

"I tried to get the lights done first, now I'm just filling in stuff," he said.

Ballantine said the hardest part of perspective drawing is getting the lines right so they all connect with the vanishing point. He said he'd been working with his charcoals there for the past six hours.

Doug Niccum, sophomore in graphic design, sat about 15 feet away from him, but his perspective was widely different from Ballantine's. He said he was doing his work at night so the lighting would be more simple.

"It's a little bit easier to draw," he said. "You don't have to worry about the light coming through the windows."

Niccum said he'd been working for at least 4 hours, and planned to spend another three.

He said one of the hardest parts of the project was the measurements, because all he had was his pencil to gauge the sizes of things in his view.

"You have to keep on erasing because you aren't going to get it the first time," he said.

Ten feet over, Brady Hatter, sophomore in fine arts, sat close to the doorway by the main desk. He was working with black and white "conte," something he said was like a hard pastel.

Hatter said he enjoyed the work he was doing, even though he had trouble finding time for it sometimes.

"I don't see this as homework," he said.

Read the Gameday edition
Fridays before home games.

Spooktacular SPECIALS
•Kid's Cut - $8.00
•Men's Haircut - $10.00
•All Over Color - $45.00
(Add a cut - $10.00)
•Eyebrow Wax - $6.00
Low Tanning Rates!
Open to the Public!
WholesaleBeautyClub
409 Poyntz · 539-5999

Do yourself a favor, Buy her some flowers.
The prettiest, most FRESH FLOWERS in town. (If we do say so ourselves)
ACMEGIFT
1227 Moro, Aggieville

Shakin' Up Halloween!
Shake's FROZEN CUSTARD
Limited time only: try our Pumpkin Custard
Try our new shake-a-ccinos
Serving Waffle cones Fresh Daily
104.1 special every Monday $1.04 cups and cones
10% OFF WITH K-STATE ID
$1 OFF WITH THIS AD
5th & Ft. Riley Blvd.

Don't Be Caught Looking This Ghostly Halloween
Halloween Giveaway
For every $25 you spend, you're entered in a drawing to win $200 worth of lotion and tanning.
1 Month Tanning Only $31
1 per customer - must present coupon
expires: 11-4-05
1122 Laramie
Aggieville Handicorner
539-3742
Xtreme tanning

BONELESS THURSDAYS
50¢ BonelessWings
1231 Moro
AGGIEVILLE
M-Th 11-12am
Fri/Sat 11-1am
Sunday 11-11pm
BUFFALO WILD WINGS GRILL & BAR

Annual Halloween Costume Contest
$1000 Prize for at least 1st Place
Contest held Halloween Night
Rusty's LAST CHANCE SALOON

New NBA dress code has hint of racism

Starting now, each time you step on campus you are required to wear business casual attire.

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

This means you must wear a long, or short-sleeved dress shirt or a sweater, along with dress slacks, khaki pants or dress jeans.

You must also wear appropriate dress shoes and socks, but not sneakers, sandals, flip-flops or work boots.

How would you feel if K-State required you to follow this policy?

These regulations are part of a new NBA policy enacted by commissioner David Stern, effective once the regular season starts Nov. 1, requiring NBA players to dress up whenever engaged in team or league business.

"The uniform that is being required of NBA players when they are on team business is a pair of slacks or jeans and a shirt with a collar," Stern told ESPN.

The policy also states players cannot wear sleeveless shirts, shorts, T-shirts, jerseys or other sports apparel. Players are banned from wearing headgear of any kind while sitting on the bench or in the stands at a game, during media interviews or during a team or league event.

Chains, pendants and medallions worn over the player's clothes along with headphones and sunglasses while indoors are also banned.

I was stunned when I first heard this, because I do not believe basketball players should be told how to dress when they are not conducting business on the court.

I agree with All-Star players such as Philadelphia 76ers guard Allen Iverson and San Antonio Spurs forward Tim Duncan, who expressed their distaste for this new policy.

"I'm 30 years old, I should be able to wear what I want to wear," Iverson told ESPN. "I don't think it's fair."

Duncan also weighed in on the topic.

"I think it's a load of crap," Duncan said in a report by the San Antonio Express-News. "I don't understand why they would take it to this level. I think it's basically retarded."

Duncan also said he might choose to stay in the locker room on nights he isn't playing.

Some NBA affiliates argue Stern is trying to help the image of the league while others say it's just plain racism.

"The fact that they have made it so definitive means that they are still trying to get away from the image that was created by the Ron Artest-Ben Wallace fight that this is a league of thugs," ESPN The Magazine senior writer Ric Bucher said on SportsCenter. "They don't want the players looking like rappers."

This policy might not be all about racism, but that was definitely a factor in this decision. This is Stern's way of saying that culture – the hip-hop culture – isn't good enough for him.

This is a shot to everything I stand for.

I bet Stern wouldn't like it too much if he was made to completely change the way he dresses.

I say let's put him in a 'do rag with some baggy shorts and an A.I. jersey, and see if he changes his mind.

Cedrique Flemming is a junior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Heart-breaker

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Middle blocker Megan Kroeker has a kill attempt blocked by a Missouri blocker during the third game Wednesday evening at Ahearn Field House. The Wildcats opened with a 2-0 lead, but fell to the Tigers in 5 games.

Wildcats lose 3rd-straight to ranked Tigers

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The hardest part about No. 23 K-State's loss to No. 8 Missouri Wednesday night might have been how close it came to being a Wildcat win.

After winning the first two games in what coach Suzie Fritz said was arguably the Cats' (15-7, 6-6 Big 12) best performance all season, the Tigers (16-2, 10-2) turned it up after intermission to win the next three games, closing out the night 3-2 (28-30, 26-30, 30-23, 30-25, 15-11).

"It's very disappointing to be up two games and not finish," said senior outside hitter Agata Rezende, who led the Cats with 22 kills and a .333 hitting percentage. "It's just unacceptable. We are mature enough, and we're getting better experience to be able to finish matches."

Not only is it K-State's second loss to Missouri this season, but it marks K-State's third consecutive loss against a ranked team in one week.

The frustrating thing for sophomore Rita Lilliom is she can't pinpoint why her team lost, she said.

"I was looking for the answer, and I don't know why we went down," said Lilliom, an outside hitter and middle blocker. "We thought we were playing good and keeping up with them in the first two games, and then something happened."

Rezende said what happened is that once again, her team couldn't complete a game.

"I think our big challenge is getting better to finish games," Rezende said. "We just let them run away from us. We had a miscommunication in the third and fourth game, and unforced errors in the fifth game. That's why we lost the match."

After the intermission, K-State started to fizzle, while Missouri gained momentum, Fritz said.

"I thought they got better, and I

See VOLLEYBALL Page 12

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

BSB | Donation completes baseball strength center

John L. Allen, chief operating officer of the Cincinnati Reds, has provided a gift to equip and furnish the new baseball strength training area at Tointon Family Stadium, K-State Director of Athletics Tim Weiser announced Wednesday.

The contribution helps complete the final phase of the stadium, which was rebuilt on the site of the former Frank Myers Field and dedicated in 2002. Construction is scheduled to begin immediately on the 1,500 square-foot John L. Allen Strength Center and a new coaches locker room, both located underneath the first-base grandstand, with completion expected in January prior to the start of spring baseball practice.

Allen, a native of Norton, Kan., and veteran of the Vietnam War, is a 1974 graduate of K-State with a degree in accounting from the College of Business Administration.

GLF | Kinney honored for efforts as junior golfer

K-State freshman golfer Joe Kinney earned honorable mention honors to the Rolex Junior All-American team, the American Junior Golf Association announced.

Kinney

Kinney, a native of Antioch, Ill., capped off a successful junior career this past summer as he captured a victory at the 2005 Future Legends in Wales, Wis.

He also registered a second-place finish at the Midwest Juniors Players Championship in Huntley, Ill. Throughout his four-year junior career, Kinney cracked the top-15 seven times.

The 135 junior golfers who received honors from the AGJA will be recognized Nov. 20 during the Rolex Junior All-American Awards Banquet in Jekyll Island, Ga.

XC | 6 Wildcats named academic All-Big 12

The Big 12 Conference named six K-State cross country athletes to the 2005 Cross Country Academic All-Big 12 teams.

Among the women's first-team selections were sophomore Eleanor Burton and Morgan Bonds, a sophomore in biology.

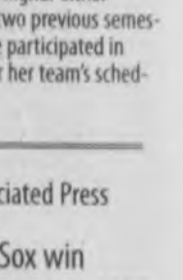
First team selections for the men were junior Hiral Bhakta, Lawrence, and senior Christian Smith, Garfield, Kan.

Senior Christina Lara, Cathedral City, Calif., and sophomore Stephanie Lavin, Blue Springs, Mo., were named to the women's second team.

To qualify, student-athletes must have a 3.00 GPA or higher either cumulative or the two previous semesters and must have participated in 60 percent of his or her team's scheduled contests.

The Associated Press

MLB | White Sox win 1st World Series since 1917



HOUSTON — That 88-year wait between championships? It's over.

The Chicago White Sox are World Series champions, and the celebration stretched from a mass of flag-waving Chicago fans behind the dugout at Minute Maid Park to the delirious streets of the South Side.

Wednesday night's 1-0 win over the Houston Astros completed a remarkable run through October and gave the franchise its first World Series title since 1917.

OLY | Coach K officially coach of USA basketball team

NEW YORK — Mike Krzyzewski will be the coach in charge of bringing Olympic gold back to U.S. basketball.

Krzyzewski

Two weeks after it was widely reported, USA Basketball on Wednesday made Krzyzewski the coach of the U.S. national team at next year's World Championships and the 2008 Olympics in Beijing.

The man who led Duke to three national championships will be the first college coach to lead the national team since NBA players started playing in the Olympics in 1992.

The United States' "Dream Team" won gold in Barcelona under Chuck Daly and teams with NBA players repeated the feat in 1996 under Lenny Wilkens and 2000 under Rudy Tomjanovich.

Young team enters season uncertain

By Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The spotlight on the women's basketball program has turned into a shadow.

Doubt, inexperience and the loss of three star players to graduation has left coach Deb Patterson in unfamiliar territory.

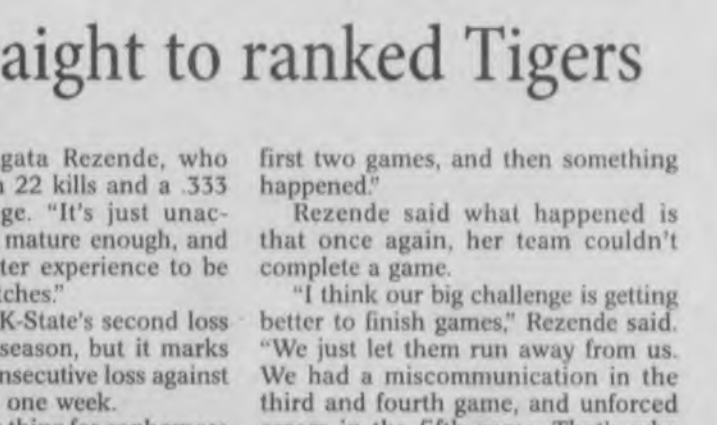
Always a favorite to be in contention for the Big 12 Conference title, the Wildcats are the No. 8 team in the preseason coaches poll, behind conference division rivals Nebraska and Kansas.

"I think back to the last three or four years, and every day you competed you knew what you were going to get from any one of your five starters," Patterson said. "Laurie Koehn was going to hit 50 percent of her three's, Kendra Wecker was going to find a way to be one of the best players on the planet in the women's game and get you 18 or 19 points and at least eight boards. Megan Mahoney was going to be your play-maker and find a way to impact the game. Nicole Ohlde was going to be one of the best low-post presences in the game.

"Now we have this group of players, some of them returners that haven't had a large load of responsibilities when it comes to production, so that is upon them now."

See WOMENS BASKETBALL Page 12

Men look for 2nd winning year



By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After posting a winning record for the first time in six years last season, the K-State men's basketball team enters this season with high expectations, but also many questions to answer.

The team is hoping to improve upon its 17-12 record of a year ago, and most importantly, make a postseason tournament appearance.

At first glance, that may seem difficult with the departure of post-man Jeremiah Massey and the transfer of guard Fred Peete. The Wildcats will have to find a way to replace the more than 30 points per game those two accounted for last season.

Coach Jim Wooldridge said a change in the offensive strategy will help to create a more balanced attack, as well as produce more fast-break opportunities.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

K-State men's basketball coach Jim Wooldridge addresses the media Wednesday morning at Bramlage Coliseum during basketball media day. Wooldridge and the Wildcats will open begin their season Nov. 3 against EA Sports at Bramlage.

"It's a five-man, motion offense," Wooldridge said at Wednesday's press conference. "This offense is more conducive with what we have. There's a lot of versatility to

See MENS BASKETBALL Page 12

Be aware

Photo illustration by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

"This affects so many people, it seems that every other second I hear that someone has it."

Lizzy Horsely
SENIOR IN ART EDUCATION

How to give a breast self-exam

1. Lie down with a pillow under your right shoulder and your right arm behind your head.
2. Use the pads of your fingers on your left hand to feel for lumps.
3. Press firmly to familiarize yourself with your breast. Learn how your breast feels most of the time. A firm ridge in the lower part of the breast is normal -
4. Move around the breast the same way for every exam. Self exams can be done in a circle (A), up and down (B) or in a wedge (C).
5. Now examine the left breast using the right hand.
6. If you find any changes, see your doctor right away.

Source: The American Cancer Society

Regular exams, self-education help young women

By Eileen Laux
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An estimated 40,410 women will die from breast cancer in 2005, according to the American Cancer Society.

Jill Sittenauer, public relations specialist for the Topeka branch of the American Cancer Society, said an estimated 211,240 cases of invasive breast cancer will be diagnosed in 2005, with 1,990 diagnoses and 380 deaths in Kansas.

During the National Breast Cancer Awareness month, October, the American Cancer society gives educational presentations and sends out materials to individuals or organizations that request information about early detection, Sittenauer said.

"We are really trying to focus on awareness and also helping low income and/or women without insurance," she said. "We want to increase education about early detection."

Sittenauer said the American Cancer Society has many events to raise money for the disease. Relay for Life is at the county and national level. Another event is Daffodil Days, where the society sells daffodils to raise money.

"All the money we raise goes to four areas: research, education, advocacy and patient services," she said. "We are the number one non-profit organization raising money for cancer research, other than the federal government."

There are different committees in each community that organize events to raise money and promote awareness year-round, such as Pink Ribbon Day in Topeka or the Women's Health Expo in Junction City, she said.

Marcia Locke, public relations and outreach coordinator for the Johnson Cancer Center and member of the Manhattan Cancer Awareness Committee, said everyone should be more aware and educated.

"Unfortunately more and more young women are being diagnosed and there have been instances of the cancer being more aggressive," she said.

Young women should begin getting in the habit of examining themselves because when they get older it will be easier to notice changes, Locke said.

"There is nothing wrong with starting examinations and awareness young," she said.

Locke said young women don't need to do self examinations every month, but should do it regularly. Every woman's situation is different, so women with family history may need to examine more often, she said.

The cancer center is distributing instructional cards that hang in the shower on how to perform a self examination, Locke said.

The Manhattan Cancer Awareness Committee has several activities for the different kinds of cancer. Education, public service announcements and presentations are a few of the things the committee does.

The committee consists of representatives from Mercy Health Center, Riley County Health Department and Medicine Shoppe Pharmacy.

"We get together about once a month to get any educational materials that we can get out to the community," she said.

Locke said she thinks there should be more things available throughout the month, as well as the whole year.

"You need to get in the habit of taking care of yourself, because in the future, no one else is going to do it," Locke said.

Lizzy Horsely, senior in art education, said her mother was diagnosed with breast cancer last October and is now cancer-free.

She would like to see more on campus about breast cancer awareness.

"They caught it really early, she had a lumpectomy and radiation," Horsely said.

She said she was impressed with how her mother handled having breast cancer.

"My mom was very calm about the whole thing, which made me even more scared because she is such an emotional person," Horsely said. "But she was strong and stayed positive, that is partly why I think she healed up so fast."

Horsely said she sent her mom a card this month and has tried to get involved as much as she can. As a K-State student, she said it is hard because there are other opportunities in larger cities.

"This affects so many people, it seems that every other second I hear that someone has it," she said. "It affects all of us and we should have as much knowledge about it as possible."

Pumpkin ice cream dessert gives alternative to tradition

By Kelly Schmitt
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It may be colder outside, but it's never too cold for ice cream.

This is especially true when the ice cream is blended into a pie filling, poured into a graham cracker crust and frozen.

This frozen pumpkin creation works well for Halloween festivities, and also makes a great alternative dessert to the traditional Thanksgiving pie.

Although it looks and tastes like it takes quite a bit of time to prepare, the pumpkin ice cream dessert is very simple and requires little preparation.

Since it is frozen, it can be made days ahead of time. Just cover with plastic wrap before freezing.

Since it is so simple, this frozen dessert makes a great anytime treat. It goes well with hot cider or coffee, since they are complementary flavors.

Quick and easy recipe

Pumpkin ice cream dessert:
1 cup of pumpkin
1/2 cup of brown sugar
1/2 cup of white sugar
1 tablespoon of pumpkin pie spice
1 quart of vanilla ice cream
Graham cracker crust

Mix pumpkin, sugars and spice until smooth. Beat in the ice cream until all ingredients combine for a smooth, creamy texture. Pour over prepared graham cracker crust and freeze.

Courtesy art

HOROSCOPES

Aquarius (Jan. 21 - Feb. 18)
Good day to bring home a bag or two of live bugs.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
You'll find more, and very "interesting", uses for cocktail umbrellas today.

Aries (March 21 - April 19)
Today you will begin work on a life-size pterodactyl robot, which you will use to terrorize the city. Either that or you'll take a nap. It just depends what sort of mood you're in.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)
And old friend will call today, who you haven't talked to in years. He'll remind you that you owe him money.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Today you will be struck by the notion that "Life is like one of those little cars that the Shriners get to drive." You have a mind of great depth and profundity.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)
Don't lose hope! Conditions like yours are painful and embarrassing, but often clear up on their own.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22)
An old man with bad teeth will whack you with his cane today, as you walk past. He'll pretend it was an accident.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
Good day to bring doughnuts to a meeting. Later, ask people how their diets are going.

Libra (Sept. 22 - Oct. 22)
Itchy nose day, again. Just be glad you don't have to wear a spacesuit!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
Today you will read a small booklet titled How To Make A Fortune in Frog Farming, which will change your life.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
Good day to buy chocolate for someone you love.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20)
Excellent day to fill some pantyhose with popcorn and do the reindeer dance.

Source: Humor Scope

UPCOMING SHOWS

Oct. 27:
Corkscrew Boar and Shady Lane String Band
21+, 10 p.m., Auntie Mae's Parlor, 614 N. 12th St.

Oct. 28:
91.9's Halloween Havok featuring A Case of Bad Karma, The Mathematics, Emma's Mine, and The Back Porch Blues Band
18+, 9 p.m., Bobby T's Bar & Deli, 3240 Kimball Ave.

Stuck on Broadway, Distance to Empty, Rushmore Academy, and A Day in Attica
18+, 10 p.m., P.J.'s Bar, 1129 Laramie

Oct. 29:
12th Street, Shelter Belt and Aid
18+, 10 p.m., P.J.'s Bar

Oct. 31:
Dreamscape, Diskreet, Strange Unit, Unmerciful and The Cast Pattern
18+, 7 p.m., P.J.'s Bar

Nov. 1:
Bastard Sons of Johnny Cash, The Pembertons, and Jared Pete Gile
18+, 10 p.m., P.J.'s Bar

Nov. 2:
My Ruin, Jacknife, Terror Tractor, and Descendants of Cain
18+, 9 p.m., P.J.'s Bar

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Muslims at the Islamic Center of Manhattan pray toward Mecca Saturday evening. Muslims are currently celebrating the month of Ramadan.

MUSLIM | Ramadan celebrated with separate services for men, women

Continued from Page 1

separate entrances.

"We don't have the concept that women can do the same things as men," Burnett said. "We are physically different. It's not that women aren't equal, it's just that men are different from women. In the Quran, it says 'believing men, believing women.' It doesn't say 'man' and assumes it will cover both men and women."

Women wear the traditional hijab, which is the covering and scarf. Men cannot shave their beards and must wear loose-fitting clothes.

"It's a way of being modest," Burnett said. "It's not our business to look at other people's bodies."

The men and women also have separate parties to celebrate the end of Ramadan. They call this celebration Eid, and it starts with prayer at 7:45 a.m.

"We have three days of celebration," Husseini said. "We greet our families and exchange gifts."

Since the Muslim religion follows the lunar calendar, Eid takes place this year on either the Wednesday or the Thursday of next week, depending on when the new moon rises.

This also means the month of Ramadan changes from year to year, as well as the times when the Muslims pray.

"Religion is a way of life," Burnett said. "It can be strict in some ways, but it's easy, it's not supposed to be hard."

Muslims read every religious book, including the bible.

"All religions are the same," Husseini said. "It's the same message. God revealed his message through different messengers. We believe in all the prophets."

According to the Muslim faith, the last prophet was Muhammed, whose life is outlined in the book, Sunna. Both the Sunna and the Quran are guides to the Muslim lifestyles and they give rules and regulations that Muslims follow.

"We believe Islam is the continuation of the message that came through all of the prophets," Husseini said.

The Muslim Student Association occupies a booth in the K-State Student Union every Thursday to answer questions about their religion and have brochures about their faith to hand out. They also organize public events, such as open house for the Islamic Center of Manhattan, charity events and fundraising.

"We are very active," Lawal said. "Feel free to seek information from us, we are open to anyone who genuinely wants to know."

The group meets everyday to pray and help each other in every situation, from moving to a new house to helping newcomers find their way around Manhattan.

Generally the group has meetings according to when they are needed, and not on a regular basis. The students involved in the group come from all over the world, including Nigeria, Egypt, Sri Lanka, Jordan and Pakistan.

"I can't imagine not being a part of this group," Lawal said. "It gives me fulfillment."

The Muslim Student Association welcomes anyone who is interested to attend their religious ceremony every Friday at 12:30 at the Islamic Center of Manhattan, 1224 Hylton Heights, but advises newcomers to arrive early so they can introduce themselves.

"We want to share our culture and our beliefs with our fellow students," Lawal said. "If somebody wants to come and learn, come."

AMBASSADORS | Students to vote on university representatives

Continued from Page 1

"The most important thing is that the new ambassadors have to be excited about K-State and everything that's going on here, whether it's educational or athletic," George said.

Hildebrand said the ambassadors must be ardent about what their job is as a representative for the entire student body.

"The most important thing would be passionate dedication for serving K-State and someone who makes an overall good representation of the student body, who has that trademark K-State friendliness," he said.

Students have had the opportunity to get to know the candidates by attending All-University Homecoming activities this week, Roesler said.

"Finalists are appearing at all of the Homecoming events this week," he said. "It's one part of Homecoming week. They use the activities to introduce themselves to the student body."

Roesler said no matter who students vote for, the ambassadors chosen will do an excellent job.

"I'm really excited about the candidates that we have this year," he said. "I think whoever is selected from the vote will represent us well."

Typically, Roesler said about 1,000 students will vote in the elections. However, George said every student should take time to cast a ballot.

"I encourage everyone to vote," she said. "It's really important to all of these candidates, because they've been through such an intense process. The least the students should do is vote."

THEFTS | Students' money, food taken from both Seaton, Waters halls

Continued from Page 1

laboratories in the hall's basement the same nights workers were in the building late installing light fixtures.

"In one instance, our chair was found in another lab," Yoonseong Park, assistant professor of entomology, said.

He said this led faculty to believe the thieves were also playing around in the labs, which are often kept open late by students working after hours.

Ramaswamy said the larcenies in the department stopped in late summer, then started happening on the other side of the hall in the College of Agriculture offices.

Fred Cholick, dean of the College of Agriculture, said such thefts occurred near his office, but said they mostly stopped late in the summer intersession.

He said the college contacted the campus police and took advice on keeping the area more secure, but couldn't say whether it was the cause for the end of the thefts.

Stubbings said the most recent such theft was reported last week when food and money were taken from someone on the first floor of Waters Hall.

Seaton Hall has seen sporadic thefts of a similar nature more recently.

Crystal Lara, senior administrative assistant for the Office of Student Services in the College of Architecture, Planning and Design, said her office had some trouble about a month ago.

"We've had a few things stolen from our closet and refrigerator," she said. "For a couple of weeks it was on an everyday basis."

David Seamon, professor of architecture, left his door open and unlocked one afternoon this week to go to the restroom.

"Normally, I do close the door," he said when asked about it upon his return.

He said $50 was taken from his desk one day five years ago when his office was next to the hall's main entrance.

Jury rules Port Authority was negligent

By Samuel Maull
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK – A jury ruled Wednesday that the Port Authority was negligent in the bombing of the World Trade Center in 1993, a long-awaited legal victory for victims of an attack that killed six people and wounded 1,000.

The six-person jury ruled that the Port Authority, the agency that owned the World Trade Center, was negligent by not properly maintaining the parking garage, where terrorists detonated more than a half-ton of explosives in a Ryder van.

It said the negligence was a "substantial factor" in allowing the bombing to occur.

The jury took just one day to reach its verdict. Several separate trials will now be held to determine money damages.

The trial cast the spotlight on an attack that was overshadowed after Sept. 11, but was horrific nonetheless.

The noontime blast blew a gigantic crater in the garage, filled the building with smoke, wrecked the towers' power and emergency systems, and spread fear across New York.

The verdict came after almost 12 years of legal delays in the civil case.

The Port Authority's last appeal, to try to get the case thrown out, was rejected last year, clearing the way for the trial.

During the trial, lead plaintiff lawyer David J. Dean argued the Port Authority failed to take steps to prevent the bombing because it was inconvenient and would have cost too much.

Dean said the Port Authority's own security officials, in a report released in 1985, warned that the 400-slot garage was a likely attack site.

"It was almost as though they had a crystal ball," he said.

But Port Authority lawyer Marc Kasowitz said it was "offensive" to suggest the agency choose profits over safety.

He said 3,000 of the Port Authority's own employees, which the agency considered "family," worked at the site in 1993.

And he said nothing would have deterred resourceful terrorists, obsessed with bombing a building that was an icon of capitalism, from finding a way to unleash an attack.

"The plaintiffs want to blame the Port Authority for the murderous acts of fanatical terrorists who schemed for years and traveled thousands of miles" to carry out the attack, Kasowitz told the jury.

ALL KEGS $5 OFF
Natural Lt. 30pk $10.99
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor

More Shoes, More Service, More Friendly
A steady throb of versatility, adaptability & performance. Delivers instinctive reaction to hard use and varying, multi-sport demands.
MERRELL
Brown's SHOE Fit Co.
New Business Hours • Mon.-Sat. 9 AM - 6 PM
311 Poyntz Ave. • 776-6612 • Downtown Manhattan

Crossing your fingers won't help...
Emergency contraception can prevent pregnancy if taken within 72 hours of unprotected sex
A prescription is required - contact Lafene, your health care provider or local health department
AND
call the National EC Hotline
1-888-668-2528
www.not-2-late.com
Paid for by the Peggy Bowman Second Chance Fund Emergency Contraception Fund shimmer

THIS IS Dillard's
Town Center
STORE HOURS: MON - SAT 10 A.M. - 9 P.M.; SUN NOON - 6 P.M.

We're Looking For YOU!
Executive Position
Spring 2006
Editor in chief
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 11
•Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
Spring 2006
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
•Copy Editors • Designers
•Photojournalists
•Graphic Journalists
•Graphic Artists
•Online Journalists
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 16
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

LOVE Advertising?
Work for the Spring 2006 Collegian
Advertising Manager
Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 11
Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
Advertising Staff Positions
• Assistant Advertising Manager
• Account Representatives
Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 16
Pick up an application & job description in Kedzie 103.
We're looking for Reliable, Creative, and Enthusiastic people to gain advertising experience and have a great time doing so.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN Call 532-6560

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT, close to campus, available now. All utilities paid. Washer/ dryer. $375. (785)317-7713.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490, two-bedrooms $750, three-bedrooms $700-$825. (785)537-7701.

THREE-BEDROOM APARTMENT in 12-plex. Really close to Fort Riley. $525 plus electric. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

TWO-BEDROOM CLOSE to campus. (785)776-8628, (785)341-4073.

120 For Rent- Houses

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. $550. Remodeled kitchen. Laundry. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ACROSS FROM Marlett School, three-bedroom house with garage and fenced yard. $975. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

ALL BRICK three-bedroom, two bath house completely remodeled. Available soon. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

EXECUTIVE HOME on three acres. Beautiful views of Tuttle Creek Lake. Not your ordinary rental house. Call for appointment. (785)556-6899.

FOUR-BEDROOM, FOUR bath. Yes, your own bathroom. Brand new. Move in soon. Close to KSU. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

TWO-BEDROOM DUPLEX. $525 plus electric. Nice, clean place includes washer and dryer. Emerald Property Management. (785)556-6899.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

145 Roommate Wanted

MALE ROOMMATE wanted. Four-bedroom duplex. $325/ month plus utilities. Close to campus and Aggieville. Available January. (316)655-5236.

MALE STUDENT roommate wanted to share nice mobile home starting now or spring semester. $175/ month plus utilities. Call (620)331-0147, leave detailed message.

ONE-BEDROOM AVAILABLE in three bedroom house. Washer/ dryer, walking distance to college. Male or female. Brick home. Rent negotiable. (785)443-2229.

ROOMMATE WANTED immediately. Newly remodeled. Washer/ dryer, dishwasher. Pets okay. Large yard. Two-bedroom, one bath. Call Cassie (620)376-8319.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed. Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE/ MALE subleaser for spring/ summer semester(s), nice house, walk to campus, washer/ dryer, $290/ month plus utilities. Call (316)706-7272.

ONE-BEDROOM. $395, cable/ water paid. Laundry/ pool/ hot tub on site. Small pets. Quiet. Available now. (785)375-3015.

SUBLEASE AVAILABLE immediately or whenever. One-bedroom next to Aggieville, utilities paid, except electric. August lease. Call anytime (785)317-0235.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM, quiet and responsible. 12/15/05- 7/28/05. December rent free. 1014 Bluemont. $540/ month plus deposit. (913)706-6927.

SUBLEASE CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER WANTED. $375/ month, washer, dryer, furnished, University Crossing. Call (913)909-5448.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom. Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

SUBLEASERS WANTED for two-bedroom apartment. One block from campus, washer/ dryer, water/ trash paid. Second semester. (316)288-9629.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS. Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

ENERGETIC, RESPONSIBLE students needed to distribute fliers on 10/31, 11/1, and 11/2. Flexible hours. $10/ hour. Call Staceylee at (866)313-8184.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

NEEDED COLLEGE student to help with work in home for local family. References helpful. Please call (785)556-2467, ask for Shannon.

GRADUATE ASSISTANT, Bachelor's Degree Completion Program, KSU Division of Continuing Education. Facilitate undergraduates in K-State's external degree program, Bachelor's Degree Completion. Required: Hold a bachelor's degree and be accepted into a graduate degree program at KSU. Have excellent oral and written communications skills, good interpersonal skills and good attention to detail. Have experience in word-processing, e-mail and computer applications. Preferred: Have experience advising adult non-traditional undergraduate students and be able to work with minimum supervision. Have experience using KSU's SIS system and database software. Request a detailed position description at 226 College Court or call (785)532-5575. Applications will be accepted October 24-November 4. Applicants should submit a letter of application, a resume, and name, addresses, and phone numbers of three references. Starting date: January of 2006.

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

LUTHERAN CAMPUS ministries is seeking candidate for the position of peer minister. Duties include outreach to college students, assist in operations of Luther House and assist with worship activities. Monthly stipend available. Email resume and letter of interest to cheryll@kaukis.com.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

we kick ads.

CLASSIFIEDS • 532-6555

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

415 Furniture to Buy/Sell

COUCH FOR sale. Nearly new. Call (785)532-5764 or email fburrack@ksu.edu.

500 transportation

510 Automobiles

1998 DODGE Neon, white, two-door, five-speed, air-conditioning, dependable transportation. Very clean, in great shape, 73k asking $3000. (785)587-9242 for details.

530 Motorcycles

2003 636 Kawasaki Ninja with extras. 2700 miles. Call for price. (620)629-7386.

600 travel trip

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week

BRECKENRIDGE

Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1

Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin

$179

U.S. Ski

1-800-SKI-WILD

1-800-754-9453

www.ubski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc.

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

LOST: PAIR of dark-rimmed bifocal glasses on campus. If found call (785)776-0176 or (785)564-0930. Reward offered.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866.

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NOW LEASING

• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •

Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook

Open Saturday 10-3

537-9064

www.hillinvestandrental.com

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

120 For Rent- Houses

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM, Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

1978 SCHULTZ mobile home, 14X72. Three-bedroom, two bath. $6100 or best offer. (785)458-9734.

145 Roommate Wanted

CHRISTIAN FEMALE housemate wanted for five-bedroom house. Residential neighborhood. Washer/ dryer, two-car garage. $300/ month plus utilities. (913)636-9152.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Advertising Design

Practicum/Newspaper MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Graphic Design Internship

Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

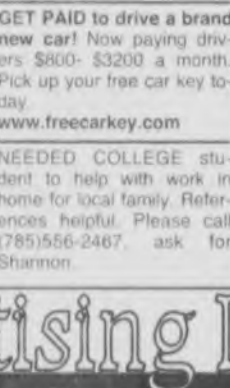
SHOP with us!

When you're looking for a bargain, check out the Collegian Classifieds.

If you don't find what you need, advertise in the Open Market section!

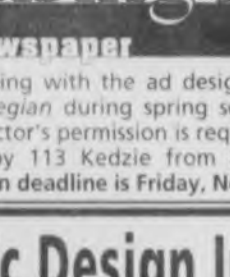
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN 103 Kedzie 532-6555

WEIGHED DOWN by your sorrows?



Find your lifesaver in the PERSONALS.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 532-6555

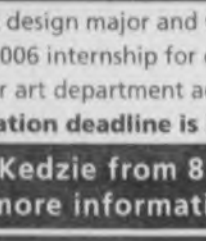


Sell your nearly new clothes, that comfortable old couch, and the tie Aunt Martha gave you for your 16th birthday.

Advertise your garage or yard sale in the Collegian Classifieds.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

GRADUATING THIS SEMESTER?



WEDDING BELLS RINGING?

ROOMMATE DRIVING YOU INSANE?

Whatever the reason, find a way out of your lease with a classified ad in the Collegian.

Housing/Real Estate Category :

•115 Rooms Available
•145 Roommate Wanted
•150 Sublease

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

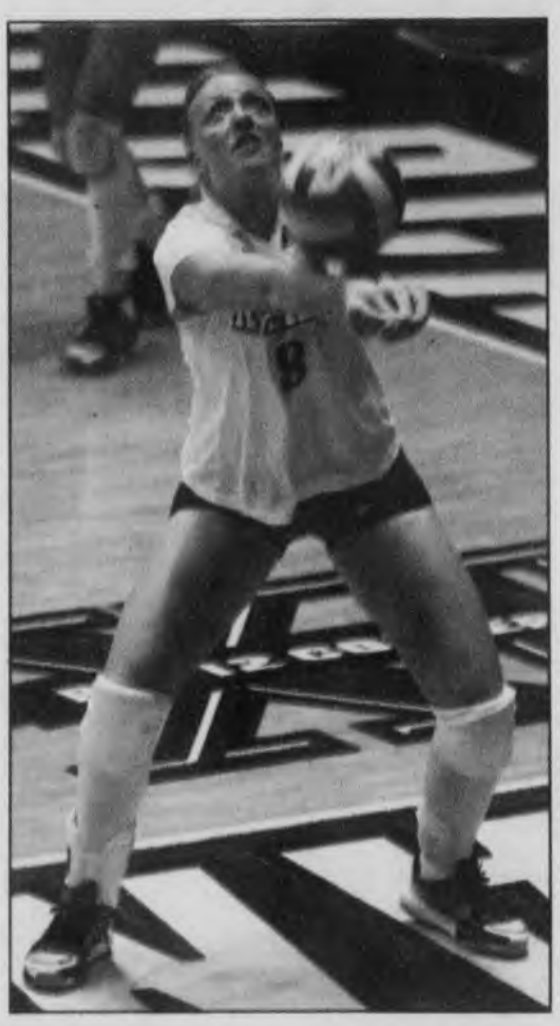
VOLLEYBALL | K-State prepares for weekend off

Continued from Page 8

thought we just didn't play as aggressive in game three," Fritz said. "They started hitting higher and most of the balls coming off our block were kicking off higher. (Shen) Danru and (Na) Yang were both hitting high, and we were having a hard time chasing them down."

The Wildcats had a hard time stopping the tandem of right setter Danru and outside hitter Yang, who paced Mizzou with a combined 38 kills.

"She's great, she's powerful and she hits it high," Fritz said of Yang.



In addition emotions after the second game played a part in the loss Wednesday night, redshirt-freshman middle blocker Megan Kroeker said.

"We were pumped, but we knew they were going to come back strong and play hard," Kroeker said. "We just emotionally got caught up in it, and we need to stay more stable."

Fritz said she has an idea of what needs to change to help K-State to win such intense matches.

"I firmly believe that if you want to win those types of matches, you have to be great in practice," Fritz said. "You have to have a tremendous amount of focus and discipline, and you have to work incredibly hard in practice.

"I don't think we've been practicing enough to win those types of matches. We have to do that everyday so we're prepared to win those types of volleyball wars."

Junior outside hitter Jamie Perkins tries to save a ball against Missouri Wednesday evening at Ahearn Field House. The Wildcats fell in five games to the Tigers.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

K-State has this weekend off, which comes at a very opportune time for the Wildcats, Fritz said.

"It's a very difficult and emotional loss, and I am very happy that we have the weekend off," she said.

"We need it physically and emotionally after a game like this," she said.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Women's basketball coach Deb Patterson speaks at Basketball Media Day Wednesday. The Wildcat's open their season Nov. 8 against Emporia State at Bramlage Coliseum.

WOMENS BASKETBALL | Contributions, new identity may come from 4 incoming freshmen

Continued from Page 8

With the loss of Wecker, Mahoney and Koehn, the Wildcats lost more than half of their offensive production from last season. The three potential starters and leading scorers this season, juniors Claire Coggins and Twiggy McIntyre, and sophomore Shana Wheeler, combined to score 32 total points less than the Big 12 Conference Player of the Year Wecker.

"We don't have Kendra, Laurie and Megan to fall back on this year," said Coggins, a preseason Big 12 honorable-mention selection. "It's completely different. It's going to be totally different for us this year, but it's also just basketball – a game that we've all played."

Coggins, McIntyre and Wheeler are the only players who had significant playing time last year.

The Wildcats have only one senior on the roster, Jessica McFarland, who played limited minutes last season and only started two games. The other three returners, Naytanda Smith, Kimberly Dietz and Carolyn McCullough, combined to average less than eight minutes of action per game.

"The expectations of us aren't very high, and that's fine," McIntyre said. "We are a very young, talented yet inexperienced group, so it's going to be a fun year for us and anything can happen."

Contributions this year may come from four freshmen.

Forward Marlies Gipson, McPherson, is a two-time Street & Smith's All-American honorable mention who Patterson said can score consistently anywhere around the basket.

Center JoAnn Hamlin, who is Winfield High School's career leader in points (1,609), rebounds (785), blocked shots (210) and steals (157), was described by Patterson as the most aggressive low-post presence K-State has on the team.

There is also forward Danielle Zanotti, the Oklahoma Coaches Association Female Athlete of the Year, and Shalee Lehning, the state of Kansas' fourth all-time leader in scoring (2,510), and the state leader in rebounding (1,336), assists (804) and steals (543).

Lehning said the new group of players does not feel the pressure of living up to past expectations, but creating a new identity for the team.

"We're not looking at it as pressure," Lehning said. "The class that left here was an amazing class, and they will not be forgotten. We just have to create our own identity, and come in and play the best we can."

MENS BASKETBALL | Team hopes new style of play will produce better results, prepares for season

Continued from Page 8

it, and we feel like that fits the type of players that we have."

K-State will look to play a four-guard lineup, with junior forward Cartier Martin expected to contribute both in the post and on the perimeter.

Martin said the new style of play will help the team to produce better results.

"This season is going to be a lot more up-tempo," Martin said. "I think the chemistry of the team is making us better. It's a lot more team-oriented, rather than just depending on one person to try to get things done. This group of guys is amazing. It's one of the best teams I've been on."

A deep group of newcomers that includes two juniors, two sophomores, and three freshmen has only added to the overall athleticism of the team.

In particular, these new players have increased the depth at the guard position.

Junior Mario Taybron, who averaged 15.0 points and 5.2 assists per game last year at Eastern Oklahoma State University, is expected to help sophomore Clent Stewart with point-guard duties.

In addition, Akeem Wright, a 6-foot-6 junior who can play either point guard or shooting guard, is also expected to see a significant amount of playing time. Wright ranked fifth in the NJCAA last season at Neosho County Community College with 6.7 assists per game.

All of the new players will be sharing playing time with returning guards Stewart, junior Lance Harris, senior Schyler Thomas and sophomore Curtis Allen.

With the surplus of guards the Wildcats now have, it is hard not to wonder whether the competition is growing fierce among the players.

The players said that is not the case at all.

"Clent and I have been working with each other a lot," Taybron, who played as a freshman at Temple University, said. "It's not even a competition. We are just helping each other out."

Due to the changes in the style of play, at times it seems like everyone on the team is new, Taybron said.

For now, the team is working hard to get prepared for a season rapidly approaching.

K-State hosts its first exhibition game on Nov. 3.

"We've got a ton of work to do that we as coaches recognize," Wooldridge said. "We do like our team. We like the direction in which we are moving. We're looking forward to the season."

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian 118 Kedzie • 532-6560

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
$1.99 Margaritas
Thursday is Karaoke Night! Prizes for ALL Singers!
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

Just Because We Can, SHOULD We?
Presentation on Biotechnologies:
Assisted reproductive technologies, stem cell research, cloning, and genetic engineering.
Sunday, October 30, 8pm
K-State Union, Big XII Room
Open To All
Sponsored by Lutheran Student Fellowship

Garters are removable so you can wear the corset out.
Patricia's Undercover Lingerie
Poyntz
NOW on 4th St!
110 S. 4th
S. 4th

dependable, quality service
✓ You need binding?
Let us do it.
Claflin Books and Copies

Check out shout outs in the Classifieds on November 9th!

Truckload Sale! This Saturday 9am-2pm
Alma Creamery Cheese!!! FREE SAMPLES!
Exclusively at...
Eastside Market
East Hwy. 24 next to Super-8, Manhattan

Halloween Entertainment
Sponsored by KSU Horticulture Club and KSU Insect Zoo
Haunted Gardens and Enchanted Insect Zoo
7pm - 10pm
Friday Oct. 28th
Saturday Oct. 29th
Sunday, Oct. 30th
* No Enchanted Insect Zoo on Sunday, Oct. 30th
Proud to be a Family Safe Event • Donations Welcome

Wichita to Las Vegas
FROM $79* ONE WAY
Only at allegiantair.com
Nonstop air service from Wichita. Packages include over 30 of Vegas' most exciting casino-resorts.
allegiant air
www.allegiantair.com
800-432-3810 or call your travel agent.

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____
Only $5!

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, October 28, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 50

SPECIAL SECTION
Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

Miers withdraws after conservative criticism

By David Espo
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, D.C. – In a striking defeat for President Bush, White House counsel Harriet Miers withdrew her nomination to the Supreme Court on Thursday after three weeks of brutal criticism from fellow conservatives.

The Senate's top Republican predicted a replacement candidate within days.

Miers said she abandoned her quest for confirmation rather than give in to Senate demands for documents and information detailing her private advice to the president.

Senior lawmakers on the Senate Judiciary Committee said they had made no such request.

Instead, Republicans and Democrats said politics forced her to withdraw, particularly the demands of Republican conservatives who twice elected Bush and now seek to move the high court to the right on abortion and other issues.

Miers

"They had a litmus test and Harriet Miers failed that test," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.,

"In effect, she was denied due process by members of her own party," said Sen. John Warner, a Virginia Republican. And former GOP Sen. Dan Coats, whom the White House assigned to assist her win confirmation, said outside groups and pundits and "perhaps even some senators" had rushed to judgment.

Special force looking for MIPs

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Underage students may want to think twice this weekend before picking up a beer.

The Riley County Police Department will have a special task force on patrol looking for minors in possession.

Capt. Brad Schoen said a $1,300 grant from the Alcoholic Beverage Control allows the RCPD to have this special force that specifically looks for MIPs on K-State's home football game weekends.

Sgt. Steve Boyda said the weekend K-State played the University of Kansas, the RCPD gave 21 people notices to appear in court for minor in possession. Last weekend when K-State played against Texas A&M University, Boyda said the force gave nine people notices to appear for MIP.

According to a news release by the RCPD, the force patrols residential areas where there have been past complaints of underage drinking.

The fine for being convicted of MIP is $316 and a 30-day driver's license suspension.

A diversion of MIP is a $416 fine and three months of probation. These fines don't include court costs.

Sarah Barr, student's attorney, said a diversion gets charges dismissed and they are not on a person's record. However, she said a diversion is not always granted.

"Every prosecutor has his own policy on who they divert," Barr said.

Barr said when students see her who have a notice to appear for MIP, they often are unaware of the fine amounts, which is why Barr said being educated about MIPs is important.

"If kids are going to drink underage, which is against the law, they need to know the consequences," Barr said.

Schoen said under-age students should realize one beer may cost them more than $300.

"If you're going to do it, be ready to pay the price," he said.

Senate approves fee increase for Counseling Services

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Student Senate unanimously approved an increase in campus privilege fees for University Counseling Services last night.

The legislation increases Counseling Services fees 3 percent every year for the next three years, Matt Wagner, senate privilege fee chair, said.

Counseling Services now will have an increase of $16,842 in its budget for the fiscal years 2007-09. The total privilege fee budget for Counseling Services is $561,399 for FY 2007, $578,241 for FY 2008 and $595,588 for FY 2009.

Applied to the current K-State enrollment count, the privilege fees would cost each student an additional $25 per year.

University officials recommended the increase, factoring monetary increases and inflation into the legislation, Wagner said.

The increases are necessary for the survival and development of this campus center, Fred Newton, director of Counseling Services, said.

Most of the money goes to counseling, the primary function of the 15-member staff at Counseling Services, said Dan Wilcox, assistant director for Counseling Services.

Throughout the year, Newton said privilege fees support 55.3 percent of Counseling Services' budget.

See SENATE Page 10

New program focuses on leadership, goals

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Freshmen and sophomores can apply for Catalyst, a spring 2006 self-development program focused on the "Attitudes and Habits for Successful Leaders," until Nov. 3.

Sponsored by Blue Key International Honor Fraternity, the program will teach students about self-confidence, goal setting, time management and relationships, Kristen Daniels, senior in food and nutrition-exercise science, said. Students will also write a personal mission statement and lifetime goals.

"The purpose of Catalyst is to develop personal and leadership habits for success," Daniels said. "We just want to foster growth and promote achievement."

Blue Key members said they hope to have 100 members of Catalyst.

"We want to provide the opportunity to as many people as possible," Daniels said.

The entire group will meet monthly to hear speakers. Small groups of about 15 Catalyst students and their Blue Key mentors will meet weekly for discussion on chapters from Sean Covey's "The 7 Habits of Highly Effective Teens" and supplemental materials, Stephanie Mense, senior in life sciences, said.

Pairs of Blue Key members will assist small groups of students seven times during the week, Mense said.

"It's a great way for us to learn how to facilitate discussions, how to organize classrooms," she said. "We're learning how to develop lesson plans and

See CATALYST Page 10

Child's play

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Junior guard Akeem Wright makes his way onto the Bramlage Coliseum floor Thursday evening during the 10th annual Fright Night. Players from the men's and women's basketball teams were introduced to the fans who attended.

Halloween comes early for kids

By Dayne Logan
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Halloween came early for hundreds of kids who attended Fright Night last night a Bramlage Coliseum.

Part of K-State's All-University Homecoming week, Fright Night gives kids an opportunity to trick-or-treat and play games in a safe atmosphere.

It also gives K-State organizations a chance to interact with the kids while promoting their respective causes.

Sarah Johnson, junior in advertising, said the most rewarding part of the event was the interaction with the kids.

"You (usually) don't get to pass out candy to kids when you're in college," she said.

"I like seeing all the kids smiling," Michaela Kryzer, sophomore in open option, said. "It's fun to get to interact with the community."

Among the games offered to the kids were plinko, hopscotch, a cakewalk and a football toss. Trick-or-treater Marty Swan said that the football toss was his favorite activity.

In addition to the games, kids also had an opportunity to decorate pumpkins, make arts and crafts, have their faces painted and get their pictures taken with Willie.

Several campus organizations had booths set up for the event.

American Humanics, Bilingual Education Student Organization, Educational Ambassadors, Wildcats Forever and the K-State Cheerleaders were all represented.

Also, the greek homecoming groupings and the dorm groupings had games set up.

Both greek houses and residence halls were judged on their booths and the top teams in each category will earn points towards their groupings homecoming total.

The winners of both Fright Night and Homecoming will be announced tomorrow night following the homecoming parade in Aggieville.

Above: Dressed as a table, Kelsey Haile, 5, makes her way through the crowd of kids playing games at Fright Night.

Left: Twiggy McIntyre and Curtis Allen of the K-State women's and men's basketball teams hold up Willie's winning potion during a skit Thursday evening.

Today

High 69
Low 50

Saturday

High 70
Low 49

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

DUI checks
The Riley County Police Department will conduct a DUI task force saturation patrol beginning today through early Saturday morning. Police officers will look for signs of impaired driving and other traffic violations. Those who show signs of being impaired by alcohol will be investigated for DUI.

Defense hearings begin
Defense hearings for Max Ary began Wednesday in Wichita. The former head and co-founder of the Kansas Cosmosphere and Space Museum is being tried on 19 charges. A NASA investigator said Ary made about $65,000 selling Cosmosphere and NASA items.

Merger cleared
AT&T and Verizon Communications Inc. with MCI Inc. received approval Thursday from antitrust regulators to buy the two largest long-distance carriers in multibillion-dollar mergers. The Justice Department cleared the mergers without any significant conditions.

DON'T FORGET

Students with 72 hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

Today is the last day to drop a course with 98 or more calendar days.

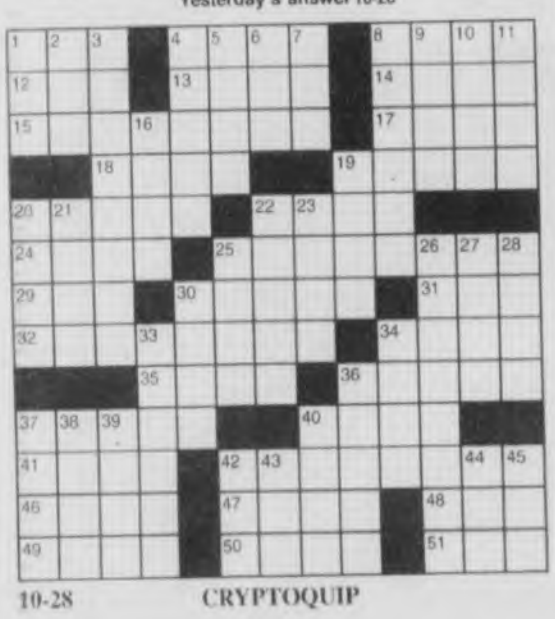
Former Soviet Union president Mikhail Gorbachev will speak at 3:30 p.m. today in McCain Auditorium as a part of the Landon Lecture Series.

Kickoff for the football game against Colorado will be at 1:10 p.m. Saturday at KSU Stadium.

Xtreme tanning
Bring this ad in for a FREE sample when tanning!
1122 Laramie 539-3742

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Diet Pepsi alternative
4 "Jabberwocky" starter
8 Advantage
12 Rhoda's mom on TV
13 "The Amazing —"
14 Close up tightly
15 Armed escort ship
17 Tranquil
18 Whatever's left over
19 Counts' counterparts
20 Airs for pairs
22 Improvise
24 Golden-rule word
25 Thought so
29 Hobby-shop buy
30 Re punishment
31 Lemieux milieu
32 Will VIP
34 Shrek, for example
35 Mosque chief
36 Paycheck extra
37 Carrot Top's secret?
40 Demolish
41 Saharan
42 Tape holder
46 Big nits
47 Center of activity
48 Pitch
49 Ogler's look
50 Mischievous tykes
51 Early bird?

DOWN
1 Spasm
2 Commotion
3 Hair clip
4 Lock
5 Bulb unit
6 Performance
7 "What did I tell you?"
8 Convict's dream
9 Letter opener
10 Chutzpah
11 "Desire Under the —"
16 Kill bill?
19 Old-time actor Jannings
20 Wayne sobriquet
21 Computer operating system
22 Fang fluid
23 Winglike
25 Erstwhile VHS alternative
26 Brief incident
27 Wall-paint shade
28 Near-failing grades
30 Cougar
33 Fireplace speck
34 Seep slowly
36 Diamond corners
37 Corridor
38 Huron's neighbor
39 Pleasant
40 Say "I'll be there"
42 Actor McBride
43 Intention
44 Playground game
45 Work unit

Solution time: 25 mins.

A	L	S	O		S	E	C		A	R	E	S
D	I	E	U		T	E	A		V	E	R	A
D	R	A	T		E	L	K		I	B	E	X
S	E	N	S	O	R		E	S	A	U
			C	R	N	A	M	E	N	T	A	L
A	M	B	L	E		D	I	E		T	O	E
C	O	L	D		F	O	X		T	A	N	S
I	D	A		P	E	P		I	S	L	E	T
D	E	C	O	R	A	T	I	V	E
		K	N	O	T		L	E	T	H	A	L
R	A	T	S		H	O	I		S	O	M	A
O	P	I	E		E	N	A		E	V	E	N
B	E	E	T		R	E	D		S	E	N	D

Yesterday's answer 10-28

10-28 CRYPTOQUIP

VO V PGYRSDW HYROYTTDQW, PGDA FDMFTD PMQS MJDQOYXD, OGDW GVJD OM FVW OYXD VAH V NYNOG.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: THE NEW PRIVATE DETECTIVE AGENCY HAS RECENTLY ADOPTED THE SLOGAN "WE PRY HARDER."

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: N equals F

BEST BETS

Your guide to the weekend's entertainment

1 | Homecoming Parade and Pep Rally

The All-University Homecoming parade will begin at 5 tonight. It will begin at Manhattan Town Center, 100 Manhattan Town Center, proceed on Poyntz Avenue, north on 11th Street, and down Moro Street. Then the route will go west to Manhattan Avenue and will go straight through Aggieville. The parade will continue onto Manhattan Avenue, to City Park and conclude at the park on Fremont Street. The Manhattan community and K-State student organizations will show off their Homecoming floats. The Fill the Ville' pep rally will begin shortly after the parade at 6:15 p.m. in Aggieville. For questions or more information call 785-532-5058 or e-mail abryant@k-state.com.

WILDCAT FLASHBACK K-STATE HOMECOMING 2005

2 | Rocky Horror Picture Show

The 27th annual showing of the Rocky Horror Picture Show is at midnight tonight in the K-State Student Union Main Ballroom. The costume contest begins at 10:30 p.m. Cost is $5 to attend. For more information, call the Union Program Council at 532-6571 or e-mail upc@ksu.edu.

3 | Halloween Havoc

Wildcat 91.9 is hosting the Halloween Havoc concert at 9 tonight at Bobby T's Bar and Grill, 3240 Kimball Ave. A Case of Bad Karma, Emma's Mine, The Mathematics and the Back Porch Blues band will all be performing. There will also be a costume contest, raffles and more. All the proceeds will go to the Red Cross to benefit the hurricane victims.

4 | K-State vs. Colorado

The Wildcats will face off against the Buffaloes at 1:10 p.m. Saturday at KSU Stadium. The Buffs have a 5-2 record and currently lead the Big 12 Conference North division. The Wildcats have a 4-3 record. Colorado leads the series history 42-17-1. The game will be broadcast on K-State Sports Network on KMAN-AM 1350 or KMKF-FM 101.5. For tickets or more information, call 1-800-221-2287 or visit www.kstatesports.com.

5 | Wadaiko Yamato

Japanese drum group Wadaiko Yamato brings a new experience to K-State at 3 p.m. Sunday at McCain Auditorium. The art brings a new vigor to Taiko drumming. The performers create a "feel-good" display of technical brilliance and euphoria. Wadaiko is a drum believed to have existed in many parts of the world. Yamato is the former name for Nara (the city where the group is based) and for Japan itself. Orchestra or balcony seating is available. Tickets for orchestra are: $30 for the public, $28 for seniors, $15 for K-State students, $28 for faculty, $28 for military and $15 for children. Tickets for balcony are: $26 for the public, $24 for seniors, $13 for K-State students, $24 for faculty, $24 for military and $13 for children. Call 532-6428 for more information.

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Wednesday, Oct. 26

- Joshua Hildenbrand, 3000 Tuttle Creek Blvd., Lot 51, was arrested at noon for aggravated indecent liberty and contributing to child misconduct. Bond was set at $10,000.
- Scott Miller, 3000 Tuttle Creek Blvd., Lot 51, was arrested at noon for aggravated indecent liberty and contributing to child misconduct. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Nickolas McCafferty, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 12:18 p.m. for contribution to child misconduct. Bond was set at $500.
- Jessie Chatfield, Topeka, was arrested at 2:45 p.m. for battery and criminal deprivation. Bond was set at $500.
- Derek George, 1119 Yuma St., was arrested at 2:55 p.m. for failure to appear and probation violation. Bond was set at $1,139.
- John Roberts, 27 Waterway Place, was arrested at 3:08 p.m. for violation of protective order, disorderly conduct, possession of a simulated controlled substance and possession of opiates or narcotics. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Tremain Thompson, 831 Leavenworth St., was arrested at 4:20 p.m. for sale of opiates, opium or narcotics and evidence of drug taxation. Bond was set at $2,500.
- David Pena, Belvue, Kan., was arrested at 5:30 p.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $500.
- Koreen Kildow, Grandview Plaza, Kan., was arrested at 8:20 p.m. for burglary of a vehicle and two counts of failure to appear. Bond was set at $2,802.
- Christopher Perren, 1947 College Heights Road, was arrested at 10:35 p.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $1,500.

Thursday, Oct. 27

- Jaimie Faustman, 3580 Dempsey Road, was arrested at 2:15 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- Habitat For Humanity: Campus Escape will have a Wildcat Challenge from 9 a.m. to noon Sunday. Sign up online at www.campusescape.com.
- The Lutheran Student Fellowship will meet from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. Oct. 30 in the Union Big 12 Room.

Corrections and clarifications

The totals for the increases for University Counseling Services was incorrect in Thursday's edition of the Collegian. The increase is actually $16,842 for a total of $561,399. Students taking less than twelve hours pay $3.50 for the first hour and $1.03 per hour up to twelve hours. Students with 12 hours or more pay $14.86 for the 2006 fiscal year. The Collegian regrets this error.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Remember: Set your clocks back. Daylight savings time ends Sunday. Claflin Books and Copies

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips with student ID and coupon expires 11/20/05 KNAILS 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza $5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only ALL DAY, EVERYDAY! 1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

SAVE over $400 on Auto Care!
only $49.95 VIP Auto Club Membership
In the Union today by the food court!
Members receive: FREE Oil Change, 4 tire rotation, battery recharge, radiator flush, 30-point system check, clutch adjustment, brake service, and more.
Ekart Auto ekartauto.com
It's Like Health Insurance for YOUR Car!

Coffee & the Collegian
The perfect way to start your day!

FILL the 'VILLE TONIGHT Approximately 6 p.m. Immediately following the Homecoming Parades Intersection of Moro Street and Manhattan Avenue
PEP RALLY IN AGGIEVILLE
Be sure to visit AGGIEVILLE businesses offering special HOMECOMING discounts.
FEATURING:
Parade grand marshals Gen. Richard '65 and Mary Jo Myers '64
Football and volleyball team representatives
Wyatt Thompson, "Voice of the Wildcats"
KSU Marching Band and Willie the Wildcat
Cheerleaders, Classy Cats and Big Cats
Announcement of Homecoming results
WILDCAT FLASHBACK K-STATE HOMECOMING 2005

shout outs are coming November 9 to the Classifieds section of the Collegian.
Check out our table in the Union for one FREE SHOUT OUT coupon! Nov. 7,8,9 11 a.m. - 1 p.m.
$2 Guarantees YOU a voice in the Collegian!

Carnival gives kids safe Halloween

Union Program Council celebrates holiday with afternoon trick-or-treating, costume contest, haunted house, crafts

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

There was a little Hocus Pocus in the K-State Student Union Thursday afternoon.

Pumpkins, princesses, a bumblebee, a unicorn, Simba and Buzz Lightyear celebrated an early Halloween at Union Program Council's annual children's carnival in Union Courtyard and Union Station.

"The goal of this is to provide a free, safe Halloween environment for local children," said Kelly Brannin, UPC Traditions Committee co-chair.

Meghan Newman, UPC Traditions Committee co-chair, said the event is a way for K-State to give back to the community.

The carnival featured caramel apples, a juice box toss, pumpkin decorating, a lollipop tree and a haunted house. Children also entered a costume contest.

"I'm a kitty cat because I have kitty cat ears," Hannah Kipp, 2, said.

Hannah's mother, Julie Russell, said she brings her family every year.

"The kids really, really like this," she said. "It's not spread out, it's not cold and it's during the day."

Kara Christy, senior in elementary education, brought her 20-month-old son Ethan, dressed as a lion, to the carnival. She said they came to have fun and enjoy the different games.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Timmy Palmeri, 8, Sophi Palmeri, 5, and Luke Palmeri, 10, make candy sand tubes Thursday afternoon in the Union Courtyard at the Hocus Pocus children's carnival, sponsored by the Union Program Council. The event gave children a healthy and safe place to trick-or-treat.

Susanna Huang, 9, decorated two pictures frames for her parents. She wasn't wearing a costume, but said she is going to be a rock star singer when she goes trick-or-treating at Manhattan Town Center on Monday.

UPC provided nutritious snacks like apples and granola bars, Brannin, sophomore in kinesiology, said.

"We're trying to promote some healthier Halloween options," she said.

UPC Executive Board members, committee members and students in Leadership Studies and Programs classes helped work the carnival, sophomore Brannin said.

The Traditions Council sent flyers to area elementary schools to publicize the event, Newman, junior in biology, said. UPC expected 250 to 300 children to attend.

"It reminded me of being a kid and getting excited for Halloween again," Newman said.

Housing prices may increase by 2007

By Annette Lawless and Lola Shrimplin
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Finding a home in the next few years might become difficult.

By 2007, more than 22,000 people will move to the Fort Riley area, Lt. Gov. John Moore said. That number is nearly half of Manhattan's current population of 47,916 residents, according to the latest U.S. Census Bureau report, which was released in 2000.

Some officials say the increase, near the equivalent of the K-State student population, will cost apartment-seekers hundreds of dollars.

"We're not sure how it's going to play out," said Roger Luthi, owner of Alliance Property Management Inc., 1410 Poyntz Ave.

For this year, Luthi said he expects rent will modestly increase, followed by a more significant increase once the soldiers begin arriving in greater numbers.

Of the 22,000 individuals moving to the area, Moore said 8,000 are soldiers, 11,000 are dependents and 2,600 are civilian workers. Some qualify for use of a reduced-interest loans fund of $25 million on top of other millions offered to the personnel.

Even without the additional troops coming to Fort Riley, some students have trouble finding a place, Sarah Johnson, freshman in secondary education pre-professional, said.

"I don't think it's easy to live here," Johnson said. "I know people who live here who look for places and they can't find them already."

While housing in the area is inexpensive compared to some Big 12 schools, Loren Price, senior in apparel and textiles, said he wishes students were offered special housing loans.

"Students should be able to get loans for housing, besides tuition," Price said.

With classes, work and other obligations, some students are in a crunch for paying rent, he said.

Until more troops arrive, Luthi said his business and others would continue to develop more apartments in Manhattan to prepare for the population influx, among other things.

With a slower population influx, Luthi said students can enjoy the lost costs and small-town population while it lasts.

"It's not going to affect college students much for this year," he said. "Students who wait for 2006-07 will have problems finding what they want in their price range and location."

ADVERTISE HERE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
Call • 532-6560

Do You Know Where Your Brooms Are?
Claflin Books and Copies

JOIN A CLUB
GET INVOLVED

Sororities :
"Campus Creations" contest deadline is Monday, October 31. Ask your chapter president for details.
Drop entries by the store or e-mail to aknight@ksu.edu
COLD STONE CREAMERY

$60 • $60 • $60 • $60 • $60 • $60 • $60 • $60
CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?
2 GREAT SPECIALS
1 GREAT PRICE
$60 COLOR AND HAIRCUT OR STYLING
*with Jess, Heather, & Nichole
*additional costs may be included on additional colors
*call for details
GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
3266 Kimball • Candlewood • 776-5632

Religion Directory

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
5:00 p.m. Contemporary Service
6:00 p.m. Dinner for College Students
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

Westview Community Church
Worship services 9:00 a.m. 10:45 a.m.
Sunday school 9:00 a.m.
Campus ministry director: Carol Buchheister - cybuch@juno.com
3001 Fort Riley Boulevard
www.westviewcommunity.com
785-537-7173

LET'S HELP OUR LOCAL CHARITIES
Please consider a contribution to support our local charities.
THINK GLOBALLY. ACT LOCALLY.

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

Home of the Wildcats

St. Francis Episcopal Campus Ministry
at Kansas State University
Sunday worship at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Sixth & Poyntz, Manhattan
785-776-9427
11:30 a.m. Contemporary Service (followed by lunch for RSU students)
Monday, 5:30 pm. Supper & Conversation at St. Francis/Canterbury House, 1823 Laramie St.
Drew Vining, Program Coordinator, 341-3221

CrossRoads of K-State
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4781
David Jones, Pastor
Sundays 5:30pm
Table Fellowship (free food!)
Wednesdays 5:00pm
Bible Study
Thursdays 6:30pm
Fantasy and Spirituality
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road. (South on K-177 across viaduct, left on K-18 1/2 mile)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Day care for toddlers.
A Welcoming Congregation.
For information call (785) 537-2349
Rev. Michael Nelson
www.uufm.net

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
330 Sunset Avenue
Saturday-
Traditional Worship 6:00 p.m.
Sunday-
Traditional Worship 8:30 a.m.
College Bible Study 9:45 a.m.
Contemporary Worship 11:00 a.m.
Email: stlukes@flinthills.com
(785) 539-2604

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00, 10:30, 10:40, 12:00
• Sunday School at 9:15
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086

NEW HOPE community church
Pursuing relationships that change the world
Worship Service 9 & 10:45 AM
Small groups for men, women & married couples
College and Family Ministries,
www.newhopeks.org
3905 GREEN VALLEY ROAD
537-2389

All Welcome to Worship!
Sunday Evening-7p.m. Danforth Chapel
New on Thursday Oct. 20
6p.m. Meal & Dialog at Luther House
1745 Anderson
-SE Corner of Denison & Anderson-
Nov. 5-Walk Konza Trails
ELCA-If ! 313-3895 LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY

Come Worship With Us
1st Church of the Nazarene
3031 Kimball Ave.
9:30 Sunday School
10:40 Sunday Worship
7:00 Wed. Bible Study, Teens
Youth & College ministry opportunities
Senior Pastor: Pat Weyranch
539-6376

Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church
Established in 1879
401 Yuma Street
(1 Bl. North of Ft. Riley Blvd. at 4th Street)
Reverend Penny Pitchford
Pastor
(785) 539-5897 Church (913) 321-0974 Pastor
Sunday School 9:30 AM
Breakfast 10:30 AM
Worship Service 11:00 AM
"Enter To Worship, Depart To Serve"

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:15 & 10:45 a.m.
Bible Classes For All Ages 9:30 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

You are welcome at...
FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD

First United Methodist Church
Worship at 8:30, 8:45 and 11:00
Come at 8:30 and 11:00 for more traditional worship with choirs and organ in our beautiful sanctuary.
Come at 8:45 for a BLENDED worship in our auditorium. Free doughnuts. 45 minutes long. Great band. COME AS YOU ARE!
Come at 9:45 for Sunday School in the auditorium. A special class for college students, relating the Bible to YOUR life.
JUST COME.
612 Poyntz, Manhattan Kansas
CAMPUS MINISTRY! Check out the website: Ksu.edu/umcm

For College Students
CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
www.ksuchialpha.com
Wednesday 8:00 p.m. (KSU Little Theater)
Pastor Bryan Elliott
Sunday Services
Sunday School 9:00 a.m.
Morning Worship 10:15 a.m.
Evening Worship 6:00 p.m.
Nursery Provided for All Services
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr. Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

Celebration Service
CONTEMPORARY WORSHIP SERVICE
For Everyone! All ages and all people who want to worship God. Sundays at 5 p.m.
Fellowship Meal at 6 for College Students
First Presbyterian Church
801 Leavenworth
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-537-0518
Pastor: R.C. McConnell
Associate Pastor: Anne Scheiber
Email: staff@firstpresmanhattan.com
www.firstpresmanhattan.com
"Sing to the Lord a new song, his praise from the ends of the earth..." Isaiah 42:10

TO THE POINT

University needs more housing options

Would you like to live in your car? Not even if it was parked in a brand-spanking new parking garage on campus?

Approximately 8,000 soldiers are expected to transfer to Fort Riley as early as 2007, the product of the federal government's Base Realignment and Closure Plan. The soldiers will be dragging with them more than 11,000 dependents and 2,600 civilian workers.

They'll need places to live and they'll be competing with you for housing.

According to the 2000 U.S. Census, 57 percent of Manhattan residents rent apartments or homes, and a vacancy rate of only 3.4 percent proves there is already a dearth of housing.

The city of Manhattan has already begun planning for this inevitable population swell and campus officials need to begin doing the same. More housing is going to be needed to accommodate both students and military.

While a long-term redevelopment of the Jardine Apartments will add some housing on campus, the project won't be completed for the better part of a decade.

In the meantime, students will have to compete with families who have more money and resources.

It's time to be practical. What good is a roof over your car if you don't have one over your head?

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Loving the simple life

Autumn a time to relieve college stresses by enjoying the little things

RACHEL THOMPSON

Autumn is a stunning, gloriously pretty time of year when the weather cools off, the air is crisp, the leaves change colors and, the holiday season is approaching as the days shorten. As many activities move indoors, people begin to added layers of clothing and they are snuggling for warmth. The stresses of college coursework are also piling up.

While K-State is a superb place to spend this season, it is also a time in the semester when the amount of projects, studying, writing and tests reaches a crescendo.

Enjoying the simple things that make everyday great is one of the best feelings, and is often forgotten during these times when classes are running haywire. Enjoying the juicy pleasures that surround us as we walk through our lives is an ever continuing way to interact and fully participate in the world as it changes, expands and plunges forward.

Walking across campus to class, while chatting on a cell phone is no way to invigorate your day and really appreciate the beauty that envelops our senses and allows our minds and bodies to relax. Taking time to literally stop and smell the roses, time to enjoy the journey to where ever you may be going, seems to be a talent that many people have forgotten or simply never cultivated. If you are traveling to your destination with tunnel vision, there is so much of the world, and the people in the world, that you will miss.

Opening up the senses and discovering the world is a potent way to expand your awareness of what you have never noticed before. We all too often walk through the campus blind to its offerings and the plush impulses that pretty thoughts offer to our lives. We will never again be in a setting so allowing in such exploration of who we would like to be and what discoveries we may make about ourselves that will open up an entirely new world.

The simplicity of this ability to appreciate the little things is an excellent way for people to test the waters of the unknown, to change their lives with baby steps. Enjoy an ice cream sundae with all the toppings or a mug of hot chocolate with those little marshmallows floating on top. Sit down to have a good long conversation with a friend, or write a love note to your significant other. There are so many ways the playfulness and joy of life can be treasured without sacrificing your completion of the pile of homework that builds as the leaves fall.

Life and college can be much more fun than an endless array of classes and work, but as many serious students work hard in order to graduate, the time taken to pause and breathe is a welcome and necessary way to enjoy life.

Illustrations by Eric Thompson | COLLEGIAN

Rachel Thompson is a sophomore in anthropology and international studies. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Show others how to treat you

ADDIE LAUE

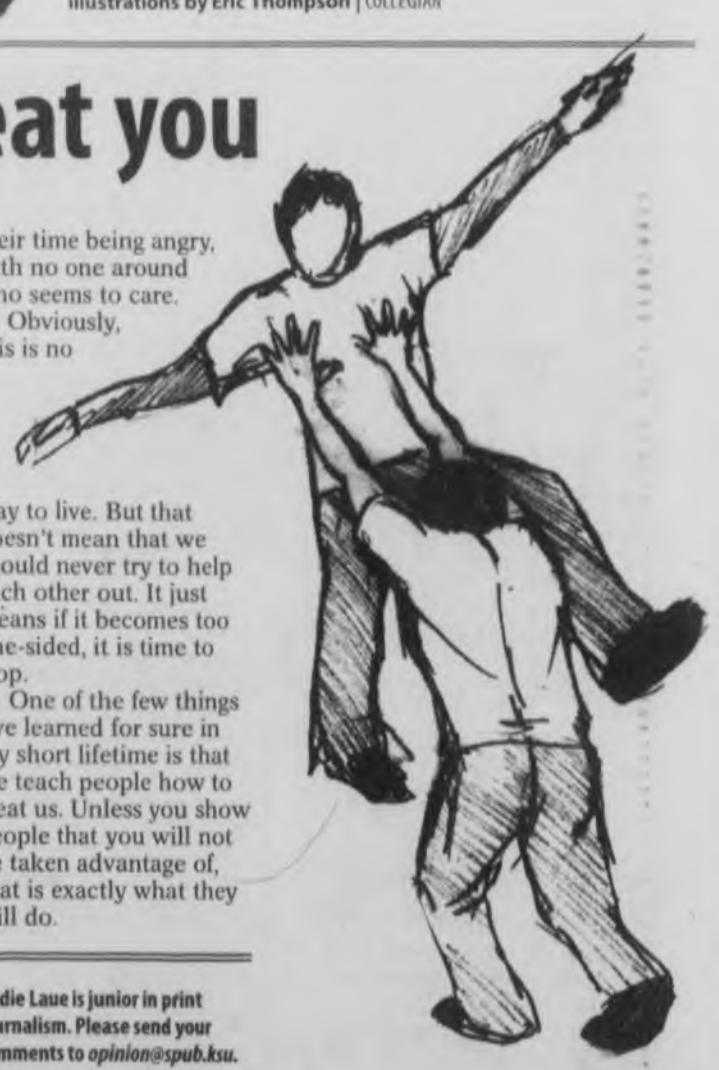
One of my best friends is a push-over.

It used to be worse. In high school, he was more than just a push-over. He would do almost anything for anyone, sometimes without even being asked. Even I am guilty, or I feel that way, anyway. I remember mentioning some new nail polish I wanted one morning in class, and by lunch he'd bought it for me.

I know you might be thinking he must have wanted to date me or expected something in return. If that was true, I don't think it is why he acted this way. He did these favors for everyone. And he was burning himself out for other people to try to fill a need of his own.

At that time in his life, he was, like most of us, in desperate need for acceptance. The more favors he did for people, the more he believed they would like him.

Today, his situation is not nearly as extreme. But old habits die hard, and just the other day it happened again. He was supposed to go to work at 5 p.m. (he was already filling in for someone else on his day off) and he got a call asking him to come in a few hours earlier, because someone wanted to go out of town. I shook my head as he agreed, but as soon as he hung up the phone he was furious.



My friend is not the only one with this problem. Everyone knows who to call when they need someone to fill in at work, need help with their homework or need to borrow money. The world seems to be filled with push-overs.

Most people become push-overs for the same reason my friend did: they need acceptance. But it rarely works out for them. People may seem grateful and appreciative at the time something is done for them, but somehow, they're never available to do favors in return. And the more often favors are done for them, the less they show appreciation and the more they seem to expect it.

Even worse than being unappreciated and becoming expected to bail everyone else out, it doesn't take long for push-overs to become very angry at being taken advantage of. They end up spending most of their time being angry, with no one around who seems to care.

Obviously, this is no way to live. But that doesn't mean that we should never try to help each other out. It just means if it becomes too one-sided, it is time to stop.

One of the few things I've learned for sure in my short lifetime is that we teach people how to treat us. Unless you show people that you will not be taken advantage of, that is exactly what they will do.

Addie Laue is junior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Webmail doesn't work. Webmail never works. iTAC is completely worthless. We despise you.

Zachary Eckels, it's war not a baseball. War is about who wins and who loses. There are no points given as to how you play game.

So according to one person, that even unborn humans have a right to be alive, why do we only start counting birthdays once they pop out?

To whoever wants to "chunk" Bill Snyder: The man has a couple of bad seasons and you want to forget everything he has done for this school over the past fifteen years? Go to hell.

Feel how warm my head is.

If you can kill two birds with one stone, imagine what you could do to one bird with two stones.

Homecoming is going to be so baller.

Which house has the spirit sign with all of the fetuses on it? Go team! Flush the Fetuses!

Butters, why did you just throw a huge acorn at me? I've never hurt a squirrel before, but if you keep throwing stuff at me, that's going to change.

About the identity and dating article: the worst is when you know someone who's in one of those relationships and they converse only in baby-talk with their other half whenever you're around.

Facebook has taken procrastination to another level with the new My Photos option. I just can't help but waste my time!

It is official that the only things anyone can ever talk about are campus diversity, rape and abortion. They are good issues but it is getting a little old.

There is nothing in the Constitution or the Bill of Rights that says you have the right to not be offended. If you disagree with freedom of speech, feel free to live in another country.

Ladies, come over to my place and I'll show you the real cat cannon.

Collegian writer has hints of homosexuality.

Much like old school Atari and Nintendo, Bill Snyder is awesome, and appreciated by the most knowledgeable of fans.

I just wanted to say that, liberals are always talking about how conservatives don't want to see what's right in front of their faces and what the truth is. JFA is simply presenting the truth, what really goes on, and liberals are running scared.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Comparing abortions, fallen soldiers unfair

Editor,

I was taken aback as I read the Fourum today, how a nameless person used this event (the vivid display of aborted fetuses) to make a statement about fallen soldiers.

This person stated "In honor of the pro-lifers, we should get a huge billboard with pictures of dead soldiers all over it. That way they can see what their leader has done, just a thought." Yes, it is "just a thought" but not a very educated or compassionate one.

Nor is it even in the same realm of thinking as that of "to abort or not to abort." We are at war, and men and women of our United States are losing their lives, bravely and selflessly. This is a choice each man and woman made; not to die, but to take that risk of losing his or her life.

Each of us make choices every day; and to place blame on anyone but ourselves for those choices is ignorant and cowardly. Joining the army and having an abortion are choices individuals make and live with; being aborted is not.

I am not taking a stance on whether or not aborted fetuses should be displayed, however I do believe that it is unfair to display the bodies of fallen soldiers to make some political statement about the choices of our leaders and those who sacrifice so much on behalf of all of us.

Whatever your reason for making such a suggestion, maybe just stop to think next time about what you dare to compare and maybe try a little compassion for others' choices.

Brandi Eilert
SOPHOMORE IN PSYCHOLOGY

Nazi analogy flawed

Editor,

I am writing this letter in response to inaccuracies in the Justice For All photo exhibit sponsored by the World Christian Fellowship.

The exhibit compares the rising number of U.S. abortions to the racial persecution of African-Americans and Native Americans, the atrocities of the Khmer Rouge regime in Cambodia and the Holocaust.

As a person whose family members perished in the Holocaust, I found this comparison to be a gross distortion and an offensive misrepresentation of the truth.

The display equates abortions to acts of genocide. Genocide is defined as "the systematic and planned extermination of an entire national, racial, political or ethnic group." Abortion's definition is, "the premature termination of pregnancy resulting in the death of any or all carried embryos or fetuses."

The use of the term "genocide" to evoke emotional support to oppose abortion is not conducive to clear thinking on abortion, nor to a proper understanding of the Holocaust.

In the Holocaust, millions suffered and died at the hands the Nazis. Terminated pregnancies are not analogous to systematic extermination.

This display shows the increasingly cavalier use of improper comparisons to Nazis and the Holocaust in political contexts. It is degrading and disrespectful to the memory of those who died in actual historical genocides to argue their lives are comparable to a medical procedure.

I'm not writing this letter to debate the legalities of abortion. Rather, I'd like to point the trivialization of the deaths of millions in an effort to generate publicity for a cause.

Mandy Stark
JUNIOR IN AGRICULTURAL COMMUNICATIONS

Difference between girl, woman misunderstood

Editor,

I am utterly disappointed once again after reading your article concerning women and the magazine Cosmopolitan.

First, I would question on whether or not a girl was actually hitting on you, at a bar; more so, I would like to ask why a girl, a pre-adolescent child, was at a bar to begin with. You seem to be quite confused about the difference between a woman and a girl. For you to look at women as girls says something about you to begin with.

Second, I find it very frustrating that you think that women are not able to develop their own thoughts and ideas, but instead resort to a magazine. From my personal experiences, Cosmo is read more for a humor/fashion factor instead of a "how to live my life" to do list. I am glad that you are able to state the obvious when you conclude that some of the ideas and comments may be made up, but that is another issue that should be taken up with the magazine itself.

Mr. Becker, I would strongly recommend that you look outside of your box, and maybe expose yourself to some diversity and culture. Even a basic women's studies class would help you so much. The 'girl' that hit on you at the bar, thank goodness she had her 'wing-person' with her in order to protect her from someone like you.

Sarah L. Laib
SENIOR IN SPEECH
Rebecca Townsend
SENIOR IN SOCIAL SCIENCE
Katy Tompkins
SENIOR IN POLITICAL SCIENCE
Laura Hartley
SENIOR IN HISTORY

Editorial inaccurate; privilege fee discussions take place in committee

Editor,

Your article and editorial regarding student privilege fees that ran in Thursday's edition of the Collegian were inaccurate and filled with half-truths.

First, the article mistakenly states that students will have to fund increases for University Counseling Services of $561,399 for fiscal year 2007 (the actual increase is $16,842).

The article also stated that each student would have to pay $24-$26 to fund this entity; this is not true. Currently, students have paid no more than $14.86 for fiscal year 2006.

The Student Senate Privilege Fee Committee has spent three weeks reviewing and analyzing the funding options for Counseling Services and has found that an increase is necessary to maintain services. Counseling Services, along with several other campus entities receive privilege fee dollars based on student usage. We in turn, must cover a portion of their operating expenses. To say that Student Senate should find other sources of funding for these entities is bogus. Student senators' allocating power is limited to student fees.

Most of senate's discussions and reviews happen in committees, not on the senate floor. We follow the guidelines of the Open Meetings Act in all meetings. The editorial points out that Student Senate needs to "roll up their sleeves and do some good old-fashioned brain storming and number crunching." This was done in the Privilege Fee Committee meetings. It is unfortunate that the Collegian staff wrote an editorial without attending any of the committee meetings; thus providing a woefully uninformed opinion.

Matt Wagner
PRIVILEGE FEE CHAIR
K-STATE STUDENT GOVERNING ASSOCIATION

Genocidal acts being manipulated

Editor,

Today, I found myself troubled, not so much by the Justice For All's graphic display, but by the label of genocide. Coined by Raphael Lemkin in 1944 while the Holocaust was occurring, genocide was defined as "the deliberate and systematic destruction of an ethnic or national group."

Justice For All gave a definition of genocide that roughly amounted to the destruction of any "people group," failing to understand that genocide is based in racial, ethnic or religious hatred.

This is according to the United Nations, the United States Holocaust Museum and any other genocide watch group.

In attempting to prove that genocide was not always racially motivated, one person at the exhibit brought up the Cambodian massacre. Those persecuted in Cambodia were Chinese, Vietnamese, Buddhist and Muslim (see the Cambodian Genocide Group Web site).

This fits the definition of genocide, as it is ethnically and religiously motivated.

The problem is that those people at the Justice For All display are manipulating the act of genocide for their own means. They provided incorrect definitions for genocide and gave false information about the Cambodian genocide.

My concern at the moment is not about pro-life or pro-choice, but the misappropriation of genocide for a group's moral agenda.

Sara Hupp
SENIOR IN HISTORY

kstatecollegian.com

ALL KEGS $5 OFF
Natural Lt. 30pk $10.99
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor

Manhattan Jaycees
28th Annual Haunted House
"A Blast From the Past"
October 28-31 7-Midnight
$5 for adults
$3 for children under 12
Friday night bring a canned item
8845 Quail Land
Behind Dara's Fast Lane on Hwy 24

Microbuff and Mud Wrap
You and a friend $20
Stimulate circulation, exfoliate and renew your skin
512 Poyntz Ave.
776-4794
Crum's Beauty College
Services performed by supervised students

KSU Meat Sale
FRIDAY • Noon-5:45 p.m.
Rm. 166 • Weber Hall
BEEF
roast, steak, ground beef, bratwurst
PORK
pork chops, pork steaks, sausage, ground pork, bacon
LAMB
chops, roast, ground lamb
Paid for by Kansas State University.
For information call 532-1279

Drink Specials
$1.50 Vodka Poppers
{Flavored Italian Soda with Vodka}
$4.75 Snuggler
{Hot Chocolate, Kahlua, Peppermint Schnapps}
BLUESTEM bistro
1219 Moro • Manhattan

Where do you Find

Your News?
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6560

Feed Your Gameday Hunger with Gumby's Order 20" Big Ass 1-Topping for $11.99 or 2 for $21.99
GUMBY'S Pizza
702 N. 11th Street • 770-3333

JUST BECAUSE WE CAN, SHOULD WE?
H_2O
Presentation on Biotechnologies:
Assisted reproductive technologies, stem cell research, cloning, and genetic engineering.
Sunday, October 30, 8pm
K-State Union, Big XII Room
OPEN TO ALL
Sponsored by Lutheran Student Fellowship

We can't get you girls. Or boys.
We can't get you beer or cigarettes.
You won't be any cooler.
You won't be more attractive.
You won't be thinner, smarter, or suddenly wealthy.
But maybe, just maybe,
you'll get the experience you need to land a job that CAN get you those things...after college.
The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:
Executive Positions Spring 2006
• Editor in Chief
• Advertising Sales Manager
News Positions Spring 2006
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists • Graphic Artists
• Graphic Artists • Online Journalists
Advertising Positions Spring 2006
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives
Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. Nov. 16.
Get the experience you NEED.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

ROWING

Wildcats to race in Iowa

By Jessica Barnard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State rowers may find themselves in rough water this weekend, as they compete Sunday in the 17th annual Head of the Iowa regatta.

The team will travel to the University of Iowa to compete against 24 other teams from collegiate and club levels.

The Wildcats will race against three teams that finished last season nationally ranked: Wisconsin (11), Minnesota (17) and Iowa (20).

Varsity rower Megan Hauver said competing against nationally ranked teams presents the Wildcats the chance to prove themselves.

"I think it's a good opportunity to prove that we can race with them, and that rankings this early in the season don't necessarily mean a whole lot," Hauver said.

Although K-State hopes to beat the nationally ranked teams Sunday, coach Patrick Sweeney said the powerhouse teams will not be K-State's toughest competition.

"In this type of timed racing, you're racing against the clock," he said. "You are literally racing the clock more than the opponents."

The race will be 2.5 miles on the Iowa River, with teams competing in a head-to-head format. In a head-to-head race, teams leave the starting point one after another, with a 15-second interval between each team. The team with the best time down the course will win the race.

Heather Hoffman, novice rower, said she is unsure of which team will be K-State's biggest competition.

"I couldn't tell you which team is going to be the one to beat, since they're all going to be pretty tough," Hoffman said.

At last year's Head of the Iowa regatta, K-State finished the weekend with three top-10 finishes, including a fourth-place finish in the Women's Open 8+ race.

Hauver said she hopes to repeat the success from last season.

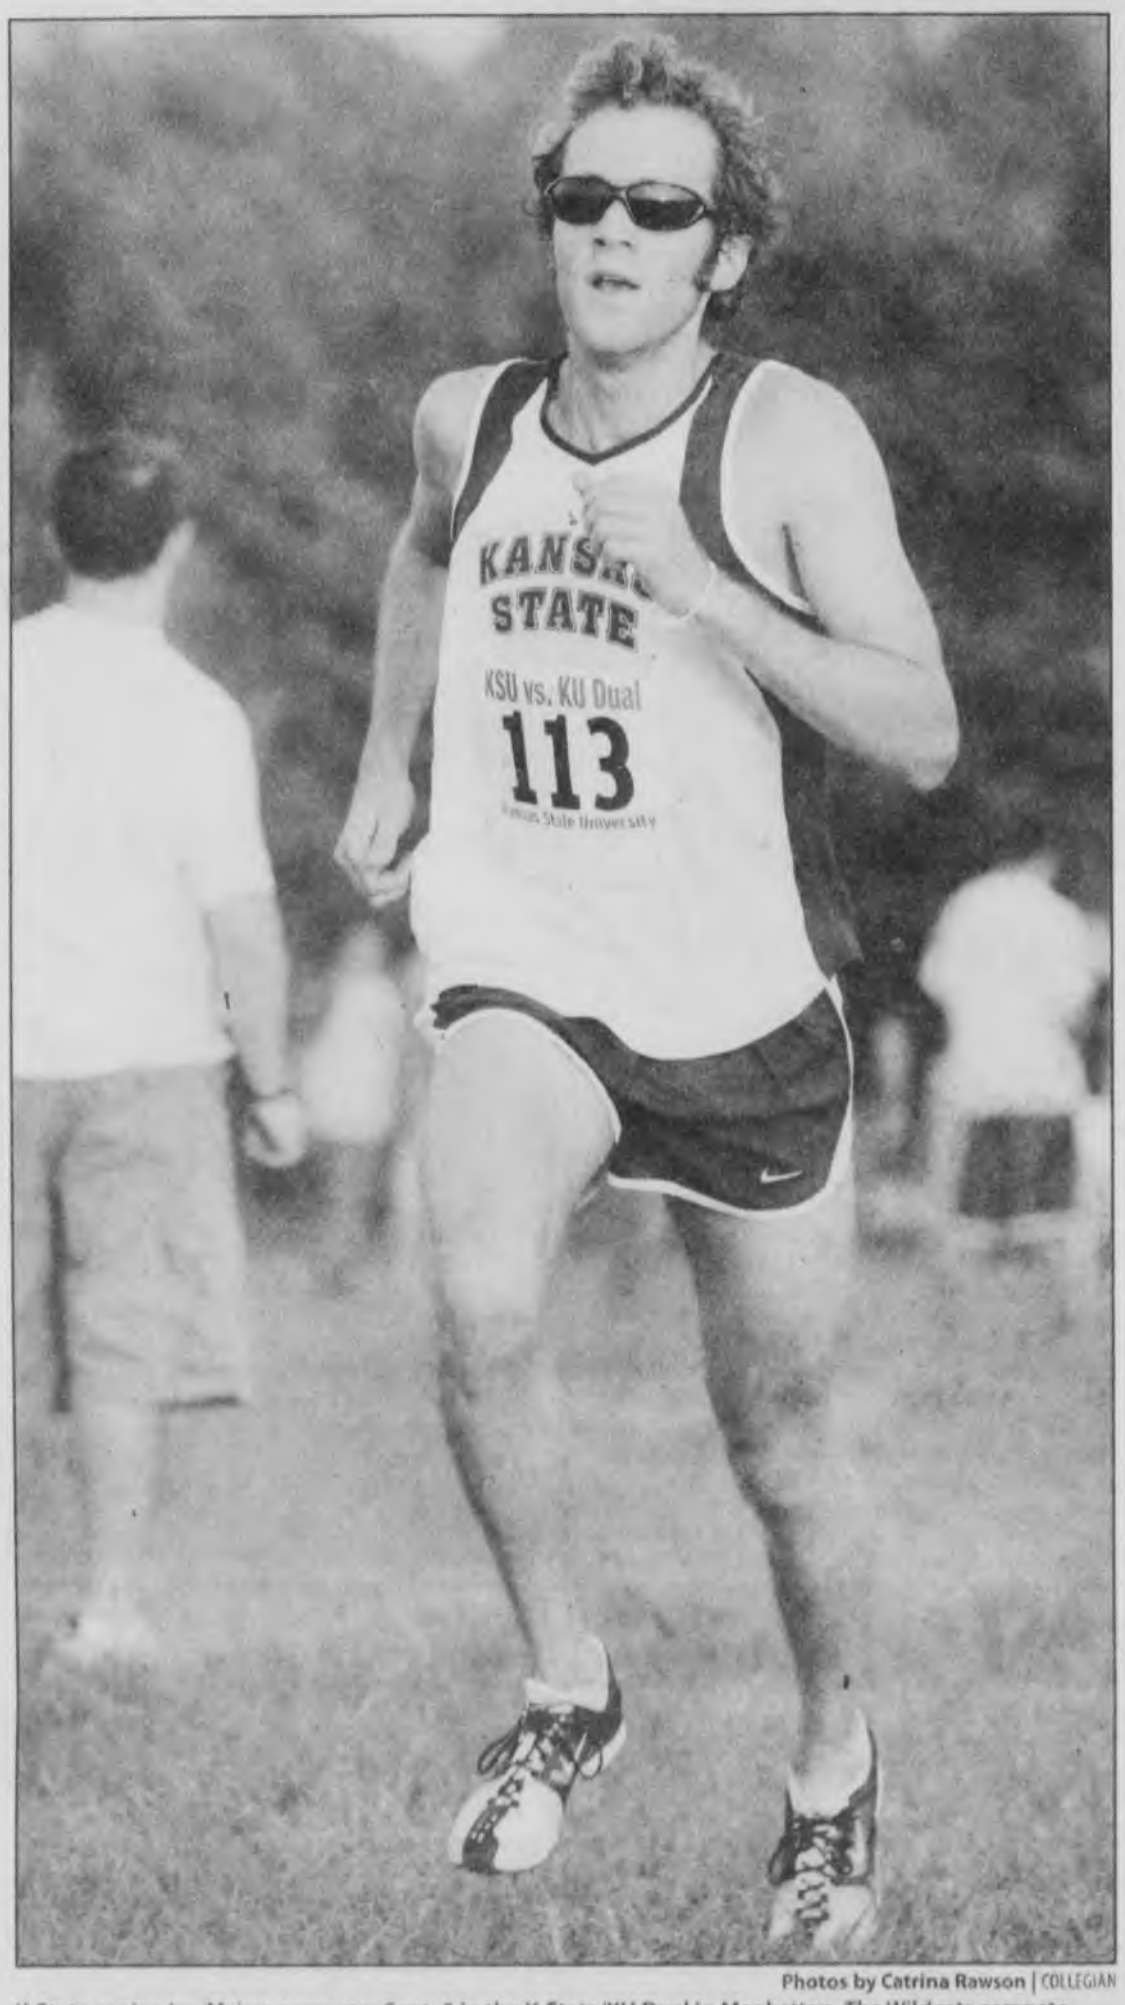
"Basing off last year, when we had three finishes in the top 10, I'd either like to match that or better that," Hauver said. "I'd like to be competitive with Iowa, since they're hosting it. It'd be fun to upset them."

Although the fall races count toward the team's record, Sweeney said he uses them primarily as a tool to measure the team's progress.

He said the most important part of competing in the fall is teaching the girls how to push themselves in a race situation, as well as teaching them how to handle their nerves on race day.

Sweeney said the rowers can train hard, but they don't learn how to push themselves until they are in race situations.

The team also uses the fall races to perfect their technique, gain strength and find a steady rowing rhythm.



"Basically, the biggest thing that we're concerned with is improving technique and endurance, and finding a rhythm," Hoffman said. "Once you have those things, you can build on that and increase power and speed."

Along with adapting the rowers to the race atmosphere, Sweeney said he uses the fall races to determine the boat line-ups for the spring races.

He said he expects the rowers to prove their toughness and capabilities in the fall, in order to be able to compete in the spring.

"I'm looking for people who want to be tough and race hard all the way down the course," Sweeney said, "I'm looking for tough athletes. There's no timeouts in rowing. You've got to keep going when you're dead."

Season-ender

Photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

K-State senior Joe Moore competes Sept. 9 in the K-State/KU Dual in Manhattan. The Wildcats compete next in Waco, Texas, at the Big 12 Championships today.

Cats to run at Big 12 Championship

By Chris Patch
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State cross country season culminates today at the Big 12 Conference Championships in Waco, Texas.

The meet marks the end of a season of ups and downs for K-State, one that saw the men's team struggle to crack into the top half of meets, and the women battle injuries and inexperience.

The race will be a test for the Wildcats, who have not fared well against Big 12 foes this season. The women's squad never beat a conference opponent, while the men managed to beat Baylor at the Chile Pepper Invitational in Fayetteville, Ark.

The men, unlike the women, are running at full strength and should get a good evaluation of where they stand in the conference.

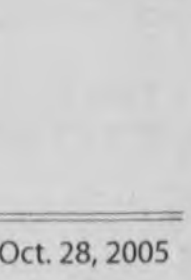
Coach Michael Smith said he thinks the team is able to out-perform last year's, but it is hard to predict.

"On the men's side, we're better prepared as a team," he said. "From two through nine we're a better team than we were a year ago. So, as far as preparation goes, I think these guys are ready to run faster than they did last year, and the newcomers are better than the newcomers we've had in the past.

"I'm going to shy away from a prediction and just tell you that we'll be better than we've been all year. I just don't know where that will finish us."

K-State's sophomore Stephanie Lavin and freshman Jana Gwinn compete Sept. 9 in the K-State/KU Dual in Manhattan.

The women's team, which has found itself near the back of the pack this season, could benefit from the addition of two runners returning from injuries.



See CROSS COUNTRY Page 10

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

MLB | Rockies sign DeJean to one-year contract

DENVER — Pitcher Mike DeJean signed a one-year contract Thursday that will keep him with the Colorado Rockies through next season.

DeJean

Other terms of the deal, which includes a mutual option for a one-year extension, were not revealed.

The 35-year-old DeJean went 5-4 last year with a 4.48 ERA in 66 relief appearances for the Rockies and the New York Mets.

DeJean was released by the Mets and signed with the Rockies in early July.

MLB | Bowa to become Yankees' third base coach

Larry Bowa accepted the New York Yankees' offer to become the team's third base coach Thursday.

Bowa

A former manager of the San Diego Padres and Philadelphia Phillies, Bowa said he's prepared to work for Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who doesn't hesitate to second-guess his coaches.

Bowa was a five-time All-Star as a player, and he managed San Diego in 1987 and 1988, and Philadelphia from 2001 to 2004.

He was a third-base coach for the Phillies (1988-96), the Angels (1997-99) and Seattle (2000).

NFL | Broncos lineman injured in multi-car crash

AURORA, Colo. — Denver Broncos offensive lineman Dwayne Carswell was in critical but stable condition Thursday after he was seriously injured in a five-car accident.

Carswell

Broncos general manager Ted Sundquist told KCNC-TV in Denver that Carswell tore his diaphragm and had internal bleeding in his chest. Doctors were trying to determine whether there were injuries to his heart or aorta, Sundquist said.

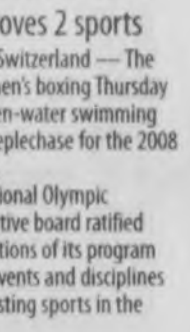
Team spokesman Jim Saccomano said Carswell was undergoing surgery but refused to release any details.

Hospital spokeswoman Beverly Petry said Carswell was still in surgery, five hours after the crash, in critical but stable condition.

OLY | IOC rejects women's boxing, approves 2 sports

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — The IOC rejected women's boxing Thursday but approved open-water swimming and women's steeplechase for the 2008 Beijing Olympics.

The International Olympic Committee executive board ratified the recommendations of its program commission for events and disciplines within the 28 existing sports in the Summer Games.



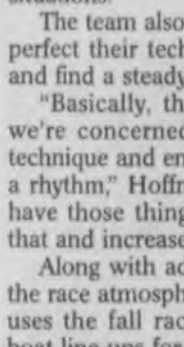
Also approved were increases in women's teams in soccer, field hockey and handball from 10 to 12, and the replacement of doubles with team events in table tennis.

The IOC, striving for gender equity in the Olympics, said the changes will result in 80 more female athletes at the games. At the 2004 Athens Olympics, 41 percent of the competitors were women.

Thursday's decision means there will be 302 medal events in Beijing, one more than in Athens.

GLF | Van de Velde wants to play in Women's British

SOTOGRANDE, Spain — French golfer Jean Van de Velde will attempt to enter next year's Women's British Open because he is upset women may qualify for the men's division of the 2006 British Open. Recent policy set by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club will allow women to qualify for next year's British Open.



Van de Velde

"My whole point is where do we draw the line?" Van de Velde asked after shooting a 7-over-par 78 Thursday in the first round of the Volvo Masters.

"If we accept that women can enter our tournaments, then it applies that men can play with women."

College football more than just a game, full of rich history

MATT GORNEY

For my birthday last week, my dad took time from his busy schedule to drive to Manhattan and take me to lunch. He also brought along some gifts from my family.

The only thing I asked for was the ESPN College Football Encyclopedia, and lo and behold, I got it.

Being the die-hard K-State fan I am, I immediately opened to the Wildcat's section and perused the multitude of stats and facts contained in the book. A few pages over was a section with pictures of helmet designs each team has had over the years.

As I looked at each team's helmet, I realized the book was a testament to the grand history of college football.

For more than a century, college football stadiums have been the sites where fans have gathered to cheer on their teams. The myths and legends that have arisen from these playing fields have only fueled the continued excitement that radiates from some of the nation's most historic programs.

Although it began as just a game, college football is now on a different level than other sports. On-field feats have become the things of legend and coaches are given god-like status at some universities.

K-State has two good examples of this, which current students can easily remember. Darren Sproles' run over Oklahoma in the 2003 Big 12 Championship is often touted by K-Staters as one of the program's most amazing moments.

Bill Snyder's job in turning around one of the worst college football teams is an epic story worthy of unfathomable praise.

All of this is chronicled in the College Football Encyclopedia; look it up. But the encyclopedia also tells the unique story of every other Division-I college football team.

The stunning upsets, last-second victories and break-out performances are what make college football so exciting not only to watch, but watch again and again.

College football also has the ability to bring together fans of all types and ages and that is the true legacy of the game. Alumni return, watch games and sit at tailgates while reminiscing of what things were like in "the old days."

Stories of seeing some of the NFL's greatest players streak down the field before they were stars are conveyed to a younger generation who likewise pass new stories to the older fans.

It is more than a game. College football is an experience no matter where you watch it. Seeing fans without shirts on in pouring rain and sub-zero temperatures just shows what lengths people will go to for their team.

Remember that the traditions we have today come from all of those fans who stood in the student section before you.

With All-University Homecoming culminating in a football game against Colorado on Saturday, remember the history of not only the Wildcats but the game of college football.

And don't be afraid to trade football barbs with some of the alumni – they have good stories, too.

Matt Gorney is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

TIME WARP

'Rocky Horror Picture Show' celebrates 30th anniversary

By Alex Peak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State Student Union will be doing a "Time Warp" for the 27th time tonight as participants celebrate the 30th anniversary of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

It has become a tradition for K-State to have a viewing of the film, which features Susan Sarandon, Tim Curry and Barry Bostwick, each fall.

"It has been going on every year since 1978," said Rebecca Butler, co-chair of the Union Program Council film committee and graduate student in theater.

The show begins at midnight in the Union Grand Ballroom and other pre-show activities include a costume contest and virgin auction. First-time viewers of the show, "virgins," can be auctioned off for used items like a used piece of gum, old parking tickets, old shoes, etc., Mary Renee Smith, master of ceremonies for the show, said.

"It's not a great piece of cinema," Smith said. "It's a unique story about a stranded young couple and scary castle with transvestites." She said it's the atmosphere and the dressing up that makes the event so much fun.

Smith said she has been attending the shows and serving as master of ceremonies off and on for nine years. Being the ring leader, she said she has noticed that each year less and less people know all of the audience participation roles as well and need more prompting.

"The film is older than most of the people that come to the show," she said, explaining why many audience members don't know all of the lines.

The film draws a lot of audience participation, including throwing objects at the screen and shouting, Smith said. To help avoid damage to the ballroom, the floor is covered in plastic and a bag of props is provided for viewers. The bag includes toast, playing cards, newspaper and rice.

"Traditionally people dress up like characters from the movie, but now they are dressing in anything that is lewd and lascivious," Smith said. "It's an excuse for grown-ups to dress up and enjoy Halloween. All of the freaks come out of the woodwork."

Some of the characters Smith said she sees the most are Magenta, Rocky Horror and Dr. Frank-N-Furter.

"This is a chance to go all out, go overboard. Nothing could be too outrageous," she said.

Butler said students should go dressed up, Rocky Horror-style.

"It's more fun if you dress up," Butler said. "We just don't want anyone to be completely naked."

She added that many people wear lingerie or racy things instead of being specific characters.

Butler said she is not a Rocky Horror virgin.

"I've been going to the shows since I was a freshman in high school in Kansas City and Wichita," Butler said, "and the ones at K-State since I started here and I'm a fifth year."

Butler said 200 to 300 people are expected for the show this year.

AJ Bradley, graduate student in theater, said she is attending the show for the first time tomorrow night. She said she hasn't seen the movie, but does know how to do the "Time Warp."

"I just know it's going to be crazy," Bradley said, referring to her expectations for the event.

"I'm going to have to have my friends dress me or at least point me in the right direction for a costume," she said.

Smith said people of all ages from all over Kansas come to the show.

"It helps break the stereotype that Kansas is so conservative," she said.

Smith said she wants people to keep in mind that the show and the activities beforehand are R-rated.

"This is an adult event. There is cannibalism, transvestites and sex," she said.

Photo illustration by Emily Lawrence
COLLEGIAN

The Rocky Horror Picture Show Rules of Etiquette

1. The throwing of rice, toilet paper, water, etc. is part of the fun. It is not meant to harm people, ruin someone's make-up or costume, or cause damage to the theater.

2. Never make fun of someone for "dressing up" — especially if their costume or make-up is not exact. The point is that their heart is in it and this might discourage them or others from ever returning in costume and that's what this cult's all about, isn't it?

3. If you portray a certain character in your theater or its performing group, don't get angry or jealous if someone else comes dressed as that character. Remember that the movie and its characters are not your exclusive property. When you think about it, any resentment is hypocritical to your own "dressing up".

4. Respect the wishes of the theater and its management. Vandalism and the breaking of rules might not only lead to your ejection, but to the closing of the film. This would only be spoiling it for everyone.

5. If visitors from other theaters or areas comes to visit, don't try to "shout them down." Respect the fact that they might yell different "lines". Why, you might even find some new ones more preferable to your own.

6. Calling the characters names is funny in their proper place, but should not be yelled every time you see these characters' faces. It does get boring and monotonous.

Source: Official Rocky Horror Picture Show fan club

Rule No. 1: Don't promise to never break up with her

Ask the 5th year

MATT PETERWORTH

I want to break up with my girlfriend, but I don't know how I should do it.

Can you offer any suggestions?

Let me begin by saying I am the last person you should be coming to for advice on how to break up with your girlfriend. Let me tell you why.

In high school, I didn't have much luck with the ladies. In fact, I didn't have any luck at all. Not one to take things laying down, I decided to do some research to try to improve my girlfriend-finding abilities.

Before I came to college, I read the book "How To Make Anyone Fall In Love With You." I got up to Manhattan and the very first night I met a girl at the back-to-school dance outside Haymaker Hall. We started going out. She even took me home the next weekend.

After a couple of weeks, it became obvious to me that things weren't going to work out. Unfortunately, I had put myself between a rock and a hard place when I promised I would not break up with her. Never, under any circumstance, should you promise you will not break up with her.

Since I couldn't end things, I had to wait for her to break things off. Rather than passively wait for her to realize that things weren't working out, I decided to jump start the process by treating her badly.

Before you write a letter to the editor saying that Matthew Peterworth is a sexist pig, let me elaborate on what I did. She came crying on my shoulder one afternoon, telling me she just found out it would take her six years to graduate with the degree she wanted. I put my arm around her and said, "Come on, it will take you six years if you take 15 hours a semester. But you're only taking 12 hours a semester. It will take you seven or eight years to graduate."

Needless to say, she broke up with me within a couple of days. She did it in grand fashion, though. We were hanging out in my dorm room when I went to get lunch really quick. I get back to my room, she is gone and there is a message on my dry-erase board.

My first relationship at K-State ended on my dry-erase board! Of course, I was heartbroken. There's no better way to get over the last girl than by getting under the next girl. Within the next week, I had another girlfriend. Things were going well until...

She called me up and told me she had mononucleosis. If you know anything about this illness, you know it makes you extremely tired all of the time. I heard horror stories from my runner friends in high school who got mono and couldn't run for weeks.

I had a nice streak going of running at least a mile a day for the last 600 days. I didn't want to lose my streak. So I did what any guy in my situation would do, I stopped talking to her altogether. I stopped calling her and she never called me. That was it, a complete breakup, cold turkey. We didn't even break up on the phone then.

That was not a very gentleman-like thing for me to do, and I don't suggest that you stop talking to her altogether. As you can tell from my first two relationships freshman year, I don't know how to break up with a girl. Maybe you can learn from my mistakes and know what not to do.

Matt Peterworth is a fifth-year senior in architectural engineering. You can e-mail him at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

MOVIES

Movies times for Friday, Oct. 28, through Sunday, Oct. 30
Times are listed in the p.m. unless otherwise noted
() denotes movie times running Saturday and Sunday only

"The Legend of Zorro" PG
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 9:50

"Prime" PG-13
(1:50), 4:45, 7:15, 9:45

"Saw 2" R
(1:10), (3:20), 5:30, 7:40, 9:55

Courtesy Art

"The Weather Man" R
(1:40), 4:15, 7:10, 9:35

"Stay" R
(1:55), 4:45, 7:30, 9:55

"North Country" R
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 9:50

"Doom" R
(1:30), 4:15, 7:00, 9:30

Courtesy Art

"Dreamer: Inspired by a True Story" PG
(1:15), 4:20, 7:10, 9:35

"Elizabethtown" PG-13
(1:20), 4:05, 7:15, 10:00

"The Fog" PG-13
(1:30), 4:30, 7:20, 9:40

"Wallace & Gromit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit" G
(1:00), (3:15), 5:30, 7:45, 9:55

"Flightplan" PG-13
(1:40), 4:30, 7:20, 9:40

TELEVISION REVIEW

Courtesy Art

"Drawn Together"

Series review by Zachary T. Eckels

There's a very fine line between being funny and relying too much on offensive content in cartoons today. In the first season of Drawn Together, the writers seemed to have problems figuring out just exactly where that line is.

Season two finds Drawn Together more offensive and closer to that line. The show is now connecting with more jokes and with better-developed characters that enable it to keep the action going. The only problem is it still relies too heavily on shock value.

With a wide range of shows available for today's cartoon connoisseur, the creators must come up with a product that can stand on its own. While Drawn Together is coming close to this point, it has still fallen short.

Sure, there is a certain amount of thrill to watching stereotypical characters acting as politically incorrect as they possibly can. However, the thrill doesn't last. Jokes like clubbing seals and genocide just fall short after watching an episode a second time.

After peeling away the offensive content, one is left with a show that has to borrow the same old routines as all the others. Yes, seeing the actual video of people blowing up a whale is funny, but it has already been done in a cartoon before.

In the end, Drawn Together is just an attempt at seeing how offensive a show can be without getting in trouble. If audience members enjoy being shocked or have a sick sense of humor, this is the right show. Otherwise stick with The Simpsons and South Park.

Teen marriage law to be enforced

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In an announcement made last week Gov. Kathleen Sebelius said she would attempt to enforce a strict ban on marriages involving anyone under the age of 16.

Kansas currently allows anyone under the age of 18 to marry with the consent of a parent or judge.

The law has been the subject of national attention since a 13-year-old Nebraska girl and her 22-year-old boyfriend went to Hiawatha, Kan., to be wed with the girl's mother's consent.

"As governor, I have the responsibility to protect the rights of young Kansans and ensure their safety," Sebelius said in a press release. "The fact that criminals have used marriage to conceal their abuse is appalling. We must take action to stop this abuse."

Sebelius
GOVERNOR

Kansas is one of 13 states that does not currently have a minimum marriage age at 16.

Anthony Jurich, professor in family studies and human services, said that setting a minimum age is a good idea.

"I would say any age under 15, you are going to have a major problem," Jurich said.

One reason Jurich said marriage at that young of an age is a bad idea is that the child may not always know themselves well enough to make a life-long decision.

"I think it's a good idea to know yourself fairly reasonably, so that you can decide who you want to choose and how you are going to give yourself," he said. "At age 13, they don't understand themselves and consequently, we have a very serious problem."

Jurich said a child who marries at a young age may not be psychologically safe.

"If you don't know who you are and you connect to someone who is older and more powerful and you enter a marriage, the young person never develops a sense of who they are," he said.

Sebelius sent a letter to Stephen Morris, chair of the Legislative Coordinating Council, to request that the topic be added to the legislature's agenda.

"It should be against the law for any Kansan younger than 16 to marry," Sebelius said.

"And we must continue to require parental or judicial consent for anyone 16 or 17 years old to marry. Kansas must change our law and we must do so as soon as possible."

Japanese drum group to perform

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Yamato, The Drummers of Japan
When: 3 p.m. Oct. 30
Where: McCain Auditorium
How much: Orchestra seating, $15 for K-State students, $28 for K-State faculty and $30 for the public.

Wadaiko Yamato, The Drummers of Japan, will perform Sunday as a part of the McCain Performance Series.

"Wadaiko" is a drum that has existed in many parts of the world, and Yamato is the former name for Nara, the city in which the group is based. The group was founded in 1993, and has given more than 900 performances in countries including Japan, China, South Korea and the United States.

The concert will be an opportunity for students to expand their cultural experience, said Thomas Jackson, marketing and developing director for McCain Auditorium.

The drummers will perform sounds of rain and thunder on small and large drums. The songs will range from traditional Japanese music to Japanese rock, Jackson said.

"It will be like going to a percussion rock concert," he said.

The concert will display culturally different drumming played on a high energy level, Kurt Gartner, associate professor of music, said.

"Regardless of how well you know percussion or drumming, there's something in the concert for everyone," Gartner said. "The concert will have people on the edge of their seats."

Annette Rice, senior in architecture, said she has seen Japanese drumming before and liked the sound.

"I am going Sunday to see what this group has to offer," she said.

Collegian
explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

SAFE RIDE
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11:00 p.m. - 3:00 a.m.
We Drive. You Ride. Every Weekend.
Call:
539-0480
A free service provided by the K-State Student Governing Association

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.
ONLY $5!
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

Boo Party
October 31
5:30-7:30pm

We are scaring up a ghoulish good time at Manhattan Town Center during our annual Boo Party with:
- Mall Wide Trick or Treating;
- Face Painting;
- Tricks or Treats with KROCK 101.5
- ATA Black Belt Academy's Board Breaks for the Cure.

3rd & Poyntz • 539-9207 •
MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

Congrats to our new members:
Lisa Allen
Brittney Anderson
Claire Anderson
Rachel Bacon
Allyson Branch
Gina Buccholz
Jennifer Burks
Katelyn Carson
Helen Coscia
Melissa Coultis
Ashley Cox
Sydney Eagleton
Jessica Fine
Bethany Graves
Shelby Griffin
Lauren Griffith
Holly Gessley
Alisha Hall
Ashley Hanson
Jessica Heath
Carissa Helvey
Ali Johnson
Michael Knoll
Laura Koger
Krista Kurz
Megan Ladenburger
Rachael Leisy
Emily Long
Jenna Matthews
Allison Mense
Tiffany Peterson
Jenna Rader
Elizabeth Sims
Ellie Shoup
Salena Strate
Nanci White
Rebekah Wirtz
Lori Wright
Love,
Your Kappa Kappa Gamma Sisters

wildcats
2005-06 basketball

Be Proud Be Purple
GO STATE!
STUDENT TICKET PICK-UP
Monday, October 24
Bramlage Coliseum Ticket Office
9am - 4pm

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT, close to campus, available now. All utilities paid. Washer/ dryer. $375. (785)317-7713.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490, two-bedrooms $750, three-bedrooms $700-$825. (785)537-7701.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

Before Time Runs Out

advertise your sublease in the classifieds Let's Rent special section

Kansas State Collegian 103 Kedzie 532-6555

120 For Rent- Houses

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATE WANTED: Male or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

ADVERTISING... IT WORKS

Kansas State Collegian 103 Kedzie 532-6560

145 Roommate Wanted

ROOMMATE WANTED immediately. Newly remodeled. Washer/ dryer, dishwasher. Pets okay. Large yard. Two-bedroom, one bath. Call Cassie (620)376-8319.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for one or two-bedroom in a four-bedroom house. Available now or January. Call (785)317-4301.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed. Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE/ MALE subleaser for spring/ summer semester(s), nice house, walk to campus, washer/ dryer, $290/ month plus utilities. Call (316)706-7272.

ONE-BEDROOM. $395, cable/ water paid. Laundry/ pool/ hot tub on site. Small pets. Quiet. Available now. (785)375-3015.

SUBLEASE AVAILABLE immediately or whenever. One-bedroom next to Aggieville, utilities paid, except electric. August lease. Call anytime (785)317-0235.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM, quiet and responsible. 12/15/05- 7/28/05. December rent free. 1014 Bluemont. $540/ month plus deposit. (913)706-6927.

SUBLEASE. CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms. University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

SUBLEASER NEEDED. Two-bedroom apartment. Block from campus and Aggieville. All utilities paid except electricity. $550/ month. Call (316)210-1164 or (316)993-0214.

SUBLEASER WANTED. $375/ month, washer, dryer, furnished, University Crossing. Call (913)909-5448.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom. Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)845-6301.

SUBLEASERS WANTED for two-bedroom apartment. One block from campus, washer/ dryer, water/ trash paid. Second semester. (316)288-9629.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS: Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

Daytime Cook Needed

- Hard-working
- Self-motivated
- Team player
- $6/hr

Pete's Kitchen Barbeque

539-7426

ENERGETIC, RESPONSIBLE students needed to distribute fliers on 10/31, 11/1, and 11/2. Flexible hours, $10/ hour. Call Staceylee at (866)313-8184.

EXTENSION ASSISTANT- Production Manager. Part-time position available immediately to support development of educational resources that promote physical activity among youth. College degree in Communications, Journalism, Marketing or related field, or 5 years related experience required. Send letter of application, resume including the names and contact information of at least three work-related references, to jkahl@ksu.edu or: Joan Kahl, Project Coordinator, School of Family Studies and Human Services, 343 Justin Hall, Manhattan, Kansas 66506. Deadline, November 7, 2005.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

GRADUATE ASSISTANT, Bachelor's Degree Completion Program, KSU Division of Continuing Education. Facilitate undergraduates in K-State's external degree program, Bachelor's Degree Completion. Required: Hold a bachelor's degree and be accepted into a graduate degree program at KSU. Have excellent oral and written communications skills, good interpersonal skills and good attention to detail. Have experience in word-processing, e-mail and computer applications. Preferred: Have experience advising adult non-traditional undergraduate students and be able to work with minimum supervision. Have experience using KSU's SIS system and database software. Request a detailed position description at 226 College Court or call (785)532-5575. Applications will be accepted October 24-November 4. Applicants should submit a letter of application, a resume, and name, addresses, and phone numbers of three references. Starting date: January of 2006.

HARRYS: DAYTIME dishwasher. Hours 10am- 3pm. Can work part or full-time. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz.

INTERN NEEDED for the Riley County Attorney's office. High school graduate or GED, Microsoft Office software skills and ability to type 60 words per minute. Experience in legal office or similar busy responsible position. Prefer completion of some Criminology or Pre-Law major course work. Duties include assisting staff with copying files, pulling files, updating computer information, delivering documents to the courthouse, etc. Confidentiality and ability to pass fingerprint background check required. Starting rate for this part-time, temporary position is $9.34/ hour with no benefits. Applications are required and can be accessed at www.rileycountyks.gov/employment and clicking on the link at Current Job Listings. For more information e-mail jdean@rileycountyks.gov or phone (785)565-6464. Riley County is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

LUTHERAN CAMPUS ministries is seeking candidate for the position of peer minister. Duties include outreach to college students, assist in operations of Luther House and assist with worship activities. Monthly stipend available. Email resume and letter of interest to cheryll@kaukis.com.

NEEDED COLLEGE student to help with work in home for local family. References helpful. Please call (785)556-2467, ask for Shannon.

PART-TIME CHILDCARE provider needed in my home. Experience and references a must. If interested please call (785)776-9874.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

we kick ads.

CLASSIFIEDS • 532-6555

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

415 Furniture to Buy/Sell

COUCH FOR sale. Nearly new. Call (785)532-5764 or email fburrack@ksu.edu.

500 transportation

530 Motorcycles

2003 636 Kawasaki Ninja with extras. 2700 miles. Call for price. (620)629-7386.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week

BRECKENRIDGE

Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1

Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin

$179

U.S. Ski

1-800-SKI-WILD

www.ubski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744. www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

LOST: PAIR of dark-rimmed bifocal glasses on campus. If found call (785)776-0176 or (785)564-0930. Reward offered.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866.

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NOW LEASING

• Large 2 Bedroom Apts.•
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.billinvestandrental.com

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced. 2066 College Heights. 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

120 For Rent- Houses

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $900/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

145 Roommate Wanted

CHRISTIAN FEMALE housemate wanted for five-bedroom house. Residential neighborhood. Washer/ dryer, two-car garage. $300/ month plus utilities. (913)636-9152.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted. Four-bedroom duplex. $325/ month plus utilities. Close to campus and Aggieville. Available January. (316)655-5236.

ONE-BEDROOM AVAILABLE in three bedroom house. Washer/ dryer, walking distance to college. Male or female. Brick home. Rent negotiable. (785)443-2229.

ROOMMATE NEEDED. Three-bedroom house. Backyard with deck and fence. Easy to get along with roommates. Simple quick drive to campus. (785)845-2212.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

Advertising Design

Practicum/Newspaper MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Graphic Design Internship

Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

BROKE?

FIND A JOB

look in the help wanted section.

Kedzie 103 532-6555

ADVERTISE

Kansas State Collegian
103 Kedzie 532-6560

000 bulletin board
100 housing/ real estate
200 service directory
300 employment opportunities
400 open market
500 transportation
600 travel/ trips

SENATE | Fee increase approved to support Counseling Services staff

Continued from Page 1

The state funds 31.7 percent of the budget, grants fund 8.5 percent, service fees fund 3.8 percent and other accounts fund 0.7 percent.

The center interacted with more than 26,715 patients this past year, including those who sought counseling, stress management and career-planning help, Newton said.

"It's hard to account for how many people we see each day," Wilcox said. "For us, we are busy throughout the day. It's a struggle for our staff to keep up with the level that we've had in the past, but that's a good thing."

CATALYST | Freshmen set goals in Leadership Studies programs

Continued from Page 1

how to teach it in a way that hopefully it'll be effective."

Daniels said she is looking forward to helping Catalyst students set goals for their futures and realize their own ideas. However, she said keeping students involved may be tough.

"A lot of our Catalyst members are busy people," she said.

The course, offered through Leadership Studies and Programs, is a zero-credit hour course, but it does appear on a student's transcript, Daniels said.

"It shows they've taken that initiative to develop themselves as leaders," she said.

Libby Holste, sophomore in history, took the course in spring 2005 after hearing about it in an introductory Leadership Studies and Programs class. She said she enjoyed Catalyst's relaxed atmosphere.

"It was a fun time to come together and build off each other," Holste said.

Applications are available online and require applicants to complete three short-answer questions.

Accepted applicants will be notified by Nov. 11. The program's first event is Dec. 6.

CROSS COUNTRY | Big 12 last chance to qualify for regionals

Continued from Page 6

Freshman Liliani Mendez will run her first meet of the year, and senior Christina Lara will run her first meet since placing 72nd two weeks ago at the Woody Greeno Invitational in Lincoln, Neb.

The young squad, which has one senior and nine sophomores and freshmen, has its last chance Friday to knock off a conference opponent.

Freshman Jana Gwinn, who has led the squad for most of the year, said the race is uncertain for her team.

"Right now we're really not sure where we're going to place," she said. "So we're just going to put it all out there and try our best. We're really not setting any clear goals because we're really not sure of the fitness of the runners at this point."

Individually, this is the last time for the Wildcat seniors to qualify for regionals. The Wildcats have four seniors on the men's team.

Senior Joe Moore, who finished 45th last year at the Big 12 Championships, is looking to finish higher this season.

"I'm definitely more focused than I have been in years past," Moore said. "I've got an opportunity to place well and run a fast time. I'm looking forward to it more than other times. I was scared of it last year.

"I want to run in the top 20, just as long as I'm well under 25 minutes."

Senior Matt Swedlund, facing possibly his last collegiate race, is looking at the race with a relaxed attitude.

"I'm excited for it; I've got nothing to lose," Swedlund said. "I'm just going to go out there and run hard. I want to run under 26 minutes. That's my goal, so I hope I can do that. Place-wise, I'd like to finish better than 70th."

The Big 12 Championship races are 10 a.m. for the men and 11 a.m. for the women today at the Cottonwood Creek Golf Course in Waco, Texas.

78% of our readers clip coupons
Kansas State Collegian 532-6560

Pizza Hut $13.99 2 Medium 1-Top Big New Yorker Pizzas & 2-Liter of Soda
Aggieville 1121 Moro 539-7666 | Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447 | 3rd & M 231 Moro 776-4334
*Not valid in combination with any other offer *2-refillable soft drinks substituted for 2-liter on dine-in orders *1/20th cent cash redemption value*Pizza Huts of Manhattan, 8/05 *Expires: Nov. 30, 2005

Pizza Hut $8.99 Medium Big New Yorker Specialty Pizza
Aggieville 1121 Moro 539-7666 | Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447 | 3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334
*Not valid in combination with any other offer *1/20th cent cash redemption value *Pizza Huts of Manhattan, 8/05 *Expires: Nov. 30, 2005

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our sales representatives by calling...
532-6560
Kansas State Collegian Advertising

Win Big with Collegian Advertising
For information call 532-6560

The Collegian is available at
112 locations near you.
Kansas State Collegian Advertising 532-6560

All Procedes to Red Cross
A Case of Bad Karma, Emma's Mine, The Mathematics, The Back Porch Blues band
+ personalized calendar
Friday Oct. 28, 9pm @ Bobby T's
Halloween Havoc
KSU's alternative news source...and more
WiN.KSU.EDU
Wildcat Information Network
Guess the Score WIN Pizza on message boards-
Sponsors: Sisters Of Sound, Wildcat Information Network, Candlewood Retail Liquor Store, Pi Kappa Phi, Humble Abode, Brown Shoes, K-Mart, Wal-Mart, Digital Shelf and the Wildcat 91.9
+ online market

Check out shout outs in the Classifieds on November 9th!

Get Connected Today!
Sign up NOW for 1 MONTH free service.
Students, Faculty & Staff Only Rates
5 month contracts
Just $37.95 a month
K-State rates available only at K-State Telecommunications Department
PLAN INCLUDES:
• 350 Anytime Minutes
• 2000 Around Town Minutes
• Unlimited Nights & Weekends
• FREE U.S. Long Distance
VISIT OR CONTACT US AT:
109 East Stadium
Manhattan, KS 66506
(785) 532-7001
www.telecom.ksu.edu
K-STATE connection
YOUR WIRELESS SOLUTION
MONTHLY PHONE SPECIALS
Motorola, Nokia, LG, Samsung, Kyocera & Audiovox
We also stock phone accessories at discounted prices

Sigma Alpha Epsilon
The first greek letter organization at K-State.

Air Force General Richard B. Myers speaks to the annual SAE Leadership School in Evanston, IL.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon welcomes back SAE Alum General Richard Myers as Homecoming Parade Grand Marshall.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

GAMEDAY

Friday, October 28, 2005

Are they better

After a 4-7 record a year ago, the 2005 K-State team is sitting at four wins, and questions remain as to whether the Wildcats have improved.

Page 3

Off the field Page 2 | CU offense Page 4 | Penalties Page 5 | Photos Page 6 | Running game Page 7 | Special teams Page 8

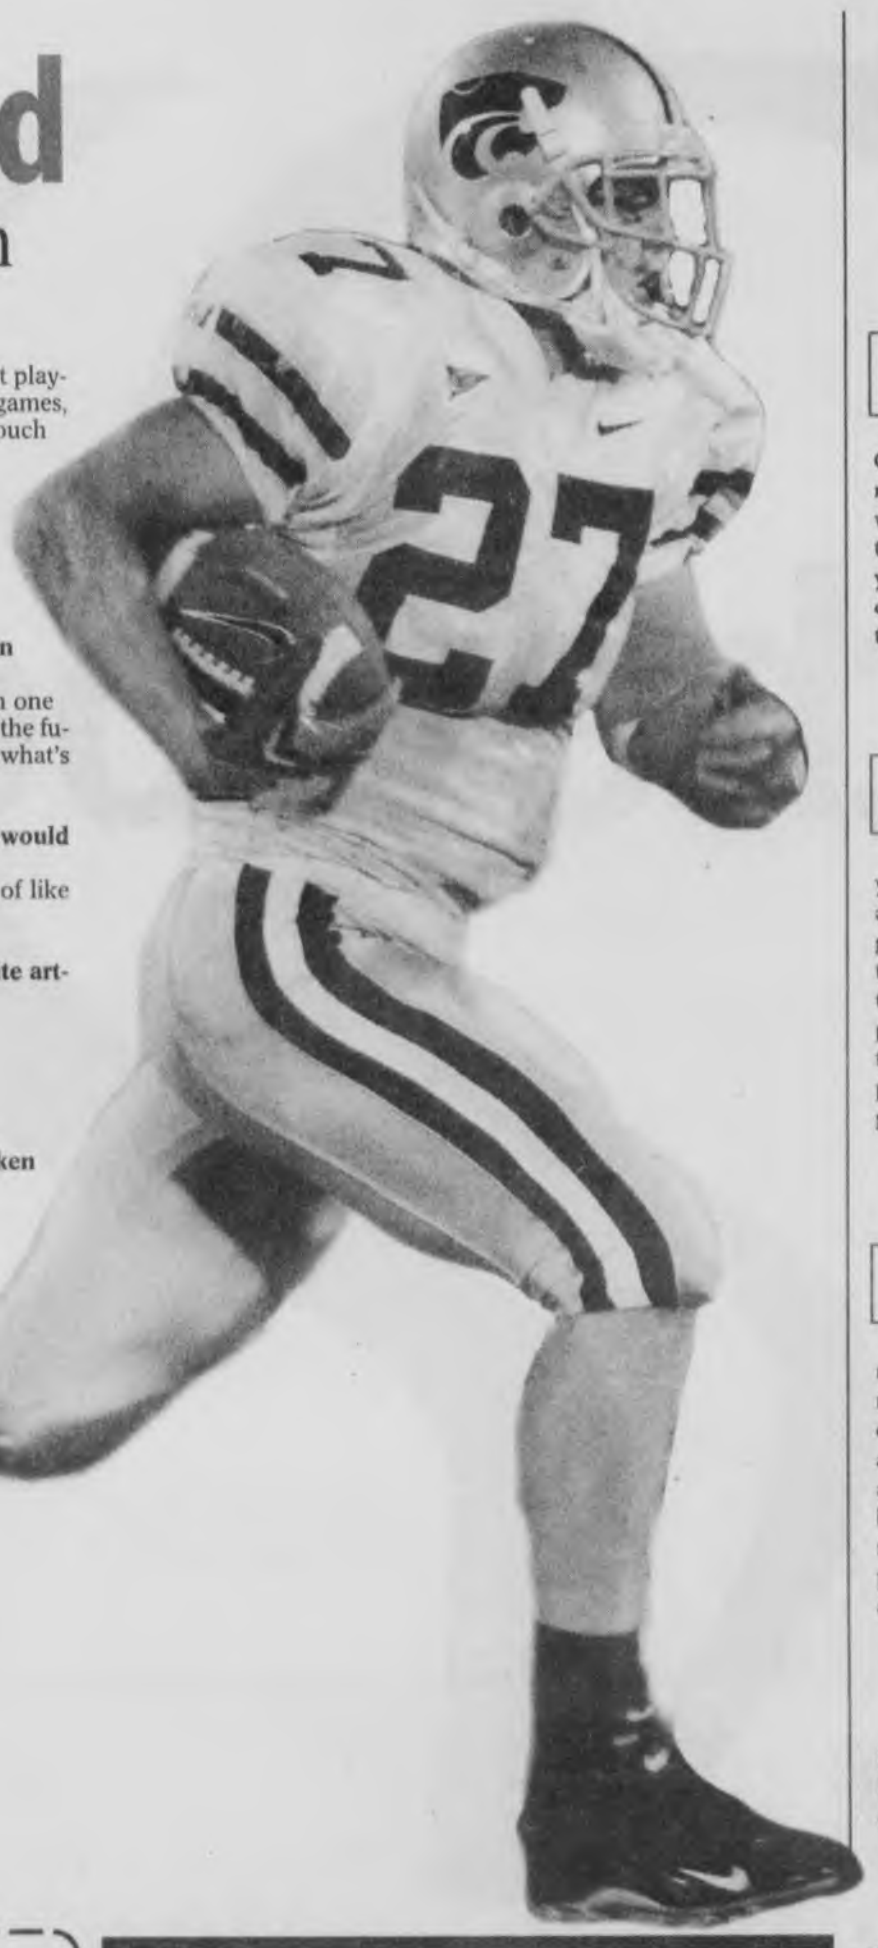
"We don't have our goals set for only two games, just to be bowl eligible. We have our goals set on going 4-0 the rest of the season."

Victor Mann
K-STATE FULLBACK

K-State (4-3, 1-3) vs. Colorado (5-2, 3-1)

1:10 p.m., Saturday



History: Colorado leads 42-17-1

Radio: K-State Sports Network — 1350AM, 101.5FM

The hero of Colorado's 38-31 victory over K-State last season was quarterback Joel Klatt. Klatt threw the game-winning touchdown with five seconds left, and the Wildcats will need to prevent Klatt from having a huge passing day for K-State to win.

Off The Field
with Jordy Nelson

Q. What do you do when you aren't playing football?
A. I'm probably watching football. That's one bad thing about playing it; on Saturdays, I miss all the games. After our Saturday games, if we play in the morning or afternoon, I usually sit on the couch and watch football.

Q. Who's your favorite team to watch besides K-State?
A. Virginia Tech or USC. They've got great offenses. USC's just incredible to watch – the type of athletes they've got out there, with Reggie Bush and Matt Leinart.

Q. Do you have any role models or any means of inspiration in your life?
A. No, not really. I just try and go out and live every day. I'm one person who doesn't make plans. I think if you make plans for the future, it kind of screws up your daily routine. You never know what's going to come up.

Q. If you could go back to any decade or era, which one would it be and why?
A. I have no idea. I don't know how to answer that. I kind of like what I've lived in so far. I couldn't answer that.

Q. What kind of music do you listen to? Who's your favorite artist?
A. Country. Garth Brooks.

Q. What's your favorite food?
A. Chicken fried steak.

Q. Where is your favorite place in Manhattan to get chicken fried steak?
A. Willie's Sports Bar or Bowinkles.

By Angie Hanson | KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

vs.

OFFENSE

In Big 12 Conference play, K-State has not found a way to gain significant running yards. Coach Bill Snyder said the running game against Texas A&M was not as bad as it looked, but the Wildcats still managed 27 yards rushing. Until it can produce more yards on the ground, the Wildcat offense will struggle.

Colorado has two potent weapons in quarterback Joel Klatt and running back Hugh Charles. Klatt's 232.6 passing yards per game ranks him second in the Big 12, while Charles is fourth in the league in rushing at 85.7 yards per game. The Buffaloes have had no problem scoring, as they average 34 points a contest.

DEFENSE

If you take out the gaudy passing yardage Texas Tech put up against the K-State defense (669 yards), the Wildcats are only allowing 148.7 passing yards per game. That figure would rank third in the nation. For K-State to beat Colorado, the Wildcats' pass defense will have to control the steady Buffalo receivers and prevent Klatt from having a huge game through the air.

Colorado brings the nation's 19th-ranked defense into KSU Stadium, but more importantly, the No. 5 rush defense. The Buffaloes are allowing 84.9 yards on the ground, which could spell trouble for the K-State running backs. K-State has failed to have a 100-yard rusher in league play, and has had one game of more than 100 total yards rushing.

SPECIAL TEAMS

The good news is K-State has scored three touchdowns on special teams this season after not scoring one last year. The bad news is the Wildcats have allowed opponents to score a touchdown and two safeties off special teams and have given up 18.2 yards per kickoff return. Punter Tim Reyer ranks 11th in the conference in punting average at 40 yards per attempt.

Colorado's special teams unit is probably the best in the league, thanks to punter John Torp and place-kicker Mason Crosby. Torp is third in the nation in punting, booming his kicks for an average of 46.4 yards. Crosby is a perfect 23-of-23 on extra points this season, and has connected on 78.6 of his field goal attempts, including a long of 58 yards, the longest in the Big 12 this season.

PREDICTION

Colorado is in the driver's seat in the Big 12 North, while K-State has to have a few minor miracles happen to even get back into the race. While a win over the Buffaloes would go a long way toward K-State re-entering the championship picture, Colorado is too experienced and too explosive on offense for the Wildcats to have much of a chance.

— Colorado - 28, K-State - 17

By Michael Ashford | KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Junior • Petite
Blue Jeans
Lucky, Gap, Abercrombie & Fitch, and more!
$2.50 – $4.95
Bring in Student ID for 25% off any one clothing item
QUALITY NAME BRAND New & Gently Used CLOTHING AT 50-95% OFF RETAIL
BUY & SELL
The Apple's Heart
Boutique Atmosphere...Thriftstore Prices
"Where Kansas Meets New York"
113 S. 5th • downtown poyntz • 317-5475

Find K-State Gifts and Jewelry Online
KGifts
kgifts.com
Good Luck, Cats!

Join us in Cheering on the Cats!
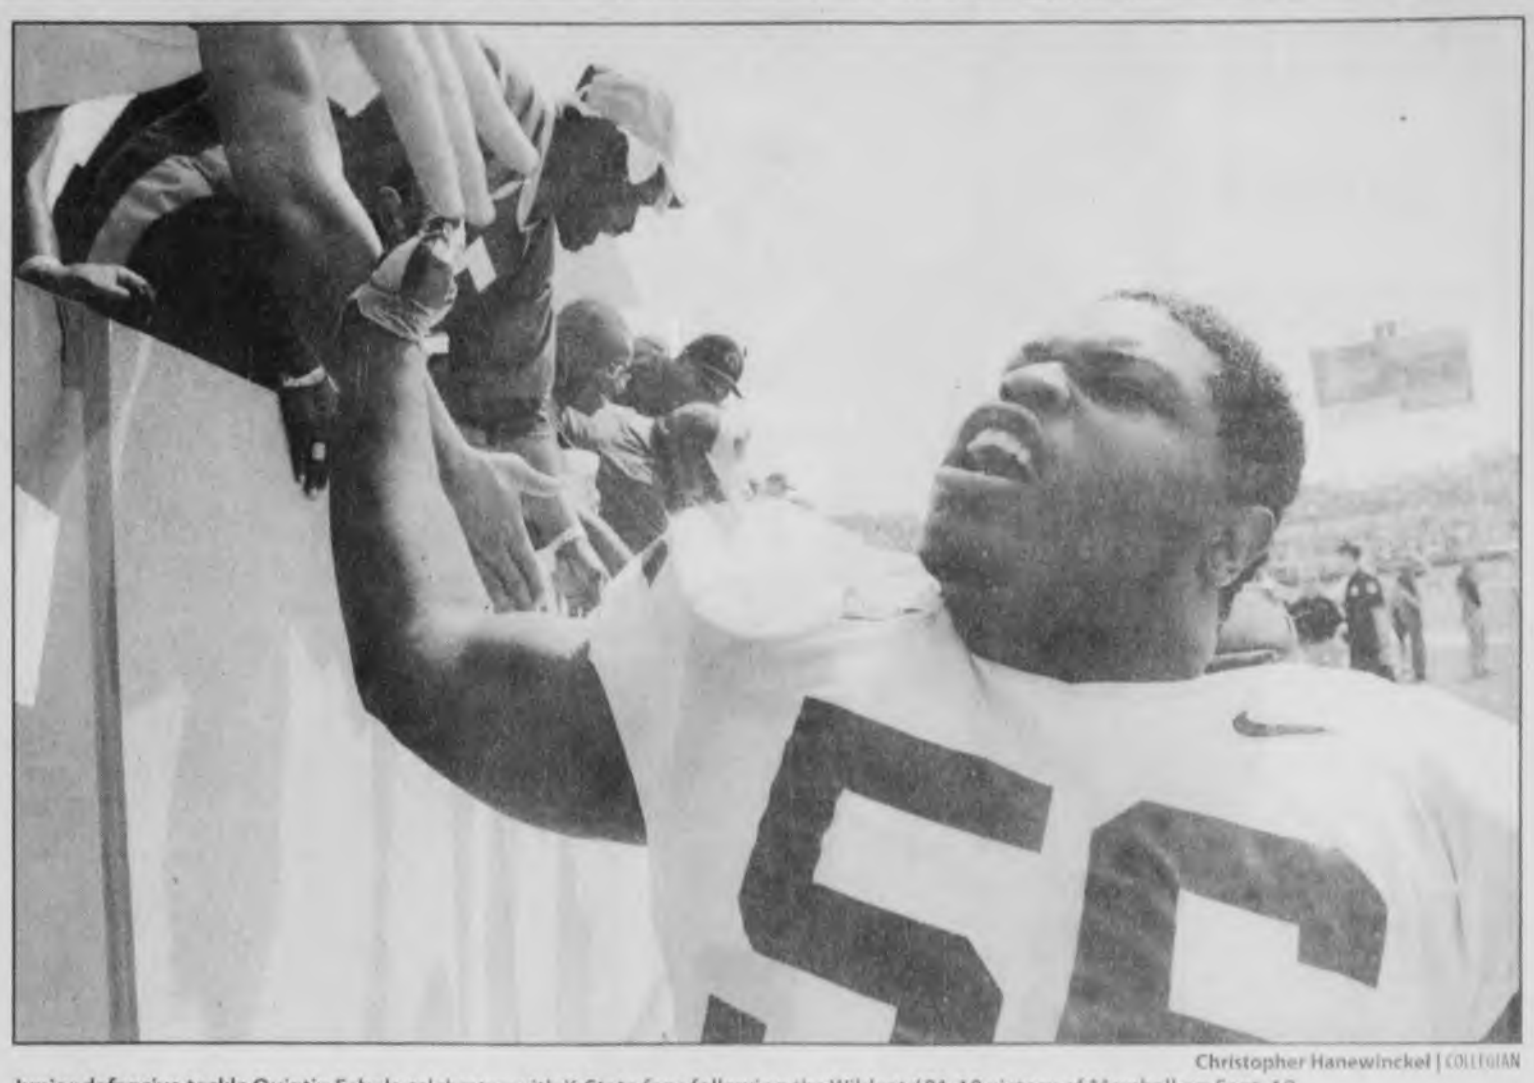
For Every Gift Giving Occasion
Lilacs
on the Prairie
327 Poyntz, Manhattan KS
565-0900

Short Stop
2010 Tuttle Creek
776.0767
OCTOBER SPECIALS
$15.99 Coors-30 pack
$15.89 Bud Light- 30 pack
$14.99 Miller Lite - 30 pack
Marlboro Cigarettes
$6.79 2 pack $9.99 3 pack
$1.29 Pepsi Liter
$1.49 Poptart & Hiland Pt. of Milk

FREE Activation & $36 value
Case or cord $15 value
Limited time. See our store for details
Sprint
HOURS
M-F 9am-8pm
SAT 9am-7pm
SUN 11am-6pm
537-1476
614 Ft. Riley Blvd.
MANHATTAN
RadioShack



Featuring NEW Fall FASHIONS
1201 Moro
537.0330
Located in Aggieville
Gei Gei's ltd

776-4794 Crum's 512 Poyntz Ave.
November Specials
• Relaxer Retouch $22 reg. $25
• Straightener Full Head $25 reg. $30
• Buy 1 Get 1 1/2 Off Keracare or Dudleys For Multicultural hair needs
NEW Product Curl Defining Redken's
• Ringlet $10.95 reg. $14.95 Performed by supervised students

4-3, 1-3 BIG 12

Is it 2004 all over again?

Wildcats believe better play, attitude showing how team has improved from last year

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Junior defensive tackle Quintin Echols celebrates with K-State fans following the Wildcats' 21-19 victory of Marshall on Sept. 10.

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State football team is sitting at four wins through seven games this season, the same total the Wildcats managed all of last season.

However, unlike this time last year, K-State (4-3, 1-3) is no longer in control of its future. That luxury passed K-State by when the Wildcats lost to Texas A&M last weekend to fall to 1-3 in Big 12 Conference play.

So the question remains, are the 2005 Wildcats really better than the 2004 squad?

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Senior fullback Victor Mann is gang-tackled during K-State's 30-28 loss to Texas A&M ast Saturday. The Wildcats have lost three consecutive league games.

"A lot of people try to compare back to what happened last year, but that's all behind us," senior fullback Victor Mann said. "We're a new team, we know what we set out to do, and that's what we're going to do.

"This team is a lot better, not just because of the wins and losses, but because of the attitude and the style of play that we're playing with this year."

Statistically, the Wildcats are improved over last season.

After giving up 30.6 points per game in 2004, this year's team is more than four points better defensively, giving up 26.0 points a contest. K-State allowed opponents to rush for 148.3 yards per game last season, whereas the 2005 squad is holding the opposition to 119.3.

The Wildcats are converting on 42 percent of their third-down conversions compared to 39 percent last year, are averaging 5.4 yards per play, and have scored three times on special teams, something that did not happen last year.

But to the players, the biggest difference this season has not come in the way of numbers and figures.

Instead, defensive tackle Quintin Echols said the biggest change has been mental.

"I just think this team is so much more positive," Echols said. "Last year,

"A lot of people try to compare back to what happened last year, but that's all behind us. We're a new team, we know what we set out to do, and that's what we're going to do."

Victor Mann
FULLBACK

I don't think it was one person; I don't think it was any group or faction of people bringing everybody down. I think it was no one standing up and saying 'You guys, come on.'"

"Now, I think everybody has somebody they can look to and say 'He's doing it, so why can't I now?'"

One game that stands out from last season as particularly heartbreaking for the K-State players is the 38-31 loss to Colorado in Boulder, Colo., coach Bill Snyder said.

After K-State rallied from a 21-point deficit to tie the score 31-31, Colorado quarterback Joel Klatt completed a 64-yard touchdown pass to Ron Monteilh with five seconds left to give the Buffaloes the win.

"To go in, lay an egg, and then come back and make a tremendous comeback, and then, all of a sudden lose it in the last heartbeat of the ballgame, I think had a major impact on probably everybody in our program," Snyder said. "We didn't totally recover from it."

Saturday against Colorado, Echols said the K-State players hope to erase the memories of last season's game with a win over the Buffaloes, which would provide K-State a boost this season.

"It's most definitely a springboard," he said. "If we go out there and perform the way we should, and perform the way we go out and practice, and do well, then it could be a stepping stone. It's one of the most important, if not the most important game of the season."

Should the Wildcats win Saturday, it would mean K-State would best another statistic from last season: wins.

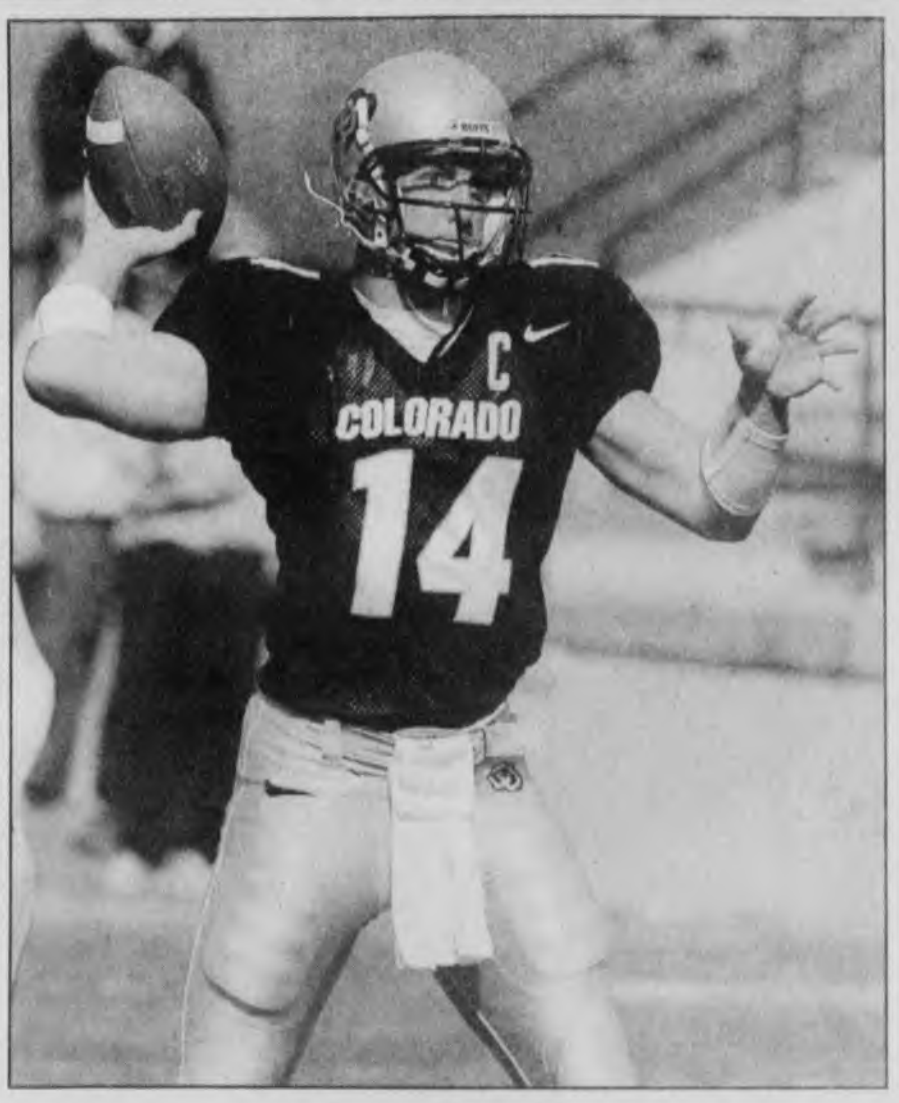
While the Wildcats are not focused on statistics to prove they are better, they know they will ultimately be judged whether they win or lose.

"We're 4-3 right now with the opportunity to be 8-3 at the end of the season," Mann said. "We want to make it to a bowl game, but at the same time, we want to have a nice record doing that. We want to win our last four games."

New Donors Can Earn $65 This Week!
EASY INCOME TODAY!
zlbplasma.com
We make it easy for you to earn money today with your life-saving plasma donation.
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway • Manhattan, KS 66502
(785)-776-9177
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.
Good for You. Great for Life.

HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
Free Delivery: 537-0886
Fax: 539-9111
Hours: Sun. - Wed., 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
SPEND OVER $25 AND GET A FREE T-SHIRT!!

ROGER & MELODY- OWNERS
INVITE YOU TO SHOP AT THE
Grand Ol' Trunk
Thrift Shop & Bookstore
1/4 mile south of the viaduct on HWY 177
Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mon-Sat -- Sun 12 to 5
Credit Cards Welcome
785-537-2273
1304 Pillsbury Dr.
Manhattan, KS 66502



"Your Repair Specialists"
serving Manhattan for 27 years
Manhattan Shoe Repair
Mention This ad and receive 10% discount!
Repairing of:
• Purses • Shoes • Boots • Luggage
• Backpacks • Leather Coats
• Ballgloves • Satin Shoe Dyeing
• Birkenstocks • Harness
216 S. Fourth (corner of 4th and Pierre) • VFW Plaza • 776-1193

10% discount
with student ID
Now Delivering!
Largest Italian buffet in the state of Kansas!
Valentino's Grand Italian Buffet
3003 Anderson • 539-6444

Need Money?
New Name... Same great deals!!
We pay top dollar for:
Tools, electronics, movies, CDs, guns, music equipment, jewelry, & sporting goods
Two Locations
501a Ft. Riley 537-1803
3110 Anderson 565-0046
American Cash Exchange
Cash Advance & Pawn Loans

Choose a window seat, not the driver's seat...
Low Fares Manhattan to Kansas City Roundtrip
All Day • Every Day
Call 1.800.428.4322 for flight info or visit usairways.com
MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT
5500 Fort Riley Boulevard
3 Miles West of Manhattan on K-18 Highway
MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT online at www.ci.manhattan.ks.us/Airport.asp
City of Manhattan Kansas Manhattan Regional Airport

wildcats
Thurs. November 3
vs. EA Sports
7pm
Bramlage Coliseum
FREE with Student ID
GO STATE!

Right: Colorado quarterback Joel Klatt has passed for 1,628 yards this season, which ranks him second in the Big 12 Conference behind Texas Tech's Cody Hodges.

Below: Buffalo quarterback Joel Klatt fights for extra yards in Colorado's 16-14 home win over UCLA in 2003.

Photos courtesy of University of Colorado sports information

Buffaloes boast solid offense

Quarterback Klatt, running back Charles lead balanced Colorado offensive attack

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Colorado Buffaloes come into KSU Stadium Saturday boasting the second-best pass offense in the Big 12 Conference and the 38th best in the nation, averaging 243.6 yards per game.

The Buffaloes rush offense ranks sixth in the conference at 139.4 yards per game, and they are fifth in total offense with 383 yards per game.

Colorado also ranks fifth in the conference in scoring with 29.9 points a game.

Coach Bill Snyder said Colorado has a very balanced offense, and he attributes a lot of Colorado's success this season to senior quarterback Joel Klatt and sophomore running back Hugh Charles.

"Klatt is playing like a veteran senior, which relates not just to his ability to throw the football, but the way he manages his football team," Snyder said. "They also have a good young running back who has got some great movement potential which makes them a very balanced offensive football team."

"Klatt is playing like a veteran senior, which relates not just to his ability to throw the football, but the way he manages his football team."

Bill Snyder
COACH

Klatt only has one game this season where he has thrown for more than 300 yards, which came Oct. 8 against Texas A&M when he threw for 398 yards, but he ranks seventh on the Big 12 career passing list with 6,640 yards.

This year he has completed 142 passes on 229 attempts for 1,628 yards and has thrown 12 touchdowns and four interceptions. In his last four games, all conference games, he has thrown 10 touchdowns and one interception.

Klatt is second only to Texas Tech's Cody Hodges in the Big 12 in passing yards per game with 232.6, and has only been sacked five times this season.

K-State freshman quarterback Allan Evridge respects what Klatt does as a leader, and Evridge said he recognizes Klatt as a threat this week.

"I definitely like Klatt. He is a very smart senior and handles the offense well," Evridge said. "He gets them in and out of the right place, and I am impressed with what I've seen."

Colorado has scored a touchdown on their opening drive three times in seven games this season, and they have nine touchdown drives of 73 yards or more, including two drives of more than 80 yards last week against Kansas.

When they reach the red zone, the Buffaloes score 87 percent of the time. They are 20-23 with 14 touchdowns and six field goals.

Junior defensive lineman Quintin Echols said he believes the Wildcats have the ability to keep the Buffaloes out of the end zone.

"They are very efficient in the red zone," Echols said. "And if we want to stop them, then we just have to play smart and stick to our assignments, which I believe we can do."

The Buffaloes upset K-State last year in a 38-31 final-minute thriller at Folsom Field.

The Wildcats scored 21 points in the fourth quarter to rally from deficits of 24-10 and 31-24 to tie the game at 31 with 36 seconds to play.

Colorado appeared content to settle for overtime, but after converting a third-and-long, Klatt threw a 64-yard pass with five seconds left to Ron Monteilh for a touchdown to give the Buffaloes the victory.

Echols said he remembers that day, and does not want this weekend's game to end up like that.

"It's in the forefront of our minds," Echols said. "When I woke up on Monday morning I was thinking, 'Man we lost to Colorado in the last 17 seconds, and I really don't want it to come down to that.

"I'm hoping that we can go out there and be prepared for anything they throw at us."

We can't get you girls, Or boys.

We can't get you beer or cigarettes.

You won't be any cooler.

You won't be more attractive.

You won't be thinner, smarter,

or suddenly wealthy.

But maybe, just maybe,

you'll get the experience you need to land a job that CAN get you those things...after college.

The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:

Executive Positions

- Editor in Chief
- Advertising Sales Manager

News Positions

- Managing Editors
- Desk Editors
- Copy Editors
- Photo Journalists
- Graphic Artists
- News Editors
- Reporters
- Designers
- Graphic Journalists
- Online Journalists

Advertising Positions

- Assistant Advertising Managers
- Senior Account Representatives
- Advertising Sales Representatives

Spring 2006

Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.

Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. November 16.

Get the experience you NEED.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Joy of the Party

Enjoy tempting tastes like Beef with Broccoli. Crisp veggies. And everyone's favorite Orange Flavored Chicken, a Panda Express original. Our flavors are ready to go – hot, fresh and fast.

Panda Express.
Chinese for: Yummy.

Now Open until 8:00 PM

Located in your K-State Student Union

pandaexpress.com

FREE ENTRÉE ITEM

Buy a tasty 2 or 3 -Entrée* Plate and get an extra entrée item FREE.

*Excludes shrimp entrees. One coupon per person per purchase. Not valid with any other coupons, discounts or promotions. No cash value. Offer valid at KSU Panda Express. Expires 6/1/06 Promo Disc9

PANDA EXPRESS · GOURMET CHINESE FOOD ·

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Sophomore cornerback Bryan Baldwin commits a pass interference penalty against a Texas A&M receiver last Saturday during K-State's 30-28 loss to the Aggies. K-State was flagged eight times for 99 yards against A&M. The Wildcats are 11th in the Big 12 Conference with an average of 88.1 penalty yards this season, while opposing teams have been penalized for 48.6 yards per game.

Penalties hinder both Wildcat offensive, defensive teams

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

While K-State's offense and defense possess opposing responsibilities once they step on the football field, both sides of the ball have recently shared one common denominator – their ability to tally penalties.

"We started the season with a rash of penalties, and by and large, they were mostly on the offensive side of the ball – illegal procedures, holding calls," coach Bill Snyder said. "Through some diligent work by our offensive line, and Bob Stanley and Dana Dimel coaching our offensive line, we were able to, up to this point in time, correct that facet of what was bothering us."

Or so they thought.

"Now, all of a sudden, they've surfaced on the other side of the ball," Snyder said. "Now we're looking at them on defense. You've got your finger in the dike over here, and you're springing the same leak someplace else, so we've got to deal with it accordingly."

The same situation has affected the running backs and now, the wide receivers, Snyder said.

"It sends two messages," Snyder said. "One, is that you can't ever relax anyplace. Two, is if you work hard enough at it, you can correct the mistakes that are being made."

It's the Wildcats' "mistakes" that have pushed them to 11th in the Big 12 Conference in penalties, averaging 88.1 penalty yards per game, compared to opponents' 48.6 yards. This is a far cry from last season's average of 45.3 penalty yards per game, compared to opponents' 62.6.

For the offense, self-induced pressure was one variable in their early penalty surge, said senior Jeromey Clary, an offensive lineman from Mansfield, Texas.

"To be honest, as a freshman, I always thought 'I can't mess up,'" Clary said. "I still think about it sometimes. I don't want to mess up because I want them (the coaches) to know that I know what's going on.

"It's always in the back of your head."

With a young offensive line, it's important for the older, more-experienced players to assure their fellow linemen, Clary said.

"I tell them all the time, 'Have confidence in yourself. You've got to learn to trust yourself and allow yourself to play,'" Clary said. "Back in high school, you never thought about it, you just played. You allowed yourself to. You have the talent to."

Junior running back Thomas Clayton said although it's easy to get too mentally involved during a game, it remains a fixable problem.

"You look at any type of penalty – it's mental," Clayton said. "Be it an illegal procedure or personal fouls, those are all mental things. They can be corrected."

The defense, on the other hand, refuses to use mentality as an excuse.

"I think we've got to slow down and realize we've got to keep everything within the white lines."

Quintin Echols
DEFENSIVE TACKLE

Penalties should be a manageable aspect of the game, said junior Quintin Echols, defensive tackle from Fort Worth, Texas.

"That's something that, as a defense and as a team and as a person, you should be able to control," Echols said. "I think we've got to slow down and realize we've got to keep everything within the white lines. It's shameful for me as a defensive player to see that.

"I just hope we can correct that this week."

Snyder said he would also like to see the problem solved in the near future, but, in his opinion, talk is cheap.

Practice makes perfect, and Saturday against Colorado is when K-State will find out if practice has paid off.

"You have to do more than lip service it when it's related to trying to correct mistakes," Snyder said. "The point I'm trying to make is, yes, if you focus on them enough and if the players focus on them enough, you can get them corrected."

5 Games to watch

Collegian football picks

	 Michael Ashford (16-3)	 Matt Girard (11-8)	 Anthony Mendoza (13-6)	 Mark Potter (10-4)
K-State vs. Colorado	Colorado 28-17	Colorado 40-20	K-State 24-21	Colorado 28-14
Oklahoma vs. Nebraska	Oklahoma 20-18	Oklahoma 35-10	Oklahoma 14-9	Oklahoma 23-17
Kansas vs. Missouri	Kansas 15-14	Missouri 21-3	Missouri 27-13	Kansas 14-13
No. 4 Georgia at No. 16 Florida	Georgia 30-28	Florida 23-21	Georgia 34-28	Georgia 30-24
No. 21 Northwestern vs. No. 25 Michigan	Northwestern 17-10	Michigan 28-23	Northwestern 36-24	Michigan 30-16

AP Top 25

1. Southern Cal
2. TEXAS
3. Virginia Tech
4. Georgia
5. Alabama
6. Miami (Fla.)
7. LSU
8. UCLA
9. Notre Dame
10. Florida State
11. Penn State
12. Ohio State
13. Boston College
14. Oregon
15. Wisconsin
16. Florida
17. TEXAS TECH
18. West Virginia
19. Auburn
20. TCU
21. Northwestern
22. Fresno State
23. Tennessee
24. California
25. Michigan

GET IN HERE!
532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Fre pool
Every 1st & 3rd Sunday of every month
• Ice Cold Beer, Darts, Big Screen TV
SUNDAY - $1.50 Domestics
MONDAY - $1.50 Imports & Domestics
TUESDAY - $1.00 Busch, Keystone, & Old Mil.
WEDNESDAY - 75¢ Draws, $3.50 Pitchers
THURSDAY - $1.75 Wells, $2 Calls, $2.50 Premiums
LUNCH SERVED Tues. & Fri.
Cock-N-Bull
NEIGHBORHOOD TAVERN
(785) 776-6699
2413 Stagg Hill Road • Behind Briggs
OPEN 3:00 p.m. - Mon., Wed., Thurs. Noon - Sat. & Sun. 9:00 a.m. - Tues. & Fri.

Coffee & the Collegian
The perfect way to start your day!

Sun Connection
DESIGNER SKIN
1125 Laramie
776-2426
1/2 Price Single Tan Sessions
(Unlimited Purchases)
• Great Lotion Specials

Go State!
Win or lose, the difference in score is the amount you save!
If the difference is 10 Points You get 10% Off With Student ID
Valid M-F the week following home games
Grizzly's Grill
3003 Anderson Ave Suite 945
Mon-Thurs: 11-9
Fri-Sat: 11-10
Sunday: 11-2:30

Royal Thai Cuisine
One of the best quality restaurants in town
Very beautiful & relaxing atmosphere
Variety of choices, including seafood & vegetarian
Large portions at affordable prices
Lots of seats available, even for large parties.
No reservations necessary.
Hours: 11am-10pm, 7 days a week
3003 Anderson Ave. (in plaza west, by Alco)
539-0399

7 TVs
Cold Beer
Good Friends
Before, During & After The Game
Finn's Pub
Manhattan's Favorite Irish Pub!
317 Poyntz-Downtown Manhattan
www.finnspub.com 785-776-2119

Carhartt Season
New Fall Arrivals!
Coveralls & Coats
Cold weather is coming!
10% OFF any Carhartt Item
Carhartt Only at Lee's Western Wear

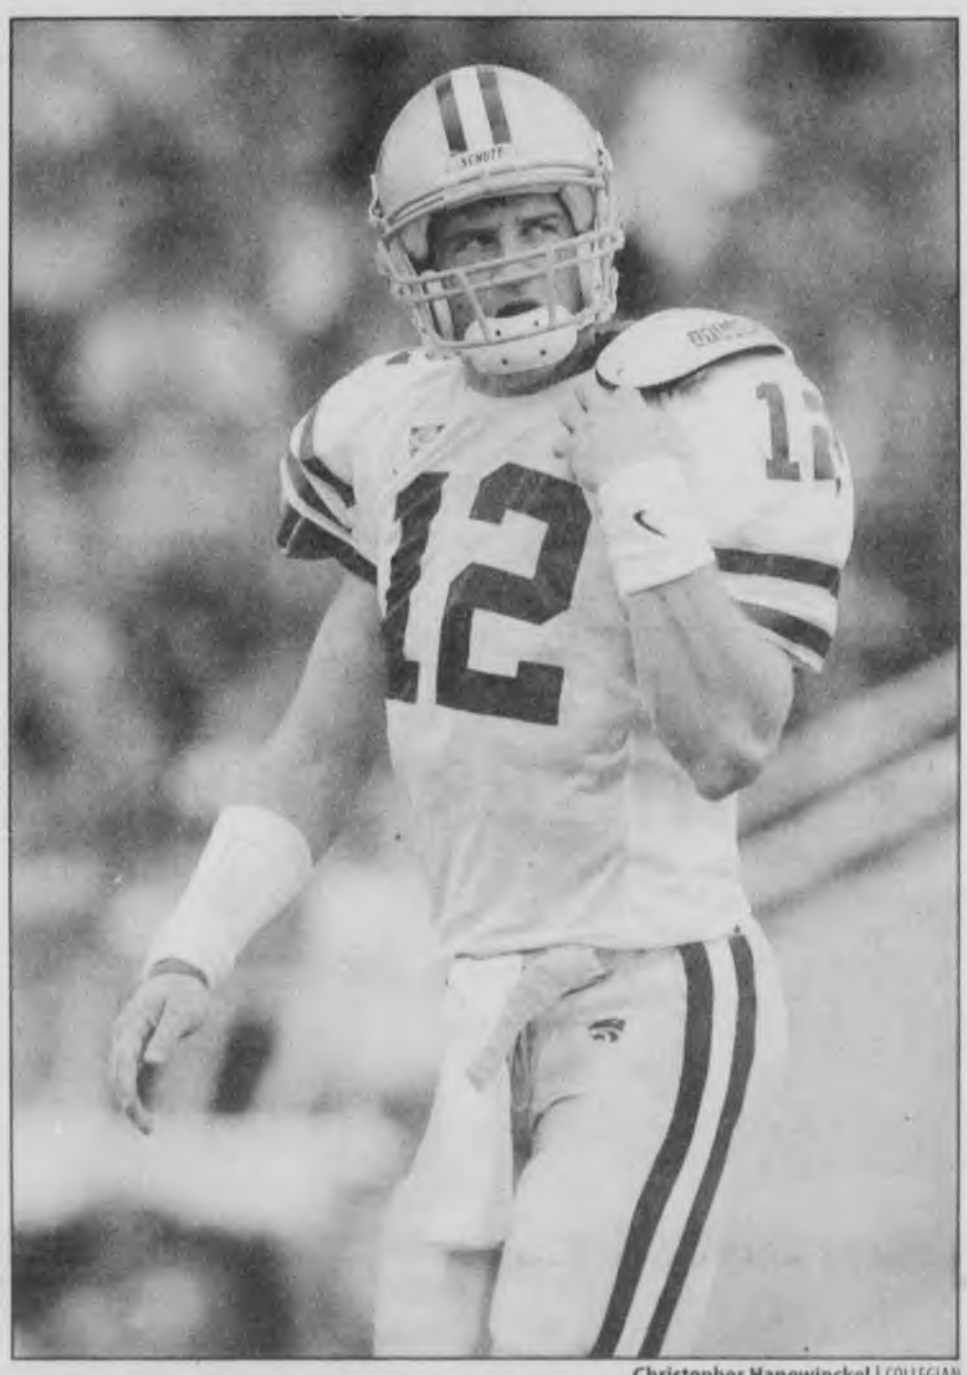
Happy Valley
CHINESE RESTAURANT
LUNCH SPECIALS $4.99
Includes: choice of 2 entrees, rice, soup, appetizer
DINNER SPECIALS
Includes: entree, appetizer, salad, rice, soup, kim chee, daily dessert
$6.95 & up
DINE IN & CARRY OUT
1120 Laramie
539-9888

GO WILD for the CATS!
on the Wild Side
776-2252 Aggieville

A season of ups and downs

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

During last Saturday's 30-28 loss to Texas A&M, junior wide receiver Jermaine Moreira tries to push away from Aggie defender Melvin Bullitt. Moreira finished the game with four catches for 101 yards and a touchdown.



Coach Bill Snyder speaks with redshirt-freshman quarterback Allan Evridge in between plays of last Saturday's 30-28 loss to Texas A&M.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Junior running back Thomas Clayton slaps hands of fans as he walks down the ramp of the north endzone of KSU Stadium on Sept. 24 prior to K-State's game against North Texas. The Wildcats defeated the Mean Green 54-7.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Redshirt-freshman quarterback Allan Evridge enters the game against Texas Tech on Oct. 15. It was Evridge's first start for the Wildcats after taking over for junior Allen Webb.

Wohler's Used Furniture
Visit Wohler's for used: Furniture, Antiques, Appliances and miscellaneous items for all needs.
615 N. 3rd St.
539-3319
10-6 Mon.-Fri. 10-5 Sat. Closed on Sun.

Motorcycle Supply
•Dirt & Street • Parts
•Accessories •Helmets
• Apparel • Tires
•Leather • Service
431 S. 5th
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-6171

Go Wildcats!
The Library Discount Liquor
Corner of 12th & Laramie
Aggieville
539-5269
BEER WINE & SPIRITS
DISCOUNT LIQUOR
LIBRARY

GOPOWERCAT.COM
The online leader in Kansas State sports and recruiting news
POWERCAT ILLUSTRATED'S GO POWERCAT.com
Officially licensed partner of the Rivals.com network

sick 'em, CATS!
$5 OFF for New Clients
607 N. 11TH • AGGIEVILLE • 565-0612
BARK AVENUE CANINE DESIGNS

2 nights of music
Oct. 28th & 29th, 2005
playing
Friday & Saturday
ALMOST LIVE
9-1
RC McGraws
2317 TUTTLE CREEK BLVD.
BLUE HILLS SHOPPING CENTER
776-9588

$1 SAVE $1 $1
on your next purchase of a 16 oz. Blizzard® Flavor Treat
Two locations 1015 N. 3rd St.
3116 Anderson Ave
Offer good only 10/28,29,30
Consumer must pay any sales tax. Limit 1 per coupon and 1 coupon per customer. Redeemable only on items selling at regular price. Good only at Manhattan stores.
BLIZZARD
Dairy Queen

Fat's
BAR & GRILL
$2.50 Miller Lite Pounders
$3.00 Coronas
50 Free Shirts
12th & Laramie
Aggieville

Kryptallos
Now Carrying
Free People AND miss me
Mon-Sat: 10-6
Sun: 12-5
405 Poyntz - Downtown Manhattan

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel and Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Running in place

Wildcats have yet to get running game going through 4 conference games

By Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Five yards stood in the way of K-State getting to within two scores of Texas A&M in the third quarter of Saturday's loss to the Aggies.

Two rushing attempts later by Thomas Clayton, and the Wildcats didn't manage a yard, but instead lost two in the process, and the frustration was visible on the face of fullback Victor Mann.

Walking to the sideline, he took his frustrations out on the closest teammate he could find, which happened to be offensive lineman John Hafferty.

On the way back to the bench, an enraged Mann, with his helmet clinched tight in the palm of his hand, delivered a message to the offensive line, and the rest of the K-State sideline: The offense needs to execute as a unit in order to get the running game and offense going.

"I was frustrated because as an offensive unit, we got stopped on the five-yard line twice," Mann said. "That could have been a game changing play, either one. It was just a matter of us not being able to execute, and he was the first person that I saw, and we talked about it going to the sidelines. It was no hard feelings or anything harsh like that, I was just letting him know to let everybody else know that we need to step up and make something happen, including myself.

"It was one of those things where I was trying to be a little vocal to him, and hopefully we can get through to everybody else."

Since Big 12 Conference play began, there has not been much noise from the running game and the one-time national leader in yards rushing per game, Clayton.

Clayton said he takes the blame for the problems with the running game.

"I do indeed take it personal," Clayton said. "I kind of put a lot of it on myself, because I feel like I should be doing a lot more seeing how successful I was at the beginning of the season. We've had issues, however, we've been making strides to get those things corrected, so I'm sure it will all come together some time soon."

Once touted as possibly the best one-two punch at running back in the conference, Clayton and freshman Parrish Fisher haven't come close to their performances in non-conference play.

In three non-conference games, the combination ran for 572 yards. Clayton and Fisher have combined for 139 yards in four conference games – about two-yards per carry average.

"We knew that as the schedule went on, things were going to get tougher, and we know it's not going to get any easier either," Fisher said. "It's not like we can't make big plays in the Big 12. If they thought we couldn't run in the Big 12, we wouldn't be here. We can do it, we just have to find it within ourselves and get it going."

The problems running the ball can't be directly pinned on the tailbacks. Injuries to an already young, inexperienced and depleted offensive line have not helped the running backs' fortunes in conference play.

Senior Jeromey Clary said the problem in the running game is not the running backs, but the inability of the offensive line to execute in run blocking.

"I think the running backs are doing a good job," Clary said. "I think it falls more on the offensive line. We have to get into the right protections, we have to fall into the right run schemes, but the offensive line has to execute because the offensive line always carries an offensive team. If we're playing well, usually the team is playing well.

"We're not playing well, so obviously the team is not playing very well."

Because of the inability to run the ball and playing from behind after halftime in every conference game this season, the Wildcats' hand has been forced into throwing the ball more often than coach Bill Snyder would like this season.

"Last week, the fact that we got ourselves into a real pickle in regards to the score, and that doesn't mean you abandon the run, but we weren't getting enough done at that point in time, but we weren't running the ball badly," Snyder said. "We couldn't stay on schedule as we would like, so we got into throwing the ball a little bit more, and we were getting more yards per snap with the throw than we were with the run.

"We're a little bit more directed that way, but that's not necessarily the way I would like to be, but it's the way it was."

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

Southside Auto Sales
2002 Pontiac Sunfire
4 cyl, Auto, Air
$5,895
1999 Honda Accord
4 cyl., Auto, Sunroof
$6,995
2000 Mazda Protege
4 cyl, Auto, Air
$4,995
1998 Ford Ranger
4.0L, V-6 Auto
$4,795
2000 Chevy S-10 Blazer LT
4.3 V-6, Leather
$6,495
'00 Olds Cutlass
4DR, Auto, 56K.....$4,995
'98 Chevrolet S-10 Blazer LT
4.3 L 4x4, Leather.....$4,995
'00 Chevrolet S-10 P.U.
V-6, Auto, Air.....$4,995
'00 Chevrolet Grand Voyager
3.3L, Loaded.....$5,495
'91 Jeep Wrangler
4.0L, 5 speed, 4x4.....$4,500
'86 Chevrolet El Camino
V-8, Auto, No rust.....$3,495
'96 Eagle Vision
4DR, Auto, Loaded.....$2,650
425 Yuma, Manhattan, KS
785-776-2170 800-837-2170

Lots of Smokin' Great Deals!
• cigarettes • cigarette cases • cigars • chew & snuff • roll your own supplies • pipes • pipe tobacco • ash trays • lighters • zippos • zippo fluid, flints, wicks • incense • flasks • smoking accessories
TOBACCO ALLEY
3037 Anderson Ave. • 770-3641
HOURS:
8 a.m. - 8 p.m. Mon. - Fri.
8 a.m. - 4 p.m. Sat.
Closed Sunday

Distinguished Insurance Agency
J.D. POWER AND ASSOCIATES
Thanks from our family to yours.
We're proud to be part of a select group of American Family insurance agencies to be recognized by J.D. Power and Associates for providing "An Outstanding Customer Experience" as a Distinguished American Family Insurance Agency. The best part is the recognition comes from you, our customers. Let us show you our commitment and dedication to providing you with outstanding customer service and in finding the right insurance to fit your needs.
C Clay Taylor Agency
An Outstanding Customer Experience
J.D. Power and Associates certified Distinguished Insurance Agency
(800) 289-6949 Toll Free
(785) 539-6949
ctaylor@amfam.com
Jim Feeney Agency, Inc.
An Outstanding Customer Experience
J.D. Power and Associates certified Distinguished Insurance Agency
(800) 937-1064 Toll Free
(785) 776-4518
jfeeney@amfam.com
Jon Harper Agency
An Outstanding Customer Experience
J.D. Power and Associates certified Distinguished Insurance Agency
(877) 776-1855 Toll Free
(785) 776-1855
jharper@amfam.com
American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office – Madison, WI 53783
www.amfam.com
© 2005 001776–5/05
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
All your protection under one roof®

Mustang
Gentleman's Club
Open 8 pm to 2 am • 7 days a week
HOME OF THE ULTIMATE GUYS NIGHT OUT
GROUPS OF 10 OR MORE
CALL AHEAD AND RESERVE A TABLE.
18 & Over
WEDNESDAY:
AMATEUR NIGHT
$50-$100 Cash Prize
You keep the tips!
THURSDAY:
DOLLAR NIGHT
$1 Wells
$1.50 Coors / Coors Lt. Bottles
$1.75 Pitchers 48 oz
ALWAYS HIRING NEW GIRLS
Small Hours Big Money
785-238-7571
1330 Grant, Junction City, KS

Wildcats not so special

K-State coach says Cats not improving on special teams

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After not scoring a special teams touchdown all of last season, the Wildcats have already cashed in on three occasions in 2005.

Junior wide receiver Jermaine Moreira was the first to hit pay dirt with a 62-yard punt return for a touchdown against North Texas.

Moreira ranks third in the conference and 26th in the nation with his 11.6 yards per punt return and is one of three players in the Big 12 Conference to have a punt return for a touchdown this season.

Junior wide receivers Yamon Figurs and Jordy Nelson have scored a combined two special teams touchdowns in the past two games.

Figurs ran a kickoff back 98 yards against Texas Tech, making him only one of two people in the Big 12 Conference to have scored a touchdown on a kickoff return.

Nelson scored after he recovered a punt in the end zone that was blocked by sophomore defensive back Adam Hamilton last week against Texas A&M.

K-State ranks fifth in the Big 12 in yards per kickoff return with 19 returns for an average of 22.9 yards.

But even with the successes of the return game, some portions of K-State's special teams is overshadowed by poor play in other areas, coach Bill Snyder said.

"We just had our third punt blocked," Snyder said. "We have not made an iota of improvement on our punt unit.

"Collectively, we haven't made the improvements that I would like."

K-State ranks ninth in the Big 12 in punt returns, averaging 11 yards per return. This season, the Wildcats and Buffaloes are the only two teams in the Big 12 to have multiple punt returns for touchdowns, each with two.

If the Wildcats can take the recent struggles on special teams and turn them into success, then they will have more opportunities to score points and win the game, Nelson said.

"We always seem to have a mistake somewhere," Nelson said. "It is important to practice hard to correct these mistakes, and I feel like we can get all aspects of the special teams together to pull out a win."

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Adam Hamilton blocks a punt last Saturday against Texas A&M. K-State's Jordy Nelson recovered the block for a touchdown.

The Colorado kickers are junior place-kicker Mason Crosby and senior punter John Torp. Crosby is perfect on the season on extra points, going 23-of-23. He is fourth in the Big 12 with a 78.6 percent average on field goals, going 11-of-14 on the season, with a long of 58, the best in the conference this season.

Torp is first in the Big 12 and third in the nation in punting with an average of 46.4 yards per punt, including a long of 72.

Snyder said Torp and Crosby have been important for Colorado in winning the field position battle, and Snyder said he is impressed with Torp's ability to pin opponents deep in their own territory.

"He is unbelievable in pooch punting," Snyder said. "Time and time again he punts the ball inside the five yard line, and he just has a great knack for placing the ball where he wants to place it. He is a phenomenal punter, and I don't say that about too many people."

Their K-State counterparts are junior kicker Jeff Snodgrass and sophomore punter Tim Reyer.

Snodgrass has connected on 7-of-11 of his field goals, which ranks him ninth in the Big 12. Reyer is 10th in the conference with an average of 40.3 yards per punt.

K-State ranks last in the Big 12 and 111th in the nation in net punting, averaging 29.4 yards per punt.

Senior fullback Victor Mann said he knows how critical improving on special teams is, and he is confident his team can get to where it wants to be.

"We could be better – a whole lot better," Mann said. "It's just execution with us. We just need to protect well and cover well. If we can do both of those, then we can be very effective and make it easier on the offense and defense to put points on the board."

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 MORO
Manhattan 776-8770
OPEN FOR HALLOWEEN ON MONDAY * $500 CASH PRIZE FOR 1ST PLACE IN COSTUME CONTEST
FRIDAY & SATURDAY
$2.00 TEQUILA SHOTS
$2.50 MILLER LITE POUNDERS
$2.00 COVER FOR 21 & UP
$5.00 COVER FOR 18 - 20
FRIDAY DANCE & COUNTRY PARTY
SATURDAY COUNTRY PARTY

HUNAM
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Fall Specials
$1 Off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best Chinese and Mongolian BBQ in Town
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888
1 coupon per customer • Can not be combined with any other offers

Every Friday
Open at 4pm
21 to enter
THE PURPLE PIG EST. 1996
4.99 Steak Night
(6oz. sirloin, salad, side)

Halo Photography Inc.
Travis Brown
•Wedding •Portrait •Special Occasion
785-776-5352 (home) or
785-317-1688 (cell) or E-mail me at HaloInc@hotmail.com

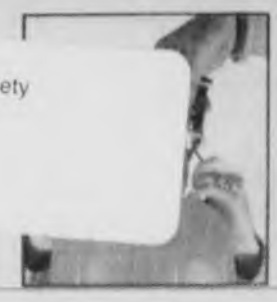
occasional student, eternal WILDCAT.
Nothing shows Purple Pride like a POWERCAT TATTOO.
• Autoclave Sterilization
• Body Jewelry
• 1000's of designs
• Custom work
• Brilliant Colors
• Personal Service
• 35 Years Experience
• Single Use Needles
FINE LINE INC.
PERMANENT COSMETICS AND BODY PIERCING
TOPEKA 785-233-8288 Tues - Sat 12pm - 8pm 1935 SW Gage Blvd
JUNCTION CITY 785-238-8238 Thurs - Sat 12pm - 8pm 1026 W 6th
MANHATTAN 785-537-0964 Tues - Sat 12pm-8pm 622 N. Manhattan
finelinetattooinc.com

THE Palace Cards & Gifts
K-State Apparel & Jewelry
K-State & Greek Gifts
License plates & Tailgating supplies
Balloons, Cards, Candy Gifts & more!
539-7654
704 N. Manhattan Ave. in Aggieville

Voted Sports Illustrated's #12 Sports Bar in America!
Good Luck, Wildcats!
FREE T-SHIRTS!
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON



25¢ pizza
Domino's Pizza
*call for details
776-7788
Please mention # when ordering.
we deliver free to you
www.campusfood.com
#1 One Large Cheese or 1-Topping Pizza $7.77
#2 One Medium 2-Topping Pizza & a 20 oz. Soda $7.77
#3 One Small 1-Topping Pizza & Your Choice of Bread Item $7.77
#4 10 pc. Buffalo Wings or kickers & Your Choice of Bread Item $7.77
EXPIRES: 12/31/05
DEEP DISH $1 MORE • SM. HANDTOSSED ONLY • ADD. TOPPING EXTRA

SAY TEETH!®
www.sagerdental.com
TEETH WHITENING AND CLEANING
SMILE ENHANCEMENTS BY THE PROFESSIONALS
LAST MINUTE APPOINTMENTS
CALL NOW 785.537.8823

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Monday, October 31, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 51

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

Edge, Page 7

Unclaimed property helps state with budget deficit

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

There's $155 million waiting for Kansans to claim.

And today is not too late to make a run for this money.

Every year, banks, businesses and organizations turn in more than $12-15 million worth of unclaimed property to the state of Kansas, state treasurer Lynn Jenkins said.

"Unclaimed property is not only property from safe deposit boxes," said Jenkins. "It also includes inactive savings and checking accounts, uncashed checks, stock shares and bonds, dividend checks, insurance proceeds, mineral royalties and utility deposits."

As of October 2005, the state accumulated more than $155 million worth of unclaimed property, and Jenkins said claiming it back is as easy as an Internet search on www.KansasCash.com, where people enter basic data to see if they have unclaimed property.

Manhattan resident Jessica Moore said her family found a piece of unclaimed property a few years ago.

"We just decided to randomly go on the

See MONEY Page 6

New student ambassadors plan for year

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Ryan Flickner and Ashley Smit heard their names announced Saturday as the new K-State student ambassadors, they said they couldn't believe their ears.

"It's kind of a moment of shock," Smit, junior in general biology, said. "It's like jumping off a cliff and hoping you can fly."

For the next year, Flickner, senior in agronomy, and Smit will represent the K-State student body by sharing their K-State experiences with alumni and prospective students.

This week, they will be told their responsibilities and start planning for the year ahead.

One of Smit's biggest challenges as an ambassador will be to represent the diverse

See AMBASSADORS Page 6

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
After hearing their names announced as the new student ambassadors, Ashley Smit, junior in general biology and Ryan Flickner, senior in agronomy embrace Saturday. The pair will start their duties this week to prepare for their reign as ambassadors.

Campus congestion

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

ABOVE: People in a packed McCain Auditorium listen as the former leader of the Soviet Union, Mikhail Gorbachev, speaks during the Landon Lecture Friday afternoon. Once McCain was full, people were sent to the K-State Student Union Forum Hall and Union Courtyard where they viewed the lecture through a live feed.
LEFT: Students and Manhattan residents stand in line outside McCain Auditorium, waiting to enter and listen to the former leader of the Soviet Union as he gave the 140th Landon Lecture.

Thousands turned away for Landon Lecture in McCain

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Thousands of students and community members were upset and disappointed Friday after being turned away from a packed McCain Auditorium for Mikhail Gorbachev's Landon Lecture.

Landon Lecture chair Charles Reagan said he did not know how many people attended the lecture or how many were turned away. McCain Auditorium can seat 1,791 people and the K-State Student Union's Forum Hall, where a video feed of the lecture was shown, can seat 626.

Despite overflow seating in Forum Hall, the Union's Little Theater and Union Courtyard, there were still empty seats in the orchestra and balcony of McCain. Reagan said the auditorium's ushers made an effort to fill all seats.

"The auditorium is poorly designed with no central aisle, which is frustrating to me," Reagan said. "Ten minutes before we went on, I told ushers to let anyone sit in the empty orchestra seating, and they tried to do that."

See SEATING Page 6

Gorbechev says 'globaliztion inevitable'

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Perestroika opened the former Soviet Union to economic reforms that are still visible 20 years later, said former Soviet Union President Mikhail Gorbachev to a capacity crowd at McCain Auditorium Friday.

Gorbachev, the 140th speaker in the Landon Lecture Series, said Soviet Union citizens felt there were problems facing the country and the world. Perestroika's main theme was that the Soviet Union could no longer live in poverty when it had citizens who were intellectually rich.

"We were a superpower, so that was an incentive to start perestroika," he said. "Our society was demanding change and it was in the air all the time."

Gorbachev said the Soviet Union's productivity was only one-third of the Western world's and its agriculture productivity represented one-fifth of that of developed countries.

"Changes were overdue and attempts for such changes had been taken before," he said.

Gorbachev, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1990, introduced perestroika to the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union in June 1987. Perestroika, which literally means "economic restructuring," presented the political foundation for economic reforms for the remainder of the Soviet Union.

"Sometimes people say that I gave away the countries of the USSR. I say I gave them back to their people"

Mikhail Gorbachev
FORMER SOVIET UNION PRESIDENT

"Sometimes people say I gave away the countries of the USSR," Gorbachev said. "I say I gave them back to their people."

Gorbachev said today's world is changing and people are worried about the future. There is a free flow of information, and interdependence and globalization are increasing.

"We should rethink the world with these new changes, and the solutions are not militaristic," he said, adding that globalization is inevitable and objective, but billions of people have yet to benefit from it.

"This could mean a lot of trouble for the world," he said. "We must give globalization a human face and make it directional."

Gorbachev recommended the United States exercise leadership through partnership with other nations. He said Europeans should recognize their positive potential and not divide the continent into "new" and "old" countries.

"We don't want the democratic transition to fail," he said. "Russia and the Soviet Union's transition to democracy has been more painful than originally thought."

Gorbachev said nations should work to achieve a world that is not based on the position of one country, but instead on a view that is good for all nations. He quoted John F. Kennedy by saying "a true

See LECTURE Page 6

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Former Soviet Union President Mikhail Gorbachev holds a K-State sweatshirt given to him by President Jon Wefald Friday afternoon after Gorbachev gave the 140th Landon Lecture in McCain Auditorium.

Today
High 64
Low 35

Tuesday
High 70
Low 41

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Man sentenced to death
Phillip D. Cheatham was sentenced to death Friday in a Topeka court for killing two women and critically injuring a third woman. He was convicted last month of one count of capital murder, two counts of first-degree murder and one count of attempted first-deree murder.

DUI arrests
Three people were arrested Friday and Saturday during the Riley County Police Department's DUI Saturation Patrol. RCPD officers made 29 traffic stops and evaluated seven people for possible DUI. Those suspected of DUI were given field sobriety tests. RCPD also issued numerous warnings and citations for other violations.

Soldiers charged
The military announced Sunday that two U.S. Soldiers have been charged with assault for allegedly punching two detainees in the chest, shoulders and stomach at a military base in Afghanistan. The charges include conspiracy to maltreat, assault and dereliction of duty.

DON'T FORGET

Students with 65 hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

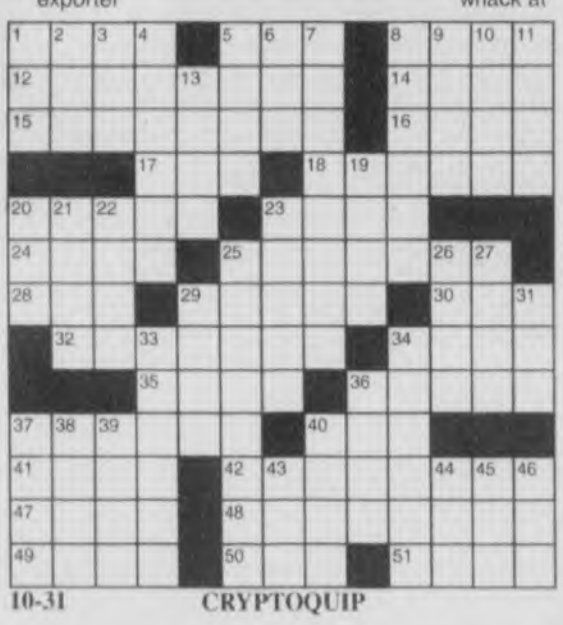
Kent Williams will speak of "Art vs. Architecture: Influencing Environments with Collaboration and Conflict" at 1:30 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union Little Theatre.

The K-State Jazz Combo will perform at 7:30 tonight in Union Station.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009



Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Change for a five
5 Fuss
8 Drescher or Tarkenton
12 Musical
14 Mysterious character
15 Lots of power?
16 Lab heater
17 Say it's okay
18 Result
20 Burn with steam
23 "Wheel of Fortune" option
24 Cather's "One of —"
25 Jersey Joe of boxing fame
28 Lanka lead-in
29 First sign of spring
30 Short jaunt
32 Sinclair Lewis's conformist
34 Cigar exporter
35 Wood strip
36 Blasé
37 Beethoven piece
40 Conger, e.g.
41 Asset
42 Pear variety
47 "— She Sweet?"
48 One in the NPR audience
49 Bryophyte
50 Previous to
51 Time for decisive action

DOWN
1 A bit of resistance?
2 Dundee denial
3 Work unit
4 One-digit sizes, maybe
5 M.D.'s study
6 Morse morsel
7 One of a record-setting birth
8 California raisin venue
9 "The Sultan of Swat"
10 Part of A.D.
11 Tidy
13 Still unpaid
19 Snapshots
20 "Mayday!"
21 Restrain
22 Sutherland solo
23 Former states?
25 Like DVDs that can have data added
26 Dull sound
27 One of Hamlet's options
29 Blind as —
31 Tablet
33 Explosions
34 Named
36 Blackhearts lead Joan
37 Undesired e-mail
38 Hodgepodge
39 "Sound of Music" extras
40 Gaelic
43 Football filler
44 Conclusion
45 Earl Grey, e.g.
46 Take a whack at

Solution time: 24 mins.

10-31 CRYPTOQUIP

MS NHSP LKOYJDF YJCF MPN AJR MVPH J KJVCSMKK, RHO YMDUP NJR MP'N CHAV MV PUF COYLN.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: AT A WHISKEY DISTILLERY, WHEN PEOPLE WORK OVERTIME, THEY HAVE TO PAY TIME AND A FIFTH.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: R equals Y

WEEK IN REVIEW

7 things you didn't know 7 days ago

Bombing in Iraqi village kills 26

Ali Jasim | REUTERS

An Iraqi man touches a bullet hole in the windshield of a car used by Ghalib Abdul Madhi, an adviser to the Iraqi cabinet, in Baghdad Oct. 30.

A bomb hidden in a truck exploded Saturday northeast of Baghdad, in the center of a Shiite farming village, killing 26 people and injuring at least 34. The village is plagued by suicide attacks, roadside bombs and armed assaults on police checkpoints. Three American soldiers were killed in separate bombings in Baghdad and northern Iraq. According to the Associated Press, at least 2,015 U.S. troops have died since March 2003.

ROSA PARKS DIES

Rosa Parks, the woman who helped spark the modern civil rights movement, died Monday evening at 92. Parks was 42 when she refused to give up her bus seat to a white man in 1955. Her arrest triggered the 381-day bus boycott organized by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. She died at her home of natural causes surrounded by family and friends.

Parks
CIVIL RIGHTS ACTIVIST

SWOOPES COMES OUT

WNBA superstar Sheryl Swoopes, 34, disclosed she is gay to ESPN the Magazine on Wednesday. The Houston Comets' player is a five-time All Star, three-time Olympic gold medalist, WNBA champion and the only player to be a three-time MVP. Swoopes currently lives with her partner, former Comets assistant coach Alisa Scott. She has an 8-year-old son with her former husband, Eric Jackson.

Swoopes
WNBA PLAYER

U.N. COMBATS JUVENILE AIDS

The United Nations is launching a global campaign against AIDS in children. According to a new report from UNICEF and UNAIDS, every minute a child under the age of 15 dies from AIDS. The campaign will target governments and policy-makers to try to reduce AIDS cases. The campaign will focus on prevention and expect to achieve a 25 percent drop in infections by providing education, information and services to young people.

SUSPECT'S MOTHER ARRESTED

The mother of a teenager accused of killing defense attorney and television commentator Daniel Horowitz's wife, Pamela Vitale, was arrested Thursday. Esther Fielding, 53, was held on $500,000 bail and her son, Scott Dyleski, 16, is charged with first-degree murder. Fielding is being held on suspicion of being an accessory to murder.

FRATERNITY MEN PLEAD GUILTY

Four Chi Tau fraternity members pleaded guilty Friday for the death of Matthew Carrington, 21, in Oroville, Calif. Carrington died last February of heart failure caused by water intoxication. He and another pledge were ordered to drink water out of five-gallon jugs and pour it on themselves as a fan blasted cold air on them. Gabriel Maestretti, 22, received a one-year sentence for involuntary manslaughter; John Paul Fickes, 19, and Jerry Lim, 25, received six months for accessory to manslaughter and misdemeanor hazing; Carlos Devilla Abrille, 22, was sentenced to 90 days for misdemeanor hazing.

ISRAEL, PALESTINE CEASE FIRE

Israel and the Palestinians agreed to cease nearly all the fighting on Sunday after militant groups pledged to stop rocket fire on Israeli towns. The Israelis withdrew from the Gaza Strip last month, which many thought would begin peace efforts, but broke out in violence instead. Israeli officials refused to confirm the reports of any such deal.

Source: The Associated Press

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Thursday, Oct. 27

- Oscar Hernandez-Torres, Green Bay, Wis., was arrested at 10:45 a.m. for conspiracy to commit and sale of opiates, opium or narcotics. Bond was set at $50,000.
- Ronnell Braxton, Kansas City, Kan., was arrested at 8:18 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $1,500.
- John Rogers, no address given, was arrested at 10:30 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,500.

Friday, Oct. 28

- Kyle Roggenkamp, 1200 Centennial Drive, was arrested at 2:05 a.m. for assault of a law officer, obstruction of legal process and disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $3,000.
- Ashley Strube, 314 N. Sixth St., was arrested at 3:30 a.m. for disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $750.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Xuemei Yang at 10 this morning in Bluemont 257.
- The K-State Jazz Combo will perform at 7:30 tonight in Union Station.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Carolyn Schmidt at 9 this morning in Bluemont 368.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

HAPPY HALLOWEEN!! Claflin Books and Copies

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips with student ID and coupon expires 11/20/05 KNAILS 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444

Happy Howl-a-ween! $5 OFF Your First Visit BARK AVENUE CANINE DESIGNS 607 N. 11th • Aggieville • 565-0612

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza $5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only ALL DAY, EVERYDAY! 1150 Westloop • 539-3333

advertise with the COLLEGIAN 532-6560 he did.

MEAL MANIA

Pregnancy Testing Center "Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption." 539-3338 Free pregnancy testing Totally confidential service Same day results Call for appointment Located across from campus in Anderson Village Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

QUIZNOS SUB MMMM...TOASTY! 900 Hayes Drive Manhattan, KS 66502 Phone: 785-539-9500 Fax: 785-539-9503 Hours 10:30AM - 9:00PM 2010 Anderson Road Manhattan, KS 66502 Phone: 785-776-9300 Fax: 785-776-9490 WWW.QUIZNOS.COM Coupon valid at this location only

DELIVERY 539-9500 THIS CERTIFICATE ENTITLES YOU TO: FREE CHIP/DRINK WITH PURCHASE OF A REGULAR SUB Expires: 11-30-05 Not valid on the Red Deal or Choose 2 menus, limited menu offers, or delivery orders. This original coupon must be surrendered when ordering. Limit one coupon per order. May not be combined with any other offer or coupon. Taxes not included. No cash value (unless prohibited by law, then cash value is $.001). Value of promotional item(s) varies by location. No substitutions. Void if copied or transferred and where prohibited. Valid in participating Portland metro area only. Copyright 2005 QIP Holder LLC. QUIZNOS SUB MMMM...TOASTY!

Shake's FROZEN CUSTARD $1 off Build your own Sundae When you clip this coupon! 5th & Fort Riley Blvd. • 537-9553

shout outs are coming November 9 to the Classifieds section of the Collegian.

Check out our table in the Union for one FREE SHOUT OUT coupon! Nov. 7,8,9 11 a.m. - 1 p.m.

$2 Guarantees YOU a voice in the Collegian!

K-State home to many stories of ghosts, haunted buildings

In the entryway just outside Purple Masque Theatre, a shadow is cast over a football. A former K-State football player was badly injured in the 1950s during a football practice at Memorial Stadium and later died.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State often boasts about its rich history, beautiful campus, friendly people and Big 12 Conference sports. However, the campus is supposedly also called home by ghosts that live in the Purple Masque Theatre, a residence hall and a couple of fraternities, according to the Haunted Kansas Web site.

PURPLE MASQUE THEATRE

This year a paranormal investigator, John Zaffis, discovered a ghost in the Purple Masque Theatre in Memorial Stadium. But K-State students said they knew the theater was haunted long before Zaffis came to Manhattan.

According to the Haunted Kansas Web site, a former football player named Nick was injured badly during a football practice in the 1950s. He was carried into what was then the stadium's cafeteria, where he died shortly after.

It is believed his restless spirit remains in the theater and is responsible for strange encounters that have taken place there.

Charlotte MacFarland, associate professor in speech communication, theater and dance, is one of many K-State faculty members to experience strange encounters in the Purple Masque Theatre, she said.

For more information
To read more about K-State haunted buildings, go to www.kstatecollegian.com.

"It's been a continuing presence that students have laughed about and talked about," MacFarland said.

On one occasion, MacFarland was directing a rehearsal for a play that was to be performed in the theater. In the middle of the rehearsal, a male figure appeared backstage. MacFarland startled the performers by stopping practice to figure out who the person was and what he was doing.

"I stood up to say something and it disappeared," she said. "When I went around to confront the person, there was no one there either."

The next day, MacFarland joked about the experience to one of her classes. Immediately, the light above her head exploded.

"It could have been just one of those things," she said. "But I never want to be alone in there again. There was something in there. I don't know if it's still there or not."

PHI GAMMA DELTA

K-State is home to another haunted fraternity, Phi Gamma Delta, according to the Haunted Kansas Web site. Fiji was formerly occupied by Theta Xi fraternity. The house is located at 1919 Hunting Ave.

It was while Theta Xis lived in the building that a young man named Duncan died during an initiation ritual that required each of the pledges to bend over to be paddled.

When Duncan's turn came, he stood up suddenly and was accidentally struck in the head. It is said that the blow was a fatal one and he died a little while later.

It was shortly after Fiji bought the house in 1965 that the first reports of Duncan's ghost began. The room in which Theta Xi had stored their paddles was converted into a library, and two paddles were left hanging on the wall – one of which bore Duncan's name.

The Fijis removed the paddles and repainted the library, but an image of Duncan's paddle kept appearing on the wall as a dark, blood-like stain. The wall was eventually paneled, ending the occurrence.

Through the years, reports of ghostly encounters in the house continue.

"Every once in a while, the TV will randomly turn on and off or the radio will turn on, but that's about it," Travis Gulledge, senior in finance, said. "Nothing too scary."

Gulledge lives in room 8, the room in which Duncan allegedly died.

City targets 'dangerous' dogs to protect others

By Chris Patch
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Brett Allred bought his pit bull, named Tank, he was unaware the dog could be dangerous.

The senior in management said he wasn't aware of a Manhattan ordinance where "dangerous dogs" like pit bulls are watched more closely than other dogs.

Manhattan's "Dangerous Dog" 2-year-old ordinance carries stiffer penalties for owners of disruptive dogs with a tendency toward violence than owners of other breeds. "Dangerous dogs," which was instated in October 2003, include chows, Staffordshire terriers, pit bulls, Doberman pinschers and rottweilers.

Owners of these breeds could be fined if their dog attacks someone. If the dog has multiple complaints of violence, the dog could be put to sleep.

While the ordinance is to punish "dangerous dogs," Terry Deweese, director of parks and recreation, said owners who comply with the city's request in having the breeds goes a long way.

"If someone has a complaint on a dangerous dog, we will investigate that and we will tell the owner things they need to do," Deweese said. "If we bring something to your attention and you do the things we ask, you'll be OK."

In October, six complaints on dangerous dogs were filed with the City of Manhattan, but none of the owners were fined.

Deweese said the ordinance is designed to "protect the public," and said he hasn't had very many problems with owners not complying with city requests.

Allred said he hasn't had any problems owning a pit bull.

"He's really socialized, he's a really nice dog," Allred said. "He plays with squirrels, he's really playful."

He said the personality of a dog can be linked to how it is raised as a puppy.

"I've never had a pit bull before, I always had retrievers," Allred said. "What I heard from a lot of people that sell Pits is that they're predispositioned well if you raise them well."

For more information visit the Manhattan Web site at www.ci.manhattan.ks.us, under ordinance No. 6360.

Customers to receive free Chipotle for dressing up as Mexican food

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Third annual Boo-rito event
When: 5 to 10 tonight
Where: Chipotle Mexican Grill
606 N. Manhattan Ave.
How much: Free

Dust off the over-sized foam tortilla costume, burrito-shaped hat or aluminum foil suit.

It's that time of year when people can participate in the Chipotle Mexican Grill's annual Boo-rito event, where people are asked to dress up in their favorite Mexican-food garb when they visit the local restaurant at 606 N. Manhattan Ave.

This is no trick, but rather a treat for those who show off their Halloween, or for some, their Chipotle spirit from 5-10 p.m. today.

"Anyone who dresses up as their favorite burrito, taco, bols or salad will get a free burrito," said Rachelle Kuntz, senior in management and local store marketing supervisor for Chipotle.

Today, Chipotle restaurants across the country are participating in the Boo-rito campaign, Kuntz said. This is the third year that Manhattan will participate in the event.

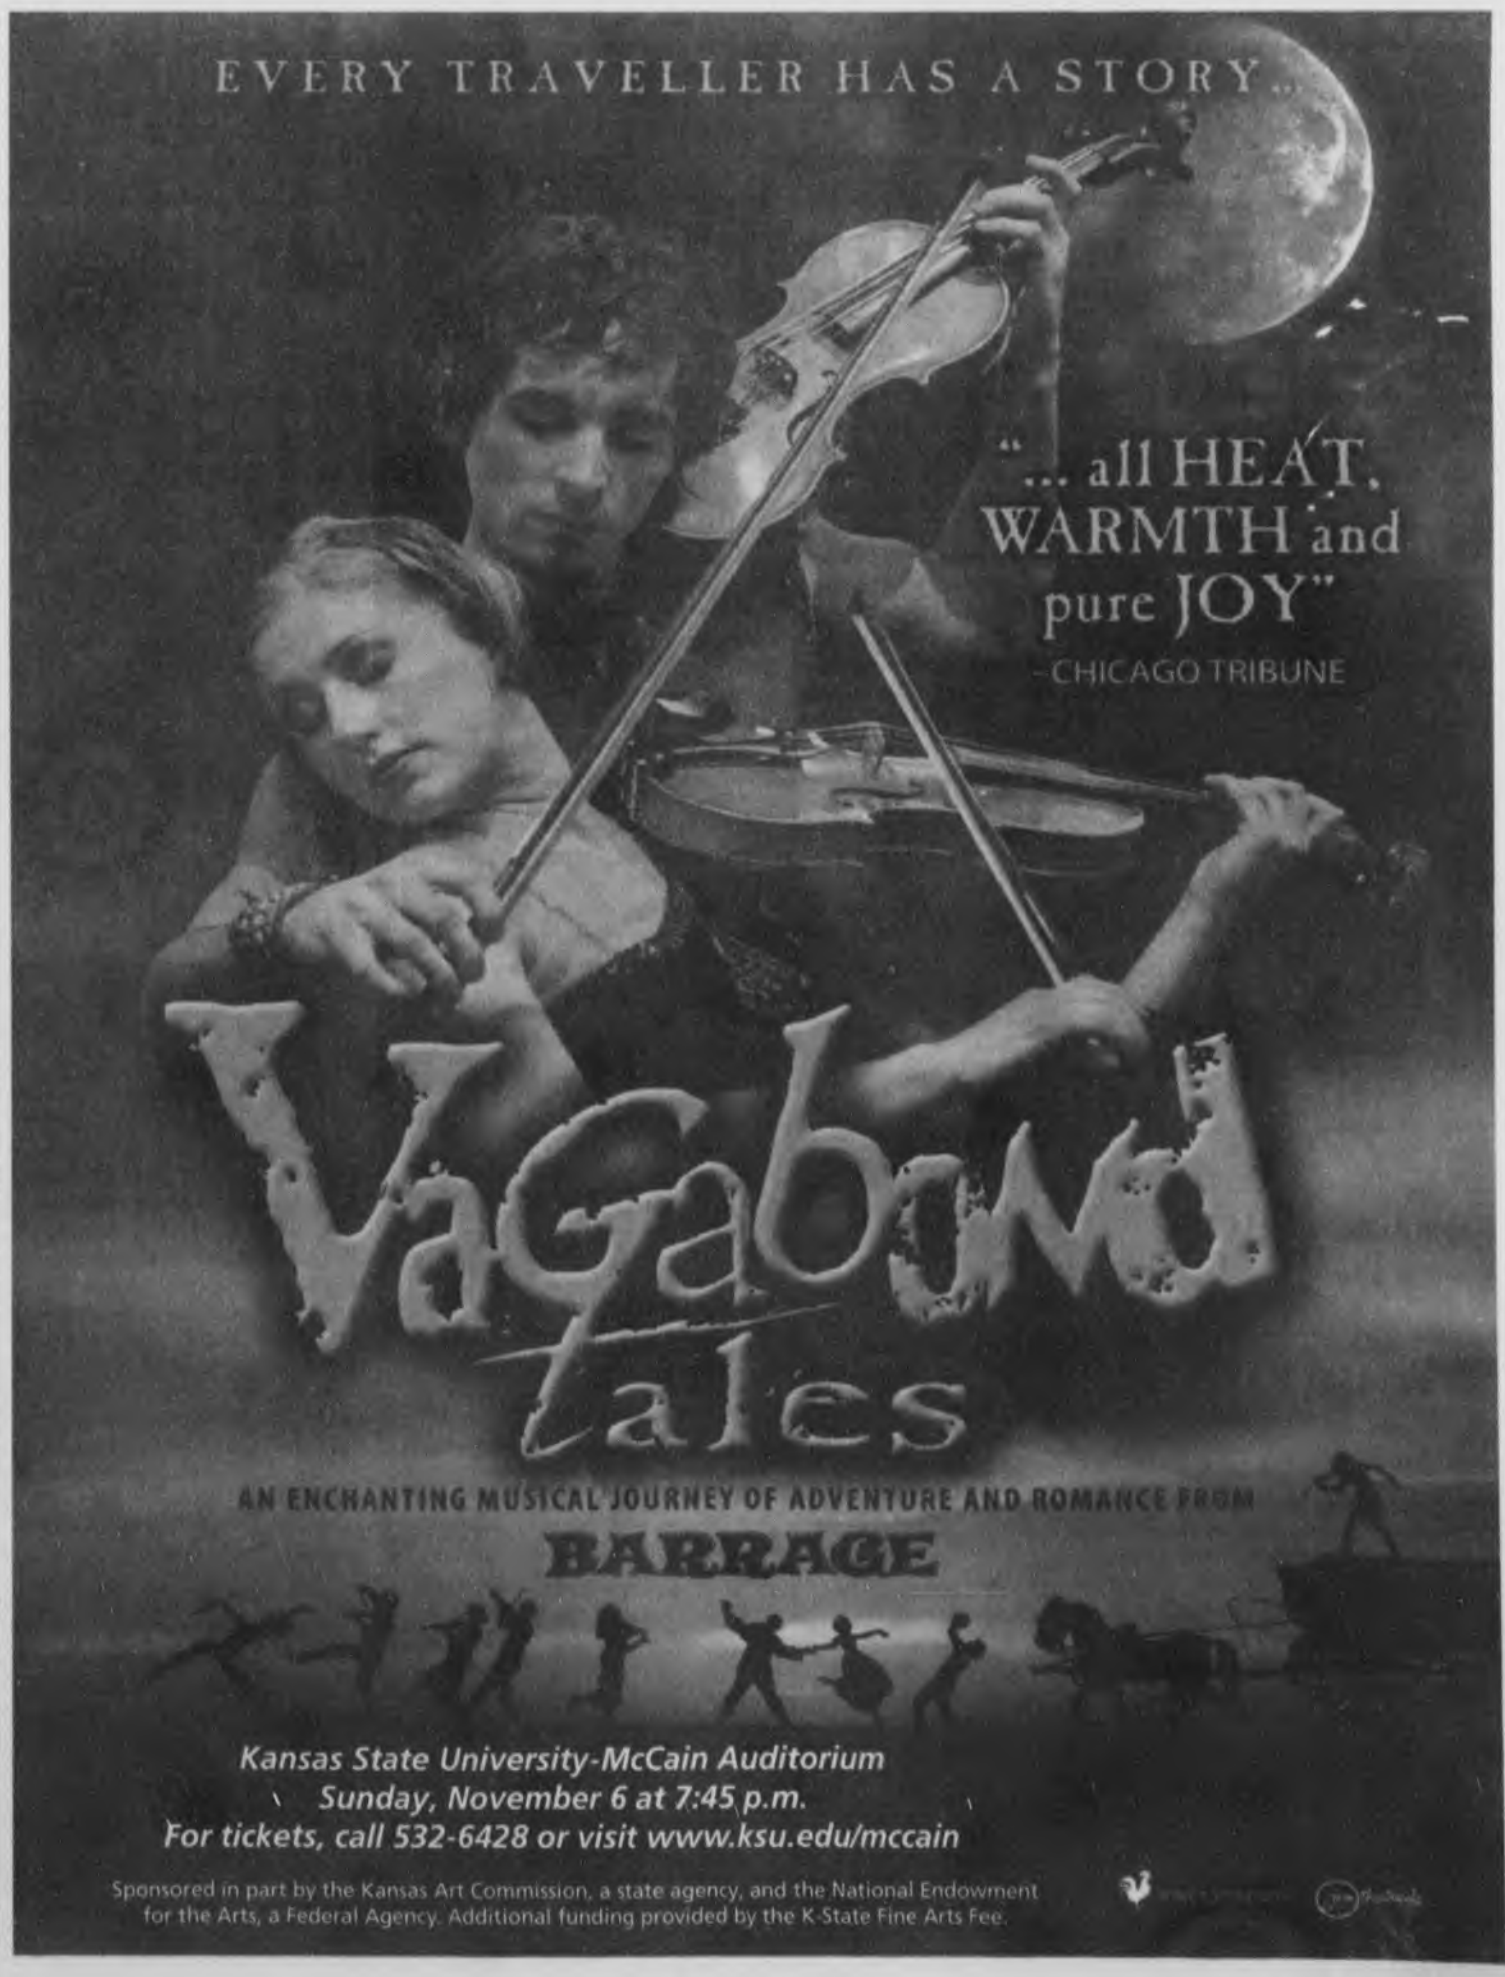
Matt Thompson, junior in marketing, said he had dressed up for a Boo-rito event before, and since he has a soft spot for Mexican food, he plans to be at Chipotle for a free burrito.

"I did the event a while back in Kansas City," he said. "But if someone here went all out with it, that would be pretty funny to see too."

The event will also be an entertaining time to share with friends, said Kelly Krob, junior in architecture.

"It'd be cool to foil yourself, get the green stuff inside," Krob said.

Whether mild or spicy, vegan or steak, Kuntz said she expects costumes from the Boo-rito event to be pretty exciting for customers and staff.



"Our staff gets to dress up for the day," Kuntz said. "And there should be some great, interesting costumes as well."

Kansas State Collegian Advertising 532-6560
The Collegian is available at
112 locations near you.

HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
Free Delivery: 537-0886
Fax: 539-9111
Hours: Sun. - Wed., 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
SPEND OVER $25 AND GET A FREE T-SHIRT!!

$1.25 Hamburgers
$1.50 Cheeseburgers
$1.00 Fries & Tots
$4.75 Pitchers
$1.50 Pints
Baltimore VS Pittsburgh
The Purple Pig Est. 1936
Monday Night Football

NOW OPEN FOR DINNER
Monday-Friday
4:30 p.m.-8 p.m.
•Nightly Specials•
•Same breakfast & lunch hours•
EARLY EDITION
3210 Kimball Ave.
Candlewood Shopping Center

TO THE POINT

Lecture should have been better planned

On Friday, Oct. 28, one of the most influential people of the 20th century came to speak at our university.

However, for the thousands who stood in line to hear Mikhail Gorbachev only to be turned away, the event was far from spectacular.

Excuses have been tossed about, along with clichés about hindsight, but the fiasco of Friday's Landon Lecture is inexcusable.

If McCain had always proven adequate before, it might be excusable to claim ignorance, but such is not the case.

During Paul Harvey's 2003 lecture, many people were turned away from McCain, and lessons that should have been learned were not.

The excuses offered are ridiculous beyond words.

God forbid we inconvenience the university or, far worse, disrupt All-University Homecoming activities to host a Nobel Peace Prize winner.

The failure to adequately plan for this lecture has damaged not only the credibility of the Landon Lecture Series but has cost the university the financial support of alumni.

The Landon Lecture Series is reputed to be one of the premier lecture series in the nation.

But when it suffers such a catastrophic failure of planning, we can only wonder what our reputation will be from now on.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

Moderating the munchies

Balancing meals between midterms, holidays can prevent weight gain

CHRISTINA FORSBERG

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

With October coming to an end, the weather is finally cooling down. Most students are pulling out the extra layers of clothing to withstand the treks to class, and have perhaps already gained some extra weight in further preparation for the coming winter months.

While there's no need to stress about the haunting repercussions of the "freshman 15" there may be cause for concern about unhealthy eating. That includes students so graciously gifted with super-fast metabolism; what you put in your body now determines the future condition of your body in ways that are not always as visible as a few extra pounds.

With the continuous growth of healthy choices available for student convenience, healthy eating doesn't take much effort to accomplish.

Walking on campus may fulfill the daily requirement of moderate exercise for most time-pressed students, but care for healthy foods may wane as the busyness of the semester sets into full swing. Snacks, especially at mid-semester, seem much more delicious when devoured during a late-night study session.

We do not need to be certified nutritionists to know what general attitude to take up when confronting all the hype about food and eating. The ancient Greeks proclaimed and lived by, "everything in moderation." For today's scholar, that's perfectly applicable to food consumption and studying alike.

Certain foods, usually the tastiest ones, tend to get a bad rap for their nutritional content. Don't discriminate, just moderate.

Lucky for us, even fast food joints once associated with obesity are shaping up their menus to offer better foods to consumers for low prices – all within convenient proximity.

There's an important distinction to be made about diets and "dieting." Yeah, I'm on a diet. In other words, I eat food on a regular basis.

"Dieting" may be associated with attempting weight loss by abnormally altering your diet. If you moderate and diversify what you eat, you can have what you crave without starving, feeling guilty or abandoning all concern for your health.

So, no drastic diet changes are necessary unless you've been living solely on vending machine food. Just remember to always use common sense in consumption.

Short-changed college-age Chipotle fanatics can continue to enjoy those bigger-than-your-face burritos. As they're high in calories, they can provide the most calories-per-dollar of food if you pace your burrito munching over a couple days. Or go for a cheaper sub-shop sandwich for one-sitting satisfaction.

Plus, don't forget that some so-called "bad" foods have recently shown up in the news as a result of their "good" sides. A little bit of chocolate every week, for example, is actually beneficial to your body. According to Wikipedia, research studies indicate chocolate has properties that can lower blood pressure and the risk of heart disease.

Moderate splurging is part of a healthy diet too. Eating out once a week or having a burger and fries from your favorite fast food vendor once in a while won't hurt if you don't overdo it.

Yes, you can even have your Halloween candy and eat it too. Just in moderation.

Christina Forsberg is a sophomore in English and Economics. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Mixed elements can lead to misunderstandings

LUCAS MADDY

The Hatfields and the McCoys. Toby Keith and the Dixie Chicks. Jesse Jackson and Strom Thurmond. Alcohol and dancing, driving, singing, hunting or farming. Mike Tyson and anyone.

When mixed, certain elements within our society produce varying results. Generally, avoid mixing natural elements with synthetic ones, such as a Katie Holmes and a Tom Cruise. The consequences range from entertaining – Matthew McConaughey and bongos – to annoying – William Hung and singing – to horrendous – John Madden and broadcasting.

I currently split rent with what many Kansans would identify as a prime candidate for retroactive birth control. This inconsiderate vegetarian super-liberal once-Jewish-turned-atheist bunny hugger whose chosen career is to play online poker summons unbridled disdain. I silently tolerated his pointless ravings about how everything should be privatized. I grudgingly listened as he informed me of the deadly consequences of eating eggs.

When we saw a mouse in the room and he jumped back and told me to get rid of it but not hurt it, I came unglued. I was previously peeved, as the night before he had discharged a fire extinguisher outside the door at 3 a.m. The absurdity had run its course, and we had what is often referred to as a "come to Jesus" meeting and held his feet to the fire for every asinine idea his deluded mind produced.

We started with his passing contrary judgment on people who work our land for a living. Way not cool. Apparently reading Che Guevara and recognizing the name Cesar Chavez gave him grounds to attack traditional American agriculture as a parasite sucking our country dry.

I informed him that the United Nations found American food to be cheapest in the world; he just pays more because almond milk and Tofurkey run a bit higher than real cow juice and dead bird.

We made great strides until one of his cohorts came along and asked to get in on the debate. His qualifications? He had been born in Guyana on a farm. Pretty sure they've never seen an 8010 Case IH or had to deal with loan deficiency payments.

He spoke with great fervor, quoting philosophers, actually saying "comma, colon, parentheses" when they applied, and ending sentences with Latin phrases and a Cheshire smile. I told him that if he ever wanted to impart his commensurate knowledge on the "little people" he so supported, he should grow less pot and more callouses.

My words were all under five syllables, so they went unheard. I left him with one final question, and fully expected a thesis distinguishing his ass from a hole in the ground.

Misunderstanding is rampant. We must relate to each other. Make the effort to exchange knowledge. As my part, I explained why we shoot coyotes and snakes. Supposedly, he's going to get back to me on why he takes Xanax when he drinks. See? With work, we can understand each other.

Defenders of husbandry, the provincial pursuit that serves as both trade and avocation to disciples of terra firma, I make a simple appeal: your visceral knowledge of rural flora and fauna is esoteric among the general population.

Your savoir-faire in agricultural is singularly inherent. Those not affiliated with our shared occupation have edified their copious accusations with "facts" pilfered from sources seeking to impugn the dignity and honor of land stewards nationwide. Invest in a thesaurus and a large stick. Try the thesaurus first.

Lucas Maddy is a senior in agriculture technology management. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF	Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR	Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF	Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR	Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR	Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR	Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR	Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR	Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH	Brad Simmons AD MANAGER	Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

I wonder if you can gauge your ears to the point where you can actually have aural sex?

I'm pretty sure she just blew a jello shot out of her nose.

To the person who is wondering why we start counting birthdays "once they pop out," think about it. That's why it's called a birthday.

I spent all night typing a five-page paper. It should have only taken me an hour or two, but for some reason I felt the need to stare at my wall and watch Family Guy.

Stop by Leavenworth for Ramen. Forks are provided. Love ACA.

You know it was so cold the other day that I actually saw Butters the Squirrel hiding his nuts — no joke.

If anyone needs me, I'll be at the late night double feature picture show.

Kody, you always have a clever way of throwing an argument in a liberal's face.

JFA claims abortion is a messy and nasty procedure but 20 bucks says pictures of open-heart surgery are worse. Nice propaganda JFA.

JFA claims there is currently no research on abortion risks; maybe they should put some of their money toward it instead of shock-and-awe signs.

Being in Amsterdam for 4-20 is like being in Ireland for St. Patrick's Day.

To the two good-looking guys who helped a girl in need at Phillips 66 on Thursday afternoon, thanks. It was greatly appreciated.

To the girl in Jimmy John's that said I looked like a whore, it's Halloween. Everyone does. Get over it.

What kind of a name is "Jordy," anyway?

IFC and Panhellenic Council should be vampires for Halloween, because they all suck. Thanks for taking the fun out of Homecoming.

Can Listerine be used to wash dishes?

I saw Chip the Buffalo try to make out with one of our cheerleaders. That's like a crime against nature.

Are the coaches supposed to tell players to let the ball go past them in that situation and have us just go into overtime?

I just saw a K-State cheerleader smoking a cigar. How attractive is that?

Am I awesome yet?

I hate my job.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Luther changed history

Editor,

Today is Reformation Day, better known as Halloween in America. 488 years ago today (1517), an obscure German Augustinian monk named Martin Luther nailed the 95 Theses to the door of Castle Church in Wittenberg, Germany.

The 95 Theses were intended to spark intellectual debate over indulgences, papal power and other theological issues. Enter Gutenberg's printing press (invented in 1454 to print the Bible), which allowed countless German citizens to read Luther's indictment against the Pope. The 95 Theses ignited a powder keg of faith that engulfed the Holy Roman Empire (modern day Germany) and Christendom overnight.

Many Germans supported these theological contentions and they gained extensive support, but Pope Leo X and several of his royal supporters were infuriated. When Luther was tried before the Holy Roman Emperor, Charles V, at the Diet of Worms (1521), he famously said, "here I stand. I can do no other, God help me."

While en route to Rome (to be executed for blasphemy), Luther was kidnapped and protected by Frederick the Wise, Elector of Saxony, while he translated the New Testament into German (it was previously only in Latin and Greek), so everyone could read it. The recent movie Luther accurately captures this dramatic story.

This bold and daring German monk transformed the world when he dared to follow his conscience and step out on the faith of his convictions. Today we remember a man who changed the course of history forever.

Steve Johnson
SENIOR IN HISTORY

Landon Lecture should have been relocated

Editor,

I skipped class Friday. I skipped lunch. I stood in line for more than an hour so I could see Nobel Peace Prize recipient, former president of the USSR Mikhail Gorbachev speak at McCain. I didn't have to go halfway across the country to listen to him; he was brought to campus by the Landon Lecture series. But you already knew that.

You knew that most people suspected that McCain Auditorium's 1,500-person capacity would not hold the mass number of attendees. So "someone" decided to throw in a live showing of the talk in Forum Hall. What's that, another 250? Did I forget to mention that everyone knows who he is? But according to the Collegian, the lecture was not moved from McCain Auditorium to Bramlage Coliseum because it would "interfere with the Homecoming festivities." Wow, I'd hate to think we'd compromise the whole purpose of college for Homecoming.

If you'll notice, I haven't dropped the name of the "someone" responsible for the mess-up. I don't think that's my place.

I'm sure someone has received enough grief. And I'm sure they just made an honest mistake. After all, it must be someone fairly high up in the K-State infrastructure to make such a decision.

Now, I don't know about the 1,500 people who got into the speech, but speaking for the 1,500-plus who didn't, I would just like to say one more word that I hope reverberates in "someone's" head for days to come: Thanks.

Marty Boeschling
JUNIOR IN PRE-JOURNALISM AND MASS COMMUNICATION

Organizers for lecture disappoint attendees

Editor,

Thanks for the organization.

I stood in line for more than two hours only to be told there weren't any seats available to hear President Gorbachev's speech. I wasn't the only one who was disappointed. There were many anxious students to see and hear the speech who were waiting in line just as well.

I just hope that next time you have a guest speaker of this caliber, you can do a better job in organizing the event. I am deeply disappointed with the people who were involved in preparing this event. I think my 4-year-old son could probably do a better job.

Miguel Soberano
SENIOR IN PRE-PROFESSIONAL SECONDARY EDUCATION

kstatecollegian.com

Abortion dialogue unproductive

Editor,

We are concerned about the exhibit and subsequent debate on campus concerning abortion, though not for the reasons that you may expect. This exhibit has polarized our campus on the issue of abortion instead of encouraging real conversation. On a daily basis, we both experienced shouting matches, yet we realized that no one is really listening to one another.

The pro-lifers are calling the other side baby killers, while the pro-choice side calls the pro-lifers ignorant. This sort of dialogue has proven to be unproductive for the past 32 years, so we are advocating that each group stop shouting and start listening.

Are we really incapable of rational discussion instead of polarized debate?

The only way to mend these differences is to look at abortion in the context of a larger societal framework. While we may differ in the way we want to solve those problems, we think we need to reframe the issue and look beyond simplistic either/or solutions.

Poverty, violence, health and other factors that influence choice cannot be ignored regardless of when life begins. There are ways to encourage thoughtful conversation without emotionally traumatizing women who have made that choice. Using nonviolent methods of communication and consciousness-raising are far more effective forms of activism.

Your means must be consistent with your ends. As George Lucas said, "only the dark side deals in terms of absolutes."

Megan Challender (feminist for choice)
SENIOR IN POLITICAL SCIENCE
Mary Stolz (feminist for life)
SENIOR IN MASS COMMUNICATIONS

Community, university should change attitude about free speech

Editor,

From 1999-2002, my late husband, Jody Kingery-Page, was a graduate student in the art department. Twice, his work was censored by the K-State Student Union.

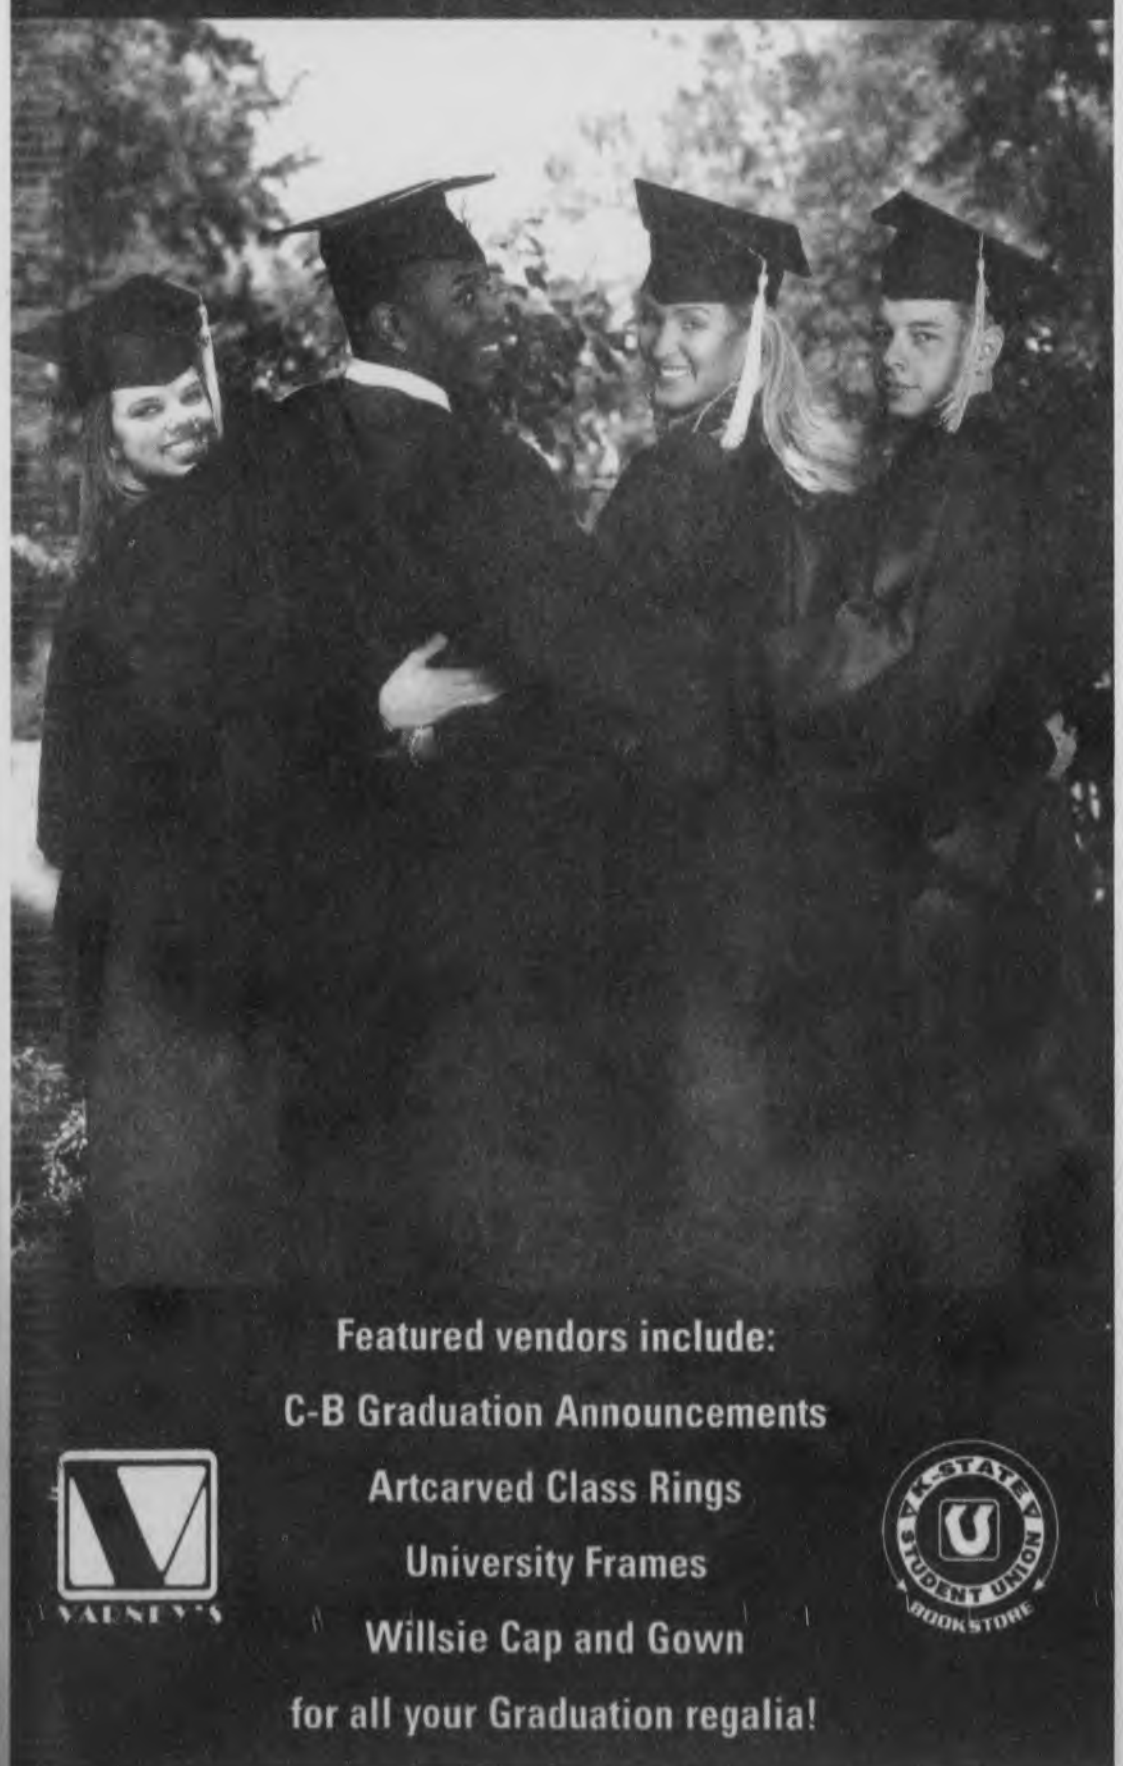
The leadership of the Union demanded Jody remove a piece from the Kemper Gallery – a designated area for art – or place it at the back of the gallery. He complied.

When he mounted his thesis show, Jody was pressured to cover the gallery windows and place warning signs at the gallery doors. He complied again.

When I read last week that the K-State community would be subject to disturbing images of abortion while walking across campus, the following questions came to mind:

1) What is wrong with the free speech atmosphere when art in a gallery is censored, while graphic images of pro-life propaganda are mounted freely throughout campus?

2) The censored images in Jody's work were of male anatomy. Why do images of men shock the K-State Union leadership, but photos of mutilated women's and fetal bodies are considered acceptable?



3) If proceeding down the "slippery slope" of determining what might offend visitors to campus, don't we need to consider all displays objectively? Why is art singled out for censorship?

I personally would prefer that a display such as the pro-life propaganda be mounted in a room, where I can choose to view it. I support free speech, however, and recognize that my comfort may be compromised in order to allow the expression of others. I ask that the K-State community consider its attitude toward free speech, and beware of the hypocrisy contained in censoring art on campus.

Katie Kingery-Page
GRADUATE STUDENT IN APPAREL, TEXTILES AND INTERIOR DESIGN

Advertise
in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 KEDZIE • 532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING

GRADUATION FAIR
November 1 & 2
Tuesday & Wednesday • 11a-6p

Featured vendors include:
C-B Graduation Announcements
Artcarved Class Rings
University Frames
Willsie Cap and Gown
for all your Graduation regalia!
VALNEY'S
K-STATE STUDENT UNION BOOKSTORE

24 Great Reasons to order Gumby's...
BIG DAWG — Steak, Meatballs, Onions, Peppers, Mushrooms, Olives, Pizza Sauce, Cheese
BIG KAHUNA — Ham, Pineapple, Cheese, BBQ Sauce
EASY RIDER — Steak, Bacon, Ham, Jalapeño, Tomato, Ranch Sauce
WHAT THE CLUCK! — Chicken Tenders, Grilled Chicken, Tomato, Cheese
SWISS CHALET — Cheddar Cheese, Meatballs, Honey Mustard
BIRKENSTOCK — Mushroom, Onion, Green Peppers, Tomato
RING OF FIRE — Breaded Chicken, Jalapenos, Hot Sauce, Cheddar Cheese
EAST COAST PHILLY — Steak, French Fries, Onions, Peppers, Cheese
SLOPPY DON — Meatballs, Sauce, Cheese, Parmesan
BRONCO BILLY — Chicken Tenders, Beef, Ranch, Ham, Jalapeños, BBQ Sauce
BACKYARD BBQ — Grilled Chicken, Steak, Onions, Peppers, Cheese, BBQ Sauce
THE GUIDO — Breaded Chicken, Sauce, Cheese, Parmesan
ZINGER — Chicken Tenders, Blue Cheese Dressing, Hot Sauce, Cheese
ROCKY — Steak, Onions, Mushrooms, Peppers, Cheese
ADRIENNE — Grilled Chicken, Mushroom, Onion, Peppers
RENEGADE — Bacon, Chicken, Pineapple, Shrooms, BBQ Sauce
CORLEONE — Meatballs, Peppers, Mushrooms, Cheese
Le FRENCH — Breaded Chicken, Chicken, Ham, Cheese, Honey Mustard
MEXICAN BURRITO — Refried Beans, Beef, Hot Sauce, Green Peppers, Onions, Cheddar Cheese
CHICKEN, BACON, RANCH — Chicken Tenders, Cheddar, Bacon, Ranch Dressing
SMOKE STACK BIRD — Grilled Chicken, Smoke BBQ, Onions, Cheddar
WILD WILD WEST — Ham, Bacon, BBQ Sauce, Onions, Peppers, Jalapeños, Cheese
BBQ, CHICKEN — Grilled Chicken, BBQ Sauce, Cheddar Cheese
KUNG FU HUSTLE — Grilled Chicken, Teriyaki Sauce, Mushrooms, Cheese
BRAND NEW OVEN BAKED SUBS
GIVE YOUR MOUTH SOME EXTRA LIP!
Small 10" $5.99
Medium 12" $6.99
Large 14" $7.99
770-3333 • 702 N. 11th St
GUMBY'S Pizza

SEATING | Lecture overflow sent to Forum Hall

Continued from Page 1

Reagan said the smallest crowd Bramlage Coliseum can be set up for is 5,500 people, and with Friday's lecture, it was a question of estimating how many people would attend. He said the time of day and All-University Homecoming Week activities affected the decision to have the lecture in McCain.

"We haven't had a very good turnout last couple of years for the lectures, and we don't know the number of people that would have waited at Bramlage like they did at McCain," Reagan said. "We took all of the factors into consideration."

Reagan said high schools were not allowed to request seating for Gorbachev's lecture and K-State alumni are not guaranteed seating at the Landon Lectures.

"We're more concerned about the students getting in and learning from the lecture," he said. "Even if the speaker is someone alumni may remember better, I still think younger students should be allowed to get in before older alumni."

Even so, several thousand K-State students were turned away after waiting several hours in lines that snaked throughout campus.

Elizabeth Kuzila, junior in apparel design, waited in line for about an hour before watching part of the lecture in Union Courtyard.

"It would have been nice if they had changed the location to Bramlage to accommodate more people," she said.

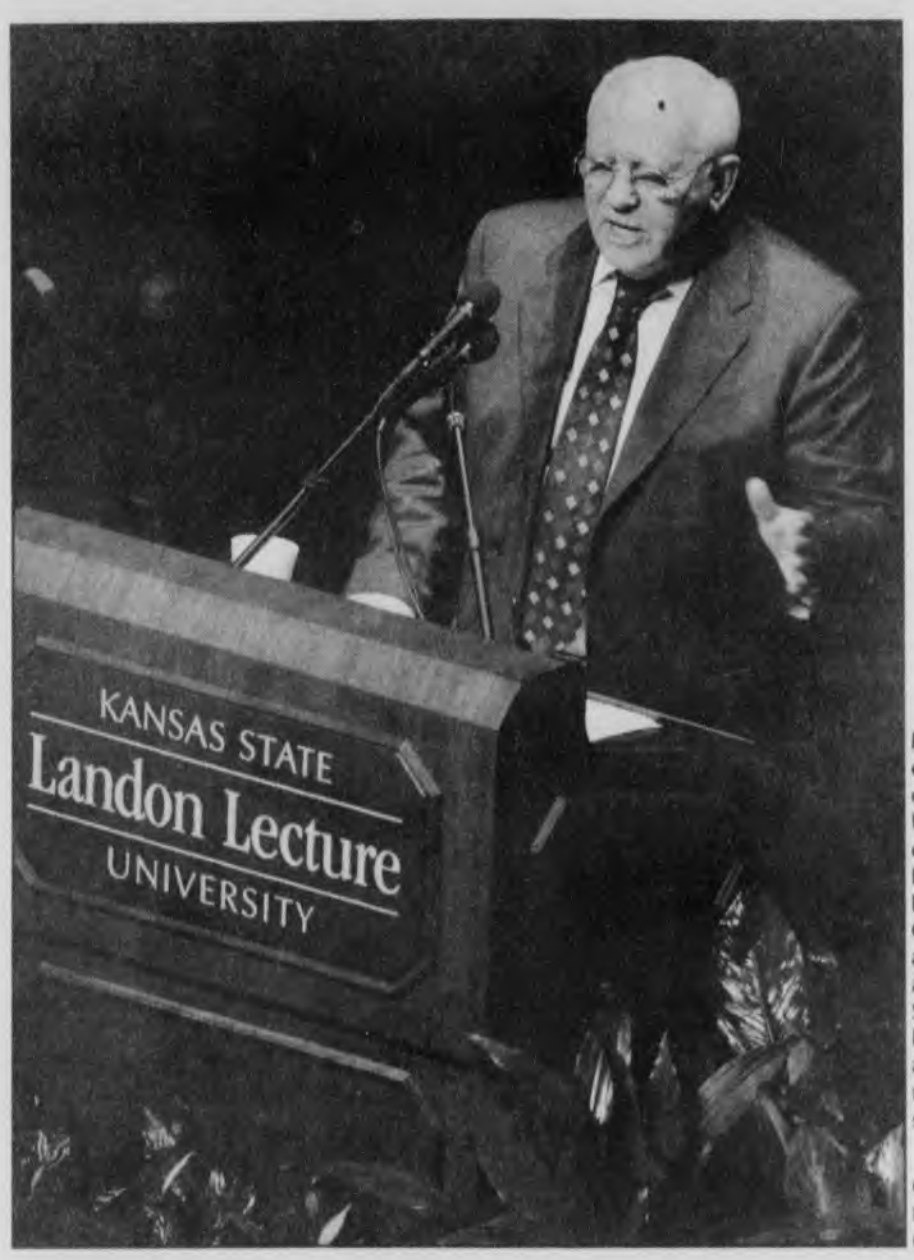
A situation similar to Friday's occurred on Sept. 22, 2003, when several hundred people were turned away from a packed McCain for Paul Harvey's Landon Lecture.

FBI Director Robert Mueller gave his Landon Lecture at Bramlage Coliseum in April 2004. Reagan said the lecture was at Bramlage since Mueller was then the current FBI director, and there was high community interest. The lecture was also mid-week and earlier in the afternoon, Reagan said.

"We did have it set up for the smallest seating, though," he said. "It was another situation where we had to make a judgment call."

Reagan said he is not expecting a capacity turnout for Ted Turner's Landon Lecture on Nov. 28, and nothing will change in regard to overflow seating.

While Friday's lecture had a huge turnout, it was unfortunate that seating ran out, said Michael Burns, student body president and senior in agricultural economics.



"We probably should have had the lecture in Bramlage, but there were some questions with it being a Friday afternoon and with Homecoming activities," Burns said. "I don't think anybody knew what kind of turnout we would get."

After being denied access to Friday's lecture, several K-State alumni have said they will no longer contribute money to the university. President Jon Wefald declined to comment on the response of disgruntled alumni.

Craig Stensaas, freshman in environmental design, got in line at 11 a.m. and was ushered to the balcony more than four hours later. He said it was worth it for a chance to hear one of the most influential leaders of the 20th century.

"It was just nice being there and getting to see Gorbachev," Stensaas said. "He is one of the greatest leaders of Russian history."

LECTURE | Gorbachev speaks on world issues

Mikhail Gorbachev, former leader of the Soviet Union, speaks during the Landon Lecture Friday afternoon. Gorbachev talked about his time as leader of the Soviet Union and how Perestroika and other economic reforms still exist.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Continued from Page 1

peace is one that is an effort of many nations, and peace is a process and way of addressing problems."

"We need a political will and responsibility that Kennedy mentioned at that time," Gorbachev said. "We need that approach more today than yesterday."

Ryan Robinson, sophomore in pre-professional business administration, said Gorbachev spoke of centralized world issues.

"He expressed that a positive world future is achievable if we follow similar world perspectives," he said.

June Juarez, Junction City resident, who watched the lecture from Forum Hall in the K-State Student Union, liked the humorous tone in Gorbachev's lecture.

"I enjoyed the lecture thoroughly," Juarez said. "He was very informative."

— Jonas Hogg contributed to this story.

AMBASSADORS | Flickner, Smit named at halftime

Continued from Page 1

student body at K-State, she said.

"The biggest way to overcome that is to network with other people and not just speak about my own experience, but talk with other people and learn about their experiences," she said. "It's not just my story, it's everybody's story."

Flickner said a challenge for him to overcome when talking to prospective students is increased tuition costs.

"One way I would do that is to strongly encourage the alumni to help," he said. "I would tell them that the state of Kansas is reducing the amount of funding and we need them to step up and donate."

Smit and Flicker will travel across Kansas to promote the university. It will require time management to balance classes and other activities, Smit said.

"There is going to be a lot of working around different things," she said. "But I really like to be busy, so it shouldn't be a problem."

Flickner said he feels the same way.

"I'm a person that works well under pressure," he said. "The busier I am, the better off I am."

As they prepare to meet all types of people in their travels, Smit and Flickner said they don't have one person in particular they are hoping to meet.

"I'm just excited to meet all the different kinds of alumni," Flickner said. "I want to hear all of their stories."

MONEY | Kansas accumulates $155 million in unclaimed properties

Continued from Page 1

site," she said. "And then, boom, we found some property my grandparents left behind years ago."

Though Moore won't admit the value of her family's discovery, she said it was quite a surprised.

"It's just nice to have discovered something that my grandparents left behind," she said.

Yet, Jenkins said after a certain timeframe, the money is then turned over to the state on a loan. If a person were to claim their property, the state would then return the money to the person, she said.

While some may not want the state to borrow their unclaimed property, Amber McBride, senior in biology, said the state has every right to use these resources.

"Kansas has a huge budget deficit right now," McBride said. "Even our college has cut backs. If people are too busy to claim their money, it is the right of the state to take it and use it for programs in need."

However, several Web sites are erupting over the Internet, confusing people on where to go and who to trust, Jenkins said. Some sites are even demanding people to pay fees before they search for their cash, including www.cashunclaimed.com and www.kansas.cashunclaimed.com.

These sites are not sponsored by the Kansas Treasurer's office, Jenkins said, and the sites instruct users to pay $12.99 to be able to search unclaimed properties for 30 days.

While some of these sites may be legitimate, Jenkins said some have the potential of scamming too much information and money out of people.

"Kansans do not pay a single penny to claim their lost or forgotten cash and property," said Jenkins. "I can't emphasize it enough – never pay to claim your property or cash. If you are ever told that you must pay to search or claim what is rightfully yours, contact my office immediately."

For those curious about any unclaimed property in their family, Jenkins encourages them to visit the state-sponsored site www.KansasCash.com.

"You will not be asked for any information other than your name," Jenkins said. "If you do find property, you will be asked to provide some information that will help us identify you, but you will never be asked for credit card or bank account information."

How to stop scammers:

1. Never give out a credit card number to claim property.
2. Search state-sponsored or endorsed Web sites.
3. To conduct a national search, visit www.MissingMoney.com. It is endorsed by the Kansas State Treasurer's office.
4. Students should be wary of "heir finders" who will attempt to contact them, saying they can help them claim your cash or property. While in some circumstances students can legally be charged 15 percent of the property's value to claim your cash or property, there is no need to pay. Searching and claiming is a free service offered to citizens.

ADVERTISE HERE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
Call • 532-6560

SAVE over $400 on Auto Care!
only $49.95 VIP Auto Club Membership
In the Union today by the food court!
Members receive: FREE Oil Change, 4 tire rotation, battery recharge, radiator flush, 30-point system check, clutch adjustment, brake service, and more.
Ekart Auto
ekartauto.com
It's Like Health Insurance for YOUR Car!

Junior • Petite
Blue Jeans
Lucky, Gap, Abercrombie & Fitch, and more!
$2.50 – $4.95
Clip this ad for 50% off any one clothing item
QUALITY NAME BRAND New & Gently Used CLOTHING AT 50-95% OFF RETAIL
The Apple's Heart
"Where Kansas Meets New York"
113 S. 5th • downtown poyntz

Pete's Blue Ribbon BarBeQue
Aggieville
FREE Swing Crew T-Shirts
w/ bucket purchase (until T-shirts are gone)
PRIZES awarded for BEST COSTUME!
Get Here Early For A Seat!
LIVE Swing Crew
Show Starts At 8:30pm
NO COVER!
Rolling Rock & Green Light Buckets 5 for $10 bottles

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 MORO
Manhattan 776-8770
OPEN TODAY FOR HALLOWEEN
$500 CASH PRIZE FOR 1ST PLACE IN COSTUME CONTEST

READ BY ALL WILDCAT FANS!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING

$60 CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?
2 GREAT SPECIALS
1 GREAT PRICE
$60 COLOR AND HAIRCUT OR STYLING
*with Jess, Heather, & Nichole
*additional costs may be included on additional colors
*call for details
GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
3266 Kimball • Candlewood • 776-5632

Annual Halloween Costume Contest
$1000 at least Prize for 1st Place
Contest held TONIGHT
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON

Haunted History

Various cultures, sources contribute to modern Halloween traditions

By Eileen Laux
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

About 2,000 years ago, the Celtic people celebrated Samhain on Oct. 31, the night they believed the ghosts of the dead returned. Today, people celebrate by dressing up in costumes, carving pumpkins and trick-or-treating.

Kimberly Grieves, sophomore in pre-professional business administration and sales associate at the Halloween Boutique, said business at the store is better than last year.

"We are almost running out of costumes," Grieves said. "We always have some last-minute shoppers, so we should do very well this year."

She said the majority of customers are college students because of date and costume parties.

"We had a pantyhose company that had school girl, Tinkerbell and referee costumes," she said. "Also Marilyn Monroe, Miss Muffet, Dorothy and Little Red Riding Hood all sold very fast for women. For men, we had a beer keg, beer can and an Elvis costume that sold really fast."

The Halloween Boutique is at Manhattan Town Center every year, opening about Sept. 1 and closing on Halloween.

According to the History Channel, Nov. 1 was the beginning of winter, a time associated with human death. The Celts typically wore animal skins and heads during the celebration and attempted to tell each other's fortunes.

The Romans took over the majority of the territory in 43 A.D. and two Roman festivals were combined with the Celtic traditions.

By the 800s, Christianity had spread and Pope Boniface IV declared Nov. 1 All Saints' Day, also called All-Hallows.

Two centuries later, the church made Nov. 2 All Souls' Day, a day to honor the dead. This was celebrated with bonfires, parades and costumes of saints, angels and devils, according to the History Channel.

During the All Souls' Day parades, families would beg for food and townspeople would give them "soul cakes," and would have them pray for their dead relatives in return. This custom was later taken up by children and may be where trick-or-treating came from.

As European immigrants came to America, Halloween costumes came as well. The first celebrations featured ghost stories and "play parties," events to celebrate the harvest where people would share stories, tell fortunes, dance and sing.

The Irish potato famine of 1846 led to people dressing up and going door to door to ask for food, another possible precursor to today's trick-or-treat tradition.

At the turn of the 20th century, Halloween parties became more popular, featuring games, food and costumes.

Today, Americans spend an estimated $6.9 billion annually on Halloween, according to the History Channel.

Brittney Minson, junior in marketing, dressed up as a Victoria Secret Angel with a group of her friends.

"I haven't dressed up since I was little, but I remember one year my dad dressed me up as a bunch of grapes," she said.

Minson said her family carves pumpkins every year and she remembers being excited about receiving lots of candy as a child.

Jared Schultz, assistant manager at Wal-Mart, said the store ran out of pumpkins on Saturday.

"Our customers are more family than students," he said. "Students buy one at a time. Families buy four or five at a time."

Schultz said Wal-Mart started selling pumpkins three weeks ago outside both entrances of the store and have had no vandalism that they know of.

"I think that carving pumpkins is just as popular as it used to be, because of all the families still coming in to carve them together," he said.

Photo illustration by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

'The Weatherman' questions life's meaning

By Alex Peak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"The Weather Man," directed by Gore Verbinski ("Pirates of the Caribbean," "The Ring" and "The Mexican"), tells the story of a man (Nicolas Cage) who tries unrelentingly to forward his career and win back his children and recently divorced wife. Cage is cast as the seemingly unmarred Chicago-based weather man, David Spritz.

This film is a fairly straightforward textbook definition of dark comedy. The movie is painfully funny. Verbinski manages to put humor into the most merciless, inhuman parts of the movie.

Spritz's father Robert (Michael Caine) is an esteemed writer and Pulitzer Prize winner who is dying of lymphoma. He is constantly discontented with Spritz's job choice and parenting skills. Spritz is perpetually trying to impress his father or at least prove himself worthy and accomplished.

Spritz's 12-year-old daughter Shelly (Gemmenne de la Peña) is overweight, smokes cigarettes, cusses and wants to take up hunting. His 15-year-old son, Mike (Nicholas Hoult) is undergoing a drug rehab program and, in the process, his much older counselor attempts to seduce him.

Spritz tries to fix all these problems and along the way constantly questions life and all its meanings. The film is a sort of philosophical coming-of-age story for someone entering a mid-life crisis.

In the beginning, Spritz seems to have a lot of inner anguish. Although he drives a fancy Volvo and carries the perfect hair, teeth and smile front very well, almost everything in his personal life is falling apart. The most, and probably only, uplifting moment for Spritz is when he is offered a position as a weatherman for a New York-based national news show.

The movie expresses many of life's hardships by delicately tackling sensitive subjects like divorce, depression, obesity, drugs and child molestation.

Although the movie has moments that punch audience members in the stomach, there is also a lot of comedic relief. While it does almost bring a tear to viewers' eyes when Spritz gets slammed by airborne fast food and Big Gulps, his facial expressions and counter-expelling of profanity (his favorite one is the f-word) are hysterical.

Throughout the movie, Spritz's character starts to grow on the audience. Viewers sympathize with him and want him to catch a break somewhere. The film truly is philosophical. Spritz wonders who he is, what he means to other people and what he needs to do to satisfy his life's meaning.

In the end, he discovers what the title "the weather man" really includes and the general message Spritz delivers is that sometimes you just have to settle for less.

Viewers may walk out of the theater with question marks floating above their heads. The crude but hilarious theme of the film leaves people leery of the meaning of life and worried for the future.

Courtesy art

SONG LYRIC QUOTES

"And in the end, the love you take is equal to the love you make."
— The Beatles, "The End"

"Every new beginning comes from some other beginning's end."
— Semisonic, "Closing Time"

Courtesy art

"Fathers be good to your daughters, daughters will love like you do. Girls become lovers, who turn into mothers, so mothers be good to your daughters, too."
— John Mayer, "Daughters"

"I was born with a plastic spoon in my mouth."
— The Who, "Substitute"

"I'd rather be a hammer than a nail."
— Simon and Garfunkel, "El Condor Pas"

"Send me dead flowers to my wedding and I won't forget to put roses on your grave."
— The Rolling Stones, "Dead Flowers"

"Talk about your plenty, talk about your ills, one man gathers what another man spills."
— Grateful Dead, "St. Stephen"

"The preacher said, you know you always have the Lord by your side. And I was so pleased to be informed of this that I ran twenty red-lights in his name."
— The Rolling Stones, "Far Away Eyes"

Courtesy art

"You can't fight the tears that ain't coming, or the moment of truth in your lies. When everything seems like the movies, yeah, you bleed just to know you're alive."
— Goo Goo Dolls, "Iris"

"You got to know when to hold them, know when to fold them, know when to walk away, and know when to run."
— Kenny Rogers, "The Gambler"

Courtesy art

"Despite all my rage I'm still just a rat in a cage."
— Smashing Pumpkins, "Bullet With Butterfly Wings"

"Tweak my nipple, champagne and ripple, shamans go cripple, my sales go triple."
— Beck, "Hollywood Freaks"

"Get up, stand up, stand up for your rights. Get up, stand up, don't give up the fight."
— Bob Marley, "Get Up, Stand Up"

"Times are hard when things have got no meaning."
— Oasis, "Stand By Me"

"You and I have memories longer than the road that stretches out ahead."
— The Beatles, "Two Of Us"

Source: Rock Wisdom

Women golfers make familiar trip

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The women's golf team is heading to a familiar place this week.

They will be competing at the Edwin Watts/Palmetto Invitational at Kiawah Island, S.C. – a tournament in which they took third two years ago.

"This is a tournament where we have had success," coach Kristi Knight said.

Oak Point Golf Course is a par-72 course labeled as "Scottish-American style," according to Kiawah Island Golf Resort's official Web site, www.kiawahresort.com.

Knight said while many of the women have played at this course before, there are still challenges.

"It's demanding off of the tee," she said. "It's not a long golf course, so you don't have to force the driver. Everyone on the team can play with a 3-wood."

The mental part of the game is just as important, Knight said.

"It requires course management," she said. "They make the decisions on how they hit that day. There are holes you have to be aggressive on."

The Wildcats are coming off a ninth place finish at the Razorback Invitational at Rogers, Ark. Knight said there were positives in her team's game at Arkansas.

"Arkansas was a case of the girls playing to their strengths," she said. "We did a little bit of everything, and I liked the way the girls competed."

K-State was close to placing better at Arkansas, Knight said, as the team was four shots out of fifth place.

"We just need to keep doing what we're doing," Knight said. "We need to find those four shots before postseason in May."

One thing the golfers need to work on, Knight said, is their mentality – that is, playing with aggression and without fear.

"Bad shots will happen," she said. "The players control the decisions of what to do with those bad shots. How many scores are the result of poor shots or poor decisions? The more they understand their game and their strengths, the more confident they will be."

Novice boat claims victory at Iowa Regatta

Staff reports
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State women's novice rowing squad led the Wildcats for the second time this season on Sunday.

The Wildcats took four boats to the Head of the Iowa Regatta and competed against nationally ranked teams from the University of Minnesota, the University of Wisconsin and the hosting university, Iowa.

"Both teams rowed exceptionally well today, even against the bigger schools," coach Patrick Sweeney said in a release. "They (novices) are having fun in fall racing and their victory continues to show what we are building up for the future. The varsity, however, rowed much better than their performance and time would indicate."

The top-finishing novice boat claimed first place in the Women's Novice 8+ race, winning with a final time of 14 minutes, 56.15 seconds.

Second place in the race was claimed by the University of Minnesota, with a final time of 15:26.93 seconds.

The second novice boat entered by the K-State team finished in 16th place, with a final time of 17:29.03.

Along with the two novice boats, K-State entered two varsity boats into the regatta. The Wildcats competed against teams from Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Drake, Creighton and the University of Kansas in the Women's Open 8+ race on Sunday.

The University of Minnesota claimed first place in the Women's Open 8+ heat, with a final time of 13:38.68.

The two K-State varsity boats finished in ninth and 13th place, with final times of 14:48.30 and 15:19.21.

The teams competed in a head-race format, which meant the boats started the race one after the other, with a 15-minute delayed start time between each team. The team placements were then determined by the time a team completed the course rather than the order in which the teams finished the race.

FOOTBALL | Wildcats prepare for divisional opponent Iowa State

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Quarterback Allan Evridge attempts to get away from Colorado's Maurice Lucas during the first half Saturday at KSU Stadium. K-State's running game was held to 81 yards on 37 carries.

Continued from Page 10

that we played quite well I think," Snyder said. "There's plays here and there where we let them off the hook a couple times in long yardage, but by and large, played well."

The Wildcats' focus is now on Iowa State, a team that went on the road Saturday and handled Texas A&M 42-14.

Snyder said the fact the Cyclones beat the Aggies, who beat K-State last week 30-28, has no bearing on what will happen when the Wildcats travel to Ames, Iowa, this Saturday.

"Nothing surprises you," Snyder said. "Football is a strange game, and the ball bounces a lot of different ways. It's a matter of who prepares the best and plays the best. It's all guess work."

BIG 12 | Runners set personal records

Continued from Page 10

season. There isn't a lot to say about finishing 10th other than we want to be better than that.

"We expect to be better next year."

One positive K-State took away from the meet was the record-setting performance by seven of the nine men's runners. Before the meet, several runners said they expected to run personal record times and most delivered.

"Joe Moore ran as well as he's run all year," Smith said. "We hoped he could run in the top 30, and he was 31, so I think he ran well. (Hiral) Bhakta and (Colin) Swaney really stepped up. It was great to see them perform at that level."

Smith said his team wasn't on par with the top end of the conference Friday.

"On the women's side, you've got five pretty good teams and then probably three teams that are pretty close," he said. "And then there are teams like us that are more developmental.

"On the men's side, there are four teams that separate themselves out. The conference is pretty good, so for us to finish eighth, in another conference we would be better."

COLUMN | K-State battling through adversity to return to top of conference

Continued from Page 10

Only this past Saturday has he seen extended playing time this year, making the most of it by leading the Wildcats with 42 yards on eight carries.

Yet two possessions later on an option to the left – the same play Alsup's previous feat of athleticism and determination came on – Alsup received the pitch from Evridge once again, but this time, the ball never fell into Alsup's hands.

Instead, the ball fell to the turf, where Evridge picked it up and was eventually tackled for a 19-yard loss.

"I was just trying to turn up the field and make something happen before I had the ball," Alsup said.

The play proved pivotal in the outcome, as the drive stalled, and K-State lost 23-20.

And in a way, Alsup's story parallels that of the 2005 K-State football team.

How often has this team been beaten early when it looked like success was there for the taking? How many games have the Wildcats fought back against the odds with gutsy play? How few of those games have turned out as the Wildcats would like?

The Wildcats, like Alsup, are battling.

They are battling through injuries to their bodies and their minds in a desperate struggle to return the K-State program to the top of the Big 12 Conference.

The problem is too often the Wildcats have been caught looking up field before the ball gets to them, figuratively and literally speaking.

K-State has three games left and needs two wins to become bowl eligible.

The Wildcats see the opening. It's there.

Now all they need to do is run, first making sure the ball is in their hands.

Michael Ashford is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Rent 1 Movie or Video Game Get 1 1/2 Off
expires: 11-15-05
706 N.11th 776-6959 Digital Shelf

Monday Mania
Large Cheese Pizza $3.99
GUMBY'S Pizza 770-3333 702 N. 11th St.

We Kick Ads!
Collegian Advertising
118 Kedzie
532-6560

Crimpers
$65 Foil Hilite
(add another color and haircut for $25)
$30 Men's Hilite
(add a haircut for $12)
$27 Full Set of Nails
$18 Lip/Brow Wax Combo
$40 Massage or Spa Pedicure
$47 Brazilian Wax
"Best Deal in the Ville" 717 N 11th St. • 539-7621
November Specials
Since 1975
$60 Foil Hilite
(add another color and cut for $20)
$27 Full Set of Nails
$15 Lip and Brow Combo
$35 Men's Hilite and Cut
(cut and brow wax)
Crimpers Too
K-State Student Union Lower Level
Call for Appt. 532-5972

706 N. Manhattan
537-7151
Porter's
5th ANNUAL
Pimps & Hoes
Halloween Bash
100 Free T's
$1 off all drinks
andrew zender
on Old Side
DJ on new side
$2 big beers and shots
Joe's Tap Room
Home of The Killer Chicken
1127 Moro
776-3593

Don't Be Caught Looking Ghostly This Halloween
Halloween Giveaway
For every $25 you spend, you're entered in a drawing to win $200 worth of lotion and tanning.
1 Month Tanning
Only $31
1 per customer - must present coupon
expires: 11-4-05
1122 Laramie
Aggieville Handicorner
539-3742
Xtreme tanning

We can't get you girls, Or boys.
We can't get you beer or cigarettes.
You won't be any cooler.
You won't be more attractive.
You won't be thinner, smarter,
or suddenly wealthy.
But maybe, just maybe,
you'll get the experience you need to land a job
that CAN get you those things...after college.
The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:
Executive Positions Spring 2006
• Editor in Chief
• Advertising Sales Manager
News Positions Spring 2006
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists • Graphic Artists
• Graphic Artists • Online Journalists
Advertising Positions Spring 2006
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives
Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. Nov. 16.
Get the experience you NEED.
Kansas State Collegian

Fans gather for Halloween movie tradition

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Movie-goers at the Rocky Horror Picture Show Friday evening in the K-State Student Union Ballroom throw rice during the opening wedding scene of the movie. Rocky Horror fans dressed in drag and fish-nets to celebrate the 27th showing of the movie at K-State.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

About 250 students and community members did the "Time Warp" at the 27th annual viewing of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" Friday night in the K-State Student Union Ballroom.

The film has become a tradition and gives everyone a chance to let loose, said Rebecca Butler, graduate student in theater and Union Program Council Films Committee co-chair.

"It's the only time you get to talk during a movie and throw things at the screen," Butler said.

Mary Renee Smith, mistress of ceremonies, said she first saw the movie in 1986, and she said the film is a Halloween tradition.

"Freaks come out of the woodwork," she said. "People show up in drag and costumes, and it's an excuse for people to dress up."

In addition to a costume contest, audience members who had not seen the movie before were auctioned off to others in the "virgin auction."

Rhett Batanides, junior in business, was a "virgin" to the film this year.

"I came because I wanted to be at the liberal party of the year," he said.

Smith said the movie is a cult classic and brings a great deal of audience participation.

"Straight-laced people put on fishnet stockings and heels and come see the movie," she said.

Cien Conner, sophomore in music education, said he first saw the movie last year at the Union. Dressed in pink and black with glitter and eyeliner, Conner said he loves the soundtrack of the movie.

"'The Rocky Horror Picture Show' gives me the opportunity to dress up all funny," he said. "Also, I enjoy the actors' appeal."

Manhattan resident Penny Peterson said she likes the music mixed in with the story.

"The movie was so successful because it's full of odd things that not everyone is going to like," Peterson said.

Gymnastics Plus moves to new location

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Anyone who goes to Gymnastics Plus at 1111 Hayes Drive will have one problem – it isn't there anymore.

The gym, now at 2730 Amherst Ave., lets participants use the equipment on their own or work with the coaches on staff each open gym, Assistant Manager Kasey Kile said.

Co-owner Pam Kasper said the new building is smaller than the original, but it has one large room for working out while the old one was separated into several rooms. She said the new facility, which used to be a warehouse, took a lot of work to turn into a gymnasium.

"It was just a great big dust ball when we moved in here," Kasper said.

She said they replaced the east side of the building and added heating and air conditioning.

Kasper said the business is moving because the owner of their building decided to sell it.

Gymnastics Plus opens its doors to K-State students every Sunday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The cost is $5 for each student during its College Gym nights Kile said part of the K-State track team uses the facility each week.

"We haven't been having a lot of participation and might have to cancel it," Kasper said.

Gymnastics Plus provides classes during the rest of the week for students as young as preschoolers and as old as adults.

The new location has all the amenities of the old one. They include the a 1900 square-foot spring floor, a beam, parallel bars, trampoline, pommel horse, vault and a high bar over a pit of foam blocks to break gymnasts' falls.

Kile said the new location will have a tumble track.

"It's essentially a trampoline, only it's 30 feet long," she said. She said the track will have about as much "give" as a regular backyard trampoline.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT, close to campus, available now. All utilities paid. Washer/ dryer. $375. (785)317-7713.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490, two-bedrooms $750, three-bedrooms $700-$825. (785)537-7701.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

120 For Rent- Houses

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

532-6555 ADVERTISE YOUR SUBLEASE LET'S RENT SECTION 103 Kedzie

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE- TWO roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

LOOKING FOR female to take over one-third of lease at Founder's Hill. Own bathroom and washer/ dryer in apartment. Alex Dunn at (785)317-4095 or adunn@ksdot.org.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE: No smoking. Two-bedroom apartment. Close to campus. Off-street parking. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. (620)481-9837.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted. Four-bedroom duplex. $325/ month plus utilities. Close to campus and Aggieville. Available January. (316)655-5236.

ONE-BEDROOM AVAILABLE in three bedroom house. Washer/ dryer, walking distance to college. Male or female. Brick home. Rent negotiable. (785)443-2229.

ROOMMATE NEEDED. Three-bedroom house. Backyard with deck and fence. Easy to get along with roommates. Simple quick drive to campus. (785)845-2212.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed, Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

ONE-BEDROOM. $395, cable/ water paid. Laundry/ pool/ hot tub on site. Small pets. Quiet. Available now. (785)375-3015.

SUBLEASE AVAILABLE immediately or whenever. One-bedroom next to Aggieville, utilities paid, except electric. August lease. Call anytime (785)317-0235.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM, quiet and responsible, 12/15/05- 7/28/05. December rent free. 1014 Bluemont. $540/ month plus deposit. (913)706-6927.

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms, University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

SUBLEASER NEEDED. Two-bedroom apartment. Block from campus and Aggieville. All utilities paid except electricity. $550/ month. Call (316)210-1164 or (316)993-0214.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom. Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

310 Help Wanted

ENERGETIC, RESPONSIBLE students needed to distribute fliers on 10/31, 11/1, and 11/2. Flexible hours, $10/ hour. Call Staceylee at (866)313-8184.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

LUTHERAN CAMPUS ministries is seeking candidate for the position of peer minister. Duties include outreach to college students, assist in operations of Luther House and assist with worship activities. Monthly stipend available. Email resume and letter of interest to cheryl@kaukis.com.

NEEDED COLLEGE student to help with work in home for local family. References helpful. Please call (785)556-2467, ask for Shannon.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PART-TIME CHILDCARE provider needed in my home. Experience and references a must. If interested please call (785)776-9874.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS: Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

Daytime Cook Needed
- Hard-working
- Self-motivated
- Team player
- $6/hr

Pete's Bike Rider BarBeQue
539-7426

410 Items for Sale

FOR SALE: Used Strata Guitar. Excellent condition. New strings. $30 or best offer. (785)341-9465.

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

415 Furniture to Buy/Sell

COUCH FOR sale. Nearly new. Call (785)532-5764 or email fburrack@ksu.edu.

530 Motorcycles

2003 636 Kawasaki Ninja with extras. 2700 miles. Call for price. (620)629-7386.

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202

Deadlines
Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less $8.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $9.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $11.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $12.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $14.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

LOST: PAIR of dark-rimmed bifocal glasses on campus. If found call (785)776-0176 or (785)564-0930. Reward offered.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

031 Halloween Personals

ADAM E- You're the smartest man I know that can't figure out how to fix anything. - Your Friend.

CRISSY, THANKS for joining me on this crazy K-State adventure. I love you, Chris.

GREEK AFFAIRS, Tiffany, Lisa, Scott; IFC and PHC are great! We love all you do for the Greek community.

HEY AD room Andy, you are the apple of my eye, my sweet cherry pie. Will you go out with me. Love Amanda.

HEY BRYAN C. of the DU house. I'm wet, you're dry. For some reason you caught my eye. Figure out what house I'm in, you'll know why. -Secret Admirer

LINDSEY C, I think you're beautiful. Love, Kirk C.

031 Halloween Personals

SARAH, WILL you marry me? I love U. Tyler.

WAY TO go Collegian business office! You're great!

WHAT/ IF thought, ELBO dock, wet garden, Sunday startin, oil irritation, musical meditation, Konza Storm, Pecando dorm, bubble wrap, butterflies.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

930 FREMONT, close to campus, newly remodeled, two-bedroom, one bath. Washer/ dryer/ dishwasher. $630/ month. Call (785)410-4360.

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

120 For Rent- Houses

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $900/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

145 Roommate Wanted

1225 RATONE roommates needed. One and one-half bathroom. Available immediately. Ask Jin (785)341-7089.

CHRISTIAN FEMALE housemate wanted for five-bedroom house. Residential neighborhood. Washer/ dryer, two-car garage. $300/ month plus utilities. (913)636-9152.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

400 open market

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Advertising Design

Practicum/Newspaper MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Graphic Design Internship

Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

SPORTS

Runners set 7 personal records

By Chris Patch
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Seven personal record times were not enough to propel K-State men's cross country higher than eighth place Friday at the Big 12 Cross Country Championships in Waco, Texas.

Senior Joseph Moore led the way for the Wildcats with a 31st-place finish and a 8,000-meter personal-record time of 24:59.

The women's team finished 10th behind a 55th-place finish by sophomore Stephanie Lavin, who finished the 6,000-meter course in 23:07.

The men were able to edge out Big 12 Conference foes Texas Tech and Nebraska, who beat the Wildcats at the Chile Pepper Invitational in Fayetteville, Ark., earlier in the season.

Coach Michael Smith said the men's effort was better than he expected.

"I thought going into the meet that with the personnel we had and the strength of the conference, we could get ninth," Smith said. "We ran as well as we could have run, and one of the other teams, Texas Tech, didn't meet expectations. I'm glad we performed up to our ability level."

The women's team, which has been short-handed because of injury most of the year, ran a full lineup and beat out Texas and Oklahoma to secure 10th place. The women avenged a loss to Oklahoma at the Chile Pepper Invitational, and beat a Texas team that didn't beat a conference opponent all season.

The team also received a boost from Liliani Mendez, who finished third on the team after missing two weeks of action due to injury.

Despite that, Smith said he wasn't impressed by the women's effort.

"We put our whole lineup out there, so we better be able to do that (finish 10th)," he said. "We were able to put all of those people out there, and we had a chance to be more competitive than we were in the regular

See BIG 12 Page 8

Alsup, K-State caught looking up field this season

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

MICHAEL ASHFORD

The ball fell into senior Carlos Alsup's hands, and the eyes of the 6-foot-1, 210-pound running back turned up field.

The opening was there.

Alsup took the pitch from quarterback Allan Evridge and ran.

He ran because he could.

Four would-be Colorado tacklers came up with nothing but field turf trying to take Alsup down. At one point, Alsup even bent over backwards, yet he remained on his feet, and kept chugging for the goal line.

Though he was eventually pushed out of bounds at the Colorado three-yard line – but not without a diving attempt at the left pylon – Alsup's 23-yard scamper helped set up a K-State touchdown that pulled the Wildcats to within three at 20-17.

Step back for a moment and realize what took place Saturday.

Though many K-State fans didn't notice it, Alsup's performance Saturday, including the play that set up Evridge's touchdown run three plays later, was quite remarkable considering the circumstances.

That Alsup can even walk straight might be deemed a minor miracle.

"I fought my way back to get myself to contribute to this team," Alsup said. "As I look back on that, I always emphasize to this team that, 'This team must mean something to me if I'm trying to get back to play with you guys, so everybody needs to step up and make big plays, including myself.'"

In each of the last two seasons, Alsup has suffered knee injuries that have relegated him to tedious rehab while he watched from the sidelines.

See COLUMN Page 8

COLORADO 23 | K-STATE 20

Failed effort

"We played real hard, and I just think it should have been us celebrating this win."

Tearrius George
SENIOR DEFENSIVE END

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

TOP: K-State's Maurice Mack and Quintin Echols pull down Colorado's Byron Ellis Saturday afternoon during the Wildcat's 23-20 loss to the Buffaloes.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

ABOVE: Quintin Echols, left, and Tearrius George combine for a tackle during the second half Saturday. The Wildcat defense held Colorado to three points in the second half. However, the Buffs scored a last-minute, 50-yard field goal to win the game 20-23.

Buffaloes win on 50-yard field goal

By Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

All senior defensive end Tearrius George could do was turn and look as he walked up the tunnel to K-State's locker room.

George watched as Colorado broke its mid-field huddle celebration and rushed toward the contingent of yellow shirts in the stands after K-State's 23-20 loss to the Buffaloes.

It was the second consecutive week the visiting team has celebrated on Wagner Field.

The combined margin of victory in both games? Five points.

It was also the second consecutive season the Wildcats have lost to the Buffaloes in the final seconds of the game.

"I was truly thinking that should have been us celebrating, shaking our fans' hands," George said. "I thought we deserved it today and we did a lot of things people didn't think we were going to do from the last showing and the last games we played. I think a lot of people thought they were going to just come in and push us around and it be a one-sided game.

"We played real hard, and I just think it should have been us celebrating this win."

Instead, a Jermaine Moreira fumbled punt gave Colorado the ball at the K-State 26-yard line with less than a minute to play and the scored tied at 20. Without any timeouts remaining for the Wildcats, Colorado downed the ball with quarterback Joel Klatt on two consecutive plays to run down the clock and set the ball up in the middle of the field for kicker Mason Crosby.

Crosby's field goal from 50 yards out, with the wind at his back, gave the Buffaloes the win with six seconds remaining in the game, and erased the Wildcats' second-half defensive effort in which they only gave up 134 yards of total offense and held Colorado scoreless for majority of the half.

"We thought it was going to go into overtime, or at least we were going to go in for the score," Quintin Echols said. "They just did whatever it took. I'm not going to call it luck, but whatever they had, they showed it at the end of the game."

A play prior to the fumbled punt, K-State had a chance to force a turnover, but Marcus Watts' interception of Klatt on the Colorado side of the field was ruled incomplete because the ball touched ground before he caught it.

"It is really tough," Watts said. "I felt like I intercepted that ball. I felt like it hit my hands before it hit the ground. I had my hands underneath it I think.

"It's just tough when you stop them and they punt and you think it's going to overtime at the least. It's tough."

Injuries, lack of offense hurt Wildcats

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State junior wide receiver Jermaine Moreira was expected to be released from the hospital Sunday, coach Bill Snyder said, after Moreira suffered what appeared to be a blow to the head and neck in the final moments of K-State's 23-20 loss to Colorado Saturday.

"All the tests were of a positive nature, and the doctor will visit with him shortly and check him out, so to speak, and run a few more physical tests and determine whether to release him or not," Snyder said on Sunday. "I would imagine that they would release him."

In fact, Moreira was anxious to get back to playing and practicing, Snyder said, but whether Moreira will play again this season has not been determined.

"He had a smile on his face when I visited with him (Sunday) morning," Snyder said. "I'm sure that he was a little frightened, but he was just fine.

"He said, 'I'm ready to get started again.'"

Moreira's injury happened with 55 seconds left when he attempted to pick up a punt from Colorado's John Torp that had bounced off the turf.

Moreira fumbled, and in the ensuing pile up, Moreira's head was knocked backwards, and he remained motionless on the ground for nearly 10 minutes.

"I was right there in the pile, and I saw everybody run in and hit him," free safety Marcus Watts said. "I knew it wasn't very good."

After Moreira was carried off the field on a stretcher, the Buffaloes (6-2, 4-1 Big 12) ran two plays to move the ball to the middle of the field, which set up Colorado kicker Mason Crosby's game-winning 50-yard field goal.

K-State's fate was determined well before Crosby hit the field goal to win the game, offensive lineman Jeromey Clary said.

In the second and fourth quarters, K-State (4-4, 1-4) managed just 59 total yards and scored once – a touchdown on the first play of the second quarter.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Jermaine Moreira, junior wide receiver, is wheeled off Wagner Field in a stretcher Saturday afternoon. Moreria was injured during the final 55 seconds of the Wildcat's loss to Colorado.

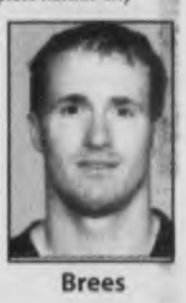
"In the second and fourth quarter, the offense was nonexistent, and we've got to learn that we've got to play a full four-quarter game," Clary said. "We're playing one-half games and getting destroyed in the other half. You saw that in the second and you saw that in the fourth, and that falls back on us."

The K-State defense, however, was particularly stout in the second half, holding Colorado to 134 yards and no points until Crosby's field goal.

"It was a shutout in the second half, and part of that was with not real good field position, so I would suggest

See FOOTBALL Page 8

NFL Scores



Green Bay	14	Arizona	13
Cincinnati	21	Dallas	34
Chicago	19	Oakland	34
Detroit	13	Tennessee	25
Jacksonville	21	Washington	0
St. Louis	24	NY Giants	36
Minnesota	13	Cleveland	16
Carolina	38	Houston	19
Miami	21	Kansas City	20
New Orleans	6	San Diego	28
Philadelphia	21	Tampa Bay	10
Denver	49	San Francisco	15
Buffalo	16
New England	21

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

NFL | Brees tosses 3 TDs as Chargers beat Chiefs

SAN DIEGO — Drew Brees and Antonio Gates played pitch and catch against a hapless Kansas City defense, and even LaDainian Tomlinson got a piece of the action.

Brees

Brees threw three touchdown passes to Gates and finished with 324 yards passing as the San Diego Chargers beat the Chiefs 28-20 on Sunday. Tomlinson, slowed again on the ground, threw his third TD pass of the season, a 17-yarder to Eric Parker.

The defending AFC West champion Chargers (4-4) called this a must-win game and got big performances from Brees, Gates and the defense. Although injuries forced starting linebackers Steve Foley and Randall Godfrey to sit out, the Chargers frustrated the Chiefs (4-3) most of the afternoon and sacked Trent Green four times.

NFL | League, state working to keep Saints in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La. — While the New Orleans Saints played their first game of the season in Louisiana on Sunday, state officials were scrambling to make sure it would not be one of the last.

NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue said he was committed to keeping the team in New Orleans.

"The Saints are Louisiana's team and have been since the late '60s," Tagliabue said.

CAR | Edwards wins Atlanta, tightens Chase

HAMPTON, Ga. — Lap after lap, Carl Edwards flirted with the outside walls on his way to another victory at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

Edwards

While just about everyone else in the 43-car field for Sunday's NASCAR Nextel Cup race tried to run well below those unforgiving walls, Edwards purposely hugged the concrete at speeds approaching 200 mph.

"I like running at the top of the racetrack," Edwards said after completing a season sweep on the 1.5-mile, D-shaped oval. "It's a blast.

TEN | Roddick beats Monfils, surges to Lyon crown

LYON, France — Top-seeded Andy Roddick beat France's Gael Monfils 6-3, 6-2 Sunday to win the Lyon Grand Prix, completing the tournament without dropping serve.

Roddick

Roddick, who now has 20 career ATP titles, defeated a 19-year-old opponent appearing in his third career ATP final. This season, Monfils won at Sopot, Poland, and was runner-up at Metz.

Roddick had nine aces in the final and won his fifth title of the year, following wins at San Jose, Houston, Queen's Club and Washington. He improved to 56-13 this season.

College Football AP Top 25

1. Southern Cal	8-0
2. Texas	8-0
3. Virginia Tech	8-0
4. Alabama	8-0
5. Miami (Fla.)	6-1
6. LSU	6-1
7. UCLA	8-0
8. Notre Dame	5-2
9. Florida State	7-1
10. Penn State	8-1

Other Big 12 Conference teams:

16. Texas Tech	7-1
25. Colorado	6-2

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Tuesday, November 1, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 52

INSIDE

Students dress in costume for free food

Page 7

RCPD gives 12 MIPs over weekend

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Riley County Police Department distributed 12 notices to appear for minors in possession over the weekend, Lt. Mike Quintanar said.

A special MIP force was on patrol throughout the weekend specifically searching for underage drinkers. The patrol is funded by a $1,300 grant from Alcoholic Beverage Control.

On home game weekends, the officers patrol residential areas where there have been past complaints of underage drinking, Capt. Brad Schoen said.

Schoen said he was unsure if the 12 MIPs issued over the weekend were all in conjunction with the special MIP force. On the weekends of the University of Kansas and Texas A&M University games the force distributed 30 MIPs.

The last weekend for the patrol is the weekend of the Nov. 19 University of Missouri game.

So far, Schoen said he thinks the program has been a success.

"We do it on home game weekends for a reason – a lot of people like to go out and party," he said. "We figure if we catch them drinking, then it will cut back on a lot of the fights and disputes and other problems."

Schoen said this is the second time the RCPD has received a grant to specifically target underage drinkers. Last spring, the RCPD had a grant from the Kansas Department of Transportation for the special force and Schoen said he hopes to receive that grant again in 2006 if it is available.

Lecrae to perform at AFTERdark

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sidewalk chalking, posters and comments in the Fourum have students wondering what AFTERdark is.

At 7 p.m. Thursday in Memorial Stadium, they will find out.

Lecrae, Tedashii and Sho, Christian hip-hop recording artists, and Joe White, the director of Kanakuk Kamps, will present AFTERdark, an event that features a concert and a speech.

AFTERdark
When: 7 p.m. Thursday
Where: Memorial Stadium
How much: free

Since its beginning in 2000, AFTERdark has taken place on 93 college campuses in front of 100,000 college students, Brian Wang, Kanakuk intern, said.

"The goal is to unite the campus with the greatest story ever told," Wang said.

About a dozen K-State students who have worked at Kanakuk have been organizing the event with Wang's help, Steven Kern, senior in engineering, said. Though AFTERdark is a national program, it was the decision of K-State students to bring Lecrae to perform.

"(Lecrae's) got a really good beat," Kern said. "The lyrics are the best

See AFTERDARK Page 8

Friendly transportation

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

William Bennett, graduate student in counseling and development, opens the door for a passenger on the KSU Parking Shuttle Monday afternoon. Bennett has worked for Parking Services for the past four years and works up to 30 hours during the week driving people around campus.

Campus shuttle drivers meet, learn about students using bus services

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Most students give up riding the bus to school after grade school.

But William Bennett, graduate student in counseling and development, spends 30 hours a week busing students and faculty to class.

For the past four years, Bennett has worked for Parking Services, driving the campus shuttle for the 30-minute trip between Edwards Hall, the K-State Student Union and the KSU Foundation.

"The job kind of fell into my lap," Bennett said. "I applied for a job with parking control, because I was fed up with people parking illegally in the Jardine lot. They sent my application next door and they offered me this job and I took it."

Matt Stuchlik, junior in mass communications, said his brother, Jason Stuchlik, told him about the job driving the shuttle.

"He basically got me the job here," Stuchlik said. "And I've loved doing it ever since."

Before taking the wheel of the shuttle, both Stuchlik and Bennett had to go through training, but it wasn't much, Stuchlik said.

"Basically I just went through on a couple of practice rounds," he said. "I'm not sitting here driving a jumbo jet or anything. It's basically just a big van."

Bennett said the training ensures safety and courtesy. He said driving the shuttle offers many opportunities to meet interesting people.

"We have a lot of people who I wouldn't have the opportunity to meet if I didn't drive the shuttle," he said. "The former governor of the state just got off at the Foundation, and I never would have met him in person."

Stuchlik said one of the best parts about driving the bus is the conversations he has with international students.

"I feel like I get cultured when I drive it," he said. "I learned about the rules of cricket from a guy the other day, and I told him about football."

Along with driving the shuttle bus, Stuchlik said he performs different tasks for Parking Services.

"Everyone that works for Parking Services works other places," he said. "We take care of the leaves, we fix signs and we have a few other jobs. If someone shoots a sign with a shotgun, we are the ones who go in and fix it."

Even though he works for Parking Services, Stuchlik said he definitely is not a "parking Nazi."

"We don't write the tickets," he said. "I tell people that I work for Parking Services, and they immediately say 'You're a parking Nazi?'"

One of the most stressful parts of driving the shuttle is

William Bennett, graduate student in counseling and development, drives the KSU Parking Shuttle from the K-State Student Union to the Foundation Center throughout the day.

See SHUTTLE Page 8

Evolution exhibit to open at KU museum; no formal debates planned

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

LAWRENCE – The University of Kansas will begin educating students about evolution today. Yet, instead of teaching them in the classroom, students are invited to opening of the Explore Evolution exhibit located at the University of Kansas Natural History Museum and Biodiversity Research Center.

The Explore Evolution exhibit is part of a six-university program that educates the public about evolution and its role in the natural world, said Leonard Krishtalka, director of the museum and research center.

"Explore Evolution represents the very best in our discovery of knowledge through scientific research," Krishtalka said.

With state and national evolution debates emerging, Krishtalka said the four-year preparation for the exhibit hasn't been a simple process.

While the exhibit isn't designed to convert people's beliefs, he said "it provides our students and the public with the very best science education."

For some, the interactive modules, activities and videos might provide a better understanding of the theory of evolution. However, Rachelle Horsch, KU junior in political science, described the exhibit as nothing more than in-your-face evangelism, forcing more than a theory on museum patrons.

"A public place like this should not only focus on this theory," Horsch said. "If they are willing to put something like this up, they better be ready for the religious do-gooders and the anti-Christ in-betweens to have a place in the museum too. It is their historical beliefs as well."

The different features of the museum doesn't offend every student, including Christopher Townsend, KU sophomore in biology.

"I think most of the exhibit won't be too shocking," Townsend said. "In fact, there are several things I am not aware of, including AIDS and evolution and other biological factors. Since this is my major, I'm slightly embarrassed for not knowing."

Krishtalka said though he anticipates heavy public response, the museum does not plan to have any formal debates about any features. "If we do have any debates, they will be done informally," he said.

However, throughout the exhibit, museum exhibit director Bruce Schertling said people should be educated enough with museum highlights, including important landmarks and theories about evolution throughout history. Some of these include:

- The rapidly evolving HIV virus that causes AIDS and the need to understand it to find a cure.
- The most complete fossil record of evolution of a new species of single-cell diatom recently recovered beneath Yellowstone Lake.
- Leaf-cutter ants farming their fungus crops and an investigation of the

See EVOLUTION Page 8

Today
High 70
Low 43

Wednesday
WINDY
High 75
Low 48

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Woman raped
A Manhattan woman reported a rape to the Riley County Police Department Sunday morning. The victim was 24 years old and the incident occurred in the early morning hours in the north east part of Manhattan, Lt. Mike Quintanar said. Quintanar also said the suspect was known to the victim and the case is still under investigation.

Alito nominated
President Bush nominated Appeals Court Judge Samuel Alito to the Supreme Court on Monday. Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., asked whether Alito was "too radical." Bush said Alito "has a deep understanding of the proper role of judges in our society."

Page 8

22-month-old found
After an Amber Alert was issued by the Kansas Bureau of Investigation, 22-month-old Alyssa Rose Vasquez was found unharmed in Lyons, Kan. The KBI said her father, James Thurman, 22, beat the child's mother and hit her with his car before abducting Vasquez in Chase, Kan. The child was found about three hours later.

DON'T FORGET

Students with 61 hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

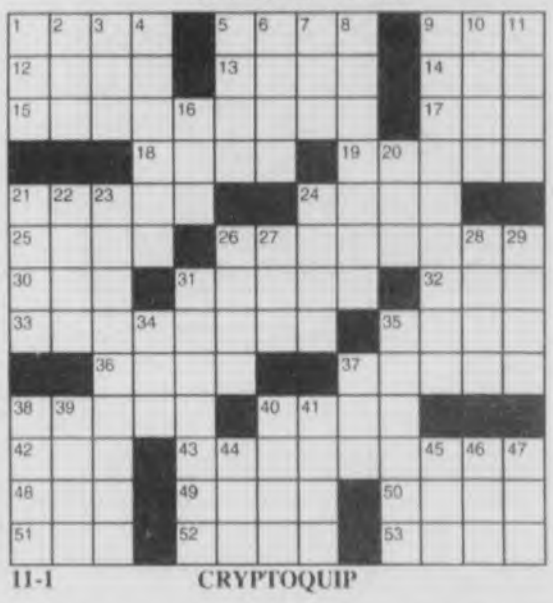
K-State Idol is at 7 tonight in Forum Hall.

The Student Dietetic Association will meet at 5:30 tonight in Justin Hall.

A topic research class will be from 2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. today in Hale 408.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Double agent
5 Post-bath application
9 The whole shootin' match
12 The same, in a bibliography
13 First victim
14 Anonymous John
15 Plug
17 Forefront
18 Take it easy
19 Streets
21 Fawns' fathers
24 Twain tyke
25 Staffer
26 Lethargy inducer
30 Gun the engine
31 Apple eaters' castoffs
32 Parisian pal
33 That's enough
35 "Zounds!"
36 Radio's Limbaugh
37 Part of the act?
38 Drop in on
40 Exam format
42 Tennyson princess
43 Pled in support
48 Neither mate
49 Wished otherwise
50 Tittle
51 Nevada town
52 Finished
53 O'Neal or Stiles

DOWN
1 Hamm of soccer
2 Peculiar
3 Bulgarian money
4 Come forth
5 Makes lace
6 Slightly
7 "— Misérables"
8 Church employees
9 Edge
10 Burden
11 Contact, e.g.
16 Scale members
20 Lennon's lady
21 Poet Teasdale
22 In need of a break?
23 Foe
24 Former Eagles member Glenn
26 Early boat-builder
27 Curved line
28 Somalian supermodel
29 2003 Derby champ, Funny —
31 Flan, perhaps
34 On the — vive
35 Oblong cream puff
37 Pouch
38 Tarzan's transport
39 "American —"
40 It takes the cake
41 Took the A train
44 Pair
45 Plaything
46 JFK info
47 Marino or Rather

Solution time: 21 mins.

O	N	E	S	■	A	D	O	■	F	R	A	N
H	A	R	M	O	N	I	C	■	R	U	N	E
M	E	G	A	W	A	T	T	■	E	T	N	A
■	■	■	L	E	T	■	U	P	S	H	O	T
S	C	A	L	D	■	S	P	I	N	■	■	■
O	U	R	S	■	W	A	L	C	O	T	T	■
S	R	I	■	A	R	I	E	S	■	H	O	P
■	B	A	B	B	I	T	T	■	C	U	B	A
■	■	■	L	A	T	H	■	J	A	D	E	D
S	O	N	A	T	A	■	E	E	L	■	■	■
P	L	U	S	■	B	A	R	T	L	E	T	T
A	I	N	T	■	L	I	S	T	E	N	E	R
M	O	S	S	■	E	R	E	■	D	D	A	Y

Yesterday's answer 11-1

11-1 CRYPTOQUIP

B X H I D R R O S Q X L D Q Q W A P S N U D N B , R O S U P S V D I W F Z I V R O S Z N I S H A X R R X " L X A S F S S , L X A S F D H ! "

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF SOFT PLUMAGE MADE ITS WAY INTO A LANDFILL, YOU MIGHT SAY IT'S DOWN IN THE DUMPS.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: S equals E

STREET TALK

What is your favorite Halloween candy?

Stubblefield

"Candy corn."

Raymond Stubblefield
FIFTH YEAR IN ARCHITECTURE

Blattner

"Chocolate."

Shelly Blattner
SOPHOMORE IN LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE

Weber

"Lollipops."

Pheasant Weber
SENIOR IN PSYCHOLOGY

Seeliger

"Reese's peanut butter cups."

Brett Seeliger
JUNIOR IN ENGLISH

Victor

"M & M's."

Deanna Victor
FIFTH YEAR IN ARCHITECTURE

Bayer

"Candy corn."

Nick Bayer
GRADUATE STUDENT IN FINE ARTS

Pinkard

"Reese's Pieces."

Kevin Pinkard
FRESHMAN IN OPEN-OPTION

Watson

"Anything chocolate."

Casey Watson
JUNIOR IN FOOD AND NUTRITION-EXERCISE SCIENCE

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Friday, Oct. 28

- Gerald Hendrick Jr., 2632 Woodside Lane, was arrested at 10:30 a.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Crystal Salazar, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 7:07 p.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $750.
- Justin Ferguson, Overland Park, Kan., was arrested at 8 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $500.

Saturday, Oct. 29

- Philip Everett, Clay Center, Kan., was arrested at 1:30 a.m. for unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $1,000.
- John Resman, 312 N. 15th St., was arrested at 1:35 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
- Emily Prendergast, 1525 Denison Ave., was arrested at 1:45 a.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance, unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia and DUI. Bond was set at $2,250.
- Darrell Deibler, 1312 Wreath Ave., was arrested at 2:03 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
- Ryan Sullivan, Olathe, Kan., was arrested at 1:51 p.m. for resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $750.
- Jay Erwin II, Wichita, was arrested at 5 p.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
- Brent Miller, Alma, Kan., was arrested at 7:40 p.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
- Virginia Morris, 2011 Tecumseh Road, was arrested at 8:45 p.m. for writing a worthless check. Bond was set at $719.24.
- John Keuser, 6851 McDowell Creek Road, was arrested at 10 p.m. for resisting arrest and criminal trespass. Bond was set at $1,500.

Sunday, Oct. 30

- Clint Donley, 1405 Hartman St., Apt. 4, was arrested at midnight for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
- Gregory Peters, South Haven, Kan., was arrested at 1:30 a.m. for disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $750.
- Nathan Sellers, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 1:37 a.m. for aggravated battery. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Melinda Graff, Junction City, was arrested at 4 a.m. for unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $750.
- Aaron Glenn, Emporia, Kan., was arrested at 2 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $2,000.
- Kimberly Wollenerg, 1413 Nichols St., was arrested at 6:40 p.m. for battery. Bond was set at $1,000.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A RefWorks class will be from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. today in Hale 408.
- A topic research class will be from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. today in Hale 408.
- The Public Relations Student Society will meet at 7:30 tonight in Kedzie 105.
- Applications for Wildcat Warm-up director positions are available by calling 532-5165 or e-mailing Emily Lehning at lehning@k-state.edu. Applications are due Nov. 7.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Gilbert Davila at 1:30 p.m. today in Bluemont 257.
- Applications for "Catalyst: A Self-Development Experience" are due at 5 p.m. Nov. 3 in Waters 119.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Leslie Thompson at 2:30 p.m. today in Call 206.
- Habitat for Humanity will meet at 8 tonight in the K-State Student Union dining area.

Corrections and clarifications

The total price students pay for University Counseling Services is approximately $25 per year, instead of adding $25 per year as stated in "Senate approves fee increase for Counseling Service" in Friday's edition. The Phi Gamma Delta ghost was located incorrectly in Monday's paper. The ghost was actually at the old house, 1614 Fairchild Ave. The Collegian regrets the errors.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Don't Forget about Your Pet's Coat this Fall
Bark Avenue Canine Designs
607 N. 11th • Aggieville 565-0612
$5 Off New Clients

Congratulations!
Chris Lollar
Won the ipod mini by ordering a 2006 Royal Purple yearbook
royalpurple.ksu.edu royalpurple

More Shoes, More Service, More Friendly
A steady throb of versatility, adaptability & performance. Delivers instinctive reaction to hard use and varying, multi-sport demands.
Brown's SHOE Fit Co.
New Business Hours • Mon.-Sat. 9 AM - 6 PM
311 Poyntz Ave. • 776-6612 • Downtown Manhattan

Microbuff and Mud Wrap
You and a friend $20
Stimulate circulation, exfoliate and renew your skin
512 Poyntz Ave. 776-4794
Crum's Beauty College
Services performed by supervised students

Are you a Jedi Master?
Can you control people with your mind?
Do you like bending them to your will?
Ever consider a career in advertising?
the Kansas State Collegian is now accepting applications for spring '06
• Collegian Advertising Manager
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives
Applications for Ad Manager are due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Staff applications due Nov. 16.
We're looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and job description in Kedzie 103.
Kansas State Collegian

Think You can Do Better?
Executive Position
Editor in chief
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 11
•Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Photo Journalsits • Desk Editors
• Graphic Journalists • Reporters
• Graphic Artists • Designers
• Online Journalists • Copy Editors
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 16
Pick up Applications in Kedzie 103

New ICU technology coming to Mercy

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Through a new technology coming to Kansas, doctors might not have to see their patients – at least not directly.

The technology, called eCARE-ICU, will enable Via Christi Health System specialized doctors in Wichita to see hospital patients located in Manhattan, Wichita, and Pittsburg, Kan.

Manhattan will receive the new technology in 2006.

Doctors can monitor up to 200 intensive care patients from a remote location on an around-the-clock basis under eCARE-ICU. Since doctors have to be in multiple locations every day, the technology allows doctors to continuously monitor a patient, said Richard Allen, president and CEO of Mercy Regional Health Center, 1823 College Ave.

"It's a marriage of technology, communications and oversight with a common goal of increasing the quality of care for our patients," Allen said. "It's a creation of safety net which is unprecedented."

One advantage of the technology is to shorten the stay of ICU patients, said Mike McLaughlin, human resources contact at Via Christi Health System.

"Medical literature demonstrates that staffing (eCARE-ICU doctors) lowers mortality rates," McLaughlin said. "With American's aging population, the number of ICU patients is expected to double in the next 10 years."

Recent studies by The Leapfrog Group, an organization that specializes in health care, state more than four million patients are admitted into hospital ICUs each year, with 500,000 who die.

However, a study published in Critical Care Medicine said eICU programs reduce ICU patient deaths by 27 percent, shorten ICU patient's hospital stay by 17 percent and save patients up to $2,150 per patient. The technology saved an overall $3 million for Sentara Healthcare, a six-hospital system in Norfolk, Va., McLaughlin said.

Hospitals are also satisfied with outcome of eICU programs, said Gladys Campbell, former president of the American Academy of Clinical Nurses. Campbell said eCARE-ICU will not only save lives and reduce the cost of caring for patients, but also help retain critical care staffing, especially nurses.

"Nurses are leaving the profession because of fear and conflict," Campbell said.

Sentara Healthcare reported medical retention is more than two times greater with the eCARE-ICU technology, McLaughlin said.

Allen said he, among other officials at Mercy Regional Health Center, is excited about bringing in the eCARE-ICU technology, which will give Manhattan more of an edge in the medical field.

"This really brings about and helps fulfill a mandate for our patients that care in smaller communities can match that of much larger tertiary hospitals," Allen said.

6 students trick-or-treat for cans

Katie Lester | COLLEGIAN

Kourtney Bettinger, senior in biology, collects non-perishable food items for the Flint Hills Breadbasket from a Manhattan resident.

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Instead of asking for Halloween candy, six Rotaract members trick or treated for cans Monday night, but their Phi Eta Sigma partners didn't show up.

Nonetheless, the students collected some candy and 149 cans for the Flint Hills Breadbasket.

"Almost every single house we went to gave us something," said Stacey Pryal, senior in modern languages and Trick or Treat for Cans organizer. "I'm happy with the outcome. We did really well with only six people."

Trick or Treat for Cans is one of Rotaract's service projects, but only six of the 10 students who volunteered to attend came.

The project was supposed to be a joint effort with Phi Eta Sigma, a national freshman honor society, but no members came.

"We had 10 on our list and they had eight," Pryal said.

The group had coordinated the project with Phi Eta Sigma a few weeks ago.

The first four Rotaract members to arrive waited more than 10 minutes after the meeting time. Two more students from Rotaract showed up.

"I have a very good reason," said Crystal Borhani, graduate student in regional and community planning. "I was in class."

The six waited a few more minutes and then chose to split into two groups, one covering Poyntz Avenue and the other on Casement Road. Dillons donated 15 paper bags to the project.

"I am hoping to fill all 15 bags," Pryal said.

Service • Auto • Car • Eye Care • Clothing • Oil Change
SERVICE DIRECTORY
• Beauty • Refill • Planning • Heating • Plumbing

TUESDAY 60¢ Tacos $2.00 Margaritas Trivia Night
WEDNESDAY $7.99 Steak Night $2.00 Bottles
BOBBY TS 3240 Kimball Ave 537-8383 www.bobbyts.com

EARN up to $200 this month
EARN GREAT MONEY TODAY
FEEL GREAT FOREVER.
New Higher Pay - Come in today!
ZLB Plasma Services
Good for You. Great for Life.
1130 Gardenway • Manhattan, KS 66502
(785)-776-9177 • zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

Oil CHANGE $14.95 WHEN YOU BRING IN THIS AD
Appointment Necessary No Drop-ins, Please
We Service All Makes of Cars
American & Foreign Cars • Engine Overhaul • Motor Tune-ups • Complete Brake • Electrical & Automatic Transmission Service • Manual Transmissions & Clutch Repair • Sun Computer Print Out • Diagnostic Center • Air Conditioning Service
Ekart Automotive Services
776-5110 411 S. 5th St. • 1 Blk. North of Ft. Riley Blvd.

STUDY ABROAD AUSTRALIA & NEW ZEALAND
1-800-980-0033
studyabroad@australearn.org www.australearn.org
AUSTRALEARN
INFORMATION TABLE
THURS, NOV. 3
STUDENT UNION
11 AM - 2 PM
SEMESTER/YEAR ABROAD - INTERNSHIPS
SUMMER PROGRAMS - FULL DEGREE

TUESDAY Boozeday
$1.50 WELLS
$2.50 Pitchers
$3.50 Jager Bombs
Rusty's LAST CHANCE SALOON •Aggieville•

Your Source for Screenprinting Embroidery Apparel Programs
ARTECH PROMOTIONS INC
1 FREE COLOR on 144 pc. orders thru Oct.
Trophies & Awards Engraving Services Promotional Products
ArTech Promotions • 1126 Moro in Aggieville • 785-539-5775

dependable. quality service
✓ We can print from your Zip, CD-Rom, or USB flash drive.
Claflin Books and Copies

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 Moro Manhattan 776-8770
TONIGHT Karaoke Night
1/2 price EVERYTHING
Live Nov. 2 RANDY ROGERS BAND
with special guest Full Throttle

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS
Students' Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 3:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request
for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Vista DRIVE IN
Still Fixin' It Like YOU Like It!
1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
&
Inside Manhattan Town Center
www.vistadrivein.com
Save up to $4.00!
$1.00 off any cyclone!
Expires: 12/1/05
Limit 4 per coupon. Not valid with any other offer. Not valid on "cyclone of the day." Valid after 10:30 a.m.
Corndog Tuesday!
Every Tuesday Buy 1 Get 1 FREE Corndog!
Save up to $4.00!
$1.00 off any combo!
Expires: 12/1/05
Limit 4 per coupon. Not valid with any other offer. Not valid on "cyclone of the day." Valid after 10:30 a.m.

LASIK...
"I cannot imagine a better experience than what I had at Heartland LASIK Center. Everyone was very professional and considerate…after the procedure, I could not believe how well I could see...I feel more confident about doing things I wouldn't have been comfortable with when I had glasses or contacts." --K.G.
...A Life Changing Experience
CustomVue™ LASIK can give you the opportunity to eliminate or reduce your need for glasses or contacts with a customized, unique treatment. Dr. Kansal completed a fellowship in refractive surgery with specialty training in LASIK. For your scheduling convenience, we offer an on-site, state-of-the-art laser.
Call today for a FREE consultation!
785-263-6678
Heartland LASIK Center
511 NE 10th, Abilene, KS 67410
An affiliate of Memorial Health System and in partnership with Dr. Sukesh Kansal

TO THE POINT

KU evolution exhibit designed to educate public

In a state where evolution has been a hot topic for the last few years, it is important to take opportunities to step back from the controversy once in a while.

The evolution exhibit the University of Kansas is bringing to Lawrence is an opportunity to do just that. The event has been carefully crafted to avoid the often heated and uncomfortable confrontations that have arisen about evolution.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

While many people have their minds made up about evolution, this event still offers a wonderful chance to examine some aspects of evolution in a scientific, but not persuasive manner.

The opportunity presented by this presentation is not one that should be passed up by anyone.

Even if you do not believe in evolution, taking the opportunity to learn more about the claims scientists makes is a good one. Challenging faith is the best way to solidify it.

But, for those who fall into the evolution crowd, this is an opportunity to examine what is new and exciting in the world of evolution.

The exhibit is there to educate, but not to force people to chose sides. The display will not host discussions of either the pros or cons.

Whatever your beliefs, education should never reach a standstill. Going to view this exhibit can be beneficial to an evolutionist, creationist and everyone in between.

Making progress

Recent news a step in the right direction for homosexuals

It took more than 100 years after the abolition of slavery for Congress to pass the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which offered protection against discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion or national origin.

JACI BOYDSTON

One group the legislators forgot to mention when drafting that act is currently fighting its own battle for civil rights.

Gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender Americans received two pieces of good news in the past two weeks – the Kansas Supreme Court's denouncement of harsher sentences for underage sex crimes involving people of the same gender and WNBA star Sheryl Swoopes' first public step out of the closet.

According to an Oct. 22 Associated Press report, the Kansas Supreme Court ruled the state's Romeo and Juliet law, which allows more lenient punishment for underage sex acts when the partners are less than four years apart, must be applied to heterosexual and homosexual acts equally.

The case the court heard involved an 18-year-old man convicted of having sexual relations with a 14-year-old boy.

The man was sentenced to 17 years and two months in prison, but had his partner been female, he could have faced a sentence as short as 15 months.

Although lighter punishments for sex offenders isn't normally something we should cheer about, the court's message that heterosexuals and homosexuals should be required to abide by the same laws is definitely a cause for celebration.

Perhaps even more important for the homosexual community was Swoopes' announcement last week that she is a lesbian.

Swoopes' decision to publicly announce her orientation is a big step toward a more mainstream acceptance of homosexuality.

Besides a few liberal congressmen, a smattering of singers and comedians, and a handful of Hollywood personalities and has-beens, there have been precious few solid role models who are openly gay.

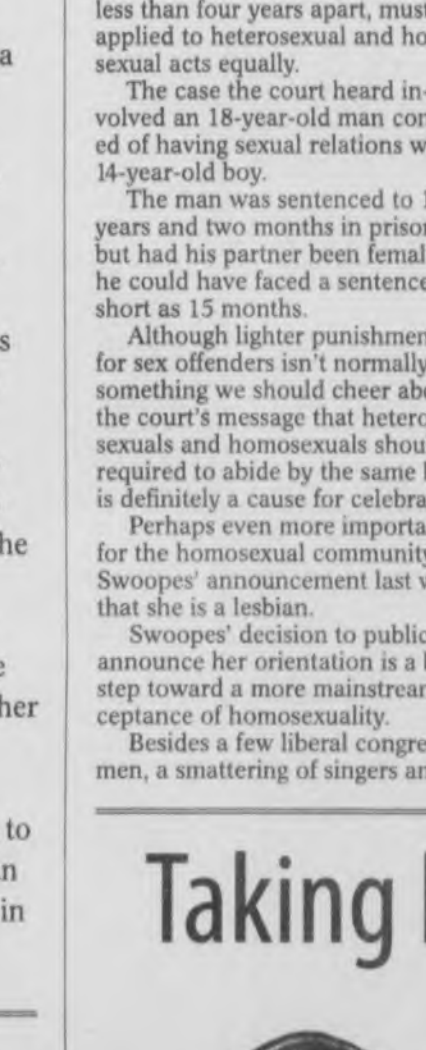
Enter Swoopes. She's not a boring politician or a B-list entertainer; she's a strong, successful, ass-kicking woman whom children across the country can look up to. She's the first WNBA player to win three MVP trophies, and she has maintained a committed, long-term relationship with another woman for more than seven years.

If anyone can give homosexuality a better image in the minds of those who scorn and fear it, it's Swoopes.

Despite these important steps forward, the movement will likely experience some setbacks in the weeks to come.

When the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was passed, compliance with the new law was low, and some groups actually increased their discrimination and hatred of blacks.

And in 2003, when the Massachusetts Supreme Court ruled that denying marriage licenses to same-sex couples violated the state's equal protection clause and began performing same-sex marriages, it created a heated backlash from conservative groups and inspired countless "defense of marriage" acts and amendments.



As blacks and other groups discriminated against on the basis of race are well aware, achieving civil rights and societal equality is a long, uphill battle that may take hundreds of years. Societal change doesn't happen overnight, so for now, let's appreciate the work that has been done and hope for even better news tomorrow.

Jaci Boydston is a senior in mass communications. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell | COLLEGIAN

Taking back the night by taking up arms

According to the Kansas Bureau of Investigation, 1,018 rapes were reported in Kansas in 2004 – 26 in Riley County. Consider that about 60 percent of rapes are unreported and the numbers approach 1697 and 43, respectively.

An unpublished Fourum comment speaks truly – we have a rape epidemic. But, what to do?

JONAS HOGG

The means of making women – all women – safe from predators is not elusive. The modern handgun provides safety, security and confidence for all who wield it with proficiency.

It is only through the continued dullness of our state, local and university governments that women are unable to obtain their own means of defense.

Gov. Sebelius, though a woman, lives without fear of being raped. The state, in its benevolence, provides for her 24-hour protection, while she deprives her salary payers of their means of defense by vetoing the law that would allow Kansans to carry concealed weapons.

Our city and university government prohibits the wearing of unconcealed weapons, unless one is a police officer, because police officers deserve special rights that the rest of us do not. Hooray for the super-citizen.

Neither the state, city nor university has managed to prevent rape; and all have taken measures that provide safety for the rapists at the expense of the victim.

The state cannot protect the people. It is only through arming and training the citizen in the use of firearms that the citizen can be guaranteed of safety.

What else has been effective?

"Take back the night" rallies have not put an end to rape and the Riley County Police Department seems far too intent in its war on speeding and dunderheaded minor-in-possession teams to focus on such mundane things as a serial rapist.

Of course, those who are too weak-willed to provide their own defense will seek to prevent others from doing so. Surely many are convinced there is no poorer idea than allowing ordinary women to carry guns. If our serial rapist is reading this column he undoubtedly thinks the same thing. Congratulations on finding common ground.

Occasionally, these proponents of victimization offer mild and toothless alternatives to gun ownership. Pepper spray has minimal effectiveness, and is unusable by many with respiratory diseases.

Stun guns generally require closer proximity than most would care to experience with a rapist.

Three-hour "self-defense" courses are a waste of money. Our serial rapist has, at the very least, five years of fighting experience. Any "moves" that are taught at these con-shows he has likely seen before.

Full-blown martial arts are a worthwhile endeavor, but require, at a minimum, a year to develop a usable proficiency against an experienced assailant.

But, proficiency with a handgun can be reached in a few short lessons, requires no great physical strength or stamina and can neutralize a would-be assailant before they ever receive the opportunity to assail.

The opponents of armament always predict hails of gunfire and mayhem upon the arming of the citizenry. Such predictions continually fail to materialize.

They have no response to the example of Florida, where allowing the average citizen to carry guns has resulted in a downward spike in violent crime.

Women need not rely on others for protection. In fact, the very goals of feminism should be to forsake such reliance. The surest way to take back the night is to let women take arms.

Rapists everywhere fear armed, independent women for obvious reasons. The real question is: why do the rest of you?

Jonas Hogg is a junior in sociology, international studies, and Russian. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

"Jordy" is the only receiver who's performing, so I don't think his name matters.

Christians don't believe in gravity.

Is it just me or was the Burger King in Manhattan this weekend and drinking heavily?

Is it weird to have a 15-minute conversation about farting?

To the girls that I about hit in Aggieville, I have one word for you - crosswalk.

Facebook isn't working ... my life suddenly became devoid of meaning.

Hey Snyder, how about we put the names back on the jerseys. That way, if someone screws up, we know who it is.

There's a couple kinks, but it's pretty close.

So, I just saw Tiger Woods' cousin on campus again today. He keeps on denying it, but I know he is related to Tiger Woods. I think he just doesn't want people to know so that it's not a big deal. But isn't it awesome that he goes here. See if you can spot him, he looks like him, kinda.

My roommate just tore pages out of the 1976 encyclopedia to read later because "information is always relative." Is that weird?

Oh my gosh. Did everybody see those giant posters by the Union last week? That dime looked huge.

A beer at Kite's: $4. A meal at Hibachi Hut/Texas Star: $15. Watching two people dressed as bowling pins run from someone dressed as a bowling ball on Saturday night: priceless.

Why are there no good guys left in this world? They're all, like, mean. There's no such thing as a good guy.

Math and science will not get you laid.

There's a fine line between a genius and an idiot, and at Friday's Landon Lecture, President Wefald crossed that line.

Mad props to the bowling pins and the bowling ball in Aggieville Saturday night. You guys made my weekend.

To the guy who asked gauging your ears, yes you can. I've seen it on BME.

Hello?

I can't believe somebody was actually making fun of our only receiver who can catch the ball's name. What's that all about?

I finally made it to my 8:30. Thank you daylight savings time.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Classroom style

Photo illustration by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Student's clothes reflect mood, not performance

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

College students say comfort, mood and time constraints, not attitude, affect the way they dress for class.

Whether flip-flops and a pair of jeans, or a business suit and tie, what a student chooses to wear on a particular day may reflect anticipation of a big event, or how much sleep he or she got the night before.

Ashley Boucher, junior in marketing, said the way she dresses differs from day to day, depending on her mood.

"If I have an early class, I don't really make an effort," she said. "I just wear comfortable, warm clothes. If I feel like I want to make the effort, I'll wear something that's still comfortable, but somewhat stylish."

Kyleigh Payne, junior in anthropology, said sweaters and jeans are her usual staples when dressing for class, but reserves sweatpants for the days when she has stayed up late studying the night before.

"If you feel tired and look horrible, it definitely shows through in your wardrobe choice," she said.

Gary Kohlasch, sophomore in political science, said early morning class times, not any attitude towards a class, influences the way many students dress.

"Some people are just in a rush, they don't have time to change," Kohlasch said. "Just because they don't dress up doesn't mean they don't care."

While one's wardrobe may not have any effect on performance, several students agreed their professors notice the clothes they wear.

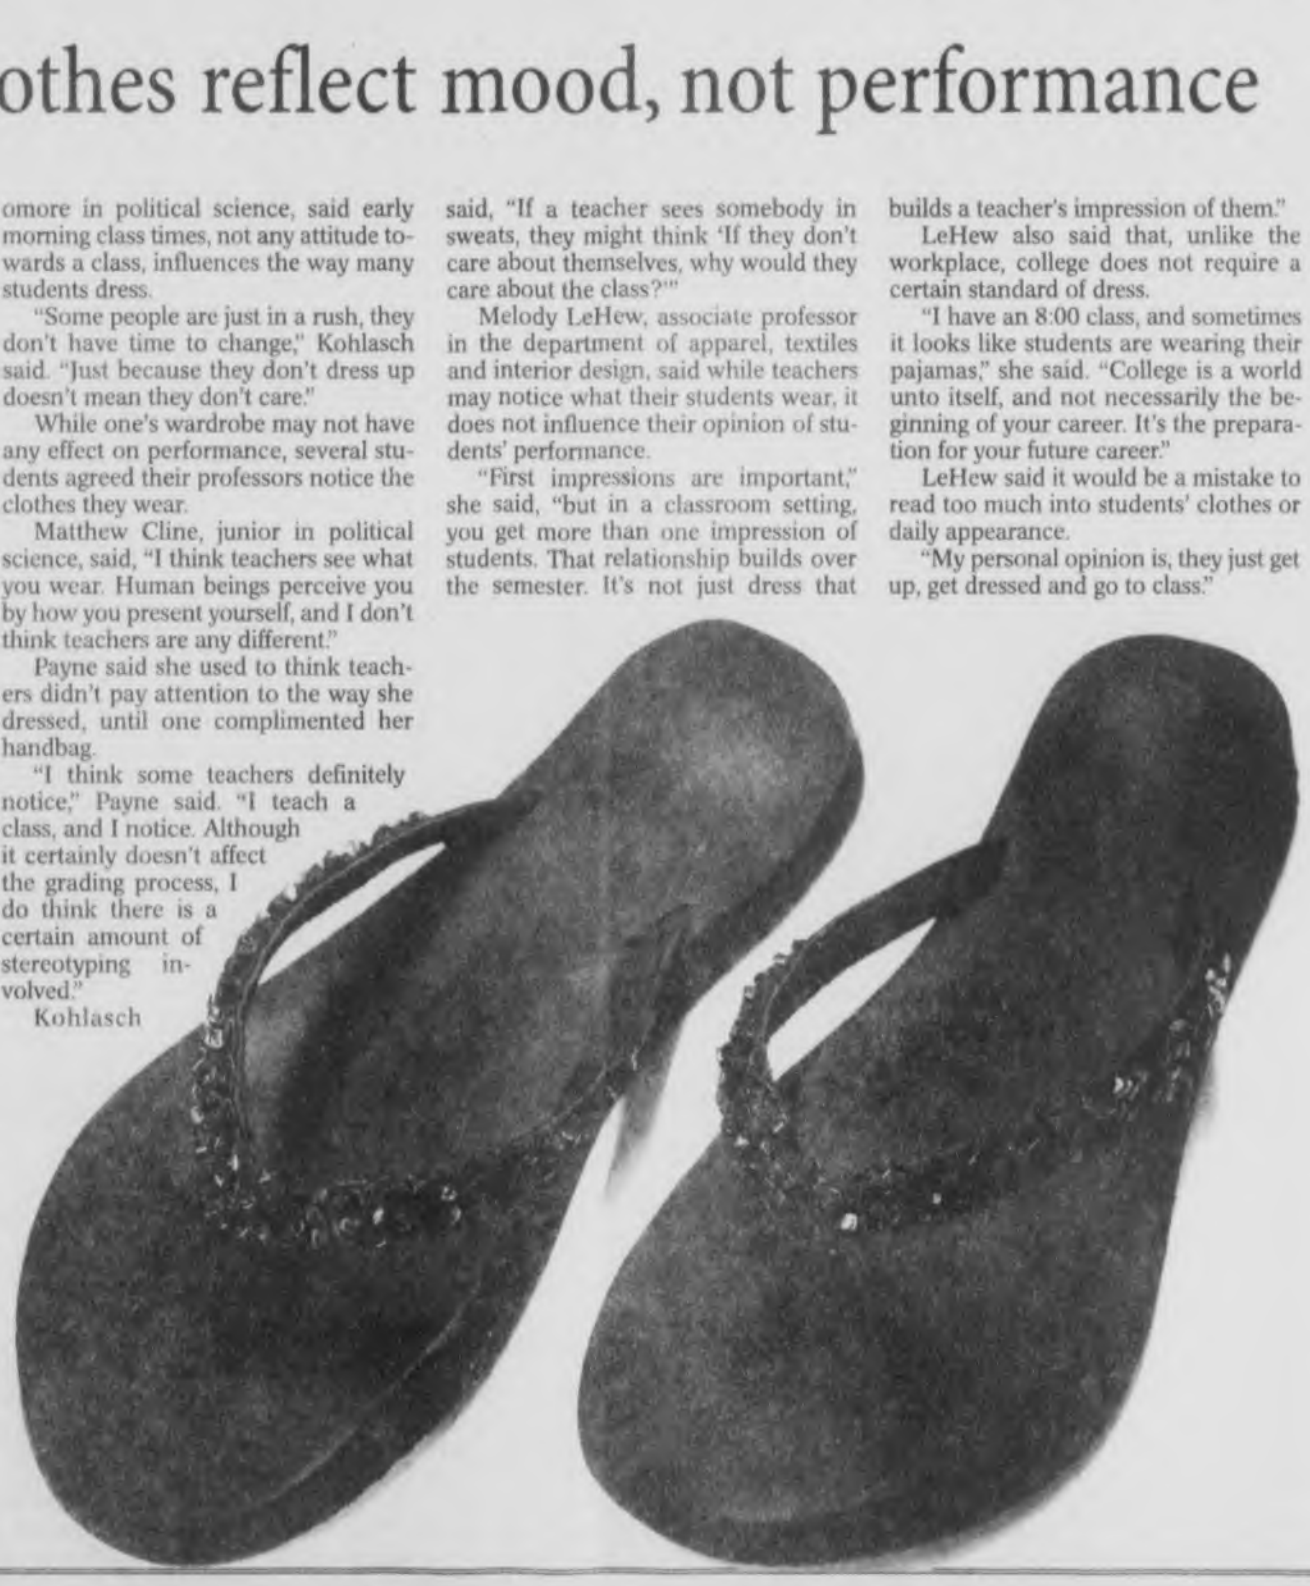
Matthew Cline, junior in political science, said, "I think teachers see what you wear. Human beings perceive you by how you present yourself, and I don't think teachers are any different."

Payne said she used to think teachers didn't pay attention to the way she dressed, until one complimented her handbag.

"I think some teachers definitely notice," Payne said. "I teach a class, and I notice. Although it certainly doesn't affect the grading process, I do think there is a certain amount of stereotyping involved."

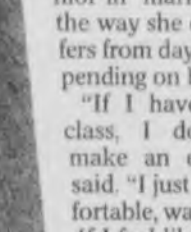
Kohlasch said, "If a teacher sees somebody in sweats, they might think 'If they don't care about themselves, why would they care about the class?'"

Melody LeHew, associate professor in the department of apparel, textiles and interior design, said while teachers may notice what their students wear, it does not influence their opinion of students' performance.



"First impressions are important," she said, "but in a classroom setting, you get more than one impression of students. That relationship builds over the semester. It's not just dress that builds a teacher's impression of them."

LeHew also said that, unlike the workplace, college does not require a certain standard of dress.



"I have an 8:00 class, and sometimes it looks like students are wearing their pajamas," she said. "College is a world unto itself, and not necessarily the beginning of your career. It's the preparation for your future career."

LeHew said it would be a mistake to read too much into students' clothes or daily appearance.

"My personal opinion is, they just get up, get dressed and go to class."

Pornography should be viewed with caution

HOLLY KRAMER

It was a day like any other day. It was a day when I had only checked my e-mail, horoscope, Facebook.com profile and bank account 18,000 times. It was the day I saw my friend's Internet history.

Checking someone's frequently visited Web sites is the modern equivalent of reading his or her palm: it shows the naked truth and predicts the future. That's the day I learned my friend has a penchant for big, voluptuous booties. After looking at several close-ups (for research purposes only), I started thinking about the information superhighway and the many pornography stops along the way.

According to the Concerned Women for America's Web site, the entire porn industry rakes in about $9 billion annually, which is more than networks NBC, ABC and CBS gross combined. While housewives everywhere watch the latest "Barbara Walters Special," chances are the rest of the family is elsewhere, perusing endless pictorial salutes to breasts, butts and bikini areas. Apparently, it's gotten to be a bit of a problem.

The facts I stumbled upon could be categorized as "The Good," "The Bad" and "The Ugly."

"The Good:" recent collaboration between federal, state and local law enforcement has led to several child pornography stings resulting in the imprisonment of many illegal pornographers. "The Bad:" Adult Video News estimates the largest credit card company makes about $35 million per month on Internet porn. "The Ugly:" the Clinton White House west wing was a veritable smorgasbord of teen, gay and animal porn.

At this point, as you try to blink away visions of Al Gore looking at girl-on-dog action, think about how easy it's become to look at hardcore images, whether you're in the comfort of your own home or at the public library. Some research even suggests that watching porn releases the same pleasure-enhancing chemicals in the brain that addictive drugs can.

All this virtual mayhem makes me wonder about the less-examined, lighter side of porn's double-edged penetration of America. The business-minded part of my brain dares to ask how e-porn could become a convenient one-stop shopping enterprise. Need a sub-leaser for the spring semester? Post an ad on www.worldsex.com. Want to get rid of that pesky loft from freshman year? Advertise on www.milfhunter.com. This would combine America's insatiable need for pornography with its love of honest bargains.

Seriously ladies, if your boyfriend indulges in a little too much virtual booty, this could be a warning sign for a much bigger problem. Porn addiction can cause men to believe real women should look like Jenna Jameson and their partners may not sexually satisfy them anymore. There also has been an increase in the number of divorces due to a spouse being addicted to pornography.

My advice is to step away from your computers for a while and think about investing in other worthwhile hobbies.

While you're scratching your head, I'll be checking my e-mail at my own safe computer and continue to be wary of every laptop I see.

Holly Kramer is a senior in human ecology and mass communications. You can e-mail her at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

NEW RELEASES

Music

Santana, "All That I Am"
Diana Krall, Clayton/Hamilton Jazz Orchestra, "Christmas Songs"
John Fogerty, "The Long Road Home: Ultimate John Fogerty Creedence Collection"
Imogen Heap, "Speak For Yourself"
Various Artists, "Now, Vol. 20"
Rammstein, "Rosenrot"
Terri Clark, "Life Goes On"
Deep Purple, "Rapture of the Deep"
Sun Kil Moon, "Tiny Cities"
Original Broadway Cast, "Jersey Boys"
Madonna, "Hung Up"
Third Day, "Wherever You Are"
Blink-182, "Greatest Hits"
Eric Johnson, "Live from Austin, TX [Live]"
Dwight Yoakam, "Live from Austin, TX [Live]"
Slipknot, "9.0: Live"
Neal Morse, "?"
Burt Bacharach, "At This Time"
Original Soundtrack, "Brokeback Mountain"
Josh Turner, "Your Man"

Source: Amazon.com

Movies in theaters Friday

"Chicken Little" (G)
When an acorn falls to the ground, a young chicken (Zach Braff) thinks the sky is falling and causes widespread panic by spreading the inaccurate news to the rest of his animal friends, Abby Mallard, Runt of the Litter and Fish Out of Water. Later, after his reputation is ruined, the chicken is clobbered by a real piece of the sky as it falls to Earth.

"Shop Girl" (R)
Mirabelle (Claire Danes) oversees the seldom-visited glove counter at Saks Fifth Avenue in Beverly Hills. She's also a struggling artist who can barely pay her student loans. In steps Ray Porter (Steve Martin), a handsome, rich, 50-something bachelor. They begin dating, sort of, but at the same time, Mirabelle's going out with Jeremy (Jason Schwartzman), a 20-something slob.

"Jarhead" (R)
Anthony Swofford (Jake Gyllenhaal), a third-generation enlistee in the Marines, goes from boot camp to active duty in the first Gulf War. As an elite sniper under the command of a hardcore sergeant (Jamie Foxx), Swofford and his fellow soldiers face nearly intolerable heat, an expansive desert, an enemy they often can't see and a growing disillusionment over why they were sent to Iraq in the first place.

Source: www.movies.go.com

DVDs

"Star Wars, Episode III — Revenge of the Sith (Widescreen Edition)"
"Star Wars, Episode III — Revenge of the Sith (Full Screen Edition)"
"Office Space - Special Edition with Flair (Widescreen Edition)"
"Star Trek Enterprise - The Complete Fourth Season"
"The War of the Worlds (Special Collector's Edition)"
"Sex and the City — The Complete Series (Collector's Giftset)"
"Disney Princess — A Christmas of Enchantment"
"Foyle's War — Set 3"
"The Adventures of Pete & Pete — Season 2"
"Millions"
"VeggieTales — Lord of the Beans"
"Duran Duran — Live From London (2pc) (W/CD) (Dlx)"
"The Brady Bunch — The Complete Fourth Season"
"Two for the Road"
"21 Jump Street — The Complete Fourth Season"
"The Perfect Man (Widescreen Edition)"
"The 12 Dogs of Christmas"
"War of the Worlds — The Complete First Season"
"American Chopper The Series — The Third Season"

Source: Amazon.com
Photos: Courtesy art

SPORTS

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Landing a jump at the varsity equestrian head-to-head competition, Leslie Yates competes in Equitation Over Fences, second section. Yates won first in her section against South Dakota State on Oct. 1.

Equestrian returns home for show

By Jessica Barnard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State Equestrian team isn't expecting any surprises this weekend.

After a month of competing on the road, the team has returned to Manhattan to play host to the KSU Hunt Show at Fox Creek Stables this weekend.

Coach Teresa Slough said there are advantages and disadvantages to being the home team. She said being familiar with the horses that will be used in competition can serve to benefit the team, because they know what to expect with each horse and how each horse works.

However, Slough added it can be easy for the team to become upset with the horses if they are not living up to their expectations on competition day.

"We know what each horse is capable of," Slough said. "If they don't necessarily perform up to what we expect from them, we can get wrapped up in what the horses are doing instead of what we're doing."

Because the KSU Hunt Show is an Intercollegiate Horse Show Association competition, the K-State Equestrian team will provide all of the horses to the visiting teams as well.

Lianna Bodlack, team captain, said it is harder for the team to stay focused when it is a home show, because the riders are comfortable with the environment and the horses.

"A lot of times, since we know the horses, we're not as focused," Bodlack said. "We let our focus down when we're at home, so that's something we need to work on."

Casey Finnell, team captain, said the team rides just as much at a home show, but they are required to put more effort into the horses.

She said it is K-State's responsibility to make sure the horses are well-behaved and in peak physical shape for the show, since visiting teams will be riding them.

K-State competes in Zone 9, Region 2 of the IHSA. Teams competing this weekend include Northern Illinois University, Drake University, Missouri State University, Northwestern, Truman State University and Washington University.

Finnell said she expects tough competition from two schools in the region.

"We have a whole lot of good new riders who came to our region this year," Finnell said. "I think Northern Illinois will be our toughest competition, and I think Washington University will be tough also."

So far this season, the K-State English riders have not lost a show, and as such, they lead the region.

Bodlack said the western team's loss at Missouri State helped the team refocus.

"I really think it just made us think about that we need to keep our focus up, no matter how far ahead we are in our zone," Bodlack said.

Although the team wants to remain undefeated throughout the season, Slough said the biggest goal for Saturday's show is for the team to ride well.

"We just want each individual to go in and do what they've been working on," Slough said. "The most important thing is that we're improving and that we're riding well."

Opportunity awaits

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Senior Jessica Simosa returns a volley last season. The K-State women's tennis team will play in the ASU Thunderbird Invitational this weekend.

Kvaratskhelia to miss ASU Thunderbird Invitational

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tamar Kvaratskhelia will miss her first tournament of the fall this weekend.

The K-State women's tennis team will play in the ASU Thunderbird Invitational without the sophomore, even though coach Steve Bietau said Kvaratskhelia is not injured.

"Kvaratskhelia will not be playing," Bietau said. "Physically she's OK, and that's all I'm going to say about it."

Kvaratskhelia is coming off a strong performance at the ITA Regionals tournament. She advanced to the semifinals before the University of Arkansas' Ela Kaluder, who went on to win the tournament, knocked Kvaratskhelia out of the tournament.

Bietau said the ASU Thunderbird Invitational, which will be in Tempe, Ariz., is an opportunity for anyone on the team to make their mark in the world of women's tennis.

He said Maria Perevoschikova has been on the rise as of late.

"This tournament will be a chance to look at Perevoschikova, for example," Bietau said.

Perevoschikova, from Izhevsk, Russia, has been able to improve her play throughout the fall despite homesickness.

"When I came here without my family, I was homesick," Perevoschikova said. "My team helped me by joking with me and telling me it was going to be OK."

Olga Klimova will see action at the tournament in doubles play with teammate Jessica Simosa.

Bietau said even though Klimova's rehab from a torn ACL has been quicker than expected, he still doesn't expect her to be at full strength until sometime in the spring.

Simosa said she hopes to have a solid performance after being knocked out of the first round of the regional tournament.

"I was pretty disappointed about regionals because I was eliminated in the first round when I thought I was going to make it to the quarterfinals," Simosa said.

The ASU Thunderbird Invitational will be the last competition of the fall season for the Wildcats.

Fans should be patient, expect K-State to improve next season

MARK POTTER

If you follow K-State sports, you may have noticed a common theme among several Wildcat teams this season: inexperience.

I suppose I could have said youth, but aside from players like former Oklahoma quarterback Jason White, seniors are not much older than sophomores and juniors.

Nearly all of K-State's teams lack experience.

The football team only has four senior starters.

The volleyball team has two seniors and three juniors on its 16-player roster, which is more than women's basketball coach Deb Patterson can say.

Patterson only has one senior on her squad.

The men's basketball team touts five seniors, but none of them averaged more than 6.4 minutes per game last season.

Cross country, women's golf and women's tennis also have a shortage of juniors and seniors.

What does experience mean in regards to winning?

A whole lot, if you ask volleyball coach Suzie Fritz.

"You can't make up for experience in this league," Fritz said. "You've just got to get in the fire and figure it out."

K-State won't win any Big 12 Conference titles, at least not this year.

The football and volleyball teams have had trouble fighting through rugged conference schedules.

Three of the most talented players in the history of K-State women's basketball graduated after last season.

The men's basketball squad will need to replace Jeremiah Massey's scoring, rebounding and intensity while coach Jim Wooldridge incorporates a new motion, four-guard offense.

Wooldridge said his players need time to mesh.

"It's not going to be done overnight," Wooldridge said. "It's a process over the course of time."

If any of these teams can contend for a Big 12 Championship this season, I'll be surprised.

However, Wildcat fans should be patient.

In 2006, the football team's offensive line will be more experienced (and hopefully healthier), and its talented starting quarterback, Allan Evridge, will have gained a year of maturity.

A year from now, the K-State volleyball players will benefit from more vocal leadership.

The women's basketball team will have developed scorers, and the men's squad's talent won't be so raw.

K-State's football team will be better next season. So will its volleyball, basketball and other aforementioned teams.

They just need a little time.

You never know. Next year, the Wildcats might even duplicate their performance from 2003-04, when K-State won Big 12 Championships in football, volleyball and women's basketball.

But unfortunately, I won't be here to find out.

Mark Potter is a senior in public relations. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

NFL Scores

Baltimore	19
Pittsburgh	20

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | K-State game against Nebraska set for 1 p.m.

The K-State Athletics Department received word that the Wildcats' football game at Nebraska on Nov. 12 has been set for a 1 p.m. kickoff at Memorial Stadium.

There will be no live television for the game, marking the second consecutive meeting between the Wildcats and Huskers to go untelevised. It will also be K-State's fourth consecutive week with no television coverage.

The Wildcats and Cornhuskers saw their 11-year run of televised matchups end last year. The Wildcats have won four of the last five games against Nebraska and will be going for their fourth consecutive win over the Huskers when the two teams meet.

The Associated Press

NFL | Culpepper out for season with knee injury

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — Minnesota Vikings quarterback Daunte Culpepper will miss the rest of the season and perhaps part of next season because of a severe injury to his right knee.

Culpepper

Culpepper sustained damage to the three major ligaments in the knee: the anterior cruciate, posterior cruciate and medial collateral.

Coach Mike Tice said Monday that Culpepper, who was hurt on the final play of the first quarter in Sunday's 38-13 loss at Carolina, will have surgery in the coming weeks once the swelling subsides.

MLB | Epstein steps down as GM of Red Sox

BOSTON — Red Sox general manager Theo Epstein resigned Monday, surprising Boston and the baseball world just one year after he helped build the franchise's first World Series championship team since 1918.

Epstein

The team said in a statement that Epstein will continue working for several days to assist in the transition and prepare for the offseason.

The Boston Herald said the Yale graduate has told associates that he may leave baseball, or at least take a year off.

The Dodgers, Phillies and Devil Rays have GM openings, but none has a $120 million payroll to match the one Epstein was given in Boston.

CFB | Sanders to resign as Vols' offensive coordinator

Randy Sanders will resign as the Tennessee Volunteers' offensive coordinator, ESPN's Joe Schad reported Monday.

Sanders

Coach Phil Fulmer will take over the play-calling responsibilities for the remainder of the season.

A source within the Tennessee football program told The Nashville Tennessean on Sunday that Fulmer and Sanders had been engaged in discussions focused on Sanders resigning as coordinator.

Sanders spoke to Fulmer about the possibility of quitting after the Vols' 16-15 loss to South Carolina on Saturday and again on Sunday, the paper reported.

College Football BCS Standings

1. Southern Cal
2. Texas
3. Virginia Tech
4. Alabama
5. UCLA
6. Miami (Fla.)
7. Penn State
8. LSU
9. Florida State
10. Ohio State

Other Big 12 teams:
15. Texas Tech
22. Colorado
25. Oklahoma

Local charity begins holiday campaign

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two months of special campaigning for the Flint Hills Breadbasket begins today.

The Mayor's Holiday Tree Food and Fund Drive, an annual community-wide fundraiser for the breadbasket, runs from today until the end of December. Executive Director Natascha Phillip said this is the 20th year of the campaign.

The drive has several parts, Phillip said. One of them is to raise money to pay for the Thanksgiving and holiday gift baskets the organizations gives out to families who can't afford them.

Phillip said the McCormick Foundation will be matching every dollar of donations with an additional 50 cents, so donors will get "a little more bang for the buck."

"We didn't set a goal or amount," Manhattan Mayor Ed Klimek said, "It's just what we can get."

Phillip said another part is to build up the food bank's supply, which is running low due in part to locals donating to national recovery efforts after Hurricane Katrina.

"Our shelves have been pretty thin since the hurricane, we've seen donations drop since then," Phillip said.

This is troubling, she said, since winter brings increased demand for aid in the community when heating bills take big bites out of family budgets.

"They're taking their grocery money and using it to pay their gas bills," she said.

The organization will also be trying to sign up donors for their Adopt-a-Family program, which asks people to give presents to families who cannot buy gifts for their own children.

Klimek said the next important event in the campaign will be a lighted parade the day after Thanksgiving that will go from downtown Manhattan to Aggieville. He said members of the K-State baseball team will walk alongside the parade and collect donations for the organization.

To donate, contact:
Flint Hills Breadbasket
905 Yuma St.
537-0730

Aluminum-clad students wait in line for free burritos

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Cortney Groom, left, freshman in business administration pre-professional, and Sarah Bunch, freshman in apparel textiles, wrap Morgan Wood and Tasha Pettyjohn, both freshmen in apparel textiles, in foil before they go into Chipotle Mexican Grill to get a free burrito.

The scene at Chipotle Mexican Grill, 606 N. Manhattan Ave., Monday night was one of utter chaos. Students draped in tinfoil and paper bags waited in 10-minute-long lines to claim their free burritos.

Every year on Halloween, Chipotle restaurants encourage customers to come in dressed as their favorite Chipotle entrée – a foil-wrapped burrito, a taco or a salad. Those who participate receive a free menu item of their choice.

"It's kind of how we do advertising," Jarrod Laudemann, Chipotle manager, said. "It's just kind of how we get people to come in and try it."

This Halloween, the response was the largest turnout the restaurant has had on this occasion since it opened four years ago, Laudemann said.

"Sure, you may look like a fool for like 30 minutes, but there are like 200 people here doing the same thing," Luke Healy, junior in English, said.

Costumes varied dramatically between the diners. Some arrived in elaborate, detailed costumes, while others simply boasted a single piece of tinfoil.

"Some people go all out, others don't do much," Laudemann said.

For many students, coming to Chipotle on Halloween has become a Halloween must-do, or even a yearly tradition.

"This year's my first time," Laura Buessing, senior in kinesiology, said.

"I had to do it once before I graduate."

In addition to providing a fun Halloween activity to persons in the community, it is also a strategy Chipotle relies on to promote their business.

"Obviously it's working," Laudemann said.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT, close to campus, available now. All utilities paid. Washer/ dryer. $375 (785)317-7713.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490, two-bedrooms $750, three-bedrooms $700-$825. (785)537-7701.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

120 For Rent- Houses

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

145 Roommate Wanted

Roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

LOOKING FOR female to take over one-third of lease at Founder's Hill. Own bathroom and washer/ dryer in apartment. Alex Dunn at (785)317-4095 or adunn@ksdot.org.

ROOMMATES: MALE or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

150 Sublease

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $395/ month. Washer/ dryer. Sublease December. (785)317-1162 or (785)317-2319.

ONE-BEDROOM. $395, cable/ water paid. Laundry/ pool/ hot tub on site. Small pets. Quiet. Available now. (785)375-3015.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM. Close to campus. For more information, call (620)276-4940.

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms, University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

SUBLEASER NEEDED: Two-bedroom apartment. Block from campus and Aggieville. All utilities paid except electricity. $550/ month. Call (316)210-1164 or (316)993-0214.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for two-bedroom. Aggieville apartment for spring semester. Call Brad at (913)645-6301.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

310 Help Wanted

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CARPENTERS AND LABORERS: Experienced employees needed for local area work. Apply at 1305 Roever Road, Manhattan, or (785)539-5202. Equal Opportunity Employer.

Daytime Cook Needed
•Hard-working
•Self-motivated
•Team player
•$6/hr
Pete's Blue Ribbon Bar-B-Que
539-7426

Full/ Part-time Technical Writer Positions open to all students. Get paid by the project- pay of $15+ per hour possible. Flexible hours are ideal for self-motivated, unsupervised worker. Must be U.S. Citizen, with minimum 1210 SAT score or 27 ACT score. Requires computer/ Internet access and strong writing skills- frequent grammar, spelling mistakes are unacceptable. Email techwriting-job@yahoo.com with a quick summary of your work experience, major and SAT/ACT score.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

310 Help Wanted

NEEDED COLLEGE student to help with work in home for local family. References helpful. Please call (785)556-2467, ask for Shannon.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PART-TIME CHILDCARE provider needed in my home. Experience and references a must. If interested please call (785)776-9874.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State. Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

415 Furniture to Buy/Sell

COUCH FOR sale. Nearly new. Call (785)532-5764 or email fburrack@ksu.edu.

500 transportation

530 Motorcycles

2003 636 Kawasaki Ninja with extras. 2700 miles. Call for price. (620)629-7386.

2003 MOPED- Kenetic, 49cc. $400 or best offer. (785)317-4279.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

"#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.-

SMALL ONE-BEDROOM partially furnished. Quiet, central location. Most utilities paid. Six month lease. No smoking. May accept cat. (785)537-8389.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300, (913)207-4222.

120 For Rent- Houses

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM, Washer/ dryer, fenced. 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $900/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

145 Roommate Wanted

1225 RATONE roommates needed. One and one-half bathroom. Available immediately. Ask Jin (785)341-7089.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

CHRISTIAN FEMALE housemate wanted for five-bedroom house. Residential neighborhood. Washer/ dryer, two-car garage. $300/ month plus utilities. (913)636-9152.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: No smoking. Two-bedroom apartment. Close to campus. Off-street parking. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. (620)481-9837.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted. Four-bedroom duplex. $325/ month plus utilities. Close to campus and Aggieville. Available January. (316)655-5236.

ONE-BEDROOM AVAILABLE in three bedroom house. Washer/ dryer, walking distance to college. Male or female. Brick home. Rent negotiable. (785)443-2229.

ROOMMATE NEEDED. Three-bedroom house. Backyard with deck and fence. Easy to get along with roommates. Simple quick drive to campus. (785)845-2212.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed, Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Graphic Design Internship

Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

Advertising Design

Practicum / Newspaper — MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

SHUTTLE | Driver enjoys cheering up passengers

Continued from Page 1

dealing with pedestrians, Bennett said.

"The students seem to think they can cross the street anywhere," Bennett said. "There are crosswalks for a reason and there are sidewalks for a reason."

Along with pedestrians, Stuchlik said passengers who complain about the bumpy ride get on his nerves.

"That's the one thing that gets to me, when people complain that it's really bumpy," he said. "Like I could do something about the road."

Shuttling people around campus may sound boring, but Stuchlik said it's always interesting.

"There's nothing hard about it at all, it's just like driving anything else," he said. "Fridays are a little long, but working anywhere on Friday afternoons get a little long."

For Stuchlik, one of the most rewarding experiences of the day is cheering up passengers on his route, he said.

"It's just like any other situation, if I see somebody and they look like they are having a bad day, I just try to talk to them, say, 'Hey, how are you doing?' and 99 percent of the time, they start up a conversation."

Bennett said his job is to make the trip as enjoyable as he can for everyone.

"The satisfaction of seeing someone get on the shuttle who is having a bad day, and joking with them and seeing a smile on their face, it's priceless," he said.

AFTERDARK | 1,000 to 3,000 expected to attend

Continued from Page 1

part. I'm not much of a rap person, but Lecrae's good."

Kern said the students organizing the event expect between 1,000 and 3,000 people to attend. Average attendance at AFTERdark events is 1,000, Wang said.

"The more people in attendance, the better the event," Wang said.

Wang said the students have spent evenings chalking reminders around campus and have been publicizing the event though word of mouth. The students have also been fundraising by talking to local businesses and churches, family and friends.

EVOLUTION | Exhibit developed by 6 museums

Continued from Page 1

partnership between four coevolved organisms that aid the farm ants to grow their crops.

- How sexual selection has shaped the evolution of flies in Hawaii.
- A study of finches in the Galapagos Islands that shows how changes in the size and shape of the birds' beaks result directly from changes in the food supply.
- A comparison of chimp and human DNA, indicating genetic similarities and differences.
- Fossil evidence discovered in a desert in Pakistan linking whales to their four-legged ancestors.

The exhibition is funded by a $2.8 million grant from the National Science Foundation. The Explore Evolution exhibit has been developed by six natural history and science partner museums at the universities of Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas.

The University of Kansas exhibit is the second of the six university exhibits to open this year.

Despite the complaints the museum has already received, Krishtalka said throughout the year, the museum hopes to maintain a positive, unbiased attitude toward teaching people about the theory of evolution.

"Biological evolution unifies our understanding of life on Earth, its dramatic history over more than three billion years, its fantastic diversity across continents and oceans and its unity from DNA to the ecological systems that sustain the life of our planet," Krishtalka said. "The University of Kansas Natural History Museum is extremely pleased to be one of six universities that is showcasing Explore Evolution."

Bush choice of Alito could mean historic shift of Supreme Court

By David Espo
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, D.C. – President Bush nominated Appeals Court Judge Samuel Alito to the Supreme Court on Monday, hoping to usher in a historic new era of judicial conservatism while ending a Republican divide that doomed an earlier pick.

Alito

Members of the Senate's Democratic minority signaled a potentially bruising confirmation battle ahead, with abortion a key issue.

Sen. Harry Reid of Nevada, the party's leader, asked whether Alito was "too radical for the American people" and wondered aloud "why those who want to pack the court with judicial activists are so much more enthusiastic about him" than Harriet Miers.

Bush, naming a replacement for Justice Sandra Day O'Connor four days after Miers withdrew her name, said Alito "has a deep understanding of the proper role of judges in our society."

"He understands that judges are to interpret the laws, not to impose their preferences or priorities on the people," the president said. Within hours, Alito collected support from many of the critics who opposed Miers.

Alito's politically conservative views were not in dispute.

"Of course he's against abortion," his 90-year-old mother, Rose, told reporters at her home in Hamilton, N.J.

Despite the unguarded comments of a proud mother, Sen. Arlen Specter, who will chair Judiciary Committee hearings, told reporters in the Capitol, "There is a lot more to do with a woman's right to choose than how you feel about it personally."

The Pennsylvania Republican cited adherence to legal precedent in rulings over 30 years upholding abortion rights.

Later, after a private meeting, Specter said, "I have no reason to catalogue him as an ideologue."

Alito pledged at the White House to uphold the duty of a judge to "interpret the Constitution and the laws faithfully and fairly, to protect the constitutional rights of all Americans, and to do these things with care and with restraint."

Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist welcomed Alito to the Capitol less than two hours after Bush's announcement, escorting the judge and his wife and two children into the Rotunda to stand before the casket of civil rights pioneer Rosa Parks.

The Tennessee Republican said the Senate would vote by year's end if possible, in accord with Bush's wishes.

Several Senate aides said it could be several weeks into 2006 before the full Senate votes on the 55-year-old son of an Italian immigrant.

Even before Alito arrived at the Capitol, both parties were researching his record.

Democrats pointed to two cases in which he had issued rulings from the bench that were rejected by the Supreme Court.

More than a decade ago, he upheld a requirement for spousal notification in an abortion case. Earlier this year, with O'Connor casting the deciding vote, the high court threw out a death sentence that Alito had upheld in the case of a man who argued that his lawyer had been ineffective.

Democrats also expressed dismay over rulings on gun control, immigration and the Family and Medical Leave Act over a 15-year career on the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

"I'm very disturbed by this, and the filibuster's on the table," Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., said.

Republicans said any attempt to deny Alito a yes-or-no vote would return the Senate to the brink of a showdown that was avoided last spring only when seven lawmakers from each party brokered a compromise.

This time, they said they would crush Democratic opposition.

GOP lawmakers sounded relieved to be rid of the Miers appointment, which collapsed last week after it became clear she faced an uphill climb in winning confirmation.

"Let's give Judge Alito a fair up-or-down vote, not left or right," Sen. John Thune, R-S.D., said.

Advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN 118 KEDZIE • 532-6560

Check out shout outs in the Classifieds on November 9th!

UPC COMING EVENTS
Union Program Council

UPC Upcoming Events

Tuesday, November 1
K-State Idol: 7 pm, Forum Hall, free admission
Free popcorn, Pepsi products, and candy!

Friday, November 4
After Hours: Mission Improvable, 10:30 pm, Union Courtyard
Film: "War of the Worlds," 8 pm, Forum Hall, $1

Saturday November, 5
Film: "War of the Worlds, 7 & 9:30 pm, Forum Hall, $2

Sunday, November 6
Film: "War of the Worlds," 8 pm, Forum Hall, $2

Kemper Art Gallery: Student photography competition exhibit, Oct 31-Nov 18

Self Defense Class: Saturday, November 12, 2:30-4:30 pm. For women only. For more information, check out www.ksu.edu/upc.

Attention film makers: Check out www.ksu.edu/upc for information on the Little Apple Film Festival.

www.kdu.edu/upc
UPC hotline: 532-6572
Office phone: 532-6571

GRADUATION FAIR
November 1 & 2
Tuesday & Wednesday • 11a-6p

Featured vendors include:
C-B Graduation Announcements
Artcarved Class Rings
University Frames
Willsie Cap and Gown
for all your Graduation regalia!

VARSITY'S

K-STATE STUDENT UNION BOOKSTORE

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, November 2, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 53

INSIDE
Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601
Edge, Page /

Webmail file system crashes

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An unexpected crash caused Webmail to go down Tuesday afternoon, preventing students and professors from checking or sending e-mail.

Harvard Townsend, director of computing and networking services, said the file system where all of the e-mail messages are stored crashed.

He said a patch was installed on the software that runs the file system to fix the problem.

Right after the system failed, Townsend said there were people working on the problem.

"We called the IT Help Desk to warn them they would be getting a lot of calls," Townsend said.

Townsend said an event graphic was also put on the K-State home page, www.ksu.edu, to notify people Webmail was down.

"We deeply regret the problems this has caused people," Townsend said. "We know it's been a major headache."

Influenza shots available for at-risk students

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students at high risk of contracting influenza can get flu shots Thursday at Lafene Health Center.

"Students with long-term health problems have priority," said Carol Kennedy, director of health promotion at Lafene. "Students who do not fall within a high-risk category will be offered the intranasal vaccine."

High-risk students include those with asthma, diabetes and lung, kidney or heart disease, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The CDC also recommends students who work in essential community services or who live in residence halls consider being vaccinated.

Higher-risk students will receive an actual flu shot, which consists of killed viruses. According to the CDC, it is more effective and safer than the intranasal vaccination, which contains a living, but weakened, flu virus.

"The injection is a little more effective," Dr. Robert Tackett, medical director of Lafene, said. "Those at higher risk, we definitely want to make sure they are protected."

Due to a lack of vaccine, the injectable vaccine will only be available to high-risk students, but other students may receive an intranasal vaccination. Tackett said most clinics have a shortage of vaccine.

"It's a limited supply right now," Tackett said. "But it seems like everyone is getting incremental shipments. There has been a tiered approach for several years due to a lack of vaccine."

Tackett estimated that Lafene's current supply of vaccine will last roughly one week. Despite the limited supply, Kennedy said Lafene is expecting more.

See SHOTS Page 10

Flu vaccinations
Who: Students who are at high risk
When: 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-4:30 p.m. Thursday
Where: Lafene Health Center
How much: flu shot $13, intranasal vaccine $22 (Available to all students)
How long: Students should plan on staying for one hour.

Who is at risk?
Students with:
- Asthma
- Lung disease
- Kidney disease
- Heart disease
- Anemia
- Diabetes and other metabolic diseases
- Pregnant women

Source: The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

United Way donations increase

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State United Way campaign donations reached more than $80,000 as of Oct. 27, said Patsy Havenstein, K-State United Way campaign chair.

The total represents an 11 percent increase from the same period last year, according to a press release from the United Way of Riley County.

The campaign, which aids 14 local human-care agencies like the American Red Cross and The Salvation Army, has contributed more than $80,000 to the United Way of America.

Ten committee leaders in each department and 140 K-State faculty and staff have volunteered their time in the on-campus campaign, and students have volunteered to work at the 14 agencies.

"The purpose is to raise funds to make the community a better place for all of us to live."

Patsy Havenstein
K-STATE UNITED WAY CAMPAIGN CHAIR

"The purpose is to raise funds to make the community a better place for all of us to live," Havenstein said. "We're trying to keep the level of awareness raised."

The K-State campaign is part of the United Way of Riley County 2005 Campaign, the goal of which is to raise $675,000. The amount is based on agencies' basic needs.

Donation received through the K-State campaign will go toward the Riley County campaign goal. Mikaela Maschmeier, development manager for United Way, said they could not have reached the Riley County campaign goal without help from the K-State campaign.

"The campaign has been fantastic," she said. "We are amazed at how much volunteers contribute."

Even though students could not donate money, they volunteered for United Way by working as mentors for Big Brothers Big Sisters.

"K-State students in general are very active in the community," Havenstein said. "They are the first to volunteer and step up."

The K-State campaign has its own goal, but it's not an amount of money.

"The K-State goal is to just raise awareness on campus, educate the staff and resolve the needs of the

See UNITED WAY Page 10

Amateur night

Balancing on crutches, John Bostwick, junior in finance, and other members of EWB perform at K-State Idol Tuesday evening in Forum Hall. EWB placed fourth in the competition out of 13 performers.

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Duo wins 3rd annual K-State Idol with rendition of 'Killing me softly'

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

As the last notes of the song fade away, the red-faced amateur performer nervously turns around to face the criticism, or praise, from the panel of judges.

While this may sound like a scene from a live broadcast of American Idol, this scene took place in the Forum Hall at the K-State Student Union Tuesday.

The third annual K-State Idol competition consisted of 14 acts competing for prizes. Once the students performed, they remained on stage to face the panel of three judges: Shane Shanks, assistant director of K-State's University Publications; Jack Taylor, assistant director of admissions; and Bradley Jepsen, afternoon DJ for KJCK-FM 97.5.

Tiffany Henry, freshman in open-option, and Saiday Mulbah, freshman in business administration pre-professional, received first prize for their hip-hop rendition of "Killing Me Softly."

Henry provided vocals to the piece, accompanied by Mulbah, who provided beat-box for an original sound.

"I was surprised," Henry said. "It was original, and my faithful beat boxer helped a lot."

This year's K-State Idol was the first to have a theme, which was Hollywood. Forum Hall was renamed Grauman's Chinese Theatre for the evening.

The Union Program Council helped to sponsor this event, and took their involvement one step further by providing additional entertainment.

See IDOL Page 10

The winners
First place: Tiffany Henry and Saiday Mulbah
$20 gift certificates to the Manhattan Town Center and Old Chicago, and a $10 gift certificate to Hasting's Books, Music and Video
Second place: Kristen Seiwert
$15 gift certificates to the Manhattan Town Center and Old Chicago, $10 gift certificate to Hasting's
Third place: Frank Cole
$10 to the Manhattan Town Center and Old Chicago
Fourth place: the band EWB, consisting of John Bostwick, Mike Miller, Nolan Miller, Austin Delimont and Matt Woerman
$20 gift certificate to Hasting's
Fifth place: Ashley Sanders
$10 gift certificate to Hasting's

ABOVE: Tiffany Henry, freshman in architecture, laughs at comments made by judge Jack Taylor, assistant director of admissions, about Henry's performance with Saiday Mulbah, freshman in open-option. Henry sang "Killing me Softly" by the Fugees while Mulbah added a beat box twist to the performance to win them first place in the competition Tuesday evening.

LEFT: Ashley Sanders, senior in secondary education, performs "Redeemer" by Nicole C. Mullen during the K-State Idol competition Tuesday evening.

Today
High 77
Low 52

Thursday
High 77
Low 49

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Closed session
Democrats forced the Republican-controlled Senate into an unusual closed session Tuesday, questioning intelligence that President Bush used in the run-up to the war in Iraq and accusing Republicans of ignoring the issue.

Ary guilty
The former head of the Kansas Cosmosphere and Space Center, Max Ary, was found guilty Tuesday of stealing and selling museum and NASA items. He was found guilty of 12 counts, including two counts theft of government property, two counts of wire fraud.

Taxpayers Bill of Rights
Colorado residents voted Tuesday on whether to ease the restrictions of the state's Taxpayers Bill of Rights, an amendment to their constitution restricting government spending. A debate over whether Kansas should adopt the amendment is expected to be a topic when the Legislature convenes Jan. 9.

DON'T FORGET

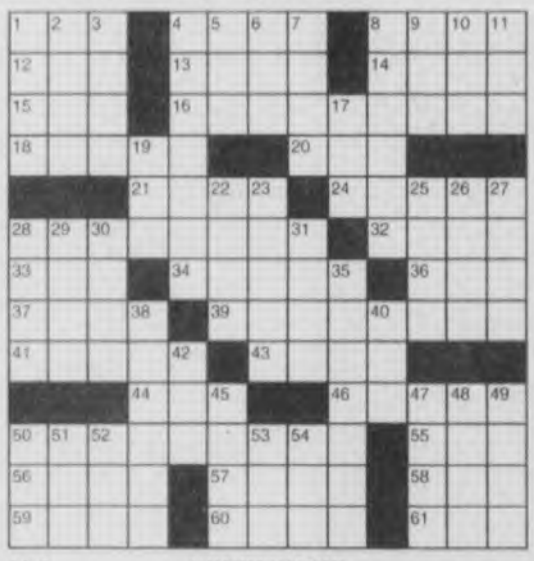
Students with 60 hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

The Digital Teaching Showcase will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today at the Hale Library Hemisphere room.

AFTERdark is at 7 p.m. Thursday at Memorial Stadium.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Clerical error?
4 Witticism
8 Wrestling style
12 Bake-sale org.
13 Skewed, to Scots
14 Roundup device
15 Performance
16 Lakefront border
18 Trembled
20 Stocking part
21 Arp's genre
24 Screams
28 Banner
32 Recess
33 Every last iota
34 Faxes
36 Coquettish
37 Ski lift
39 In an established group
41 Moved slowly
43 Old portico
44 Mme., across the Pyrenees
46 Golf's — Cup
50 Political policy
55 Cologne-label word
56 Malaria symptom
57 Go sightseeing
58 Fool
59 Start a garden
60 On the — (disagreeing)
61 Caustic solution

DOWN
1 Resorts
2 Longing
3 Brussels-based org.
4 Menial subordinates
5 Diva's problem
6 Vast expanse
7 Criterion
8 Ill will
9 Spoon-bender Geller
10 Calendar abbr.
11 Rhyming tribute
17 Stocking stuffer
19 Eccentric
22 Per — (daily)
23 Paquin and Wintour
25 Sites
26 Symbol of craziness
27 Terrier type
28 Loathe
29 Exile isle
30 "Sad to tell, ..."
31 Tend texts
35 Sound sleepers?
38 Ready to face the day
40 Deposit
42 Parched
45 Saxophone range
47 Transaction
48 Like falling off a log
49 Stratagem
50 — de deux
51 Candle count
52 Sara of "Less Than Perfect"
53 Debtor's letters
54 Crackpot

Solution time: 21 mins.

M	O	L	E		T	A	L	C		A	L	L
I	D	E	M		A	B	E	L		D	O	E
A	D	V	E	R	T	I	S	E		V	A	N
			R	E	S	T		R	O	A	D	S
S	T	A	G	S			F	I	N	N
A	I	D	E		N	A	R	C	O	T	I	C
R	E	V		C	O	R	E	S		A	M	I
A	D	E	Q	U	A	C	Y		E	G	A	D
		R	U	S	H			S	C	E	N	E
V	I	S	I	T		O	R	A	L
I	D	A		A	D	V	O	C	A	T	E	D
N	O	R		R	U	E	D		I	O	T	A
E	L	Y		D	O	N	E		R	Y	A	N

Yesterday's answer 11-2

11-2 CRYPTOQUIP

S W Y W H U S V H G Y Q Y B R C P Z W C P H Y L G C W S R E U S D H B , E C X U Q Z C X G Y D H Y L Y R C ' V S V H R Y U H B ?

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: DOWN AT THE LOCAL LUMBERYARD, THEY BEGAN USING THEIR NEW MOTTO "COME SEE, COME SAW!"

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: W equals F

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from the nation's universities

LSU Recreation adopts one-eyed mascot

BATON ROUGE, La. – A one-eyed dog found by rescue workers in New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina became University Recreation's unofficial mascot.

University Recreation student workers said Captain Jack, the 4-year-old Labrador retriever-rottweiler mix, attends all intramural games and serves as a reminder of the veterinarians and other rescue workers who stayed at the Student Recreational Sports Complex during the days following the disaster.

"We had all those people here, all helping out," said Candice Tucker, mass communication senior and University Recreation student worker. "To have the vets here was great. We just decided to make a long-term commitment (to adopt Jack)."

Tamara Jarrett, University Recreation director, said Jack, who came to the animal shelter at the Lamar-Dixon Expo Center in Gonzales without any records, may always have been homeless.

"(Jack) came in with a huge group of animals and was roaming free when he was found," said Dr. Sal Jepson, a veterinarian from Portland, Ore., who came to Louisiana on Sept. 1 and slept at the complex.

Jack appears to be missing an eye, but Jepson said it is probably a condition called microphthalmia, where an animal is born with an undeveloped eye. Jepson said Jack's eye may be under a pink layer of tissue, and it is probably a birth defect rather than an injury he incurred during the hurricane.

Jarrett said she contacted a company that produces eye patches, and the owner designed purple-and-gold and tiger-print eye patches for the dog.

Jepson said Jarrett is one of many volunteers who offered to foster rescued animals.

Jarrett said the University Recreation staff was surprised when she brought the "skinny, dirty" dog back to the complex, but Jack was a "special case."

"It was rewarding at such a desperate time to see the strength and positive relationship among (Federal Emergency Management Agency) workers, staff and student workers," Jarrett said. "Mike the Tiger is a symbol of LSU pride and strength, and Captain Jack is a symbol of compassion and pride. We were fortunate to be in a position to help (rescue workers). Captain Jack is a lasting reminder of how good it feels to help people."

Illustrations by Bennie Green | COLLEGIAN

MARYLAND STUDENTS PROTEST INTELLIGENT DESIGN

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – When a mysterious banner about a Flying Spaghetti Monster appeared draped on top of the University of Maryland's Cole Field House last week, the message hit home for Maggie Bennett, a junior engineering major.

Fed up at one point with members of her family who believe in intelligent design, Bennett became one of an increasing population of people who support a "religion" that worships a noodly-appendaged invisible god called Flying Spaghetti Monster.

"It's like believing in gravity," Bennett said of evolution. "You don't believe in it, it's science."

The religion is fake, but its message is real. It was created by Bobby Henderson, of Oregon, who decided something needed to be done in protest when the Kansas School Board approved a draft bill in August that would allow intelligent design to be taught in biology classes and given the same attention as evolution.

If schools were going to be required to teach intelligent design, Henderson argued, they should also be required to teach his religion, Flying Spaghetti Monsterism.

Flying Spaghetti Monsterism has spread rapidly online and by word of mouth. Its core beliefs are that the Spaghetti Monster – who is invisible – can use his powers to both fabricate evidence that evolution existed and to alter any information that scientists obtain about the age of Earth, leaving humans with a false belief about the world.

Forsaking the commandment forbidding idolatry, a lump of noodles and meatballs is being worshipped and praised across the Web – "His Noodliness" even has his own Facebook.com account bearing a single message on the wall: "I have been touched by his noodly appendage. Ramen."

Despite the relative obscurity of the Facebook group – boasting only 20 members from the university – the presence of Flying Spaghetti Monsterism is slowly making itself known on the Web.

"This looks like it's worth quitting my 'I don't join groups' crusade" said sophomore computer science major Jeff Meister, one of the members, in a message board posting.

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Monday, Oct. 31

- Gerald Hendrick, 2632 Woodside Lane, was arrested at 10:21 a.m. for contempt of court. Bond was set at $500.
- Kenneth Sanders, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 11:35 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $750.
- Curtis Bolinger, Junction City, was arrested at 11:40 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $500.
- Mouhamadou Wilane, Leonardville, Kan., was arrested at 12:23 p.m. for three counts of forgery. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Mouhamadou Wilane, Leonardville, Kan., was arrested at 2:06 p.m. for one count of theft and one count of forgery. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Thomas Nicholas, 1119 Yuma St., was arrested at 3:05 p.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $1,500.

Tuesday, Nov. 1

- Daniela Jones, 2412 Buttonwood Drive, was arrested at 1:25 a.m. for theft and aggravated burglary. Bond was not set.
- Michelle Gonzales, 300 N. Fifth St., was arrested at 2:25 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Lindsey Thayer, 1118 Woodland St., was arrested at 3:04 a.m. for purchase and consumption of alcohol, possession of a simulated controlled substance and possession of opiates or narcotics. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Michelle Gonzales, 300 N. Fifth St., was arrested at 3:10 a.m. for battery against an officer. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Elizabeth Acker, Leonardville, Kan., was arrested at 4:02 a.m. for possession of a simulated controlled substance, unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia, driving with a suspended license and DUI. Bond was set at $2,500.
- Sean Green, 820 Laramie St., Apt. A, was arrested at 4:48 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

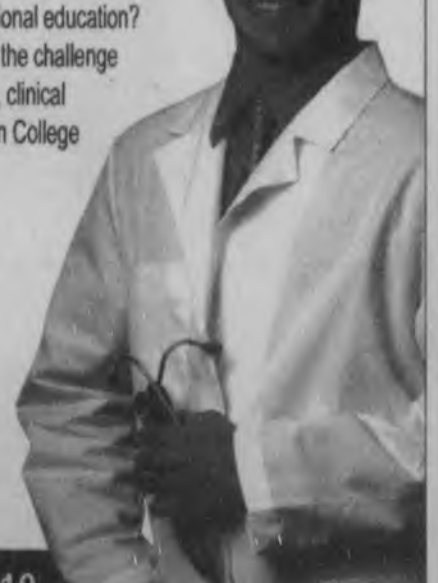
- Applications for Catalyst: A Self-Development Experience are due at 4 p.m. Nov. 3 in Waters 119.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005



Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips with student ID and coupon
KNAILS 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444

TAKE A STUDY BREAK
Read the Collegian

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Optometrists
Dr. Mark Bettencourt & Dr. Russell Hart
539-2020
$20 off Next Contact Lens Exam
930 Hayes Drive Suite D
Across from Wal-Mart Tire Center

Logan College of Chiropractic...
The Right Choice For Your Future
Is your dream to become a doctor, to study in beautiful surroundings, with a world-renowned faculty and state of the art facilities – what more could you want in a professional education? Logan College students receive all this and more! If you are ready to accept the challenge of graduate professional study in science, physiotherapy, nutrition, radiology, clinical sciences, chiropractic techniques and extensive clinical rotations, then Logan College is the place for you.
Logan College of Chiropractic gives you the skills to help patients get well through non-invasive healthcare while preparing you to earn a substantial income commensurate with your position as a Doctor of Chiropractic. Most DC's work in a private practice setting, providing time for family and other important quality of life priorities.
Contact Logan College at 1-800-533-9210 or at loganadm@logan.edu to receive an information packet describing the world's fastest growing healthcare profession. You can also visit our website at www.logan.edu.

Bryse Arndt Second-Year Student
LOGAN College of Chiropractic
1-800-533-9210
www.logan.edu
loganadm@logan.edu
1851 Schoettler Rd Chesterfield (St Louis area) MO 63017

are coming
November 9
to the Classifieds section
of the Collegian.
Check out our table in the Union
for one FREE SHOUT OUT coupon!
$2 Guarantees YOU a voice in the Collegian!

Lack of funding may affect Student Readership program

By Lola Shrimplin
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Next semester, the Student Governing Association will meet to decide whether to allocate more money toward the Student Readership Program, which has been on campus for three years, or cut a paper from the program.

If they decide to cut a newspaper, they will consider student input on which paper should be cut, Student Body President Michael Burns said.

"The bottom line is that students pay for it and students come first," Burns said.

Burns said buildings are running out of the papers and students are unable to receive newspapers.

K-State is one of about 330 universities that participate in the Student Readership Program, which offers newspapers to students.

Of the $900,000 the student-centered enhancements program receives per year, $125,000 goes to the Student Readership Program.

Between 23 and 40 cents is spent each day for each paper, Burns said.

Twenty-two buildings on campus are a part of the Student Readership program. The program was introduced at K-State by former Student Body President John O'Hara, Burns said.

Currently, students receive the Manhattan Mercury, the Kansas City Star, the New York Times, The Topeka Capital-Journal and USA Today.

"It's good that we get the papers in people's hands," Ned Seaton, general manager of the Manhattan Mercury, said.

Seaton said the Mercury contacted K-State prior to the start of the readership program, saying there was a lack of interest until the University of Kansas began their program.

"The next week we got a call saying, 'we've got to have this,'" he said.

While the program has an effect on the general circulation of the newspapers, Doug Maxwell, circulation director of the Topeka Capital-Journal, said it is worth it.

Joel Turner, senior in hotel and restaurant management, said he likes the programs and he will likely subscribe to his favorite, USA Today, after graduation.

As for now, he's enjoying his free newspaper.

"Students love free stuff," Turner said.

Manhattan's economy, jobs on the rise

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The economy went up, jobs skyrocketed and the City of Manhattan is expecting more in terms of the local economics.

Manhattan city officials gave an annual report to the City Commission Tuesday night, revealing the city has had continuous job improvement since last year with the Manhattan Economic Development Opportunity Fund.

The city uses this fund to diversify the property tax base in Manhattan, to decrease reliance on government jobs, to depend less on jobs outside of Manhattan and to generate more jobs and competitive wages in the area, said Deputy City Manager Diane Stoddard.

Twenty-one businesses are supported through the Manhattan Economic Development Opportunity Fund.

In the report, Manhattan City Manger Ron Fehr stated six local businesses have added nearly 900 jobs to the community since December 2004.

By June 2005, the businesses added nearly 70 more jobs, with an annual payroll in excess of $27 million, which the city economic fund helps support, Fehr said.

Funding the companies not only provides employment to Manhattan residents, Fehr said, but it also gives back the community.

"Funding companies generated $651,693 in local city, county and school district property tax in 2004," Fehr said. "For every $1 the city spends on economic development, approximately $6.35 in private sector and other direct investment has been made."

Manhattan resident Sarah Fisher said while the city foresees economic success, there should be other considerations to give the local economy a boost.

"I am here to suggest an improvement to use taxpayer redevelopment funds," she said.

Though Fisher gave no specific examples on what she wanted the city to do, she did suggest that the city look at getting an unbiased, outside source to study the economic development in the future.

Despite Fisher's objection, Fehr said the city has done a great job with improvements over the year.

"I believe that these highlights and the contents of the report as a whole, demonstrate compliance by the recipient companies as well as the overall success that the city's economic development efforts have contributed to the local economy," Fehr said.

Scam targets local restaurants

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Five local businesses near Manhattan Town Center were targeted by a scam-artist Monday evening.

Applebee's Grill and Bar, Carlos O'Kelly's Mexican Cafe, Chili's Grill and Bar, Old Chicago and Whiskey Creek Wood Fire Grill received a call from a man requesting reimbursement for an accident he claimed happened at each of the restaurants.

The man called each restaurant individually, claiming a waitress at the establishment had spilled a drink on a suede coat last week. He also claimed the manager at the time said he should take the jacket to the dry cleaner, and the restaurant would pick up the bill.

"He even brought in a receipt, this time from Scott's Cleaners," Jeremy Wells, general manager of Whiskey Creek, said. "He got a receipt book somehow, and it said that he had a suede jacket cleaned, same as last time."

This is not the first time the man has attempted this particular scam in Manhattan. Tim Watts, front house manager for Chili's, said other managers had mentioned the same scam to him.

"The number he gave me was a fax number," Watts said. "I was talking to another manager who works in Chili's in Topeka, and he said the same thing happened to him six months ago."

Wells said this is the third time in the past year-and-a-half this man has scammed Whiskey Creek.

"This guy has been around for awhile, and he probably does it on a four- to six-month basis," he said. "He's learned my name as the general manager. The last time, it didn't work for him, but this time there was a different assistant, and it worked."

Applebee's lost $35 to the man, and both Carlos O'Kelly's and Whiskey Creek lost $37 according to a Riley County Police Department report.

Lt. Mike Quintanar with the RCPD, said scams like this are rare in Manhattan.

"Scams happen all the time. They happen mostly to people who are older," Quintanar said. "Businesses, you don't hear a lot about it."

Chili's was able to prevent a loss because they were tipped off about the scam by Michael Gassman, manager of Old Chicago.

"He called me right before the individual called, and said that this was kind of fishy," Watts said.

Since he was tipped off, Watts tried to set the scam artist up, saying he was busy and that he should come back at nine that evening. After he hung up, he called the police, but the man never showed up.

"I wish the guy would have shown up, because I really wanted to see him go to jail," Watts said.

Jim Wright, general manager of Carlos O'Kelly's, said normally the scammer would have been caught, but he happened to come at just the right time.

"It just so happens that this actually happened about three days before to a customer, but it wasn't a jacket, it was a shirt," Wright said. "Usually if we spill something on someone, we give them money right then and there, but the lady who we spilled it on said that she would wash it, and if it didn't come out she would contact us."

However, the suspect was caught on the restaurants security cameras, and the RCPD are still investigating the case.

Overall, Watts said the man was an inconvenience more than anything else.

"We really try to take care of our guests, and go that extra mile, and if we mess up I want to take care of them," Watt's said. "It's annoying that some people want to take advantage of us."

The RCPD said they are still investigating the case.

USD 383
Computer Sale

Monitors - $25.00
most will be a 15 inch CRT
Computers - $25.00
most will be a Pentium 3, 650 MHZ PC - some will be a Pentium 2, 400 MHZ PC

Friday, November 4 -- 11am to 6pm
Saturday, November 5 -- 9am to 1pm
Bluemont School
714 Bluemont Ave. - rear parking lot

* Arrive early for best selection
* All units sold "as is"
* Cash or checks accepted
* No refunds or exchanges - all sales final
* Computers include keyboard, mouse, speakers while supplies last
* Computers do not have an operating system and/or software
* USD 383 will not provide any technical support for these computers

USD 383 Where all can learn

Advertise
Kansas State Collegian Advertising
118 Kedzie • 532-6560

2005
Principal/Counselor/Student Conference
Kansas State University
Wednesday, Nov. 9, 2005
LIST OF HIGH SCHOOL LOCATIONS
(All table and room assignments are in the Union Ballroom.)

Abilene HS - Ballroom Table #1
Andover HS - Ballroom Table #60
Axtell HS - Ballroom Table #2
B & B - Ballroom Table #3
Bennington HS - Ballroom Table #4
Bern HS - Ballroom Table #2
Bluestem HS - Ballroom Table #5
Buhler HS - Ballroom Table #6
Chapparral HS - Ballroom Table #7
Chase HS - Ballroom Table #8
Cheney HS - Ballroom Table #61
Cimarron HS - Ballroom Table #9
Circle HS - Ballroom Table #10
Clay Center HS - Ballroom Table #11
Clifton HS-Ballroom Table #64
Concordia HS - Ballroom Table #12
Council Grove HS - Ballroom Table #13
Douglass HS - Ballroom Table #14
Ellis HS - Ballroom Table #15
Ellsworth HS - Ballroom Table #16
Eureka HS - Ballroom Table #17
Flint Hill Christian - Ballroom Table #18
Fredonia HS - Ballroom Table #19
Hartford HS - Ballroom Table #20
Haven HS - Ballroom Table #21
Herington HS - Ballroom Table #22
Hiawatha HS - Ballroom Table #23
Hoisington HS - Ballroom Table #24
Holton HS - Ballroom Table #25
Hutchinson HS - Ballroom Table #26
Inman HS - Ballroom Table #27
Jackson Heights HS - Ballroom Table #28
Jefferson Co. North HS - Ballroom Table #29
Junction City HS - Union Cottonwood Room
Lakeside HS - Ballroom Table #30
Little River HS - Ballroom Table #31
Lyndon HS - Ballroom Table #32
Maize HS - Ballroom Table #33
Manhattan HS - Union State Rooms
Marion - Ballroom Table #63
Medicine Lodge HS - Ballroom Table #34
Mill Valley HS - Ballroom Table #35
Minneapolis HS - Ballroom Table #36
Northern Valley HS - Ballroom Table #37
Olathe East HS - Union 208
Olathe North HS - Union 209
Olathe South HS - Union 212
Olathe Northwest HS - Union 213
Osawatomie HS - Ballroom Table #38
Piper HS - Ballroom Table #39
Pleasant Ridge HS - Ballroom Table #40
Quinter HS - Ballroom Table #58
Riley County HS - Ballroom Table #41
Rose Hill HS - Ballroom Table #42
Rossville HS- Ballroom Table #43
Royal Valley HS - Ballroom Table #44
Sacred Heart HS - Ballroom Table #45
Salina South HS - Union 207
Scott Community HS - Ballroom Table #59
Seaman HS - Ballroom Table #62
Shawnee Mission North HS - Union 206
Smith Center HS - Ballroom Table #46
Southeast of Saline - Ballroom Table #47
Spearville HS - Ballroom Table #48
St. Mary's HS - Ballroom Table #43
St. John's (Beloit) - Ballroom Table #30
St. John's (St. John) - Ballroom Table #57
Sterling HS- Ballroom Table #65
Stockton HS - Ballroom Table #49
Sublette HS - Ballroom Table #50
Sumner Academy - Ballroom Table #51
Thomas More Prep-Marion - Ballroom Table #52
Tonganoxie HS - Ballroom Table #53
Ulysses HS - Ballroom Table #54
Valley Falls HS - Ballroom Table #55
Wakefield HS - Ballroom Table #56
Waverly HS - Union 205
Wellsville HS - Union 204
West Smith County HS - Union 203
Wichita East HS - Union 202

24 Great Reasons to order Gumby's...
BIG DAWG
Steak, Meatballs, Onions, Peppers, Mushrooms, Olives, Pizza Sauce, Cheese
BIG KAHUNA
Ham, Pineapple, Cheese, BBQ Sauce
EASY RIDER
Steak, Bacon, Ham, Jalapeño, Tomato, Ranch Sauce
WHAT THE CLUCK!
Chicken Tenders, Grilled Chicken, Tomato, Cheese
SWISS CHALET
Cheddar Cheese, Meatballs, Honey Mustard
BIRKENSTOCK
Mushroom, Onion, Green Peppers, Tomato
RING OF FIRE
Breaded Chicken, Jalapenos, Hot Sauce, Cheddar Cheese
EAST COAST PHILLY
Steak, French Fries, Onions, Peppers, Cheese
SLOPPY DON
Meatballs, Sauce, Cheese, Parmesan
BRONCO BILLY
Chicken Tenders, Beef, Ranch, Ham, Jalapeños, BBQ Sauce BACKYARD BBQ
Grilled Chicken, Steak, Onions, Peppers, Cheese, BBQ Sauce
THE GUIDO
Breaded Chicken, Sauce, Cheese, Parmesan
ZINGER
Chicken Tenders, Blue Cheese Dressing, Hot Sauce, Cheese
ROCKY
Steak, Onions, Mushrooms, Peppers, Cheese
ADRIENNE
Grilled Chicken, Mushroom, Onion, Peppers
RENEGADE
Bacon, Chicken, Pineapple, Shrooms, BBQ Sauce
CORLEONE
Meatballs, Peppers, Mushrooms, Cheese
Le FRENCH
Breaded Chicken, Chicken, Ham, Cheese, Honey Mustard
MEXICAN BURRITO
Refried Beans, Beef, Hot Sauce, Green Peppers, Onions, Cheddar Cheese
CHICKEN, BACON, RANCH
Chicken Tenders, Cheddar, Bacon, Ranch Dressing
SMOKE STACK BIRD
Grilled Chicken, Smoke BBQ, Onions, Cheddar
WILD WILD WEST
Ham, Bacon, BBQ Sauce, Onions, Peppers, Jalapeños, Cheese
BBQ, CHICKEN
Grilled Chicken, BBQ Sauce, Cheddar Cheese
KUNG FU HUSTLE
Grilled Chicken, Teriyaki Sauce, Mushrooms, Cheese
BRAND NEW OVEN BAKED SUBS
GIVE YOUR MOUTH SOME EXTRA LIP!
Small 10" $5.99
Medium 12" $6.99
Large 14" $7.99
770-3333 • 702 N. 11th St
GUMBY'S Pizza

TO THE POINT

Readership program should continue

For the last three years K-State students have had the luxury of having international, national, regional and local news at their finger tips through the Student Readership Program.

With the simple swipe of one's K-State ID, students have had the opportunity to be educated about the world they live in and the issues that affect them free of charge and the current program should continue.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

Next semester, the Student Governing Association will decide whether to allocate more money toward the program or cut a paper from the current list of The New York Times, USA Today, The Kansas City Star, the Topeka Capital-Journal and the Manhattan Mercury because of buildings running out of papers for students.

If the newspaper bins are empty then it is obvious the program is working.

Why take away students' right to be informed about the world around them?

SGA should allocate the money necessary to keep the bins full of all five different papers that are currently available.

The readership program not only broadens the views of students while they are still in school, but can carry on after their years of college when students decide to subscribe to a newspaper.

If the program is taken away or cut, students will be less informed and the notion of the free flow of ideas is weakened.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF	Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR	Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF	Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR	Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR	Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR	Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR	Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR	Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH	Brad Simmons AD MANAGER	Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Dollar days

Traditional holidays now platforms for seeing who can afford the most

KELSEY CHILDRESS

On a late, brisk September day, Little Sally went to Wal-Mart to look at Halloween costumes with her daddy.

Little Sally, who had just turned 8 years old, noticed that, next to the rows of pumpkins and ghosts, there were aisles filled with reindeer and sleigh bells. Confusing thoughts shot back and forth through her head as she named the months and holidays in her head. Yes, sure enough, Halloween was almost exactly two months before Christmas.

"Daddy? Why is there snow stuff next to the costume stuff? Do they go together?" she asked. "Christmas and Halloween are very far apart, right?"

"Yes, baby. So I don't know why they have put out those decorations so early."

But Little Sally wanted answers. Answers her father wasn't prepared to give. Why crush her dreams and hopes about the holidays?

She thought Christmas was all about baby Jesus, the three wise men and Jerusalem. However, we all know that this is not the case. Christmas is clearly about presents, telling Santa Claus what presents you want, presents made by elves, reindeer pulling presents in a sleigh, Christmas trees with all the presents underneath their branches, and all the presents Santa Claus is going to give good little children.

Little Sally has so much to learn. She has to be taught that the only holidays that really matter are ones that can be commercialized into selling most products at the highest prices.

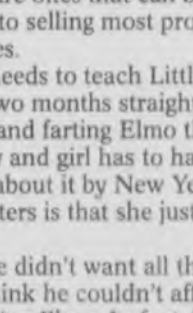
Daddy clearly needs to teach Little Sally how to beg two months straight for that new pooping and farting Elmo that just every little boy and girl has to have. Sure, she'll forget about it by New Year's Day, but what matters is that she just had to have it.

And Daddy sure didn't want all the other parents to think he couldn't afford a pooping and farting Elmo. In fact, he should probably buy the matching diapers and outfits, just to make sure his friends know he can do so much better than the bare minimum. And he better talk about it at work too.

He needs to ask some colleagues where to have his assistant find and buy the elusive Elmo, because he doesn't really have time to do it himself since he is such an important and busy man.

But let's not doubt Little Sally's ability to be get into the tough issues, the fiery questions that raise up in your throat like a bad case of heartburn. "Okay. But Daddy? What about the turkeys at Thanksgiving? Where are the turkey decorations?"

Whoa there, silly Sally. Daddy hasn't even told you that Thanksgiving isn't important because you don't have to buy presents, candy or costumes for it? Well, you just need to stop thinking about turkey day right now, and focus your holiday spirit onto celebrations out of which you get something. And I'm not talking about that "togetherness" or "gratitude" crap.



Pooping and farting Elmo, Sally. That's where it's at. What else could possibly matter?

Kelsey Childress is a sophomore in English Literature and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Elvis Achelpohl | COLLEGIAN

Net pornography restricts freedom

KODY COOPER

Recently proposed in the Kansas Legislature – a tax hike on porno-purveying sex shops and orgy outlets.

Pornophiles, don't agonize – none of you purchase porn publicly anyway.

No, you lock yourselves away in the private darkness of your room to get your repugnant masturbational fix of pornographic images online.

Brethren, I beseech thee: hearken thine ears, for the cyberporn industry mob bosses have ensnared you.

As they pocket $8 billion annually, these degenerate digital plantation owners are enslaving misguided men across this country to snort their contemptible cash crop: pornographic cybercrack.

Did you know that as you commit these shameful masturbational deeds, you are actually constricting your own freedom?

As you continually snort lines of neurotic erotica, you men are effectively shackling yourselves to a deplorably distended sexual desire rooted in impure prurience.

Understandably, such discourse is befuddling for females – porn rarely ails the ladies.

Whereas, women find intimacy through meaningful conversation, building trust and romance, men find intimacy right before and during sex. This truth explains why so many men are pornographically perplexed masturbatory maniacs.

Hearken. Cybercrack offers a mere counterfeit intimacy – you'll never find true intimacy outside monogamous marital relations. That includes relations with your right hand.

Surely you'll protest:

"Should I not be allowed to do what I want, however shameful it may be? True, porn-induced habitual masturbation is so reprehensible that I dare not admit my addiction to my friends or family, but what if I deem this part of my personal pursuit of happiness?"

Your whining tickles my ears. If you claim porn has provided you fulfillment, you are a filthy liar. Pouring pornography into your heart only deepens the dark abyss of empty loneliness you are so desperately trying to fill.

Moreover, the very term "fulfillment" implies some measurable "filling."

Yet, like any asphyxiating addiction, the erotic high of this cybercrack is never enough to satisfy. No amount of snorting will fill the vexing void of desire.

Your ear-tickling protests continue:

"This is America. Purging pornography is patent violation of freedom of speech. You're a fascist."

Maybe, just maybe, the framers intended free speech to protect lewd portrayals of grunting humans defiling themselves for drooling Neanderthals to watch.

Yeah, and maybe I'm a Chinese jet pilot. Freedom yoked unto licentiousness is not freedom at all. True liberty is not a bedfellow of libertinism.

"But," you might whine, "I'm not harming anyone else."

Oh really? You don't think it's at least a bit degrading to women to participate in eye-rape while you snort your cybercrack?

Don't you realize the kind of man this addiction will morph you into? If you don't become a violent sadist, you'll at least be an adulterer.

As articulated by Dr. Cass Sunstein in the Duke Law Journal, circulation of pornography is correlative with sexual violence against women.

Moral professor Jesus Christ offers concurrence in the book of Matthew:

"But I say, anyone who even looks at a woman with lust in his eye has already committed adultery with her in his heart."

Dr. Sunstein and Christ argue that pornographic cybercrack is a gateway drug that inevitably spawns violent rapists and traitorous adulterers.

Believe it. Lasciviousness over fake grunting images ultimately begets dissatisfaction with real women.

Dissatisfaction blooms into disgust; disgust blooms into hatred.

Adulterers are disgusted by their wives. Rapists hate their victims.

Do yourself, your future bride, and society a favor – purge the porn.

Kody Cooper is a senior in political science and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Jeff Snodgrass bought me a shot on Saturday at Pat's.

To all the girls complaining about there being no good guys out there, have you tried hanging out with guys who aren't in a frat?

Gondor has no pants. Gondor needs no pants.

Why do girls find good guys, lose them to negligence, then whine about the lack of good guys? That's confusing.

Where's your buddy?

Jonas Hogg is like the whole freaking tool chest.

I just ate a package of mustard for a dollar and got paid in change. I got hosed.

To the young lady wondering where all the good guys are, we are here. Some may be older than you are willing to date. The younger ones are still in training. Be patient, you will find him.

I'm scared. When I watch porn, I ... I think my pants start to shrink.

Did anyone else see Kody Cooper at the Rec on Halloween? All I can say is, tool. Complete tool.

If I write word backwards, it spells drow.

Word doesn't like that - it's all like, "I'm going to put a red squiggly line under that one."

Wake me up when this semester ends.

I just saw a car driving through Manhattan with license plates from Hawaii and that totally blew my mind.

To the girl who wrote that there is no such thing as a good guy, yes there is, you just can't find us because you shunned us so much in high school that we found someone better than you to be with.

91.9, your taste in music is the worst. Try playing something college students listen to, not what anti-social and so-called non-conformist kids who sit in their room thinking about how much they hate everyone in the world listen to. Get a grip.

It is five in the morning and I am just getting back from Lindsborg; going through I-70's crappy construction and nearly hitting a deer, all just to see the girl ... and it was worth it.

God bless Chipotle.

You know advertisements just aren't nearly as effective when they misspell multiple one-syllable words.

If you were to chose between Facebook and your first-born child which one would it be?

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

All in the family

Non-traditional couple returns to school; joins son, daughter-in-law at K-State

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

About a year ago, Joanne Ice's husband came home with news.

"You're going to college with me," Bob Ice, junior in English, said.

But the couple aren't traditional college students – Joanne, a sophomore in anthropology, is 55 years old, and Bob is 52 years old. The couple's 19-year-old son Nick Ice, freshman in fine arts, and his 18-year-old wife Jessica Ice, freshman in anthropology, are also K-State students. The couples both live in Jardine Apartments.

"It's neat when your youngest son calls you and says, 'We're grilling tonight. Want to come on over?'" Joanne said.

Joanne said she began raising a family at a young age and was unable to attend college. Bob started college about 30 years ago, but he said he could not support a family, work full-time and go to school.

"I didn't want to be 80 years old and say, 'why didn't I even try?'" Joanne said.

"I didn't want to be 80 years old and say, 'why didn't I even try,'"

Joanne Ice
SOPHOMORE IN ANTHROPOLOGY

BACK TO SCHOOL

Joanne went to Johnson County Community College for a semester after Bob's announcement to assure herself she could be a student again. It was there where she met Julie Katz, K-State's assistant director of undergraduate admissions.

"Julie was very helpful in providing information about K-State," Joanne said. "She's the best person to be sending out there to represent K-State."

The Ices then moved to Manhattan from Mission, Kan., so Joanne and Bob could begin classes at K-State in spring 2005. The couple does not work, but Bob said they are financially sound.

"If you want to come back to school, you don't have to take on a full load," Joanne said.

Bob Ice, junior in English and his wife Joanne, sophomore in anthropology, talk with each other while their son, Nick Ice, freshman in fine arts, and daughter-in-law Jessica Ice, freshman in anthropology, look on Sunday evening while eating out.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Katz said the Ices were easy to work with because of their positive attitudes.

"It is never too late to continue an education and life-long learning is what it's all about," Katz said. "Nontraditional students add a completely new dimension to college education with their life experiences."

Joanne said the first time she and Bob were on campus, they asked a campus administrator to show them a certain building, and the administrator followed them in his car to make sure they got there.

"K-State is absolutely a place that welcomes people, and they are willing to help," Joanne said.

STUDY BUDDIES

Joanne said she chose her major after taking a cultural anthropology class from Mike Wesch, assistant professor of cultural anthropology.

"The subject seemed to fit me like a glove," Joanne said.

She hasn't decided what to do with the major yet.

Bob plans to get a graduate degree in creative writing.

"I have always wanted to write, and now my goal is to teach writing to college students," he said.

Bob and Joanne have had several classes together at K-State, including World Regional Geography, Introduction to Cultural Anthropology and Public Speaking.

"We compete a lot and add up to see who did better in what," Joanne said. "But it's good to have a study partner at home."

AGE IS JUST A NUMBER

Joanne said it is not awkward being the older person in class.

"We've always felt comfortable with our children's friends," she said. "It's always a shock to students the first few days of the semester, but after that we're just regular students."

Bob said he hasn't noticed any response from students in his classes, especially since he is in upper-level courses with older students.

The couple stays involved on campus by attending performances and lectures.

"We also have K-State stickers plastered all over our car," Joanne laughed.

Nick Ice said he is often asked if he thinks it is odd that his parents are in college.

"It's really not weird," he said. "It's a help having them around because you feel a pressure to do well."

Jessica Ice also said her in-laws make her compete and perform her best.

"If I'd gone here on my own and by myself, I don't think I could have done it," she said.

$3 million application approved

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Manhattan City Commission approved $3 million in state grant applications Tuesday for the downtown redevelopment. However, the vote only approved application for the funds, which will be reviewed in 2006.

Approximately $2.4 million will go toward landscaping, mid-block crossings, additional benches and signs on Poyntz Avenue, from Third Street to Juliette Avenue, said Karen Davis, director of Manhattan community development.

"It's very appropriate," said City Commissioner Tom Phillips, "Let's focus on Poyntz and strengthening it as part of our downtown redevelopment."

If approved, Manhattan will pay 20 percent and the state will pay 80 percent of the costs.

In addition, a second $650,000 bicycle and pedestrian trail application was approved on a 4-1 vote, with Mayor Ed Klimek voting against the application.

"I think it's ill-conceived today, ill-conceived tomorrow," Klimek said.

The 10-foot-wide trail will run east of the Manhattan Town Center, all the way north to Bluemont Avenue. The project will benefit the city and cost $130,000, said Terry DeWeese, director of the Department of Parks and Recreation.

"A 10-foot-wide trail would allow bicyclists and pedestrians in the same walkway," DeWeese said.

Although hesitant, Phillips voted in favor of the trail because it answered local demands.

"It's an area where we've been challenged," Phillips said. "It's one of the major reasons to having downtown redevelopment...I'm confident with the design and the final design will achieve this."

Students express mixed support for female president

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The new television show "Commander In Chief" focuses on the struggles a woman faces as the president of the United States.

This has some Americans wondering about the odds of a woman being elected president in 2008.

While an October 2005 Gallup Poll reported more than 90 percent of Americans say they would be willing to vote for a woman as president, K-State students said they were less optimistic the public would be ready to accept a woman as commander in chief.

Amanda Thorpe, sophomore in pre-professional business administration, said while she would support a woman as president, she did not expect to see one elected in the near future.

"I don't think it's in the picture until my generation is older and more influential," she said. "I think people can get stuck in their ways."

There are currently 14 women in the Senate, and more than 60 women in the House of Representatives.

While no woman has run for president on a national party ticket in the United States, former New York Rep. Geraldine Ferraro ran unsuccessfully as the first female vice-presidential candidate in 1984.

Megan Stephens, senior in marketing, said the voting public is coming close to accepting a woman in the Oval Office.

She said women's accomplishments in fields outside of politics, however, are making more citizens receptive to the idea of a woman president.

"Women's roles have evolved in the workplace," Stephens said. "A woman president would be the ultimate realization of that, kind of a feminist statement."

Stephens said she viewed Sen. Hillary Clinton, D-N.Y., as a likely future candidate for the presidency.

Not everyone is willing to accept a woman as president, though, said Derek Lane, senior in construction science and management.

"I don't think women, when it comes down to it, can really make a strong decision," he said.

Lane said he would probably not support a female presidential candidate, and did not think a woman would be voted into the White House any time soon.

Thorpe said while current attitudes might discourage a woman from seeking the presidency, the groundwork for the election of a woman president in the future is being laid in modern politics.

"There are influential women in office right now," Thorpe said. "Every year, more and more women get involved with politics, and gain power on Capitol Hill."

WEDNESDAY starts the WEEKEND!
$2.00 Coors & Coors Light Pounders
$1.50 Wells
Free POOL @ the Other Side
Rusty's Last Chance Saloon

Student Foundation Needs You!
Help change K-State for the better by serving on the Student Foundation.
Get Involved!
Gain leadership and networking skills while helping K-State maintain its outstanding tradition of charitable giving.
Applications Due November 28th
To find application visit:
www.found.ksu.edu/studentfoundation

Discover the Difference
November Specials...
Receive a FREE gift (Valued at $40) with your purchase of each gift card of $50 or more.
(Splurging on yourself encouraged!)
Buy any two-month tanning package and receive a FREE lotion.
(While supplies last)
Hair Experts Salon & Spa
Serving the Aggieville area for 25 years
785-776-4455 • 800-540-6995
1323 Anderson Ave • Manhattan, KS
hairexpertssalonandspa.com

We can't get you girls. Or boys.
We can't get you beer or cigarettes.
You won't be any cooler.
You won't be more attractive.
You won't be thinner, smarter, or suddenly wealthy.
But maybe, just maybe,
you'll get the experience you need to land a job that CAN get you those things...after college.
The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:
Executive Positions Spring 2006
• Editor in Chief
• Advertising Sales Manager
News Positions Spring 2006
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists • Graphic Artists
• Graphic Artists • Online Journalists
Advertising Positions Spring 2006
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives
Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. Nov. 16.
Get the experience you NEED.
Kansas State Collegian

Tickets On Sale Now!
I'll Be Back Before Midnight
A thriller by Peter Colley
Directed by Michael Parker
November 11-13 & 17-20
Tickets: $12/adults, $9/students
Thu—Sat 8 pm * Sun 2 pm
Opens Saturday!
Wrap It Up
Art Exhibit & Sale
November 5 - December 28, 2005
Shop for the holidays! M-F 10-5, Sat 10-4, Sun 12-4
Sponsored by Jack & Jenney Ryan, David & Karen Seay and Addair Taylor CHTD.
Opening Reception November 5 * 5-7pm
Manhattan Arts Center
1520 Poyntz Ave. * 785-537-4420 * boxoffice@manhattanarts.org
Smoke-free * Wheelchair Accessible * www.manhattanarts.org

Moreira's status for Saturday's game unclear

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Junior wide receiver Jermaine Moreira gets tackled by Colorado's Gerett Burl after a reception during the first half Saturday's game against Colorado.

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Will he play or won't he?

That is the question surrounding the K-State football program this week in regards to wide receiver Jermaine Moreira.

Coach Bill Snyder's answer?

"That I don't know yet," Snyder said. "We're just uncertain. It's just day by day."

Moreira suffered an injury Saturday against Colorado when his helmet was hit in the scramble for a loose ball after Moreira fumbled a punt.

Moreira's head snapped backward, and he remained motionless on the turf for several minutes as medical personnel attended to him.

Moreira was released from the hospital Sunday night and participated in Monday's practice by running and catching passes.

"That was a freaky deal," fellow wide receiver Jordy Nelson said. "Hopefully, he'll be able to bounce back from that freak accident and be able to roll."

Playing Saturday against Iowa State might be a stretch, Snyder said he has been impressed with Moreira's ability to fight back from injuries throughout his career.

"He's a tough young fellow; pleasant, but tough-minded," Snyder said. "As I think back, I hadn't thought about it that way, but he's had some injuries that he really doesn't pay much attention to and moves on."

EDMONDS RETURNING?

During K-State's 23-20 loss to Colorado Saturday, senior defensive end Scott Edmonds was in uniform on the sidelines for the first time this season.

Edmonds had sat out the entire season up to Saturday recovering from offseason shoulder surgery, and it was unclear whether Edmonds would play this season.

Snyder mentioned after the game that he had been practicing with the team and could see playing time against Iowa State this weekend if he progressed in practice.

Defensive tackle Quintin Echols said he wouldn't mind seeing Edmonds, who started nine games as a junior in 2004, return to the lineup against the Cyclones.

"Don't get me wrong, our ends have been playing pretty good, pretty well right now, but just having one more player of Scott's caliber can't hurt anything. It has to help," Echols said. "When I talk to him, every time I see him, you can tell he has that fire.

"It's kind of hard for him when everyone talks about how this team is showing a little more spirit, even thought the record hasn't shown it, he feels like he needs to be a part of it."

WOMEN'S GOLF

Wildcats finish 7th after rough start

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The women's golf team finished seventh after a rough start at the Edwin Watts/Palmetto Intercollegiate tournament Monday and Tuesday at Kiawah Island, S.C.

The golfers had a rough start, ending the first round with a score of 28-over-par 316. The second round, they scored a 20-over-par 308 and in the final round, the team shot 19-over-par 307.

The team finished seventh with a combined score of 931, 67-over par. The winner of the tournament was the University of Idaho with a 48-over-par 912.

Coach Kristi Knight said the rough start didn't affect the team's performance in the last two rounds.

"I'm proud of the way the team responded to the slow, sloppy start," she said.

There were some challenges on the course the team hadn't faced this year, Knight said.

"The greens were the fastest greens we've played this fall," she said. "It took a little more adjustment time than I would have liked. We have a tough start with our putting game."

Individually for K-State, junior Katy Heffel tied for 13th with a 13-over-par 229. Sophomore Kali Quick finished one stroke back in 20th with a score of 14-over 230.

Sophomore Michelle Regan finished tied for 43rd with a score of 20-over-par 236, junior Helene Robert finished tied for 60th at 25-over and sophomore Hailey Mireles finished in 82nd with a score of a 34-over-par 250.

Knight said the team battled well, but couldn't make up the ground lost during the slow start.

"We dug a deep hole, but the team responded well after that," she said. "We competed hard and that's the main thing."

How they finished (Par = 216)

Player	Finish	Score
Katy Heffel	13	229
Kali Quick	20	230
Michelle Regan	43	236
Helene Robert	60	241
Hailey Mireles	82	250

Fresh start

K-State focuses on 2nd half of Big 12 season

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State volleyball team will not be sad to see October go, as the Wildcats lost four of their last five matches in the previous month.

Now that October has gone and the second half of Big 12 Conference play is underway, coach Suzie Fritz said her squad is looking at tonight's match against Iowa State (13-11, 6-7 Big 12), as well as the last month of competition, with eager eyes.

"Even though we've lost three matches in a row, I feel strongly that we're making improvement in a lot of areas," Fritz said. "We're playing some of the most competitive volleyball teams in the country and our team is starting to challenge those teams. It's been a learning process, it's been a growing process, but I think we're making improvement."

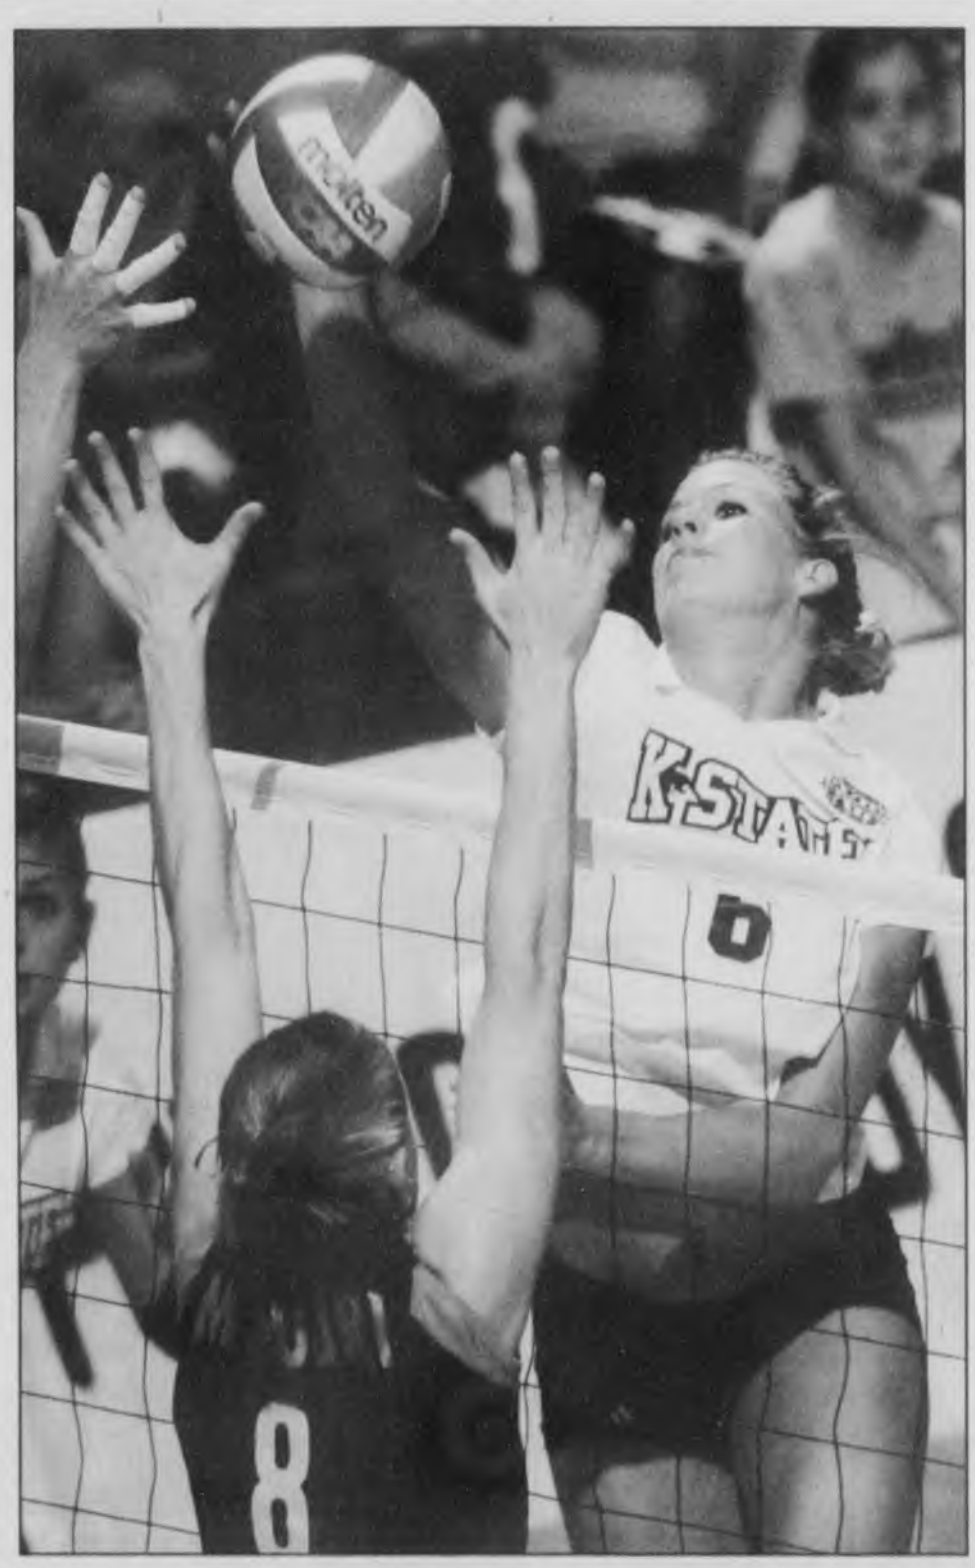
No. 24 K-State at Iowa State
When: 7 tonight
Where: Hilton Coliseum; Ames, Iowa
Radio: 1350-AM KMAN

With a bye this weekend, the No. 24 Wildcats (15-7, 6-6 Big 12) had time to relax, and after a heartbreaking loss to No. 8 Missouri on Oct. 26 to cap a three-game losing streak, the off time was much needed, Fritz said.

"We needed to get some rest and recover a little bit, refocus on things we needed to work on," Fritz said. "Friday was a tremendous practice for us, and (Monday) was another good practice for us."

A lack of consistent effort in practice has been an issue for the Cats. The past two practices, however, have revealed a new side of the team, junior outside hitter Sandy Werner said.

"There's some days we come to practice and we're not ready to work as hard as other days," the Topeka native said. "We've tried to regroup and raise the intensity, so we can bring it in games."



Fritz said she is confident the new approach her players have taken in practice will generate better performances in matches.

"We're putting up good numbers in practice, and therefore I feel strongly that will start to transfer more into games," she said.

Tonight's match is the Wildcats' first opportunity to translate their "good number in practice" to games. A victory against this Cyclone team would be a turning point for the Wildcats, as they embark on a stretch of four of six games on the road, sophomore setter Stacey Spiegelberg said.

"We definitely have to play really well

See VOLLEYBALL Page 10

ABOVE: Sandy Werner goes for a kill against Missouri's Lisa Boyd during their match at Ahearn Field House last week. The Wildcats face Iowa State at 7 tonight in Ames, Iowa.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

LEFT: Cheering after earning a point, sophomore setter, Stacey Spiegelberg, looks to her teammates Oct. 26 at Ahearn Field House. K-State will travel to Iowa State tonight to play the Cyclones.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Officials should have taken more time to review Watts' near interception

ANTHONY MENDOZA

This year the Big 12 Conference instituted instant replay into all of its games – a move the conference needed in order to avoid skeptical calls and controversy in its football games.

Unfortunately, it did not work in K-State's three-point loss at home to Colorado Saturday.

It did not work because the officiating crew never used it.

The Wildcats never had the chance to argue a disputed call that could have changed their fortunes late in the fourth quarter.

The play came with less than a minute to go in the game. It was third and eight, and Colorado quarterback Joel Klatt's pass sailed over the head of its intended receiver. Playing deep in coverage, free safety Marcus Watts made a break for the ball and dove for the errant throw.

The referee said Watts did not make the catch before the ball hit the ground, but after the game, Watts had something else to say.

"I felt like I intercepted that ball," Watts said. "I felt like it hit my hands before it hit the ground. I had my hands underneath it, I think. It's a tough call for the official, I understand that."

Coming from Watts' mouth, you have to believe what he said. He is one of the only players who is continuously available after games to talk to the media, whether the team has won or lost.

He is also the same guy who, when questioned about a personal foul penalty he received after the Texas A&M game, said, "Yeah I hit him; I hit him late." Watts didn't even break his breath or hold anything back when asked whether the official got the call right.

After the disputed play, the Buffaloes punted the ball away and Jermaine Moreira fumbled the punt. Two plays later, the Wildcats lost to Colorado for the second consecutive year on a last second play, this time by Mason Crosby's 50-yard field goal.

According to the Big 12 main principles in regards to reviewing plays, the play has to have a standard of indisputable video evidence for any on-field call to be changed or the review must have a direct, competitive effect on the game, such as a change of possession or scoring play.

The play had a direct, competitive effect on the game, because it would have given the Wildcats the ball within scoring position, even going into the wind and without any timeouts with less than a minute to play.

There are four camera angles available to the officials in non-televised games provided

See COLUMN Page 10

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

MBB | Giddens pleads no contest in bar incident

LAWRENCE, Kan. — J.R. Giddens, the former University of Kansas basketball player who left the school in the wake of a widely publicized bar fight in which he and others were stabbed, pleaded no contest Monday to a misdemeanor battery charge.

Giddens

In return for his plea, the state dropped a disorderly conduct charge, said Trent Krug, an assistant Douglas County district attorney.

Giddens, who came back to Lawrence from Albuquerque, N.M., where he now attends the University of New Mexico, did not speak when offered the chance to do so before sentencing. He was placed on probation for a year and ordered to take a two-day anger management class.

NFL | Roethlisberger injury apparently not serious

PITTSBURGH — Ben Roethlisberger's right knee injury apparently isn't serious, but Pittsburgh Steelers coach Bill Cowher isn't ready to say if his quarterback will be ready to play Sunday in Green Bay.

Roethlisberger

Roethlisberger underwent an MRI exam Tuesday, about 12 hours after the Steelers' 20-19 victory over Baltimore, and was given a preliminary diagnosis of a strained posterior capsule.

The injury affects the range of motiun of the knee and can be very painful.

The Steelers have a short week of practice before their first trip to Green Bay (1-6) in 10 years, but it is unlikely Roethlisberger will attempt to practice Wednesday.

NFL | Broncos part ways with conerback Walls

DENVER — The Denver Broncos parted ways with cornerback Lenny Walls on Tuesday, a surprising move that signaled their confidence in fast-improving rookies Darrent Williams and Domonique Foxworth.

The Broncos placed Walls, a fourth-year player who began the season as the starter opposite Champ Bailey, on the reserve-injured list, meaning they've agreed to a settlement with him and will officially release him in a few weeks.

Walls lost his starting job early in the season and missed the last game with an injured groin.

CAR | Busch to leave Roush, join Penske in 2006

Defending NASCAR Nextel Cup champ Kurt Busch will have a new home next season.

Busch will leave Roush Racing and join Penske Racing in 2006, according to ESPN's Mike Massaro.

Busch

Busch replaces Rusty Wallace, who is retiring from the Penske team.

Jamie McMurray, who has raced this season for Chip Ganassi Racing, will take Busch's place on the Roush team, according to Massaro.

MLB | Senators introduce new steroids bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Aiming to spur baseball and other sports to adopt tougher steroids policies, Sens. Jim Bunning and John McCain are reintroducing legislation that would standardize drug testing and penalties for professional leagues.

The new bill combines two already proposed separately by Bunning, a Kentucky Republican who was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1996, and McCain, an Arizona Republican.

Bunning, a former major league pitcher, said the new legislation would be introduced Tuesday or Wednesday.

Like the earlier bills from Bunning and McCain, this one is based on the Olympic model.

It calls for a two-year suspension for an athlete who fails a steroids test for the first time and a lifetime ban for a second offense.

Athletes would be tested at least five times a year, three during the season and two in the offseason.

Three House bills have been proposed with similar provisions.

POP electric dusty

ABOVE: Emily Atchison, left, and Ellen Welti, both seniors at Manhattan High School, listen to Kyle Klipowicz, K-State senior in mathematics, performing computer music. Klipowicz was the opening act for the Broze Own Tour, which included Yacht, Bobby Birdman and E*Rock.
RIGHT: During a concert at the Dusty Bookshelf, Bobby Birdman, musician from Los Angeles, entertains a small crowd as the first performer of the Broze Own Tour. Birdman pretended to be a giraffe during a part of his show.
BELOW: E*Rock, a musician from Portland, Ore., sings electronic pop music during a concert that started at 8 p.m. The performance included live and digital music along with videos with motion graphics.

Photos by Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

West coast bands perform electronic pop concert at Dusty Bookshelf

By J. Scott Bowman
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The three bands Bobby Birdman, E*Rock and Yacht had the chance to play at The Granada in Lawrence.

But they all ended up playing at the Dusty Bookshelf.

Yacht, who has never been to Kansas, said he talked to an organizer for the Dusty Bookshelf, Matthew Hoppock, about doing a show in Manhattan and it worked out.

"This kid on an Internet message board had been talking about putting on a show here for a while, and then he asked us," Yacht said. "He just e-mailed me and was like 'Hey do you want to come?'

"He asked a couple times before on other tours, and the routing just didn't work out, and this time we had a couple open days."

Yacht said the groups heard about the venue from a member of the band Golden Shoulders that performed in Manhattan in the past. He said it was the "glowing reviews" that made them want to perform in Manhattan.

The groups, who played Ann Arbor, Mich., on Monday, traveled 870 miles to perform electronic pop music accompanied by video with motion graphics.

About 30 to 40 people showed up to the cozy, candle-lit venue to watch, listen and participate with the groups.

Yacht said he hopes people get something from his performance.

"Personally, I want happiness to come out of the show, but also maybe a little sadness," he said wearing a T-shirt with a Yin Yang. "I want people to get some exercise, maybe.

"Personally, a lot of it is about moving for me. A lot of the show is more of a dance performance than anything else."

Birdman said he wants an audience that will get involved with his performance.

"I think we all just want to involve the audience in a different way," he said. "And...jokes."

And to start the show, the groups showed some home movies of their current Broze Own Tour including a clip with dancing and ring tones as the soundtrack.

Then Yacht and Birdman played a game of rock, paper, scissors to decide who would begin the performance. Yacht won and chose Birdman to start, and he began with a screen flashing colors and "Bobby Birdman" and he began to sing to thumping beats.

Joey Murphy, current organizer for the Dusty Bookshelf, said the groups are different than most of their performances, which are acoustic sets. But he said he wants to build a venue performers can enjoy and music lovers can frequent.

"We don't want to have the Bookshelf be labeled an acoustic only venue," Murphy said. "Our main goal is to bring in some independent bands and musicians with independent music and be different than other venues in town."

He said that having the three bands that played Tuesday night are proof that if you have people who are willing to support music, bands will come.

"I think there are a lot of venues here," Murphy said. "And sometimes, they all seem to play the same type of music. It works good for them, but I want to play something different here. I want people to come here with an open mind."

'DangerDoom' not for everyone, offers something different

"The Mouse and The Mask"
★★★☆☆
Album review by Mark Sibilla

As a music-loving, reefer-smoking, cartoon-addicted college student, the first album from DangerDoom is tailor-made for my consumption. But you may ask, "Mark, I am a law-abiding citizen with finicky music tastes (i.e. if it's not homogenous, it's not for me) who thinks cartoons are juvenile; will I like this DangerDoom album?" My answer is a solid, "Well, that depends."

It depends on if you think the combination of prolific DJ, Danger Mouse (most famous for last year's mash up of Jay-Z's "The Black Album" and The Beatles' "White Album" into the appropriately titled "The Grey Album"), MC, MF Doom (the metal mask-wearing rapper) and Cartoon Network's Adult Swim characters into one of the weirdest and most eclectic rap albums of the year, sounds like a good idea. If so, I would suggest that you head on down to your local Music Retail Outlet and pick up this album. If this doesn't tickle your fancy, just return to your Nickelelback albums, knowing that you won't lose any sleep over not hearing this album.

Now for those still with me, let me assure you that "The Mouse and The Mask" is one of the craziest, funniest, and down right most enjoyable albums of the year. Danger Mouse lays down beats that snap, crackle, and pop over which MF Doom skips some of the loosest and most playful rhymes of his career.

The album begins with Brak (one of Space Ghost's villains, now transformed into a clueless man-child) chiding the listener for buying the album before the beat inches in with the detective noir-like loop of "El Chupa Nibre." It gives the listener a good idea of what to expect from the rest of the album.

First, all profanity is bleeped (so no worries when buying from Wal-Mart). This decision is rather confusing, all of the shows airing during the Adult Swim block edits the characters' profanity, but to do so with a widely released rap album is just plain confounding, especially when the main audience is college students. Thankfully, this only occurs on a couple of the tracks.

Courtesy art

Second, many characters hailing from Adult Swim's most popular programs litter the album. These cameos are limited to small skits and samples throughout the album and rarely hinder its flow. One recurring theme is Master Shake, from "Aqua Teen Hunger Force," leaving messages on DangerDoom's answering machine trying to weasel his way into a guest spot on the album.

Third is Doom's flow, which is peppered with pop culture references both obvious and obscure. Doom is known for his proficiency stuffing songs with odd turns of phrase and references, but during "The Mouse and The Mask" Doom runs wild. He has always done well with concept albums (King Geedorah's "Take Me to Your Leader," releases under his Viktor Vaughn moniker) and here he truly shines.

One such example is "Sofa King" (as in, "I am Sofa King We Todd Ed"). Doom's surrealist sing-song flow deftly flips over Danger Mouse's violin-fueled sample. Doom manages to turn a childish phrase into one of the album's best tracks.

"The Mouse and The Mask" also features flesh-and-blood guests. "The Mask" brings Ghostface up to the mic; his slurring flow fits perfectly into the mix. The track also raises the anticipation between the up-coming collaboration of Ghostface and MF Doom. The track's highlight is Brak's falsetto interpretation of Gloria Estefan's "Turn the Beat Around." Simply brilliant.

Cee-Lo brings his cool croon to the excellent "Benzie Box;" Danger Mouse's sample sounds like one of Dr. Dre's patented G-Funk bass lines on acid. And Talib Kweli brings lines about Saturday mornings "making up a miracle flow over a cereal bowl and a paused beat from my stereo" on "Old School."

DangerDoom's "The Mouse and The Mask" is so complex and full of so many great lines and pop culture allusions that it would take pages to fully describe its magnificence. As good as this album is, however, it isn't near the genius of MF Doom's 2004 collaboration with Madlib (Madvillain's "Madvillainy"), nor is it for everyone, but with the right mix of mind-altering substances and an ear for something different, you can't do much better than DangerDoom.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

1861 — Fremont removed from Western Department
Controversial Union General John C. Fremont is relieved of command in the Western Department and replaced by David Hunter.

1895 — First Gasoline-Powered Contest In America
Chicago Times-Herald Publisher Herman H. Kohlsaat announces that his newspaper would sponsor a race between horseless carriages. It would be the first race in America to feature gasoline-powered automobiles.

1912 — XIT Ranch sells its last head of cattle
The XIT Ranch of Texas, once among the largest ranches in the world, sells its last head of cattle.

1913 — Burt Lancaster born
Actor Burt Lancaster is born in East Harlem, N.Y. Lancaster won an athletic scholarship to NYU but dropped out to perform as an acrobat with circuses and vaudeville troupes. Lancaster served in World War II, then returned to New York, where a stage producer spotted him in an elevator and cast him in a Broadway play. He quickly moved to Hollywood, where his first film, "The Killers" (1946), propelled him to instant stardom. He was nominated for Academy Awards throughout his long career, for films including "From Here to Eternity" (1953), "Birdman of Alcatraz" (1962), and "Atlantic City" (1981). He continued to appear in films until he was hospitalized for complications from a stroke in 1990. Lancaster died in 1994 at age 80.

1942 — British launch Operation Supercharge
General Montgomery breaks through Rommel's defensive line at El Alamein, Egypt, forcing a retreat. It was the beginning of the end of the Axis occupation of North Africa.

1960 — 'Lady Chatterley's Lover' obscenity trial ends
A landmark obscenity case over "Lady Chatterley's Lover," by D.H. Lawrence, ends in the acquittal of Penguin Books. The publisher had been sued for obscenity in publishing an unexpurgated version of Lawrence's novel, which deals with the affair between the wife of a wealthy, paralyzed landowner and his estate's gamekeeper. The book had been published in a limited English-language edition in Florence, Italy, in 1928 and Paris the following year. An expurgated version was published in England in 1932. In 1959, the full text was published in New York, then in London the following year.

1963 — Ngo Dinh Diem assassinated in South Vietnam
Following the overthrow of his government by South Vietnamese military forces the day before, President Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother are captured and killed by a group of soldiers. The death of Diem caused celebration among many people in South Vietnam, but also lead to political chaos in the nation.

1989 — A nurse's aide gets life imprisonment
Gwendolyn Graham is sentenced to life imprisonment with no possibility of parole for killing five elderly female residents of the Alpine Manor Nursing Home near Grand Rapids, Mich. Both Graham and her criminal and romantic partner, Catherine Wood, had been employed as nurses' aides at the home.

1989 — In it for the long haul
Carmen Fasanella, a taxicab driver from Princeton, N.J., retires after 68 years and 243 days of service. Fasanella, who was continuously licensed as a taxicab owner and driver in the Borough of Princeton, NJ, since Feb. 1, 1921, is the most enduring taxi driver on record.

1992 — Hal Roach dies
Producer, director and screenwriter Hal Roach dies at the age of 100. Roach is best remembered for his silent comedies featuring Laurel and Hardy, Harold Lloyd and the gaggle of mischievous kids who starred in the "Our Gang" comedies (who later became known as the Little Rascals).

Source: History Channel

Photography as art

Gary Kilner, senior engineering technician, looks at photos displayed in the K-State Student Union's Kemper Art Gallery Tuesday afternoon. Union Program Council sponsored a student photo contest and the entries will be on display until Nov. 18.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Students to experience high elevation in altitude chamber

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sixteen students will leave K-State-Salina for Oklahoma City tonight and won't return until they've reached a 25,000-foot elevation.

The students are enrolled in a one credit-hour altitude chamber course offered at the Civil Aerospace Medical Institute at the Federal Aviation Administration Center in Oklahoma City on Thursday. By decreasing the pressure in the chamber, students experience what conditions are like at 25,000 feet.

The purpose is to make the students safer pilots, said Marlon Johnston, head of the Department of Aviation at K-State-Salina.

"What we're trying to do is give students the opportunity to experience an oxygen deprivation situation where there's not enough oxygen for them to remain conscious," Johnston said.

Brian Weber, junior in the professional pilot, said it is a situation that teaches students about the dangers of hypoxia, a condition resulting from reduced oxygen to the brain.

"In the early stages, it definitely cuts down on your ability to make decisions," Weber said.

Individual hypoxia symptoms can include light-headedness, tunnel vision and euphoria, Johnston said. Chase Krien, sophomore in professional pilot, said bluish fingernails, slurred speech and trouble concentrating are also symptoms.

Accompanied by two technicians, the students in the chamber will go up to a simulated 6,000 feet and come down to clear their ears and sinuses, Johnston said. Then they will go up to 8,000 feet and put on an oxygen mask. After that, the chamber goes to 18,000 feet in about five seconds and then to 25,000 feet.

"Even though you never left the building, your body has really been up to 25,000 feet," Johnston said.

At 25,000 feet, half of the students will remove their oxygen masks for no more than five minutes and try to breathe. They will record their symptoms, do crosswords and try to sign their names. Then the other half of the students will remove their masks and perform the same tasks.

"You learn how you feel and how to observe (hypoxia) in others," Johnston said.

The whole process takes about 90 minutes, and students later examine their crosswords and signatures to see when their performance started to decline, Johnston said.

"At 25,000 feet, students go through hypoxia," he said. "You begin to lose your capability to make decisions to operate the airplane," he said. "We're trying to show them their symptoms so they avoid a situation where they do lose consciousness."

After 15 minutes without oxygen, a person risks losing consciousness, Johnston said.

Krien said he is excited for the simulation.

"You learn firsthand what rapid decompression in flight will do to a pilot," he said.

Local poet featured in anthology

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Some poets work all their lives and never publish.

Johnny Cyrene started in March 2004 and is already past that.

Cyrene, a Manhattan resident, has five poems in the anthology "In Katrina's Wake," a collection of work by 20 poets from across the country.

All profits will go to the American Red Cross, Michelle Ailene True, editor and contributor to the book, said.

"Loved ones suddenly taken/ Life's burdens are now shaken/ The paths once walked are watery graves/ Who is it that said, 'God Saves?'" says Cyrene's poem "Katrina's Wind."

True said that half of the poems in the book were inspired by the hurricane and its effects on the Gulf Coast, while the others are works that come from the authors' own experiences.

"Some are lying on pillows of despair and pain/ now resting as the sunlight gently wanes/ content from the nourishment just taken/ Their eyes are drowsy and there is no mistaken," reads a part of Cyrene's "Dancing From Midnight 'till Three."

He said the poem was inspired by an experience at a local retirement community.

Cyrene, a 59-year-old employee of the Riley County Department of Public Works, said he barely passed high school and was pleased to have accomplished this much already.

"It feels great," he said, "The fact is, just a year ago I was barely starting out."

True said the idea for the book came while watching a benefit concert about a week after the storm ravaged southern Louisiana and Mississippi.

"I thought, 'I can't do that, but I can write,'" she said.

She then started contacting other writers through online writing groups and found 19 other contributors. Ninety-seven were printed in the book, which is currently only available from Lulu.com.

True, a single mother who lives paycheck to paycheck, has had three books of her own poetry published since 2004.

She said she bankrolled the initial publishing fees, and the books will be printed on-demand as orders are received.

She said she hopes the book becomes a regular source of money for the American Red Cross, and will be available at other retailers in the future.

Cyrene said that he plans to continue writing and recommends it to others.

"I would like to encourage all ages, if they feel like expressing themselves with words, to do so," he said.

Collegian Explore it! kstatecollegian.com

JOIN A CLUB GET INVOLVED

50¢ Pizza Rolls (sauces extra) GUMBY'S Pizza 770-3333 702 N. 11th St.

Apply now!

SHAPE

If you join SHAPE, you will:
- Become an American Red Cross Certified HIV/AIDS Instructor.
- Have a chance to attend the national peer education conference
- Earn 3 KSU credit hours. (use credit as leadership minor or unrestricted elective)

Applications available at Lafene, room 268 or print it online at: www.k-state.edu/lafene/SHAPE

Sponsored by: Lafene Health Center
Need more info? Call 785-532-6595 or email shape@ksu.edu

Sexual Health Awareness Peer Educators

Applications due Nov. 4th

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:

FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS

Students' Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 3:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request.

for more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

Now Available! HOT ONES! Served on Multi-Grain Bread...Goodcents Gold

Get 'Em While They're Hot!

Get Em' While They're Hot!

Mr. Goodcents Subs & Pastas
We Deliver! 539-1900
1317 Anderson

– Limited Time Offer –
Buy any regular price 1/2 Sub Sandwich and get the second 1/2 Sub Sandwich for only 99¢

Mr. Goodcents Subs & Pastas

Valid on subs of equal or lesser value. Offer Valid at Participating Topeka, Manhattan, and Salina Mr. Goodcents locations. Not valid in conjunction with any other offers. Offer expires 11-30-05.

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 Moro 776-8770

LIVE TONIGHT
RANDY ROGERS BAND
with special guest...
FULL THROTTLE
Tickets on sale at the door.

Uphill workout

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Climbing the stairs at Memorial Stadium Vicky Wendland, left, and Karen Ryan, both Manhattan residents workout Tuesday evening. Wendland and Ryan said they both try to exercise at least three times a week.

Students can save $900 annually by carpooling to, from work, school

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Members of Delta Delta Delta have learned that there is not only safety in numbers, but there is also savings in numbers – at least when it comes to carpooling.

According to the latest analysis by Runzheimer International, a Wisconsin-based vehicle price expert, a typical commuter could save nearly $900 annually in gasoline expenses by traveling with one other rider and up to $1,305 annually as a result of commuting with three commuters. The analysis in the report reflects a commuter situation based upon a gasoline expense of $2.90/gallon, use of a standard four door sedan that obtains 20 miles-per-gallon and a round-trip commute of 50 miles; the time period covered is 20 work days per month over a 12-month period.

With a tight national economy and higher gas prices, people are likely to commute, said Lee Czarapata, director of Client Relations – Business Vehicle Services, at Runzheimer International.

Carpool savings

Number of people in carpool	2	3	4
Cost per person	$870	$580	$435
Car pool cost savings	$870	$1,160	$1,305

This report reflects a commuter situation based upon a gasoline expense of $2.90/gallon, use of a standard four-door sedan that obtains 20 miles-per-gallon and a round-trip commute of 50 miles the time period covered is 20 work days per month over a 12-month period.

Source: Runzheimer International, a Wisconsin-based vehicle price expert.

"The current situation is far from typical," Czarapata said. "Since many budgets can't accommodate a huge increase in gas expenses, there is a high likelihood the changes will occur in the daily driving patterns of Americans, particularly relating to how they travel to work."

Amy Carnahan, junior in elementary education and academic development officer of Tri-Delt, said carpooling has been increasingly popular in her sorority house this year.

"The same girls every day will ride together," Carnahan said. "Some of the sorority members have planned-out schedules for carpooling, even to where they arrange a drop-off or pick-up at landmark campus locations."

Other students, like Melody Honnen, fifth-year in interior architecture, said she recently has opted for bike-riding. Honnen said there are several benefits to a bike-riding experience.

"I don't have to fight everyone for parking," Honnen said. "I'm just happier because I have more money, and I didn't want to burn fossil fuels."

Carpooling, however, is not just for economical convenience, Carnahan said.

"It is kind of a fun way to bond, but it's a good time to check in and see what's going on with other girls in the house," Carnahan said. "I know I'll never have that opportunity, living with this many girls again. Things like this don't work very well for people who live outside of here.

Kansas State Collegian
Wildcat fan's newspaper of choice

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT, close to campus, available now. All utilities paid. Washer/ dryer. $375. (785)317-7713.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490, two-bedrooms $750, three-bedrooms $700-$825. (785)537-7701.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

we kick ads.
CLASSIFIEDS • 532-6555

120 For Rent- Houses

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

145 Roommate Wanted

Roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

LOOKING FOR female to take over one-third of lease at Founder's Hill. Own bathroom and washer/ dryer in apartment. Alex Dunn at (785)317-4095 or adunn@ksdot.org.

ROOMMATES: MALE or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

ADVERTISE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6560

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, THREE bath, two car garage. Available January 1. 457 Warner Park Road. Bar and large deck, appliances. $1,300. (913)207-4222.

MUST SEE three-bedroom, one bathroom. Living room, kitchen, dinette, computer room, laundry facility in attached garage, nice patio. (765)463-5014, (765)714-5710.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer. $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM, Washer/ dryer, fenced, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $900/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

145 Roommate Wanted

1225 RATONE roommates needed. One and one-half bathroom. Available immediately. Ask Jin. (785)341-7089.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: No smoking. Two-bedroom apartment. Close to campus. Off-street parking. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. (620)481-9837.

MALE ROOMMATE wanted. Four-bedroom duplex. $325/ month plus utilities. Close to campus and Aggieville. Available January. (316)655-5236.

ROOMMATE NEEDED. Three-bedroom house. Backyard with deck and fence. Easy to get along with roommates. Simple quick drive to campus. (785)845-2212.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

Need to sublease?
Advertise your sublease before it's too late!
Kedzie 103 • 532-6555

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed. Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE SUBLEASER. Walking distance to campus. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. Rent negotiable. Call (402)641-1886.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $395/ month. Washer/ dryer. Sublease December. (785)317-1162 or (785)317-2319.

ONE-BEDROOM. $395, cable/ water paid. Laundry/ pool/ hot tub on site. Small pets. Quiet. Available now. (785)375-3015.

SUBLEASE. TWO-BEDROOM. Close to campus. For more information, call (620)276-4940.

SUBLEASE. CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms. University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

SUBLEASER NEEDED. Two-bedroom apartment. Block from campus and Aggieville. All utilities paid except electricity. $550/ month. Call (316)210-1164 or (316)993-0214.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

NOW HIRING wait staff. Apply in person 2- 5pm. Tuesday- Friday. 1130 Moro.

310 Help Wanted

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

Daytime Cook Needed
•Hard-working
•Self-motivated
•Team player
•$6/hr
Pete's Hickory Bar-B-Que
539-7426

Full/ Part-time Technical Writer Positions open to all students. Get paid by the project- pay of $15+ per hour possible. Flexible hours are ideal for self-motivated, unsupervised worker. Must be U.S. Citizen, with minimum 1210 SAT score or 27 ACT score. Requires computer/ Internet access and strong writing skills- frequent grammar, spelling mistakes are unacceptable. Email techwriting-job@yahoo.com with a quick summary of your work experience, major and SAT/ACT score.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

NEEDED COLLEGE student to help with work in home for local family. References helpful. Please call (785)556-2467, ask for Shannon.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

415 Furniture to Buy/Sell

COUCH FOR sale. Nearly new. Call (785)532-5764 or email tburrack@ksu.edu.

FREE: HIDE-A-BED sofa. Good condition. Call (785)539-8025.

500 transportation

530 Motorcycles

2003 636 Kawasaki Ninja with extras. 2700 miles. Call for price. (620)629-7386.

2003 MOPED- Kenetic, 49cc. $400 or best offer. (785)317-4279.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
www.ubski.com

630 Spring Break

Found something?
You can place an ad FREE for three days!
Kedzie 103 532-6555

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

SMALL ONE-BEDROOM partially furnished. Quiet, central location. Most utilities paid. Six month lease. No smoking. May accept cat. (785)537-8389.

ADVERTISE.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

NOW LEASING
• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillinvestandrental.com

NEWLY REMODELED two-bedroom apartments. All utilities paid! Available in December and January, offering semester leases. Call MDI at (785)776-3804.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENTS, available now and in January. Offering semester leases, call MDI at (785)776-3804.

THREE-BEDROOM, ONE bath, house across from campus. Modern appliances, central air, very clean. Available immediately. $350 per bedroom plus utilities. 1735 Anderson. Call KSU Foundation at (785)532-7596 or (785)532-7541.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

LET'S HELP OUR LOCAL CHARITIES.
Please consider a contribution to support our local charities.
THINK GLOBALLY. ACT LOCALLY.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Advertising Design

Practicum/Newspaper MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Graphic Design Internship

Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

SHOTS | Influenza vaccinations available on first-come, first-serve basis

Continued from Page 1

"In the future we do expect to get more vaccine, but we don't have a confirmation on delivery yet," she said.

On Thursday, priority will be given to students getting a flu vaccination, with some extra staff assisting Lafene's Allergy and Immunization Clinic.

"It's going to be a first-come, first-served situation," Sonya Conrad, clinical nurse in the Allergy and Immunization Clinic, said. "We will vaccinate whoever comes."

Students wishing to be vaccinated should check into the front desk at Lafene and expect on staying for about an hour.

The extra time is due to a mandatory 20-minute waiting period to ensure the patient does not have an allergic reaction.

"I think students should plan on an hour, but I would be surprised if it took that long," Kennedy said.

Vaccines will be available after Thursday, Kennedy said. However, if students come on Friday, they may have to wait, she said.

As flu season continues, Lafene will continue to offer vaccinations.

"We want to take care of as many high-risk people as we can," Tackett said. "Then, as we get more vaccine, we can begin to take care of the general people as well."

VOLLEYBALL | No. 24 Wildcats face Iowa State after 3 consecutive losses

Continued from Page 6

and beat them," Stacey Spiegelberg said of the Cyclones. "After the Missouri game, I know we have a little more fight in us, and I just know we're not going to let stuff like that happen again this season."

Iowa State doesn't boast the same record and reputation as the previous three teams, all in the top 20, K-State has encountered. Not only that, but K-State has won its last 19 consecutive matches against the Cyclones.

Still, that is no reason to underrate Iowa State, Spiegelberg said.

"They're a tough team, especially at home," Spiegelberg said. "In the past, they haven't been as good. This year, I think they're the best Iowa State team we've seen so far."

COLUMN | Officials should have used instant replay available to them

Continued from Page 6

by Fox Sports Net, not just the one view the fans were shown on replay.

Big 12 Conference assistant commissioner Bob Burda said that in order for a call on the field to be overturned there needs to indisputable evidence.

"Because it wasn't overturned doesn't necessarily mean that the evidence supported the call on the field. It could have been that the video was not conclusive enough to overturn the call," Burda said.

There was too much riding on this game for K-State not to have the officials look at the play a few more times in the replay booth.

Maybe Watts was wrong and his emotions were talking for him after the game.

Maybe he did make the catch and the ball should have been given over to the Wildcats on the turnover.

We'll never know because the officials dropped the ball in this game before K-State ended up fumbling it away.

Anthony Mendoza is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Darin Richardson, senior in business management, plays the piano while singing "Desperado" Tuesday evening. Students were judged based on their performances and received comments after they finished.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

IDOL | Union Program Council adds skits to annual amateur event

Continued from Page 1

"Since most of the performances were vocal, we wanted to add a little diversity to the show by performing little skits," Laura Jones, graduate assistant for UPC, said.

Among the skits presented by UPC were "Like a Virgin/ Hollywood Performance," a brief skit from the movie "Wedding Crashers," the "You Got Served" street dance performance and a Willie Wonka skit.

For this particular skit, 30 Willie Wonka candy bars were hidden in the theatre, eight of them containing a golden ticket.

The individuals who found one of these tickets received a $10 gift certificate to Hasting's Books, Music and Video.

"We're just trying to make the other girls we're dancing with look good, so we don't have to do much," Kelly Brannin, sophomore in kinesiology, said of her role in the "You Got Served" performance.

"It's always fun to support the other UPC members."

UNITED WAY | Volunteers distribute information packets to faculty

Continued from Page 1

community," Havenstein said. "It's not about the money."

The on-campus volunteers have distributed to all staff and faculty packets with information about United Way, pledge cards detailing how to give to the campaign, prizes, a brochure about United Way agencies and a letter from President Jon Wefald.

Two faculty members have won prizes for donating.

Lori Goetsch, dean of Hale Library, and Jackie Spears, associate professor of secondary education, won early bird prizes for turning in pledge cards early.

Pledge cards received by Oct. 14 were put into a drawing, and Goetsch won a parking permit and Spears won a day off with pay.

Prizes are still being awarded for turning in pledge cards.

Among the prizes are gift certificates to the K-State Student Union and tickets to K-State sporting events.

Although the last official day of the campaign was Oct. 31, the campaign will continue to accept donations and volunteers.

The campaign will wrap up toward the end of November.

"We're very proud of what we've accomplished here," Havenstein said.

"I'm very proud to be a part of K-State."

LET'S HELP OUR LOCAL CHARITIES.

Please consider a contribution to support our local charities.

THINK GLOBALLY. ACT LOCALLY.

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:

Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm

The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.

Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment.

Do you like to know that you have enriched others lives?

Are you fulfilled when you help others reach their goals? Then a substitute Direct Support Associate position could be the right fit for you!

As a central part of supporting persons with developmental disabilities and mental retardation, you will have the opportunity to advance the Mission of Mosaic and produce effective, meaningful outcomes for people. As a Team we "Open the Doors to Extraordinary Lives".

Must have a high school diploma or equivalent and three months of experience in a related field – and be able to pass post offer/pre-placement drug screen, physical review and background checks. Mosaic offers competitive compensation and advancement opportunities.

Apply at:
MOSAIC
Human Resources
426 Houston St.
Manhattan, KS 66502 or mail to:Doug.vincent@mosaicinfo.org
EOE

MOSAIC

modern woodmen of america

Take control of your retirement planning with a TSA

Consider these advantages of a TSA:
- Contributions made on a pretax basis.
- Salary deduction provides for a convenient contribution method.
- Contributions and potential earnings are not subject to federal income tax until time of distribution.

Modern Woodmen provides a number of funding vehicles for your TSA. Select from fixed and variable annuities, as well as mutual funds, to fund your retirement.

We offer fraternal financial services. As a fraternal, we also provide member benefits to enrich your family and community. Call today and find out if a TSA is right for you.

Modern Woodmen is approved by the Kansas Board of Regents as a TSA Provider.

Joe Belardo*
FIC, LUTCF
Junction City, KS
785-238-5648

Bruce Burditt* FIC
Topeka, KS
785-234-8600

MODERN WOODMEN OF AMERICA
Fraternal Financial Services
www.modern-woodmen.org

*Registered representative. Securities offered through MWA Financial Services Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Modern Woodmen of America, 1701 1st Avenue, Rock Island, IL 61201, 309-558-3100. Member NASD, SIPC.
Shares of securities products are not deposits or obligations of any bank, are not guaranteed by any bank, are not insured by the FDIC or any other agency, and involve investment risks, including the possible loss of the principal amount invested. Individual representatives may not be licensed to sell all products.

Touching lives. Securing futures.®

Spring 2006 – On-line Courses

Kansas City Kansas Community College • 7250 State Avenue • Kansas City, KS 66112 • 913-334-1100
http://www.kckcc.edu/schedule/index.psp

Course Name
ACCOUNTING I
ACCOUNTING II
ADDICTION COUNSELING WITH SPECIAL POPULATIONS
ADVANCED SYSTEM MANAGER
ADVANCED VISUAL BASIC
ADVANCED WAN INTERNETWORKING
AMERICAN GOVERNMENT
ARCHAEOLOGY
ART HISTORY II
BANKRUPTCY
BASIC KEYBOARDING
BIOCHEMISTRY
BIOCHEMISTRY LAB
BLACK HISTORY
BUILDING CONSTRUCTION FIRE SERVICE
BUILDING FIRE CODES
BUSINESS COMMUNICATIONS
BUSINESS ETIQUETTE
BUSINESS LAW I
BUSINESS LAW II
BUSINESS MATH
C++ PROGRAMMING
CAMPING AND OUTDOOR EDUCATION
CARE OF CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES
CGI PERL
CHILD DEVELOPMENT
CLIENT MANAGEMENT PROCEDURES
COLLEGE CHEM II + LAB
COLLEGE ALGEBRA
COLLEGE CHEMISTRY I AND LAB
COMPOSITION I
COMPOSITION II
COMPUTER AIDED DRAFTING
COMPUTER CONCEPTS AND APPLICATIONS
COST ACCOUNTING
COUNSELING THE ALCOHOLIC AND DRUG ABUSER I
CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION II
CRIMINAL LAW FOR THE PARALEGAL
CRIMINOLOGY
CURRENT TOPICS AND ISSUES IN EXERCISE SCIENCE
CURRENT TOPICS AND TECHNOLOGY IN FIRE SCIENCE
CUSTOMER SERVICE
DOCUMENT FORMATTING I
DRAFTING FIELD PROJECT I
EARLY WORLD LITERATURE
ELEMENTARY ALGEBRA
ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE
ETHICS
EXERCISE PHYSIOLOGY
EXERCISE TESTING AND PRESCRIPTION
FIRE ADMINISTRATION I
FIRST AID
FORENSIC SCIENCE ANALYTICAL TECHNIQUES
FORENSIC SCIENCE ANALYTICAL TECHNIQ-LAB
FUNDAMENTALS OF EARLY CARE EDUCATION
FUNDAMENTALS OF RESPIRATORY CARE
FUNERAL SERVICE COUNSELING
GENERAL BIOLOGY
GENERAL CHEMISTRY
GENERAL PHARMACOLOGY
GROUP DYNAMICS AND ADDICTIONS I

Course Name
HTML WEB PAGE DEVELOPMENT
HUMAN ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY
HUMAN DEVELOPMENT
HUMAN RELATIONS IN BUSINESS
HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT
HUMAN SEXUALITY
HUMANITIES II
INCOME TAX PROCEDURES
INCOME TAX PROCEDURES
INDUST INTRN COMPUTER
INDUSTRIAL INTERNSHIP (COMPUTER)
INFANTS AND TODDLERS I
INFANTS AND TODDLERS II
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY
INTERMEDIATE ALGEBRA
INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS CULTURES
INTRODUCTION TO HOMELAND SECURITY AND WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION
INTRODUCTION TO MASS COMMUNICATIONS
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WELFARE
INTRODUCTION TO TEACHING: CAREER AWARENESS
INTRODUCTION TO ENTREPRENEURSHIP
INTRODUCTION TO FICTION
INTRODUCTION TO ADDICTIONS
INTRODUCTION TO BUSINESS
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL GEOGRAPHY
INTRODUCTION TO HUMANITIES
INTRODUCTION TO INTERNETWORKING AND ROUTERS
INTRODUCTION TO LAW
INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL EDUCATION
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL SCIENCE
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL THERAPY
INTRODUCTION TO THE INTERNET
INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS LABORATORY
INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS
JAVASCRIPT
KINESIOLOGY
LEGAL POLICY IN VICTIM SERVICES
LEGAL RESEARCH I
LEGAL WRITING
LIFETIME FITNESS
LITIGATION I
LOCAL AREA NETWORKING
MAJOR ENGLISH WRITERS II
MANAGERIAL ACCOUNTING
MARKETING
MATH ESSENTIALS
MEDICAL TERMINOLOGY
MICROBIOLOGY
MICROCOMPUTER APPLICATIONS I (SPREADSHEETS)
MICROCOMPUTER BUSINESS SOFTWARE
MODERN AMERICAN LITERATURE
MUSIC APPRECIATION
NUTRITION
OIS FEATURES REVIEW
OCCUPATIONAL INTERNSHIP I
OFFICE PRACTICUM
OFFICE SIMULATIONS
ORGANIC CHEMISTRY II
ORIENTATION TO FUNERAL SERVICE

Course Name
PATHOLOGY
PERSONAL FINANCE
PERSONAL SCHOOL COMMUNITY HEALTH
PHYSICAL EDUCATION FOR THE ELEMENTARY TEACHER
PHYSIOLOGY LABORATORY
PHYSIOLOGY
PICTORIAL DRAWING
POLICE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION I
PRE-CALCULUS MATHEMATICS
PRE-COMPOSITION
PRESCHOOLERS II
PRINCIPLES OF MACROECONOMICS
PRINCIPLES OF MANAGEMENT
PRINCIPLES OF MICROECONOMICS
PRINT READING
PSYCHOLOGY
PUBLIC SPEAKING
REAL ESTATE LAW
SMALL BUSINESS MGMT
SOCIAL PROBLEMS
SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY
SOCIOLOGY OF THE FAMILY
SOCIOLOGY
SPECIAL TOPICS IN ADDICTION: PHARMACOLOGY, HIV/MEDICAL HIGH RISK, ETHICS
SPEEDBUILDING I
SPEEDBUILDING II
SPORTS OFFICIATING
STATISTICS
Strategies FOR ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE/LIFELONG LEARNING
SUPERVISION TECHNIQUES
SYSTEM MANAGER
TECHNICAL INTERVENTIONS I
TECHNICAL WRITING
TECHNIQUES IN STRENGTH TRAINING
THE BIBLE AS HISTORY
THE GRIEVING PROCESS
THE LIVING BODY
TRAFFIC ADMINISTRATION AND CONTROL
TRANSITION CONCEPTS
UNITED STATES SINCE 1877
UNITED STATES TO 1877
VISUAL BASIC
WEB GRAPHICS AND MULTIMEDIA
WELLNESS, HEALTH AND SAFETY FOR THE YOUNG CHILD
WOMEN'S HEALTH: A TEAM APPROACH
WORLD CIVILIZATION II

"Making Life Better"

"An Equal Opportunity Educational Institution"

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, November 3, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 54

Subscrip. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

INSIDE

Wildcats open
e
St
E
Sp

Theodore Roosevelt Elementary to stay open

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Manhattan-Ogden USD 383 Board of Education Office was packed last night as parents and students of Theodore Roosevelt Elementary School gathered anxiously to hear the fate of their school.

The future of the elementary school has been wavering since last November 2004, when the board voted to close the school in May 2006 due to enrollment decreases and budget deficits.

However, one year later, things are looking up for USD 383. For the first time since 1991, the district has experienced an increased enrollment among elementary-aged children.

In addition, the district has gained 32 military-related students since Sept. 20, and nine to 10 percent of currently enrolled students are military related.

"That's almost a growth of one new student per school day," Superintendent Bob Shannon said.

With the expansion of Fort Riley impending, it is reasonable to assume this enrollment trend may continue, according to information presented at last night's meeting.

Shannon and Randy Martin, board president, attended a U.S. Army Education Summit in Washington D.C. on Oct. 20-21. The information they received at this international conference matched other predictions the board had received, meaning that a significant enrollment growth in the near future is possible.

Furthermore, the U.S. Army is looking at restructuring the entire force so that military personnel will remain located in one area for a time span of up to seven years, Shannon said.

In the short run, enrollment and economic prospects are bright, as it is likely military personnel will remain in the area long enough to raise children.

"We probably would have closed that school last May. Ultimately the board showed a lot of courage to take the information that it had and leave itself a window," Martin said. "I think we made the right decision then, and I think we're making the right decision now.

"Having said that, I appreciate the patience of the community to let this issue evolve and let information come out that allowed us to make a better decision," he said.

The Board decided to rescind the closure of Theodore Roosevelt in a 7-0 vote.

"We've really valued Theodore Roosevelt as a neighborhood school. When you close a school, it's not just the physical building that shuts down – you're disbanding an entire educational community," said Keith Miller, parent of a Theodore Roosevelt student. "TR is necessary to give the district the flexibility to take in new students."

Photo illustration by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Weighed DOWN

Heavy backpacks cause back problems in the future

By Eileen Laux
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In an non-scientific survey of K-State students, only three out of 10 were within the limits of carrying a healthy backpack weight.

Dr. Sean Sorell, chiropractor at the Sorell-Iversen Chiropractic Clinic, said backpacks can cause back problems if the student is carrying a lot of weight.

"Students should try their best to lighten their load and try to carry as minimal weight as possible," he said.

He said to use the straps and carry the bag on both shoulders, or to use the bags that are on wheels and can be pulled. Sorell said the average weight a person should carry varies from person to person.

"A football player who is 6'1 and 240 pounds can carry a bit more than a petite woman who is 5'2 and is 100 pounds," he said. "I would say about five pounds for most people, anything largely above that is going to cause you problems, but once again, it varies from person to person."

Students should keep backpacks as light as possible, he said. If they are waiting until shoulder or neck pain is present, then the bag is too heavy.

Dr. Kenyon Erickson, chiropractor at the Chiropractic Family Health Center, said students are basically overloading their back when they are piling on the books. Prolonged walking with the load can also hurt the back.

He said if students are driving to class, they should leave some of the books in the car.

"You can avoid back problems from your backpack by staying in shape, having better muscle tone, and strengthening the abdominal

See BACKPACKS Page 8

2 members of fishing team win scholarships at tournament

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two K-State anglers each won a $1,000 scholarship at the American Bass Anglers national tournament last month. Four members of K-State's fishing team traveled to Bossier City, La., to fish the Red River in the three-day Collegiate Angler Scholarship Tour.

Brad Taylor, senior in electrical engineering, placed third, and Cole Schmidt, senior in biological and agricultural engineering, took fifth. For placing in the top five, the two were awarded $1,000 scholarships.

Casey Smith, sophomore in industrial engineering, and Chris Hunter, junior in agricultural technology management, placed in the top 15 of the 20 to 30 competing collegiate fishermen.

"I thought it was fun fishing a new body of water," Smith said. "It was a really big tournament so it was fun."

After three days of practice fishing, the anglers fished for three days, catching a maximum of five 12-inch or larger bass per day. Their scores were based on the total weight of the bass caught, Smith said. Taylor's catches weighed in at 11.83 pounds, and Schmidt's totaled 10.25 pounds.

"I probably could have done better, but I'm happy with it," Taylor said.

Each day, the fishermen woke up at about 3 a.m., and waited in their boats for three hours before launching at "safe light," the first visible light. They fished for eight hours and finished each day at about 11 p.m., Taylor said.

Schmidt said he liked getting to meet other fishermen and learn new techniques.

To qualify for the tournament, the students submitted points based on their performance at four one-day tournaments and one two-day tournament. The top 10 universities in point standings were invited to attend the tournament, and the universities sent their top five anglers.

The team received $500 from K-State to attend the tournament, Smith said. Throughout the year, the members of K-State's fishing team and fishing club compete in tournaments across the state. They fish often at Milford Lake, Smith said.

Taylor, who has been fishing since he was 4 years old, said he fishes in about 15 tournaments per year.

"It relaxes me," he said. "And I fish tournaments because I like the competition."

Evangelist preaches at K-State

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State students are "copulating like rabbits," an evangelist said Wednesday afternoon in Bosco Student Plaza.

"Wake up little people. Your minds are being raped," George "Jed" Smock said with Bible in hand, the cuffs of his blue shirt unbuttoned and folded up once on his sleeves.

He spoke his mind to passers-by for several hours and averaged an audience of 30 people for more than an hour. The crowd dropped to less than 10 by late afternoon.

"I think we ought to judge; I think we ought to have righteous judgement," he said. "I want people to judge me."

And judge him they did. Smock brought a mixed reaction from the crowd with his statements about Christianity and college students. Some supported him, others disagreed with him, and some grew angry with him.

"Have you glorified God by what you've done today?" asked one student.

"Yes," Smock answered before taking another question.

Smock touched off a debate with his remarks on the behavior of people, college students in particular. He denounced birth control, homosexuality and other practices often condemned by Christian leaders.

"False prophets don't offend people," he said when one student called him a false prophet. "True prophets of God have always offended people."

Chuck Allen, a K-State alumnus on campus guiding a group of high school students for the Urban Scholastic League, walked out in front of the crowd. He put his hand on Smock's shoulder and asked to speak for a moment.

Allen told his story of rejecting God after he suffered several injuries while competing in running, then finding religion and praying often after having surgery on his leg to remove a cyst. He credited his mother's influence for the change.

See EVANGELIST Page 8

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
George Smock, a traveling evangelist, speaks to a group of students in the Bosco Student Plaza Wednesday afternoon.

Today

WINDY

High 78
Low 52

Friday

High 71
Low 45

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Parks mourned

More than 4,000 mourners attended Wednesday's three-hour funeral of civil rights pioneer Rosa Parks in Detroit. Parks, who died Oct. 24, helped spark the civil rights movement nearly 50 years ago by refusing to give her bus seat to a white man.

Story, Page 8

Local man arrested

Shea Torrez, 1203 Colorado St., was arrested at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday after the Riley County Police Department searched his home. The RCPD found methamphetamine prepared for distribution, marijuana and pieces of drug paraphernalia. Torrez is currently in the Riley County jail on five felony counts and two misdemeanor counts.

Man found dead

The Riley County Police Department found Fred Wolfe, 69, dead next to his van Wednesday morning. The RCPD said Wolf was north-bound on a county road when he lost control of his vehicle and overturned several times resting on its wheels. Wolfe climbed out of the vehicle where he died as a result of the injuries.

DON'T FORGET

Students with 51 credit hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

AFTERdark is at 7 tonight at Memorial Stadium.

Men's basketball exhibition begins at 7 tonight at Bramlage Coliseum.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Become one
4 Family
8 Prince Charles's pastime
12 Past
13 Present
14 Green acres
15 Night shift
17 Ring out
18 Evergreen
19 Public speaking
21 Playground set
24 Dos Passos trilogy
25 "Price Is Right" decor item
26 Will Ferrell movie
28 Chubby
32 Mideast potentate
34 Still
36 Dandling locale
37 Lucy : Ethel :: Wilma : —
39 Slight application
41 Aykroyd or Quayle
42 Afternoon get-together
44 Progenitor
46 Bring to trial
50 Postal Creed word
51 Sailors
52 Elvis hit
56 Send forth
57 Otherwise
58 — - Locka, Fla.
59 Periodicals, briefly
60 Antelope's playmate
61 Location finder (Abbr.)

DOWN
1 Bankroll
2 Freudian concept
3 It involves a pair of aces
4 Attack
5 Give the go-ahead
6 Not pizzicato
7 1960s jacket eponym
8 Encouraging words
9 Hydrox competitor
10 "To Tell the Truth" contestant
11 Sans siblings
16 Victory
20 Venomous viper
21 Impale
22 Carry on
23 Crafty
27 Nourished
29 Likely loser
30 Average
31 Cooped (up)
33 Authenticates
35 Spigot
38 Verily
40 Flag
43 Rued the run
45 Scepter
46 Particular
47 One of the Three Bears
48 Overly proper one
49 Loose-leaf feature
53 Work with
54 Unlike (Abbr.)
55 Petrol

Solution time: 25 mins.

S	I	N		J	E	S	T		S	U	M	O
P	T	A		A	G	E	E		P	R	O	D
A	C	T		C	O	A	S	T	L	I	N	E
S	H	O	O	K			T	O	E
			D	A	D	A		Y	E	L	L	S
H	E	A	D	L	I	N	E		N	O	O	K
A	L	L		S	E	N	D	S		C	O	Y
T	B	A	R		M	A	I	N	L	I	N	E
E	A	S	E	D		S	T	O	A
			S	R	A			R	Y	D	E	R
P	A	R	T	Y	L	I	N	E		E	A	U
A	G	U	E		T	O	U	R		A	S	S
S	E	E	D		O	U	T	S		L	Y	E

Yesterday's answer 11-3

11-3

CRYPTOQUIP

O APSSMAG OV'A BY BZVPBC XBZV VRBV BIBH BYI GEG BVG VRGHAGCEGA MPV MX RMPAG BYI RMHG.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A FELINE HAD A STORY FOR EACH OF ITS LIVES, COULD YOU HAVE A CAT O' NINE TALES?

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: V equals T

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time, but hey, it's better than lecture

Whatever happened to...?

CRYSTAL PEPSI

The clear-colored, caffeine-free soft drink was made from 1992 to 1993 in the United States and Canada. With Van Halen's "Right Now" playing in the background of the TV advertisement, PepsiCo thought it would be the next big money-maker. Initial tests showed there was a good general reception. Beginning sales were good, but eventually consumers didn't like the taste and thought it was too similar to regular Pepsi to be marketed as something different. Soon, it was pulled of the market, but some remaining cans and bottles are available for auction on eBay.

SLAP BRACELETS

A large favorite among pre-teens and teenagers in the 1990s, the "slap bracelet" is made of flexible metal bands with colorful cloth over it. When it'sstraightened, and then once slapped on the wrist, the bracelet wraps and forms around it. The bracelets were popular until they were banned from schools for supposedly causing carpel tunnel syndrome. Some are still available on eBay and other Web sites.

BOZO THE CLOWN

The show achieved widespread syndication and made Bozo the most well-known clown character in the United States. Bozo was created by Alan W. Livingston, who wrote and produced a storytelling record-album and a read-along book set titled Bozo at the Circus. The first show was shown in 1949 on Fridays at 7:30 p.m. Later, in 1959, it became a daily half-hour show with a live Bozo the Clown, and it reportedly grossed over $150 million in merchandise worldwide. There have been many Bozos and shows over the years. Bozo's Sunday Super Show was the final one, airing from 1994 to 2001.

ZUBAZ

Dan Stock and Bob Truax, two bodybuilders, created Zubaz, a brand of shorts and pants, as a comfortable and functional short for weightlifting. Zubaz originally began as shorts, but later developed into pants, caps, shirts and even diapers. The pants were originally created in zebra print, but later moved on to many other designs. The word zubaz later came to mean "in your face" among fans and athletes, the company sold $100 million worth of products in 1991 alone. The problem with the pants were they didn't breath properly and captured a large amount of heat and sweat. However, there are still some available on eBay.

HYPERCOLOR

A brand of clothing, mainly T-shirts and shorts, that changed color when it came in contact with heat. The shirts were produced usually in a tie-dye pattern that changed between two colors, contact with cold and warm. The shirts were manufactured in the late 1980s and early 1990s. The shirts could be damaged if accidentally placed in a hotter than recommended wash.

CHIA PETS

Chia pets are the figurines which grow out of the clay body of the particular animal it is shaped like. After three-to-five days of watering the pet and changing the drip dray, there should be lush, green plantings surrounding the pet. Little effort is required to care for the pet, and they are usually given as gifts. Chia pets are still available today in turtle, pig, puppy, kitten, frog and hippopotamus figurines.

Source: wikipedia.org Photos: courtesy art

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Tuesday, Nov. 1

- Arnold Tyson, 711 Allison Ave., Apt. 3, was arrested at 10:10 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $99.
- Ryan Howser, 3220 State St., was arrested at 2:45 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Grant Kocher, Topeka, was arrested at 4:15 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Andrea McCann, 600 Osage St., Apt. 1, was arrested at 4:50 p.m. for contribution to child misconduct and theft. Bond was set at $1,500.
- Shea Torrez, 1203 Colorado St., was arrested at 6:30 p.m. for manufacturing a simulated controlled substance, sale of opiates, opium or narcotics and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $12,500.
- Vonnie Neyhart, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 7:56 p.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- Career and Employment Services will sponsor a Dining Etiquette Workshop at 5:30 p.m. in the Gold Room at the Derby Dining Center. It is $6.50 per person or a meal exchange for students with a K-State meal plan. Business casual attire is required to attend the dinner.
- A class on how to find a journal article will be from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. today in Hale 408.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Carol Bragdon at 10:30 a.m. in Bluemont 368.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Yanmei Xiao at 1:30 p.m. today in Throckmorton 4031.
- Applications for Catalyst: A Self-Development Experience are due at 4 p.m. today in Waters 119.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Myers Insurance Agency
AUTO · HOME · LIFE · BUSINESS · HEALTH · SHORT-TERM HEALTH
776-7199
555 Poyntz Ave.
COLONY SQUARE
SUITE 227
Manhattan
Dan & Molly Myers
www.farmers.com
1-888-575-9543

$60 CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?
2 GREAT SPECIALS
1 GREAT PRICE
$60 COLOR AND HAIRCUT OR STYLING
*with Jess, Heather, & Nichole
*additional costs may be included on additional colors
*call for details
GALLERY Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
3266 Kimball • Candlewood • 776-5632

SAFE RIDE
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11:00 p.m. - 3:00 a.m.
We Drive. You Ride. Every Weekend.
Call:
539-0480
A free service provided by the K-State Student Governing Association

shout outs
are coming
November 9
to the Classifieds section
of the Collegian.
Check out our table in the Union for one FREE SHOUT OUT coupon!
Nov. 7,8,9
11 a.m. - 1 p.m.
$2 Guarantees YOU a voice in the Collegian!

Life skills

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Practicing a kick, Daniel Coppock, 8-year-old white belt, hits a punching bag during his Tae Kwon Do class. Coppock, his brother Joshua, 9, and sister Sarah, 4, take classes at U.S. A. Tae Kwon Do, 1109 N. 3rd St.

Students learn self-esteem through discipline

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Richard Burnett has studied it for 30 years.

And recently, he began teaching his expertise.

Yet, instead of teaching his students reading or writing, Burnett commits his time toward more physical and mental discipline: tae kwon do.

Every week, Richard and his wife teach more than 10 students martial arts skills through their business, which opened over the summer, U.S.A. Tae Kwon Do, 1109 N. 3rd St.

"It's much more than just kicking, yelling, punching and a few 'high-ya's,'" said Burnett. "It's a craft."

For some, it's easy to only believe television and movie stereotypes of tae kwon do, karate and martial arts, said Troy Auman, owner of Manhattan American Tae Kwon Do Association's Black Belt Academy, 1310 West Loop Place. Auman has taught tae kwon do for eight years.

"We actually try to approach our mail goal: to improve students' lives," Auman said. "We look at the number of students we have, the number of lives that we can help."

While some people may enroll in these classes to learn self-defense or to develop self-esteem, Auman said there are nine life skills that he aims to influence the character of the adults and children in his classes.

"For each testing, we rotated to a new life skill, which are taught and reinforced through classes," Auman said. "They are discipline, integrity, focus, attitude, goals, confidence, self-esteem, respect and persistence."

However, with teaching tae kwon do, Burnett and Auman have encountered a few problems.

"There are parents who worry that their child will use the tae kwon do inappropriately at school," Auman said. "I have had a student for a couple months, and he had a lot of trouble in school. His parents sent him here, and said his behavior surprisingly improved at school."

Tae kwon do students usually never use their skills outside the classroom, Burnett said. "It's a huge misconception," Burnett said. "We constantly emphasize to our students when and how to use their techniques," Burnett said.

Rachel Brown, Manhattan resident, said when she learned tae kwon do, she too was tempted to show off her skills to her friends.

"It's something that was really cool, letting people know that I had the skills to hurt them," Brown said. "But I really didn't want to hurt anyone, and my instructors made sure of that."

However, tae kwon do skills aren't just emphasized in the classroom. Auman said he requires his younger students to fulfill acts of kindness between classes. Students report back to Auman and their parents about what good things they did that week.

"We try to teach kids to be considerate and thoughtful to other people as well," Auman said. "We always get satisfied parents, saying that the student's grades and character are improving."

Throughout his 30 years of experience, Burnett said though his classes are small, they are very rewarding.

"I am glad that I get to share my time with my wife, my students," Burnett said. "These students deserve much, they are getting important life schools and I am grateful to have touched their lives, knowing that they are becoming greater people, more skilled."

Reading classes may improve student speed, comprehension

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Problems with re-reading tests and being behind in class readings were some of the issues addressed at a reading seminar Wednesday night.

The seminar was conducted by Staceylee Carlson, speaker and teacher for Effective Reading Centers, a program dedicated to teaching how to read two to five times faster.

"You're not here because you have a problem, you're here because you're suffering from a consequence," said Carlson.

"You don't have to be smart for college," said Carlson. "College is about persistence, and ability to get information in and keep it."

The seminar was an introduction to a class that will be offered on either Nov. 6 or 8.

The cost of the class is $299, and is limited to 30 students.

"You can expect to get your money's worth," said Carlson. "It's a one-time investment."

The class also comes with a money-back guarantee if effective reading rate, or speed times comprehension, is not doubled.

Chris Thompson, junior in finance, enrolled in the class directly after the seminar.

"I think it will help for reading faster and understanding," said Thompson. "I feel like it could help me get my GPA up."

The study methods taught were developed by founder and director Vickie Staub.

One method was introduced at the seminar by Carlson, what she called the "finger sweep." Students were instructed to swipe their finger under the lines of text, and this helps increase speed.

"It keeps you from re-reading the same line twice, and helps you see groups of words," said Carlson.

"I just came to see what it was about," said Caitlin Bleything, freshman in social work. "I haven't been able to concentrate on my reading, and was hoping to get something out of it."

Carlson is a product of the program herself. As a K-State student, she took the course and said she was very skeptical to begin with.

"I am skeptical by nature, but I went ahead and did it," said Carlson.

"It is a skill that I now use every day. It's also an acquired skill, and the more you practice, the better you get at it."

More information as well as registration can be found at www.effectivereading.com. A second seminar will be Thursday at 2, 4 and 7 p.m. in Union 213.

Needleless shots no longer in use

By Brigette Burandt
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A method for receiving shots without using needles is becoming more popular around the country, but is no longer offered in Manhattan.

The Manhattan Health Department used the needleless shot, but stopped because it was difficult on the elderly, said Kathy Dickie-Wilson, clinic supervisor for the Manhattan Health Department.

The gun, or needleless syringe, used for this type of vaccine contains carbon dioxide to push the vaccine into the tissue and can cause bruising in the elderly.

Dickie-Wilson said another drawback to this method of vaccination is that the carbon dioxide must constantly be refilled, making the vaccination more costly.

Students said not everyone would take advantage of the needleless shot were it available in Manhattan.

"If it was there, I would use it, but I wouldn't go out of my way to ask for it," Maren Taylor, junior in agronomy, said.

Nose spray however, is another method of vaccination still available. It's approved for people between the ages of 5 and 49. Lafene Health Center currently offers the nasal-spray flu vaccine.

dependable, quality service
✓ We can print from your Zip, CD-Rom, or USB flash drive.
Claflin Books and Copies

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

wildcats
2005-06 BASKETBALL

Thurs. November 3
vs. EA Sports All-Stars
7pm
Bramlage Coliseum
All Tickets - $10
K-STATE STUDENTS -
Free with valid student I.D.
Be Proud Be Purple
GO STATE!

GLASS IMPRESSIONS
PUBLIC HOURS:
Tue-Fri 11-6 • Sat 10-5
Holiday Preview:
Sunday Nov 6: 1-6 pm
Unusual & Well Designed
HANDMADE GLASS
NEW GLASS STUDIOS
• Dakota Ward (Colorado) Venetian Style Ornaments
• Hammerlane Glass (Kansas) Wall Vases & Paperweights
PLUS
• More Very Unusual Clocks & New Bulova Frank Lloyd Wright Designs
• Cool Jewels Crystal & Sterling Jewelry

GLASS IMPRESSIONS
329 Poyntz Ave • Downtown Manhattan • 785-539-4610

RAMBLERS
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner-2 complete dinners
$1.75 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

www.kstatecollegian.com

Shakin' Up Turkey Day!
Shake's FROZEN CUSTARD
Try our specialty coffees open @ 8 a.m.
Shake it up with a Pumpkin Custard Pie
Coming Soon: Shake Cakes in assorted varieties
104.1 special every Monday
$1.04 cups and cones
10% OFF WITH K-STATE ID
$1 OFF WITH THIS AD
5th & Ft. Riley Blvd.

Fat's BAR & GRILL
Thursdays
$2.00 bottles
$3.50 fishbowls
12th & Laramie
Aggieville

Student Foundation Needs You!
Help change K-State for the better by serving on the Student Foundation.
Get Involved!
Gain leadership and networking skills while helping K-State maintain its outstanding tradition of charitable giving.
Applications Due November 28th
To find application visit:
www.found.ksu.edu/studentfoundation

TO THE POINT

School board should show more consistency

The Manhattan-Ogden USD 383 school board has flip-flopped so much this past year that they are comparable to John Kerry and his political inconsistencies.

Due to the district's $2 million deficit, board members have considered cutting back on programs, teaching positions and even schools, including a vote to close Theodore Roosevelt Elementary at the end of this school year.

Parents, teachers and students have protested and cried tears over saving their beloved school since the district decided to close the it last year.

On Wednesday, the board reviewed their decision to close the school and decided to give Theodore Roosevelt Elementary a second chance, to stay open beyond this school term.

The school board's roller-coaster connection with the community is like a bad relationship, filled with broken promises and too much instinctive behavior.

Board members should have accounted for the children of the 22,000 new Fort Riley personnel, future budget changes and the long-term influence of their voting decision one year ago.

What this district needs is discipline, organization and a forward-thinking approach toward enriching the education of area elementary and high school students.

All that USD 383 needs is stronger continuity so people can remain confident in our community and the future of younger generations.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Dating truths

Communication, David Bowie important when dealing with opposite sex

GRANT REICHERT

Are you single by choice? Not by your choice, mind you, but by the collective choice of all humanity? Is your idea of a hot date scrap-booking with your grandma? Have you ever taken more than one Women's Studies class during the same semester? If so, don't worry, help is on the way. Welcome to the sex column by the guy who's never had. Here we answer your deep and burning questions about why you've got lesions that are deep and burning.

From the mailbag: "Hello. My girlfriend and I were looking to get intimate, but we don't want any of the side effects. We were looking into contraception, and I was intrigued by this 'abstinence' thing. Is it really 100 percent effective?" No, absolutely not. Abstinence is not 100 percent effective – that is just anti-Christian propaganda, put out by atheists.

Why, the whole religion of Christianity is based on a gal that abstained and got pregnant anyway. Truth be told, the only 100 percent effective form of contraception is joining the K-State Marching Band. Don't perpetuate anti-Christian lies; abstinence is not 100 percent effective.

Wow, sex columns are hard work. First question, and I'm literally covered in a figurative sweat here. Reducing sex to a hedonistic motor function by divorcing all moral and social opprobrium therefrom isn't easy. But I'll slog on.

From the mailbag: "What should I say if a girl says she wants to talk about my feelings?"

Great question. There's a right way and a wrong way to deal with this.

WRONG: "Baby, I don't got any feelings. Can I feel yours?" This is too blunt, too vulgar and not at all romantic. Try this instead:

"Okay. Definitely. Absolutely. Let's share feelings. But, right now, I seem to have jabbed a pen deep into my abdomen. So what say you and I go on a little stroll down to the emergency room, hmm, honey cakes? I think I ruptured my intestinal wall – it'll be romantic."

That'll show your sensitivity while simultaneously deflecting any talk of feelings and such.

It's not that guys don't have feelings – we're just simpler than that.

According to expert stereotypes, a guy doesn't need some deep emotional commitment to a gal. All a guy is looking for in a gal is someone that promises not to die in strange circumstances while he's innocently away on a fishing trip which, coincidentally, happens to be in the selfsame area where the body is eventually discovered.

Because that could only lead to misunderstandings and misunderstandings lead to miscommunication – the bane of any good marriage.

But I get ahead of myself with talk of marriage. Most college students have trouble just getting a date.

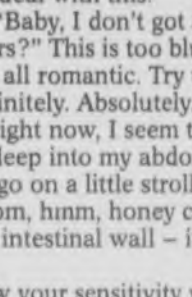
Therefore, in conclusion, I'll offer three helpful bits of dating advice, more powerful than a ground-up rhino horn/tiger penis aphrodisiac smoothie.

ADVICE #1

Be sure to give lots of compliments. "Your hair smells nice and clean, like spring fresh urinal cakes" or "I couldn't help but notice that you're not incredibly fat. Bully for you."

ADVICE #2:

Don't shave your legs. If you shave your legs, then how will you brush the crumbs off your fingers? You can't just be walking around all crumb-fingered and expect to get a date.



ADVICE #3:

Be yourself. Or, if that doesn't work, try being someone else. Then, if you're still having problems, have someone else be you, and you be David Bowie as Jareth the Goblin King. I don't see how this could fail.

Grant Reichert is a junior in political science. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Republicans should consider future

ZACHARY T. ECKELS

I still remember the good old days of having a president of whom I was proud. Living in a country that was constantly moving forward and with an actual surplus of money. The days before I knew George W. Bush was going to someday be elected the president of the United States.

Now, five years after this dream collapsed, Republicans may soon be facing the same scenario. With an overall job approval rating around 40 percent in the latest polls, Bush is dragging the party down with him.

Not only is he dragging the party down though, he's making the conditions it will eventually face worse. Poor choices by Bush like nominating Appellate Court Judge Samuel A. Alito Jr. might sound good at this time, but one has to think about what will most likely be lost in order to appoint him.

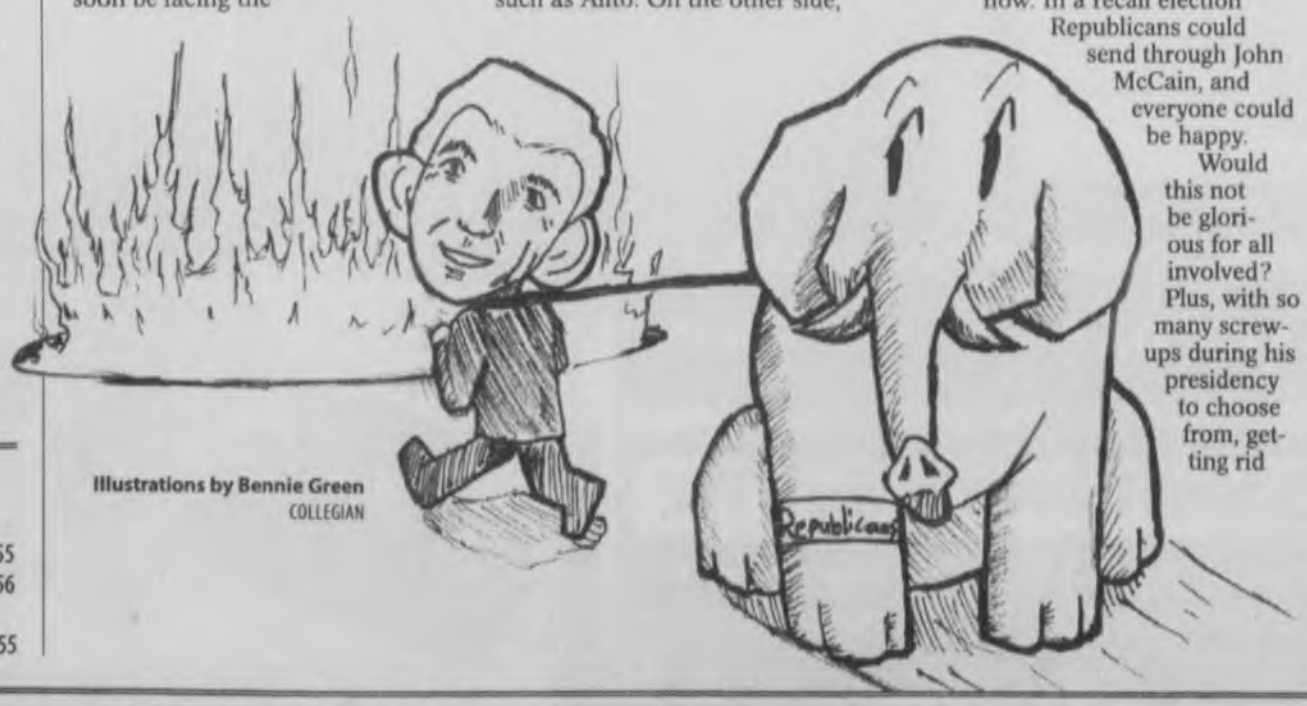
With both sides preparing for an all-out war over abortion, the outcome may be disastrous. Democrats have long promised to filibuster any ultra-conservative nominations such as Alito. On the other side, Republicans have the "nuclear option" to change the rules and avoid this filibuster.

When we put all of this together, it's not hard to see this coming back and biting us all right in the rear in the future.

The only reason I'm not sitting back and waiting for this to happen is because the best solution for Republicans would actually benefit everyone. Give up on Bush. Just impeach him now or better yet figure out a way to have a recall election like in California.

Think about it, although it hurts to admit it, Democrats really don't have any great names to run right now. In a recall election Republicans could send through John McCain, and everyone could be happy.

Would this not be glorious for all involved? Plus, with so many screw-ups during his presidency to choose from, getting rid of Bush could be easier than that rash you've been meaning to get checked out.



Not only has this man misled our nation on numerous occasions, he has committed international war crimes. He's the blundering fool who used all of our money, all of our army, and then gave his rich buddies huge tax cuts. The complete moron who would rather put friends in high positions in our government than those who are qualified.

None of these excuses are as good as his latest blunder. The Rove scandal could become the final nail in his coffin if we can only push it far enough.

Seriously, does anyone really believe that Bush had no idea what was going on right under his nose? This isn't some small issue here, this was an attempt to eliminate the freedom to oppose their administration.

Not only did they try to silence the voices of the people, they sold out an undercover CIA agent. That's right, our president is a traitor to our own country, and the White House doesn't deny it.

For now, Republicans, you still have the majority. The best thing you can do with this power is remember what happened to us Democrats and know that it could happen to you.

Illustrations by Bennie Green COLLEGIAN

Zachary T. Eckels is a junior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

To the hot ninja chick running around last night, I love you and you can flip out on me any time.

Trick or beer?

Two fish are swimming in a river. One runs into a concrete wall and says to the other "Dam."

Long live the Frat lap.

To the guy who hates 91.9 — would you rather listen to the same eight songs all day like they play on all the other crappy radio stations here in this town?

Kody Cooper you are a bad Grant Reichert knock off.

Kody Pooper should do everyone a favor, purge himself of stupidity, and stop spewing verbal diarrhea — long live porn.

Can somebody please fix the clock in Eisenhower 016. It's really annoying that it doesn't work.

91.9 is awesome, and anyone who doesn't realize that has had their soul sucked out by crappy corporate radio.

The minute my girlfriend gets a gun is the minute I move out of Kansas.

Yeah Jonas, because what K-State really needs is 12,000 females with makeup, lipstick and a chrome-plated nine in their freaking handbag.

She's so hot she could be a robot.

You kids switch partners more than square-dancers.

Woo, do my shoes smell.

A couple of G4 girls just told me they wanted to see my package.

So how do you like them apples?

To the girl at Wal-Mart by the toy aisle that smiled at me — she's really cute. I kind of like her.

To the girl who said there's no nice guys left in the world — did you ever think it's you? And the guys don't like you because of your attitude or something?

To anyone who heard President Wefald speak today — you know what I'm talking about. He's probably the most influential man on campus, and if you've never heard him speak, that sucks.

Jonas Hogg proved, once again, he is, indeed, a tool.

Hey, Jonas Hogg, since you want to let everyone carry a concealed weapon why not give every terrorist that visits our reactor a complimentary chuck of uranium.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Laughs, love, losers

Art: courtesy photos

Teen movies unrealistic but entertaining, popular

By Brigette Burandt
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

What most people call "teen movies," such as the "American Pie" series and "Road Trip" have been very popular, but they don't represent reality, students said.

This type of movie usually revolves around the idea of the nerd or the dork getting to be with the really cool person, whether that be a guy or a girl. Clear lines are drawn between who's popular and who's not, but things don't really work that way in real life, students said.

"In reality there's more just a hodgepodge of people instead of the line between popular and unpopular," Stacy Gettings, senior in English, said.

Other viewers tend to agree about the presence of cliques in the movies.

"Everyone's not that obviously divided," Erica Foster, senior in history, said.

Gettings said she doesn't think anyone views the contents of teen movies as being realistic, for the most part.

"Some things are true, like the love trouble and the teen angst, but they carry it a little too far," Gettings said. "Nobody watches it like it's real life. Teen movies are to entertain."

While these movies can be funny, students said sometimes it's just too routine.

"Teen movies are funny, but it's a stupid kind of funny. It's entertaining but so predictable," Maren Taylor, junior in agronomy, said. "Sometimes it's like, 'why bother even going?'"

"Teen movies are funny, but it's a stupid kind of funny."

Maren Taylor
JUNIOR IN AGRONOMY

Students say teen movies don't give enough credit to the intelligence of young people, dumbing down the contents of the movie.

"The average person is pretty intelligent, but teen movies seem to lower people's intelligence," Taylor said.

For others, it's the characters that aren't realistic. Characters in teen movies, such as the ever-present Stifler in the "American Pie" series, can often be shallow.

"Characters aren't very complex. I like to think people are more complex in real life," Foster said.

Whatever reasons they give, most people said not much is realistic in teen movies. However, most people agree that they are often entertaining, with a kind of slapstick comedy.

The wave of teen movies from a few years ago, including "American Pie," "Road Trip" and "EuroTrip," appears to be over, but with the release of the new "American Pie: Band Camp," another sequel to the popular "American Pie," soon to come, perhaps they're in for a comeback.

Breakfast pizza a good alternative to leftovers

By Kelly Schmitt
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

As Thanksgiving weekend approaches, visions of a house full of family enters the mind.

Thanksgiving dinner leftovers can carry over for a few days, but they don't exactly hit the spot for breakfast.

Here enters the breakfast pizza. Someone has already slaved away to make the large feast provided on Thursday afternoon, but there are still people to feed on Friday morning.

This breakfast pizza has elements that can be prepared ahead of time.

While the main meal preparer takes a break, anyone else can pull the partially prepared breakfast pizza out of the freezer, add the remaining toppings and pop it into the oven.

Courtesy art

Quick and easy breakfast pizza recipe

1 pizza crust
1 pound of sausage
1 cup of frozen hash brown potatoes
1 cup of shredded cheese
4 eggs
3 tablespoons of milk
1/2 teaspoon of salt
1/8 teaspoon of pepper
2 tablespoons of grated Parmesan cheese
2-4 slices of precooked bacon, chopped or crumbled

Brown the sausage, drain and allow to cool. Spread the sausage over the pizza crust. Top with the hash brown potatoes and shredded cheese.

Beat eggs, milk, salt and pepper. Pour over the potatoes and cheese. Sprinkle the Parmesan cheese and bacon over the top. Bake at 375 degrees for 25-30 minutes. Slice with pizza cutter and serve.

If preparing ahead of time, the crust, sausage, potatoes and shredded cheese may be frozen. Bacon can be cooked ahead of time and frozen in a plastic bag.

Thaw pizza, and then add the beaten eggs, milk, salt, pepper, Parmesan cheese and bacon before cooking.

HOROSCOPES

Aquarius (Jan. 21 - Feb. 18)
Good day to take up knitting on horseback. Everyone needs an adventure.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Excellent day for unfettered optimism. Tomorrow: fettered optimism.

Aries (March 21 - April 19)
A good day to start getting your affairs in order. You shouldn't be having affairs anyway, so the least you can do is tidy them up.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)
Your obsession with Lapsang Souchong tea takes a turn for the worse, today, as you begin secretly soaking your undergarments in it. Professional help is indicated.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Today you will notice yet another large freshly-dug mound of dirt in your neighbor's back yard. It's probably nothing — he probably just digs at night if he can't get to sleep. I know I do.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)
Everyone you see will be "power walking" today. Ignore them — they're just trying to get on your nerves.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22)
If you aren't careful, you may accidentally insult someone by a poor choice of words and hurt their feelings. In particular, the expression "hideously deformed" may not be as neutral as you believe.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
You will feel an odd compulsion to stack books, symmetrically, in the public library. Try to resist it.

Libra (Sept. 22 - Oct. 22)
You will contemplate nothingness today, but somethingness will keep intruding upon your thoughts.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
Today will be mostly OK, except that you'll learn to pay more attention in the future to the phrase "Careful, filling is hot!"

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
Today you will turn over a new leaf. Good for you! We were all getting a little tired of you, you know, as you were.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20)
Good day to use nautical terms in ordinary situations, and to refer to the different sides of your building as "port" and "starboard."

Source: www.humorscope.com

BILLBOARD CHARTS

Top 20 albums

1. Ashlee Simpson, "I Am Me"

2. Rod Stewart, "Thanks for the Memory: The Great American Songbook, Vol. 4"

Stewart

3. Martina McBride, "Timeless"

4. Nickelback, "All the Right Reasons"

5. Stevie Wonder, "A Time to Love"

6. Bun-B, "Trill"

7. Depeche Mode, "Playing the Angel"

8. Black Eyed Peas, "Monkey Business"

9. Alicia Keys, "Unplugged"

10. Kanye West, "Late Registration"

11. Billy Currington, "Doin' Somethin' Right"

12. Kelly Clarkson, "Breakaway"

13. Young Jeezy, "Let's Get It: Thug Motivation 101"

14. Mariah Carey, "The Emancipation of Mimi"

15. Thrice, "Vheissu"

16. Sheryl Crow, "Wildflower"

17. Melissa Etheridge, "Greatest Hits: The Road Less Traveled"

18. Chris Botti , "To Love Again: The Duets"

19. Gary Allan, "Tough All Over"

20. Green Day, "American Idiot"

Source: MTV.com

High school QB shows poise under pressure

The Platte County High Pirates played host to the Maryville Spoof Hounds last Friday.

My cousin, Tyler Grimes, is the starting quarterback for the Pirates, and this was the first game in which I had ever watched him play.

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

The Pirates found themselves in an unexpected dogfight against a team they were supposed to blow out.

After a sloppy start, they could only manage a 7-0 lead with two minutes to play in the first half.

Grimes said he knew he needed to find a way to get the ball in the endzone and give his team a cushion going into halftime.

"Our offense had not been able to move the ball very well the whole first half," Grimes said. "After they punted to us and gave us good field position with less than two minutes to go, I knew I was going to have to find a way to put points on the board, which would give my team a little bit of confidence going into the half."

The first play of the drive was a pass to the left, and the receiver ran out of bounds after a 13-yard gain giving the Pirates the ball on the 42-yard line with 1:08 to go.

Grimes went over to the sideline to get the next play from coach Chip Sherman.

"I told him to run the same play," Sherman said. "I told him to keep his eyes open for the guy on the right, hoping he would see the receiver running the post."

The safety for the Spoof Hounds had been jumping the crossing route to the left all game, and Grimes knew his receiver on the right would be open if he ran a good route.

"The safety was cheating over on the left side on the previous play because we had two receivers to that side and one receiver to the right," Grimes said. "I knew that I had to look that safety off by looking to the left. Doing this would cause the safety to jump even more to the left than he did previously, which would open up the middle of the field for my receiver running the post on the right."

While Grimes was jogging to the huddle to tell his teammates the play, he was thinking how he was going to force the safety to bite.

"The only thing I could think about was making sure I looked the safety off enough to give my receiver enough room to find the hole in the secondary," Grimes said.

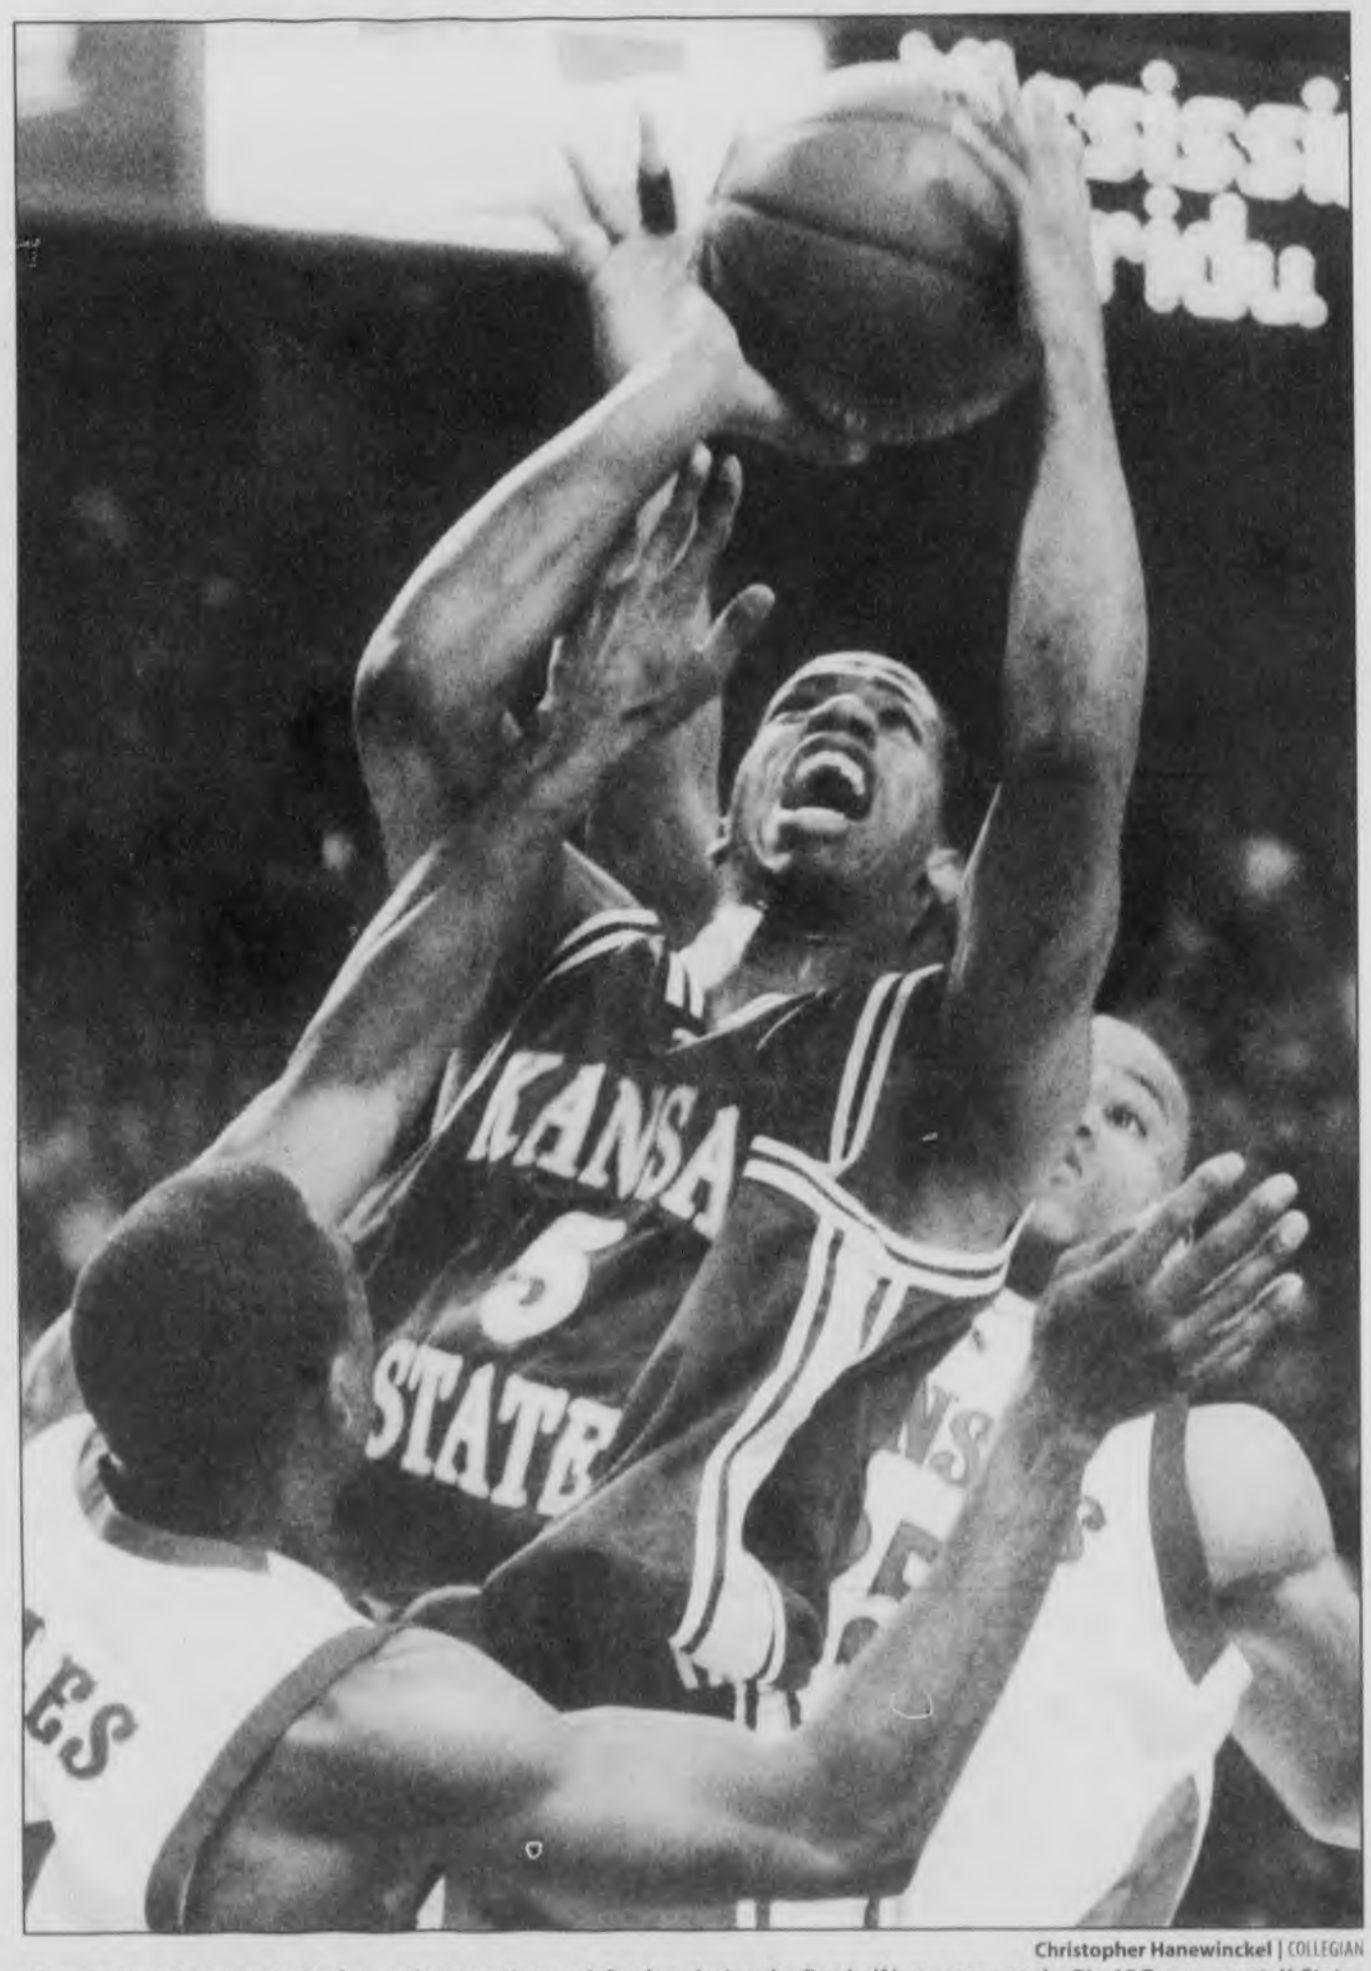
He looked at his teammates and knew the play was going to work. He made sure the tight end and running back both knew their responsibilities, and told his lineman to give him enough time to get the pass off.

Everything worked according to plan, and Grimes saw his receiver streaking down the field.

He released the ball, hoping he had put enough air underneath it.

"My receiver did not get as deep as I would have liked, so I took a little off the pass," Grimes said. "I saw it was going to be good, but I was just hoping he wasn't going to have to wait for it, and luckily everything worked out perfectly."

The ball fell softly into the hands of his receiver, and Grimes watched with a smile on his face as his teammate jogged into the endzone for a 42-yard touchdown.



"There was a lot of pressure on this play," Grimes said. "We had been getting ripped all day, and it was a relief to finally have something positive happen for myself and my teammates."

The touchdown took away the pressure, and was the catalyst that helped the Pirates come out and score 21 points in the second half to win 35-7.

My cousin showed great poise and leadership in a game where his teammates looked to him for a lift. He will carry his team deep into the playoffs, and hopefully to a state championship.

Cedrique Flemming is a junior in print journalism and business. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

New identity

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Clent Stewart drives to the basket against two Kansas defenders during the first half last season at the Big 12 Tournament. K-State will play their first exhibition game tonight against EA Sports All-Stars in Bramlage Coliseum.

Men's basketball team begins season tonight

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When the K-State men's basketball team plays its first exhibition game tonight, the players will be thrilled to finally be playing someone other than their own teammates. The Wildcats have been practicing for three weeks, and at 7 tonight, they will face the EA Sports All-Stars in Bramlage Coliseum.

This is the first of two scheduled exhibition matches for the Wildcats before the regular season begins on Nov. 18.

"I know our players are (ready to go)," coach Jim Wooldridge said. "We are going to play the game and see where we are, and then improve from there. We'll see what this exhibition game will show us."

The Wildcats will have a very different look this season, with several new players and a change in the offense affecting the overall identity of the team.

Because it is an exhibition match, the players will be able to focus on those changes and discover how they need to improve, junior guard Lance Harris said.

"I think we're going to find out our weaknesses," Harris said. "Then we will be able to work on them before we get to the real games."

K-State is expected to play a new style of basketball this season, with four guards on the floor for much of the game and a more up-tempo offense. The new offense will feature more movement, and allow any player to find himself at a variety of spots on the court.

The game tonight will be the first test to see how this new style of play is progressing.

"The biggest thing for us is just getting comfortable with the new offense," sophomore point guard Clent Stewart said. "It's a new offense for all of us. We are learning, but the exhibition game will let us know how well we understand it."

The Wildcats have played the EA Sports All-Stars in each of the last two seasons, going 1-1 in those two games. Last year, K-State won 71-59 to move to 8-6 in exhibition play.

Wooldridge said this year's version of the EA Sports All-Stars should provide a challenge for the frontcourt, which happens to be one of the biggest uncertainties for this team heading into the season.

Wooldridge said he hopes to see several things out of his players.

"First and foremost, I want to see guys playing hard," he said. "I want to see some form of organization and efficient execution. I am also interested to look at the combination of players. In practice, we've had groups that just didn't look good together, and other groups that look really good together."

Overall, the main focus will be on improvement, Wooldridge said, and that this game gives the team a chance to work out some of its flaws before the regular season begins in a little more than two weeks.

"We're a long way from being a polished product," Wooldridge said. "We've got a lot of adjustments ahead of us and a lot of improvement ahead of us. We're just beginning."

VOLLEYBALL

K-State sweeps season series with ISU

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It may not have been a picture-perfect win, but the volleyball team began the second half of the Big 12 Conference season just as they had hoped, taming Iowa State in Ames, Iowa, 3-2 (26-30, 30-27, 26-30, 30-24, 15-12).

"It was an up and down game," coach Suzie Fritz said. "Bottom line, I think we played well late. We need to play with more of a sense of urgency in the beginning of the game."

The Cyclones (13-12, 6-8 Big 12) controlled the tempo of the first three games with the help of sophomore Erin Boeve, who challenged K-State (16-7, 7-6) with 28 kills, accompanied by junior Jessica Klein with 16 and junior Katie Jessen with 11.

"They looked really good in game one, and I didn't think we were playing bad. They just looked really good," Fritz said.

In game four, the Wildcats battled back from an 18-13 deficit with the help of redshirt-freshman Megan Kroeker, who ignited an 11-1 K-State run.

"Megan was the reason we won that game," Fritz said. "She served about six points in a row and gave us the momentum we needed."

The tie-breaking game was "up and down," with 11 ties and four lead changes. The Wildcats, however, pulled out the victory with a kill from sophomore Rita Lilliom and an attack error by Iowa State.

In its first victory in three games, K-State had four players who tallied double digits in kills. Junior Sandy Werner led the wrecking crew with 22 kills on a .268 hitting percentage. Senior Agata Rezende notched 21 kills, Lilliom boasted 13 kills and junior Joy Hamlin put up 11. Sophomore Stacey Spiegelberg had 67 assists, tying her career high.

"We served and passed extremely well," Fritz said. "We didn't start off great, but we played late well when we had to."

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

MLB | Sweeney, MacDougal voted tops for Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas City Royals first baseman Mike Sweeney, who led his team in hitting, doubles and home runs this season despite missing 40 games due to injury, has been named the Royals' player of the year for the third time.

Sweeney's selection by the local chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America was announced Wednesday, along with that of Mike MacDougal as the team's top pitcher.

Sweeney, 32, hit .300, with 39 doubles and 21 homers. It was the sixth time in the last seven seasons that he has had 20 or more home runs. He ranks third on the team's all-time list with 182, behind George Brett's 317 and Amos Otis' 193.

MacDougal, 28, a right-handed relief pitcher, was 5-6 with 21 saves in 25 chances and an ERA of 3.33. At one point, he had 15 consecutive saves. Saves for his career with Kansas City total 49.

MLB | Mazzilli returns to Yankees as bench coach

NEW YORK — Former Baltimore manager Lee Mazzilli rejoined the New York Yankees on Wednesday as Joe Torre's bench coach.

Mazzilli

Mazzilli was the Yankees' first base and outfield coach from 2000 to 2003, then was manager of the Orioles until he was fired Aug. 4.

Mazzilli replaces Joe Girardi, who became manager of the Florida Marlins.

NFL | Owens' status in doubt against Cowboys, Redskins

Receiver Terrell Owens has told the Eagles that his availability for two key NFC East games against the Redskins and Cowboys is in jeopardy because of a sprained ankle he sustained against the Broncos in Denver on Sunday, sources have told ESPN's Chris Mortensen.

Owens

Owens sprained the ankle, the same one on which he had surgery last year, in the loss Sunday to Denver and limped around the locker room after the game.

Owens is considered doubtful, meaning he has a 25 percent chance of playing against the Redskins.

GLF | PGA Tour commish proposed playoff for 2007

ATLANTA — The PGA Tour might look like NASCAR in two years, with a season-long points race culminating with four blockbuster tournaments and a massive payoff to the winner.

PGA Tour commissioner Tim Finchem disclosed the radical changes Wednesday during his State of the Tour, although he said most of the details would not be completed until next year.

Starting in 2007, the new schedule will be built around the FedEx Cup.

The premise is for players to earn points from January through August, and those points then staggered to set the stage for a big finish. Finchem said there would be three tournaments leading to the conclusion at the Tour Championship, which will be played in September.

SCR | ABC, ESPN buy rights to televise World Cup

NEW YORK — ABC and ESPN bought U.S. English-language television rights for the 2010 and 2014 World Cups from FIFA for $100 million in a deal announced Wednesday.

The deal with the networks, owned by The Walt Disney Co., also includes rights to the 2007 and 2011 Women's World Cups, and the 2009 and 2013 Confederations Cups.

The 2010 World Cup will be played in South Africa and the 2014 tournament in South America, with Brazil the leading candidate to be the host.

Women's AP Top 25

1. Tennessee	756
2. Duke	724
3. LSU	668
4. Ohio State	648
5. Rutgers	573
5. Georgia	573
7. Baylor	562
8. North Carolina	557
9. Connecticut	549
10. Stanford	482
Other Big 12 teams:
12. Texas	431
13. Texas Tech	418
25. Oklahoma	99

Faculty members receive awards

2 Fort Hays State alumni recognized for contributions

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two K-State faculty members received alumni awards from Fort Hays State University during its Homecoming.

Donald W. Kaufman and Mark D. Haub were recognized at the annual FHSU Alumni and Endowment Awards Reception and Banquet.

Kaufman, professor of biology, received an Alumni Achievement Award, which is given for outstanding, unselfish contributions in service to community, state or nation, both in the recipient's career field and through philanthropy. Four of these awards were distributed this year.

"I thought it was quite an honor since they give out so few each year, and it is based on a career's worth of work," Kaufman said.

Haub
Assistant Professor

Kaufman
Professor

Kaufman earned two degrees from FHSU, a bachelor's degree in general science in 1965 and a master's degree in zoology in 1967. He also earned a doctorate in zoology from the University of Georgia in 1972.

Kaufman has taught at the University of Arkansas and the State University of New York-Binghamton.

He also served as the initial director of the Population Biology and Physiological Ecology Program of the National Science Foundation in Washington, D.C., before becoming an assistant professor at K-State, and eventually a full professor in 1991.

Haub, assistant professor of human nutrition, was presented with a Young Alumni Award.

This award recognizes 10- to 15-year graduates for professional and educational achievement, community activities, honors and awards, or other accomplishments since graduation.

"It was surprising," Haub said. "Not that I don't appreciate what we've done, but it was a nice letter to receive."

Haub graduated from FHSU in 1992 with a bachelor's degree in psychology. He received a master's degree in exercise science from the University of Kansas in 1996 and a doctorate in exercise physiology from KU in 1998.

While at KU, he was presented with an Outstanding Doctoral Student Award.

Before joining the K-State faculty in 2000 as an assistant professor in the Department of Human Nutrition, Haub was an instructor on the interim graduate faculty in the department of physical education at the University of Missouri-Kansas City in 1998.

1998 to 2000, he was a research fellow in the Nutrition, Metabolism and Exercise Laboratory at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences.

"I've been pretty lucky. I've had good people to work with," Haub said. "It's a team approach and I just happen to be at the right place at the right time.

"I try to be passionate about what I do and I love working at K-State," he said.

Swing away

Eric Bacon, sophomore at Shawnee Mission West High School, practices playing cricket Wednesday afternoon outside Seaton Hall. Bacon was visiting the campus to compete in a Java programming contest.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished-

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7650.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT, close to campus, available now. All utilities paid. Washer/ dryer. $375. (785)317-7713.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490. two-bedrooms $750. three-bedrooms $700-$825. (785)537-7701.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

120 For Rent- Houses

FOUR-BEDROOM, TWO bath duplex. One-half mile from campus. Washer/ dryer included. Single property owner. No pets. No smoking. 1410 Houston. Number Two. (785)776-9260.

FOUR-BEDROOM, TWO bath, two blocks from campus. Washer/ dryer hookups. Deck with grill. Quiet neighborhood, nice yard, nice house. $1400/ month. Available immediately. Call (620)792-1933 or malonerental@yahoo.com

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

145 Roommate Wanted

Roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

LOOKING FOR female to take over one-third of lease at Founder's Hill. Own bathroom and washer/ dryer in apartment. Alex Dunn at (785)317-4095 or adunn@ksdot.org.

ROOMMATES: MALE or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

ADVERTISE YOUR SUBLEASE
LET'S RENT SECTION
532-6555
105 S. Kedzie

120 For Rent- Houses

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $900/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE: two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

2000 SCHULT 16x80. Three-bedroom , two bath, large deck, fenced lot located in Riverchase. Call (785)564-0904 or (785)565-8292.

145 Roommate Wanted

1225 RATONE roommates needed. One and one-half bathroom. Available immediately. Ask Jin (785)341-7089.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and utilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: No smoking. Two-bedroom apartment. Close to campus. Off-street parking. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. (620)481-9837.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: three-bedroom house for spring semester. Rent $320 plus utilities. Very nice house. (316)990-2046.

ONE BEDROOM available in two-bedroom apartment. Quiet non-smoker, pets okay. Call Nicole at (913)220-5854.

ROOMMATE NEEDED. Three-bedroom house. Backyard with deck and fence. Easy to get along with roommates. Simple quick drive to campus. (785)845-2212.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed, Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM. Close to campus. For more information, call (620)276-4940.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE SUBLEASER: Walking distance to campus. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. Rent negotiable. Call (402)641-1886.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $395/ month. Washer/ dryer. Sublease December. (785)317-1162 or (785)317-2319.

SUBLEASE: CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms, University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

SUBLEASER NEEDED. Two-bedroom apartment. Block from campus and Aggieville. All utilities paid except electricity. $550/ month. Call (316)210-1164 or (316)993-0214.

SUBLEASER WANTED for spacious one-bedroom apartment with washer and dryer. Available mid-December. $375/ month. Call Jenny at (913)706-7361.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

NOW HIRING wait staff. Apply in person 2- 5pm. Tuesday- Friday. 1130 Moro.

310 Help Wanted

/BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext 144.

Daytime Cook Needed
- Hard-working
- Self-motivated
- Team player
- $6/hr

Pete's Wicked Barbeque
539-7426

Full/ Part-time Technical Writer Positions open to all students. Get paid by the project- pay of $15+ per hour possible. Flexible hours are ideal for self-motivated, unsupervised worker. Must be U.S. Citizen, with minimum 1210 SAT score or 27 ACT score. Requires computer/ Internet access and strong writing skills- frequent grammar, spelling mistakes are unacceptable. Email techwriting-job@yahoo.com with a quick summary of your work experience, major and SAT/ACT score.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 opportunity market

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

415 Furniture to Buy/Sell

FREE: HIDE-A-BED sofa. Good condition. Call (785)539-8025.

420 Garage/Yard Sales

CHURCH RUMMAGE SALE: College Avenue United Methodist Church, 1609 College Avenue. Friday, November 4th: 5:00 PM- 8:00 PM, and Saturday, November 5th: 7:30 AM- Noon. Major items include: Student desk with hutch; computer desk with hutch; weight-lifting bench; much, much more! "Need some stuff? Don't want new? Come and shop, College Avenue!"

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

500 transportation

530 Motorcycles

2003 MOPED- , Kenetic, 49cc, $400 or best offer. (785)317-4279.

600 travel trip

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.usski.com

630 Spring Break

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/kstc.

WHO SAID Virginity isn't a laughing matter. National Lampoon's Adam and Eve. Opening in theatres November 4th. www.nationallampoon.com/adam&eve. She's got it all. He's not getting any. Get Yours!

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE-BEDROOM, ONE bath, house across from campus. Modern appliances, central air, very clean. Available immediately. $350 per bedroom plus utilities. 1735 Anderson. Call KSU Foundation at (785)532-7569 or (785)532-7541.

NOW LEASING
• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.billinvestandrental.com

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

120 For Rent- Houses

MUST SEE three-bedroom, one bathroom. Living room, kitchen, dinette, computer room, laundry facility in attached garage, nice patio. (765)463-5014, (765)714-5710.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

Advertising Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Graphic Design Internship
Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie-from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

BACKPACKS | Students should use padded bags

Continued from Page 1

and torso," he said.

Erickson said students have done a good job of wearing backpacks over both shoulders. When he was in college, most people threw them over one shoulder.

"If your back starts to swell or you sustain an injury, you need to put ice on it to decrease the swelling," he said. "Your body is designed to take care of itself, but if the swelling doesn't subside in a few days, that is where I come in."

He said students should look into purchasing a good quality backpack when considering what to buy for back-to-school.

Todd Dalhausser, director of Eastpak, North America, said students should use common sense.

"Now I am not a doctor, but because every body, skeletal structure and muscle density is different it is up to the individual to see how far you can push yourself," he said. "If I'm struggling to pick my bag up with one hand, then it is obviously too heavy," he said.

He said students should look for several things when choosing a backpack. Looking for a backpack that has padding on the part that faces the back is helpful. He said back support is very important to stay healthy.

Keeping the straps as tight as possible is a must, because if the bags hang down too low, then the padding is not being utilized.

Also, a sternum strap and a harness or waist strap can keep the bag in the proper position and cuts down movement and friction on the back.

"Choices in backpacks usually depend on the trends," Dalhausser said. "Proper support doesn't always have the coolness factor, but it can cut down wear and tear on the body."

Hana Janoudova's backpack weighed 14 pounds. She said she has had back problems before, but she has also done gymnastics for nine years.

"I think it could definitely hurt your back," the senior in economics said. "I think that if it is too heavy then you should bring books and things to class only if they are absolutely necessary."

EVANGELIST | Man preaches on campuses daily

Continued from Page 1

"This man is just trying to do what God told him to do," Allen said, defending Smock. "Some of you might not like it. Some of you might not want to hear it."

Smock, 62, is based out of Columbia, Mo., and said he has been an evangelist for 30 years.

He said he was "born again" in 1972 and preaches on college campuses on a daily basis. He was at the University of Kansas on Monday and Tuesday.

"I haven't met one homosexual here; I actually met several homosexuals at KU," Smock said. "They're more brainwashed with liberalism."

He said he hadn't decided if he would stay at K-State for a second day.

"I think he's awesome. This must be his calling, and my hat's off to him," Steve Jones, senior in public relations, said. "The point is you've got some people listening, and that's what God wants."

Smock said he used to participate in a lot of the activities that he told the crowd were sinful, including drugs and promiscuous sex, before his conversion.

He said there are consequences for such activities in the afterlife, but said that they can also bring consequences in this life.

"Of course," Smock said, "one time, I ended up with crabs."

Rosa Parks honored at funeral; body to lie in honor at Capitol

By Kathy Barks Hoffman
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT – A church packed with 4,000 mourners celebrated the life of Rosa Parks Wednesday in an impassioned, song-filled funeral, with a crowd of notables giving thanks for the humble woman whose defiance helped transform a nation.

Parks

"The woman we honored today held no public office, she wasn't a wealthy woman, didn't appear in the society pages," said Sen. Barack Obama, D-Ill. "And yet when the history of this country is written, it is this small, quiet woman whose name will be remembered long after the names of senators and presidents have been forgotten."

The funeral, which stretched well past its three-hour scheduled time, followed a week of remembrances during which Parks' coffin was brought from Detroit, where she died Oct. 24; to Montgomery, Ala., where she helped spark the civil rights movement 50 years ago by refusing to give her bus seat to a white man; to Washington D.C., where she became the first woman to lie in honor in the Capitol Rotunda.

Those in the audience held hands and sang the civil rights anthem "We Shall Overcome" as family members filed past her casket before it was closed.

"Mother Parks, take your rest. You have certainly earned it," said Bishop Charles Ellis III of Greater Grace Temple, who led the service.

Speakers described Parks, who died at 92, as both a warrior and a woman of peace who never stopped working toward a future of racial equality.

"The world knows of Rosa Parks because of a single, simple act of dignity and courage that struck a lethal blow to the foundations of legal bigotry," said former President Clinton, who presented Parks with the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1996.

Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick, not yet born when Parks took her famous stand, was one of many who attributed their success to the doors Parks opened.

"Thank you for sacrificing for us," he said. "Thank you for praying when we were too cool and too cute to pray for ourselves. ... Thank you for allowing us to step on your mighty shoulders."

Singers included Aretha Franklin and mezzo-soprano Brenda Jackson, who sang a soaring version of the Lord's Prayer.

Parks was a 42-year-old tailor's assistant at a Montgomery department store in December 1955 when she was arrested for refusing to give up her seat to a white man on a city bus. Her act triggered a 381-day boycott of the bus system led by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Squaring up

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Brandon Gonzalez, freshman in horticulture, throws a shot over David Borgerding, freshman in business administration pre-professional, during a pick-up game on the basketball courts next to the Derby Dining Center.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
532-6560

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
Prizes for ALL Singers!
$1.99 Margaritas
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

MORTAR BOARD
SCHOLARS...CHOSEN FOR LEADERSHIP...UNITED TO SERVE
Congratulations to these nominees

College of Agriculture
Honoree: Melvin Hunt
Dean Marc Johnson

College of Business
Honoree: Rodney Vogt
Dean Yar M. Ebadi

College of Architecture
Honoree: Dr. David Seamon
Dean Dennis Law

College of Education
Honoree: Dru Clarke
Dean Michael Holen

College of Arts and Sciences
Honoree: Dr. David Poole
Dean Peter Nicholls

College of Engineering
Honoree: Dr. Margaret Rys
Dean Terry King

College of Arts and Sciences
Honoree: Dr. Michael Wesch
Dean Peter Nicholls

College of Human Ecology
Honoree: Sharon Kay Morcos
Dean Carol Kellett

Student Life
Honoree: Andrea Bryant
Dean Pat Bosco

EARN up to $200 this month
EARN GREAT MONEY TODAY
FEEL GREAT FOREVER.
New Higher Pay - Come in today!
ZLB Plasma Services
Good for You. Great for Life.
1130 Gardenway • Manhattan, KS 66502
(785)-776-9177 • zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

LOVE Advertising?
Work for the Spring 2006 Collegian
Advertising Manager
Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 11
Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
Advertising Staff Positions
• Assistant Advertising Manager
• Account Representatives
Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 16
Pick up an application & job description in Kedzie 103.
We're looking for Reliable, Creative, and Enthusiastic people to gain advertising experience and have a great time doing so.

USD 383 Computer Sale
Monitors - $25.00
most will be a 15 inch CRT
Computers - $25.00
most will be a Pentium 3, 650 MHZ PC - some will be a Pentium 2, 400 MHZ PC
Friday, November 4 -- 11am to 6pm
Saturday, November 5 -- 9am to 1pm
Bluemont School
714 Bluemont Ave. - rear parking lot
• Arrive early for best selection
• All units sold "as is"
• Cash or checks accepted
• No refunds or exchanges - all sales final
• Computers include keyboard, mouse, speakers while supplies last
• Computers do not have an operating system and/or software
• USD 383 will not provide any technical support for these computers
USD 383 Where all can learn

We're Looking For YOU!
Executive Position
Spring 2006 Editor in chief
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 11
•Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
Spring 2006
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
•Copy Editors • Designers
•Photojournalists
•Graphic Journalists
•Graphic Artists
•Online Journalists
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 16
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com

Friday, November 4, 2005

INSIDE

Weddings can be planned inexpensively

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

3 No. 55

Student Senate to vote on band program privilege fee

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Student Senate will vote on maintaining the current university band program privilege fee allocation next week.

Band program director Frank Tracz proposed a 15 percent increase from the program's current budget.

However, the privilege fee committee decided not to accept the proposed increase but continue the funding of $146,057 for fiscal years 2007-2009.

Senate privilege fee chair Matt Wagner said there were several reasons to not increase the request.

Compared to other Big 12 marching and concert bands, Wagner said the K-State band program receives one of the largest amounts of its funding through student privilege fees.

Texas A&M and Oklahoma State University bands are the two other Big 12 programs that receive campus privilege fee money to support their budgets.

However, Wagner said Texas A&M and Oklahoma State have other sources of income, and the K-State band program is too dependent on privilege fee funds.

Through past privilege fee allocations, Wagner said the university band program has received significant increases.

"There has been 102 percent change from 1996 to fiscal year 2007," he said.

By 1996, the program's privilege fee budget was increased to $83,263, and by 1998, it was increased to $102,138.

The committee did discuss decreasing the budget for the band program, but Wagner said tearing away these funds is not in the best interest of the senate or the band program at this time.

"The committee felt it wasn't a good idea, when the band is working with an amount of money that they seem to be using in an appropriate way," he said. "But it's time for K-State Athletics to step up to the plate."

A representative from the band program was not available for comment.

New life

Christian music, skit compel students to change

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The sounds of a lonely hammer pounding against a steel nail reverberated in the night air.

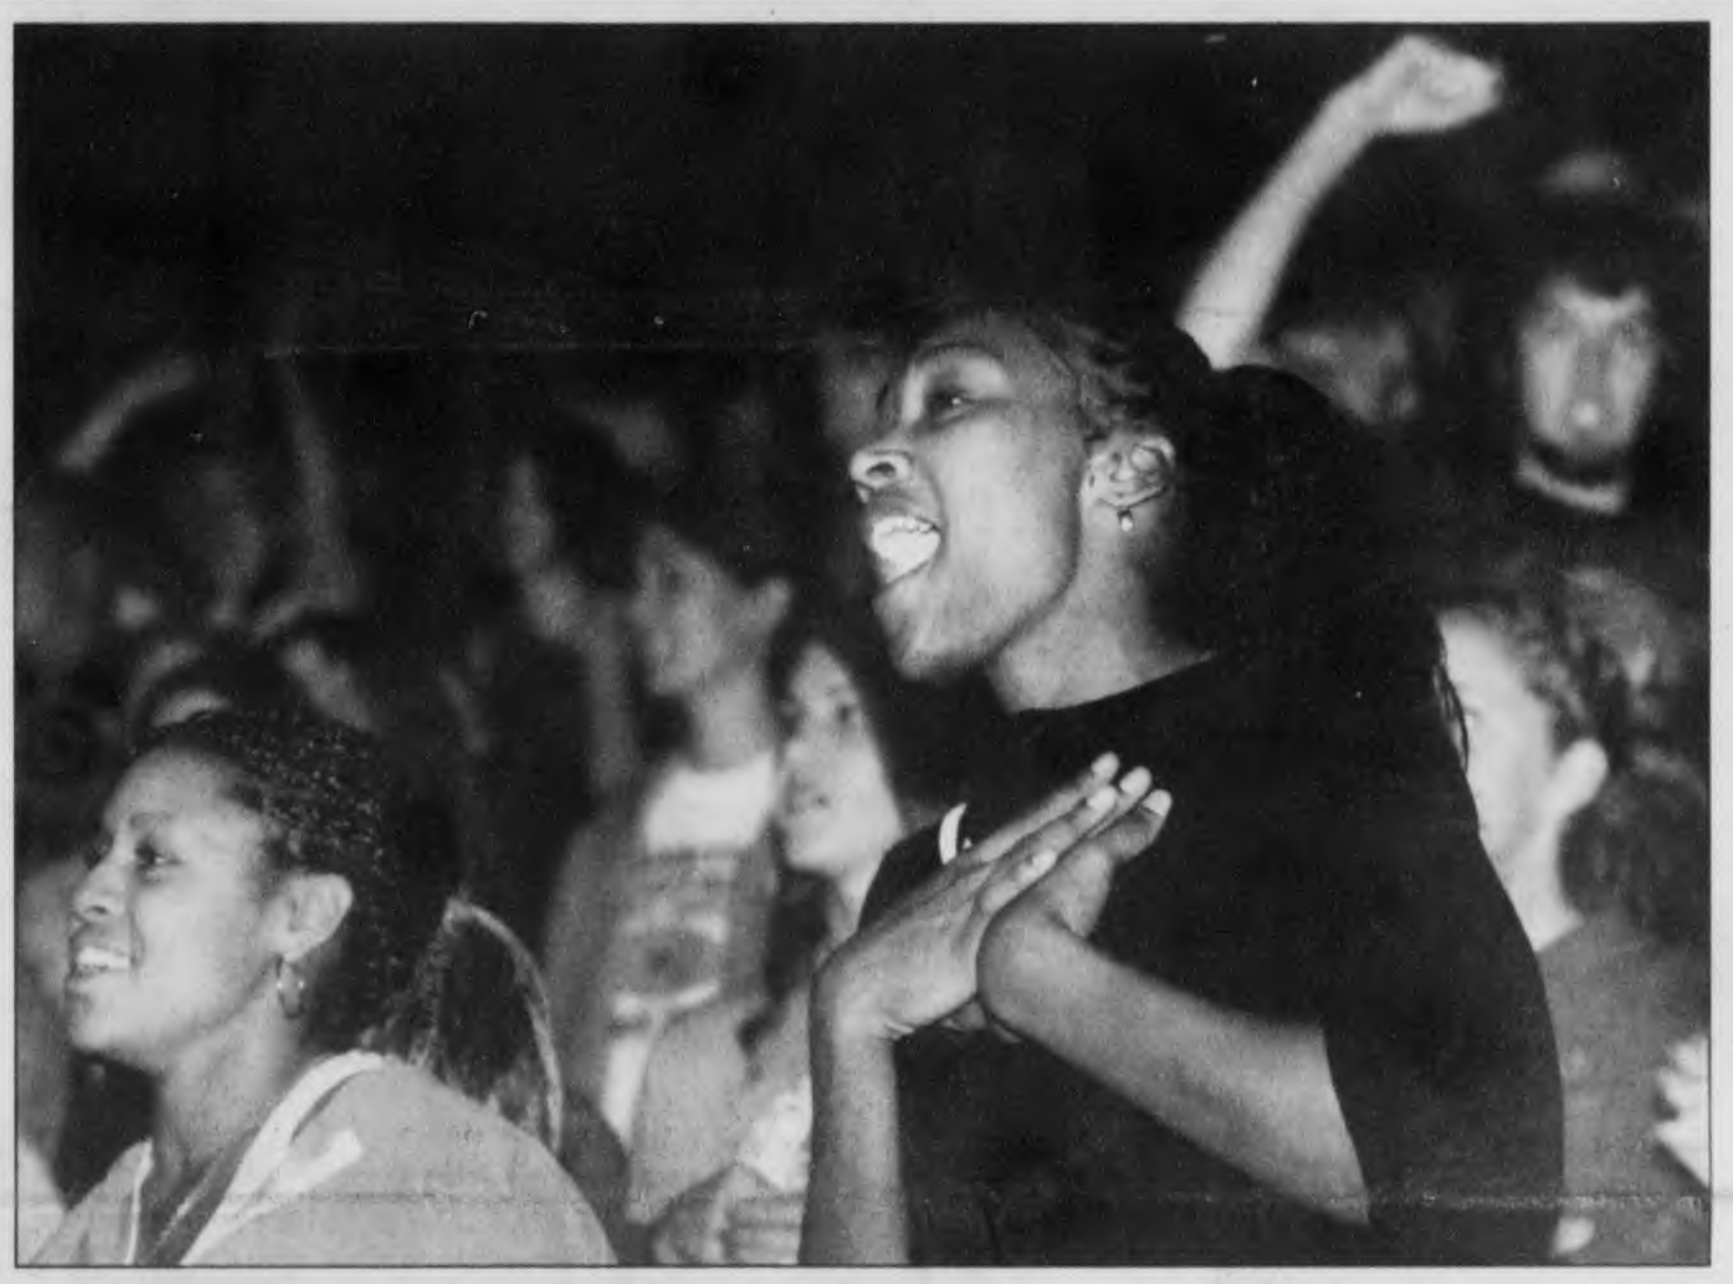
About 2,000 K-State students watched in silence as one man stood with two large logs in the form of a cross on his back.

Joe White, author, speaker and director of Kanakuk Kamps, travels around the United States with the group AFTERdark, a ministry group sharing a message of hope and new life with students.

While sharing his personal testimony, White also played the role of a Roman carpenter who was building the cross Christ was executed on more than 2,000 years ago.

Carrying a 14-foot log through Memorial Stadium on Thursday night, White was breathing heavily as he began chopping wood, splintering it across the stage and making two beams into one cross.

Inside, Page 3
Christian rap artist Lecrae shares his story, testimony



"This Jesus claims to be the son of God," White, as the carpenter, said.

"Do I believe that he's the lamb of God? I'd like to believe that, because if it's not true, then I'm sure I would be straight on the road to hell. But if it is true, then maybe even I would have a chance. Maybe even I would have a home."

After sharing the story of the life of Christ, White explained the world has been changed by the life and attitude of one man.

"It just blows your mind to think that cynics and critics try to bury this man, but it wasn't the end – it was the beginning," White said.

See AFTERDARK Page 14

"It just blows your mind to think that cynics and critics try to bury this man, but it wasn't the end — it was the beginning."

Joe White
INSPIRATIONAL SPEAKER

Above: Responding to the music of artists from the 116 Clique, Naytanda Smith, junior in family studies and human services, gets into the concert at an AFTERdark event.

Left: Telling the story of a Roman cross builder, who built Christ's cross, Joe White, inspirational speaker, addresses the attendees at Memorial Stadium. White is the president of Kanakuk Kamps as well as the founder of Kids Across America.

Photos by Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Web site exposes alleged Wal-Mart 'Black Friday' discounted items

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Hey, buddy, would you buy a new a laptop for $400?

CNN reported Tuesday that Wal-Mart's list of sales for the day after Thanksgiving, known as "Black Friday," may have been leaked and posted on the Web site www.gottadeal.com. The list of prices shows the retailer is looking to be aggressive this holiday season.

Noteworthy items include an Hewlett-Packard Pavillion ze2308wm notebook computer for $398, a Lexmark X1185 All-In-One printer, scanner and copier and a Game Boy Advance SP for $48.88.

The Lexmark product normally sells for between $60 and $80 at different online stores and the Game Boy retails for about $80. No regular price could be found for the laptop, but HP's Web site said the model has a 1.6 gigahertz processor, 256 megabytes of RAM, a 15-inch screen and a 40-gigabyte hard drive.

The name "Black Friday" comes from the heavy business that comes the day after Thanksgiving, which often brings many retailers out of the "red" and into the "black," or out of loss and into profit, for the year as a whole.

Steve Levin, K-State Student Union Bookstore manager, said the strategy of Black Friday is "lost leaders," when some items are sold at cost or a loss to encourage customers. He said Varney's Book Store and the Union bookstore use them, and gave a scenario in which he would sell a $65 product for $60.

"I lose $5 each," Levin said,

See WAL-MART Page 14

November prime time for deer accidents

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

According to Kansas Department of Transportation statistics, November is when the most accidents between deer and automobiles occur.

A large factor for the accidents is the fact that it's mating season for deer, said Lt. Mike Quintanar with the Riley County Police Department.

"They aren't thinking right. They have only one thing on their mind," he said. "They aren't looking and just run around."

In 2003, 9,108 vehicles hit deer in Kansas, resulting in 332 injuries. These numbers are actually less than they have been in the past. In 1999, there were 10,312 accidents.

"We've worked accidents with vehicles that do have deer whistles," Quintanar said. "It doesn't matter what you have on your car at this time of year."

In 2003, 184 accidents involved deer in Riley County.

Quintanar said there are two types of accidents involving deer: reportable and non-reportable.

"It would be non-reportable if the damage is under $1,000. If it's over that, you are required by the state to file a report," he said.

The police would like to be at the scene of the accident, so people are encouraged to call them if they hit a deer, Quintanar said.

"You can give us a call, and we'll come out, or you can bring your car here, but we'd like to be at the scene where it happens," he said.

This is so the deer remains can be cleaned up, Quintanar said. The driver is the only person who can claim the deer. Otherwise, they will push it out of the road to be picked up later, he said.

Matt Lower, senior in park management and conservation, has had several encounters with deer.

"I hit a deer in high school, during rut season," he said. "I hit it square on and it shattered my grill, but kept running."

Lower said that the incident was alarming.

"It was scary in the sense that it was surprising, but then I was

See DEER Page 14

Today

High 72
Low 46

Saturday

High 68
Low 40

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Death declined

Benjamin Appleby, 30, will not be sentenced to death for the killing of 19-year-old Ali Kemp, Johnson County prosecutors said. District attorney Paul Morrison said Wednesday that Kemp's murder does not meet the legal criteria for the death penalty. If convicted, Appleby could receive a life sentence.

Hearings in January

Hearings for Judge Samuel A. Alito Jr.'s appointment to the Supreme Court will begin Jan. 9, leaders of the Judiciary Committee announced Thursday. He gave a timetable that envisions five days of hearings, a vote in committee on Jan. 17 and the full Senate on Jan. 20. The White House had no immediate reaction.

Libby pleads not guilty

Lewis Libby pleaded not guilty to a five-count felony indictment Thursday in the CIA leak case. Libby, Vice President Dick Cheney's former chief of staff, is charged with obstruction of justice, two counts of lying to the FBI and two counts of committing perjury before a federal grand jury.

DON'T FORGET

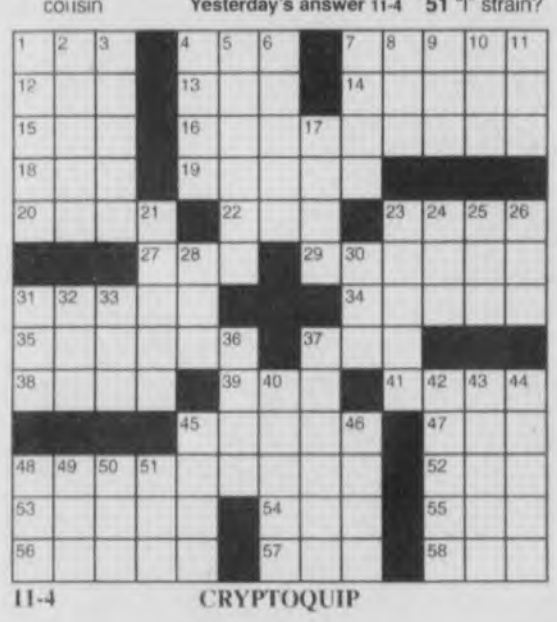
Students with 46 or more credit hours are eligible to enroll today.

Volleyball will compete against the University of Kansas at 7 p.m. Saturday in Ahearn Field House.

War of the Worlds will play at 8 tonight, 7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday and 8 p.m. Sunday in Forum Hall. The movie is $1 Friday and $2 Saturday and Sunday.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Diamond club
4 — choi (Chinese cabbage)
7 Tweak
12 "Hail, Caesar!"
13 Ms. Thurman
14 Framework
15 Felon's flight
16 1973 film co-starring the O'Neals
18 Try the Tokay
19 Blue hue
20 Additionally
22 Greek vowel
23 Contemptible
27 Started
29 Celery servings
31 Reservation residence
34 Trip around the world?
35 Take in
37 Chang's closest relative
38 Egret's cousin
39 Operated
41 Right on the map?
45 High-carb entree
47 Guitar's kin
48 Very insubstantial
52 Fancy fellow
53 Big bug
54 Sea eagle
55 Judge Lance
56 Derby town
57 Witness
58 "— the ramparts ..."

DOWN
1 Model-plane material
2 Use
3 Office part-timers
4 India's neighbor (Abbr.)
5 Rendered speechless
6 Destroyed
7 Lot fraction
8 Water barrier
9 Commotion
10 Expert
11 Mid-morning
17 Historic periods
21 Spreads for breads
23 Cleo's transport
24 Priest's vestment
25 Tackle moguls
26 "Guinness Book" suffix
28 Always, in verse
30 Heavy weight
31 Mai —
32 Undergo recession
33 Omega preceder
36 Pesky kid
37 Undivided
40 Bonfire remnants
42 Sound portion
43 Emulate Sarah Hughes
44 Barbershop quartet member
45 Ball in a gym?
46 Mrs. Shakespeare
48 Chart format
49 Pump up the volume
50 Faux —
51 "I" strain?

Solution time: 25 mins.

W	E	D		C	L	A	N		P	O	L	O
A	G	O		H	E	R	E		E	R	I	N
D	O	G	W	A	T	C	H		P	E	A	L
		F	I	R		O	R	A	T	O	R	Y
S	W	I	N	G	S		U	S	A
T	A	G		E	L	F		P	L	U	M	P
A	G	H	A		Y	E	T		K	N	E	E
B	E	T	T	Y		D	A	B		D	A	N
			T	E	A		P	A	R	E	N	T
I	M	P	E	A	C	H		N	O	R
T	A	R	S		H	O	U	N	D	D	O	G
E	M	I	T		E	L	S	E		O	P	A
M	A	G	S		D	E	E	R		G	P	S

Yesterday's answer 11-4

11-4 CRYPTOQUIP

N T B E C R X J P T J O R L H C M M O K P T T B A O S W X M O A O S H M P W , N ' K L B W Z J B Z ' K E O B X J N X F O R X P C H .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: I SUPPOSE IT'S AN ACTUAL FACT THAT ADAM AND EVE ATE THEMSELVES OUT OF HOUSE AND HOME.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: K equals D

BEST BETS

Your guide to the weekend's entertainment

1 | K-State vs. KU

The Wildcat volleyball team will face off in the 92nd Sunflower Showdown against the Jayhawks at 7 p.m. Saturday at Ahearn Field House. K-State has a 16-7 record, with a 7-6 record in the Big 12 Conference. The Wildcats are ranked number 24 in the nation. Kansas has a 12-11 record, with a 4-10 Big 12 record. The game is $4 for adults and students are free. Call 532-6295, e-mail at dloomis@k-state.edu or visit www.kstatesports.com for more information.

2 | K-State Men's Glee, Cadence & K-State Singers

K-State Men's Glee Club, Cadence & K-State Singers will be performing at 7:30 tonight at McCain Auditorium. This is the 40th year of the fall concert. The performance will feature a Big 12 Conference medley with all of the Big 12 songs. The cost is $6 for students and $8 for the general public. For more information call 532-3824 or e-mail polich@k-state.edu.

3 | Puke Weasel show

Puke Weasel, "Manhattan's original metal masters," will be performing at 9 p.m. Saturday at P.J.'s Bar, 1129 Laramie St. The band will be reuniting for one show only. The cover charge is $5 for ages 18-20 and $3 for anyone over 21. Call P.J.'s at 539-7055 for more information.

4 | KSU Hunt show

The second home show for the Equestrian team at begins 8 a.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Fox Creek Stables. The meet will feature two hunt seat competitions. Call 532-1268 or e-mail tslough@k-state.edu.

Landing a jump at the varsity equestrian head-to-head competition, Leslie Yates competes in Equitation Over Fences, second section. Yates placed first in her section against South Dakota State on Oct. 1.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

5 | Barrage

With a cast of seven violin players, two percussionists, a guitar and bass player, Barrage is performing at 7 p.m. Sunday in McCain Auditorium. They will perform "Vagabond Tales," a story of a family tribe of soul, born under the stars. The romantic tale of Luna and Sol will also be featured, a modern adaptation of Romeo and Juliet. This will be an evening of music, adventure and romance. Orchestra or balcony seating is available. Tickets for orchestra are: $25 for the public, $23 for seniors, $12.50 for K-State students, $23 for faculty, $23 for military and $12.50 for children. Tickets for balcony are: $21 for the public, $19 for senior citizens, $10.50 for K-State students, $19 for faculty, $19 for military and $10.50 for children. Call 532-6428 for more information.

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Wednesday, Nov. 2

- Mekel McAlpine, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 10:50 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $500.
- Raymond Rock, Herington, Kan., was arrested at 3 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $500.
- Nicole Wassenberg, Emporia, Kan., was arrested at 6 p.m. for theft. Bond was set at $750.
- Sara Haynes, Bridge City, Texas, was arrested at 9:10 p.m. for battery. Bond was set at $500.

Thursday, Nov. 3

- Rachel Rickenbaker, 1019 Garden Way, was arrested at 12:45 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $35.
- Jun Lee, 1225 Ratone St., Apt. 8, was arrested at 2:25 a.m. for two counts of failure to appear. Bond was set at $133.
- Caesare Rivas, Ogallala, Neb., was arrested at 5:35 a.m. for obstruction of legal process and disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $1,500.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A library basics for science and technology class will be from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. today at Hale Library's reception desk.
- The Men's Glee Club, Cadence and the K-State Singers will perform at 7:30 tonight in McCain Auditorium.
- Applications for Wildcat Warm-up Director positions are available by calling 532-5165 or e-mailing Emily Lehning at lehning@k-state.edu. Applications are due Nov. 7.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

American Legion Progressive Bingo WIN $
$1000-in 58#
$500 in53#
$450 unlimited #
Start 2-4:30 p.m.
Sunday 6th
114 McCall Rd.

Swing City Jazz Series
Manhattan Arts Center presents
Wayne Goins with vocalist
Laura Chalk
Saturday, Nov. 5th, 8 p.m.
Tickets available at:
Claflin Books and Copies,
The Dusty Bookshelf,
& Manhattan Arts Center
Ad sponsored by Claflin

KSU Meat Sale
FRIDAY • Noon-5:45 p.m.
Rm. 166 • Weber Hall
BEEF
roast, steak, ground beef, bratwurst
PORK
pork chops, pork steaks, sausage, ground pork, bacon
LAMB
chops, roast, ground lamb
PRODUCT OF THE DEPT. OF ANIMAL SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY MANHATTAN, KS 66506
Paid for by Kansas State University.
For information call 532-1279

Check out
shout outs
in the Classifieds on November 9th!

Indian Student Association Presents
UTSAV 2005
"The India Nite"
On Saturday, November 12th, 2005
Cultural Program 1:30 pm (Forum Hall)
Exhibition 4:30pm (Union Courtyard)
Indian Dinner 5:30 pm (Durland Atrium)
Lite Music Concert 8:30 pm (All Faiths Chapel)
"Entrance Free"
Dinner Tickets Will Be sold At "K-State Union" (In Front Of Food Court)
Date: From 2nd Nov
Time: 11:30 am-1:30 pm
Dinner Tickets: Members $4, Non-Members $9
UTSAV 2005 - The India Nite
Advertising Sponsored by: SGA
Indian Student Association
Web: http://www.ksu.edu/isa Email: isa@ksu.edu
Flyer designed by Sudha Pisipati & Pavan Nayini

We can't get you girls. Or boys.
We can't get you beer or cigarettes.
You won't be any cooler.
You won't be more attractive.
You won't be thinner, smarter, or suddenly wealthy.
But maybe, just maybe,
you'll get the experience you need to land a job that CAN get you those things...after college.
The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:
Executive Positions Spring 2006
• Editor in Chief
• Advertising Sales Manager
News Positions Spring 2006
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists • Graphic Artists
• Graphic Artists • Online Journalists
Advertising Positions Spring 2006
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives
Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. Nov. 16.
Get the experience you NEED.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Lecrae spreads word through music

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Dancing during a song, Christian hip-hop artist Lecrae performs at the AFTERdark concert in Memorial Stadium Thursday night.

As students mobbed hip-hop artist Lecrae to ask for his autograph following AFTERdark, he told his story of growing up in the inner-city.

One day, he said, he was roaming the streets and a car pulled up beside him. A man rolled down the window and invited Lecrae to attend a Bible study. So he went.

"I saw guys praising the Lord, but they were wearing their hats to the back," Lecrae said. "That intrigued me."

After that, Lecrae traveled with the group to Atlanta, where he said he first heard the Gospel.

He said it carved a hole in his chest, as he realized he needed a savior.

As a freshman at the University of North Texas, Lecrae got involved in a campus ministry. He began volunteering at a juvenile detention center and rapped there on Sundays.

He said hip-hop music is a culture, just like baggy jeans.

"The music's just the verbalization of a lifestyle," Lecrae said. "I was brought up rhyming and rapping."

An official at the juvenile detention center asked Lecrae to record a compact disc for the children.

In 2003, the CD eventually got to Kanakuk Kamps' Kids Across America, where the staff loved it so much they asked for an entire CD, which was released in 2004.

"God's progressively allowed us to minister, and it's been a blessing," Lecrae said.

He said the inspiration for his music is a result of being in a community of solid believers.

He said his favorite song is "Take Me As I Am."

"I pray that it is both encouraging believers to grow in their faith and showing the world at large that Christ can take what the world would see as unredeemable and use it for his glory," Lecrae said.

Lecrae compared being a Christian rapper in a genre of music that is generally seen as nearly the opposite of Christian to being an American in a sinful culture.

"You've got to be an ambassador," he said. "I've got to be the light because Christ calls us to be ambassadors.

"I pray that God would use me to enlighten the world at large."

30-foot smoking ban on campus confusing, lacks enforcement

By Matthew Peterworth
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Sitting outside the southwest entrance to Hale Library, Jessica Singer, junior in fine arts, smokes a cigarette Wednesday night.

An all-university policy prohibits smoking within 30 feet of a building entrance.

Capt. Richard Herrman of the K-State Police Department said each building on campus has a designated building director responsible for initial enforcement of the no-smoking policy.

Jean Darbyshire, director of administrative services, is responsible for Hale Library.

She said the confusion stems from exactly where people think the building entrance to the building is, whether it is the doors that actually lead into the building or the archway next to the bench.

She said the archway is indeed the entrance to the building and people should not be smoking on the bench or anywhere past it.

"It is an enclosed area and people have no choice but to go by smokers," she said.

To report a smoking violation, bring it to the attention of the building director. The director then asks the smoker to put out the cigarette or leave. If this is not done, the police can then be called to issue a ticket and fine.

Herrman said he could not recall ever having given a ticket for it.

"By the time the officer gets there, the person finishes their cigarette and goes in," he said. "We don't know who it was."

Herrman said the building director, often the department head, can use internal means to keep people from further violating the policy.

Darbyshire has done just that.

"People are not noticing this is the entrance to the building," she said, referring to the archway.

As a result, she has placed a request for the Division of Facilities to put a sign on the archway indicating this is the building entrance and is a smoke-free area.

Mallory Pirie, junior in biology, said she thought people were allowed to smoke there.

"I assume so because they do, but I wish they didn't," she said.

Royal Purple yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Buy your copy in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555.

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips
with student ID and coupon
KNAILS
2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444

Religion Directory

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
330 Sunset Avenue
Saturday-
Traditional Worship 6:00 p.m.
Sunday-
Traditional Worship 8:30 a.m.
College Bible Study 9:45 a.m.
Contemporary Worship 11:00 a.m.
Email: stlukes@flinthills.com
(785) 539-2604

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

Journey Ministry
University Christian Church
2800 Claflin • 776-5440
(across from Taco Hut)
9:45 Contemporary Service
11:00 Breakfast and Bible Study
Chris Herrington • www.uccks.org

ADVERTISE YOUR CHURCH HERE
532-6560

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00, 10:30, 10:40, 12:00
• Sunday School at 9:15
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086

NEW HOPE community church
Pursuing relationships that change the world
WORSHIP SERVICE
9 & 10:45 AM
Small groups for men, women & married couples
College and Family Ministries.
www. newhopeks.org
3905 GREEN VALLEY ROAD
537-2389

First Christian Church
(Disciples of Christ)
9:00 a.m. Sunday School
10:15 a.m. Worship Service
11:30 a.m. Radio Broadcast 95.3 FM
Neil Engle
Pastor
776-8790
5th and Humboldt
Courthouse Square
fccmanhattan.org

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road (South on K-177 across viaduct, left on K-18 1/2 mile)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Day care for toddlers.
A Welcoming Congregation.
For information call (785) 537-2349
Rev. Michael Nelson
www.uuhu.net

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
5:00 p.m. Contemporary Service
6:00 p.m. Dinner for College Students
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

Westview Community Church
Serving God, reaching people
Worship services 9:00 a.m. 10:45 a.m.
Sunday school 9:00 a.m.
Campus ministry director
Carol Buchheister • cybuch@juno.com
3001 Fort Riley Boulevard
www.westviewcommunity.com
785-537-7173

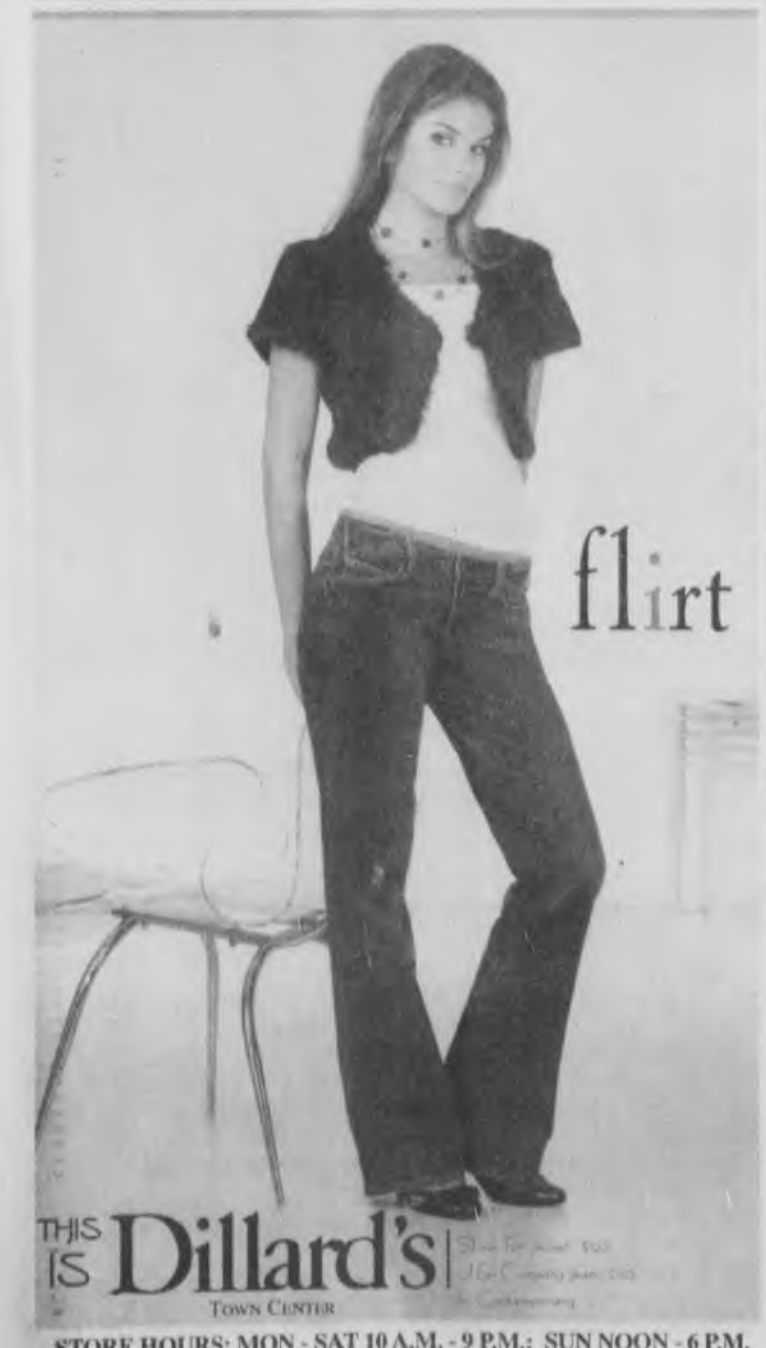
THE PURPLE PIG
EST. 1996
4.99 STEAK NIGHT
EVERY FRIDAY
4 to 9:30 p.m.
3.00 BAHAMA MAMAS

Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church
Established in 1879
401 Yuma Street
(1 Bl. North of Ft. Riley Blvd. at 4th Street)
Reverend Penny Pitchford
Pastor
Sunday School 9:30 AM
Breakfast 10:30 AM
Worship Service 11:00 AM
"Enter To Worship, Depart To Serve"

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:15 & 10:45 a.m.
Bible Classes For All Ages 9:30 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

Come Worship With Us
1st Church of the Nazarene
3031 Kimball Ave.
9:30 Sunday School
10:40 Sunday Worship
7:00 Wed. Bible Study, Teens
Youth & College ministry opportunities
Senior Pastor: Pat Weyranch
539-6376

All Welcome to Worship!
Sunday Evening 7p.m. Danforth Chapel
New on Thursday Oct. 20
6p.m. Meal & Dialog at Luther House
1745 Anderson
SE Corner of Denison & Anderson
Nov. 5-Walk Konza Trails
ELCA-If ? 313-3895
LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY



St.Francis Episcopal Campus Ministry
at Kansas State University
Sunday worship at
St. Paul's Episcopal Church,
Sixth & Poyntz, Manhattan
785-776-9427
11:30 a.m. Contemporary Service
(followed by lunch for KSU students)
Monday, 5:30 pm. Supper & Conversation at St. Francis/Canterbury House, 1823 Laramie St.
Drew Vining, Program Coordinator, 341-3221

CrossRoads
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4281
ecm@ksu.edu
www.ksu.edu/ecm
David Jones, Pastor
Sundays 5:30pm
Table Fellowship (free food!)
Wednesdays 5:00pm
Bible Study
Thursdays 6:30pm
Fantasy and Spirituality
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

You are welcome at...
FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD

For College Students
CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
www.ksuchialpha.com
Wednesday 8:00 p.m. (KSU Little Theater)
Pastor Bryan Elliott
Sunday Services
Sunday School 9:00 a.m.
Morning Worship 10:15 a.m.
Evening Worship 6:00 p.m.
Nursery Provided for All Services
Gary Ave, Candlewood Dr, Seth Childs Rd, Kimball
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr. Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

First United Methodist Church
Worship at 8:30, 8:45 and 11:00
Come at 8:30 and 11:00 for more traditional worship with choirs and organ in our beautiful sanctuary.
Come at 8:45 for a BLENDED worship in our auditorium. Free doughnuts. 45 minutes long. Great band. COME AS YOU ARE!
Come at 9:45 for Sunday School in the auditorium. A special class for college students, relating the Bible to YOUR life.
JUST COME.
612 Poyntz, Manhattan Kansas
CAMPUS MINISTRY! Check out the website: Ksu.edu/umcm flirt

THIS IS Dillard's
TOWN CENTER
STORE HOURS: MON - SAT 10 A.M. - 9 P.M.; SUN NOON - 6 P.M.

TO THE POINT

Wind energy should be given a fair chance

Electricity generated with no pollution, no waste and infinite renewability was science fiction once upon a time.

But with recent advancements in wind power, clean energy is easily within our grasp.

Anyone who has driven Interstate Highway 70 on a windy day can attest to the fact that Kansas suffers from no shortage of wind. Our state is ideally situated to capitalize on the benefits of wind energy.

Wind energy could be a dream come true, especially in an age where energy costs are in a steady upward climb.

Despite the potential benefits, there has been much resistance to wind energy lately. Groups concerned about the destruction of Kansas' prairie point to potential negative side affects.

However, with recent developments and new designs by German and Finnish companies, many of the complaints can be resolved. New spiral-shaped designs operate in lower wind, can withstand higher wind, are more efficient and are a fraction of the size of normal propeller wind turbines.

We cannot let the aesthetic concerns of some, or irrational fears that nature will grind to a halt if wind energy is utilized in Kansas stop us from harnessing this abundant resource.

We of the windy state have let the wind blow about for too long. It's time for the wind to grow up, get a job and pull its own weight around here.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF	Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR	Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF	Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR	Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR	Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR	Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR	Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR	Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH	Brad Simmons AD MANAGER	Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

Taste for friends

Despite growing up or moving away, real friendships can endure

MEGAN GREEN

It took me 20 years, a study-abroad trip to Italy and a membership to Facebook.com to realize some friendships are strong enough that they never fade, kind of like taste buds.

It is a fact that every seven days, taste buds re-grow, but even though a majority die off, a few remain. Your taste for a certain food, say sushi, might remain more than seven days, or even seven years, later.

Why bring this up? Because I am at a similar point in my life, and I don't mean that my taste buds are dying off. Think about it. You go to elementary school, meet friends, go to junior high, meet more friends while a few from elementary school fade.

Then it's on to high school, and then the big step to college, where everyone you meet is new and old friends fade a little bit more, sometimes even close ones.

While I was in Italy studying abroad, I made a Facebook.com account to keep in touch. I logged on and did the first thing everyone does on Facebook.com; I looked up my best friend from high school, Megan.

When I found her, I messaged her and asked how she was doing. Within minutes of sending the message, I got a message from a screen name I didn't know. It took me a minute but I finally realized it was Megan.

We talked for a while before she asked what I was doing. I told her I was in Italy, studying abroad. Her reply? "I'm studying in Rome."

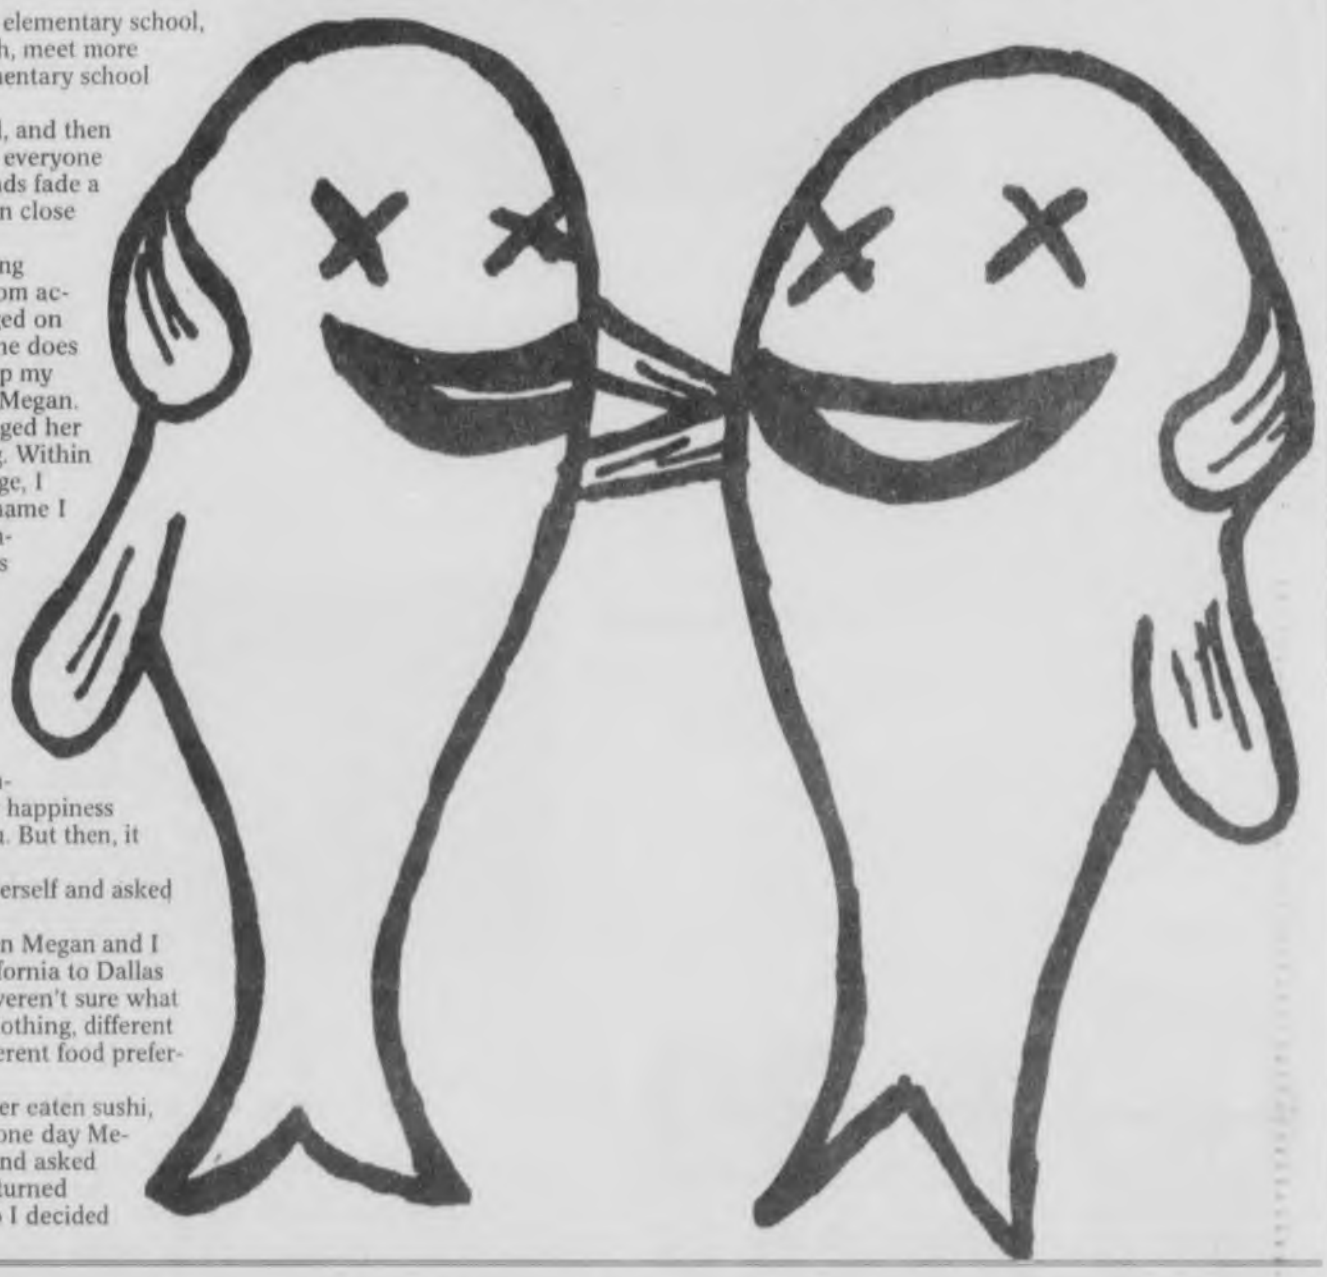
If you had been in the computer lab in Italy that day, my happiness would have rubbed off on you. But then, it got better: she was traveling to Brussels by herself and asked me to join her.

But, let me go back to when Megan and I met. Megan moved from California to Dallas and at first my friends and I weren't sure what to think about her different clothing, different music and, of course, her different food preferences. See, she ate sushi.

None of my friends had ever eaten sushi, or even thought to try it, but one day Megan brought some to school and asked me to try some. I have never turned down food – ask anyone – so I decided to try it.

Now fast forward to when I met up with Megan in Brussels seven years later. We saw a sushi restaurant right next to our hotel and what do you think we did?

While we were eating, our relationship seemed just as strong as it had in high school.



Then I thought of the fact that your taste buds re-grow. Coincidence? I think not. Even though Megan and I hadn't talked to each other in years, we still had a taste for each other. We had changed, but our love for each other hadn't.

There are always those few friends who you always think of, can never forget, will love forever and if they called you now with a problem, you would be there for them in a heartbeat. So even though a few fade away, there are those friends that will still be there.

So, even though things might change in seven days, like your taste buds, or seven years, like friendships, there is always a little part that is still there.

Since discovering Megan on Facebook.com, we keep in touch and I am planning on visiting her at her college sometime soon. Now when I think that taste buds come and go, I smile, because I know that the taste for sushi, like some friendships, still remains many years later.

Megan Green is a senior in mass communications. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Sedentary Americans

Illustrations by Eric Thompson | COLLEGIAN

The market today is flooded with impossible diet books, insane weight loss plans and magic pills that are supposed to fix our multitude of lifestyle-influenced problems, but without changing our lifestyle. Trying to make gold out of rotten eggs will never get anywhere and trying to sidestep and shortcut the simpler, more direct way to being a healthier person is foolish.

Most everyone has heard that a well-balanced, appropriately-sized diet, along with physical activity and exercise are the ways to be a healthy individual. Unfortunately, the increasing obesity rates in America show that what people know and what they do are entirely separate.

Why are people doing things that are bad for them and why do they want the "easy" way out, one where your lifestyle and person won't have to change? Any change or adjustment that some person should make within their habits is often strongly resisted, and the habits that we have are valuable to us as a way of life.

Change is an unknown future that can have both good and bad results. But the inactivity of Americans seems to show a change for the worse and forecasts a diseased, heavy, expensive future.

The attractiveness that a sedentary lifestyle has to so many people baffles me. Movement has a powerful effect on the way that I feel. It is so incredible and so natural for my life that without activity, I feel depressed and unpleasant.

But taking into account the diverse range of contexts and ways that people have been raised, they may not have the relationship with movement that I have.

It may be that I don't eat chocolate and snack on fruit, or that I much prefer to leave my car in the lot for the week. I love to dance, and have no qualms about making four trips across campus.

These things make living a healthy life easier for me, but the passion and awareness I feel when I am fully using my body is fantastic.

RACHEL THOMPSON

Also, it's hard to understand why some would avoid feeling so good. To each her own, I suppose, but wanting to participate and explore the world requires an active life and a body that can keep up.

Being physically active is so simple, especially on a college campus surrounded by people and opportunities; it astonishes me that some are still so resistant to moving at all. Walking to class and riding a bicycle around campus and town are such easy activities that many students have adopted because it is necessary on such a compact campus.

The absence of empty parking spots near campus also shows there are other benefits associated with walking or riding a bike, such as decreases in time, money and frustration directed toward automobiles.

Change is hard to accept and adapt to but the way that Americans are growing needs to be addressed and the way to do that is to move, with friends or alone, out of necessity or for enjoyment, or even because it is cheap and an investment in the future.

But instead of funding a landslide of crash diets, and having to stash mountain of money for future health problems, just start becoming physically active and eating better.

Rachel Thompson is a sophomore in anthropology and international studies. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

What do we want? Patience. When do we want it? Now. Patience Now. Patience Now. Patience Now.

I'm out here in western Kansas, and it sucks.

Porn causes just as many rapes as guns cause murders.

To the girl who only talks about how trashed she got every single night, shut up.

I didn't catch that. I can't understand. What?

I can't wait to graduate in December. Not only will I have a diploma but a certain someone who enjoys being cruel to me also graduates. So he'll be heading back where he belongs: his home state of Texas.

My readers, please note: Out of sight out of mind.

I'm stoned and just noticed that on the Collegian the day and the date don't match for the date of November 2. I'm so smart. It says it's Thursday, November 2, but it's not.

Yeah, so, Tiger Woods' cousin is looking kind of good in a mini Tiger Woods kind of way. Does that make me a gold digger?

To the girl outside of the Union wearing that miniskirt, thank you.

To the cute guy in the red Tercel I just raced down Anderson, thanks for letting me win.

I vote we remove the Collegian if we lose a newspaper on campus. After all, what good does the Collegian serve?

Kody Cooper attacks adult articles with alliteration.

OK, I admit it. I'm in love with my college algebra tutor, but it's not like he'll ever find out right? Wait, tutors don't read the paper right?

My roommate just said that she is addicted to the Facebook, but not the Fourum.

Late at night I toss and I turn and I dream of what I need. I need a hero, I'm holding out for a hero 'til the end of night.

K-State sucks. Haha.

Standing up for corruption does not make you a good republican — it makes you a bad American. Put your country above your party.

Zach Eckels, I love you. Thank you for being the one rational voice at the Collegian.

Webmail sucks.

Webmail is worthless.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

University Counseling Services reports increases in usage

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

University Counseling Services saw a 26 percent increase in the number of contacts between the 2004 and 2005 fiscal years, according to a Counseling Services annual report.

Every category, including training, appointments, classroom contacts, presentations and consultation contacts, saw an increase from 2004 to 2005. The total number of contacts increased from 21,133 to 26,715, and these contacts came from 1,100 students.

"I guess students are more stressed," said Melinda Le, a postdoctoral fellow working for Counseling Services. "I think what is contributing to it is more awareness of Counseling Services and that they are available to students."

Fred Newton, director professor of Counseling Services, said the numbers vary, but this year had a major increase.

"We have some variance from year to year, but we had about 6,000 appointments with 1,200 different students, and that's up around 10 percent," Newton said.

One of the major reasons the number of students seeking help from Counseling Services has increased is because of an increase in the number of classroom contacts. According to the Counseling Services annual report, the number of classroom contacts has increased from 6,641 in 2004 to 10,076 in 2005, an increase of about 52 percent.

"We do a lot of consultation and outreach," Newton said. "We also consult with people dealing with student problems, like RA's and faculty members."

Along with an increase in outreach, an increase in stress obviously plays a part with how many students visit Counseling Services, Newton said.

"Our research has shown the main reason students come in are stress factors, and basically, there's more stress on our campus this year more than in the past," Newton said.

Currently, Counseling Services is reaching its peak number of patients, Le said.

"We always have a steady number of students who come in throughout the year, but around October, during midterms and finals, people come in a lot more," she said.

The shift in the number of students seeking help is because of the fluctuations in the academic calendar, Newton said.

"Right now, this is a very high-pressure time," he said.

Due to the increase in the volume of patients, Newton said at times, the Counseling Services staff is overwhelmed. However, no matter how busy the staff is, students will always be able to get help.

"Sometimes, our staff has to work extra hours," he said. "But my philosophy has been that we just have to give and take, because we need to respond to student needs when it happens, instead of putting them on a waiting list, because sometimes they need help now."

Along with showing the increase in the number of contacts, the annual report also revealed facts about what groups are using the services. According to the report, 61.6 percent of all contacts were with females. Also, 53 percent of all contacts had a grade point average of 3.0 or higher.

Students who want to make an appointment with Counseling Services can do so via their Web site at www.k-state.edu/counseling or by stopping by the English and Counseling Services building.

Ecological group supports wind farm regulations

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With the potential threat wind farms may pose to the environment, conservation groups have asked the Kansas Wildlife and Parks Commission to establish regulations for wind energy resources.

The concern was addressed by members of Nature Conservancy in Kansas during a Kansas Wildlife and Parks Commission meeting last month.

Eventually, the state might see some changes, said Rob Manes, director of conservation with Nature Conservancy in Kansas.

"Widespread placement of wind power facilities, however, as is proposed in many ecologically intact areas of the Great Plains, holds the potential to push sensitive species and threatened ecosystems to crisis," Manes said.

Kansas officially has no regulations for wind farm placement.

Mike Hayden, secretary of the Department of Wildlife and Parks said legislatures need to address the concern. He said the state doesn't want to control the wind farm debate, but rather give local leaders that power.

The wind energy debate, Manes said, boils down to three issues:

Collisions

"People are worried about birds and bats running into the wind turbine towers, particularly the blades," Manes said.

Behavioral avoidance

Manes also said land species, especially prairie chickens, have demonstrated strong avoidance for tall, vertical structures like wind turbines.

"If you put wind turbines in the areas, the birds won't nest and they won't propagate, and then there's more trouble," Manes said.

Land fragmentation

Wind energy farms divide land enough to take away the essential natural use of the areas, Manes said.

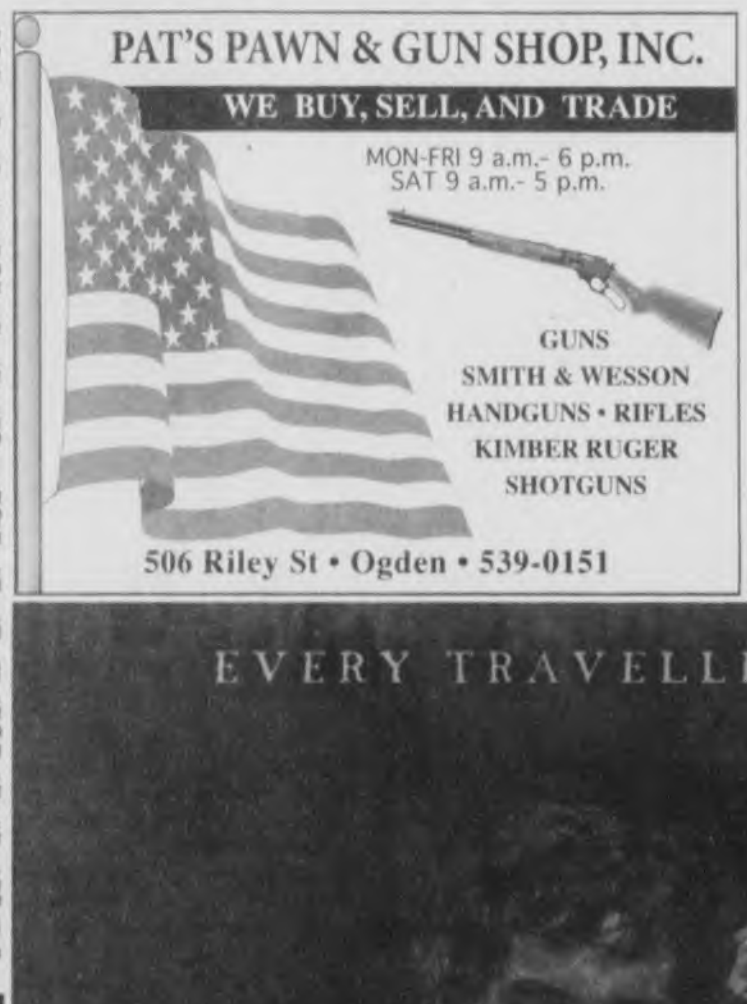
"It ends up reducing genetic interchange and that is very important to the health of any population, not just animals," Manes said.

In Kansas alone, there are 8.3 million acres of tilled agricultural land which has high potential for wind production.

Studies through the Northeast Sustainable Energy Association show wind farms are an innovative, appropriate energy source for the United States. According to NSEA, some advantages include:

Energies are competitive with fossil fuel-based energy production
Wind energy is pollution-free

"Increased use of wind power would be a possible valuable step toward helping global warming," Manes said.



Though wind energy poses potential ecological risks, Manes said that Nature Conservancy in Kansas supports an eco-friendly expansion of wind farms in Kansas.

"The wind energy industry has been very responsive to changing the structure of the turbine towers so they are a lot less hazardous," he said. "We support wind energy development only in areas where native habitats are already highly modified by other activities, such as crop production and other human influences."

File photo

VOLLEYBALL

No. 24 K-State looks for season sweep of KU

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The key to a Wildcat win against the Kansas Jayhawks on Saturday evening will be to use the same strategy they employed in their victory on Nov. 2 against Iowa State, said redshirt-freshman Megan Kroeker.

"We were assigned certain areas that we needed to work on as an individual," said Kroeker, an outside hitter who helped propel her team in its win against Iowa State. "We focused on all of our assignments, they came together, and we got a win out of it."

The No. 24 Wildcats have historically come out on top when facing Kansas. K-State (16-7, 7-6 Big 12) came away from Lawrence with a 3-0 sweep earlier this season, which marked its 21st victory against the Jayhawks (12-11, 4-10 Big 12). In Saturday's 92nd Sunflower Showdown at Ahearn Field House, the Cats are looking for a repeat of Oct. 5.

Since the Cats and the Jayhawk's last rendezvous, the Wildcats are 3-4. Kansas hasn't fared as well, having lost eight consecutive matches and won only four of its last 28 games.

To make that nine straight losses for the Jayhawks, the Wildcats need to fulfill the same roles they did against the Cyclones, Kroeker said.

"We need to come in with the same assignments we did Wednesday night and perform those well," Kroeker said. "We need to take charge in the game and not play with them – just take charge and win the game."

Coach Suzie Fritz said attention to detail has played an important part in her team's gradual improvement.

"I don't think it's one big thing," Fritz said. "I think we're controlling the ball at a little higher level, I don't think we're making unforced errors, and I feel like our blocking has gotten better from the beginning of the season."

As of Thursday, Fritz said she hadn't given much thought to Saturday's match against Kansas. However, good serving and passing will put the odds in K-State's favor, she said.

"At this point I don't know a lot about KU or exactly what we'll have to do," Fritz said. "My general answer will always be to serve and pass because that's usually the answer for everything. If we can serve and pass, I think we're in it."

The home court advantage also lends itself to a potential win, Fritz said.

"Our fans have made this a very difficult place to play, so it will just be nice to have an opportunity to play at home again," Fritz said.

First serve will be at 7 p.m.

Student gets rare opportunity

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When the K-State men's basketball team opened its season last night in an exhibition game against the EA Sports All-Stars, Bryan Reinecke had the chance to do something he said he will never forget.

Reinecke, junior in electrical engineering, won the Rudy Contest and earned the opportunity to play for the All-Stars against K-State.

"I was pretty nervous," Reinecke said of the experience. "The players didn't really let up that much when they were going against me."

EA Sports sponsors this contest for the various schools the All-Stars play. The team is scheduled to play five more exhibition games against Division I opponents, and more Rudy Contests are planned for those games.

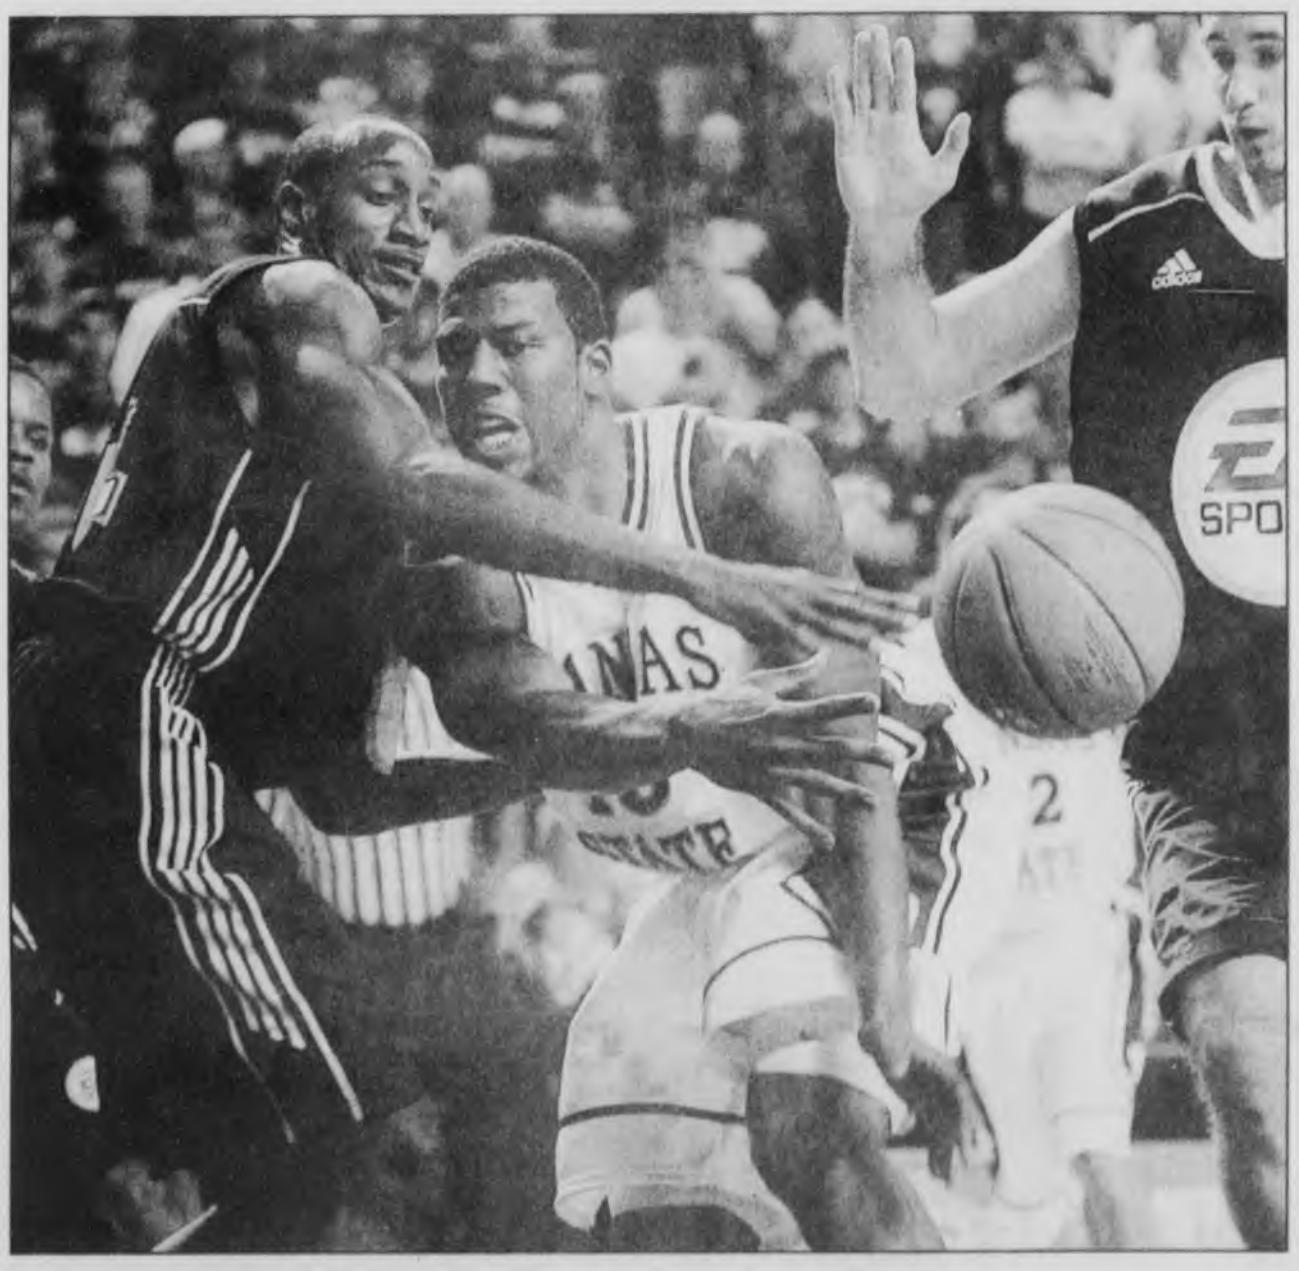
"I'm not really in charge of how (the contest) is run," EA Sports coach Maury Hanks said. "I just like to try to get whoever it is into the game to get that experience."

Indeed, Reinecke had his chance to play late in the second half. He came in with 1:44 remaining and "his team" trailing the Wildcats 60-49.

Reinecke failed to produce many statistics. He did not take any shots, and he had one turnover while being guarded by senior guard Schyler Thomas in his two minutes of playing time.

K-State ended up winning 62-53.

"The game was much faster than what I was used to," Reinecke said. "(Thomas) really guarded me tight on defense."



Reinecke said he has been playing basketball since he was in junior high school. Now, he occasionally plays at Peters Recreation Complex.

See REINECKE Page 14

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Fighting for the ball, Bryan Reinecke, junior in electrical engineering, tries to get around K-State's Curtis Allen Thursday evening at Bramlage Coliseum. Reinecke won the Rudy Contest, giving him the chance to play for EA Sports All-Stars against the Wildcats.

Work in progress

K-State opens preseason with win over EA Sports All-Stars

By Mark Potter
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State 62 EA Sports 53

	K-State	EA Sports
Field goals	28-65	20-56
3-point	5-10	8-17
Free throws	1-6	5-10
Rebounds	48	28
Assists	20	13
Turnovers	19	16
Leading scorer	Hoskins	Butler
Leading rebounder	Allen	Joiner
Leading assists	Hoskins	Mills

The recurring words spoken by K-State's men's basketball players after Thursday night's 62-53 exhibition victory over the EA Sports All-Stars were how much work they have ahead of them.

"We still have a lot of work to do, but I feel like we are only going to get better," sophomore guard Clent Stewart said.

Coach Jim Wooldridge said his squad, which committed 19 turnovers, must focus on taking better care of the basketball.

"The turnovers were obviously a big problem in the first half," Wooldridge said. "But I think we can get that kind of thing ironed out."

After finishing 17-12 last season, K-State opened the 2005-06 season with a number of question marks, mostly those surrounding the departure of last year's leading scorer and rebounder, Jeremiah Massey.

Newcomer David Hoskins, a 6-foot-5 sophomore guard/forward from Canton, Mich., helped fill the void.

Hoskins finished with a team-high 14 points on 6-of-11 shooting and added six rebounds and five assists.

"He's a beast," Stewart said of Hoskins. "He loves basketball and he loves competition. He gets in there and plays hard. He does it all."

"He is going to be one of the go-to guys on the team," junior

See BASKETBALL Page 14

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Above: Curtis Allen drives around EA Sports All-Star's Anthony Walton Thursday night at Bramlage Coliseum. K-State won its exhibition season-opener 62-53.

Top: Sophomore guard David Hoskins passes the ball out to the corner during the second half of the game Thursday night against EA Sports All-Stars. Hoskins led the Wildcats in scoring with 14 points.

Nebraska coach should have apologized for throat-slashing gesture

MATTHEW GIRARD

Sometimes emotions get the best of people, especially when it comes to a blown call during a football game.

Last Saturday, Nebraska coach Bill Callahan had one such moment during the Cornhusker's 31-24 loss to the Oklahoma Sooners.

Normally, I do not cheer for the Huskers, but on this occasion I had to, because I despise the Sooners even more. I watched most of the game in a hotel bar in Kansas City, Mo., and was looking forward to Oklahoma dropping another game as Nebraska looked poised to pull off the comeback win.

With the Sooners leading 24-17 in the fourth quarter, Oklahoma running back Kejuan Jones ran 17 yards for a touchdown with the help of his blockers doing their best New York mugging impression, blatantly holding the Cornhusker defenders.

After the touchdown, the camera focused on Callahan who was about to rupture a blood vessel because of the blown call. As I tried to see the TV between a Georgia fan and a Maryland fan whining about having "their" team's game on TV, I saw Callahan take his finger across his throat while looking straight at an official.

Just as obvious as the holding was, so too was Callahan's throat-slashing gesture, which can carry a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

The gesture wasn't caught by any officials, but the camera sure caught it. On Monday, Callahan denied he made any such gesture, and then on Tuesday, he told the Associated Press he made a "gesture out of frustration," but it wasn't a throat slash.

The last time I checked, moving an extended finger across your throat isn't the sign for "I'm smiling really big at you and would like to go grab a beer after the game with you."

Callahan also said he uses the same gesture with his children when "he has had it up to here," and the situation is being blown out of proportion.

Apparently the leader of the Big Red Nation didn't put much thought into his rebuttal, but I suppose that's a Cornhusker for you.

Sorry coach, but you are the one who blew the situation out of proportion by making excuses for your gesture.

Callahan's emotions did get the better of him and rightly so, but he should have just come out and apologized for his throat slash.

Matthew Girard is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

TRK | Miller to be inducted into Hall of Fame

On Nov. 30, the U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association will induct Steve Miller into its Hall of Fame. Miller is a former head coach at K-State and will join 12 other individuals in this year's Hall of Fame class.

Miller served as head coach of both California Polytechnic State University (1976-1981) and K-State (1981-1986), where he was also the athletics director.

Miller was named the NCAA National Coach of the Year five times during his coaching career and coached Olympian Bart Williams and multiple NCAA distance title winner Jim Schankel.

Miller is currently the president and chief operating officer for Devine Racing.

The Associated Press

MLB | Ex-Royals coach hired as Yank's 1st-base coach

NEW YORK — Former Kansas City manager Tony Pena was hired by the New York Yankees on Thursday as their first base coach.

Pena

Pena was hired as Royals manager in May 2002 and was voted AL Manager of the Year in 2003 after leading the team to an 83-79 record, its first winning season since 1994. He quit May 10 after an 8-25 start that left his overall record with Kansas City at 198-285.

Earlier this week, the Yankees hired former major league managers Larry Bowa and Lee Mazzilli as bench coach and as third base coach respectively.

Ron Guidry might become pitching coach and Joe Kerrigan bullpen coach.

NFL | Injured Owens returns to Eagles' practice

PHILADELPHIA — Terrell Owens returned to practice Thursday, a day after he was listed as doubtful for Philadelphia's game at Washington on Sunday.

Owens

Owens sprained the same ankle he had surgery on last year in last Sunday's loss to Denver. He was upgraded to questionable for the Eagles' matchup against the Redskins. Meanwhile, quarterback Donovan McNabb missed his second straight practice with a rib injury, and was downgraded to questionable.

NFL | Big Ben to sit out Sunday after surgery

PITTSBURGH — Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger will miss one game and possibly two after arthroscopic knee surgery Thursday.

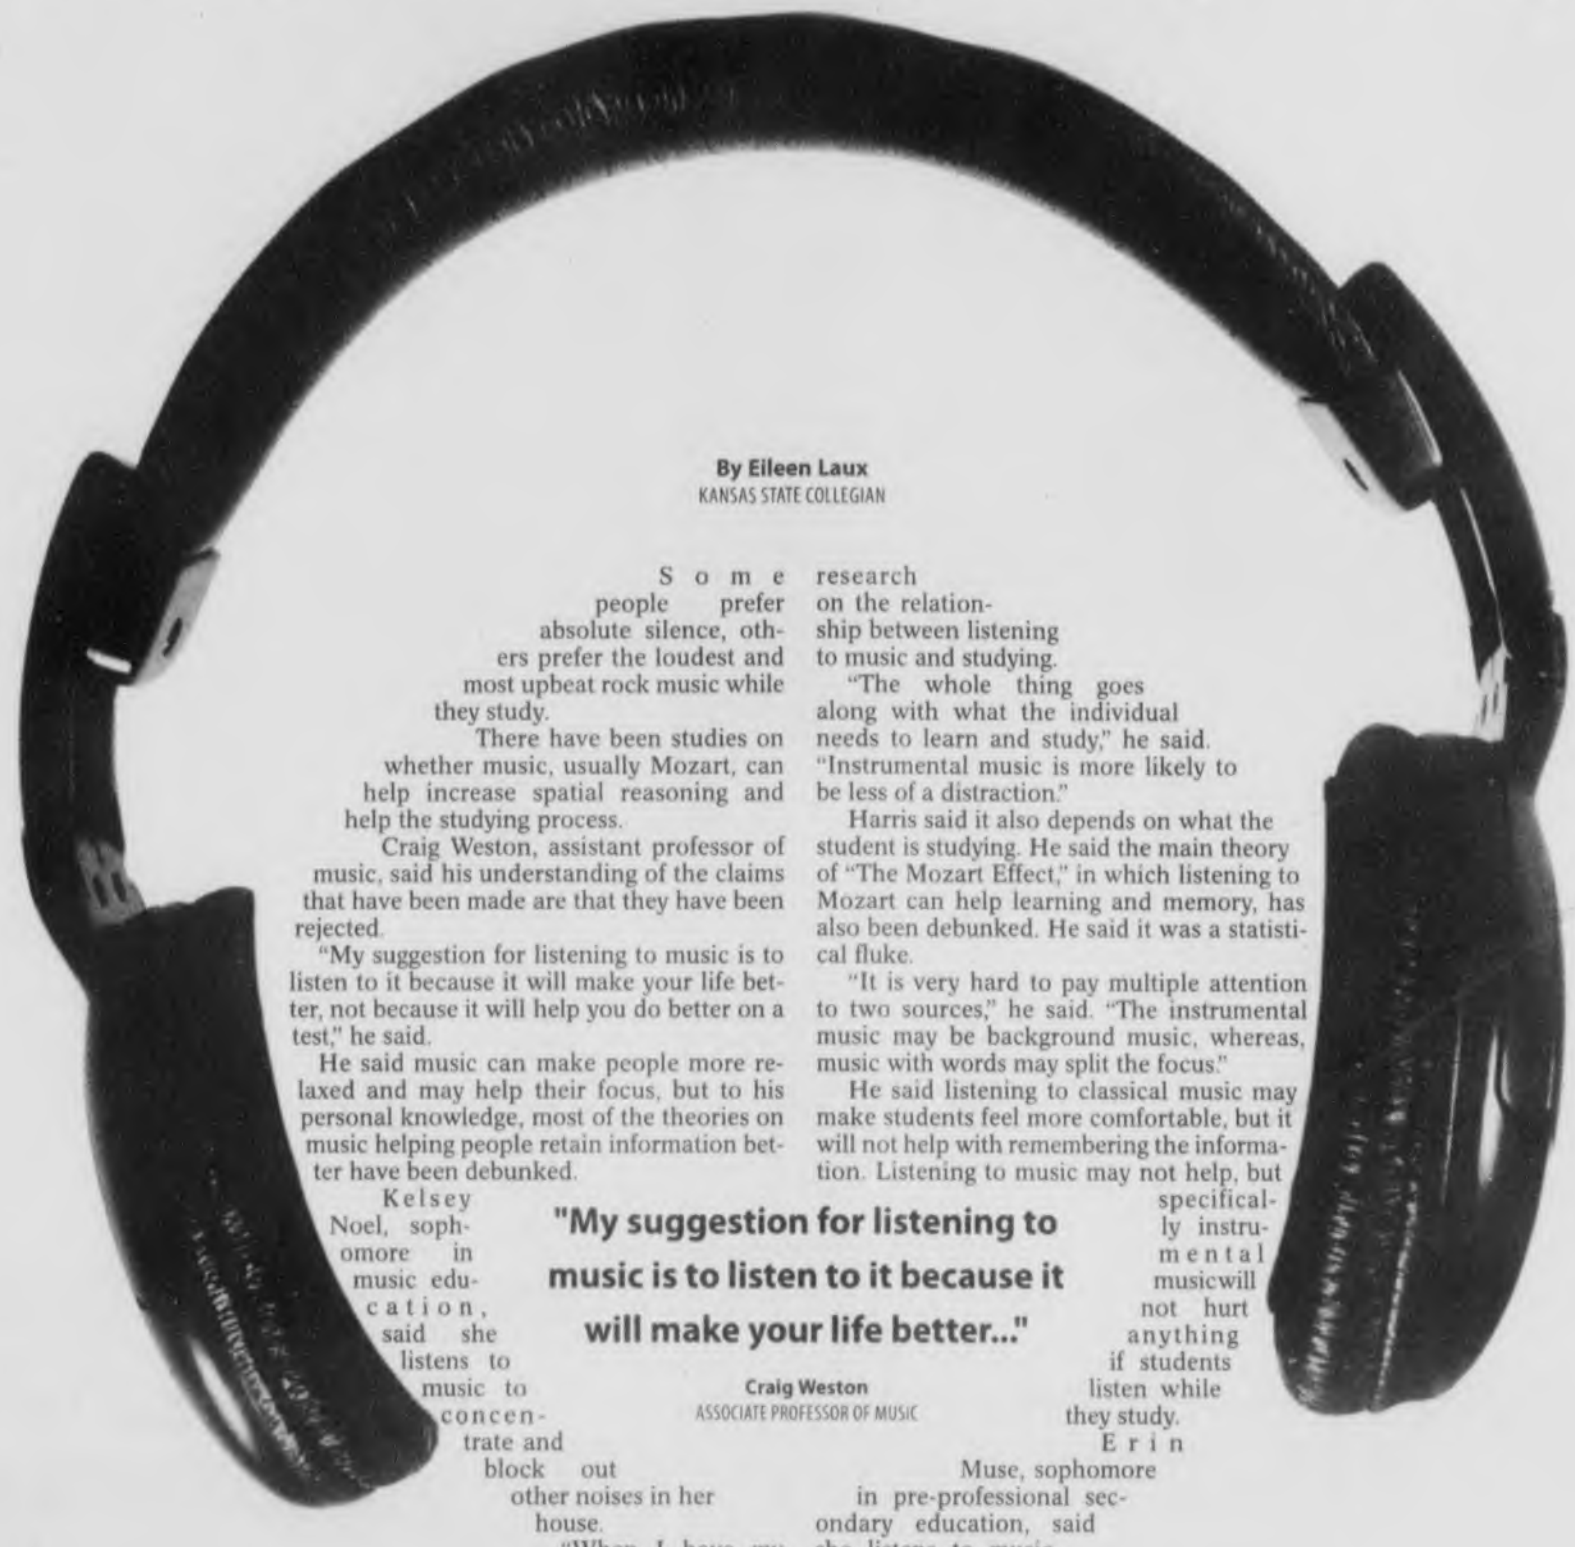
Roethlisberger

A piece of torn cartilage was removed from his right knee.

Coach Bill Cowher said Roethlisberger will definitely miss Sunday's game against Green Bay. But it's possible he'll return as early as the Steelers' game Nov. 13 against Cleveland, even though the operation normally sidelines a player 10 to 14 days.

SPT | CBS to buy college sports network CSTV

NEW YORK — CBS, which is about to split away from the Viacom Inc. media conglomerate, has already made its first acquisition deal, agreeing to pay $325 million for a two-year-old college sports network called CSTV Networks Inc.



CBS plans to pay for the company, which was founded by sports programming entrepreneur Brian Bedol, with stock in CBS Corp., one of the two companies to be created by the end of the year when Viacom splits itself up.

Bedol was also a co-founder of The Classic Sports Network, a cable channel that became popular with non-game sports programming such as documentaries and nostalgia shows. That channel was sold in 1997 to Walt Disney Co.'s ESPN and is now known as ESPN Classic.

Under the deal announced Wednesday, Bedol will continue to operate CSTV and report to Leslie Moonves, who will run CBS following its breakup from Viacom.

Shut Up

Listening to music may, may not improve studying

By Eileen Laux
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Some people prefer absolute silence, others prefer the loudest and most upbeat rock music while they study.

There have been studies on whether music, usually Mozart, can help increase spatial reasoning and help the studying process.

Craig Weston, assistant professor of music, said his understanding of the claims that have been made are that they have been rejected.

"My suggestion for listening to music is to listen to it because it will make your life better, not because it will help you do better on a test," he said.

He said music can make people more relaxed and may help their focus, but to his personal knowledge, most of the theories on music helping people retain information better have been debunked.

Kelsey Noel, sophomore in music education, said she listens to music to concentrate and block out other noises in her house.

"When I have my music on, people know to leave me alone and not to bother me," she said. "I think people should listen to whatever helps them relax and retain information, whether it is silence or loud rock music."

She said she listens to a small portion of all kinds of music, but tries to keep it to music she already knows, which is usually country.

She doesn't want to be focusing on the words of songs she has never heard before.

"I hate silence and I hate noise," she said. "I think when I listen to whatever can just be in the background, so that I focus on homework or studying, rather than focus on the song."

Richard Harris, professor of psychology, said K-State has done no specific research on the relationship between listening to music and studying.

"The whole thing goes along with what the individual needs to learn and study," he said. "Instrumental music is more likely to be less of a distraction."

Harris said it also depends on what the student is studying. He said the main theory of "The Mozart Effect," in which listening to Mozart can help learning and memory, has also been debunked. He said it was a statistical fluke.

"It is very hard to pay multiple attention to two sources," he said. "The instrumental music may be background music, whereas, music with words may split the focus."

He said listening to classical music may make students feel more comfortable, but it will not help with remembering the information. Listening to music may not help, but specifically instrumental musicwill not hurt anything if students listen while they study.

"My suggestion for listening to music is to listen to it because it will make your life better..."

Craig Weston
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF MUSIC

Erin Muse, sophomore in pre-professional secondary education, said she listens to music, but she has found that it helps to listen to a nature sound compact disc when she studies.

"I got the 'Rain and Thunder' CD from my brother for my birthday, because I have always liked storms," she said. "It was a college development, but I find it very soothing."

She said the CD is an hour-long thunderstorm and it helps block out distractions around her house. She said since it doesn't have words in the background, it helps her concentrate on studying rather than the things going on around her.

She only listens to this type of music while studying. Her usual selection depends on the mood she is in.

"I don't want to put in a rap CD when I am just sitting down to study," she said. "I just usually rely on whatever is on the radio."

Columnist's mother weighs in on his course selection

Ask the 5th year

MATT PETERWORTH

In lieu of a column by our regular "Ask the Fifth Year," we have decided to run a letter to the editor sent to us by his mother.

Dear Editor,

My son, Matthew Peterworth, a fifth year student in architectural engineering, recently told me what classes he is enrolled in for the next semester.

To my surprise, he said he was taking the Harry Potter Library for an upper level class that satisfies his University General Education credit.

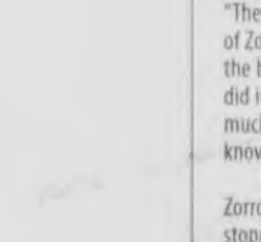
Is he right in that he can read the Harry Potter books for a class he can count toward graduation? If so, I am appalled and outraged.

Our son comes from a good, Christian family. We even paid the tuition for 12 years to send him to Catholic schools. We thought it would be safe to send him to K-State, located in a small town in the conservative state of Kansas.

Apparently not, as the liberals in charge of higher education have taken another step in degrading the morals of this country.

Harry Potter should not be taught because it deals with witchcraft and the dark arts. Most people may not realize it, but Harry Potter carries a mark on his forehead just like Satan.

Not only do the books deal with witchcraft, but they paint these horrible things in a positive light. Now every Halloween there are kids running around as Harry Potter.



What are these books teaching our kids? That it is acceptable to run around casting spells and practicing witchcraft? The Bible forbids all witchcraft in Deuteronomy 18:10-12. "There shall not be found among you any one that make his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that use divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard or a necromancer."

For all who do these things are an abomination unto the Lord: and because of these abominations the Lord thy God doth drive them out from before thee.

These books also promote rebellion. Harry Potter is frequently disobeying his foster parents. The fourth commandment teaches us to love thy mother and father.

In a country where Christian values and morals are taking a back seat to the liberal media's agenda, we don't need a Harry Potter class which requires today's students to read these morally outrageous books. K-State should stop offering the Harry Potter class altogether, let alone offering it as a class anyone at K-State can take to graduate.

Charlotte Peterworth
Florissant, Mo.

Ask The Fifth Year is mostly a satire advice column. This letter happens to be entirely satire.

Matt Peterworth is a fifth-year senior in architectural engineering. You can e-mail him at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

MOVIES

- Times for today through Thursday.
- All times are p.m. unless otherwise noted.
- () denotes times that are playing Saturday and Sunday only.

"Chicken Little" G
(1:00), (3:00), 5:00, 7:00, 9:00

Courtesy art

"Jarhead" R
(1:15), 4:10, 7:10, 9:55

"The Legend of Zorro" PG
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 9:50

"Prime" PG-13
(1:50), 4:45, 7:15, 9:45

"Saw 2" R
(1:10), (3:20), 5:30, 7:40, 9:55

"The Weather Man" R
(1:40), 4:15, 7:10, 9:35

"North Country" R
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 9:50

"Dreamer" PG
(1:15), 4:20, 7:10, 9:35

"Doom" R
(1:30), 4:15, 7:00, 9:30

"Elizabethtown" PG-13
(1:20), 4:05, 7:15, 10:00

"Wallace & Gromit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit" G
(1:00), (3:15), 5:30, 7:45, 9:55

"Flightplan" PG-13
(1:40), 4:30, 7:20, 9:40

MOVIE REVIEW

"The Legend of Zorro"

Movie review by Brigette Burandt

In 1998, Zorro swept through theaters, thrilling audiences. Now he's back in a new adventure, this one just as potent as the first.

Alejandro de la Vega (Antonio Banderas) a.k.a. Alejandro Murrieta still plays the part of Zorro 10 years after his first adventure. But this time he's joined by his wife Elena (Catherine Zeta-Jones) and son Joaquin (Adrian Alonso).

Courtesy art

And yes, despite the fact that in the end of "The Mask of Zorro" the baby looked like a girl, the couple did in fact have a baby boy. Joaquin is much like his father, who he doesn't know is Zorro.

In the sequel, "The Legend of Zorro," Zorro is engaged yet again in stopping a nefarious plot by a wealthy new resident of California, who has an American sidekick to do his dirty work.

But the similarities with "The Mask of Zorro" are not complete. All's not well in the de la Vega household. Zorro, the same persona that drew Elena to Alejandro, is now pushing her away.

"The Legend of Zorro" is an action-packed adventure, opening with a fight scene in the plaza and culminating with a grand explosion. But it still has the same humor throughout that existed in the first movie, plus the prerequisite romance. The humor is augmented more when the audience recognizes Tony Amendola, who played Don Rafael's (Stuart Wilson) friend Don Luiz in "The Mask of Zorro." Some of the humor is lost, though, because Amendola plays a different character in this movie as Joaquin's strict teacher, Father Quintero.

Despite all the throwbacks to its predecessor, "The Legend of Zorro" is exciting in its own right. It has great plot twists and, tongue-in-cheek humor, such as teaching his horse, Tornado, to understand English.

This is a movie the entire family can enjoy, without too much blood for children, and a new hero the kids can enjoy, 10-year-old Joaquin de la Vega. People can expect successful entertainment from this film.

"We show signs of getting stuff corrected, and then we go out and do some of those same old mistakes that we've been doing."

Victor Mann
FULLBACK

K-State (4-4, 1-4) vs. Iowa State (5-3, 2-3)
1 p.m., Saturday
History: Iowa State leads 47-37-4
Radio: K-State Sports Network — 1350AM, 101.5FM

The K-State defense has improved, and much of that can be attributed to junior defense tackle Quintin Echols. For the Wildcats to beat Iowa State, Echols and the K-State defense must contain Cyclone quarterback Bret Meyer.

Same mistakes hurting Wildcats

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Third verse, same as the first.

This season has become a sort of merry-go-round for the K-State football team. The Wildcats sit at 1-4 in Big 12 Conference play, and have lost their last three games due to the same problems occurring game after game.

Penalties and turnovers.

Is the situation getting repetitive and old?

You bet.

"We show signs of getting stuff corrected, and then we go out and do some of those same old mistakes that we've been doing," senior fullback Victor Mann said.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
K-State's Blake Seiler taps Quintin Echols on the head after a play Oct. 22 against Texas A&M.

In three losses to Texas Tech, Texas A&M and Colorado, the Wildcats have averaged 78.3 penalty yards and three turnovers.

Those mistakes have led to K-State losing some close games, specifically games against Texas A&M and Colorado.

Against Texas A&M, the Wildcats produced a season-high 99 penalty yards, including 30 yards before the Aggies ran their first play that set up a Texas A&M touchdown. K-State went on to lose 30-28.

Last week against Colorado, with the score tied 20-20, K-State forced the Buffaloes to punt with 1:06 left.

Colorado punter John Torp's punt hit off the turf and return man Jermaine Moreira tried to field the ball off the bounce.

Moreira fumbled, the Buffaloes recovered and Colorado place-kicker Mason Crosby hit the game-winning 50-yard field goal with six seconds left to down the Wildcats 23-20.

The losses, particularly the last two, have weighed heavily on the Wildcats' minds, junior defensive tackle Quintin Echols said.

"We've gotten so close to proving that we're there or that we can be a good team," Echols said. "But when you look at the scoreboard, it really doesn't matter. When you get two hard losses like these last two, you know you want to work hard.

"We're still going to work hard, but it's always something that's in the back of your mind saying, 'What else do we need to do? What else can go wrong?'"

Saturday, the Wildcats will face an Iowa State team that decimated a common opponent, Texas A&M, 42-14 last weekend.

The Cyclones' game against the Aggies saw the return of running back Stevie Hicks, who ran over the Aggies for 122 yards, while wide receiver Todd Blythe caught a school-record four touchdown passes.

Coach Bill Snyder said there were some factors that allowed Iowa State to handle Texas A&M.

"I think having Hicks back probably helped them. I think they (Iowa State) matched up real well with their wideouts on their (Texas A&M's) corners," Snyder said.

"There were some turnovers, and A&M had some turnovers in some ill-advised areas of the field. But Iowa State played extremely well."

Despite being on the road and mired in a three-game losing streak, Mann said the Wildcats still have attainable goals, and reaching those goals starts with a win over Iowa State.

"Our confidence level is up just because we know we still have opportunity," Mann said. "We still have the opportunity to have postseason play and go to a bowl game, and we have three opportunities to do that. We have to go in there and do what we have to do and keep everything going for us and not fur them.

"Everybody knows we're looking in one direction, and that's up."

vs.

OFFENSE

☐ While the K-State running game hasn't been dominant, it has gotten progressively better over the last few weeks. After being held to 22 yards against Oklahoma, K-State's ground game has improved each week, finishing with 81 yards last week against Colorado. Still, the Wildcats must run more to win.

☑ Iowa State receiver Todd Blythe, who stands 6-foot-5, shredded Texas A&M's defense last week with four touchdown catches. The Cyclones' 42-14 win over the Aggies was also fueled by the return to full-time duty by running back Stevie Hicks, who rushed for 122 yards on 25 carries.

DEFENSE

☑ K-State's defense was simply dominant last week in the second half against Colorado. The Wildcats had a shutout in the second half until Mason Crosby hit a 50-yard field goal to win the game. In the last three games, K-State has also recorded eight sacks, which is more than the other five conference games combined. The Wildcats can shut down Iowa State quarterback Bret Meyer.

☐ Iowa State is fairly stout against the run, allowing opponents to rush for 110.4 yards per game. However, the Cyclones give up 234.2 yards a contest through the air, which could mean the Wildcats and their newfound passing game could flourish against Iowa State. Iowa State is tied with Colorado for last in the Big 12 Conference with just eight sacks on the season.

SPECIAL TEAMS

☐ Return man Jermaine Moreira's crucial mistake at the end of the game against Colorado nearly cost him his career. It was just another example of how the Wildcats have hurt themselves on special teams this year. K-State ranks ninth in the conference in punt returns, as they average just 10.3 yards per return. K-State is last in net punt yardage, averaging 30.1 yards per punt.

☑ Iowa State is second only to Texas in the Big 12 in kickoff return yardage, averaging 25.6 yards per return. The Cyclones feature return man DeAndre Jackson, who has returned 13 punts for 360 yards, or an average of 27.7 yards a return. Iowa State also has a veteran punter in senior Troy Blankenship, who is averaging 42.6 yards per punt this season, with a long of 68.

PREDICTION

It's basically do-or-die time for the Wildcats. With a 4-4 record, K-State needs to win two out of their last three games to become bowl eligible. Getting back to a bowl game has been a goal for the Wildcats all season, and time is getting short. With two of the last three games on the road — the other being at Nebraska — the Wildcats have the best chance to pick up a road win this weekend against the Cyclones. Don't look at Iowa State's dominating win over Texas A&M last weekend and think the Cyclones will roll the Wildcats. Any team can beat any other team in the Big 12 Conference each week. The Wildcats' defense should be able to contain Meyer and the Iowa State receivers, while quarterback Allan Evridge should be able to pass on the weak Cyclone defense.

— K-State - 28, Iowa State - 18

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
"My Mom cried."
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.

LIGHT IT UP
PROFESSIONAL DISC JOCKEYS
• receptions
• ceremonies
www.kansasdiscjockey.com
• video projection
• free travel
785-565-8054

7 TVs
Cold Beer
Good Friends
Before, During & After The Game
Finn's Pub
Manhattan's Favorite Irish Pub!
317 Poyntz-Downtown Manhattan
www.finnspub.com 785-776-2119

Motorcycle Supply
•Dirt & Street • Parts
•Accessories •Helmets
• Apparel • Tires
•Leather • Service
431 S. 5th
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-6171

Wohler's Used Furniture
Visit Wohler's for used: Furniture, Antiques, Appliances and miscellaneous items for all needs.
615 N. 3rd St.
539-3319
10-6 Mon.-Fri. 10-5 Sat. - Closed on Sun.

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

More Shoes, More Service, More Friendly
A steady throb of versatility, adaptability & performance. Delivers instinctive reaction to hard use and varying, multi-sport demands.
MERRELL
Brown's SHOE Fit Co.
New Business Hours • Mon.-Sat. 9 AM - 6 PM
311 Poyntz Ave. • 776-6612 • Downtown Manhattan

CINCH REVERSABLE JACKETS
10% OFF
for the upcoming cold weather!
Offer Expires: Nov. 12 2005
(785) 776-6715
8426 E. Hwy 24
2 1/2 miles East of Manhattan
Mon.- Fri.10 - 6,Sat.10 - 5
Lee's Western Wear

Need Money?
New Name... Same great deals!!
We pay top dollar for:
Tools, electronics, movies, CDs, guns, music equipment, jewelry, & sporting goods
Two Locations
501a Ft. Riley 537-1803
3110 Anderson 565-0046
AMERICAN CASH EXCHANGE
CASH ADVANCE & PAWN LOANS

FREE Activation & $36 value
Case or cord $15 value
Limited time. See our store for details
Sprint
HOURS
M-F 9am-8pm
SAT 9am-7pm
SUN 11am-6pm
537-1476
614 Ft. Riley Blvd.
MANHATTAN
RadioShack

RC McGraws
2 nights of music
ROUTE 66
(the band) playing
Friday & Saturday
November 4th & 5th, 2005
9-1
The Best of Oldies & Country
2317 TUTTLE CREEK BLVD.
BLUE HILLS SHOPPING CENTER
776-9588

Voted Sports Illustrated's #12 Sports Bar in America!
Good Luck, Wildcats!
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON

Running from the past

Carlos Alsup rushes up the middle against North Texas earlier this season. K-State will travel to Iowa State on Saturday to play the Cyclones.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Alsup bounces back from 2 career-threatening injuries

By Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Carlos Alsup remembers his first time vividly.

In the rain, how it felt and what he was thinking when it happened.

The first time he tore his anterior cruciate ligament, at home against Troy State in 2002, was the beginning of a dark cloud of injuries that lasted two seasons and have hung over the head of the senior running back.

"I remember both of them just like it was yesterday, but I just look past that and just remember how I used to feel, stay positive with everything that is going on," Alsup said.

For the first time in two seasons, Alsup is injury-free, but has yet to garner much playing time as the third back behind junior Thomas Clayton and freshman Parrish Fisher.

A Clayton fumble in the second quarter and Fisher's ineffectiveness gave Alsup a rare opportunity to come off the sidelines for K-State in Saturday's loss to Colorado.

In one play, he let the coaches know the injury problems were behind him; cutting around would-be tacklers and bouncing off others for a 23-yard gain in the third quarter. The play set up a quarterback draw by Allan Evridge for a three-yard touchdown.

Alsup finished as the Wildcats' leading rusher against Colorado with 43 yards on eight carries, earning him 50 percent of the repetitions this week during practice, coach Bill Snyder said.

"I'm pleased for Carlos to, A, have the opportunity, and B, for the most part do well once the opportunity comes," Snyder said.

"His career has just been plagued with injuries and where it has really set him back is so many of them were back-to-back, so there were long periods of time when he was away from the program in terms of practicing and being on the practice field."

"Seeing that I went through one myself, to go through two and still have the will and desire to want to play, that says a heck of a lot."

Thomas Clayton
RUNNING BACK

The second time Alsup tore his ACL was on the practice field in 2004. One year removed from his first surgery to repair the damage, Alsup once again found himself in the surgery room.

During the spring last season, Alsup was hurt again. This time by his teammates, carrying the ball during the annual spring game.

"I was running with the ball and I was trying to stretch it around the corner, and the defense was just stretching us out, and I got rolled back up on," Alsup said.

"I got up and felt that something was wrong, but I continued to play, but unfortunately after the game they said it was messed up again."

The thought of walking away from the game crossed Alsup's mind after the second injury.

Alsup said he wasn't sure if he wanted to pay the price, sacrifice and take the time to rehabilitate the problems that have scarred his collegiate football career.

He came to the conclusion that he wanted to get back onto the field.

He said his passion for football and his teammates were the reasons he went through grueling hours of rehabilitation in order to play – something fellow running back and sufferer of an ACL injury, Clayton, said he respects Alsup for.

"Seeing that I went through one myself, to go through two and still have the will and desire to want to play, that says a heck of a lot," Clayton said.

Dual-threat quarterback focus of K-State defense

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State Wildcats (4-4, 1-4 Big 12) will travel to Ames, Iowa, Saturday to take on the Iowa State Cyclones (5-3, 2-3).

The Wildcat defense will look to shut down another dual-threat quarterback this week, this time it will be the Cyclones' Bret Meyer.

Meyer, a sophomore from Atlantic, Iowa, is coming off the best performance of his young career.

He had career-bests in passing yards (371) and touchdowns (4) last week in a 42-14 win at Texas A&M.

His 371 yards were the fifth-best single-game performance for a quarterback in Iowa State history.

In eight games this season, Meyer has thrown for 1,920 yards while completing 63 percent of his passes.

He has thrown for 10 touchdowns to seven interceptions, adding another 212 yards on the ground and one rushing touchdown.

Coach Bill Snyder said stopping Meyer will be difficult because the Cyclones run a lot of bootlegs and rollouts with their mobile quarterback, and K-State's ability to get defensive pressure on Meyer may be the deciding factor against the Cyclones.

"He's got the ability to run, so we can't back off and just play the pass," Snyder said. "We have to prevent him from running the ball. He's got seemingly pretty good speed and he doesn't make a lot of mistakes."

In three nonconference games this season, the Wildcat defense managed just four sacks, but in five games against Big 12 Conference opponents, they have brought down the quarterback a total of 11 times.

Junior defensive tackle Quintin Echols said his team has been recording more sacks lately because they have been practicing with more passion, and going up against teams from the Big 12 is simply more exciting than playing nonconference opponents.

"We have been working a lot harder in practice lately," Echols said. "Playing teams from the Big 12 is more exciting because every game is basically do-or-die; each game is a rivalry game."

Last week against the Colorado Buffaloes, the Wildcats tied their season high with three sacks. Senior linebacker Ted Sims, junior linebacker Brandon Archer and sophomore defensive back Justin McKinney each recorded one sack.

Senior defensive lineman Tearrius George is tied with Archer for the team lead in sacks this season with three.

The Cyclones have allowed more sacks this season (26) than any other team in the Big 12, and junior defensive lineman Derek Marso said he thinks his team will contribute to that total by putting pressure on Meyer.

"Getting pressure on the quarterbacks is something that we and our coaches have stressed during conference play," Marso said. "Sometimes during practice Tearrius, myself, Quintin and Blake (Seiler) race each other to see who gets to the quarterback first, and we have to bring that level of intensity to the field Saturday.

"We are a few plays from being outstanding, and now we have to eliminate the mistakes so that we can be perfect."

you can finally buy a book
WORTH ITS PRICE
Kansas State University CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
On sale in Kedzie 103
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

ROYAL PURPLE yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532-6555.

HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
Free Delivery: 537-0886
Fax: 539-9111
Hours: Sun. - Wed.. 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
SPEND OVER $25 AND GET A FREE T-SHIRT!!

Junior • Petite
Blue Jeans
Lucky, Gap, Abercrombie & Fitch, and more!
$2.50 – $4.95
Clip this ad for 50% off any one clothing item
QUALITY NAME BRAND New & Gently Used CLOTHING AT 50-95% OFF RETAIL
The Apple's Heart
"Where Kansas Meets New York"
113 S. 5th • downtown poyntz

GOPOWERCAT.COM
The online leader in Kansas State sports and recruiting news
POWERCAT ILLUSTRATED'S GO POWERCAT .com
Officially licensed partner of the Rivals.com network

Free pool
Every 1st & 3rd Sunday of every month
• Ice Cold Beer, Darts, Big Screen TV
SUNDAY - $1.50 Domestics
MONDAY - $1.50 Imports & Domestics
TUESDAY - $1.00 Busch, Keystone, & Old Mil.
WEDNESDAY - 75¢ Draws, $3.50 Pitchers
THURSDAY - $1.75 Wells, $2 Calls, $2.50 Premiums
LUNCH SERVED Tues. & Fri.
Cock-N-Bull
NEIGHBORHOOD TAVERN
(785) 776-6699
2413 Stagg Hill Road • Behind Briggs
OPEN
3:00 p.m. - Mon., Wed., Thurs.
Noon - Sat. & Sun.
9:00 a.m. - Tues. & Fri

"Your Repair Specialists"
serving Manhattan for 27 years
Manhattan Shoe Repair
Mention This ad and receive 10% discount!
Repairing of:
• Purses • Shoes • Boots • Luggage
• Backpacks • Leather Coats
• Ballgloves • Satin Shoe Dyeing
• Birkenstocks • Harness
216 S. Fourth (corner of 4th and Pierre) • VFW Placa • 776-1193

Happy Valley CHINESE RESTAURANT
LUNCH SPECIALS $4.99
Includes: choice of 2 entrees, rice, soup, appetizer
DINNER SPECIALS
Includes: $6.95 & up
entree, appetizer, salad, rice, soup, kim chee, daily dessert
DINE IN & CARRY OUT
1120 Laramie
539-9888

Enrollment
• Financial Aid Offered to Students who Qualify
• Evening Course
• Manicuring Classes
• Call to Enroll Today!
Crum's Beauty College
512 Poyntz Ave.
Manhattan, KS
785-776-4794

"KSU Football & Pizza Hut... A Great Combination"
$9.99 "Purple Pride Special"
1-Topping Large Big New Yorker Pizza, Side Order of Stix, 2-Liter of Soda
$13.99 2 Medium 1-Topping Big New Yorker Pizzas & 2-Liter of Soda
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" A KSU Tradition Since 1960 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd Street 231 Moro 776-4334
Pizza Hut
• One discount per coupon • 2- refillable sodas substituted for 2-liter on dine-in orders • Not good with any other special offer or coupon • 1/20 cent cash redemption value • Pizza Huts of Manhattan, Inc. 9/05 • Expires: Dec. 15, 2005
Beat Iowa State

In concert November 10: TREVOR BURGESS PETE GILE
FRIDAY: DANCE & COUNTRY PARTY
SATURDAY: COUNTRY PARTY
BOTH NIGHTS
$2.50 Miller Lite Pounders
$2.00 Tequila Shots
$2.00 Cover for 21 & up
$5.00 Cover for 18-20
1115 MORO LONGHORNS SALOON Aggieville Manhattan 776-8770

ONCE IN A LIFETIME

Couples register for variety of items

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Gift registries at a variety of stores let wedding guests know just what the couple wants or needs to begin their lives together.

"Every guest is different on what they register for," said Michael Clark, guest service team leader at Target, 800 Commons Place.

He said 90 percent of what comes through Target registries are kitchenware and housewares.

"We don't go through and see specifically what people register for, but in general it is kitchen supplies," Clark said.

Sue Karnowski, manager of the homestore at Dillard's, 102 Manhattan Town Center, said most items registered for at Dillard's are also kitchenware.

"The people we see in here want nice, basic things to eat off of," Karnowski said.

China, stemware and flatware, along with bedding items, are what most couples register for at Dillard's.

"When they come here, they don't want money, they want their basic stuff," Karnowski said.

Devon Hillyer, senior in business management, and Lincoln Hillyer, K-State alumnus, were married in June 2003. Devon Hillyer said they registered at Dillard's and Target for higher-quality items, and cooking utensils, pots and pans.

"We registered for a grill at Target and for china at Dillard's," she said. "We pretty much got everything we asked for."

Other couples skip the gift registry process, preferring instead money for their honeymoon or a future house.

Erin Dekat, senior in elementary education, is getting married in December.

"We originally didn't want to register because we didn't really need anything," she said. "We wanted to just get money for our honeymoon."

But Dekat's maid of honor persuaded her to register.

"She wanted to be able to buy us something we wanted," Dekat said. "We mostly registered for kitchen stuff, although we didn't need much. We registered for some fun stuff, too."

Dekat and her fiancé registered for tools and home décor at Target, Wal-Mart and The Home Depot.

She said the items they looked at were inexpensive.

"We tried to go for cheaper things," Dekat said. "We didn't want to look spoiled."

Susan Rush, jewelry department manager at Wal-Mart, 628 Tuttle Creek Blvd., said she has seen a shift in the items couples request.

Rush said that traditionally couples asked for bedding and kitchen items, but this is changing. She said she has noticed registries for tools, televisions and plants.

"We have people registering for lawn and garden items, hardware and electronics," she said. "Especially for summer weddings, we see lawn chairs and grill supplies on registries. People also register for things such as games for when they have people over."

Rush said Wal-Mart sees four to five people registering per day in the store.

"But there is also a nationwide network so someone can apply for gifts in Tennessee, and if their relatives live in Kansas, they can pull up their registry list in Kansas," she said.

Wal-Mart and other businesses offer online registry services. Rush said people can start their registry online and then come into the store to find other items.

Dekat said while she hopes to receive the items she asked for, she realizes it might not happen.

"A lot of times people will just go to the places where you registered and buy a gift card there," she said.

Save the bank | Couples find ways to trim wedding costs

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Erin Heffel, senior in animal science and industry, first got engaged, her dreams for her big day included the biggest and best. But when she started to think about the cost, her response was just a little different.

She and fiancé Josh Keller, junior in history, agreed they wanted to make their wedding and reception memorable while sharing it with the people they love.

"I want a big wedding, but I knew it would cost a lot," Keller said.

Heffel said much of the cost of the wedding lay with the photographer, who could cost up to $3,000.

The couple decided to skip a catered meal and stick to a cake-and-punch reception.

"It's nice because we're having an evening wedding, so you don't have to feed all those people," Heffel said. "and we thought that evening weddings are elegant anyway."

While Heffel and Keller decided on a disc jockey to help keep the evening going, she said couples could cut costs by setting up a laptop with a music playlist already set.

Since the bridal gown and bridesmaid dresses are often centerpieces of the ceremony, Heffel said she decided to spend more time planning than sewing.

"I don't have time to make four dresses," Heffel said. "Getting them from the store, they usually fit nicely."

Charlotte Bailey, wedding consultant with Wonderful Weddings, said many stores will give discounts for a group of bridesmaid dresses or tuxedos.

Bailey also said flowers are a big cost concern for many couples.

"You can make your own flowers, which can save you money but cost you time," she said."

To trim expenses, Bailey suggested finding an all-in-one location for the ceremony and reception.

"Obviously, if you can do the wedding on a Friday or Saturday, you can get some of those sites for half-price," she said.

When looking for a reception site, Keller and Heffel wanted to book the K-State Alumni Center to house their family and friends, but found other options that fit their budget better.

Heffel and Keller decided to have their reception in the K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom, where they get a student discount.

As couples begin thinking about their special day, Keller suggested getting price estimates and finding good alternatives.

"Definitely shop around," Keller said. "The first thing you see is not necessarily the best thing."

Right: Jennifer Dibben, senior in public health and nutrition, examines a wedding gown on a mannequin Thursday at Weisner's Bridal Boutique. Below: Lisa Nyberg, floral designer for Steve's Floral, arranges a bridal bouquet Thursday by gluing a rose into the holder. Nyberg was preparing the bouquet for a wedding this weekend.

Katie Lester
COLLEGIAN

Trimming tips:

Flowers:
Consider single-stem flowers instead of bouquets. Diane Meredith from Acme Gift said she suggests calla lilies, sunflowers, and daisies as fun alternatives to the classic, pricey bouquet. Single-stem flowers range in price from $2 to $5.

Cakes:
To save money on wedding cakes, check out grocery store bakeries. Having a pre-cut sheet cake in the back will not only be less expensive, it will also save you the cutting fees caterers usually charge. A full sheet cake at Wal-Mart costs about $35 and serves 48-96 people depending on the size of the slices.

Wedding Attire:
Instead of a wedding dress, why not wear a white bridesmaid dress? At Celebrations of the Heart, gowns range from $150 to several thousands of dollars, but bridesmaid dresses start at $98.

Compiled by: Emily Lawrence and Lacey Mackey

Kitten - Massoth
Kristin Kitten, K-State graduate and Austin Massoth, K-State graduate, announce their wedding.
Kristin is the daughter of Bernard and Shari Kitten, Plains, Kan., and Austin is the son of Ernest and Kathy Massoth, Cimarron, Kan.
They wed on Oct. 1 in Manhattan.

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
in the Collegian, the first friday of the month.

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
"My Mom cried."
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.

CLAUSSEN'S
Custom Design & Repair
A One of a Kind Ring for a One of a Kind Bride
Unique KSU Jewelry • Engagement rings
Custom designed matched wedding sets
410 poyntz suite A 537-6884

GIVE US YOUR OPINION
395-4444
CAMPUS FOURUM

Custom sterling and gemstone jewelry for the wedding party.
KGifts
kgifts.com
Schedule a meeting
info@kgifts.com
1-888-568-8595

STUDIO 32 PRODUCTIONS
Wedding Videography
The Vows. The Music. The Speeches. The Mood. Experience it Again.
Andy Liebsch
785-341-1831
studio32productions.com

Beautifully Ever After
Before saying "I do," visit Merle Norman for a personalized bridal consultation. We'll determine an ideal skin care regimen to help you create a blushing bridal glow and select the right makeup
Let Merle Norman help with the beautiful details.
Our bridal packages are customized just for you!
Manhattan Town Center Mall
785-539-4400
MERLE NORMAN

A. Jaffe
CREATED WITH PASSION SINCE 1892
SOME JEWELRY SPEAKS LOUDER THAN WORDS.
Bridal jewelry from A. Jaffe.
Created with unrivalled craftsmanship and a passion for perfection.
Destined to be worn every day.. forever.
Diamond Specialists
Reed & Elliott Jewelers
Certified Gemologist American Gem Society
Monday 12 pm-5:30 pm
Tues.-Sat. 10 am-5:30 pm
Closed Sunday
776-4000
402 Poyntz
Manhattan

It's time to POP the question...
Have you considered Borck Brothers for YOUR Formalwear?
$50.00
Our most affordable package
100 Styles to Choose
Professional Clothiers
Formal Accessories
Ask about our Complimentary Honeymoon travel Certificates!
Visit our NEW location
Seth Child Commons
Across from Panera Bread
537-8636 or 888-642-7848
Mon - Thurs 9:30am - 7:00 pm
Thurs & Fri til 6pm Sun 1-5pm
www.borck-bros.com
Borck Brothers
FINE MEN'S & WOMEN'S APPAREL
Manhattan • Salina

Couples should make most of time together

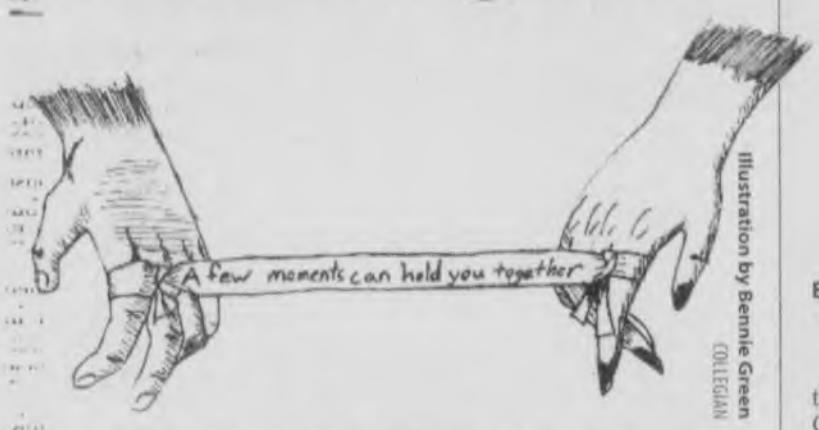


Illustration by Bennie Green COLLEGIAN

MATTHEW GIRARD

It has been 573,120 minutes since I got married.

Unfortunately, because of the busy work and school schedules of my wife and I, most of those minutes have been spent apart.

We see each other every day, but usually only for about a half-hour in the morning and before we go to bed. Occasionally, I skip out on work to go see her for a few extra minutes on her days off.

Some might say our marriage is headed in the wrong direction by spending so much time apart already in our first year of marriage.

For us, this statement is false. My wife and I feel it has made our marriage stronger. We take advantage of the time we do have together, no matter how short it is.

Even though most of our waking hours are spent apart we have found some creative ways to be together. Of course, there are those times when we venture out with friends, end up drinking too much and professing our love for each other every 30 seconds, but even the mundane adventures can bring you closer together.

A couple of everyday adventures for us are cleaning the apartment and doing the laundry. Not only do we get these chores done faster because we are tag-teaming them, we also get the chance to talk, sing badly to our favorite songs and compete in the occasional wrestling match. (Just for the record, any match she has ever won was because she didn't fight fair.)

As strange as it may sound, these ordinary minutes are some of my favorite moments since we have been together.

Would I like to spend more time with my wife? Absolutely. But, like many couples on campus, there are days when you just don't get to see each other much.

My advice is to take advantage of those times when you are both together, even if the only time you spend together is fighting for mirror time while getting ready for the day.

Couples – whether you are dating, engaged or married – don't worry about how much time you spend together, because if you spend the next 25,711,200 minutes attached to each other like coach Bill Snyder is to his playbook, eventually you will want to lock yourself in a closet just to get some alone time.

Matthew Girard is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Options available to honeymooners

By Melissa Brownlee
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Mexico or the Caribbean? Cruise or resort? Five days or seven days? Who pays – the couple, the parents or friends and family?

Planning a honeymoon requires many decisions.

Some couples choose to use a travel agency. Mary Gugle, manager at Jade Travel, 555 Poyntz Ave., Suite 180, has been a travel agent for 35 years. She said the most popular honeymoon destinations are the Sandals resorts in Jamaica or all-inclusive resorts in Mexico.

"Mexico is a better buy for your dollar because airfare is cheaper, and Mexico has a good exchange rate," Gugle said.

Josh Nordstrom, K-State graduate, and Trisha Tannahill, senior at the University of Nebraska, used a travel agent to plan their honeymoon to Playa del Carmen, Mexico, for late June 2006. The couple chose an all-inclusive couples resort because they can fly nonstop there.

Other couples use online resources to help them plan a honeymoon. Rachel Meek, sophomore in Pre-professional elementary education, and Justin Kroh, junior in accounting, used www.Expedia.com to book their honeymoon to Ocho Rios, Jamaica, for June 2006. They chose Expedia.com because it was cheaper than using a travel agency.

And who pays? That depends on the couple. Jade Travel has a honeymoon registry that allows wedding guests to pay for part of a couple's honeymoon as the wedding present.

Sometimes the bride or the groom's parents make the honeymoon a wedding gift. Allison Taylor, senior in elementary education, and Chris French, senior in speech, will marry in June 2006. French's parents are researching cruise lines and all-inclusive resorts to find options that fit their budget, Taylor said. His parents will then let French and Taylor choose which type of honeymoon they would like, but Taylor said she isn't preoccupied with the honeymoon destination.

"I'm really looking forward to checking in, wherever it is, and saying, 'We're Mr. and Mrs. French,'" she said.

Counseling prepares couples for marriage

By Abby Brownback
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Premarital counseling helps couples communicate and know each other better, said Dan Stipp, lead pastor at New Hope Community Church.

"People are less prepared for the second most important thing in their life than for anything else," Stipp said.

New Hope requires four 90-minute premarital counseling sessions before a pastor will marry a couple. A fifth session can have the bride meet with a female leader in the church and the groom meet with the pastor.

Stipp said he counsels about six couples annually. It is a big time commitment, he said, so he makes sure he counsels couples he knows well.

"It makes it more personal and more real," Stipp said.

The first four sessions cover the foundations of marriage, understanding each other, roles and responsibilities in marriage and communication and conflict. Sex and physical intimacy are discussed in either the fourth session or the optional session.

The New Hope pastors also take couples through personality and compatibility assessments.

"We're talking about things that are unique to them," Stipp said.

Terri Zey, junior in food and nutrition-exercise science, and Austin Delimont, junior in accounting, will be married on Aug. 5, 2006.

The couple will be going through premarital counseling at her home church, Fairlawn Church of the Nazarene, in Topeka.

"I don't think anybody's really prepared for marriage," Zey said, "but I do think premarital counseling is a good idea.

"You've seen marriage work, but it's so much different when you're in the situation."

Zey and Delimont will have 14 sessions with a pastor in which they will discuss love languages, how to know themselves better, and how to deal with conflicts better.

"We both love God and want to have a godly relationship," Zey said.

She said the counseling will help the couple achieve that goal.

"Hopefully it will prepare us," she said, "and just give us a heads-up on what's in store."

University Counseling Services offers couples counseling, but not specifically premarital counseling.

Melinda Le, post-doctoral fellow with Counseling Services, said 76 couples came in for counseling in the last fiscal year.

During couples counseling sessions, each person has a chance to discuss their concerns and goals with the counselor, and the counselor helps them reach those goals.

The counselors most often deal with communication problems, Le said. They offer the couples techniques and assignments to work on the problem.

Le once told a couple to post a list on the refrigerator and write positive comments about each other on that list.

"One of the things that keeps a relationship going is communication and being able to express their needs and wants in the relationship," Le said.

Once in a Lifetime — engagements and weddings
Everyone's doing it.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

Your man isn't the only thing you can have and hold forever...
Your wedding day memories can last a lifetime too.
The Scrap Master
Call for an appointment 539-7171

Just Engaged and on a Budget?
Weisners BRIDAL BOUTIQUE
Let our bridal gown consultants help!
One of a kind Bridal Gowns starting at only $99
Complete line of tuxedos and accessories
Special orders welcome
314 Poyntz 776-6100

Heirloom Portraits
MANHATTAN'S PREMIER WEDDING PHOTOGRAPHER
776-1175

Coffee & the Collegian
The perfect way to start your day!

Crum's
Man
Ring
Dress
Let Crum's take care of your Wedding Day beauty needs
• Manicures
• Pedicures
• Hair Removals
• Spa Facials
• Updo's
Performed by Supervised Students
Hours: M-F 9-5
776-4794
512 Poyntz Ave.

Randall's FORMAL WEAR
* HUGE SELECTION
* SUIT RENTALS AVAILABLE
* PRICES FOR EVERY BUDGET
* IN-STOCK SERVICE AVAILABLE
* LOCATIONS THROUGHOUT THE MIDWEST
* GROOMS TUX FREE WITH 5 OR MORE PAID RENTALS
COMPLETE TUXEDOS STARTING AT $69.95
Limited Time Only *SEE STORE FOR DETAILS
Manhattan Town Center 785.770.9011
Open 7 days a week for your convenience
www.randallsformalwear.com

Workshop teaches dinner etiquette

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Lessons were taught and misconceptions shattered Thursday night in the Derby Dining Center at a dining etiquette workshop.

The class, which focused on behavior for a job interview, was led by Pat Pesci, director of the hotel and restaurant management program, who has been teaching similar courses since 1989.

Career and Employment Services sponsored the workshop. Participants paid $6.50 for the lesson, which went toward Derby's expenses, and they learned more throughout the three-course meal.

The lessons included things not to do such as not ordering alcohol unless the interviewer does, not taking your jacket off unless the interviewer does and do not clean a spot off your clothes at the table.

What if you don't like salad?

"Fake it," Pesci said. "If there's croutons on there, you can eat croutons. If there's cheese on there, you can eat cheese."

He said he hopes the students have better chances at finding work from what they learned in the workshop, and that most students say afterward they are glad they came.

Pesci said he could have spoken for at least 30 minutes longer, but didn't have the time for it. He said one thing he forgot to tell the students was never to correct someone on etiquette.

Kiana Smith, sophomore in secondary education pre-professional, said she attended because she is preparing for the Blue and Gold Pageant and it's one thing competitors must do.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

At a dining etiquette workshop, Kevin Roberts, instructor in hotel and restaurant management and dietetics, discusses proper decorum for a business dinner during the workshop Thursday evening at the Derby Dining Center. The workshop taught attendees to make a good impression on prospective employers.

Workshop menu

- Grilled chicken with sun-dried tomatoes and basil hollandaise sauce
- Spinach-stuffed ravioli
- Tomato basil linguine
- Tuscan vegetable blend

"I thought it was educational," she said. "To some people, etiquette is not important, but in a professional setting it is important to blend in and act in the proper way."

However, there wasn't just traditional students at the workshop.

Amanda Thalman, senior in animal science, brought her 4-year-old daughter, Audra, to the class. Her reason for bringing Audra was not to learn manners, but something else altogether.

"My husband is in Iraq," she said, "and the girl that usually watches her is sick."

Richard Baybutt, associate professor of human nutrition, also brought part of his family. His wife Vicki, and three of the their seven children, Sarah, 14, Ricky, 11, and Christian, 9, ate and learned.

All the diners were required to wear professional dress at the workshop.

"This is a real tie," Ricky said, "my brother's is a zipper."

3 campus choir groups to perform tonight

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Men's Glee Club and K-State Singers Contest
When: 7:30 tonight
Where: McCain Auditorium
How much: students $6, general public $8

The K-State Singers, Men's Glee Club and Cadence Vocal Group will begin their concert season with the annual fall concert at 7:30 tonight in McCain Auditorium.

The groups are expecting a full audience, Matt Wagner, president of the Men's Glee Club, said.

"If students plan on attending, they should be there at about 7 to purchase tickets. The lines form pretty fast after that," Wagner, junior in business management, said.

The K-State Singers and Men's Glee Club have been performing in a fall concert for the past 40 years, Darin Richardson, manager of K-State Singers and senior in business management, said.

Andy Carter, vice president of the Men's Glee Club, said the event should be a fun time for students.

"It's a good time, and it's cheap entertainment, cheaper than a movie," Carter, junior in marketing, said. "It's a lot different from normal activities you can do every other weekend."

The concert will begin with the K-State Singers, followed by the Men's Glee Club and Cadence, which is a group of 12-14 Men's Glee Club members singing a cappella.

"It's guaranteed to be fun," Richardson said. "We all have a bunch of fun songs that I think the audience will enjoy. There's a wide variety of music that's going to be presented, from traditional spirituals to pop to a Big 12 medley of all the Big 12 fight songs."

The K-State Singers are different because no members are music majors, Richardson said.

"It keeps our separation from the music department and allows us to represent Kansas State as a whole, instead of just the music department," he said.

Wagner encouraged students to attend the concert, saying that the fun-loving attitudes of the K-State Singers and Men's Glee Club will make for a good show.

"The K-State Singers and Men's Glee Club just go out to have a good time," he said.

Paper flowers used as alternative symbol of respect for disabled veterans

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

As people slap yellow ribbon stickers on their cars, a local military veteran encourages people to explore a different way to symbolize their respect for troops, through a small, red poppy.

On Nov. 5, the city of Manhattan will celebrate its official Poppy Day, a day to support veterans, said Manhattan Mayor Ed Klimek.

"Back to World War I, the wild poppies that grew profusely across the countryside and the graves that were marked there," said John Hubbard, commander of Manhattan Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1786.

Hubbard said military officials have used the poppy as a symbol of respect, especially after Canadian Col. John McCrae wrote the poem "In Flanders Fields."

Years after McCrae wrote his poem, it left an impact on two women, Anna Guerin of France and Georgia native Moina Michael, said Janice Summerby, Canadian Veteran Affairs Media Relations Adviser.

Michael worked in New York and began wearing the poppy in memory of the millions who died on the battlefield.

After Guerin learned of Michael's custom during her visit to the United States, she decided to use handmade paper poppies to raise money for the destitute children in war-torn areas of France.

By November 1921, Summerby said the poppy-making trend caught on in Canada, and several veteran organizations used them as a fundraising tool, in support of disabled veterans and their families.

Soon after, allied countries America, Britain, France, Canada, Australia and New Zealand began using the scarlet poppy as a flower of remembrance. Proceeds from the first international sales went to the American and French Children's League, Summerby said.

Today, veteran organizations use poppies to symbolize their respect for the millions of veterans around the world, Hubbard said.

In most cases, he said veterans will construct paper poppies to aid veterans in need.

"In Manhattan, we're to go out to collect these funds to help pay for the expenses that are beyond our veteran's families," Hubbard said. "Sometimes veterans themselves fall on hard times. The funds we collect go into a special fund for these purposes."

you can finally buy a book WORTH ITS PRICE
Kansas State University CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
On sale in Kedzie 103
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

ROYAL PURPLE yearbook
We've got the stories • you've got to read.

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Windy City Sale
We just blew in from Chicago market and we need to make room for our new purchases!
♡ Selected bridal & prom gowns marked 25-75% off
♡ Rack of $100 sale gowns
Celebrations of the Heart
401 Poyntz Avenue
Manhattan, KS
785.587.1830

Congratulations to all the Homecoming 2005 Winners!
WILDCAT FLASHBACK
K-STATE HOMECOMING 2005

Student Organizations
1st Place: Wildcats Forever
2nd Place: Black Student Union
3rd Place: Delta Sigma Theta
4th Place: Bilingual Education Student Organization
5th Place: Arts & Sciences Council

Residence Halls
1st Place: Marlatt/Moore
2nd Place: Haymaker/Strong Complex/Ford
3rd Place: Goodnow/West/Smurthwaite
4th Place: Jardine Complex

Greek Pairings
1st Place: Kappa Kappa Gamma/Lambda Chi Alpha Theta Xi/Delta Lambda Phi
2nd Place: Kappa Alpha Theta/FarmHouse
Alpha Gamma Rho
3rd Place: Alpha Xi Delta/Alpha Tau Omega
Sigma Alpha Epsilon
4th Place: Alpha Delta Pi/Delta Upsilon
Beta Sigma Psi
5th Place: Kappa Delta/Clovia/Sigma Chi/Delta Tau Delta

NO CONTRACTS
NO CREDIT CHECK
NO DEPOSIT
For the Best Prepay Plans on the Planet
NO Age Limit
clip & save
FREE Faceplate
When you sign up for Prepaid Service
Expires 12/31/05
Phones Start At $19.95
Kansas Wireless
MANHATTAN
305 Fort Riley Blvd
785.565.9219
JUNCTION CITY
7th & Washington
785.238.4020
go one better CELLULARONE

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

A LARGE one-bedroom. Available January 1. Close to campus. Water/ dryer. 1004 Fairview. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1771, (785)313-8246.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1715 or (785)313-8246.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490, two-bedrooms $750, three-bedrooms $700-$825. (785)537-7701.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

120 For Rent- Houses

A TWO-BEDROOM house. Edge of town. Pets ok. $500, available now. (785)317-7111.

FOUR-BEDROOM, TWO bath duplex. One-half mile from campus. Washer/ dryer included. Single property owner. No pets. No smoking. 1410 Bluemont. Number Two. (785)776-9260.

FOUR-BEDROOM, TWO bath, two blocks from campus. Washer/ dryer hookups. Deck with grill. Quiet neighborhood, nice yard, nice house. $1400/ month. Available immediately. Call (620)792-1933 or mainoneinc@yahoo.com

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

145 Roommate Wanted

Roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

LOOKING FOR female to take over one-third of lease at Founder's II. Own bathroom and washer/ dryer in apartment. Alex Dunn at (785)317-4095 or adunn@kedot.org.

ROOMMATES: MALE or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call Jamie (785)317-5006.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENTS, available now and in January. Offering semester leases, call MDI at (785)776-3804.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

120 For Rent- Houses

MUST SEE three-bedroom, one bathroom. Living room, kitchen, dinette, computer room, laundry facility in attached garage, nice patio. (765)463-5014, (765)714-5710.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

ROOM FOR horses, three-bedroom mobile home in country, two bath, central air, out buildings, horse boarding available, washer/ dryer, $700 plus utilities. (785)537-8070.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced. 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

THREE-BEDROOM. ONE bath, house across from campus. Modern appliances, central air, very clean. Available immediately. $350 per bedroom plus utilities. 1735 Anderson. Call KSU Foundation at (785)532-7569 or (785)532-7541.

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $900/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

2000 SCHULT 16x80. Three-bedroom, two bath, large deck, fenced lot located in Riverchase. Call (785)564-0904 or (785)565-8292.

145 Roommate Wanted

1225 RATONE roommates needed. One and one-half bathroom. Available immediately. Ask Jin (785)341-7089.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted as soon as possible. Rent $300, including all bills and ufilities. Courtney at (785)577-2323.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Three-bedroom house. $290 plus utilities. Available immediately. (913)980-7859.

FEMALE ROOMMATE three-bedroom house for spring semester. Rent $320 plus utilities. Very nice house. (316)990-2046.

FEMALE ROOMMATE. No smoking. Two-bedroom apartment. Close to campus. Off-street parking. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. (620)481-9837.

ONE BEDROOM available in two-bedroom apartment. Quiet non-smoker, pets okay. Call Nicole at (913)220-5854.

ROOMMATE WANTED. Three blocks east of campus. (785)556-0098 or (785)457-3476.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed, Chase Apartments. $300/ month. Available January. (785)565-4052.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE SUBLEASER. Walking distance to campus. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. Rent negotiable. Call (402)641-1886.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $395/ month. Washer/ dryer. Sublease December. (785)317-1162 or (785)317-2319.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM. Close to campus. For more information, call (620)276-4940.

SUBLEASE. CLEAN, quiet two-bedroom, walk to campus, central air/ heat, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/ dryer hookups, pets okay, off-street parking. Call (785)532-1280 or (785)562-8939.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms. University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

SUBLEASER NEEDED for January 1. Spacious one-bedroom, close to campus/ Aggieville. (785)564-7134.

SUBLEASER WANTED for spacious one-bedroom apartment with washer and dryer. Available mid-December. $375/ month. Call Jenny at (913)706-7361.

310 Help Wanted

NOW HIRING wait staff. Apply in person 2- 5pm. Tuesday- Friday. 1130 Moro.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

Full/ Part-time Technical Writer Positions open to all students. Get paid by the project- pay of $15+ per hour possible. Flexible hours are ideal for self-motivated, unsupervised worker. Must be U.S. Citizen, with minimum 1210 SAT score or 27 ACT score. Requires computer/ Internet access and strong writing skills- frequent grammar, spelling mistakes are unacceptable. Email techwriting-job@yahoo.com with a quick summary of your work experience, major and SAT/ACT score.

LUNCHROOM/ PLAYGROUND Supervisors-Hall Monitors needed for the 2005- 2006 school year. $6.50 per hour, one and one-half- two hours per day 11:00 a.m.- 1:00 p.m. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (785)587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

LUNCHROOM/ PLAYGROUND Supervisors-Hall Monitors needed for the 2005- 2006 school year. $6.50 per hour, one and one-half- two hours per day 11:00 a.m.- 1:00 p.m. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (785)587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

THREE MEAT goats for sale. (785)396-4366.

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

415 Furniture to Buy/Sell

FREE FOUR piece, rust colored, sectional with ottoman. (785)539-1086.

FREE: HIDE-A-BED sofa. Good condition. Call (785)539-8025.

420 Garage/Yard Sales

CHURCH RUMMAGE SALE: College Avenue United Methodist Church, 1609 College Avenue. Friday, November 4th, 5:00 PM- 8:00 PM, and Saturday, November 5th, 7:30 AM- Noon. Major items include: Student desk with hutch, computer desk with hutch, weight-lifting bench, much, much more! Need some stuff? Don't want new? Come and shop, College Avenue!

500 transportation

530 Motorcycles

2003 MOPED- Kenetic 49cc. $400 or best offer. (785)317-4279.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
www.ubski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NOW LEASING
• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillinvestandrental.com

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

NEWLY REMODELED two-bedroom apartments. All utilities paid! Available in December and January, offering semester leases. Call MDI at (785)776-3804.

Advertising Design

Practicum/Newspaper MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Graphic Design Internship

Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 532-6555

NEED A ROOMMATE?
WANT FOOTBALL TICKETS?
TRYING TO SELL YOUR CAR?
TRY THE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.
103 Kedzie 532-6555

000 bulletin board
100 housing/ real estate
200 service directory
300 employment opportunities
400 open market
500 transportation
600 travel/ trips

WAL-MART | 'Black Friday' sales list leaked in advance

Continued from Page 1

"but I get 20 to 30 percent more people in the store."

He said people who go to store early to get big deals always wind up buying other products while there, which make more profit for the retailer in the long run.

Levin said his store was planning on having Black Friday sales this year, even though most of the customer base has gone home for the break.

A Wal-Mart spokesman said the company does not comment on advertisements until they have released them and would not confirm or deny the price list's accuracy. The Web site also lists prices it said were leaked from Walgreens, Ace Hardware, Sears and Radio Shack.

Frank Beer, owner of Manhattan's Radio Shack, 614 Fort Riley Blvd., said he already had the list for his store's products. He compared gottadeal.com's list with his own, and said it was "reasonably accurate."

Beer said the lists of "Hot Friday" products – he said he dislikes the connotation of "Black Friday" – are formed early in the year so that manufacturers have a chance to acquire the materials to build the large numbers of products needed for that single day.

"80 percent of it was set at March 1," Beer said of Radio Shack's choices.

Beer said he orders large products in advance, as do all the other store owners nationwide. He also said that out of 20 different products he stocks up on for the day after Thanksgiving, he sells out of 17 before closing time.

Beer said a problem with Black Friday is people usually do not shop for anything beforehand, anticipating the remarkable specials on that one day.

He said they often keep waiting for electronics to drop in price, but the market constantly brings lower prices so they keep waiting for one price drop after another.

"People are always waiting for the best price," he said, "and the problem is that sometimes you never get there."

BASKETBALL | Hoskins finishes with team-high 14 points

Continued from Page 6

forward Cartier Martin said. "David, he's a producer. He practices well, and that is the way he plays in the games."

Stewart said K-State will need steady production out of Hoskins, who red-shirted last season at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, Mich.

"Points, assists, rebounds – he had it all," Stewart said. "We are definitely going to need that out of him. I think he's a fabulous player, and I'm looking forward to playing with him this season."

K-State led 28-26 at halftime before putting together an 11-3 run to start the second half.

A 3-pointer by Martin stretched K-State's lead to 54-36, and the Wildcats never looked back, coasting to a nine-point win.

Curtis Allen provided a spark off the bench, grabbing a team-high nine rebounds and helping K-State to a 48-28 rebounding edge.

Martin said Wooldridge has focused on rebounding in practice.

"We made that an emphasis – getting on the boards, getting the ball out, getting some transition buckets and put-backs offensively," Martin said. "Rebounding is a huge phase of the game."

Martin said though K-State has plenty of work to do, he was pleased with the way the Wildcats played.

"I am not disappointed at all," Martin said. "I think guys hustled on the floor. Curtis Allen came off the bench and did some good things. I am satisfied with all the players who came in and contributed to the game."

K-State's second and final exhibition game will be at 7 p.m. Nov. 10 against Emporia State at Bramlage Coliseum.

REINECKE | Engineering student enjoys time on court

Continued from Page 6

The only preparation he had for this experience was the pre-game shoot-around, which took place about an hour before the game. It was there that Reinecke got to meet his teammates for the night.

"The players were all really nice to me," Reinecke said. "They made me feel a little more comfortable."

Hanks said he was impressed with Reinecke's performance.

"I thought he played very well considering the circumstances," he said. "He had a great attitude about the whole thing. I was glad I had the chance to put him in the game."

Throughout the game, Reinecke said he had trouble knowing who to root for. He was used to cheering for the Wildcats, but in this game, they were his opponents.

"I kind of went back and forth on who I was rooting for," he said. "Then I realized that it didn't really matter, because it is just an exhibition game."

Overall, the experience was something Reinecke said he will always remember. He said he learned many things as a result of playing in the game.

"The main thing I realized is just how good these Division I players are," he said. "I'm glad I had this opportunity. It was definitely a lot of fun."

AFTERDARK | Group's message brought to campus

Continued from Page 1

White was joined by musical guest Lecrae, a Christian rap artist. Lecrae started the evening with his booming bass and rap elements laced with lyrics like "represent/get krunk/if you know you're reppin' Jesus/ go ahead and throw it up" and "how could you love me/with my life so ugly/but you came down/and you loved me."

Sarah Roggow, junior in art education, said the time was refreshing and insightful during a difficult time of the semester.

"The singing was good, although I'm not a huge fan of rap. But it was good," Roggow said. "I think it's going to be very encouraging for students. We have a tendency to give up at this point in the semester, and it felt like this night was refreshing and encouraging."

Don Ford, president of AFTERDark, said the group is in their sixth year of touring, K-State being its 75th campus.

As the main speaker, White has been joined by a variety of musical groups in the past, including the Newsboys and Caedmon's Call.

Ford said the program normally brings out an estimated 1,300 students, and the K-State turnout was very exciting for the story the group wanted to tell.

"The point is to share with college students the life-changing message of the cross of Christ," Ford said. "I thought it was a home run tonight."

Allie Squyres, junior in family studies and human services, said it hurt to see what Christ went through, but it made her even more grateful.

"I realize more and more my place in comparison," Squyres said.

Laurel Tippin, freshman in pre-professional business administration, worked as a student volunteer for the evening, running errands and jobs for the group.

"We're excited to have everyone out," Tippin said. "I thought it was a good, alternative way to get people out to hear about the reason, Jesus Christ."

As White finished speaking, he held up a piece of paper, representing the debt of all the wrong things people do. Turning to the massive cross, White pounded a single nail through the paper.

After speaking, White threw hundreds of chain links on the ground, encouraging students to take one to remind them that, while freedom from pain and sin can be experienced through Christ, the heart becomes chained to a God of love.

"Scripture says – guys, this gets so personal – that he takes your debt on his shoulders, having nailed it to the cross," White said. "You've been paid in full."

DEER | Drivers should be cautious, pay attention

Continued from Page 1

more pissed off that he had broken my grill," he said.

Lower said another time, a deer ran straight into the side of his truck.

"I just thought, 'You idiot,'" he said.

There are things people can do to reduce their chances of hitting a deer, Quintanar said.

"Drive more cautiously, and if there are deer signs, they are there for the reason that there are high reports of accidents in that area," Quintanar said. "If you enter those areas, be more alert to crossing, and be alert to (deer) eyes."

He said many people might see a deer cross in front of them, then continue on.

"There is always a second deer," Quintanar said. "A lot of drivers will see a deer cross, and I suggest to stop for ten or fifteen seconds. Sometimes you can't avoid them. Some even run flat into the side of the car."

Another piece of advice from KDOT is to not swerve out of the way of a deer, as the most serious accidents occur when drivers are trying to avoid the animal. They also encourage motorists to drive defensively, and not to rely on things such as deer whistles. On rural roads, nearly 50 percent of crashes happen because of encounters with deer.

"Just know that they're out there and be looking for them," Quintanar said. "It's like driving where there are small children playing – you know that they're there, and that they'll dart out in front of you, so just be cautious."

you can finally buy a book
WORTH ITS PRICE
CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
On sale in Kedzie 103
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

Get Connected Today!

Sign up NOW for 1 MONTH free service.

Students, Faculty & Staff Only Rates
5 month contracts
Just $37.95 a month
K-State rates available only at K-State Telecommunications Department

PLAN INCLUDES:
- 350 Anytime Minutes
- 2000 Around Town Minutes
- Unlimited Nights & Weekends
- FREE U.S. Long Distance

K-STATE connection
YOUR WIRELESS SOLUTION

MONTHLY PHONE SPECIALS
Motorola, Nokia, LG, Samsung, Kyocera & Audiovox
We also stock phone accessories at discounted prices

VISIT OR CONTACT US AT:
109 East Stadium
Manhattan, KS 66506
(785) 532-7001
www.ttelecom.ksu.edu

Royal Purple yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Buy your copy in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555

hastings
BUY SELL TRADE RENT
Discover VALUE... SAVE with USED
All USED product... 100% GUARANTEED!
SELL us your USED
Books, CDs, DVDs, Games and Game Systems
Build CREDIT towards any hastings purchase.
*Used items must meet minimum buyback requirements. Select items (budget, singles, promos, book club or prior years sports games) not acceptable for credit.
Hastings accepts hardback, large size paperbacks & audio CD books. See store for details.
Visit your local hastings for more details and special offers.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Monday, November 7, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 56

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

neighbors' yards
Page 3

Iowa State capitalizes on Wildcat penalties, turnovers

By Michael Ashford
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

AMES, Iowa – What was a broken record has now become a bad habit for K-State.

For the sixth consecutive game, the Wildcats allowed their opponent to score first, as Iowa State opened up a 17-0 first half lead Saturday en route to a 45-17 victory. After that, penalties and turnovers reared their ugly heads again, and the Wildcats never recovered.

On Sunday, coach Bill Snyder said he had no answer for the reoccurring errors.

"If I had the answer, we'd have gotten it solved a long time ago," Snyder said. "So quite obviously, I'm not getting the job done."

K-State allowed Iowa State to score on its first possession, the fourth consecutive game the Wildcats have allowed their opponent to score on its opening drive.

Junior defensive tackle Quintin Echols said the early deficits have affected the Wildcats' psyche.

"It's extremely tough," Echols said following the loss. "It's sad to say, but I guess we kind of got used to it, used to starting in a hole."

K-State was also penalized eight times for 73 yards – the sixth game in a row the Wildcats had 60 or more penalty yards – and gave up three turnovers, which accounted for three Iowa State scores.

Of the 250 points K-State opponents have scored this season, 62 have been a direct result of Wildcat turnovers.

Despite the 17-0 deficit, the Wildcats rallied in the second quarter behind a field goal by junior Jeff Snodgrass and a touchdown run by redshirt-freshman quarterback Allan Evridge. K-State's two scores made it 17-10 at halftime.

But much like the first half, the Cyclones came out of the locker room fired up, scoring on three straight possessions after the break to go up 38-10.

On its first drive, Iowa State drove 74 yards in nine plays for a touchdown by running back Ryan Kock.

On the Wildcats' first offensive play of the second half, Cyclone defensive back Nik Moser wrestled a pass away from Jermaine Moreira for an interception that set up a 9-yard touchdown pass from Iowa State quarterback Bret Meyer to Austin Flynn.

The Cyclones scored their third consecutive touchdown when Moreira fumbled the

See MISTAKES Page 8

Allan Evridge fights to get away from Iowa State's Shawn Moorehead during the first half. K-State was held to 12 yards of rushing and was out-gained in total yards, 415-233.
Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Organizations take advantage of Aggieville

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Erin Johnson has found what she calls the greatest place on Earth. She can eat there, shop for clothes and get her hair done, among many other things. For these reasons, Johnson, a Manhattan resident, never wants to lose touch of Aggieville.

This weekend, Johnson stumbled upon the Little Apple Noon Optimist Club's fourth annual Chili Crawl, where 13 local businesses participated in a chili cookoff, prying for consumer's votes for best-tasting chili. Proceeds for the event contributed to local youth programs, Chili Crawl organizers said.

"Honestly, I don't think that I would have come to the event," Johnson said. "A place like Aggieville is too amazing to give up. It's nice to see the community try to become more involved with an area, especially since it's becoming more student-centered."

Several organizations take advantage of the location, knowing they will gain large profits for any fundraisers, said David Weaver, chair of Chili Crawl and former Little Apple Noon Optimist Club president. He estimated the event raised between $2,000 and $2,500. This year, Texas Star Cafe, 606 N. 12th St., was voted as having the best-tasting chili.

"In terms of how it went this year, it was probably the best one we had," Weaver said. "Merchants that get involved are more excited every year, and it does what it's supposed to, as good advertising for our group and for Aggieville."

Years ago, events like Oktoberfest weren't as popular in Aggieville, Weaver said. He said businesses and organizations have changed the Aggieville image, investing more in advertising the area as a hip, coming-of-age location.

"We scheduled that before the college students go down there typically, and they aren't very busy at all," Weaver said.

By scheduling the event just hours before bars open, Weaver said it helps expose students to a different atmosphere of Aggieville, and helps centralize them, so then students can go bar-hopping afterward.

See CHILI Page 8

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Little Apple Optimist Club member Judy Shilling, Manhattan resident, hands a cup of chili to Megan Anderson, Lindsborg, Kan., during the Fourth Annual Chili Crawl on Saturday at Rusty's Last Chance Restaurant and Saloon. The event took place in 12 businesses throughout Aggieville and served as a fundraiser for the group.

The cost of losing

On-field struggles can equal less revenue for team

By Matt Gorney
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A nationally-ranked football team leads to increased television coverage and greater revenue for the athletics department and the university. But when the team takes a downward turn, that lucrative television money goes with it.

Casey Scott, associate athletic director of operations, said the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics receives compensation from each appearance the football team makes on television.

However, that money comes as part of the Big 12 Conference's media package and is collected by the conference. Only later is the money distributed to each of the 12 universities.

"All football television rights are owned and controlled by the Big 12 Conference," Scott said. "Our conference does award shares to the institution each time they play on TV."

The amount of money from televised football games varies depending on which network the game is aired.

K-State's game against Texas Tech was broadcast on ABC, which paid $205,000 to each university under the Big 12's package. By contrast, a game on Fox Sports Net brings in significantly less – only $181,000 – under the conference's package.

"This year we had two shares at Marshall, played a TBS game at Oklahoma, played an ABC game at (Texas) Tech and had a FOX game against KU," Scott said. "So basically, there are four shares and the $181,000 level and then a $205,000 ABC share on top of that."

Added together, the university will receive $929,000 from its football appearances this season. Next weekend's game against Nebraska will not air and television for K-State's finale against Missouri has not been determined.

Scott said the money from TV appearances is an anticipated part of the athletic department's annual budget.

"It all goes to the conference," Scott said. "At the end of the year, the conference distributes revenue from bowl games, from its football television package and from its basketball television package and its championship games to the institutions. That revenue, whatever that is, goes to each athletics department. It's just part of our annual budget."

K-State reaped the benefits of the current television deal in 2003, when the Wildcats defeated Oklahoma 35-7 in the Big 12 Championship. That season, the Wildcats were a staple in the television rotation.

But after finishing 4-7 last season and with a losing record this season, K-State has become less desirable for television exposure. However, Scott said the team has made enough appearances to cover what the athletics department anticipates in its budget.

"We don't count on being on TV every weekend," Scott said. "When we go through the

See MONEY Page 8

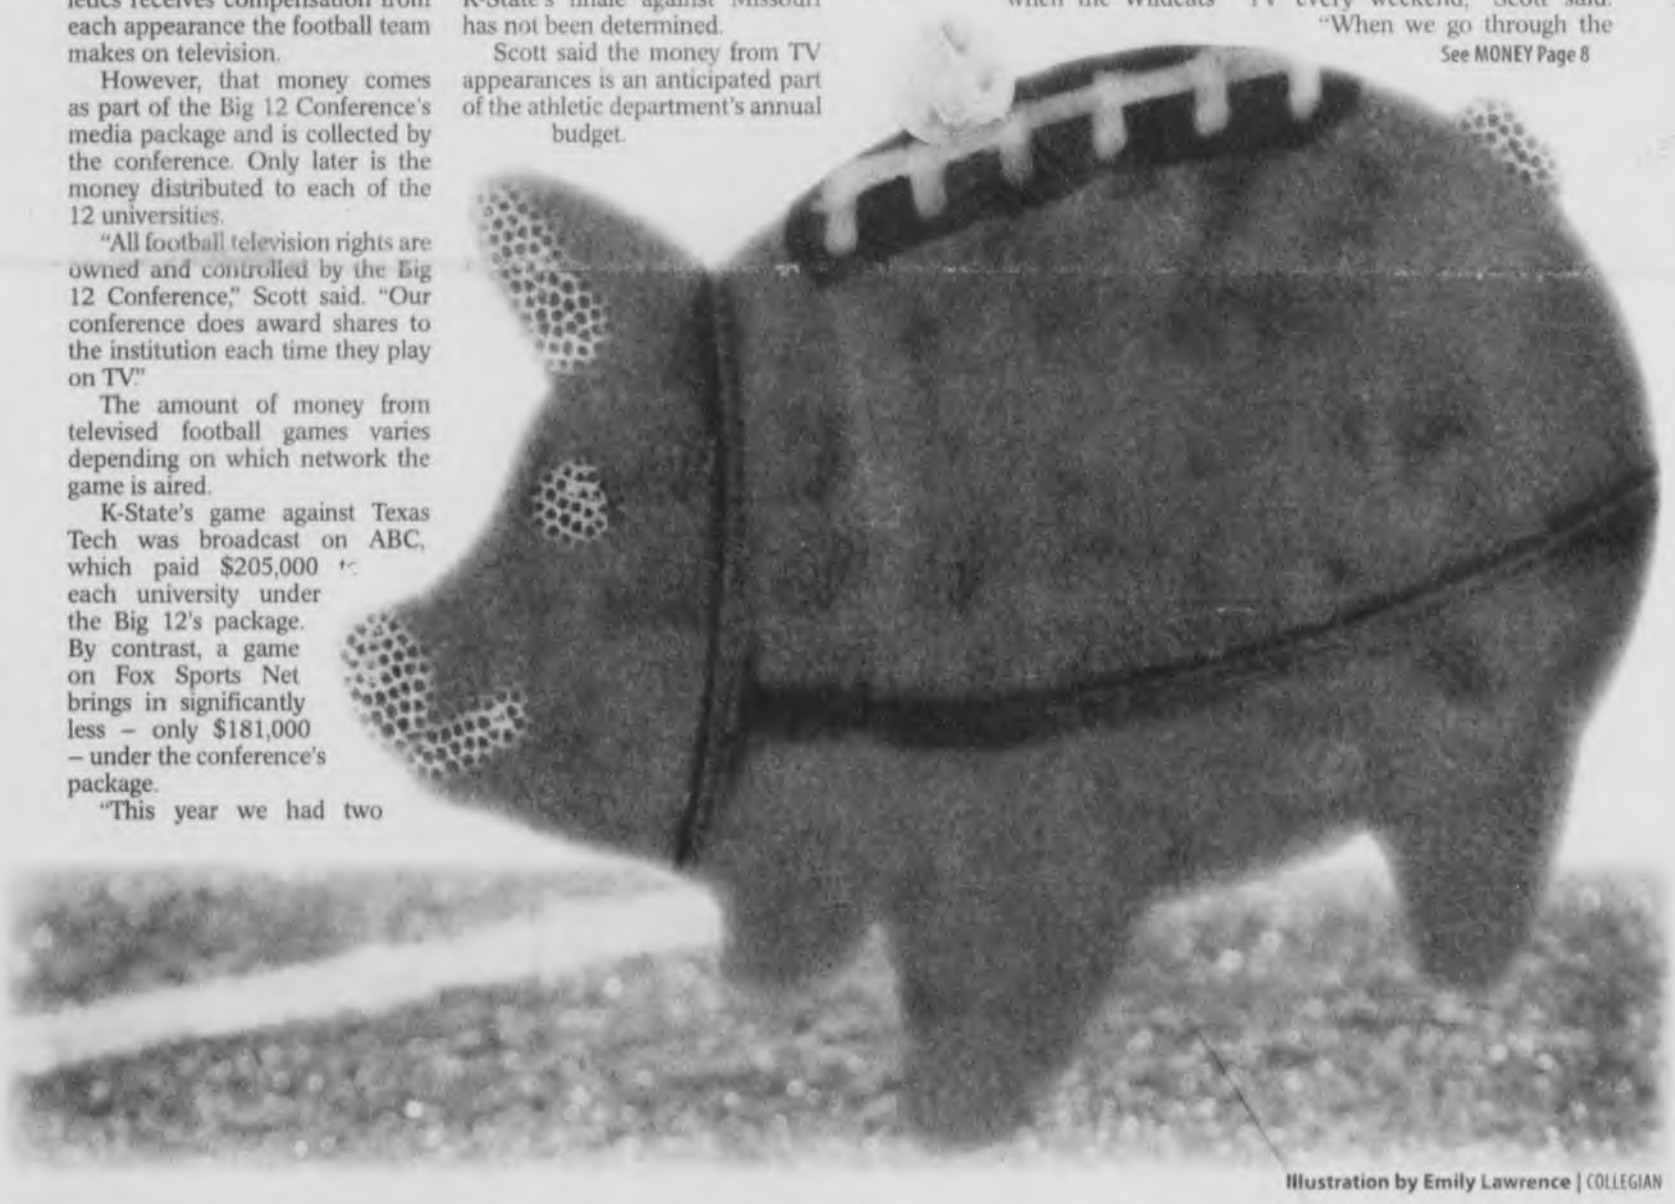

Illustration by Emily Lawrence | COLLEGIAN

Poet laureate reads to full house in Union Little Theatre

By Tessa French
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Ted Kooser, the 13th poet laureate of the United States, began with "Success" in a Friday night poetry reading.

The poetry reading took place in the K-State Student Union Little Theatre, but the room was too small to seat the crowd that arrived. Unable to move the reading into Forum Hall, a broadcast was quickly set up in the Union art gallery. Still there were people sitting on the floor and standing in the back of the theater.

Kooser began his reading with a poem titled "Success" after an introduction by long-time friend Jonathan Holden, distinguished professor of English and current Kansas poet laureate.

"I'd like to start with a gallery of poems, like snapshots," Kooser said.

After "Success," Kooser read the famous "Tattoo," followed by "Rainy Morning."

"Many of us my age know what a tattoo looks like when you get old," Kooser said of "Tattoo."

Chelsea Wright, senior in English, said "Rainy Morning" was one of her favorites.

"I really love that poem because he doesn't express sympathy but shows her inner beauty," she said.

Kooser, who received the 2005 Pulitzer Prize for Poetry, said he appreciated the audience.

"No one was sleeping," he said.

Kooser eventually reached the well-known poem "Cancer Clinic," a favorite of many.

"I gave a copy of this poem to my doctor, and he had it enlarged and framed in the nursing station," Kooser said. "I was pleased I could write something that would be useful to someone after all these years."

See POET Page 8

Today

High 77
Low 54

Wednesday

High 80
Low 54

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Man sentenced
Jason Penka was sentenced to one month in jail and one year probation Thursday after being convicted of misdemeanor battery in his role in the death of a Fort Hays State University student.

Page 8

Ship escapes pirates
A cruise liner off Somalia's coast was attacked by pirates Saturday. The pirates were in two small boats and opened fire while heavily armed bandits tried to board the ship. No passengers were injured, but one crew member was injured by shrapnel.

Page 8

Paris riots
French President Jacques Chirac on Sunday promised arrests, trials and punishment for those sowing "violence or fear" across France, as riots spread through the city. The rioting erupted Oct. 27 after two teenagers were accidentally electrocuted as they hid in a power substation, apparently believing police were chasing them.

DON'T FORGET

Students with 41 credit hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

Max Underwood will speak of "Inside the Office of Charles and Ray Eames" at 2:30 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union Little Theatre.

Festival of Nations featuring Latin Culture will be from noon to 1 p.m. today in the Union Courtyard.

Applications are due today for the Wildcat Warm-up Director positions.

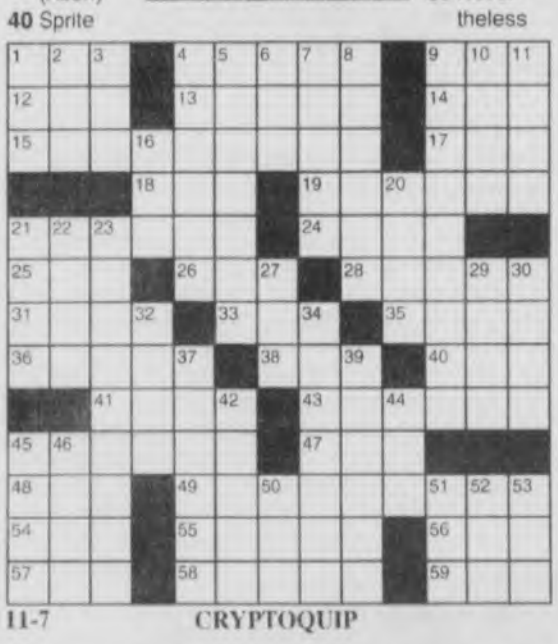
Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009



Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 "Humbug!"
4 Rascally sort
9 Confucian concept
12 Parisian pal
13 Penta-teuch
14 Hostel
15 Start of a patriotic song
17 Catch sight of 18 Suitable
19 Nudges
21 Long, loose overcoat
24 Cruise the 'Net
25 Tier
26 Fa's neighbor
28 Hybrid hounds
31 Merriment
33 Fond du —, Wis.
35 Siamese
36 Vote into office
38 Warsaw's land (Abbr.)
40 Sprite
41 By way of, briefly
43 Straight-forward
45 Bar
47 Ostrich's cousin
48 Literary collection
49 Words after 23-Down
54 Heavy weight
55 Schroe-der's prop
56 Have bills
57 Conclude
58 Eyelid woes
59 Speck

DOWN
1 Emeril's expletive
2 Grant or Irving
3 Here (Lat.)
4 Dolts, jocularly
5 Rein
6 Illustra-tions
7 Former fillies
8 Kingdom division
9 Words after 15-Across
10 From the top
11 Individ-uals
16 Feedbag bit
20 Very dry, as in cham-pagne
21 Impulse
22 Lounge about
23 Words after 9-Down
27 Once around
29 Body powder
30 Winnow
32 Rever-berate
34 Cough-syrup ingredient
37 Armed forces
39 Pole dances?
42 Wrong
44 Regret
45 Gratify fully
46 In due time
50 Deposit
51 Scepter
52 Seesaw quorum
53 Never-theless

Solution time: 27 mins.

B	A	T		P	A	K		A	D	A	P	T
A	V	E		U	M	A		C	A	D	R	E
L	A	M		P	A	P	E	R	M	O	O	N
S	I	P		A	Z	U	R	E
A	L	S	O		E	T	A		B	A	S	E
			L	E	D		S	T	A	L	K	S
T	E	P	E	E			O	R	B	I	T
A	B	S	O	R	B		E	N	G
I	B	I	S		R	A	N		E	A	S	T
			P	A	S	T	A		U	K	E
P	A	P	E	R	T	H	I	N		D	A	N
I	M	A	G	O		E	R	N		I	T	O
E	P	S	O	M		S	E	E		O	E	R

11-7 CRYPTOQUIP

XS V WRVY NRYR VQQLNRU PL KYRKVYR JLSSRR LY PRV, JLGQU ALG' PMRH OVA MR NVO WYGXH?

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A BUNCH OF HENS PULLED OFF A VERY CLEVER PLOY, I'D SAY THAT'D BE A CHICKEN COUP.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: R equals E

WEEK IN REVIEW

7 things you didn't know 7 days ago

French unrest reaches Paris

Victor Tonelli | REUTERS

Burnt cars are seen in a lot in Evreux, 60 miles west of Paris, after the 10th night of urban disturbances November 6, 2005. Five police officers and three fire fighters were injured in the Evreux fires in the 10th night of urban violence in France despite heavy police reinforcements.

French rioting reached Paris and by early Sunday police said 22 cars were burned in the French capital. On Friday night, at least 900 cars were burned in the worst wave of arson since the urban unrest began. The violence began Oct. 27 when two teenagers were accidentally electrocuted while hiding in a power substation because they believed police were chasing them. The teenagers were both from Muslim countries.

PLUTO HAS 3 MOONS

New images from the Hubble Space Telescope suggest Pluto has three moons, not just one. Pluto was discovered in 1930, but its moon, Charon, was discovered in 1978. The moons were discovered by Hubble in May and members of the team, said they are confident about their observations. Follow-up observations are planned for February and if confirmed the International Astronomical Union will consider names for the objects.

ARMY CHAPLAIN RECEIVES 5 YEARS

Capt. Gregory Arflack, 44, a chaplain for the U.S. Army, was sentenced Tuesday to five years in prison. He pleaded guilty at his court-martial to three counts of forcible sodomy against enlisted men. The Roman Catholic priest was serving as chaplain for the 279th Base Support Battalion in Bamburg, Germany. Arflack said most of the offenses took place after a drinking spree on July 29. He expressed regret for his actions. The victims names were not released, but the ages were 18, 19 and 20.

SEX SURVEY LAWSUIT DISMISSED

A federal appeals court dismissed a lawsuit Wednesday by parents who were upset when they found out the Palmdale school district had surveyed their children about sex. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected the parents' claim that they retain the right to educate their children about sex. The survey was given to the first, third and fifth grades as part of a program to gauge early trauma and to help overcome early learning barriers. The students were also asked how often they had sex.

MEDAL WINNERS NAMED

President Bush named the recipients of the Presidential Medal of Freedom, Thursday, the nation's highest civil award. Muhammad Ali, Carol Burnett, Aretha Franklin, Alan Greenspan, Andy Griffith, Paul Harvey and Jack Nicklaus were just few of the recipients. The Medal of Freedom was established by President Truman in 1945 to recognize civilians for efforts during World War II. The award was reinstated by President Kennedy in 1963 for distinguished service. The winners will be honored at a ceremony on Wednesday.

KUWAITIS RELEASED

Five Kuwaitis returned home early Friday after being held in U.S. custody at Guantanamo Bay. Khaled Al-Odah, who heads the group that rallies for the release or trial of Kuwaiti prisoners, said the men would be taken to the hospital for medical check-ups before being taken in for questioning. Abdul-Aziz al-Shimmari, 32, has been on a hunger strike since Aug. 9 and was being force-fed at the Guantanamo hospital. The men could face criminal proceedings in Kuwait.

PAKISTAN BLAST KILLS 6

A blast killed at least five men and a women Saturday, a Pakistani army official said. The explosion was in the village of Mosaki and it is said that four of the victims may have been foreigners, but identities were not known. A mud-walled compound, which is said to be used for making "improvised explosive devices", may have been where the blast originated from. Authorities believe the blast may have been because of mishandled explosives.

Source: The Associated Press

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Thursday, Nov. 3

- Altia Kemnitz, 801 De Hoff Drive, was arrested at 10:15 a.m. for two counts of possession of a simulated controlled substance, possession of opiates or narcotics, unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia and ephedrine for alert. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Mark Whitt, Topeka, was arrested at 3:30 p.m. for battery. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Gary Manges, Junction City, was arrested at 5:01 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $750.
- Louis Austin, 3012 Sandstone, Apt. 1, was arrested at 6:15 p.m. for aggravated battery, criminal restraint and obstruction of legal process. Bond was set at $5,000.
- Marcus Roberson, Junction City, was arrested at 10:25 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $200.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A class on how to find a journal article will be from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. today in Hale 408.
- Study Abroad Ambassadors for Journalism and Mass Communications will meet at 7:30 tonight in Kedzie 105.
- Applications are due today for the Wildcat Warm-up Director positions. For more information, call Emily Lehning at 532-5165 or e-mail her at lehning@k-state.edu.
- Business Study Abroad Advocates will meet from 4 to 5 p.m. today in Calvin 211.
- Kari Brooks will perform a student recital on trumpet at 8:30 tonight in All Faiths Chapel.

Corrections and clarifications

Some locations for weddings are half-price on Fridays and Sundays, not Fridays and Saturdays, which was stated in Friday's edition of the Collegian. The Collegian regrets the error.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips with student ID and coupon expires 11/20/05
KNAILS 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771 Fax: (785) 776-1009
Mon-Fri 8am - 7pm Sat 8am - 5pm Sun 1pm - 5pm
The Best Quality Copying and Printing in Town!

Check Out sudoku in the Classifieds

Snip N' Clip
Hair cut stops
Student cuts $7.95
Highlite & color service available
3035 Anderson & 431 E. Poyntz
539-4043 776-6410
M-F 9am-7pm
Sat 9am-5pm

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

MEAL MANIA

shout outs are coming November 9 to the Classifieds section of the Collegian.
Check out our table in the Union for one FREE SHOUT OUT coupon!
$2 Guarantees YOU a voice in the Collegian!

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Quiznos Sub
HMMM...TOASTY!
900 Hayes Drive Manhattan, KS 66503
2815 Anderson Road Manhattan, KS 66502
DELIVERY 539-9500
THIS CERTIFICATE ENTITLES YOU TO: FREE CHIP/DRINK WITH PURCHASE OF A REGULAR SUB
Expires: 11-30-05
Quiznos Sub HMMM...TOASTY!

Shake's Frozen Custard
$1 off Build your own Sundae
When you clip this coupon!
5th & Fort Riley Blvd. • 537-9553

Greeks rake leaves, have barbeque for neighbors

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Emily Mickelson, left, junior in mass communications, holds a trash bag open for Emily McIntyre, sophomore in interior design, and Renee Girard, junior in interior architecture, as they fill it with leaves.

By Hannah Crippen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Members of the Greek community gathered Sunday afternoon to rake leaves and pick up trash for their neighbors.

Delta Delta Delta has facilitated the community barbecue for the past few years as a way to involve greek houses with the residents on their streets.

Members of the fraternities and sororities in the neighborhood south of Anderson Avenue between Denison and Sunset avenues joined forces to give back to their neighbors.

Members of Tri-Delt, Alpha Delta Pi, Beta Theta Pi, Lambda Chi Alpha and Kappa Kappa Gamma split into groups and were assigned areas to clean or rake.

Neighborhood residents were invited to a barbecue after the cleaning.

Jenny Hartigan, junior in biology, organized the event and called residents to see if they would like their yards raked.

"It turned out really good," Hartigan said. "Everyone showed up and helped out. It made me proud to be greek."

Andy Maher, junior in accounting, raked a neighbor's lawn.

"It displays that the greeks are being recognized for giving back to the community for its continued support of K-State and the greek community," Maher said. "Greeks don't get as much credit for being as involved in the community as they are."

Maurice Stark has lived in the area with his wife and children since the 1970s. He has attended the barbecue for the past four years.

"We've lived here longer than everyone," Stark said. "Most of us were professors at one point in time and had children of our own. We understand students pretty well. The students and the greeks are good."

Maher said the community service was meaningful.

"It's self-gratifying," Maher said. "It makes you feel good about yourself because you're not doing it for money. You're just doing it out of the goodness of your heart."

Cosmetology school opens to community

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Cutting the ponytail, the American Academy of Cosmetology, 1130 Westloop Place, celebrates its grand opening on Friday. Though the academy just officially opened, classes began on June 13, 2005.

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Lindsay Medlin grew up in Manhattan her whole life, so naturally, when she decided to pursue higher education, she chose somewhere close to home: K-State.

However, this former marketing major dropped out of school and eventually found what she said is her destiny – cosmetology.

Today, Medlin is one of 85 students at the American Academy of Cosmetology, 1130 Westloop Place. She currently serves as her school's student council president.

The Academy opened for classes in June and officially opened Friday.

Cosmetology school manager David Yocum said he was relieved the community has finally met the students and seen what the school can offer.

"Manhattan is a growing city that continues to give new businesses opportunity," Yocum said. "The ownership team of our college toured the Manhattan-area and fell in love with the people and the design of the town. We couldn't have found a better place to open up our new college."

This is the second state-accredited cosmetology school in the area. The other is Crum's Beauty College, 512 Poyntz Ave.

"Our goal was to design a college that provided the necessary space and professional atmosphere today's cosmetology and massage students are looking for," Yocum said. "At 20,000 square feet, this college will be the largest facility in the state of Kansas, but more importantly it will offer professional advantages that serious students are looking for in education."

Competition between the businesses is likely to get intense, said Misty Cole, Manhattan resident and cosmetology graduate from Xenon International School of Hair Design in Wichita. Cole attended the academy's opening ceremony.

"I've seen both facilities, and they both have a lot to offer the area," Cole said. "Crum's has a long-standing reputation that will be hard to beat."

Coat sale helps keep students warm

By Lola Shrimplin
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students bought winter clothing Sunday at the International Student Center in a K-State Rotaract annual sale.

"This is the largest community service project for the fall semester," Kourtney Bettinger, senior in biology and president of Rotaract, said.

Heavy winter coats were priced at $4, and other coats were marked at $3. Shirts and pants cost $2, and scarves, gloves and shoes went for $1.

"It's usually very well-attended," said Amelia Asperin, graduate student in human ecology. "If you're not early, it's gone."

Asperin shopped at the clothing sale with her husband. Both are from the Philippines.

Many international students attend the sale, and a lot of students from warmer climates benefit, Bettinger said.

Sweaters and coats were this year's most popular items, said Josey Heller, senior in mass communications and Rotaract vice president.

Proceeds from the sale, $108.90 this year, go back to the center, Heller said.

The sale was co-sponsored by Union Program Council and publicized through flyers and e-mails.

This year promised to be a bigger success than last winter.

"We already have as many people here now as last year," Heller said early in the day.

Rotaract is an international program that performs service projects that support the local food bank and help Big Brothers Big Sisters.

you can finally buy a book
WORTH ITS PRICE
Kansas State University CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
On sale in Kedzie 103
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

UPC COMING EVENTS
Union Program Council

Monday, November 7
Festival of Nations: Latin Culture, noon-1 pm
Union Courtyard

Tuesday, November 8
UPC General Meeting: 5:30 pm, Union Station

Friday, November 11
After Hours: Grocery Bingo, 7-11 pm,
Union Courtyard
Film: "Singin' in the Rain," 8 pm, Little Theatre, $1

Saturday, November 12
Self Defense Class: 2:30-4:30pm, KSU Ballroom
(For signup, visit the UPC website)
Film: "Singin' in the Rain," 7 & 9:30 pm
Little Theatre $1

Sunday, November 13
Film: "Singin' in the Rain," 8 pm, Little Theatre, $1

Kemper Art Gallery: Student photography competition exhibit, Oct 31-Nov 18

Attention film makers: Check out www.ksu.edu/upc for information on the Little Apple Film Festival.

Special Thanks to Circle K volunteers at the annual Children's Carnival

www.kdu.edu/upc
UPC hotline: 532-6572
Office phone: 532-6571

PROTECT YOURSELF
avoid becoming the victim of a violent crime
LEARN EASY• EFFICIENT• AND EFFECTIVE SELF-DEFENSE TECHNIQUES FOR WOMEN ONLY PLEASE
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12TH • 2:30-4:30PM
SUGGESTED DONATION TO T.A.K.E.
THE ALI KEMP EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION
www.ali-forever.com/forever.php
K,S, & U BALLROOMS • 2ND FLOOR • K-STATE STUDENT UNION
Limited space available! Email dmanhart@ksu.edu to reserve your spot.

We can't get you girls. Or boys.
We can't get you beer or cigarettes.
You won't be any cooler.
You won't be more attractive.
You won't be thinner, smarter,
or suddenly wealthy.
But maybe, just maybe,
you'll get the experience you need to land a job
that CAN get you those things...after college.

The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:

Executive Positions Spring 2006
• Editor in Chief
• Advertising Sales Manager

News Positions Spring 2006
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists • Graphic Artists
• Graphic Artists • Online Journalists

Advertising Positions Spring 2006
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives

Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. Nov. 16.

Get the experience you NEED.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

TO THE POINT

More than just football at stake for university

President Jon Wefald's hiring of Bill Snyder after the 1988 season marked not only a revitalization of the K-State football program, it also marked the beginning of the single most successful period in university history.

It is no surprise that as the football team soared to new heights in the 1990s, K-State's enrollment also began a steady climb. Alumni began donating more money to the university, not only for sports, but for research, infrastructure and scholarships.

The university is tied to the football program. People recognize the Powercat logo, which Snyder brought to K-State, as the symbol of the entire university.

But over the past two seasons, K-State's football program has begun a downward spiral after the zenith it reached in 2003. Likewise, enrollment has leveled off and the university is no longer basking in the national spotlight.

Nobody is questioning Snyder's leadership. His resurrection of the worst football program in the nation stands on its own merit, and he has earned the right to stay in Manhattan as long as he sees fit. But after a 4-7 season in 2004 and with a losing record this season, it is obvious that changes must be made.

The future of more than the K-State football program is at stake.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

Path of least resistance

Laziness, complacency will lead to a life of suffering

LUCAS MADDY

I knew it was coming and smiled all the wider for it. Grandpa had driven the car last. As I touched the "radio on" button, the soft fuzziness of a cattle-on-feed report filled the Sable's interior.

KRVN-AM 880 next up: The Rest of The Story.

Buried deep within everyone's heart is a tolerating appreciation for the rustic way of life. You may suffer through a holiday at grandma's with only three channels of local television.

Perhaps you might listen stoically to another sermon from a hometown business owner on how our generation is the weak link in the world chain, immune to advice and rejecting of responsibility.

No matter the situation, we smile and nod understandingly, though we seldom understand. These are people who sweated in the sun for their sliver of American pie, allowing us a free trip to the desert bar. We shun their back-breaking efforts.

Working smarter, not harder, we say, will move us further than they could ever have dreamed with their head-down dedication.

Listen to those old folks. Hell, just watch them sometime. If you're up to it, work with them. Observe the attitude of the "unenlightened."

Shamefully, we often take the path of least resistance. If we never sidestepped challenges, Highland Community College's outreach center in Wamego, Kan., would be nothing more than an obstruction blocking the view of an implement dealer.

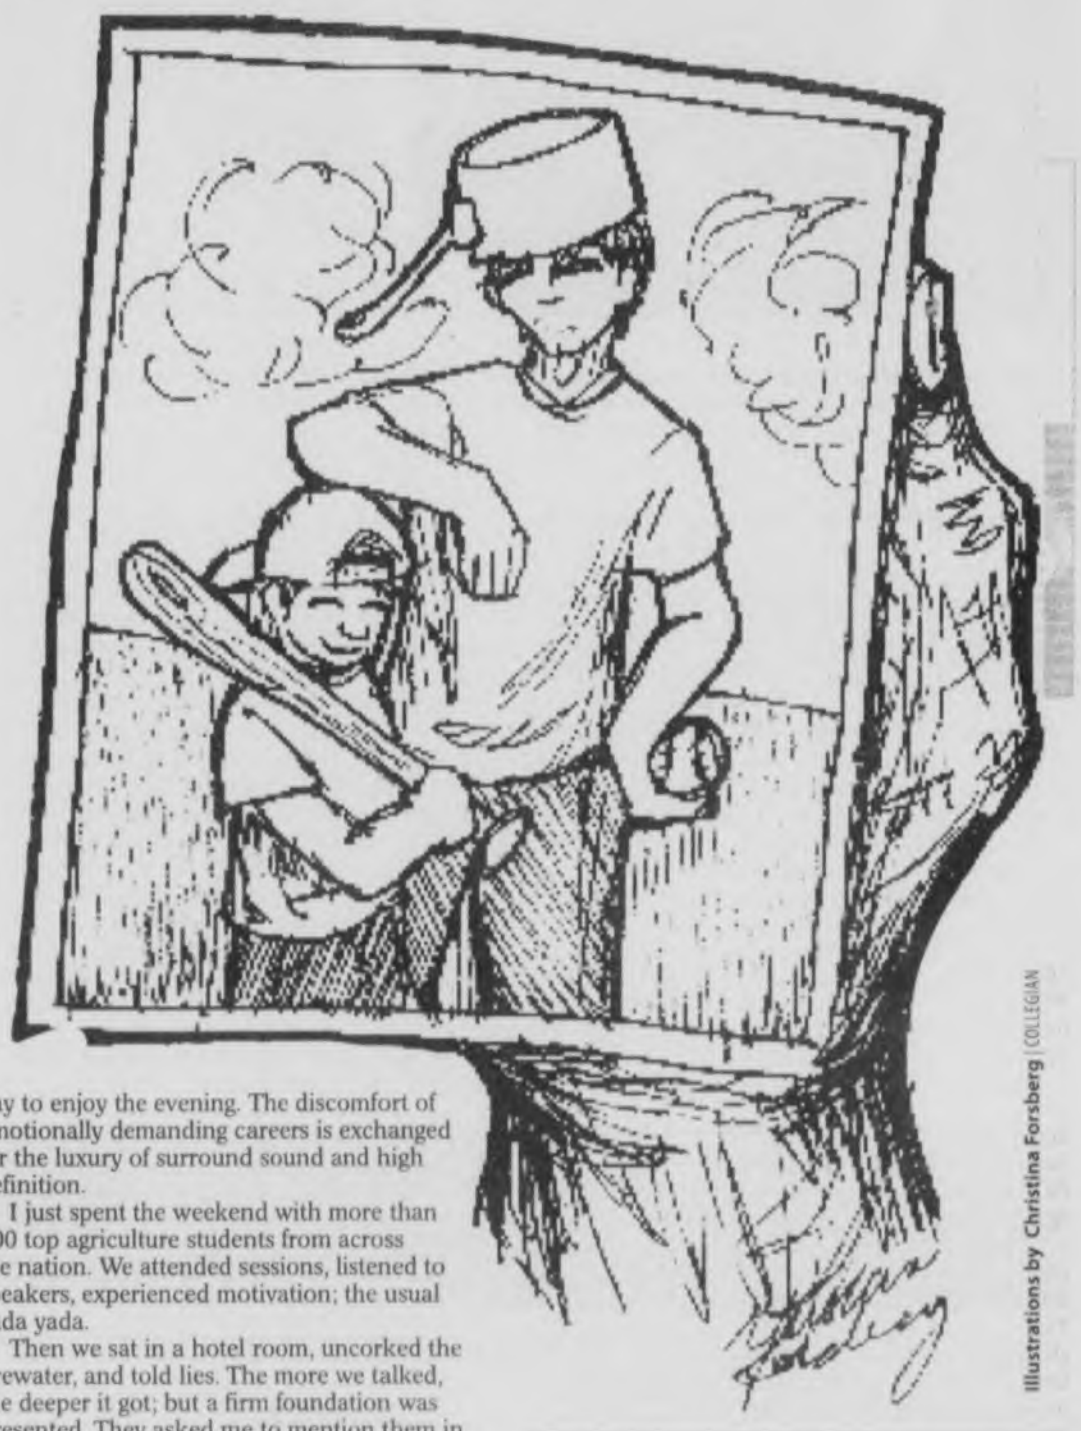
Our grocery store shelves are heavily laden with pre-cooked food. Sure, buying a Cup'O'Ramen requires half the prep time, but paying twice as much for it means time saved will be spent working to replenish a dissipating checking account.

What does time saved accomplish if it is lost to pursuits of a lackadaisical nature? He who sets down the XBOX controller long enough to play an hour of intramural basketball is considered active by most standards.

"Easy buttons" in every mode of life have forced strong work ethics into near-extinction. Manual labor is undesirable, below the standards of our superficial society.

Obesity has more than doubled for 12- to 19-year-olds since the 1970's, reported the U.S. Census. Enough with video games and Super-Soakers: my children will play with pots and pans and sticks and dirt, Radio Flyers, baseball gloves and rocks.

Why? Will their creativity and expression be stifled? Hell no. The ideas for our videophones, laptops and PlayStations were built and perfected by regular folks who wore patched Rustler's, dug dirt holes and broke arms falling out of wagons and off fences.



Our society will work 80 hours a week for the "right" to laziness, but will pay for the half hour it takes to mow a lawn. Our desire for complacency has led to a life of suffering through the day to enjoy the evening. The discomfort of emotionally demanding careers is exchanged for the luxury of surround sound and high definition.

I just spent the weekend with more than 300 top agriculture students from across the nation. We attended sessions, listened to speakers, experienced motivation; the usual yada yada.

Then we sat in a hotel room, uncorked the firewater, and told lies. The more we talked, the deeper it got; but a firm foundation was presented. They asked me to mention them in my article, so I did. I even have a purpose for it.

The group shared a common sentiment: a willingness to abandon their only known environment and sacrifice their most vibrant of years in exchange for the perpetuation of their roots.

The common good is advanced by the uniquely great. We're a damn good bunch, let's be sure we're remembered as such.

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

Lucas Maddy is a senior in agriculture technology management. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu

Students should learn rules of parking

As many students have witnessed and the Fourum may attest, crosswalks around campus can be high risk spots for pedestrians, cyclists and drivers alike. But, for those who drive to campus and the pedestrians who weave through them daily, a parking lot is one of the most likely places where accidents can occur.

A Collegian article in September outlined the reason why: there are approximately 10,000 parking stalls on campus and an average of 15,500 parking passes are sold each year. In theory, everyone is not going to try to park at the same time, but those numbers indicate a parking shortage for students and faculty is inevitable.

The onset of colder weather in these final months of the semester will make driving increasingly preferable to walking to campus.

The demand for parking has come to the degree that drivers must prowl for spaces, lurking at the ends of aisles, awaiting the earlier classes to end so that they may secure parking spaces freed up by drivers leaving after class.

Parking lots allow more driving leniency by design than regular road rules. Conflicting individual perceptions of parking lot rules, in addition to impatience to find a stall, leaves drivers confused and often frustrated with the general free-for-all that occurs every weekday.

Whoa there, partner. Just go with some common sense and courtesy. Let's cover some basic universal ground rules that can improve your parking lot experiences, if not your race to class:

Sometimes that parking space on the other side of the aisle will miraculously open up, but if you're not the first one with your signal on in that aisle waiting for the car to leave (this is the parking lot equivalent of saying "I called it"), then don't pull a stunt by squeezing in before the one legitimately waiting has a chance to park there.

Never play chicken in a vehicle in the parking lot.

Don't careen around corners of aisles, and don't cut off those in the other lane.

If you're being waited upon to remove your vehicle from a stall, please don't choose to put on makeup, check voicemail, rummage through new purchases or homework or anything else that could possibly delay your departure or potentially upset drivers anxious to claim your spot next.

CHRISTINA FORSBERG

Let's not forget that the holidays are fast approaching as well as finals. We've seen the effects of holiday-induced, shop-crazed drivers and the comical reenactments of such in holiday movies.

Don't let that behavior permeate the bounds of campus. Rather, go out into the world and back to your hometowns with the same polite level-headedness you maintain in K-State's parking lots.

On second thought, given some of the behavior that's been observed in K-State parking lots, lets not take that back to our hometowns.

But while you're here and pressed for time when parking, better to be late to class than risk further delay as a result of a confrontation with a disgruntled driver or due to an accident in the parking lot. Otherwise, if you're consistently late and expecting to make it to class on time to an exam, I suggest investing in a bike.

Christina Forsberg is a sophomore in English and economics. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF	Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR	Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF	Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR	Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR	Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR	Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR	Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR	Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH	Brad Simmons AD MANAGER	Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Can you play defense? If so call 1-800-GOCATS.

If you guys want to find fossils here in Kansas all you got to do is step down in the Geology department, there's a lot of fossils walking around.

Hey ... shut up.

Guns don't kill people — people kill people. Porn doesn't rape women — men rape women. I have guns and don't go shooting people. I look at porn from time to time and don't rape women. Don't lump us together with idiots or people with power issues.

If anyone found a wallet at or near the Dickens computer lab, please just turn it in I really need my ID. There's no money in it, so no theft charges.

Mmm ... Barbecue Squirrel with a little barbecue sauce good eating. Need a side of rabbit with that and a little chianti, yum.

If you guys don't want to give the band any more money, maybe we should follow suit of the EA Sports team and become the Wal-Mart Marching Band.

If I wasn't in a box, then I would give you a back rub.

To the guy who gave me a parking pass before the basketball game so that I didn't have to pay the five dollars to park, thanks and you rock.

Wooldridge, please, please, please work on rebounding in practice this week. It was terrible.

I think I'm allergic to KU.

To the girls that I gave a free parking pass to last night at Gate 5, you made my evening, thanks, and to the one that wanted to marry me, yes, I am single.

To the sacker at Westloop Dillon's who let me use his phone on Thursday after I shut my purse in the trunk, thank you, you are a doll.

Your eyes are wonky.

I was on the front page of the Collegian on Friday. I wasn't the main focus of the photograph, as I was blurry and in the background, but I think I contributed significantly to the picture.

We officially suck more than KU now, that's pretty bad.

I think I saw Dr. Bosco taking a keg stand on Bertrand on Friday. Did anyone else see this?

I'm stoned and when I noticed that the date was wrong I also noticed that it took me 30 minutes to write a header to a paper.

Is it just me, or do I see our campus moving in a fascist trend?

The light at north Manhattan and Claflin just spent, like, five minutes changing for us. That's not cool.

Language skills. Impaired. Alcohol.

Facebook is vile, and addicting and so ba...oh I got another message.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

"Prime" unoriginal, burns out too early

Courtesy Art

"Prime"
★★☆☆☆
Movie review by Amy Bolton

People who share their innermost thoughts and secrets with their therapists might think twice after seeing the new movie "Prime."

Rafi (Uma Thurman) is 37 years old, fresh out of a divorce and spending too many hours on her therapist's couch wondering if she'll ever find love again.

After meeting 23-year-old David (Bryan Greenberg), she asks her therapist, Dr. Lisa Metzger (Meryl Streep) if she should pursue the relationship. Dr. Metzger encourages Rafi to have fun and even tells her "you deserve it."

Apparently in this world, people have no real problems talking to their therapists and instead spend hundreds of dollars an hour to tell raunchy sex stories more appropriate for the pages of Cosmo, because Rafi spends her therapy sessions talking about nothing but David and their sex life.

After a few sessions Dr. Metzger realizes the sex-machine is none other than her own son, who she has been fighting with because he is dating an older woman.

Unsure of whether she should still counsel Rafi, Dr. Metzger asks her own therapist (even the shrinks have shrinks) if it's ethical to not tell them both what she knows. They decide Rafi and David are probably just having a quick fling and she chooses not to terminate Rafi as a patient.

Over the next five weeks, Dr. Metzger endures Rafi sharing the intimate details of her and David's sex life, while at the same time realizing their relationship is getting serious.

One extremely painful incident for Dr. Metzger, though funny for the audience, is when Rafi goes into detail explaining how beautiful a part of David's anatomy is, saying, "I just want to knit it a little hat."

Eventually Dr. Metzger decides she has to tell Rafi and David the truth, and the movie goes downhill from there.

There was really nothing to set this movie apart from the countless other movies out there (we've seen the parental objection in movies such as "Meet the Parents" and the older woman/younger man scenario was done decades ago by "The Graduate") except for the therapy sessions.

It's hilarious to watch Dr. Metzger squirm as she hears things no mother wants to know about her son – she's horrified to find out he's had two sexual partners prior to Rafi.

Unfortunately, Dr. Metzger tells the truth far too early in the movie, leaving the rest of the movie to explore the relationships of the characters, who you really don't care that much about and aren't very funny.

Once there are no more therapy sessions to laugh at, there's really not much worth sticking around for.

Taking a chance

Personality can make, break blind date

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With popular shows such as MTV's "Next" and the classic "Blind Date," blind dates have become somewhat of an obsession in modern television culture.

These shows allow viewers to follow two strangers on their first date, as they sow the seeds of romance or part in mutual revulsion.

Sitcoms such as "Friends" and "Seinfeld" have also tapped into an abundance of humor in setting up characters on awkward blind dates.

Outside the realm of television, however, what do real life young men and women think about blind dates?

Erica Blaauw, freshman in biology, said the key to arranging a good blind date is to have a common friend do the matchmaking.

"Mutual friends should set you up," Blaauw said. "They know both of you, and know what you're looking for in the opposite sex."

Rebecca Shultz, freshman in pre-professional secondary education, said location is also important to the success or failure of a match-up.

"You should go somewhere fun where you can talk, like bowling, or mini golfing," she said.

Students disagreed on whether it was better to ask for a description of their date, or to meet him or her with no assumptions or pre-conceptions.

Darin Mainquist, freshman in mechanical engineering, said he would prefer to know a little information about a date before spending an evening with her.

"I think it would be interesting, but I kind of like to know what I'm getting into," he said.

Shultz said she would like to go on a blind date with an open mind.

"I would probably just want to be surprised," she said. "I could form my own opinion of my date."

Different characteristics such as appearance, interests, personality and sense of humor can be used to set up a successful blind date.

"Definitely personality is a factor," Mainquist said. "I'd be lying if I didn't say that looks matter, but you're not going to have fun if personalities don't match."

Brent Paris, freshman in mechanical engineering, said he thought blind dates are more likely to create friendships than romance.

"It seems like a good way to meet people, but I wouldn't say it would last forever," he said. "It's a better way to meet a friend."

Mainquist, however, said he knew of one occasion where a blind date turned into a lasting relationship: his friend's parents met on a blind date and were later married.

All four students said they would probably be willing to go on a blind date set up by a friend.

Shultz said she thought there was nothing to lose in the situation.

"The worst thing you could do is go out on a date and find out that you don't like each other. You might as well try," she said.

Illustration by Bennie Green | COLLEGIAN

FAMOUS QUOTES

"My girlfriend always laughs during sex — no matter what she's reading."
— Steve Jobs (Founder, Apple Computers)

"I saw a woman wearing a sweatshirt with "Guess" on it. I said, 'Thyroid problem?'"
— Arnold Schwarzenegger

Woods

"Hockey is a sport for white men. Basketball is a sport for black men. Golf is a sport for white men dressed like black pimps."
— Tiger Woods

"Capital punishment turns the state into a murderer. But imprisonment turns the state into a gay dungeon-master."
— The Rev. Jesse Jackson

"Women complain about premenstrual syndrome, but I think of it as the only time of the month that I can be myself."
— Roseanne

"Old age isn't so bad when you consider the alternatives."
— Maurice Chevalier, on 77th birthday

Hope

"I don't feel old — I don't feel anything until noon. Then it's time for my nap."
— Bob Hope

"I am not a heavy drinker. I can sometimes go for hours without touching a drop."
— Noel Coward

"I feel sorry for people who don't drink. They wake up in the morning and that's the best they are going to feel all day."
— Frank Sinatra

"What ought to be done to the man who invented the celebrating of anniversaries? Mere killing would be too light."
— Mark Twain

Picasso

"God is really only another artist. He invented the giraffe, the elephant and the cat. He has no real style. He just goes on trying other things."
— Pablo Picasso

"Don't let schooling interfere with your education."
— Mark Twain

"By all means marry; if you get a good wife, you'll become happy; if you get a bad one, you'll become a philosopher."
— Socrates

"I never hated a man enough to give him diamonds back."
— Zsa Zsa Gabor

Warhol

"In the future everybody will be world famous for 15 minutes."
— Andy Warhol

"A lot of people would rather tour sewers than visit their cousins."
— Jane Howard

"Few things are harder to put up with than the annoyance of a good example."
— Mark Twain

Jolie

"Anything that feels that good couldn't possibly be bad. There's something about death that is comforting, the thought that you could die tomorrow frees you to appreciate your life now."
— Angelina Jolie

"It's not that I'm stupid. I just don't think sometimes."
— Colin Farrell

"I don't believe in failure. It is not failure if you enjoyed the process."
— Oprah Winfrey

Source: www.saidwhat.co.uk

EQUESTRIAN

English riders suffer first loss of fall season

By Jessica Barnard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"We get pretty comfortable in our region, and it was a good reminder that we're not completely invincible."

Casey Finnell
JUNIOR CAPTAIN

The English riders of the K-State Equestrian team felt disappointment for the first time this season.

K-State was host Saturday to the KSU Hunt Show at Fox Creek Stables, and in the morning show, Southern Illinois claimed High Point Team honors, beating the Wildcats by two points by a final score of 37-35.

It was the English riders' first loss of the season.

Coach Teresa Slough said Southern Illinois has become a more competitive team since last season.

"They really stepped up if we compare last year to this year," Slough said. "They are much more serious contenders this year."

Junior captain Casey Finnell said losing in the morning show was a wake-up call.

"We get pretty comfortable in our region, and it was a good reminder that we're not completely invincible," Finnell said. "It was a good reminder that we need to always be riding in tip-top form."

Although K-State lost in the morning competition, the Cats came back to win the final competition, beating Northern Illinois with a final score of 39-30.

Senior Meghan Felts said finishing second in the first show motivated the team.

"We obviously pulled it together," Felts said. "We were much more motivated for the second show."

The Wildcats competed against teams from 10 schools, including Augustana College, Illinois State University, Illinois Wesleyan, Iowa State, Missouri State, Northern Illinois, Northwest Missouri State, Southern Illinois, Truman State and Washington University.

The KSU Hunt Show was an International Horse Show Association competition. In an IHSA English show, there are five levels a rider can compete in ranging from walk/trot to open flat riders. As well as competing in the flat classes, more experienced riders are allowed to compete in fence classes.

Riders at the novice, intermediate and open levels can compete in the fence competition, with the difficulty of the course directly relating to the experience of the riders.

Slough said the team struggled with the fence competition in the morning show.

"This morning we had a rough time over fences." Slough said. "We need to really improve on our consistency, especially over fences. When fences are over, we barely have the lead or we don't have the lead."

Although K-State suffered its first loss in a show, the Wildcats are still in first place in the region.

The KSU Hunt Show was the last English show of the fall, so the athletes will not be riding in competition again until February 2006.

Returning the favor

Jayhawks snap 21-game losing streak to Wildcats

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Returning a hit, libero Angie Lastra bumps the ball to the setter. The loss on Saturday ended the Wildcat's 21-game winning streak over Kansas.

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Agata Rezende, left, and middle blocker Joy Hamlin attempt to block a spike from their Kansas opponents. Despite defensive efforts, the Wildcats lost 3-1 (30-28, 24-30, 30-21, 30-25).

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The University of Kansas avenged a loss to K-State earlier in the season Saturday night at Ahearn Field House.

After the Wildcats (16-8, 7-7 Big 12) swept the Jayhawks 3-0 in Lawrence on Oct. 5, unranked Kansas returned the favor by defeating No. 24 K-State 3-1 (30-28, 24-30, 30-21, 30-25).

For the Wildcats, junior Joy Hamlin had 15 kills on a .407 attack percentage. Sophomore middle blocker Rita Lilliom had 9 kills and 17 digs in the Wildcats' loss.

Sophomore setter Stacey Spiegelberg, who had 42 assists and 14 digs, said reliability was a factor in K-State's performance.

"I don't think I played consistently," she said. "We really need to concentrate getting the ball to the outside hitters."

The outside hitters' performance was one of Kansas' focuses, Spiegelberg said.

"That was one of their goals, controlling our outside hitters," she said. "KU did a good job of controlling them."

The difference, Spiegelberg said, between this performance and K-State's Oct. 5 performance in Lawrence was a mixture of things.

"We didn't come out with energy," she said. "We were focused and energetic at KU and tonight, we weren't disciplined."

The Wildcats, who are 4-7 when trailing 0-1 in the match, have won 21 consecutive matches against the Jayhawks. The last time Kansas beat the Wildcats was on Nov. 16, 1994.

Coach Suzie Fritz said although there were some good points to the game, it wasn't enough.

"We didn't play well enough to win," she said. "The middle (hitters) played well, but we just couldn't score fast enough."

Fritz said getting a good start is important to the outcome of the game.

"If you don't start with confidence, it's not good," she said. "It's difficult to get started midway through the match."

There are some things the team will work on before the next match, Fritz said.

"We need to work on our intensity and ball handling," she said. "We need to work on controlling the tempo of the play."

K-State's mistakes fall on assistant coaches' shoulders

MICHAEL ASHFORD

K-State senior fullback Victor Mann entered the post-game press area Saturday wearing his standard blue dress jacket.

On the lapels of his jacket were logos that showed where the Wildcats had been no more than two seasons ago.

The logos were from the Holiday Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl.

After Saturday's 45-17 loss to Iowa State, if K-State doesn't win its next two games, Mann will never be able to add another logo to the lapel of his jacket.

This is what the 2005 season has come down to. If the Wildcats trip up against either Nebraska or Missouri, there will be no bowl game for the second consecutive season.

While the situation may seem desperate, at least one man thinks this team can pull through and win the next two games, and his opinion might be the most important of all.

"I would hate to think that this is a group of young guys that would cash it in with two games to go and with a bowl opportunity possibility in front of them," coach Bill Snyder said. "I'd hate to think that that's the case."

Watching the Wildcats struggle so badly against the Cyclones was painful, and once again, it was untimely turnovers and penalties that cost the Wildcats dearly.

The errors K-State has committed all season long are not getting corrected, and its not because of a lack of effort or character.

"They want to win; I'm convinced of that. They're willing to work; I'm convinced of that," Snyder said. "I think they're trying to pull together and attempting to be there for each other. I think some of those basic principles are well intact with this football team."

So what is it then?

The mistakes can be traced back to a lack of discipline, a lack of discipline can be traced back to how a team practices and how a team practices falls on the assistant coaches.

Snyder cannot do it all. It's the assistant coaches who are in charge of day-to-day development, and the 2005 team is developing as if it were drunk off pineapple pucker and Pepsi.

For so many years, K-State had a difference-maker on its coaching staff, particularly on defense. Look at Bob Stoops, Mike Stoops, Phil Bennett, Brent Venables or Bret Bielema. All these coaches developed K-State teams into powerhouses, some with lesser talent than the 2005 team possesses.

Sadly, there are no difference-makers on this staff. The players are not developing like K-State teams of old, and even worse, the Wildcats are being outschemed game after game.

What Snyder has built at K-State is undeniably amazing, but it is in danger of being lost to a substandard coaching job from the assistants.

Snyder has never fired an assistant coach in his 17 years at K-State, but after this season, bowl game or not, a little house cleaning may be in order.

Michael Ashford is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

NFL Scores

Philadelphia	10	Tennessee	14
Washington	17	Cleveland	20
Oakland	23	Atlanta	17
Kansas City	27	Miami	10
Detroit	14	San Diego	31
Minnesota	27	NY Jets	26
Carolina	34	Houston	14
Tampa Bay	14	Jacksonville	21
Cincinnati	21	Chicago	20
Baltimore	9	New Orleans	17
Seattle	33	NY Giants	24
Arizona	19	San Fran.	6
Pittsburgh	20
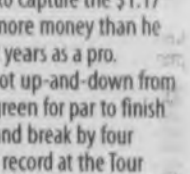
Green Bay	10

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

NFL | Chiefs' Johnson pushes K.C. past Oakland

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Dick Vermeil was going to be the biggest fool or the shrewdest gambler in the NFL.



Call this man shrewd.

With five seconds left, the Chiefs trailed by three and the ball was on the Oakland 1-yard line. Kick a field goal to force overtime or go for the touchdown and risk losing? Vermeil went for the TD, and Larry Johnson dived over the pile for a memorable 27-23 victory over the Raiders.

Placekicker Lawrence Tynes, who already had two field goals and hasn't missed in 13 straight attempts, was warmed up and ready. But in one of the toughest decisions of his career, Vermeil opted to go for the win.

Johnson and Trent Green made the sensational finish possible with only a few seconds to go. Green hit a wide-open Johnson over the middle and the running back sped 36 yards before Nnamdi Asomugha and Stuart Schweigert ran him down at the 1.

NFL | Westbrook agrees to 5-year deal with Eagles

Westbrook

While the acrimony between recalcitrant wide receiver Terrell Owens and the Eagles continues, Philadelphia has made peace with one of its other star offensive performers.

Team and league sources confirmed Sunday that the franchise has reached agreement in principle with running back Brian Westbrook on a multi-year on a contract extension.

The five-year extension runs through the 2010 season and is worth slightly less than $25 million. It includes bonuses between $9 million and $10 million. This spring, Westbrook signed a one-year restricted free agent qualifying offer for $1.43 million.

GLF | Bryant blows away field at Tour Championship

ATLANTA — Bart Bryant wondered if he belonged with the elite players at the Tour Championship. He wound up leaving them in the dust Sunday, closing with a 3-under 67 in a record performance that capped off a remarkable year.

Bryant birdied his first two holes to open a six-shot lead and led by at least four shots the rest of the way around East Lake, winning by six shots over Tiger Woods to capture the $1.17 million prize — more money than he won in his first 18 years as a pro.

Bryant, 42, got up-and-down from behind the 18th green for par to finish at 17-under 263 and break by four shots the 72-hole record at the Tour Championship set five years ago at East Lake by Phil Mickelson.

CFB | Hurricanes' Moss may miss rest of season

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Miami's ascension into the national title picture came at a steep price.

The Hurricanes believe tailback Tyrone Moss will miss the remainder of the season because of what's been preliminarily diagnosed as torn left knee ligaments, an injury suffered in Saturday night's 27-7 victory over previously unbeaten Virginia Tech.

Miami coach Larry Coker said an MRI would probably be performed Monday to determine the severity of Moss' injury

College Football AP Top 10

1. Southern Cal	9-0
2. Texas	9-0
3. Miami (Fla.)	7-1
4. Alabama	9-0
5. LSU	7-1
6. Penn State	9-1
7. Notre Dame	6-2
8. Virginia Tech	8-1
9. Georgia	7-1
10. Ohio State	7-2
Other Big 12 teams:
13. Texas Tech	8-1
22. Colorado	7-2

Kansas students join K-State club in 1st disk golf tournament

By Kaley Lyon
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sixteen K-State students and two University of Kansas students gathered on the field between President Jon Wefald's house and Manhattan Ave. Saturday morning to compete in the first K-State disc golf tournament.

The K-State Disc Golf Club sponsored the 18-hole campus course that used light posts and trees as holes.

Students paid $1 to participate.

"This is my first one," said Ross McCoy, fifth-year student in interior architecture. "I just like to play and got into this last year or so."

The 18 participants were divided randomly into groups determined by tossing frisbee disks into the air.

Participants were grouped according to who got "heads" and who got "tails." The process continued until each group had two people.

Arthur Thompson, junior in electrical engineering, and Craig Nagel, junior in engineering, won the tournament, with a score of 200.

For taking first, each received a new frisbee disk and $10.

The K-State disk golf club became an official student organization in July 2005.

"We were just hanging out and heard that someone was trying to start a club," Adam Reichenberger, junior in mathematics, said of forming the club.

"So we just got together and did what we had to do."

The group has about 15 members who meet about once a month.

They said they hope this tournament will be the first of many.

"We want to do this in the spring too, so it will be biannual," Sara Mueting, junior in biology, said.

"The tournament went great. It was very good."

Throwing a frisbee, Ross McCoy, fifth-year student in interior architecture, plays a game of frisbee golf during a tournament Saturday morning. McCoy said he has played the sport for about a year.

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

A LARGE one-bedroom. Available January 1. Close to campus. Washer/ dryer. 1704 Fairview. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-4975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490, three-bedrooms $700- $825. (785)537-7701.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810. (785)537-2255.

120 For Rent- Houses

A TWO-BEDROOM house. Edge of town. Pets ok. $500, available now. (785)317-7713.

FOUR-BEDROOM, TWO bath, two blocks from campus. Washer/ dryer hookups. Deck with grill. Quiet neighborhood, nice yard, nice house. $1400/ month. Available immediately. Call (620)792-1933 or malonerental@yahoo.com

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

Lost something?
You can place an ad FREE for three days!
Kedzie 103 532-6555

145 Roommate Wanted

Roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATES: MALE or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/kstc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

NOW LEASING
• Large 2 Bedroom Apts. •
Cambridge Square • Sandstone • Pebblebrook
Open Saturday 10-3
537-9064
www.hillcrestandrental.com

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENTS, available now and in January. Offering semester leases, call MDI at (785)776-3804.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

120 For Rent- Houses

MUST SEE three-bedroom, one bathroom. Living room, kitchen, dinette, computer room, laundry facility in attached garage, nice patio. (765)463-5014, (765)714-5710.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE- FOUR-BEDROOM. Washer/ dryer, fenced, 1816 Leavenworth. $900. (785)537-7138.

THREE-BEDROOM, ONE bath, house across from campus. Modern appliances, central air, very clean. Available immediately. $350 per bedroom plus utilities. 1735 Anderson. Call KSU Foundation at (785)532-7569 or (785)532-7541.

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $900/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

2000 SCHULT 16x80. Three-bedroom, two bath, large deck, fenced lot located in Riverchase. Call (785)564-0904 or (785)565-8292.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Three-bedroom house. $290 plus utilities. Available immediately. (913)980-7859.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: No smoking. Two-bedroom apartment. Close to campus. Off-street parking. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. (620)481-9837.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: three-bedroom house for spring semester. Rent $320 plus utilities. Very nice house. (316)990-2046.

ROOMMATE WANTED, $350, one-half utilities, Scott (785)341-5153.

145 Roommate Wanted

ONE BEDROOM available in two-bedroom apartment. Quiet non-smoker, pets okay. Call Nicole at (913)220-5854.

ROOMMATE NEEDED, January 1, for two-bedroom house three blocks from Aggieville. Walk to campus. Rent $300. Call (913)219-7801 or (913)638-2323.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Walking distance to campus. Large room. $300 plus one-third utilities. Available immediately. Please call (785)640-3288.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $395/ month. Washer/ dryer. Sublease December. (785)317-1162 or (785)317-2319.

ONE-BEDROOM. $395, cable/ water paid. Laundry/ pool/ hot tub on site. Small pets. Quiet. Available now. (785)375-3015.

ROOM AVAILABLE from January 1st. Washer/ dryer. Near campus. $265/ month. (620)560-3037.

SUBLEASE TWO-BEDROOM. Close to campus. For more information, call (620)276-4940.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms, University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

SUBLEASER NEEDED for January 1. Spacious one-bedroom, close to campus/ Aggieville. (785)564-7134.

SUBLEASER WANTED for spacious one-bedroom apartment with washer and dryer. Available mid-December. $375/ month. Call Jenny at (913)706-7361.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

Full/ Part-time Technical Writer Positions open to all students. Get paid by the project- pay of $15+ per hour possible. Flexible hours are ideal for self-motivated, unsupervised worker. Must be U.S Citizen, with minimum 1210 SAT score or 27 ACT score. Requires computer/ Internet access and strong writing skills- frequent grammar, spelling mistakes are unacceptable. Email techwritingjob@yahoo.com with a quick summary of your work experience, major and SAT/ACT score.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

LUNCHROOM/ PLAYGROUND Supervisors-Hall Monitors needed for the 2005- 2006 school year. $6.50 per hour, one and one-half- two hours per day. 11:00 a.m.- 1:00 p.m. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (785)587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

NOW HIRING wait staff. Apply in person 2- 5pm. Tuesday- Friday. 1130 Moro.

ROYAL PURPLE YEARBOOK staff is looking for a marketing assistant to help design promotional material, assist with yearbook sales and participate in marketing activities. Work on salary to help promote K-State's award-winning yearbook. Ten hours/ week. Start immediately. Call Lindsay Porter at (785)532-6557 for more information.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

TECHNOLOGY TRAINER for the North Central Kansas Libraries System. Part-time position, average 20 hours a week, requires flexible scheduling to meet the needs of system members. Develops and delivers instruction to NCKLS member libraries. Three years of education and/ or experience working with computer hardware and software and conducting training or workshops in computer applications. Experience working in a library, teaching adults or older students, familiarity with variety of computer systems, and experience working with rural populations is desirable. The job involves considerable travel and driving within the 12 county NCKLS region. Apply before November 30th. Send a cover letter and resume to Linda Knupp, North Central Kansas Libraries System, 629 Poyntz Ave, Manhattan KS, 66502, or lknupp@manhattan.lib.ks.us. Mail to lknupp@manhattan.lib.ks.us

WRITE FOR $. K-State Media Relations has spring and summer part-time opening for a student news writer who can produce articles quickly and accurately. Flexible schedule. Must be able to work 12- 15 hours/ week. Pay starts at $7.50/ hour. High school and college journalism experience required. Must know AP style and QuarkXPress. Must be available to work over the summer. Pick up an application in 9 Anderson Hall. Paid for by K-State.

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

THREE MEAT goats for sale. (785)396-4366.

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assault victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

Wanna find that hot guy in class?
You need a phone book.
Kedzie 103

500 transportation

530 Motorcycles

2003 MOPED- Kenetic, 49cc. $400 or best offer. (785)317-4279.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
www.ubski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK. Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

			2	6		7		1
6	8			7			9
1	9				4	5
8	2		1				4
		4	6		2	9
	5				3		2	8
		9	3				7	4
	4			5			3	6
7		3		1	8

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

NEED TO SUBLEASE?
Advertise in the Collegian
It's the easiest way to get results.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
532-6555

Say it with a personal.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 532-6555

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Cottonwood Racquet Club
is currently hiring for group instructors in the following areas:
•Yoga/Pilates
•Boxing / Kick Boxing
•Group Fitness
•Youth Tumbling
•Personal Trainers
Send resume to :
CRC
3615 Claflin Rd.
Manhattan, KS 66503
Attn: Christian
Cottonwood Racquet Club
785-776-6060

Bring in puzzle and receive FREE chips and small drink.

POET | U.S. Laureate reads poems, tells of inspirations

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Speaking to a full crowd, Ted Kooser, Poet Laureate of the United States, reads poetry and talks about the inspiration behind his writing. Attendants who couldn't fit into the Little Theatre watched the speech via a live video feed in the William T. Kemper Art Gallery.

Continued from Page 1

Kooser talked about how he considers basic, everyday objects to write about. His poem "Spiral Notebook" does just this.

"Poetry can turn a kind of kaleidoscope on words. An example is taking a common-place thing and seeing it a little differently," he said.

As he read "Urine Specimen," the audience laughed loudly.

"This poem is a lot of fun for me to read, because as I look into the audience I see people become more and more uncomfortable," Kooser said.

"'Urine Specimen' made me laugh," Mickayla Fink, graduate student in English, said. "I liked the mix of imagery, humor and emotion. There were several times we might have been choked up if we weren't around a bunch of people."

Kooser said he often gets questions from his students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln about expressing emotion.

"They always have the question of how to write about feelings," he said. "I wrote this poem as a way of writing about feelings without openly declaring them."

Several people commented on the mix of ages in the audience.

"I was just thinking how nice it was to see a type of entertainment where both younger and older people gather together," Don Hedrick, professor of English, said. "It just works for everybody."

Helen Dorfmeier, senior in English, said she enjoyed the reading.

"I'd heard a few of his poems before, but I really enjoyed this," she said. "He is the poet laureate so it's an honor he is here and a valuable experience for me."

MONEY | Enrollment affected by Wildcats' success

Continued from Page 1

budgeting process, we'll try to determine how many units we think are reasonable. Last year, I think we had one more appearance than we budgeted, so we were fine, and I believe this year we've had enough appearances that we'll be fine again."

Television exposure isn't only tied to the coffers, though. Enrollment has leveled off at K-State after paralleling the rise of the football program in the 1990s.

But coach Bill Snyder balked at saying TV appearances are an important factor in the success of the football program.

"I think it has some significance to (recruits), but I don't think that's the foremost reason that a young person would have for selecting a school," Snyder said. "Everybody has different reasons, and I doubt that very many of them are, 'Well, you're on television.'

"With all other things being equal, yes, it probably would have an impact. But that can be said about many things."

CHILI | Optimist Club hopes to build strong community

Continued from Page 1

The best part about events like Chili Crawl, though, is building a stronger Manhattan community, said Linda Couch, secretary and treasurer of Little Apple Noon Optimist Club.

"We're a pretty small club for everything we do, and this is our big fundraiser," Couch said. "We support a lot of youth programs – Boys and Girls Club America, CASA, Operation Santa Claus."

Johnson said she was very satisfied with the event, and hopes to return to it in the future.

"Hey, when you find things like this, that bring the best food and the best of our community together, that's when you can start celebrating," Johnson said. "Only in Aggieville, only in Aggieville."

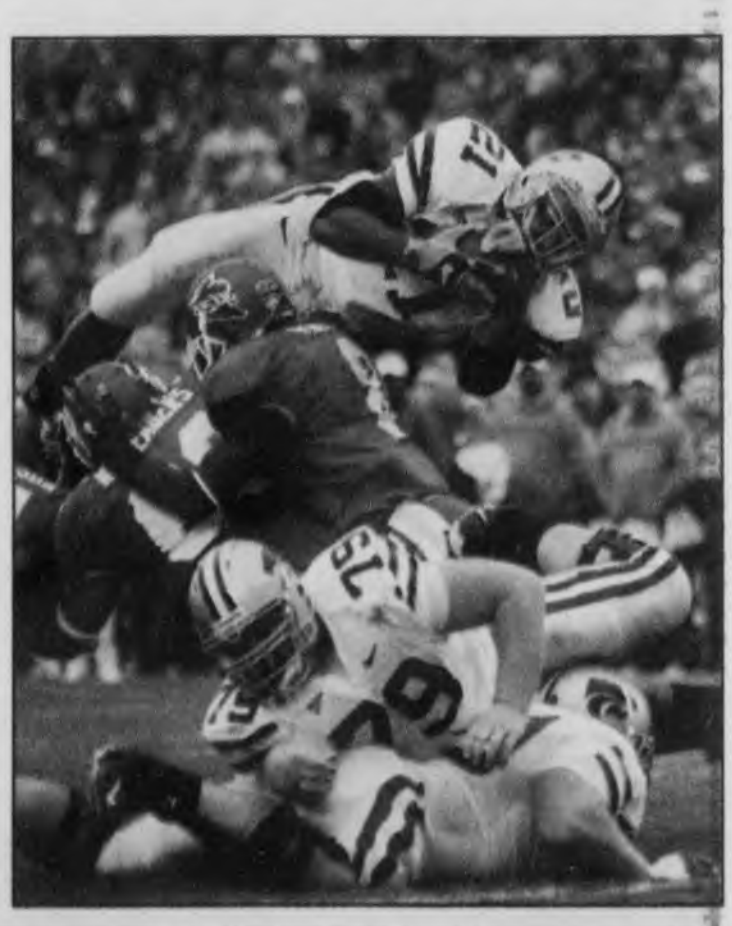
MISTAKES | K-State needs 2 wins for bowl eligibility

Continued from Page 1

ensuing kickoff at the K-State 33-yard line, and Kock scored four plays later.

"We need to know we need to come out of the locker room and be on top of our game as soon as the ball is kicked off," senior fullback Victor Mann said. "We came out of the locker room at the beginning of the game, they jumped on us. We came out of the locker room in the second half, they jumped on us."

The Wildcats must now win both of their remaining games to get to six wins and become bowl eligible. That task begins this Saturday in Lincoln, Neb., against the Nebraska Cornhuskers.



K-State has beaten Nebraska three consecutive years by an average score of 44-14. Even so, the Wildcats have won at Nebraska just twice since 1960 – a 12-0 shutout in 1968 and a 38-9 victory in 2003.

"It's a tough place to play with loud crowd noise," senior offensive lineman Jeromey Clary said. "I'll never lose faith in this team. We're talented enough to (win)."

More Problems

- K-State converted one out of 13 third-down plays. The only conversion came on quarterback Allan Evridge's one-yard touchdown run.
- The Wildcats gained a total of 10-yards on third down. The longest play came on a pass to Jordy Nelson for a seven-yard gain on third and 10.
- K-State lost a total of 23 yards on third down, with three of the plays going for no gain.
- All three Wildcat turnovers were converted into points for Iowa State. The Cyclones capitalized on Evridge's first interception with a field goal in the first quarter. Back-to-back Wildcat turnovers to start the third quarter were turned into touchdowns for Iowa State. K-State has surrendered 62 points this season resulting from turnovers.
- K-State was outscored 38-7 in the first and third quarter.
- In Big 12 Conference play, K-State has never had the lead after the first quarter.
- K-State has been outscored 50-6 in the first quarter in Big 12 play.
- The Wildcats have been outscored 42-35 in the third quarter.

—Compiled by Anthony Mendoza

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

TOP: K-State's Carlos Alsup tries to jump over Iowa State defenders Saturday afternoon at Jack Trice Stadium in Ames, Iowa. The Wildcats lost to the Cyclones 45-17.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

ABOVE: Defensive back Justin McKinney sits on the bench during the second half Saturday against Iowa State. The Wildcats were out-scored 28-7 in the second half to lose their fourth straight game.

Man convicted in connection with fight that killed student

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HAYS, Kan. – A man has been sentenced to one month in jail and one year of probation for playing a role in instigating a series of fights that led to the death of a Fort Hays State University student.

The sentence was ordered Thursday after an Ellis County jury convicted Jason Penka of misdemeanor battery.

Penka, who was accused of putting two people in a headlock, was initially charged with two counts of battery. One of the battery charges was dropped.

Penka was 28 in November 2003 when the brawl started in the parking lot of an apartment complex north of campus. Clint Johnson, 18, of Healy, Kan., died two days later from injuries suffered in the fight.

Penka was given two weeks to report to the Ellis County Jail, where he will be required to serve four days of his 30-day jail sentence.

Probation will follow, during which time Penka was ordered to enter an alcohol evaluation program.

Estimates indicated Penka drank as many as 30 beers on the night of the brawl.

District Judge Ed Bouker declined to impose the maximum sentence allowed because no direct injuries resulted from Penka's role in the fight. He also rejected the recommendation of Penka's attorney, who requested the same sentence that another participant received: six months' unsupervised probation and a $150 fine.

In denying the lighter sentence, Bouker said Penka was older than many of the participants in the fight. He also noted a racial element to the fight.

One of the two men Penka was accused of putting in a headlock said an advancing crowd was hurling racial slurs at the second man, who is Hispanic.

Cruise ship attack underlines increasing boldness of Somali pirates

By Rodrique Ngowi
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NAIROBI, Kenya – The violent attack on a cruise liner off Somalia's coast shows pirates from the anarchic country on the Horn of Africa are becoming bolder and more ambitious in their efforts to hijack ships for ransom and loot, a maritime official warned Sunday.

Judging by the location of Saturday's attack, the pirates were likely from the same group that hijacked a U.N. aid ship in June and held its crew and food cargo hostage for 100 days, said Andrew Mwangura, head of the Kenyan chapter of the Seafarers Assistance Program.

That gang is one of three well-organized pirate groups on the 1,880-mile coast of Somalia, which has had no effective government since opposition leaders ousted a dictatorship in 1991 and then turned on each other, leaving the nation of 7 million a patchwork of warlord fiefdoms.

Illustrating the chaos, attackers in Somalia's capital, Mogadishu, threw grenades and exploded a land mine Sunday near a convoy carrying the prime minister of a transitional government that has been trying to exert control since late last year.

The attack killed at least five bodyguards and was the second in six months involving explosions near Prime Minister Ali Mohamed Gedi, whose internally divided government spends much of its time in Kenya.

Even before the attack on the liner Seabourn Spirit, Gedi had urged neighboring countries to send warships to patrol Somalia's stretch of coast, which is Africa's longest and lies along key shipping lanes linking the Mediterranean with the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean.

U.S. and NATO warships patrol the region to protect vessels in deeper waters farther out, but they are not permitted in Somali territorial waters. Despite those patrols, the heavily armed pirates approached the cruise ship about 100 miles at sea, underlining their increasing audacity.

HUNAN EXPRESS
Chinese Food Lover's Choice
BUFFET
Lunch 11:00-2:30 $3.99
Dinner 5:30-9:00 $4.99
Free Delivery: 537-0886
Fax: 539-9111
Hours: Sun. - Wed.. 11 a.m. - Midnight; Th. - Sat. 11 a.m. - 2:30 a.m.
1116 Moro St. Aggieville (only a few blocks south of KSU)
SPEND OVER $25 AND GET A FREE T-SHIRT!!

Junior • Petite
Blue Jeans
Lucky, Gap, Abercrombie & Fitch, and more!
$2.50 – $4.95
Bring in Student ID for 25% off any one clothing item
QUALITY NAME BRAND New & Gently Used CLOTHING AT 50-95% OFF RETAIL
BUY & SELL
The Apple's Heart
Boutique Atmosphere...Thriftstore Prices
"Where Kansas Meets New York"
113 S. 5th • downtown poyntz • 317-5475

Monday Night Football
25¢ JUMBO WINGS
$2 BIG BEERS
Rustys LAST CHANCE SALOON
Chance to win a Budweiser tool box refrigerator and other prizes!

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Tuesday, November 8, 2005 | Vol. 110, No. 57

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601

INSIDE
Stu
alte to v
Edge, Page 5

Pike fight sends 1 to hospital

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A University of Kansas student is in fair condition after a fight at Pi Kappa Alpha early Sunday morning sent him to the hospital, said Capt. John Doehling of the Riley County Police Department.

Lucas Parsons, 19, was admitted to Mercy Regional Health Center for a broken jaw and a large laceration to the back of the head, Doehling said.

Doehling said officers responded at about 2 a.m. Sunday to an argument at the Pike house during a party. He said the suspect allegedly punched Parsons in the head and knocked him to the ground where Parsons smacked his head on concrete.

Doehling said no arrests were made and the case is still under investigation.

Center to offer infant care

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State Child Development Center will soon be able to offer infant care because of funding from three grants.

Because of the cost and space associated with infant care, it was not previously offered at the K-State Child Development Center, director Debra Ring said.

The Manhattan Community Foundation, the Caroline F. Peine Foundation and the U.S. Department of Education's Child Care Access Means Parents In School Program will fund two new infant rooms, a new toddler room and an infant toddler specialist, Ring said.

Ring said it will cost about $15,000 each to convert two storage closets into two infant rooms. She said these rooms are the only part of the current center available for expansion.

A preschool room will be converted into the toddler room because of the increasing need for more toddler care, Ring said.

One of the infant rooms and the toddler room will open in January. The other infant room will open in March.

The new infant rooms will allow the center to take in 12 infants who are at least six weeks old.

See GRANTS Page 8

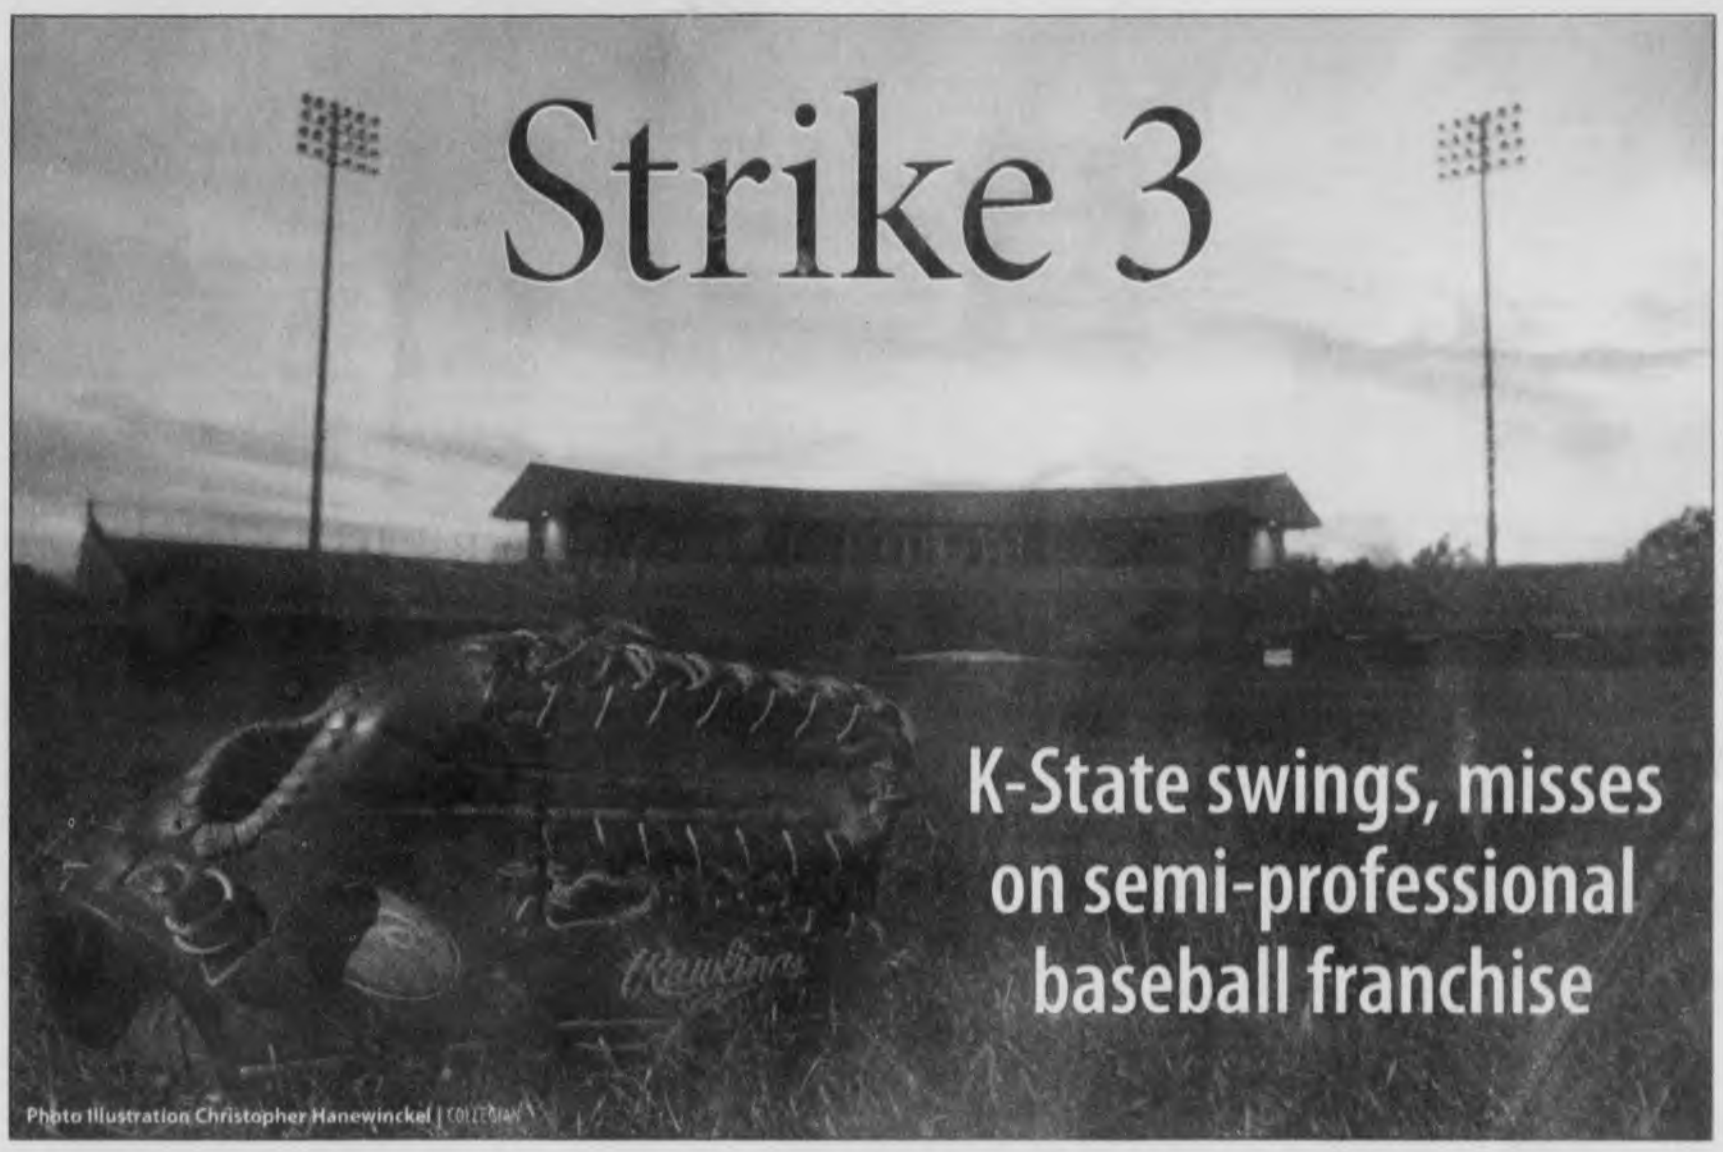

Photo illustration Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Manhattan came a few steps short of owning a semi-professional baseball team.

The American Association independent league is trying to find a home for one of its North Division teams, and Manhattan was one of three cities considered to round out the new league.

The American Association awarded Carl Reed, owner of Abbott Aluminum Inc. in Manhattan, a franchise last month. Reed attempted to reach an agreement with K-State that would allow his team to use Tointon Family Stadium over the summer when the stadium is dormant.

But negotiations between K-State and Reed fell through, and a team will not be coming to Manhattan.

K-State Athletics Director Tim Weiser sent Reed a proposal detailing what K-State would need in order to allow Reed's team use of the facilities.

The proposal included a 10-year commitment of $150,000 annually to improve and maintain facilities, which would include adding a visitor's locker room and potentially adding more seats.

A meeting was scheduled last Thursday between Reed, city officials, league officials, several part-owners and K-State representatives in order to work out an agreement that would have been a stepping-stone for the birth of the franchise.

K-State representatives refused to attend the meeting, and Reed said the plan fell through.

"The Association needed a decision soon because the season would start next summer and they needed to start planning all the details for the league," Reed said. "I received a call Tuesday afternoon informing me that K-State would not attend the meeting because they wanted more time to finalize the details.

"We were ready to meet all their requirements, but they said if the decision had to be made now, then they would not be able to make a commitment."

Casey Scott, associate athletic director of operations, said the university needed more time to study the plan.

"Part of the issue was timing," Scott said. "Reed had the opportunity now and needed an answer in a very short time frame. The university had numerous questions that could not have been resolved in the time he gave us.

"Had there been more time for the university to study proposals and see a business plan of the effects of the team using the facility, then there would have been more opportunity."

This is not the first time Reed has attempted to bring a baseball team to Manhattan.

In 1999, he tried to bring the Saltdogs to Manhattan, but the plan fell through and the team is now located in Lincoln, Neb. He tried again in 2001 with a franchise called the T-Bones, which also fell through, and its now in Kansas City, Kan.

> "We were ready to meet all their requirements, but they said if the decision had to be made now, then they would not be able to make a commitment."
>
> Carl Reed
> Owner of Abbott Aluminum Inc.

Reed said the Saltdogs have played a huge role in the success of the University of Nebraska's baseball program – which has qualified for the NCAA baseball tournament five of the past six seasons and is one of only two programs in the country to qualify for the College World Series in both 2001 and 2002 – in terms of recruiting, and would have had similar results for K-State.

"The success of the Nebraska program and the Saltdogs being located in Lincoln is no coincidence," Reed said. "A professional baseball team is a huge draw for high school athletes who would like to further their careers after college. Recruiting at K-State would have improved because we would have been able to attract more kids from states like Florida and Texas."

But the benefits do not stop there, Reed said.

"K-State seems to forget that this is not just a college town," Reed said. "There are families living here who would like something more to do with their kids than take them to Aggieville on the weekend."

"This was a golden opportunity for them to show how much they appreciate everything this town has done for them and they let us down."

Reed also said the proposed team would not have cost K-State anything in the long run, and the team would have produced nearly 120 jobs, many of which could have been filled by K-State students.

At least one Manhattan resident was disappointed because he would have liked to enjoy baseball games on a warm summer nights.

Fred Smith, instructor of accounting, said this would have been a perfect opportunity for families to enjoy a baseball game in the summer.

"I would have considered a season ticket," Smith said. "Nothing better on a summer evening than to hit the ballpark to watch a game."

Smith also said Manhattan is losing potential revenue because of the deal not going through.

"If Manhattan really wants economic development, more events like a minor league team have to occur," he said. "A minor league team could have brought dollars to Manhattan from outside of the area with very little investment. In addition, it would add considerable economic diversity. It would be one more reason for someone thinking about relocating to Manhattan to see as a positive."

Reed said he will one day own a franchise, and was upset the team will not be local.

"This is where my home is, and I want nothing more than to bring something here to help improve this town," Reed said.

"It is a shame that K-State feels the way that they do, but when I get a chance to own another team, I will take my family and my business to another town so that I can own a baseball team."

Professor receives Breakthrough Award from Popular Mechanics

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A K-State professor has been honored for developing a substance stronger than VX nerve gas.

The strength of the substance renders the gas harmless.

Kenneth Klabunde, professor of chemistry, was honored with one of Popular Mechanics' 2005 Breakthrough Awards in the magazine's November issue. The article said the awards are granted to those who are "shaping the world's future through science and technology."

Klabunde's creation, FAST-ACT, is a white powder that looks similar to flour, but it neutralizes many hazardous chemicals. Such chemicals could be released accidentally in a laboratory or factory setting or intentionally as an act of terrorism or war.

It is one of the first successful applications of nanotechnology: the use of extremely small particles to make machines on a very small scale. Klabunde said FAST-ACT's components, magnesium oxide and titanium oxide, have little effect on harmful chemicals in their normal state.

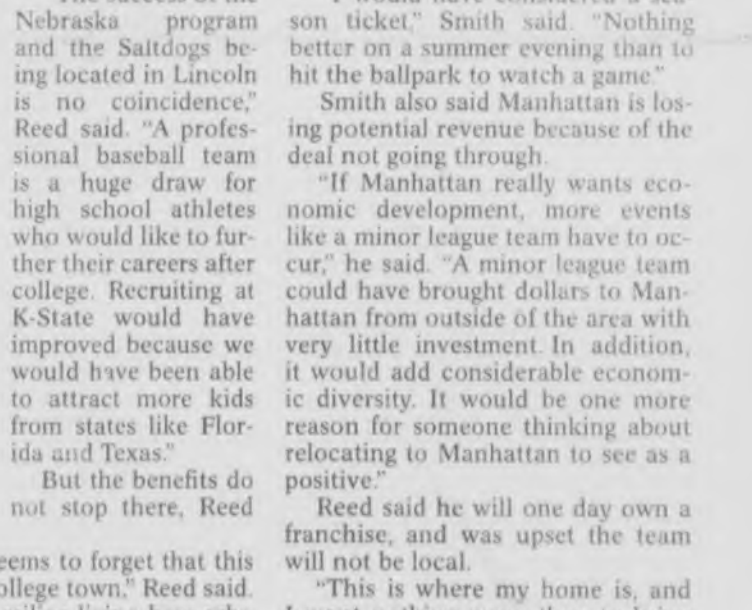
"But when we make them into smaller and smaller particles, they become much more reactive," he said.

Popular Mechanics dubbed the professor the "Toxic Avenger," a nickname that hasn't caught on with students.

"It's kind of the public that likes that name," he said, "not the students."

The product's name stands for "First Applied Sorbent Treatment-Against Chemical Threats."

Klabunde said it has two advantages over other means of fighting hazardous chemicals. First, it works on many different things, including mustard gas and sulfuric acid. Second, it doesn't react badly with anything.



"You're not going to start a fire – you're not going to hurt someone," he said. "You don't have to know what you're using it on."

Klabunde said he has been working on FAST-ACT for several years. The project not only included making the powder, but also experimenting with it to prove it was both effective and safe.

"The periodic table was sort of our playground," he said.

Klabunde said he tested the

See KLABUNDE Page 8

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Kenneth Klabunde, professor of chemistry, was honored by Popular Mechanics with a 2005 Breakthrough Award in the November issue of the magazine.

Today

High 80
Low 47

Wednesday

WINDY
High 61
Low 35

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Servitude conviction

Arlan Kaufman, 69, and his wife Linda, 62, were convicted Monday on 30 federal charges for enslaving mentally ill residents at the Kaufman House Residential Treatment Center in Wichita and forcing them to work naked and perform sex acts. The couple also illegally billed the federal government for therapy.

Inmate found

Death row inmate Charles Victor Thompson waived his extradition hearing Monday after he was captured Sunday, three days after he escaped from jail by walking out in street clothes. Thompson, 35, was convicted in 1999 for the shooting deaths of his ex-girlfriend and her new boyfriend. He was sentenced to death on Oct. 28.

Evolution vote

The Kansas State Board of Education will vote today on academic standards that will direct the development of student tests used to measure how well Kansas' public schools teach the sciences. Six of the 10 board members have previously endorsed language sought by advocates of intelligent design.

DON'T FORGET

Students with 35 credit hours or more are eligible to enroll today.

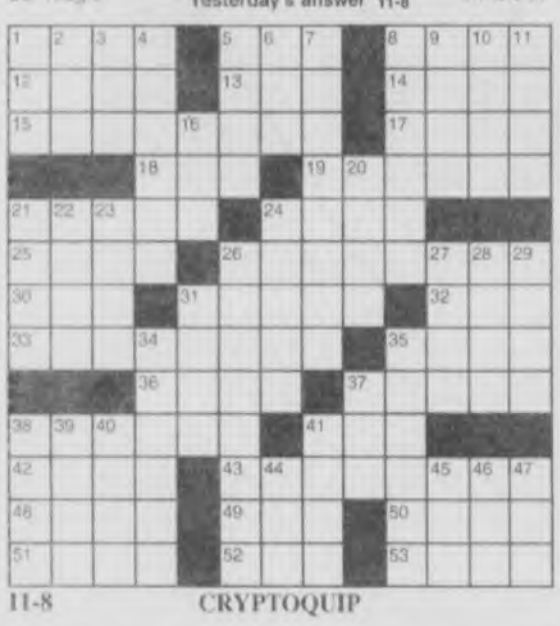
Max Underwood will speak at 11:30 this morning in Union 212.

Union Program Council will meet at 5:30 tonight in Union Station.

The K-State Brass Ensemble will perform at 7:30 tonight at All Faiths Chapel.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 On in years
5 With 8-Across, Inge play
8 See 5-Across
12 Portrayal
13 Superlative ending
14 Walt Kelly comic
15 Visit casually
17 Exceptional
18 Stipend
19 In the same place (Lat.)
21 "10" star
24 Lady Macbeth's haunter
25 Devastation
26 Flip
30 Grecian vessel
31 Norton's workplace
32 Blackjack part
33 Aggressive one
35 Tragic
36 Jell-O form
37 Hoedown seating?
38 Department
41 End of a "Sesame Street" lesson
42 Mimic
43 Acquire
48 Sound of a large bell
49 Mauna —
50 Yuletide refrain
51 Poker stake
52 Dozens of mos.
53 Alumnus

DOWN
1 Lob's path
2 Sticky stuff
3 Shade provider
4 Bore more
5 Group of quail
6 Work with
7 Ecdysiast
8 Diagonal spars
9 "Wind in the Willows" character
10 Shrek is one
11 Verse
16 Erstwhile acorn
20 Insensitive one
21 Pharmaceutical
22 Modern money
23 Pugilism venue
24 Emulated Johnny Appleseed
26 Hit pay dirt
27 Do surveillance on 28 Farm fraction
29 Dregs
31 Old portico
34 Become known
35 Stupefying
37 "See ya"
38 Ali —
39 Word often following "once"
40 Landlord's due
41 Grand opening day?
44 "— the fields we go, ..."
45 Neither mate
46 Afternoon social
47 See 1-Across

Solution time: 21 mins.

Yesterday's answer 11-8

11-8 CRYPTOQUIP

W D K F W P . K N F L D T C F T Z V R J T T P Z M X D W J K C J T F J L K F M . N F N D V C D M P X T J R Z M X A J M A F T M V .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A BEAR WERE ALLOWED TO PREPARE COFFEE OR TEA, COULD YOU THEN SAY HE WAS BRUIN?

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: N equals H

STREET TALK

What is your least favorite class and why?

Detherage

"I like all of my classes."

Crystal Detherage
SOPHOMORE IN PRE-PROFESSIONAL SECONDARY EDUCATION

Hernandez

"My British survey class because it is really boring."

Jessi Hernandez
SOPHOMORE IN ENGLISH

Ast

"Chemistry because it is really hard."

Robert Ast
SOPHOMORE IN ATHLETIC TRAINING

Bailey

"Macroeconomics because the teacher is boring."

Kris Bailey
SOPHOMORE IN PRE-PROFESSIONAL SECONDARY EDUCATION

Shearer

"(Taxation) because it is not fun and it is very confusing."

Clayton Shearer
SENIOR IN FAMILY STUDIES AND HUMAN SERVICES

Hampton

"(Calculus) 1 because the curriculum changed and now it is just crazy."

Cynthia Hampton
SOPHOMORE IN BIOLOGICAL AND AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING

Derezinski

"Economics because the concepts are hard to grasp."

Brandon Derezinski
FRESHMAN IN MATHEMATICS

Zumba

"Introduction to music because it is basically reading straight out of the book."

Jackie Zumba
SOPHOMORE IN PRE-PROFESSIONAL ELEMENTARY EDUCATION

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Friday, Nov. 4

■ Anthony Moss, 3000 Tuttle Creek Blvd., Apt. 521, was arrested at 7 p.m. for aggravated battery, obstruction of legal process and witness intimidation. Bond was set at $5,000.
■ Thaddaeus Pope, 1207 Kearney St., Apt. 9, was arrested at 11:19 p.m. for two counts of unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia and cultivation of marijuana. Bond was set at $2,000.

Saturday, Nov. 5

■ Daniel Kennedy, 1109 Houston St., was arrested at 1:15 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
■ Christopher Redlingshafer, 1021 Quivera Circle, was arrested at 1:30 a.m. for disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $750.
■ Eric Sawtelle, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 1:53 a.m. for aggravated battery. Bond was set at $1,000.
■ Andrew Corum, 700 Catalpa Circle, was arrested at 2:12 a.m. for DUI. Bond was set at $750.
■ Shaun Strifler, Fostoria, Kan., was arrested at 2:43 a.m. for DUI and transporting of an open container. Bond was set at $1,000.
■ Derek Botbyl, 709 Dondee Drive, Apt. 9, was arrested at 8 a.m. for theft. Bond was set at $1,000.
■ Patsy Wright, no address given, was arrested at 8:40 a.m. for battery. Bond was set at $750.
■ Lenard Robinson, 1815 Fairchild Terrace, was arrested at 9:30 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $500.
■ Stacy Crichton, Council Grove, Kan., was arrested at 9:35 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $500.
■ Brandon Abrams, Ogden, Kan, was arrested at 10 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,000.
■ Julie Hix, 136 EJ Frick, was arrested at 10:25 a.m. for criminal damage to property. Bond was set at $1,500.
■ Ulysses Clark, Junction City, was arrested at 1:40 p.m. for theft, unlawful selling of stolen items and unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia. Bond was set at $4,000.

Sunday, Nov. 6

■ William Henson Jr., was arrested at 1:47 a.m. for two counts of aggravated battery, criminal trespass, criminal damage to property and obstruction of justice. Bond was set at $7,000.
■ Joshua Waller, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 2 a.m. for disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $500.
■ Emmert James, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 2:15 a.m. for criminal damage to property. Bond was set at $500.
■ Julian Olea, 1218 Pierre St., was arrested at 6:50 a.m. for DUI and driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $1,500.
■ Craig Cochran, Fort Riley, Kan., was arrested at 5:30 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $139.
■ Marcus Roberson, Junction City, was arrested at 7:30 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was not set.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The KSU Brass Ensemble will perform at 7:30 tonight in All Faiths Chapel.
■ Powercat Toastmasters will meet at 5:30 tonight in Durland 1029. Dean of Engineering Tom Roberts will speak at the meeting.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

dependable, quality service
✓Let us print your overheads in color.
Claflin Books and Copies

O'Malley's Alley
Guinness Fest this week!
1208 Moro • 537-0775
$2.00 shots wells imports draws premiums bottles

In gratitude and celebration of buying, selling, and exchanging books in Aggieville for 20 years, we will be offering our inventory at a 20% discount throughout the remainder of 2005.
Please bring in your quality used books for trade or purchase.
700 N. Manhattan
785 539 2839
The Dusty Bookshelf

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

shout outs
are coming
November 9
to the Classifieds section
of the Collegian.
Check out our table in the Union for one FREE SHOUT OUT coupon!
Nov. 7,8,9
11 a.m. - 1 p.m.
$2 Guarantees YOU a voice in the Collegian!

wildcats
2005-06 BASKETBALL
Tuesday, Nov. 8
vs. Emporia State
7pm
Bramlage Coliseum
All Tickets - $5
K-State Students Free with valid student I.D.
GO STATE!

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Steven Kilgore, freshman in business administration pre-professional, and April Clydesdale, senior in speech communication, clean out ice coolers at the American Red Cross Monday afternoon as a part of the Bring in the Greeks event.

Community service project extended

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State greeks will contribute to the Manhattan community this week through Bring in the Greeks.

Ray's Apple Market, 3011 Anderson Ave. and 222 N. Sixth St., donated 4,000 grocery bags to the greek community, which were distributed to Manhattan homes Monday. Flyers in the bags requested non-perishable food items. The bags will be picked up Nov. 11 and taken to the Flint Hills Breadbasket.

This is not the first year for the project, but it is the first time it will be a week-long project, said Alex Ball, director of community and internal and community relations for the Interfraternity Council.

Ball, senior in marketing, said the project was extended to a week to accommodate schedules and to include more greeks.

"All chapters are invited to contribute as a whole this week," Ball said.

Ball is the director of the week along with Kelli Burns, director of community and internal relations for the Panhellenic Council.

Burns said the week is a time to give back to the community.

"The Manhattan community does so much for K-State and the greek system," she said. "This is a way of giving back to them through volunteer time."

The week is also an opportunity for greeks to make a connection with the community, said Molly Shannon, sophomore in apparel, textiles and design and a member of Delta Delta Delta.

For three hours on Sunday, Shannon prepared grocery bags with flyers.

"The week will help break down some of the negative stereotypes that may be out there about greeks and college students in general," she said.

Will Janousek, external vice president for Lambda Chi Alpha, also helped prepare grocery bags.

Janousek, junior in fisheries and wildlife biology, designed the distribution routes for the grocery bags.

"One of the greek system's main focuses is community service and volunteering," he said. "Hopefully, people can see we like to do this."

Volunteer locations

Manhattan Emergency Shelter Inc., 831 Leavenworth St.
Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Manhattan, 305 S. Fourth St.
American Red Cross, 2601 Anderson Ave.
Seniors' Service Center, 412 Leavenworth St.
Peace Lutheran Church-ELCA., 2500 Kimball Ave.

Surveys find drinking affects grades, finances

By Dayne Logan
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Beer and grades are directly related, a K-State survey of 1,311 students recently found.

The more K-State students drink per week, the worse they perform in the classroom, according to a survey conducted by Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service and K-State Project Wellness.

"The more alcohol one consumes, on average, the lower one's GPA," said Bill Arck, director of Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service.

This has been confirmed by surveys at K-State, the University of Kansas, Emporia State University and Fort Hays State University, Arck said.

At K-State, the grades of 15 percent to 20 percent of students are significantly affected by drinking, he said. Another 20 percent of students may have their academic performance somewhat affected by drinking, and about 18 percent of K-State students do not drink.

The survey, which began in 2003, found, on average, students who drink 10 or more beers per week have a cumulative grade point average of 2.5 or lower. Students who drink five beers per week tended to have a GPA between 2.51 and 3.49. Students who drink only two beers per week averaged GPAs of 3.5 or higher.

However, there is a caveat, Arck said. The survey cannot tell if drinking causes bad grades or if bad grades induce drinking.

"I would suspect there's a little bit of both," he said.

However, only 23 percent of students in the survey reported having performed poorly on a test or project due to drinking.

Jake Ellis, junior in kinesiology, said he spends about $20 weekly on alcohol. He said drinking has probably negatively affected his performance on tests, but he has been able to salvage his grades.

"I was able to dig myself out of the hole," Ellis said.

While the data demonstrates that alcohol consumption affects students' grades, it brings up another question concerning the economic effect of drinking.

At Dillons, a 30-pack of Miller Lite cans is $18.39. At this price, each beer costs about 61 cents. Thus, students who drink 10 beers per week will spend about $319 per year on beer. This is without taking into account consumption of other types of alcohol like hard liquor or wine.

Students who drink an average of five beers per week will spend roughly $159 per year, while students who drink two beers per week will only spend about $64.

Dillons sells six-packs of bottled Coors Light for $4.99, or about 83 cents per bottle.

This totals to about $432 per year for students who drink 10 beers per week, $216 annually for students who consume five beers per week and $86 per year for students who have two beers per week.

The average K-State student has about four drinks per week, Arck said, which probably doesn't cost too much for a student.

Alex Lyon, junior in fisheries and wildlife biology, said he drinks about $15 worth of alcohol each week. He said drinking doesn't affect his ability to pay for school or do well on tests.

Some students control their drinking by limiting the amount they spend on alcohol, Arck said.

The survey found 62 percent of students keep track of the number of drinks they have when they go out and most only go out one night per week.

Arck also noted the costs associated with citations for driving under the influence and minor in possession, which he said could cost between $1,500 and $2,000. Accidents, illnesses and injuries will also increase the costs associated with drinking, Arck said.

"It just makes dollars and cents, and intuitive sense," he said.

Cost of beer consumption

30-pack of Miller Lite cans at $18.39
10 beers/week: $319 annually
5 beers/week: $159 annually
2 beers/week: $64 annually

Six-pack of bottled Coors Light at $4.99
10 beers/week: $432 annually
5 beers/week: $216 annually
2 beers/week: $86 annually

Little Caesars HOT-N-READY pizza $5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only ALL DAY, EVERYDAY! 1150 Westloop • 539-3333

More Shoes, More Service, More Friendly
A steady throb of versatility, adaptability & performance. Delivers instinctive reaction to hard use and varying, multi-sport demands.
MERRELL
Brown's SHOE Fit Co.
New Business Hours • Mon.-Sat. 9 AM - 6 PM
311 Poyntz Ave. • 776-6612 • Downtown Manhattan

TUESDAY WEDNESDAY
60¢ Tacos
$2.00 Margaritas
Trivia Night
BOBBY TS 3240 Kimball Ave 537-8383
$7.99 Steak Night
$2.00 Bottles
www.bobbyts.com

EARN up to $200 this month
EARN GREAT MONEY TODAY
FEEL GREAT FOREVER.
New Higher Pay · Come in today!
ZLB Plasma Services
Good for You. Great for Life.
1130 Gardenway • Manhattan, KS 66502
(785)-776-9177 • zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. For donations please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

Think You can Do Better?
Executive Position
Editor in chief
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 11
•Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Photo Journalsits • Desk Editors
• Graphic Journalists • Reporters
• Graphic Artists • Designers
• Online Journalists • Copy Editors
•Applications due 5 p.m. Nov. 16
Pick up Applications in Kedzie 103

$2 Deli Sandwiches
Mon.-Turkey
Tues.-Roast Beef
Wed.-Turkey Club
Thurs.-Ham & Cheese
Fri.-Roast Beef Club
We now deliver!
537-8SUB
New Extended Hours:
Tuesday-Saturday
(Open until 3 a.m.)
PLANET SUB
708 N. Manhattan Ave
www.planetsub.com

$1 SCOOPS
(2 Scoops for $2 and 3 Scoops for $3)
Tuesday Nights 6-10 pm Only
537-3136
329 Southwind Pl
31 Baskin Robbins Where Wonders Never Cease.™

NO CONTRACTS
NO CREDIT CHECK
NO DEPOSIT
clip & save FREE Faceplate When you sign up for Prepaid Service Expires 12/31/05
NO Age Limit
For the Best Prepay Plans on the Planet
Phones Start At $19.95
Kansas Wireless
MANHATTAN 305 Fort Riley Blvd 785.565.9219
JUNCTION CITY 7th & Washington 785.238.4020
go one better CELLULARONE authorized dealer

Overseas Teaching Workshop
• Have you considered living and working in another country?
• Are you willing to share your knowledge, skills and abilities with others?
Wednesday, November 9th
Union 212 - 7:00pm
All Colleges Welcome
Teaching certification may NOT be a requirement
Representatives from the Peace Corps, US Department of Defense Schools, K-State International Programs, K-State Honors, JET and others will be on hand to describe their experiences and answer questions.
Sponsored by: Career & Employment Services : 532-6506 : www.ksu.edu/ces
Guiding You from College to Career

TO THE POINT

K-State lost opportunity for baseball team

The Department of Intercollegiate Athletics dropped the ball when it came to bringing a semiprofessional baseball team to Manhattan.

Carl Reed, a local businessman and new owner of a semi-pro baseball franchise, was ready to meet the demands of a proposal from K-State to use the university's baseball stadium, Tointon Family Stadium, and the university balked.

There was a chance to bring an enjoyable pastime to Manhattan and K-State and provide jobs for students, all the while improving Tointon Family Stadium's facilities, and it will not happen because of some red tape.

The excuse that there was not enough time to review Reed's business plan is shoddy.

While underlying factors may be at work, such as the sale of alcohol, K-State stood to benefit financially from this deal.

To let it fall through because of perceived time constraints is simply an unwillingness to go above and beyond the norm.

Not only that, but K-State athletic officials did a disservice to the residents of Manhattan.

Instead of a night at the ballpark during the summer, Manhattan residents will have to take their families, and dollars, elsewhere.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell | COLLEGIAN

Growing up

Rushing childhood a bad idea

ALYSSA ALEXANDER

I was never one who appreciated things when I had them. I always wanted something else or something better.

Whatever it was that I had just wasn't what I wanted.

And once I had moved on to bigger and better things, only then did I realize that what I had wanted all along and what I still long for today is what I had in the first place.

But it's too late now because I've lost it for good. It's true what they say, "You never realize what you had until it's gone."

I'm talking about my childhood, the majority of my youth.

I always wanted to grow up too fast. I wanted to be where the older kids were and do what the older kids were doing.

And when adults would warn me, "Don't you go growing up too fast now," I would curse them in my mind because I never knew just how important that advice actually was.

Think back to the good old days when you had no responsibilities. You could play all day until nearly dark when your mom would scream your name across the neighborhood because it was time for dinner.

Remember when the approaching tune of the ice cream man could make our hearts leap and our biggest worries just disappear.

Remember when having five bucks made you feel as rich as a king and later you were on top of the world because you un-crumpled your money and realized you really had six.

Think back to when "having a drink" meant milk out of a cardboard carton and "getting high" meant swinging until you nearly flew off the swing set.

Remember when we had it all; our moms made dinner, did our laundry and cleaned our rooms.

I wasted all that away. I watched the older kids on my block smoke cigarettes and drink alcohol and by the time I was in sixth grade I was experimenting with both.

I started experiencing things that I wasn't ready to experience and I was forced to mature and deal with them, all the while slipping out of my childhood.

I started lying to my mom to hide my mistakes and get what I wanted. And when I got caught doing or having something I wasn't supposed to, I just blamed it on my older brother.

When I got into high school it seemed as if everyone who didn't waste their childhood had finally caught up in experience to those of us who had. Everything felt normal again but I still hadn't realized what all I had missed out on.

I hated my junior and senior years. All I wanted was to be out from under my parents' rules and in my own apartment where I could decide everything for myself. So I was miserable until I graduated and ecstatic when I finally moved to K-State.

So here I am, in college, with bills to pay, harder classes to attend, bigger worries to burden me and more on my plate than I had ever imagined. Now don't get me wrong, I'm enjoying college and all the responsibility that goes with it.

But what I wouldn't give to go back to the days of all play and no responsibility.

Unfortunately, it doesn't work like that. We can't just go back in time and get our childhoods back, we have to deal with the decisions we've made and keep right on living.

But I'll tell you what I'm not going to do: I'm not going to rush through college.

No, I'm finally going to sit back and enjoy my life instead of trying to speed it along.

And a word of advice for all of you readers: you should be enjoying college too, and don't you go growing up too fast now.

Alyssa Alexander is a freshman in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Awkward social situations need rules

JACI BOYDSTON

It's not in Barnes & Noble, Waldenbooks or Hastings. I couldn't find it on Amazon.com, either.

I've been looking my whole life for the "Complete Guide to All Social Interactions," but after years of searching, I've concluded that it has yet to be written.

In the interest of helping the socially awkward, I propose a standardized set of rules and regulations to govern behavior in those tiny, everyday human interactions.

I'd write one myself, but I'm too awkward.

If such a guide existed, the first chapter I'd flip to would be the one called, "Bumping into People."

For example, what do you do when you pass the girl you sat next to in macroeconomics?

On one hand, the two of you shared notes and made fun of the guy in the fifth row who fell asleep all the time, but on the other, you haven't talked to her since you took the final three years ago. Do you stop and chat? Smile and walk by? Refuse to acknowledge her existence? If there was a standard set of guidelines, everyone would know what to do.

Additionally, the guidebook would have a list of social no-nos, plainly identified by a cringing smiley face.

One big no-no would be the "how are you?" walk-by – when someone walking in the opposite direction says, "How are you," and by the time you've managed to say, "Good, how are–" they're gone, making you look like an idiot for talking to no one.

The only other option is to say, "fine," and leave it at that, but then you look rude.

It's a no-win situation, and that kind of nonsense would be strictly outlawed by the guide.

Another situation for which I'd like some guidance is when you pass the same person at the same place and time every day. My friend – who I pass every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11:24 a.m. – has decided to heed the wisdom of the great, 20th-century social scientist, Jerry Seinfeld.

In his masterpiece "SeinLanguage," Seinfeld argues that all we do by saying, "Hi" and "How are you?" is acknowledging the existence of others, so it's more efficient to cut the small talk and simply say, "Acknowledge" when passing an acquaintance.

In addition to governing on-campus interactions, this all-encompassing guide would tell us what to do in "fish out of water" situations, like running into your academic adviser at Target.

It's rude to ignore each other, but what is there to say? "So... thanks for lifting my enrollment flag," or "I see you're buying cough syrup – are your kids sick, or are you running a meth lab?" aren't very appealing options.

I desperately wish I had the guide last week, when I was caught by surprise by the mother of a childhood friend.

I didn't know her well and hadn't seen her in years, and instead of asking about her family like a normal person would have, I panicked and babbled stupidly about how white her teeth looked. With the guidebook, I wouldn't have made such an embarrassing faux pas.

For the truly awkward, the guide would come in multiple volumes, like, "Tactfully Escaping from Overly Affectionate Drunk Guys" or "How to Recover When People Overhear you Making Fun of Their Shoes."

Until such a guide is published, I refuse to take responsibility for any of my awkward actions.

So if you see me on campus, it might be best to keep walking, lest you be subjected to 15 minutes of awkward babbling about how we have the same backpack.

You have been warned.

Jaci Boydston is a senior in mass communications. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF
Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR
Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF
Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR
Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR
Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR
Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR
Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH
Brad Simmons AD MANAGER
Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Has anybody seen my belt or my phone, or my keys, or my socks, or my pride. Just so you know 10 shots of vodka and old high school friends probably don't mix on a Sunday night.

Everyone needs to vote for Kelli Lair in the Sideline Spirit competition at www.athlonsports.com/spirit. She's the Big 12 representative and the hottest one. Go Cats!

I liked us better as a basketball school anyway.

Uh... War of the Worlds was swank, not wank.

When I said guns cause murder just as much as porn does rapes, I meant that people are responsible for their actions. Not that gun owners are murdering rapists.

Lucas Maddy, you rock my socks off.

Does anyone else find it strange that my professor has bigger man-boobs than most girls I know?

According to the evangelist, the dormitories are the hotbeds of fornication, so I want to know why I'm not getting any action.

I wish we had 21 other Victor Manns, then we'd be a much better team.

I was glad to see Jesse Tetuan at church this Sunday, because Lord knows, our team needs some divine help.

You know it's not your night when you hit every single red light, literally, between Goodnow and Wal-Mart.

The large man in the small car has on overalls and a black shirt.

Do cows swim?

To the girl in my chem lab, you are swank.

There are people at K-State who don't know the Fourum's number by heart? I feel so sad for those people.

I'd read the Collegian more but I just can't bear to watch the wholesale exploitation of apostrophes.

Wikipedia is the best thing since Google.

Bill Snyder's first two years - no bowl games. The way the team is going - Bill Snyder's last two years - no bowl games. Full circle, get rid of him. He's done all he can do; get a new coach.

Hey K-State football, I'm in St. Louis and I can smell you all the way over here.

Today you suckers got served.

Do they actually use the K-State CIS truck or just enjoy randomly parking it on campus?

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Alternative workout

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

TOP: Robyn Myers, senior in English, does arm lifts in her apartment. Myers does works out at home when she can't make it to Peters Recreation Complex.
ABOVE: Myers does curls in her basement apartment Monday afternoon. Myers said she works out in her home three times a week.

At-home exercise helps students stay fit between activities

Myers, senior in English, works her triceps with an eight-pound dumbbell Monday afternoon.

By Holly Kramer
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

For college students who have classes, exams and jobs, finding the time to workout can sometimes be a hassle.

If students do not have the chance to go to Peters Recreation Complex as often as they'd like, there are some at-home exercise alternatives that can be considered.

Liz Neporent, author of "The Ultimate Body: 10 Perfect Workouts for Women," defined Pilates as a "highly sophisticated exercise form" that was developed nearly a century ago to help injured war veterans and dancers. Neporent said Pilates increase strength, flexibility and endurance. She also said it can be helpful in improving posture, coordination and balance.

Amber Long, assistant director of recreational services, said she has done Pilates for a few years and has noticed positive changes in her body.

"I'm more aware of my posture," Long said. "Now I take the time to stand up straight. Also, I've noticed in my day-to-day life and other exercises, everything's in alignment."

Long said Pilates is a good alternative to a regular gym workout, as Pilates works the core muscles of the body: abdominals, thighs and buttocks.

"It's supplemental for cardiovascular and strength training activities," Long said. "There's more of a mind-body focus than normal strength-based exercise."

Another at-home workout that students can do is from "The Firm Exercise Videos."

Lindsey Ross, senior in sociology, said she ordered the videos after seeing a commercial for it on television. Ross said she ordered it because she had gained weight her freshman year in college and wanted to do something about it.

The combined package comes with a workout step or weights and several exercise videos.

"I've been using it for four years and I like it because I can tone certain areas of my body, like my thighs or butt," Ross said. "The videos are really fast-paced, and you can decide to do weight training, aerobics or a combination of both."

Ross said she combines her "Firm" workouts with other forms of cardiovascular exercise and has lost about 25 pounds since she started.

She said exercise has to become a lifestyle for people who are serious about getting in shape.

"I feel like it's a part of my daily routine, like doing homework," Ross said. " I don't feel right without doing it and I like being in shape."

Ross said it's important to do a variety of exercises so students won't be stuck doing the same thing.

"My favorite tapes are the ones that include both toning and aerobics," Ross said. "With those, it seems to tone my muscles a lot and raise my heart rate. I usually do about an hour of cardio a day and then watch different tapes about three times a week."

Ross said she had to combine exercising with healthier eating to truly lose weight.

Some students stick to the basics like running and lifting weights to try to be more physically fit. Robyn Myers, senior in English, said she also thought she needed lose weight and get in shape after her first years in college.

"I was heavier and always felt tired," Myers said. "After complaining to my friends about how I wanted to lose weight, someone told me just to do it. I started running in the mornings and doing some free-weight exercises."

After changing her diet and eating everything in moderation, Myers said she lost 20 pounds in two years.

"I have more energy and feel so much better," Myers said. "I like to read Women's Health magazine to get new ideas for workouts and nutrition. They show you target workouts and have lots of helpful pictures and ideas."

College relationships a stepping stone to 'real-life' love

JOHN BECKER

This past week I was talking with two friends about relationships. Gabrielle James, junior in marketing, and Kara Thiele, sophomore in political science, had some interesting points which I thought were article-worthy.

After our long conversation, here's what we came up with: In a time when we are supposed to be figuring out who we are, college relationships are too serious.

The person you are dating should be your best friend. You should be able to talk to this person about anything. You can go to parties, have fun together and just hang out.

There shouldn't be any life or death drama. College relationships are a stepping stone between the drama of high school relationships and the serious relationships after college.

You should also be able to do things separate from each other. There is no reason you have to be together constantly, each of you need space. If one person isn't giving the other person space, it's called a stage five clinger, thank you Vince Vaughn. If that space doesn't exist, the relationship could quickly develop a "we" complex.

The "we" complex is really annoying. It's when the people are constantly together and start referring to themselves as "we" instead of the individual "I." For example, you're at a party and you hear this classic line, "We're tired." This translates to, "We're leaving the party to go put friction between the sheets."

I have a story from my freshman year that might help me explain this situation a bit better, and I'll even use a stage five clinger. This friend of mine – we'll call her Sugar – and her boyfriend – we'll call him Crazy – spent every waking moment together. It was driving Sugar nuts. Every time Sugar left "their" room, Crazy would practically send out the SWAT team looking for her. Crazy actually had to be around Sugar 24/7.

The point is, the "we" complex is not healthy. College is a time when you are supposed to be figuring out who you are and who you want to be, and you can't do that when you are around one person all of the time.

When dating someone, you can't become that person. Don't identify yourself by whom you are dating. Don't do things you don't want to. For example: ladies, if you don't understand or don't like a sport, you don't have to pretend to like it when the big game is on. Go hang out with your friends and do what you like to do.

Guys, you don't have to watch "The Notebook" 15 times because she wants to watch it again and again. Go do something you like. It is important that each person in the relationship has his or her own identity, and his or her own likes and dislikes.

Aerosmith said it best, "Never judge a book by its cover, or who you're going to love by your lover."

A person is an individual, and you should treat that person as such. Don't always assume the person you are with is going to screw you over like the last person.

College dating and relationships should be taken one step at a time. You should be friends first and then go from there.

John Becker is a junior in theater. You can e-mail him at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

NEW RELEASES

Music

The Mars Volta, "Scab Dates"
Kate Bush, "Aerial"
Greg Edmonson, "Firefly"
Kenny Chesney, "The Road and the Radio"
Neil Diamond, "12 Songs"
Rammstein, "Rosenrot"
Original Soundtrack, "Music From The OC Mix 5"
Steve Tyrell, "Songs of Sinatra"
Cyndi Lauper, "The Body Acoustic"
Floetry, "Flo' Ology"
Eurythmics, "The Ultimate Collection"
Madonna, "Hung Up"
Cyndi Lauper, "The Body Acoustic"
The Tragically Hip, "Hipeponymous"
The Highwaymen, "The Road Goes on Forever"
Original Soundtrack, "Get Rich or Die Tryin'"
Il Divo, "The Christmas Collection/Il Divo"
Helloween, "Keeper of the Seven Keys: The Legacy"

Source: Amazon.com

Movies in theaters Friday

"Derailed" rated R

A married ad exec (Clive Owen) meets a woman (Jennifer Aniston) on his morning subway commute, and before long, they're having a hot affair. But the fling turns into something more dangerous when a criminal confronts them and blackmails them.

Owen

"Pride and Prejudice" rated PG-13

This adaptation of the classic 19th-century novel by Jane Austen is the story of the initial misunderstandings and later mutual attraction between the heroine Elizabeth Bennet (Keira Knightley) and the haughty Mr. Darcy (Matthew MacFadyen).

"Zathura" rated PG

This follow-up to Jumanji follows Danny and Walter Budwing, two brothers who discover a strange box while playing at a park. Inside the box is a jungle-themed board game (in the original, the game's animals came to life) and a second board, which is marked with a path to a purple planet called Zathura.

Source: www.movies.go.com

DVD Releases

"Charlie and the Chocolate Factory"
"Remington Steele - Season Two"
"The Devil's Rejects"
"Beavis & Butthead, Vol. 1"
"Christmas in Connecticut"
"Mystery Science Theater 3000 Collection, Vol. 8"
"Christmas with the Kranks"
"Live 8"
"Space Above and Beyond - The Complete Series"
"The Who"
"Doctor Who - City of Death (Episode 105)"
"The Partridge Family - The Complete Second Season"
"Good To See You Again, Alice Cooper - Live 1973 - Billion Dollar Babies Tour"
"Lady Sings the Blues"
"DuckTales - Volume One"

"Doctor Who - The Claws of Axos (Episode 57)"
"The Backyardigans - The Snow Fort"
Warner Bros. Classic Holiday Collection (Boys Town / A Christmas Carol 1938 / Christmas in Connecticut)"

Source: Amazon.com
Art: courtesy photos

SPORTS

Eagles' Owens a disgrace to National Football League

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

I once saw a man run to midfield at Texas Stadium and spike a football on the Dallas Cowboys' star after scoring a touchdown twice in one game while playing for the San Francisco 49ers.

I have also witnessed the same man pull a Sharpie out of his sock and sign a football after scoring a touchdown.

And, in quite possibly his greatest accomplishment yet, he single-handedly took an organization from competing in Super Bowl XXXIX just 10 months ago, to the point where it is currently last in its division with a 4-4 record.

Philadelphia Eagles All-Pro wide receiver Terrell Owens is a disgrace to the National Football League.

When he played for the 49ers, he made it clear he hated his quarterback, Jeff Garcia, because he did not throw him the ball enough, and he felt Jerry Rice should retire.

Now with the Eagles, Owens has criticized quarterback Donovan McNabb's toughness on numerous occasions and is constantly creating tension between himself and people within the Eagles organization.

I once thought some of his antics were for publicity, but I now realize this is the kind of person he is: a loud-mouth punk who just wants more money.

Don't get it twisted: he is one of the most prolific receivers in the game today on the field.

But his off-the-field antics make him poison to any team he plays for and is the main reason why he should not be allowed to play in the NFL again.

The first step to making this dream a reality came last week in the form of a suspension by the Eagles before the Redskins game.

Owens was suspended indefinitely due to conduct detrimental to the team after he called out McNabb in an interview on ESPN and refused to apologize.

He claimed the Eagles would be undefeated this season if Green Bay Packers quarterback Brett Favre were their quarterback and not McNabb.

He also said Favre knows how to play through pain and knows how to play the quarterback position, which is his way of saying McNabb can't play quarterback.

This is ironic because last time I checked, McNabb has been playing hurt all season with an injury that will require surgery after the season.

On top of that, McNabb took the Eagles to the Super Bowl last season and has won the NFC East division four consecutive seasons, three times without Owens.

Eagles coach Andy Reid announced Monday that Owens will serve a four-game suspension and will not be allowed to return to the team after serving his suspension.

After the suspension, the Eagles can either put Owens on waivers or not let him play the rest of the season and trade him in the off-season.

If they choose to put Owens on waivers, the teams with the highest waiver priority will have the best chance of picking him up if they choose to do so.

The top two teams on waivers are the Houston Texans, who have only won one game this year, and the Packers.

How ironic would it be if Owens ended up playing with Favre after Owens' comments?

Whichever team he ends up playing for, Owens will be as much of a headache as he has been with the Eagles and 49ers.

The NFL needs to step up and get rid of Owens for good.

Banning him from the league forever would be the Tylenol for my headaches.

Cedrique Flemming is a junior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Sophomore finishes 3-2 in Thunderbird tourney

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State women's tennis coach Steve Bietau was pleased with the play he got out of sophomore Fernanda Da Valle over the weekend.

Da Valle notched a 3-2 record at the ASU Thunderbird Invitational Tournament, advancing to the final of the consolation bracket of the tournament before losing to Michigan's Lindsay Howard.

"Fernanda had a very good tournament," Bietau said. "Her experience at the regional tournament motivated her to make corrections to her play by working hard at practice."

Katerina Kudlackova was the only Wildcat to win in the first round of the main draw. The sophomore continued to impress later in the tournament with an upset of Michigan's Hala Sufi, the No. 3 seed at the tournament.

Bietau said K-State's consistency as a team was what he was most impressed with throughout the tournament.

"In general we played pretty solid tennis," Bietau said. "No big upsets or down losses."

Olga Klimova continued the rehab of a torn anterior cruciate ligament, posting a 2-2 record in singles play.

Bietau said the hustle Klimova showed was a pleasant surprise.

"She played all matches where she had to run a lot," Bietau said. "She's getting more fit. Her biggest difficulty is impatience on not being able to go at full speed."

Bietau said Maria Perevoschikova, who went 3-1 in singles competition, stumbled in doubles play where she and Kudlackova were 0-2 because of their inexperience.

"Perevoschikova struggled in doubles a bit," Bietau said. "The thing to remember is she is a freshman. The picture is becoming more clear to her, but we won't see how good she can be for a while."

Senior Jessica Simosa went 2-2 in singles play.

The Wildcats were without the aid of sophomore Tamar Kvaratskhelia, who did not compete due to non-injury related reasons. Bietau said he hopes Kvaratskhelia can turn things around for the spring season, which starts Jan. 20 at the Georgia Bulldog Invitational.

"Tamar has some issues to resolve," Bietau said. "Hopefully she'll be ready by January, but that's up to her right now."

A new challenge

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

K-State's Claire Coggins drives around Oklahoma State's Devry McDonald last season at Bramlage Coliseum. The Wildcats play their first home game of the season at 7 tonight against Emporia State.

K-State starting lineup still in limbo

By Anthony Mendoza
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Not sure who will be starting for the K-State women's basketball team this season?

Neither is coach Deb Patterson, even as the Wildcats open up the season tonight at Bramlage Coliseum with an exhibition game against Emporia State University.

"I really don't have a starting five set," Patterson said. "I think with this team this year, it's still an open question of how we want to approach our minute game in and game out. Unlike in the past when we've had a starting solid unit of five, and that maximized our opportunity for success. This year I suspect we might adjust lineups relative to the nature of the opponent."

The Wildcats lost a large chunk of their offensive firepower with the graduation of Kendra Wecker, Megan Mahoney and Laurie Koehn. The trio made up nearly 60 percent of K-State's scoring last season.

K-State returns two starters, Claire Coggins and Shana Wheeler. Both players did not start the year on the first string for the Wildcats, but finished the season as part of the normal starting five.

Gametime
K-State vs. Emporia State
When: 7 tonight
Where: Bramlage Coliseum
Cost: Free with student ID

Junior forward/guard Coggins is the team's leading returning scorer, averaging nearly 10 points per game last season after logging slightly less than 24 minutes per game. Wheeler led the team in blocked shots last season, setting a freshman school record with 37, but shot just 37 percent from the field.

Coggins said the team will come out with intensity against the Lady Hornets, and the game will also expose the problems the team has so they can be addressed during practice.

"A lot of intensity, trying to get team chemistry going for the beginning of the season," Coggins said. "It's a completely new team, so every game that we come out and play is going to be new and challenging to us. This is kind of the first test of where we are at and what we need to work on after that."

Emporia State is the No. 17 team in the nation in Division II and returns four players from last year's team that finished 27-6 and advanced to the program's eighth tournament appearance in the last nine years.

K-State has won 13 straight exhibition games and defeated the Lady Hornets last season, 85-45.

Sophomore forward Wheeler said the Wildcats are not going to look past Emporia State, but use the game as a test to see where the team is this season.

"We're not going to overlook this team," Wheeler said. "We're going to go into this game thinking it's a Big 12 game, and I think this game is going to help us find out how we are and work on our team chemistry and help us further on this season."

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | K-State announces 1:10 p.m. start for Missouri

K-State officials announced Monday that the Wildcats' 2005 regular season finale Nov. 19 against Missouri at KSU Stadium will start at 1:10 p.m.

The game will not be televised, marking the fifth straight week the Wildcats will not be televised as part of the Big 12's weekly package.

The contest will air live on radio over the K-State Sports Network with Wyatt Thompson calling the action and Stan Weber providing the analysis.

INT | Intramural swim meet set for Nov. 14 and 17

The entry deadline for the Intramural Swim Meet is Nov. 10.

The swim meet will be held Nov. 14 and Nov. 17 in the Natatorium. Warm-ups will begin at 7:30 p.m. Competition will begin at 8 p.m. each night and will continue until completion. Preliminaries for all divisions will be the night of Nov. 14 and, depending on the number of participants, some finals may also be that night.

Participants may enter the swim meet individually or as a team. Entries are not to exceed two participants per team in any event. Exceptions include four people in relays. No person may enter more than three events.

The entry fee is $1.08 per participant up to $21.51 (including tax) for a team.

For more information, visit www.recservices.ksu.edu.

The Associated Press

NFL | Boller to return as starter for Ravens

Boller

Kyle Boller will reclaim his job as the Baltimore Ravens' starting quarterback this Sunday, hopeful he can revive the team's lackluster offense after missing seven games with a toe injury.

Boller hasn't played since hyperextending his right big toe in the season opener against Indianapolis. He was replaced by Anthony Wright, who produced only two wins and will serve as the backup against Jacksonville.

Boller struggled at times during his first two seasons in the league, but this year was supposed to be different. Baltimore promoted Jim Fassel to offensive coordinator, hired Rick Neuheisel as quarterbacks coach and added wide receivers Derrick Mason and Mark Clayton in an effort to improve the passing game.

NFL | Eagles say Owens won't return this season

Owens

PHILADELPHIA — Terrell Owens can take his touchdowns and dance somewhere else.

The tempestuous star receiver won't return to the Philadelphia Eagles this season — or probably ever — because of "a large number of situations that accumulated over a long period of time," coach Andy Reid said Monday.

Owens was suspended for Sunday night's 17-10 loss at Washington, and will remain suspended for three more games without pay. After that, the Eagles plan to deactivate him for the rest of the season.

MLB | Pete Rose Jr. pleads guilty to distributing drugs

Rose Jr.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Pete Rose Jr., the son of baseball's all-time hits leader, pleaded guilty Monday to charges that he distributed GBL, a drug sometimes sold as a steroid alternative, to his minor league teammates.

The 35-year-old Rose appeared before a federal judge and said nothing but "yes, sir" when asked if he understood the charges and his plea.

Rose could be sentenced to 21 to 24 months in federal prison and fined up to $1 million under terms of his deal with prosecutors, Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul O'Brien said. Rose is free on his own recognizance until the Feb. 20 sentencing hearing.

"This is a tragedy," Rose's attorney, Jeffrey Brodey said.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

A LARGE one-bedroom. Available January 1. Close to campus. Washer/ dryer. 1704 Fairview. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370- $490, three-bedrooms $700- $825. (785)537-7701.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

120 For Rent- Houses

A TWO-BEDROOM house. Edge of town. Pets ok. $500, available now. (785)317-7713.

FOUR-BEDROOM, TWO bath, two blocks from campus. Washer/ dryer hookups. Deck with grill. Quiet neighborhood, nice yard, nice house. $1400/ month. Available immediately. Call (620)792-1933 or malonerental@yahoo.com

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

145 Roommate Wanted

Roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATES: MALE or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

150 Sublease

SUBLEASER NEEDED for spring semester. One-bedroom, one bathroom apartment, near campus. $450/ month plus electric. Call Caroline (785)564-1284.

SUBLEASER WANTED for spacious one-bedroom apartment with washer and dryer. Available mid-December. $375/ month. Call Jenny at (913)706-7361.

SUBLEASER WANTED. Spring semester. Four-bedroom apartment, two blocks from campus. $250/ month plus utilities. Contact Kelly (952)200-6842.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

'BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

310 Help Wanted

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

LUNCHROOM/ PLAYGROUND Supervisors-Hall Monitors: needed for the 2005- 2006 school year. $6.50 per hour, one and one-half- two hours per day, 11:00 a.m.- 1:00 p.m. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (785)587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

NOW HIRING wait staff. Apply in person 2- 5pm. Tuesday- Friday. 1130 Moro.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

ROYAL PURPLE YEARBOOK staff is looking for a marketing assistant to help design promotional material, assist with yearbook sales and participate in marketing activities. Work on salary to help promote K-State's award-winning yearbook. Ten hours/ week. Start immediately. Call Lindsay Porter at (785)532-6557 for more information.

WRITE FOR $. K-State Media Relations has spring and summer part-time opening for a student news writer who can produce articles quickly and accurately. Flexible schedule. Must be able to work 12- 15 hours/ week. Pay starts at $7.50/ hour. High school and college journalism experience required. Must know AP style and QuarkXPress. Must be available to work over the summer. Pick up an application in 9 Anderson Hall. Paid for by K-State.

310 Help Wanted

TECHNOLOGY TRAINER for the North Central Kansas Libraries System. Part-time position, average 20 hours a week, requires flexible scheduling to meet the needs of system members. Develops and delivers instruction to NCKLS member libraries. Three years of education and/ or experience working with computer hardware and software and conducting training or workshops in computer applications. Experience working in a library, teaching adults or older students, familiarity with variety of computer systems, and experience working with rural populations is desirable. The job involves considerable travel and driving within the 12 county NCKLS region. Apply before November 30th. Send a cover letter and resume to Linda Knupp, North Central Kansas Libraries System, 629 Poyntz Ave, Manhattan KS, 66502, or lknupp@manhattan.lib.ks.u Mail to: lknupp@manhattan.lib.ks.us

330 Business Opportunities

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

THREE MEAT goats for sale. (785)396-4366.

410 Items for Sale

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six+ plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

STUDENT NEEDING ride home occasionally to Parsons, KS on weekends. Will share expenses. (620)421-3069.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

JANUARY 1. One-bedrooms. $335, no pets. (785)587-0399.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

120 For Rent- Houses

MUST SEE three-bedroom, one bathroom. Living room, kitchen, dinette, computer room, laundry facility in attached garage, nice patio. (765)463-5014, (765)714-5710.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE-BEDROOM, ONE bath, house across from campus. Modern appliances, central air, very clean. Available immediately. $350 per bedroom plus utilities. 1735 Anderson. Call KSU Foundation at (785)532-7569 or (785)532-7541.

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $825/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

2000 SCHULT 16x80. Three-bedroom , two bath, large deck, fenced lot located in Riverchase. Call (785)564-0904 or (785)565-8292.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Three-bedroom house. $290 plus utilities. Available immediately. (913)980-7859.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: No smoking. Two-bedroom apartment. Close to campus. Off-street parking. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. (620)481-9837.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: three-bedroom house for spring semester. Rent $320 plus utilities. Very nice house. (316)990-2046.

ONE BEDROOM available in two-bedroom apartment. Quiet non-smoker, pets okay. Call Nicole at (913)220-5854.

ROOMMATE NEEDED, January 1, for two-bedroom house three blocks from Aggieville. Walk to campus. Rent $300. Call (913)219-7801 or (913)638-2323.

ROOMMATE WANTED, $350, one-half utilities, Scott (785)341-5153.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Walking distance to campus. Large room. $300 plus one-third utilities. Available immediately. Please call (785)640-3288.

ONE-BED, ONE bath. $385, cable included. Pay for gas and electric. Call (620)694-7766.

150 Sublease

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $395/ month. Washer/ dryer. Sublease December. (785)317-1162 or (785)317-2319.

ONE-BEDROOM. $395, cable/ water paid. Laundry/ pool/ hot tub on site. Small pets. Quiet. Available now. (785)375-3015.

ROOM AVAILABLE from January 1st. Washer/ dryer. Near campus. $265/ month. (620)560-3037.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms, University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

SUBLEASER NEEDED for January 1. Spacious one-bedroom, close to campus/ Aggieville. (785)564-7134.

Graphic Design Internship

Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

Advertising Design

Practicum/Newspaper MC 484

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2006. Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary. Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for an application. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Cottonwood Racquet Club

is currently hiring for group instructors in the following areas:

- Yoga/Pilates
- Boxing / Kick Boxing
- Group Fitness
- Youth Tumbling
- Personal Trainers

Send resume to :
CRC
3615 Claflin Rd.
Manhattan, KS 66503
Attn: Christian

Cottonwood Racquet Club
785-776-6060

QUIZNOS SUB

HMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

	6	4			7	2
9			2	4		5		1
2				3		8	6
7		5		8
	1		6		5		4
				9		3		2
	5	8		6				7
4		7		5	8			9
		2	3			1	8

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

Bring in puzzle and receive FREE chips and small drink.

ADVERTISE

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

118 KEDZIE • 532-6560

in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

CLASSIFIED PAGE

GRANTS | Center wants support from students, university, community

Continued from Page 1

Ring said the center will not be able to accommodate many infants, but it will help students who are parents.

"There is not enough infant and toddler care in the community," she said. "I know for a fact that people can not go to school because they can not find child care for their infants."

Student Body President Michael Burns said he thinks the availability of infant care will be good for the campus.

"We are providing another resource for our nontraditional students, which is always a good thing," he said.

Ring said she hopes to accommodate more infants soon with a new building for the K-State Child Development Center.

She said the research for a new building is still in progress and the university is waiting on a feasibility and marketing study. Findings from the study will be presented in late January.

"At that point, we should know exactly how big the university and the community needs our new center to be and how many children in each age group that we will have in the building," Ring said.

"When we know the size of the building, we will finalize the location."

In the meantime, Ring said the center needs support from students and the university.

"Currently 70 to 75 percent of our parents are students," Ring said.

"We are firm in our plans to continue to provide child care to the client base that we now serve. We hope that the students and the university will help in this endeavor when possible."

Burns said child care is an issue Student Governing Association talks about.

"We are trying to help in whatever way would be appropriate on behalf of the student body," he said.

"Overall, it's an issue that we are going to figure out a way to get it solved."

Ring said a new building would help serve the need for more child care in Manhattan.

"We hope our new building will allow us to have adequate space for all ages and let us meet the ever-growing need for child care in our community," Ring said.

KLABUNDE | Professor hopes to manufacture chemical for military use product as much as he could on his own and at other laboratories. It was then successfully tested against real chemical agents, including mustard gas and nerve agents, at the U.S. Army's Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland.

Continued from Page 1

It is sold from NanoScale Materials, Inc. and is made at its facility at 1310 Research Park Drive. Klabunde was the company's founding director when it started in 1995 and remains a consultant.

Klabunde said K-State's laboratories are equipped with FAST-ACT, and several other universities are purchasing it for their laboratories.

Klabunde said the NanoScale Materials facility is capable of producing hundreds of kilograms per day of FAST-ACT. However, a larger factory would be needed to provide enough for the military, which he said will be buying it in a few years.

The powder, which feels slightly abrasive and slimy in the hand, can be purchased plain or in a pressurized cylinder, similar to a fire extinguisher. A bottle with 500 grams costs $95 and a pressurized cylinder with one kilogram costs $295.

Klabunde continues to teach at K-State after 35 combined years of teaching at several universities. He said he plans to continue teaching while trying to make FAST-ACT work on even more chemicals.

"I love teaching students and interacting with new faces every year," he said.

We've got the stories you've got to read.
The Royal Purple yearbook is available in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555.

Once in a Lifetime — engagements and weddings
Everyone's doing it.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

Manhattan Shoe Repair
Double Bottom Fleece Slippers
List Price $39.99
Now $29.99
Womens House Shoes
Tan Suede/Pink Suede
List Price $29.99
Now $22.49
216 S. 4th St. • VFW Plaza Plaza • 776-1193

Campus Phone Books
On sale in Kedzie 103
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

KARAOKE NIGHT
1/2 PRICE RVERYTHING
In concert Nov. 10
Trevor Burgess & Pete Gile
LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville Manhattan
1115 Moro • 785-776-8770

Service • Auto • Car • Eye Care • Clothing • Oil Change
SERVICE DIRECTORY
• Beauty • Refill • Planning • Heating • Plumbing

Oil CHANGE
Appointment Necessary
No Drop-Ins, Please
We Service All Makes of Cars
American & Foreign Cars
• Engine Overhaul • Motor Tune-ups • Complete Brake • Electrical & Automatic Transmission Service • Manual Transmissions & Clutch Repair • Sun Computer Print Out • Diagnostic Center • Air Conditioning Service
$14.95
When you bring in this ad
Ekart Automotive Services
776-5110 411 S. 5th St. • 1 Blk. North of Ft. Riley Blvd.

GLASS IMPRESSIONS
PUBLIC HOURS:
Tue-Fri 11-6 • Sat 10-5
Unusual & Well Designed
HANDMADE GLASS
NEW GLASS STUDIOS
• Dakota Ward (Colorado) Venetian Style Ornaments
• Hammerlane Glass (Kansas) Wall Vases & Paperweights
PLUS
• More Very Unusual Clocks & New Bulova Frank Lloyd Wright Designs
• Cool Jewels Crystal & Sterling Jewelry
GLASS IMPRESSIONS
329 Poyntz Ave • Downtown Manhattan • 785-539-4610

ICDD
Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy
LECTURE SERIES IN CIVIC DISCOURSE
"Reclaiming Our Political Voice: The Need for an Institute of Civic Discourse and Democracy"
DR. DAVID E. PROCTER
Head, Speech Communication, Theatre and Dance
Director, Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy
November 9, 2005
3:00 P.M.
Hemisphere Room
Hale Library

Are you a Jedi Master?
Can you control people with your mind?
Do you like bending them to your will?
Ever consider a career in advertising?
the Kansas State Collegian is now accepting applications for spring '06
• Collegian Advertising Manager
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives
Applications for Ad Manager are due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Staff applications due Nov. 16.
We're looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and job description in Kedzie 103.
Kansas State Collegian

ESTABLISHED IN CHARLESTON, IL IN 1983 TO ADD TO STUDENTS GPA AND GENERAL DATING ABILITY.
JIMMY JOHN'S
Since JJ 1983
WORLD'S GREATEST GOURMET SANDWICHES
OK, SO MY SUBS REALLY AREN'T GOURMET AND WE'RE NOT FRENCH EITHER. MY SUBS JUST TASTE A LITTLE BETTER, THAT'S ALL! I WANTED TO CALL IT JIMMY JOHN'S TASTY SANDWICHES, BUT MY MOM TOLD ME TO STICK WITH GOURMET. SHE THINKS WHATEVER I DO IS GOURMET, BUT I DON'T THINK EITHER OF US KNOWS WHAT IT MEANS. SO LET'S STICK WITH TASTY!
Jimmy John
$3.99 8" SUB SANDWICHES
All of my tasty sub sandwiches are a full 8 inches of homemade French bread, fresh veggies and the finest meats & cheese I can buy! And if it matters to you, we slice everything fresh everyday in this store, right here where you can see it. (No mystery meat here!)
#1 PEPE®
Real applewood smoked ham and provolone cheese garnished with lettuce, tomato, and mayo. (Awesome!)
#2 BIG JOHN®
Medium rare shaved roast beef, topped with yummy mayo, lettuce, and tomato. (Can't beat this one!)
#3 SORRY CHARLIE
California baby tuna, mixed with celery, onions, and our tasty sauce, then topped with alfalfa sprouts, cucumber, lettuce, and tomato. (My tuna rocks!)
#4 TURKEY TOM®
Fresh sliced turkey breast, topped with lettuce, tomato, alfalfa sprouts, and mayo. (The original)
#5 VITO™
The original Italian sub with genoa salami, provolone, capicola, onion, lettuce, tomato, & a real tasty Italian vinaigrette. (Order it with hot peppers, trust me!)
#6 VEGETARIAN
Several layers of provolone cheese separated by real avocado spread, alfalfa sprouts, sliced cucumber, lettuce, tomato, and mayo. (Truly a gourmet sub not for vegetarians only . . . . . peace dude!)
J.J.B.L.T.™
Bacon, lettuce, tomato, & mayo.
(The only better BLT is mama's BLT, this one rules!)
★ SIDE ITEMS ★
★ Soda Pop . . . . . $1.29/$1.49
★ Giant chocolate chip or oatmeal raisin cookie . . . $1.50
★ Real potato chips or jumbo kosher dill pickle $0.90
★ Extra load of meat $1.25
★ Extra cheese or extra avocado spread $0.75
★ Hot Peppers $0.25
FREEBIES (SUBS & CLUBS ONLY)
Onion, lettuce, alfalfa sprouts, tomato, mayo, sliced cucumber, Dijon mustard, oil & vinegar, and oregano.
$2.99 PLAIN SLIMS™
Any Sub minus the veggies and sauce
SLIM 1 Ham & cheese
SLIM 2 Roast Beef
SLIM 3 Tuna salad
SLIM 4 Turkey breast
SLIM 5 Salami, capicola, cheese
SLIM 6 Double provolone
Low Carb Lettuce Wrap
JJ UNWICH™
Same ingredients and price of the sub or club without the bread.
YOUR CATERING SOLUTION!!!
BOX LUNCHES. PLATTERS. PARTIES!
DELIVERY ORDERS will include a delivery charge of 49¢ per item (+/- 10¢).
• • • • JIMMYJOHNS.COM • • • •
$6.99 THE J.J. GARGANTUAN™
This sandwich was invented by Jimmy John's brother Huey. It's huge enough to feed the hungriest of all humans! Tons of genoa salami, sliced smoked ham, capicola, roast beef, turkey & provolone, jammed into one of our homemade French buns then smothered with onions, mayo, lettuce, tomato, & our homemade Italian dressing.
$4.99 GIANT CLUB SANDWICHES
My club sandwiches have twice the meat and cheese, try it on my fresh baked thick sliced 7 grain bread or my famous homemade french bread!
#7 GOURMET SMOKED HAM CLUB
A full 1/4 pound of real applewood smoked ham, provolone cheese, lettuce, tomato, & real mayo! (A real stack)
#8 BILLY CLUB®
Roast beef, ham, provolone, Dijon mustard, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. (Here's to my old pal Billy who invented this great combo.)
#9 ITALIAN NIGHT CLUB®
Real genoa salami, Italian capicola, smoked ham, and provolone cheese all topped with lettuce, tomato, onion, mayo, and our homemade Italian vinaigrette.
(You hav'ta order hot peppers, just ask!)
#10 HUNTER'S CLUB®
A full 1/4 pound of fresh sliced medium rare roast beef, provolone, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. (It rocks!!!)
#11 COUNTRY CLUB®
Fresh sliced turkey breast, applewood smoked ham, provolone, and tons of lettuce, tomato, and mayo!
(A very traditional, yet always exceptional classic!)
#12 BEACH CLUB®
Fresh baked turkey breast, provolone cheese, avocado spread, sliced cucumber, sprouts, lettuce, tomato, and mayo! (It's the real deal folks, and it ain't even California.)
#13 GOURMET VEGGIE CLUB®
Double provolone, real avocado spread, sliced cucumber, alfalfa sprouts, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. (Try it on my 7-grain whole wheat bread. This veggie sandwich is world class!)
#14 BOOTLEGGER CLUB®
Roast beef, turkey breast, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. An American classic, certainly not invented by J.J. but definitely tweaked and fine-tuned to perfection!
#15 CLUB TUNA®
The same as our #3 Sorry Charlie except this one has a lot more. Homemade tuna salad, provolone, sprouts, cucumber, lettuce, & tomato. (I guarantee it's awesome!)
#16 CLUB LULU™
Fresh sliced turkey breast, bacon, lettuce, tomato, & mayo. (JJ's original turkey & bacon club)
WE DELIVER! 7 DAYS A WEEK
MANHATTAN 1212 MORO ST. 785.539.7454
"YOUR MOM WANTS YOU TO EAT AT JIMMY JOHN'S!"
©2005 JIMMY JOHN'S FRANCHISE INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. We Reserve The Right To Make Any Menu Changes

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

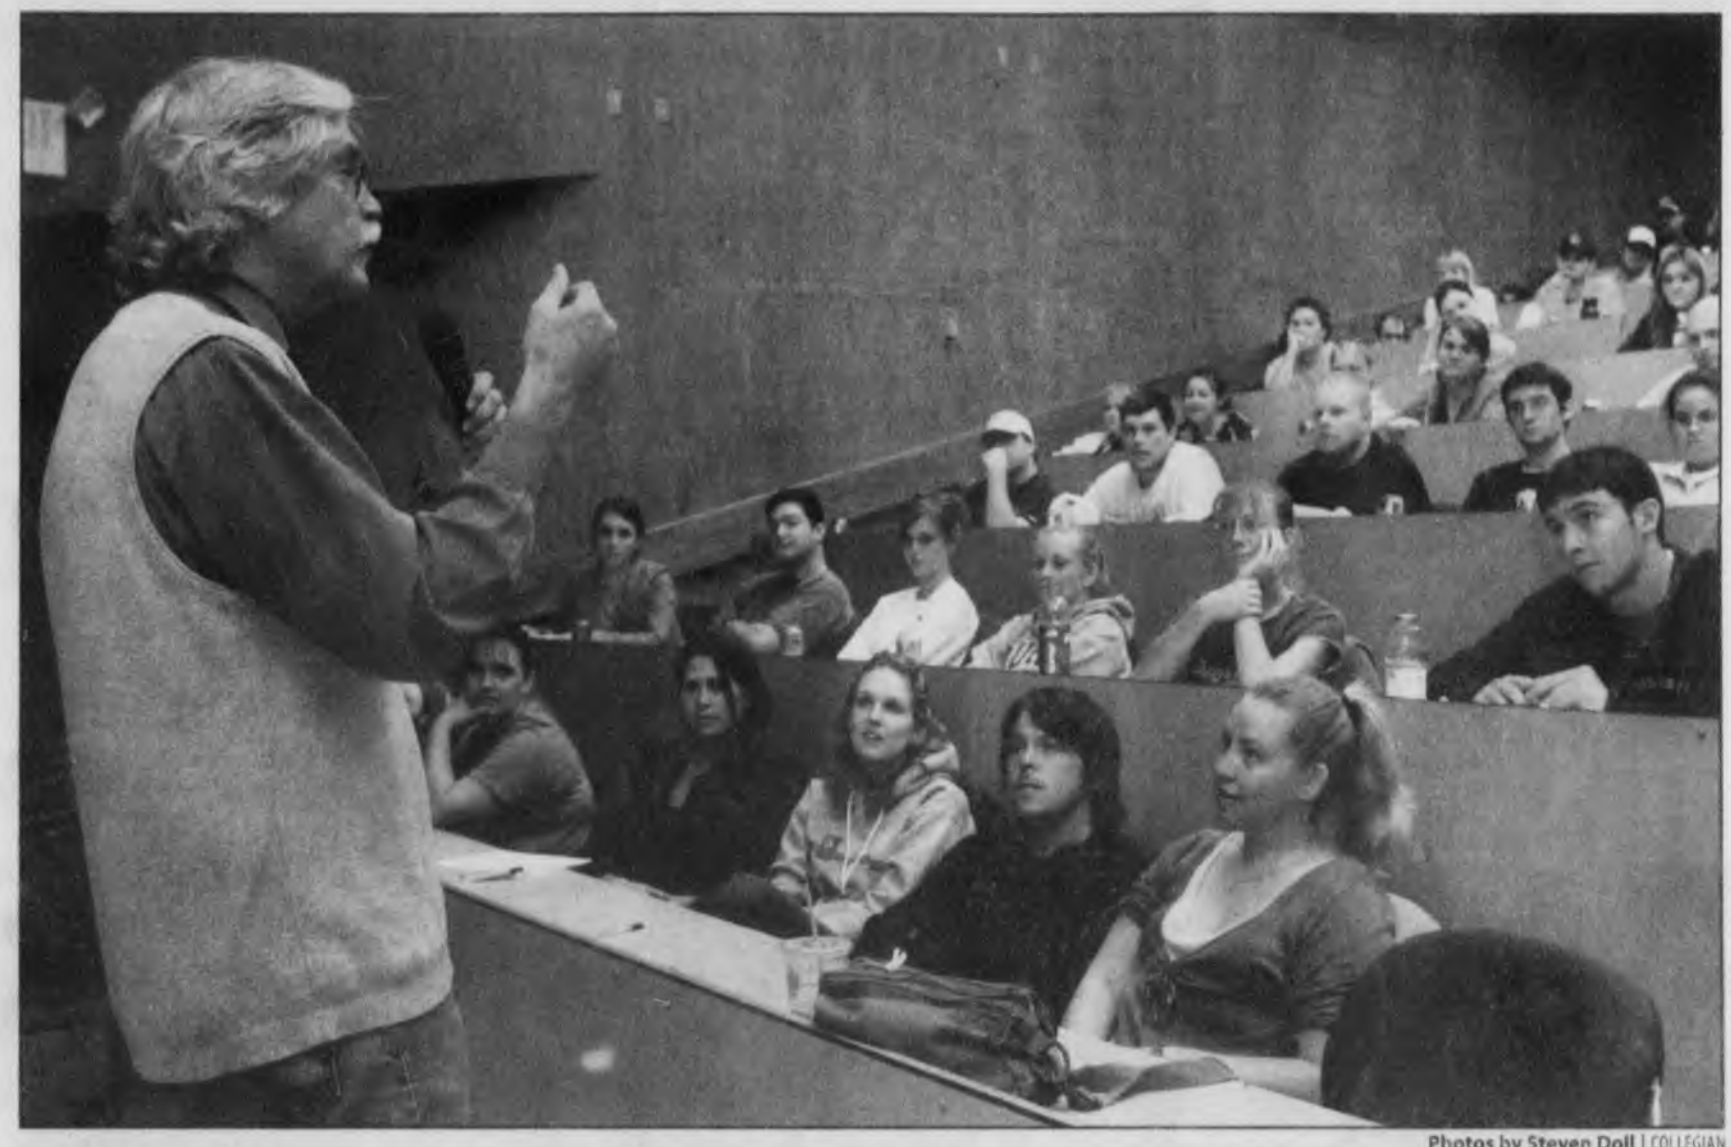
www.kstatecollegian.com

Wednesday, November 9, 2005

INSIDE

Movie features old-style detective story

Sub. Exp. Date: --/--
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
PO Box 3585
Topeka KS 66601



3

Vol. 110, No. 58

Animal humor

'Emergency Vet' expresses concerns of illegal exotic animals through jokes

Photos by Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Attendees listen to a comical lecture by Dr. Kevin Fitzgerald, a veterinarian for Animal Planet's show "Emergency Vets," at Mosier Hall's Frick Auditorium on Tuesday night. Fitzgerald told jokes and cited information about veterinary medicine.

Reacting to a joke, Matt Jagger, Charlottesville, Va., resident, laughs with his fiancee, Courtney Brown, fourth-year vet-med student, during Fitzgerald's lecture.

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Unexpected laughter filled Frick Auditorium in Mosier Hall Tuesday as Dr. Kevin T. Fitzgerald, a veterinarian from Animal Planet's show "Emergency Vets," gave a lecture.

Fitzgerald opened with a joke about a woman with a poisoned dog who came to see him.

"He needs an anecdote," Fitzgerald said, quoting the woman, who meant to say "antibiotic."

A native of Denver, Fitzgerald graduated from the University of Colorado in Boulder with his master's and doctorate degrees in endocrinology. Before attending veterinary school, he spent time as a bouncer and toured with The Rolling Stones, George Clinton and Willie Nelson.

Fitzgerald received his doctorate from Colorado State University in 1983.

In addition to being a veterinarian, Fitzgerald is also a comedian, and in 1991 was an opening act for comedian George Burns.

Among his telling jokes, Fitzgerald expressed concern about illegal exotic animals in the United States.

"The one thing in this country veterinarians of your generation need to be aware of are the number of illegal exotics in this country," Fitzgerald said.

He told a story of performing surgery on an illegally obtained ocelot, an act for which he received three felony charges. An ocelot is a nocturnal wildcat found in the southwest United States and Central and South America.

Fitzgerald said the judge for the case told him he did a "nice thing, but you were supposed to seize and

See FITZGERALD Page 12

Kansas schools can criticize evolution

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

On Tuesday, the State of Kansas Board of Education voted on science standards that would allow public schools to educationally criticize the theory of evolution.

The 6-4 vote gave a victory to "intelligent design" advocates, who initially drafted the board-approved standards. According to the Intelligent Design Network, the theory of intelligent design argues that the universe was created by a higher power as opposed to an undirected process such as natural selection.

The six board members who voted in favor of the standards were Republicans. Two Democrats and two Republicans who voted in opposition.

"This is a great day for education," said Board of Education chairman Steve Abrams, who has said the evolution theory conflicts with the Bible's version of creation of life on Earth. "This is one of the best things that we can do," he said.

The new standards challenge several evolution theories, including members' statements saying there is a lack of evidence for the genetic code, that fossils are inconsistent with evolutionary theory and that the theory is only based on circumstantial evidence.

Yet, some critics, including K-State physics professor Bharat Ratra, argue the board's vote is a violation of church and state, harming educational values in Kansas classrooms.

"Religion is all that has to do

See EVOLUTION Page 12

Alito's vote could change privacy issue

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The recent nomination of Samuel A. Alito to the Supreme Court of the United States has people talking about the fate of Roe v. Wade.

President Bush nominated Alito to the position of Associate Justice on Oct. 31, following Harriet Miers's withdrawal as a nominee for the Supreme Court. If appointed, Alito would replace Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who announced her resignation July 1.

Alito

Senate Judiciary Committee members will begin confirmation hearings for Alito Jan. 9, and a vote by the full Senate is tentatively scheduled for Jan. 20.

Alito has served as judge on the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals since 1990 and has ruled in favor of states' rights and the First Amendment.

However, Justice O'Connor has voted in favor of privacy rights, and Alito's vote in the Supreme Court would change the status quo on privacy issues, Joe Aistrup, political

See ALITO Page 12

Hale Library's 'Great Room' to become a permanent quiet zone after finals

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students who enjoy a quiet place to study only have to wait a few more weeks until quiet zones return to Hale Library.

And once they come back, some of them will be here to stay.

After finals week, Hale's Great Room, will be designated as a permanent quiet zone.

"We are doing this because the students have asked for it, and we want to be as helpful as possible," said Laurel Littrell, head of General Information Services.

The Great Room was chosen because it is naturally quiet, Sara Kearns, instruction coordinator for Hale, said.

"There are no service desks there, so no talking between students and librarians, and there are no books or collections there," she said.

Along with the Great Room, Kearns said that most parts of the fourth floor and the older parts of the library are good places to study.

"The old part of the library tends to be one of the best places for students who want quiet," she said. "Rooms like number 117, 212 and 304."

Hale has had quiet zones during the dead weeks and finals weeks of the past two semesters. They offer a place for students to study during one of the hardest parts of the year, Kearns said.

"It all started because we have a comment box at our reception desk, and in the fall of 2004 we had several people complaining about the noise level in the library," she said. "We discovered that there are a lot of people who want quiet zones."

This semester, every part of Hale will be a quiet zone during dead week except the second floor and the 24-hour study area, Kearns said.

See LIBRARY Page 12

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Zach Brown, junior in biology, studies for a genetics quiz Tuesday afternoon in the Great Room on the third floor in Hale Library. The room will be a permanent quiet zone after finals.

Today

High 62
Low 31

Thursday

High 63
Low 40

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Assistant principal shot

A student shot and killed assistant principal Ken Bruce at a high school in Jacksboro, Tenn., Tuesday. He also wounded two other administrators before he was arrested. The motive for the shooting at Campbell County High School was not immediately known, Sheriff Ron McClellan told WVLT-TV.

Father sentenced

Hector De Paz, 57, was sentenced to four years in prison after his son kidnapped an underage girl whose mother disapproved of the youth's relationship. While he didn't directly assist with the kidnapping in Kansas City, Kan., he is accused of suggesting his son, Erick De Paz, flee to Guatamala with the girl.

Saddam lawyer killed

A second lawyer in the Saddam Hussein trial, Adel al-Zubeidi, was killed Tuesday by three masked gunmen. They sprayed his car with bullets in western Baghdad. This is casting doubts on Iraq's ability to try the case and leading a prominent prosecutor to urge moving the proceedings to another Arab country.

DON'T FORGET

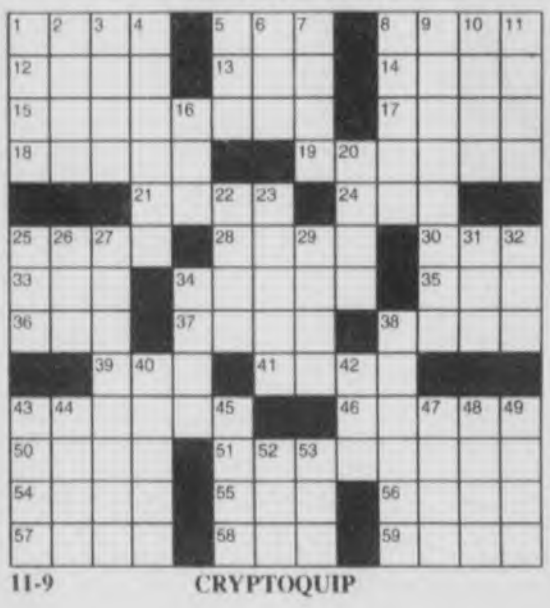
Students with 27 or more credit hours are eligible to enroll today.

An overseas teaching workshop will be at 7 tonight in Union 212.

Sticks and Strings will play at 7:30 tonight in All Faiths Chapel as a part of the Student Recital Series.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 What the rat in Jack's house ate
5 Omega preceder
8 Not up yet
12 Screenwriter James
13 Took off
14 Challenge
15 St. Patrick's Day symbol
17 Sigmund Freud's daughter
18 Pleased
19 Added alcohol
21 Lascivious
24 Bobby of hockey
25 Estate measure
28 Exam format
30 Of long standing
33 Moo — gai pan
34 Bunch of nonsense
35 DiCaprio, to fans
36 Pussycat's partner
37 Take the wheel
38 Metal refuse
39 Grant's foe
41 Plumbing problem
43 Sam — belt
46 Pictorial poser
50 Jeansmaker Strauss
51 Saturday Evening Post cover artist
54 Arabian gulf
55 "— Town"
56 Sicilian spouter
57 McEnroe competitor
58 Pigpen
59 Harvest

DOWN
1 Sitcom set in Asia
2 Eastern potentate
3 Observe 2/29?
4 Mormon church
5 For
6 Pouch
7 Cartoonist's supply
8 Legendary firefighter Red
9 Wad
10 Sea flyer
11 Out of play
16 End of a Salinger title
20 Mexican War president
22 Sported
23 Whimsical
25 Past
26 Intimidate
27 Reinvest
29 Pinnacle
31 Meadow
32 Follow relentlessly
34 "Big Brother" host Julie
38 Spit in the food
40 "Dallas" surname
42 Actress Joan Van —
43 Spill the beans
44 Start over
45 Piccadilly statue
47 — noire (bugaboo)
48 Radius's neighbor
49 Rebuff a masher
52 Chic no more
53 Turn on the waterworks

Solution time: 21 mins.

A	G	E	D	■	B	U	S	■	S	T	O	P
R	O	L	E	■	E	S	T	■	P	O	G	O
C	O	M	E	O	V	E	R	■	R	A	R	E
■	■	■	P	A	Y	■	I	B	I	D	E	M
D	E	R	E	K	■	S	P	O	T	■	■	■
R	U	I	N	■	G	O	P	O	S	T	A	L
U	R	N	■	S	E	W	E	R	■	A	C	E
G	O	G	E	T	T	E	R	■	D	I	R	E
■	■	■	M	O	L	D	■	B	A	L	E	S
B	U	R	E	A	U	■	X	Y	Z	■	■	■
A	P	E	R	■	C	O	M	E	I	N	T	O
B	O	N	G	■	K	E	A	■	N	O	E	L
A	N	T	E	■	Y	R	S	■	G	R	A	D

Yesterday's answer 11-9

11-9 CRYPTOQUIP

HB PGN XGUD MV M XHZEGX XMVQFU, H YNFVV PGN'E BHZE PGNUVFOB GZ LQF GNLVHEF OGGDHZY HZ.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: LATELY, THE FARMER IS WORRYING A LOT MORE OFTEN. HE HAS MANY GROWING CONCERNS.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: N equals U

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from the nation's universities

Illinois students 'kill' using stealth, strategy

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. – Since the beginning of the spring 2005 semester, there have been 69 recorded "assassinations" on the University of Illinois campus.

These killings were perpetrated with such weapons as waterguns and spoons. Who is behind this string of farcical murders, you ask? The answer is the Campus Assassins' Guild.

Assassins is a live action role-playing game that allows members to pit their stealth and cunning against one another. The registered student organization was founded in fall 2005 by sophomores in engineering Ryan Mulligan, David Grayson and Kevin Chang.

Mulligan, Grayson and Chang, who started the club with the help of the Honors Student Council, had originally intended to organize a one-time assassins game. However, with the success of the first game, the trio said they felt the concept could be extended to a full-fledged club. The Campus Assassins' Guild charges dues of $2 per year and organizes a number of assassins games throughout campus.

Playing the part of an assassin is simple in theory. Each player is assigned a target and must track and exterminate their victim by either touching them on the torso with a spoon or squirting them in the midsection with a water pistol. It becomes more complicated because each player is simultaneously hunter and prey. At the same time an assassin is searching for a target, another killer has been assigned to do away with the first assassin. The game becomes a race to eliminate the target before you yourself are found and "assassinated."

Students in the club have been known to go to great lengths to avoid being located by their pursuers. Greg Schechter, freshman in engineering, said he uses specific techniques to make himself less vulnerable to attack.

"Before each game I prepare myself by taking my name and schedule off my door, altering my Facebook account so no one can find me in a search, and changing my Facebook picture," Schechter said.

This seems to be a common tactic employed by the stealthy assassins to avoid recognition. Some assassins go so far as to change their information in the campus directory.

Additionally, some club members exercise a more offensive approach to the game. They use any means necessary to lure their unsuspecting targets into cleverly laid traps. Anna Dombrowski, a junior and last year's top-ranked assassin in kills, recounted one of her sneakiest maneuvers.

"My target happened to be an acquaintance of mine," Dombrowski said. "I invited him to lunch. When he showed up late, I killed him with my spoon."

SOUTH FLORIDA STUDENTS BRING BEER PONG TO THE MASSES

TAMPA, Fla. – There's nothing more frustrating than driving around town trying to find all of the items needed for beer pong: the pingpong balls, the cups, the beer or other beverage of choice. It can be exhausting. Well, fret no more – one University of South Florida student has found the answer.

Graduate student Daniel Miller has made and patented the Beer Pong Kit, complete with a Beer Pong Association of America (BPAOA) towel, a manual, 12 cups, tournament paper, pens and four Ping-Pong balls. This isn't Dixie cups with a pingpong ball – this is serious.

"What we do is we actually use quality products. The pingpong (balls) we have are at least one-star, two-star level. You're able to play in tournaments with that kind of level, and you're not having the pingpong ball fall apart. We also include towels, tournament paper, beer pong manuals on how to play, different variations, tips, tricks and strategies – stuff that you can probably find, but you'd have to search. What we're trying to do is bring it closer so people can immediately find that information and get the kit (and) get done," said Miller, founder of the BPAOA.

The idea came to Miller after he quit his old job and had some extra time and money. He saw a need among the student population and wanted to meet it.

So how does one play beer pong? There are many variations to the game. While it is not the popular style here, Miller said some colleges play with paddles and have bigger pyramids than others. It's all about the house rules.

"So what you do is you basically set up a pyramid ranging from three cups, and you basically pyramid out. Our kit has 20 cups, so you have a pyramid four deep. And then they fill up with beer, water – whatever your choice drink is – and then you have two different sides set up. Once you have that done, you pick your teams. Then the teams throw the Ping-Pong ball at the opposing team's cups. If it goes in, then that opposing team picks a person to drink that cup of beer," Miller said.

Whether students choose to buy the kit or choose to approve of it, Miller has made it available. For more information, go to www.bpaoa.com.

Illustration by Bennie Green | COLLEGIAN

The blotter

Arrests in Riley County

Reports are taken directly from Riley County Police Department's daily logs. The Collegian does not list wheel locks or minor traffic violations because of space constraints.

Monday, Nov. 7

- James Teel, Leonardville, Kan., was arrested at 8 a.m. for driving with a suspended license. Bond was not set.
- Brian Lane Sr., 1504 Hartford Road, was arrested at 9:40 a.m. for four counts of failure to appear. Bond was set at $5,500.
- Steven Johnson, 1210 Vattier St., Apt. 1, was arrested at 10 a.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,000.
- Marcus Lane, Ogden, Kan., was arrested at 10:15 a.m. for obstruction of legal process. Bond was set at $750.
- James Harrison, no address given, was arrested at noon for failure to appear. Bond was set at $595.
- Xavier Channel, 244 Westwood Road, was arrested at 12:20 p.m. for obstruction of legal process. Bond was set at $500.
- Lance Hinde, Salina, was arrested at 2 p.m. for failure to appear. Bond was set at $1,500.
- David Sohm, Junction City, was arrested at 2:15 p.m. for theft and failure to appear. Bond was set at $10,500.
- Leonard Anderson Jr., 4440 Tuttle Creek Blvd., Lot 48, was arrested at 3:30 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $786.37.
- Tera Weisbender, 1451 East Lane, was arrested at 3:30 for unlawful possession of drugs and paraphernalia and conspiracy to distribute cocaine. Bond was not set.
- Gerardo Diaz-Valdez, Leavenworth, Kan., was arrested at 6:45 p.m. for probation violation. Bond was set at $2,500.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

Campus Calendar is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A topic research class will be from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. today at Hale 408.
- "Sticks and Strings" will perform at 7:30 tonight in All Faiths Chapel.
- An Overseas Teaching Workshop will be at 7 tonight in Union 212.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Heather Luea at 10 a.m. today in Waters 329.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications appear in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Kristen Roderick at 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

$3 OFF Full Set White Tips with student ID and coupon expires 11/20/05
KNAILS 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-2444

ONE HOUR MASSAGE $35 w/ KSU Student ID
BODY FIRST 2308 Anderson Ave (785) 587-8300

dependable, quality service
YOU are always #1 with us!
Claflin Books and Copies

This Week...
GUINESS FEST '05
WEDNESDAY Open @ 4
$3 Guiness Bass & Smithwick's Pints
•You keep the glass!
$3 Jameson Drinks & Shots
THURSDAY Open @ 4
$3.25 Jameson Drinks & Shots
$3.50 Belfast Bombers
FRIDAY Open @ 4
$3.75 Guiness Bass & Smithwick's Pints
100 FREE T-shirts! Starting @ 5
1210 Moro O'Malley's ALLEY 537-0775

Now Available!
HOT ONES!
Served on Multi-Grain Bread...Goodcents Gold
Roast Beef 'N' Cheddar
Pastrami 'N' Swiss
Philly Jack Cheese Steak
Get 'Em While They're Hot!
Get Em' While They're Hot!
Mr. Goodcents Subs & Pastas
We Deliver! 539-1900
1317 Anderson
– Limited Time Offer –
Buy any regular price 1/2 Sub Sandwich and get the second 1/2 Sub Sandwich for only 99¢
Mr. Goodcents Subs & Pastas
*Valid on subs of equal or lesser value. Offer Valid at Participating Topeka, Manhattan, and Salina Mr. Goodcents locations. Not valid in conjunction with any other offers. Offer expires 11-30-05.

shout outs
are coming
Today!
to the Classifieds section
of the Collegian.
Check out our table in the Union for one FREE SHOUT OUT coupon!
Nov. 7,8,9
11 a.m. - 1 p.m.
$2 Guarantees YOU a voice in the Collegian!

Former editors receive award

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two former Collegian editors were recognized for their lawsuit against two K-State faculty members at the College Media Advisers convention in Kansas City, Mo., last month.

Katie Lane and Sarah Rice received the College Press Freedom award from the Associated Collegiate Press and the Student Press Law Center.

According to www.splc.org, the award recognizes a college student or college medium that has shown support for college press freedom.

"All of our staff believed they were the classic example of what we want young journalists to be," Mark Goodman, SPLC executive director, said.

In June 2004, Lane and former Collegian adviser Ron Johnson filed a lawsuit against Todd Simon, former director of the A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications, and Stephen White, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Rice joined the case in July 2004.

The lawsuit came shortly after Simon recommended Johnson's dismissal to White, citing an overall drop in the Collegian's quality. However, Lane and Rice said Simon's recommendation was based on content, and Johnson's dismissal was the result of questions about the Collegian's diversity coverage.

The case went to court in June 2005 and U.S. District Court Judge Julie Robinson ruled that Simon and White did not violate Johnson's and student editors' First Amendment rights.

Rice and Lane filed an appeal and their case will be heard in the 10th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in Denver early next year. Johnson removed himself from the case and did not seek an appeal with Rice and Lane.

Rice said when she received her award in front of college newspaper editors from across the country, she thought about when she was in their shoes.

"All college editors should have the right to make decisions about the content of their newspaper without fear their adviser is going to be fired," she said.

Lane said she and Rice were not expecting any awards when they decided to file the lawsuit.

"It was comforting to be reminded that a lot of people still care about he issue," she said. Goodman said he has confidence the district court decision will be reversed.

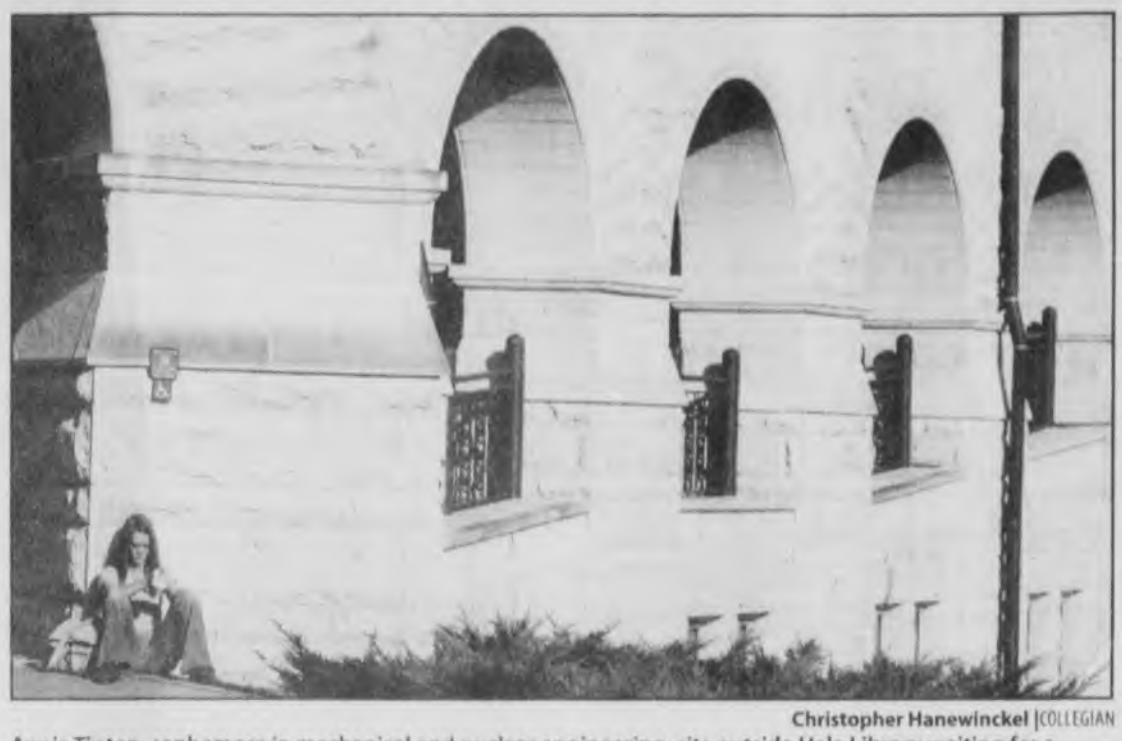
"A college university can not get away with taking punitive action against publications based on content decisions," he said. "If the school legally is able to get away with this it leads the way to much more censorship."

When asked what he thought about the appeal, White declined to comment.

Lane said she is worried about what could happen if the district court decision stands.

"I do think it does send the wrong messages if the decision stands because (Simon and White) don't think that they did anything wrong, but in all actuality they did," she said.

Lane said if the case stands it could lead to future censorship and that a stance must be taken now to avoid potential future problems.



Johnson said Lane and Rice didn't file the lawsuits for recognition.

"They did it because they saw the ramifications of the reassignment, how it could affect the Collegian, but also how it could affect college media across the country," he said.

Johnson said if the case is not reversed, it would be a bad thing for college media.

"It sets an evil precedent," he said. "We can send people your age to war. Why can't we give them to freedom to run their own newspaper?"

Students enjoy warm fall weather

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Annie Tipton, sophomore in mechanical and nuclear engineering, sits outside Hale Library waiting for a friend Monday afternoon. With warm temperatures lasting into November, students are taking advantage of the weather by utilizing outdoor spaces.

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sitting beneath a tree in the quad, Michelle Williams, sophomore in social work, and Cody Underwood, freshman in open option, took advantage of the nearly 80-degree weather and studied political science.

With their books and notes sprawled out on the leaf-covered grass, Williams said she was happy to be able to sit outside.

"It's too hot to be in the tutoring room," she said.

The National Weather Service recorded 77 degrees Tuesday in Manhattan.

Mary Knapp, state climatologist, said while the weather is warmer than usual, it's not abnormal.

"This is a feature of our winter weather," she said. "We would know the winds better as Chinook winds, where you can get very rapid warming conditions.

Knapp said the high temperatures are generally in the upper 50s to lower 60s during the first part of November.

Two factors contributed to the warmer temperatures.

First, southerly winds earlier in the week brought tropical air.

Then, when westerly winds came into Manhattan, they warmed the air with a "slightly different flavor," Knapp said.

"It makes for a nice warm period," she said.

However, the forecast for today is cooler because of winds coming out of the north and the remainder of the week will see more typical, cooler seasonal temperatures, Knapp said.

Knapp said despite the warm weather, students should begin planning for winter weather.

"They should check their cars, make sure they have antifreeze and their winter weather kit in their car," she said. "It's easier to deal with when things are nice."

Even so, with the warm temperatures, Sarah Burke, senior in Spanish and philosophy, was happy she didn't have to wear her jacket for at least a day.

Samer Hijazi, graduate student in electrical engineering, said the warmer weather allowed him to get around campus.

"If it wasn't nice, I would have stayed in my office," he said.

Underwood said although he doesn't mind cool weather, he enjoyed the warmth.

"We'll take it for as long as it lasts," he said.

Salaries rank below national average

By Chris Carpenter
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

At the Faculty Senate meeting Tuesday, members discussed a program that would help raise professorial salaries to meet national averages.

K-State salaries at all positions currently fall below the averages of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, but the biggest shortcoming is evident at the rank of full professor, some Senate members argued.

The 2003-2004 salary for a full professor was 19.8 percent less than the NASULGC averages, Frank Spikes, professor in educational leadership, said.

K-State professors discussed an attempt to narrow the salary gap with the Professorial Performance Award, a program that will gradually increase professor salaries. This would help keep faculty from being lured away to other institutions, Spikes said.

"The intention of the program is to create an award that is added to a base salary," Spikes said. "It is not a one-time award, but rather an addition to the existing salary."

The first part of the plan has already been put into place, Spikes said. With this first step, salaries were raised to match a full-time professor rank. This will create a situation where new professors' salaries can be greater than professors' who already have full-time status.

With the second part of the plan, a performance-based promotion is planned that will award professors a recommended 8 percent of the average university salary increase – currently about $5,000 – for those who have been in their position for six or more years.

"A candidate would have to be in rank for six years, obviously," said Linda Brigham, head of the department of English. "They also must show sustained productivity to qualify."

The number of professors who could qualify for the award at this point is higher than what could be allocated in a single year. For this reason, the plan may be introduced in phases.

"If the cost of the total number of awards exceeds what is possible to budget, each recipient will receive a set percentage of the total award amount," said Spikes.

"After the first few years, this shouldn't be a problem."

LIVE TONIGHT
Nate Bagby & Seasonal Labor
$2 WELLS & $2 BOTTLES
TOMORROW NIGHT
In concert Nov. 10
Trevor Burgess & Pete Gile
LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville Manhattan
1115 Moro • 785-776-8770

Bake Sale
Every Wednesday
*Variety of cookies & breads
Shellenberger bottom floor 3-5 p.m.
For questions or orders call 532-4065
Visit www.oznet.ksu.edu/bakeclub
e-mail: bakeryclub@hotmail.com

In gratitude and celebration of buying, selling, and exchanging books in Aggieville for 20 years, we will be offering our inventory at a 20% discount throughout the remainder of 2005.
Please bring in your quality used books for trade or purchase.
The Dusty Bookshelf
700 N. Manhattan
785 539 2839

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Supportive services for pregnancy, parenting & adoption."
539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

infuse yourself.
2006 Ford Fusion and Other Great Vehicles!
Put your life in drive.
Register at www.fordcollegehq.com for a chance to win a new 2006 Ford Fusion, and other cool prizes instantly.
NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. A PURCHASE WILL NOT INCREASE YOUR CHANCES OF WINNING. LEGAL RESIDENTS OF THE 50 UNITED STATES (D.C.) 18 YEARS AND OLDER. VOID IN FLORIDA AND WHERE PROHIBITED. Promotion ends 12/31/2005. For Official Rules, prize descriptions and odds disclosure, visit www.fordcollegehq.com. Sponsor: Ford Motor Company, One American Road, Dearborn, MI 48126.
Ford LINCOLN MERCURY
05 college student purchase program
www.fordcollegehq.com

Flu Vaccine @ Lafene Health Center
Walk-in Flu Vaccine Clinic
Thursday, Nov. 10th
8:30—11:30 am
1:30—4:30 pm
Cost:
$13 shot
$22 intranasal
Students Only!
Only students at high risk for complications due to the flu will be given the injectable vaccine.
All other students will be offered the intranasal flu vaccine.
For more information go to: www.k-state.edu/lafene

Snip N' Clip
Hair cut stops
Student cuts $7.95
Highlite & color service available
3035 Anderson & 431 E. Poyntz
539-4043 776-6410
M-F 9am-7pm
Sat 9am-5pm

OPINION

TO THE POINT

Hale should not be used for socializing

Anyone going to Hale Library can attest to the frustration of dealing with the unwashed, Facebooking, computer hogging, overly loud, iPod-blaring masses.

Although those who wish to use the library for such unusual chores as studying and research sit on the fringe of modern society, we must celebrate diversity and allow them to go about their studious ways unimpeded.

To the point is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Michael Ashford
Johanna Barnes
Abby Brownback
Matthew Girard
Matt Gorney
Jonas Hogg
Curtis Johnson
Annette Lawless
Anthony Mendoza
Alex Peak
Catrina Rawson
Kristen Roderick
Dave Skretta

Although the majority of Hale goers will suffer from the loss of their social arena, we can only assume that somewhere in the remaining 82,276 square miles of Kansas will exist another refuge for those who lack homes in which to yak.

In addition to the talkers, we must seek to find a new home for the perpetual Facebookers and adherents of Yahoo! billiards games. Although they likely possess computers of their own – computers people are not in line to use – they steadfastly refuse to yield their coveted computer for such mundane things as looking up book numbers.

It is unfortunate the library must perform a sort of eminent domain on the useless majority to provide for the comfort of the productive few. One can only wonder what these people will demand next in their endless pursuit of respectful behavior.

It is time that Hale Library embrace the only real solution – get rid of work areas altogether. It is time to stand up to the advocates of productivity. Down with fact finding, up with Facebook.

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Matthew Girard EDITOR IN CHIEF	Johanna Barnes MANAGING EDITOR	Kristen Roderick NEWS EDITOR
Matt Gorney COPY CHIEF	Catrina Rawson PHOTO EDITOR	Michael Ashford SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless CITY/GOV EDITOR	Abby Brownback CAMPUS EDITOR	Alex Peak THE EDGE EDITOR
Jonas Hogg OPINION EDITOR	Anthony Mendoza PRESENTATION EDITOR	Curtis Johnson ONLINE EDITOR
Dave Skretta WRITING COACH	Brad Simmons AD MANAGER	Andy Walter ASST. AD MANAGER

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103
Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....532-6560
Classified ads.....532-6555
Newsroom.....532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery problems.....532-6555

K-State's inferno

Campus library has parallels with 9 levels of Hell

KELSEY CHILDRESS

This is day one of your own personal hell. First, an annotated bibliography with four sources. Then, a five-page essay using those sources on a comparison between "Othello" and "A Doll House."

Where does one carry out such a torturous form of punishment? What purgatory is fit for this sentence of infinite pain?

It can only be one place, a pit of despair finished in 1997 at a cost of $29 million.

"Hell" Library, which has an eerie resemblance to hell in Dante's "Inferno," is the only place suitable to create such agony.

At the entrance to Hell, there is an inscription: "Abandon all hope, ye who enter here." This is Limbo, the first level of Hell.

Curiosity seems to override all the warnings that have been given by others who have visited Hell and managed to claw themselves out. It looks beautiful, but the most sinful temptations always are.

Don't be deceived by Hell's "architecture" – it is a trick to enter the second level of torture – Lust. Loins are warmed by thought of a quick and easy resource for research – primitive needs will be met here. This is an easy way to get into the third and fourth levels of Hell – Gluttony & Greed.

Entering the main level, wandering the rows of moveable book shelves, it seems so easy to give into temptation ... the possibilities of references are endless.

The ghost of Farrell Library calls to you from the "help" desk. He explains, to find a book, you must first look it up on the online database ... but then Farrell frowns.

Others who have been condemned to a punishment such as yours have taken up permanent residence at all the computers, but instead of carrying out their sentence, they are Facebooking like no other. They sure could use a strong poke right now; perhaps they deserve to be in Hell.

This stirs something inside the depths of one's body. No, it is not the loin-fire of excitement that was felt only a few moments ago. It is Wrath, the fifth level of Hell.

It contains the River Stacks, which, as Farrell explains, contains all the books needed to complete the assigned sentence of torment. However, it is not time in the journey of Hell to travel to the River Stacks; maybe a seat in the "Quiet Area" will ease the engulfing wrath that has consumed one's being.

A "Quiet Area" in Hell – what a ludicrous contradiction. The Blasphemous Heretics are all around, completing the sixth and seventh levels of Hell.

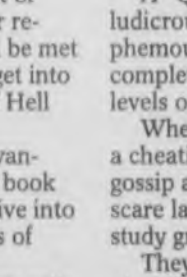
Whether it be complaining about a cheating boyfriend or spreading gossip about who had a pregnancy scare last weekend, these "group study groups" have it covered.

They have other time to complete this trivial "schoolwork" – now there are more important things to talk about.

Farrell returns and seduces you into the eighth level of Hell – he promises the preposterous idea – a "self-explanatory" map of Hell to help navigate the path towards the River Stacks. So simple, Farrell explains, even freshmen can understand it.

With this, Farrell leaves you to plot a route toward the River Stacks.

Heaven must be taking pity on your predicament, because a Facebooker has passed out with the euphoria from shooting up with enough friend requests to leave him in Nirvana just long enough to look up a book for your assigned penance.



Just find the call number ... here it is – PR2856950529.GHJGHP67, 2002.

This is your pass into the ninth level of Hell – the River Stacks. All you have to do is find the right level, hallway, aisle, entryway, stairwell and you are good to go.

What a journey one has had. Hell wasn't so bad after all. In fact, it should be placed right above sticking forks into one's eyes as one's most enjoyable experience.

Kelsey Childress is a sophomore in English literature and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Some still want 'unsliced bread'

JONAS HOGG

As the technological marvels of the world avalanche forward at increasing speed, we step back and examine with awe the wonders that are shaped by human hands.

The modern consumer is beset by technological improvement to what once worked just fine. "Why, it's the greatest thing since sliced bread," is what the marketing gurus tell us. But, how many of us have ever had unsliced bread?

It is an experience worth having, for those who are remiss. A whole loaf of bread, the entire glorious thing, can be found at various shops around town. If your timing is right it can be had still warm from the oven.

Slicing it is a 10-second matter, as thin or thick as you care for it to be, for choice is a glorious thing. Cover amply with butter, jam, honey or whatever suits your fancy and eat.

Experience it in all its glory, and see how you feel about returning to the sliced cardboard pawned off in the bread aisle at Wal-Mart.

There exists nothing new in the recipe for good bread. Yeast has been around for good long while, as has wheat. Satisfaction need not be a new release.

In a progress-driven society, it is likely only a matter of time before someone with too many college degrees finds a way to create new and improved bread. Madison Avenue will name it something catchy, like Bread 2.0, Digital Bread or Bread Xtreme, and will market it as "the greatest thing since regular sliced bread."

It will be undoubtedly crappy and undoubtedly a large seller. Because if we are raised to love anything, it's progress. "However did we live without Bread Xtreme," we will want to know.

So it is that we continue to replace what was good with what is mediocre, bad or simply unnecessary.

We have ceased to send and receive hand-written letters, because such things take time ... and stamps. So we log onto one of our four e-mail accounts and merrily send our electronic greetings to those around the world or across the street.

We have replaced true sentiment with Hallmark cards, pushed on us year round by the advertising giants. All that is necessary is to find something appropriate, sign it and send it off. How sweet, someone at corporate headquarters thinks I'm wonderful.

The real world that is around us goes largely ignored in favor of "The Real World" on TV. Sunrises, sunsets, throwing a football, walks, fresh air, sandwiches, autumn leaves and all the enjoyments that can be found are forsaken for a television show filled with people who were obviously not spanked enough as children.

Real dinner, prepared on a stove and eaten at a table is cast off in favor of Hungry Man frozen meals wolfed down in front of "Will and Grace" reruns.

Children seem increasingly immobile and perpetually net driven. We no longer worry about them falling down and breaking am arm, we now are concerned their new e-friend is Guido, recently released from the state Pen.

We leave behind that which is pleasant searching for that which is better. We believe that it exists, somewhere, perhaps with a built in DVD player. Maybe it hasn't been made yet. Maybe it never will be.

So it is that, even with all our technological miracles, some of us still clamor for unsliced bread. Perhaps, it is a taste of something simpler we are enjoying.

Jonas Hogg is a junior in sociology, international studies and Russian. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

illustrations by ELvis Achelpohl COLLEGIAN

CAMPUS FOURUM | 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Drinking doesn't cause bad grades. It's all about priorities and choice. If I choose to get plastered three times a week, then I have also chosen not to spend that time studying.

Thanks to the parking guys who are giving visitors what actual students paid for. Makes me proud to be a Wildcat when I walk to class 30 minutes late after finally finding parking in the llama lot.

To the loser who said to get rid of Snyder for missing one bowl game, when did we last go to a bowl game before Snyder? Yeah, shut up.

So, blocking off 200 parking spots in East Stadium O Lot is a great idea, it makes even more of us pissed off and miss class. Genius.

I'm no fan of T.O.'s antics, but banning him from the NFL? Are you serious? On what merit? I assert that Cederique Flemming shall be banned from the Collegian for conduct detrimental to the publication.

Maybe then women should be armed and then this serial rapist will be afraid of being shot and think twice about doing his nasty deed. He definitely has some issues in his life. I would like to meet him and pound my thoughts into his head with my fists about what he has been doing to the women of our community. He is a wimp.

I think it's about time Snyder fired some assistant coaches.

To the person who said Wooldridge needs to work on rebounding, what game were you watching? K-State out-rebounded EA sports All Stars 48 to 28.

Pirating things on the Internet: "Wait, that's illegal? No it isn't. I don't want it to be illegal therefore it isn't."

We will find our candy bowl, we do know where you live, and you will pay for what you have done.

I know I'm not getting any action in the dorms because I have the bottom bunk. And live in Marlatt.

So I'm taking Intro to PR this semester. It has to be the most boring and worthless class I've ever taken.

Your phone's as big as China. I feel so durable when I hold it.

My professor just sweat himself a bra.

You know what really grinds my gears? When people want to smoke but they never have their own bag.

What the deuce, Rice?

I just think Jonas Hogg should go back to middle school and learn not to be such a tool.

I think Jonas Hogg would be a really good person to jump rope.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Ignore your team like a true fan

SHANE SANDERS

It sounds crazy, but I contend that loyal fans, those who attend games whether their team is having a winning or losing season, hurt the team's future success. The more of them, the worse the team will do in the future.

Fair-weather fans on the other hand, those who flee when the season begins to get rough, help to ensure a more successful future for their (sometimes) team.

If you haven't turned the page yet, consider a place (the yuppie section of Chicago) in which fans support their baseball club (the Cubs) through thick and thin. The team carries on strong attendance in good years as well as in bad.

Consider another place (Miami), in which fans abandon their team (the Florida Marlins) at the first sign of adversity, only to shamelessly re-emerge when the club is winning again.

Now I ask the question: Which owner has more incentive to build a winning team? Is it the first, whose profit margin is tied loosely to the team's winning percentage, or the second, who earns his living by producing wins?

Marlins fans, by showing up when the team is up and disappearing when the team is down, are providing stronger incentives to the owner of their team than are Cubs fans.

If Cubs fans behaved like Marlins fans, they would ensure a marginally better future, and possibly a coveted World Series title, for their beloved team.

To amend an old adage, it can be said that quitters never win, but teams whose fans quit during losing periods probably win more in the long run than they otherwise would.

So before you criticize another fair-weather fan for jumping on the bandwagon at just the right time, think of their long-term contribution.

Shane Sanders is a graduate student in economics. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

School board's flexibility, sensitivity in decision-making to be admired

Editor,

The Thursday editorial in the Collegian, "School board should show more consistency" is ridiculous for ostracizing the Manhattan-Ogden USD 383 school board for being flexible.

Last November the school district was in dire straits, student enrollments were down and state support was low. With a bleak financial outlook the board decide to close Roosevelt School in May.

In February 2005, several board members, working with the city government, developed an ingenious plan to supplement district finances using sales tax economic development funds. The sales tax initiative was overwhelmingly approved by Manhattan voters last spring.

About the same time, Manhattan learned the 1st Infantry Division would be stationed at Fort Riley, bring with it families with school-age children. Then last summer, the Kansas Supreme Court determined funding for K-12 was inadequate and the legislators increased it in July.

In less than a year, the school system went from serious budget shortfalls to a probable increase in students numbers and significant funding increases. Considering these developments the board decided to keep Roosevelt open.

It appears the Collegian expected the school board members to have predicted all this would develop in the last year, or the board was suppose to ignore these recent events and close Roosevelt regardless.

Last year the possibility of closing Roosevelt was not an ideal situation, but faced with the loss of critical personnel, teachers, etc., it seemed the least damaging option. Why close a school when it may soon be needed?

This is not flip-flopping or a lack of consistency. It is intelligent, sensitive decision-making, something we all wish there was more of in government.

J. Scott Smith
PROFESSOR IN ANIMAL SCIENCES AND INDUSTRY

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Roosevelt decision best for district

Editor,

In your editorial of Nov. 3, 2005, you expressed concern about the Manhattan-Ogden USD 383 Board of Education's consistency in making the decision not to close Roosevelt School at the end of this school year. Although I was not involved with the initial decision-making process in fall 2004, it is my opinion that the board at that time made a well-reasoned decision based on the facts available.

Recall that the school district had faced many years of enrollment decline. Also, in the spring, prior to the closure decision, the Kansas Legislature adjourned without increasing state funding for schools.

For many reasons, it would appear that it was prudent for the board to have made the decision that it did – preparing for a closure, but waiting an additional year in the event that factors might change.

The decision to reverse the closure may be an issue of "consistency" to you. I submit that our elected representatives should be willing to reconsider issues based on new or different information.

The first elementary school enrollment increase – of 21 students this fall – since 1991, the announcement by Fort Riley officials about confirmed troop numbers, the Kansas Supreme Court order for the legislature to significantly increase school funding, the support from the Manhattan-Ogden voters of a quarter-cent sales tax, and a favorable local economic environment were all factors that the Board considered.

The Board carefully evaluated the new information and voted unanimously to rescind the closure decision.

Thank you for the opportunity to respond to your concerns.

Please let me know if I can provide any information about our school district's programs, services or operations.

Robert Shannon
SUPERINTENDENT
MANHATTAN-OGDEN USD 383

Pornography a serious addiction, not a direct cause of rape, sex crimes

Editor,

I was very discouraged by Kody Cooper's article in Tuesday's opinion section of the Collegian. I do not agree with viewing pornography, but his argument is laced with disparaging language, as he stands on his soapbox conferring judgment at anyone who dares pass, rather than rationally expressing his opinion.

Throughout the article, he compares Internet pornography to drug use. I'm glad he recognizes this, but he fails miserably in addressing the addicts as human beings, while he maligns them. I doubt he would similarly condemn alcoholics and drug addicts, while those addictions too harm loved ones.

I am disgusted how he likens pornography addicts to "violent rapists." I don't remember Jesus speaking so brazenly about pornography. Those sound like your hateful words, Mr. Cooper, not Christ's loving ones. Just because you place yourself on the same moral plane as Jesus Christ, please do not slap his name to your argument to justify your ignorance. Yes, rape is a sex crime, but it does not occur because men are horny or view pornography. It is a crime that revolves around exerting power over another individual.

Further, it is a gross generalization to say that all men only "find intimacy right before and during sex."

The next time Mr. Cooper shares his opinion, he should step off of his soapbox, nix the haughty language and think about what he is writing.

There is more to an opinion article than spouting off rash condemnation and the ability to use a thesaurus.

Meagan Hawthorne
JUNIOR IN SPANISH

Advertise in GAMEDAY
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 532-6560

sudoku on the Classified Page

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY pizza
$5.00 LARGE WITH PEPPERONI Carry Out Only
ALL DAY, EVERYDAY!
1150 Westloop • 539-3333

Optometrists
Dr. Mark Bettencourt & Dr. Russell Hart
539-2020
$20 off Next Contact Lens Exam
930 Hayes Drive Suite D
Across from Wal-Mart Tire Center

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS

Students' Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 3:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request.
for more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

We can't get you girls. Or boys.
We can't get you beer or cigarettes.
You won't be any cooler.
You won't be more attractive.
You won't be thinner, smarter, or suddenly wealthy.
But maybe, just maybe,
you'll get the experience you need to land a job that CAN get you those things...after college.

The Kansas State Collegian is looking for people who are reliable, show initiative, and are creative and enthusiastic. If this description fits you, please apply. Pick up an application and/or job description in Kedzie 103. The following positions are available:

Executive Positions Spring 2006
• Editor in Chief
• Advertising Sales Manager

News Positions Spring 2006
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists • Graphic Artists
• Graphic Artists • Online Journalists

Advertising Positions Spring 2006
• Assistant Advertising Managers
• Advertising Sales Representatives

Applications for executive positions due 5 p.m. Nov. 11. Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15.
Other staff applications are due 5 p.m. Nov. 16.

Get the experience you NEED.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

We Kick Ads! 532.6560

Taste of OLD CHICAGO

Try our new 3-Course Feast-ival of Flavor
Only $10.99
Limited Time Offer. See special menu for details.
1. Pick Your Starter
2. Pick Your Main Course
3. Pick Your Dessert
110 BREWS OLD CHICAGO PASTA & PIZZA
Eat. Drink. Be Yourself.
100 Manhattan Town Center • 3rd Street and Poyntz Avenue
785.537.3322 • www.oldchicago.com
Open daily 11am to 2am • Full menu until 1am

VOLLEYBALL

K-State focuses on offensive rhythm

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

There are many reasons the volleyball team has had difficulty pulling out a win in the past couple of weeks. Consistency, however, is one word rolling off everyone's tongue when discussing the Wildcats' problems.

"I think this team needs to be more consistent and we are not yet," senior outside hitter Agata Rezende said. "I think it's mental preparation because this team is so young and they have a lot of stuff going on in their minds. They feel more relaxed in practice, and I know it's hard to for them to be relaxed as they are supposed to be during the game."

Coach Suzie Fritz, on the other hand, refuses to warrant youth as an excuse. Her team's inability to find an offensive rhythm during matches is the greatest concern, she said.

In the Cats' (16-8, 7-7 Big 12) loss to Kansas on Nov. 5, outside hitters Joy Hamlin and Megan Kroeker had solid performances, but K-State's setting wasn't connecting, Fritz said.

"Today in practice we worked on offensive rhythm; trying to get our setter to get us exactly what we need at the same time, get our hitters in a better position to get us what we need so there's a little stronger connection between those two people," Fritz said on Monday. "I think that's what's keeping us from maintaining any kind of consistent level of play."

Hamlin said players are getting discouraged during games when something goes wrong. Once the Wildcats get behind, they have a hard time fighting back, she said.

"I think when we get into games, we lose focus," Hamlin said. "A couple of plays go the wrong way and we lose our focus. I think we need to have a more positive outlook – I think that will help."

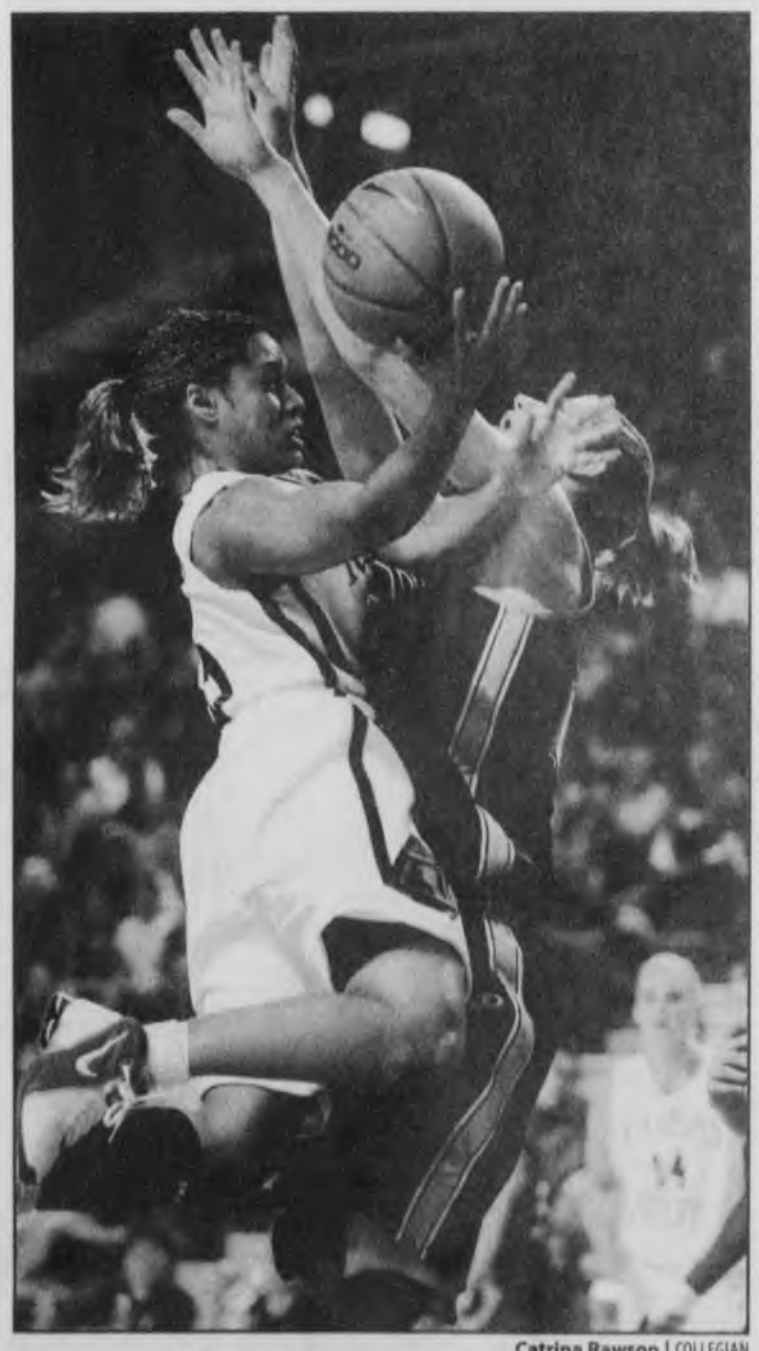
Aside from inconsistency on the court, her players have been struggling with off-court issues, Fritz said.

"I think our team has had to go through some difficult things this week, and I think emotionally, we are doing the best we can," Fritz said. "Volleyball is an important part of our lives, but in the grand scheme of things, when difficult things happen that challenge your thinking, it's hard to really stay focused on (volleyball)."

The Wildcats enter tonight's match in Lubbock against Texas Tech having won the two teams' previous contest 3-0 on Sept. 17, and eight of the last 10 encounters. At the same time, the Cats' loss to Kansas – which stifled K-State's 21-match winning streak against the Jayhawks – proved history doesn't always repeat itself.

Like Kansas, Texas Tech doesn't have the most impressive record at 11-14, 4-10 Big 12. Still, that's no reason K-State should approach the Red Raiders any differently than the No. 1 team in the country, Hamlin said.

"They're a team that will sneak up behind you, especially at home," Hamlin said. "They're not a team you can look past – we need to find our game and take it down there and play."



'Ugly' beginning

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Freshman guard Shalee Lehning dives for a loose ball during the second half Tuesday night against Emporia State at Bramlage Coliseum. Lehning scored eight points during her 19 minutes of action.

Wildcats edge past Emporia State in exhibition play

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

K-State's Twiggy McIntyre, junior guard, goes up for a shot while Emporia State's Denisa Svarova defends Tuesday evening at Bramlage Coliseum in the Wildcats first exhibition game of the season.

By Angie Hanson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The first 33 minutes of the 2005-06 women's basketball season was painful to watch at times, as reminders of last year's departed talent flashed on the Jumbotron.

"It was ugly; I'm sure I'm going to grit my teeth when I see the game film tonight and tomorrow," junior Twiggy McIntyre said. "But it's a win. That's all I can say."

McIntyre was arguably the reason the Wildcats pulled off a 60-48 win in their exhibition game against Division II Emporia State, as she scored six points and dished out two assists in the final four minutes to seal the victory.

"I didn't want my team to lose, and I was going to do whatever I had to do," McIntyre said, who paced the Cats with 12 points. "I wanted the ball to be in my hands at the end of the game, and I just wanted to finish it. It would be pretty hard to begin the season off with a loss."

It was actually the last seven minutes of regulation and a 10-0 Wildcat run, ignited by freshmen Shalee Lehning, Danielle Zanotti and Marlies Gipson and junior Claire Coggins, that enabled the Cats to turn around a 40-38 deficit and propel the explosive finish.

From there, the fate of the game lay in McIntyre, Gipson, sophomores Kimberly Dietz, Shana Wheeler and Carolyn McCullough's hands. Their last-minute display was reassuring, coach Deb Patterson said.

"I really loved the group that came off the bench. They came in knowing that it was on them to maintain and build that," Patterson said. "It was very impressive to me, the responsibility they took on their shoulders to do that and the pride they took in asserting themselves in those final minutes.

The starting lineup consisted of senior Jessica McFarland, McIntyre, Coggins, Wheeler and Dietz, but the performance of the first five proved anything but experience.

McFarland was the first to score for either team at the 18:11 point, and it wasn't until two minutes later that Dietz sank a 3-pointer – the first to push the Wildcat lead to 5-1.

The first of many different combinations occurred at 14 minutes when the four freshmen – Lehning, Gipson, Zanotti and JoAnn Hamlin – and McCullough made their debut. In the next seven minutes, the five extended the 7-1 advantage to 18-11.

Michelle Stueve, who eventually finished with a game-high 18 points, kept the Lady Hornets in reach by scoring nine points in four minutes.

Patterson said Stueve – a former Wildcat recruit – was not only a dominant presence against K-State, but a talented player overall.

"I think she is a tremendous player," Patterson said. "She's worked very hard, she's in a program that maximizes her. She was very impressive tonight."

One problem for the Wildcats was the reluctance of the players to shoot the ball when they stepped on the court, Patterson said, and once intensity increases, so will more second-chance scoring opportunities.

"I want us to be attack oriented," she said. "I think we did get a little passive once we missed a few shots, so that's something we'll need to learn. When you miss open looks it teaches you how you have to continue to compete hard, how good things don't always come from a good shot."

Still, Patterson was happy with the outcome, especially the display of her new players.

It was the freshmen, in fact, that combined for 28 of the Wildcats' points, led by Lehning and Zanotti with eight each.

Despite the ups and downs in the game, Lehning said her first collegiate experience was one to remember.

"It was amazing," she said. "This doesn't compare to anything, and being with our fans who are our sixth man, it was just amazing."

"It was ugly; I'm sure I'm going to grit my teeth when I see the game film tonight and tomorrow, but it's a win. That's all I can say."

Twiggy McIntyre
JUNIOR GUARD

Put down the microphone, pick up the basketball, practice

ANTHONY MENDOZA

NBA Commissioner David Stern can take away the platinum, the medallions, 'do-rags and throwback jerseys with his new dress code, but he can't take away the street mentality of the NBA players.

Street-tough Frenchman Tony Parker of the San Antonio Spurs joined a list of professional basketball players-turned-rappers this past week, announcing the release of his upcoming untitled album that features Parker rapping in his native language.

Parker already has recorded a song with East Coast rapper Fabolous, called "Top of the Game," which also features French rapper Booba. The music video is already shot, and features Spurs teammates Robert Horry, Tim Duncan, Nazr Mohammed and Brent Barry, who is about as hip hop as his father's underhanded free throw technique.

Parker is not the first to get bored with basketball and grab the microphone, and he probably won't be the worst.

That title goes to Kobe Bryant. His single "K.O.B.E.," a song featuring supermodel Tyra Banks singing background behind Bryant's lyrics, spells out Bryant's name letter-for-letter in the chorus.

A lyric that stands out from one of Bryant's songs never to hit the shelves was, "Uh, what I live for? Basketball, beats and broads."

Two out of three isn't so bad.

However, the ill-fated rap career wasn't all bad for Bryant. He made an appearance on Destiny's Child's hit single "Say My Name," and while filming his music video, met his future wife Vanessa, who at the time was a high school senior auditioning to be in the video.

Then there is, "The Answer." If anyone has a free pass to rap, it is Allen Iverson. Unfortunately he never cashed in on his ticket.

Iverson's failed attempt came in 2000 with the release of his single, "40 Bars," a reference to the number of bars in a jail cell. Under the alias "Jewelz," he spewed out hate against homosexuals and dropped the N-bomb more than a dozen times in his single.

Okay for Eminem to do, but not for the future Most Valuable Player and one of the most recognized players in the post-Michael Jordan era.

Iverson's rhyming skills were about as good as his shooting percentage, and with skills such as rhyming mystique with meat and street, and

See COLUMN Page 12

1-MINUTE DRILL

The Associated Press

NFL | Chiefs still awaiting word on Holmes' availability

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Chiefs were still waiting Tuesday to hear when — or whether — running back Priest Holmes can return.

Holmes

And when the three-time Pro Bowler is cleared to play again, it will be as the Chiefs' top running back — even though Larry Johnson has both of Kansas City's 100-yard rushing games this year.

Holmes sustained a mild concussion at San Diego on Oct. 30 and was held out of Sunday's 27-23 victory over Oakland. He was in Miami on Tuesday, getting a third opinion on his condition after seeing a specialist in California last week and was expected to return to Kansas City on Tuesday night.

NFL | Owens apologizes to Eagles, McNabb, fans

MOORESTOWN, N.J. — A contrite Terrell Owens, hoping to overturn his dismissal from the Philadelphia Eagles, on Tuesday apologized to coach Andy Reid, quarterback Donovan McNabb, the team's owner and president, and fans.

Owens

"I fight for what I think is right. In doing so, I alienated a lot of my fans and my teammates," Owens said, reading a statement outside his house.

His agent, Drew Rosenhaus, said Owens was making a public apology in hopes of returning to the Eagles immediately.

A team spokesman said the Eagles had no comment.

MLB | Urbina held pending attempted murder charge

CARACAS, Venezuela — Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Ugueth Urbina was arrested and held Tuesday pending a formal charge of attempted murder.

Urbina

Last month, Urbina and a group of men allegedly attacked five workers with machetes and poured gasoline on them in an attempt to set them on fire. All five were injured, some of them with cuts and one with burns on the back and right arm, police said.

Urbina, who was detained late Monday, has insisted he had nothing to do with the violence at his family's ranch Oct. 16.

MLB | Colon wins AL Cy Young Award, beats Rivera

NEW YORK — Bartolo Colon won the American League Cy Young Award on Tuesday in a surprisingly one-sided vote, becoming the first Angels pitcher in 41 years to take home the honor.

Colon, who led the league with 21 wins, was listed first on 17 ballots and second on the other 11 for 118 points in voting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. He was the only pitcher named on every ballot, easily beating out New York Yankees reliever Mariano Rivera, who received 68 points.

Rivera got eight first-place votes, while 2004 winner Johan Santana of the Minnesota Twins received three and finished third.

Dean Chance was the only other Cy Young Award winner in the Angels' 45-season history, winning in 1964.

SPT | Steroid bill penalties lightened to gain support

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Athletes who test positive for steroids would be banned for a half-season instead of two years for a first offense under changes made Tuesday to gain support for steroid legislation in the Senate.

The bill calls for a one-season ban for a second steroid offense and a lifetime ban for a third.

It would apply to Major League Baseball, the NFL, NBA, NHL and baseball's minor leagues.

The leagues and their players' unions say they should continue to set their own drug-testing rules and penalties through collective bargaining

Under current rules, a first failed drug test draws a 10-day ban in Major League Baseball (roughly 1/16th of a season), a 10-game ban in the NBA (about an eighth of a season), a four-game ban in the NFL (a quarter of a season), and a 20-game ban in the NHL (about a quarter of a season).

Film noir

Director makes debut with tribute to classic private-eye detectives, low budget

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang" is a movie that bends genres and defies classification.

Director Shane Black said his film is a departure from Hollywood's usual formulaic blockbuster fare.

"There are a lot of movies out there that cost a lot more and promise to deliver something more spectacular," Black said. "But this one is a return to a more independent type of filmmaking."

A well-known writer of films including "Lethal Weapon" and "The Last Action Hero," Black marked his directorial debut with "Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang."

While the film's $15 million budget, modest by industry standards, made it attractive to movie studios, Black's relative inexperience behind the camera made the project a big gamble, as did the film's innovative style and subject matter.

"Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang" pays homage to the hard-boiled private-eye detectives found in pulp mystery novels and classic film noir.

Black said he had to convince many executives that this type of film could still resonate with modern movie audiences.

"These films aren't really made anymore," he said. "You try to recall for people a type of filmmaking and then get them as jazzed up about it as you yourself are. That's the trick."

Two parts action, one part film noir, with a dash of romance thrown in for flavor, Black said the movie's screenplay did not turn out quite the way he had originally planned, actually better.

"To be quite honest, I tried to write a romantic comedy first and I blew it," he said.

"I couldn't do it. So I said 'Well, let's put a murder mystery in here and see what happens.' And then all the pieces sort of fell in place."

The film tells the story of Harry, a small-time crook who stumbles into a Hollywood casting session while fleeing the scene of a botched robbery.

Delighted with Harry's performance, the casting directors send Harry to shadow Los Angeles private detective Perry van Shrike to learn how to act like a detective himself.

Robert Downey Jr. plays the part of Harry, a character who the actor said shares an uncanny resemblance to himself.

"I've been prepping for Harry Lockhart my whole life," Downey Jr. said. "He's a thief from New York. I'm from New York. I stole stuff. He came out to L.A., and basically got roughed up by the industry and by his own stupidity."

Val Kilmer plays Harry's reluctant mentor. Perry van Shrike is a brutal, no-nonsense private eye, who also happens to be gay.

Kilmer said he loved the opportunity to turn the action movie stereotype of the hero who always gets the girl on its ear.

"It's very ambitious and irreverent, and I really had a fantastic role," he said. "You always try to be original and entertaining."

Downey Jr. said he initially wondered how the role would fit Kilmer, fresh from the Oliver Stone epic "Alexander," but was blown away by the results.

"It was as if Shane Black wrote this for him," he said.

"It's dynamic, interesting. Even though the character's proclivities are so different than his, it gave him a forum to be as witty, funny and self-effacing as you can imagine."

"Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang" also marks the first feature role of up-and-coming actress Michelle Monaghan ("Mr. and Mrs. Smith" and "North Country").

Monaghan plays Harmony Lane, an aspiring actress who enlists Harry to help her get to the bottom of her sister's mysterious death. The actress said she could identify with Harmony's insecurities, chiefly the fear that her best days may be behind her.

"I think Harmony actually embodies what I think a lot of women are, which is they're vulnerable," she said.

"I think we're all a little bit broken on some level, but we're also a little bit heroic. She's sassy and she's sad. She has all these different things going on, and that's what I loved about the script."

Early screenings of the film have won positive reviews from critics.

Black, however, said the only response important to him as a director is that of movie audiences.

"I don't have to have glowing reviews," he said. "If I think that people understand what I'm doing, then that's good enough for me."

Above: Val Kilmer (left) and Robert Downey Jr. star in "Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang."

Right: Val Kilmer in "Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang."

Michelle Monaghan in the upcoming movie, "Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang."
Photos Courtesy Warner Brothers production

Hip-hop veteran Common still dominates rap scene

"Be"
★★★★☆
Album review by Mark Sibilla

"I don't know Common, but I know I know what I like."

That of course is a play on the popular phrase, "I don't know art, but I know what I like." I was introduced to the music world fairly recently, however, I have managed to learn an enormous amount within only a couple of years. I am constantly coming across musical artists and acts that have been around for years, but I have only recently been made aware because of new releases. One such artist is hip-hop veteran Common (formerly Common Sense).

After picking up Common's latest, "Be," I regret that I have missed out on much of this talented Chicago master of ceremonies' career. Common, now 30-something, ancient in hip-hop years, shows signs of settling down (but not stagnating). He has created a tight, coherent album that, unlike most rap albums, never overstays its welcome. Nine of the 11 tracks were produced by Kanye West, giving "Be" a unified sound.

The album opens with the funkiest walking bass line I have heard in some time. Common raps his mission statement over a soulful string sample; he reveals a controlled optimism about what he sees happening today: "Bush pushing lies/Killers immortalized/We got arms but won't reach for the sky." He goes on to realize if he is to change the world, it will be through his daughter.

The following track, "The Corner," is a busy collage of production that sounds as if recorded outside on a busy inner-city sidewalk. Throughout the track, guest rappers The Last Poets declare the importance of the street corner to the black community as Common reminisces about an adolescence walking the ghetto streets.

West expertly backs Common with strong samples and tracks; the icing on the cake is the small flourishes that West adds to keep the album from becoming dull. Examples include the record-scratches and bongos that finish out "GO!" and the absence of a third verse in "Faithful" to allow John Legend and Bilal to soulfully finish out the song.

And what of the two tracks not produced by Kanye? Producer J Dilla falls in step to create the album's two beautiful ballads. "Love is . . ." creatively twists "God Is Love" by Marvin Gaye into a reflection on relationships; closer, "It's Your World," finds Common sympathizing with a Midwestern prostitute trying to make it to California.

Most amazing about "Be" is that, following its killer opening, side B manages to have the best moments. In the funky and soulful, "Chi-City," Common chides the stagnating rap scene with humor.

The following track, "The Food," is an energetic version of the song as heard on "Chappelle's Show." This live recording breaks up the flow of the album with the introduction and audience reaction, but such a minor quibble can be overlooked.

"Be" is a taut album that shows Common's maturity. Such a concise length creates a rap album with no tracks worth skipping.

It gives hope to aging hip-hop artists.

Maturity is nothing to fear; age brings experience and the ability to still make grand artistic statements.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

1862—Burnside assumes command
General Ambrose Burnside assumes command of the Union Army of the Potomac following the removal of George B. McClellan.

1875—Followers of Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse identified as hostile
On this day, Indian Inspector E.C. Watkins submits a report to Washington, D.C., stating hundreds of Sioux and Cheyenne Indians associated with Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse are hostile to the United States. In so doing, Watkins set into motion a series of events that led to the Battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana the following year.

1928—Poet Anne Sexton is born
Anne Sexton is born on this day in Newton, Mass.

1938—"The Night of Broken Glass"
The Nazis destroy Jewish businesses and homes in Munich, Germany, and beat and murder Jewish men, women and children in a massacre that later became known as "The Night of Broken Glass."

1956—Sartre Renounces Communists
French philosopher and author Jean-Paul Sartre — long an admirer of the Soviet Union — denounces both the USSR and its communist system following the brutal Soviet invasion of Hungary.

1960—Robert McNamara Named Ford President
In 1946, Henry Ford II, the president of the Ford Motor Company, hires 10 young former intelligence officers from the Air Force, a group the press soon dubbed the "Whiz Kids." Part of the genius of Henry Ford II, who was second only to his grandfather in business acumen, was his ability to find the most talented people in the industry and bring them into key positions in his rapidly growing postwar corporation.

1961—Brian Epstein meets the Beatles
Record store manager Brian Epstein goes to a Liverpool, England, nightclub called the Cavern to hear the Beatles. Two months later, he became their manager and helped them land their first record deal, in 1962. The "Fab Four" — Paul McCartney, John Lennon, Ringo Starr and George Harrison - recorded "Love Me Do," the group's first top-20 hit in the United Kingdom, in September 1962.

1967—Captain Lance Sijan shot down over North Vietnam
While on a mission over Laos, Capt. Lance P. Sijan ejects from his disabled McDonnell Douglas F-4C Phantom jet near Vinh, North Vietnam. Despite suffering a skull fracture, mangled right hand and compound fracture of the left leg, Sijan successfully evaded capture for more than six weeks.

1971—Sunday school teacher murders his family
John Emil List slaughters his entire family in their Westfield, N.J., home and then disappears. Though police quickly identified List as the most likely suspect in the murders, it took 18 years for them to locate him and close the case.

1984— Redgrave wins lawsuit
Actress Vanessa Redgrave wins a $100,000 lawsuit against the Boston Symphony Orchestra for canceling a scheduled performance of "Oedipus Rex," which she was hired to narrate.

1989—East Germany takes down the Berlin Wall
East German officials open the Berlin Wall, allowing travel from East to West Berlin. The following day, celebrating Germans began to tear the wall down.

One of the ugliest and most infamous symbols of the Cold War was reduced to rubble that was quickly taken up by souvenir hunters.

Source: The History Channel

All-weather workout

Columbia Frosty Ridge Gloves, Ballard's $14.95

Columbia Mad River headband, Ballard's $5.95

Moisture-moving clothing helps keep you dry, warm while exercising in winter

Nike Dri-fit Pro Short Sleeve, Ballard's $25

Columbia Crystal Trail Beanie, Ballard's $16.95

Nike Dri-fit Socks (3 pair), Ballard's $15

As an avid runner and someone who sweats constantly, workout clothes are the one thing I am willing to spend big bucks on.

The most important thing to consider when looking for clothes to workout in is how they deal with sweat. A regular cotton shirt just soaks up your sweat and keeps it there, weighing you down and giving your shirt an unsightly sweat pattern. Now that it is getting colder, you won't want to go home with a wet shirt no matter how heavy your coat is.

You'll want a shirt that keeps you dry as you work out. Many companies have developed fabrics that move the moisture away from your body allowing it to evaporate quickly rather than staying in the fabric.

Nike's technology is called Dri-Fit, "full-on moisture wicking for full-on workouts," according to the Nike Web site. Adidas's version of this is called ClimaCool and Reebok's is PlayDry. A basic white top from any of these brands will cost between $25 and $35.

The recent trend is toward tight, form-fitting shirts. All three companies also offer a line of these high-performance tees: Nike Pro, Adidas' BodyMapping Compression, and Reebok's NFL Equipment Stretch Mesh. Again, the price for a basic white, short-sleeve top will cost between $32 and $45, according to the companies' Web sites.

MATTHEW PETERWORTH

Don't just stop with shirts, though. All brands offer a wide variety of shorts as well. But be prepared to spend even more on shorts. The high-performance shorts have a lining that wicks the moisture away from the body. According to its Web site, Adidas' Competition Bermuda Shorts cost $45.

Let's not forget about underwear. You won't want moisture-moving shorts if you are wearing plain old cotton boxers that will keep your sweat indefinitely. Since some of these shorts have lining in them anyway, you'll have to go with briefs. The online retailer Road Runner Sports offers its own brand of underwear as well as some from Asics. Expect to pay $18 to $20 a pair for underwear that will keep you dry.

One final thing to remember is socks. No one likes coming home with wet socks. Look for socks made out of CoolMax, but Nike, Adidas, and Asics also make some out of their own fabric. Expect to pay about $7 a pair.

Matt Peterworth is a fifth-year senior in architectural engineering. You can e-mail him at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

Combining fashion, function key to looking, performing at top levels in all seasons

COURTNEY LAIR

As the temperature continues to drop, it becomes increasingly difficult to work up the motivation to get to the gym. This winter, instead of sporting a T-shirt and shorts and freezing your bum off on the way to the Peters Recreation Complex, check out some of the latest trends in workout clothes and other active gear designed to keep you feeling warm and looking hot.

For trendy girls who like to stand out, British designer Stella McCartney joined Adidas and designed a line of active wear that is simultaneously high-tech and high-fashion.

The collection features ultra-flattering cuts and colors that add a splash of subtle femininity. Every garment is bursting with performance-enhancing details such as reflective side stripes for night running and mesh inserts to keep you cool.

Girls who are constantly commuting from the Rec to campus might want to consider active wear that looks as appropriate on the streets as it does on the treadmill. Juicy Couture's track suits have established a cult following for good reason – they are perfect for working out, going to class and just lounging around.

Beyond their original signature velour, the track suits also come in cashmere, fleece and terry. They are available in an array of colors for fall and winter. Prices range from $75 to $150 and can be found at Nordstrom in Overland Park, Kan.

For equally appealing yet more moderately-priced active wear, Target offers a fantastic selection of half-zip fitted jackets and track pants in micro fleece, velour and a stay-dry Lycra blend as well as racerback tanks to layer underneath. Brands like Champion and Mossimo have pieces in colors like raspberry, turquoise, lime, red and periwinkle. Prices range from $12.99 to $29.99.

Ballard's Sporting Goods, 1218 Moro St., has a variety of Nike Dri-Fit pants, shorts and athletic tops. They also carry Under Armour, which is ideal for layering.

Other winter outdoor activities such as snowboarding, skiing or simply playing in the snow require special gear as well. The Pathfinder, 304 Poyntz Ave., offers coats and fleeces by Columbia and The North Face. Other cold weather accessories such as gloves, hats, ear and neck warmers and goggles.

Whatever winter activity you choose, don't forget that there is never any reason to compromise fashion for function. Ski bunnies and outdoor runners alike: be sure to deck yourself out in the most stylish, yet practical gear around.

Courtney Lair is a senior in apparel and textiles. You can e-mail her at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

Champion Racerback Tank, Target $12.99

Columbia Benton Springs Sweater, Ballard's $45

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
in the Collegian, the first friday of the month.

Check out SHOUT OUTS

in the Classifieds Today!

Olson's Birkenstock
539-8571 AGGIEVILLE 1214-B Moro
EDDIE OLSON & JOHANNA BURNISTON: CERTIFIED PEDORTHISTS

Pivot Point technique
provides the foundation to create and/or recreate all fashionable hairstyles. Visit your local up-and-coming young professionals at
Crum's Beauty College
Hi-Lites • Hair Color • Haircuts • Hair Removal • Facials • Body Treatments • Manicures • Pedicures • Artificial Nails • Relaxers • Straighteners performed by supervised students
REDKEN
november SPECIALS
RELAXER RETOUCH $22
STRAIGHTENER $2
PERM SHORT HAIR $2
Includes cut & style day of the service
ARTIFICIAL NAILS
MANICURE Hot Oil/French/Spa
expires Nov. 30
Crum's Beauty College
512 Poyntz • 776-4794

We Kick Ads! 532.6560

FABULOUS Open House Special!
25% STUDIO MERCHANDISE
November 11-13th Only
Manhattan Town Center Mall
Monday – Saturday 10 am – 9 pm
Sunday 12 pm – 6 pm
785-539-4400

MERLE NORMAN

Budgets can help balance students' expenses, income

By Dayne Logan
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Most students "graduate with two Ds: a diploma and debt," according to an article in Lafene Health Center's Student Health and Wellness magazine.

However, many students don't know how to prevent debt by maintaining a budget. The Health and Wellness article offers some simple budget advice.

The first step to setting up a budget is determining income. The article recommends students add up their scholarships, student loans, grants, family assistance, savings and monthly income and multiply the total by the number of months in school.

The second step is to figure out expenses. Common monthly expenses for college students include rent, food, utilities, clothing, personal care items and entertainment.

According to the Department of Labor, these expenses, on average, add up to $1,201 per month for adults under age 25.

The best way for students to come up with their monthly spending is to keep a log, Eric Higgins, associate professor in finance, said.

Higgins said students should look several months ahead when figuring their budgets.

Many expenses like tuition and books are not monthly expenditures, but one-time payments.

The third step in budgeting is to subtract expenses from income. If the result is negative, see step four.

Steps to creating a budget:
1. Calculate income
2. Calculate expenses
3. Subtract expenses from income
4. Make adjustments

Source: Lafene Health Center's Student Health and Wellness magazine

Step four is adjustment. Students can increase income – by getting a job or working more hours – or decrease spending to make income meet expenses.

There are logical steps students can take to reduce spending, said Robert Gamez, senior associate director of Office of Student Financial Assistance.

"It pays to shop around," Gamez said. "Students have choices of where to live and shop."

One thing students should not do is overuse credit cards, Higgins said.

Paying off student loans is a big enough burden, but with the added expense of credit card debt it can take years to break even, Higgins said. Once a bad credit rating is established it becomes difficult to get good credit rates.

"It sounds old-fashioned," Higgins said, "but use cash. When the cash is gone it's time to stop."

Melissa Gore, senior in mass communications, has two credit cards.

"It's like free money," Gore said. "Then I realized you have to pay (the money) back every month, so I stopped using them."

Bradley Shaw, associate professor of Spanish and director of international and area studies, poses with Kenneth Holland, associate provost for international programs, after receiving the 2005 International Educator Award Monday.

Courtesy photo

Shaw named 2005 International Educator

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Bradley Shaw has a passion for teaching, and that what local college administrators decided Monday afternoon, as they selected him to be the recipient of the 2005 International Educator Award.

Shaw, associate professor of Spanish and director of international and area studies, has worked at K-State since 1974.

Throughout his time, he has left quite a mark on the university, said Kenneth Holland, associate provost for international programs.

"He's a very kind person, and, for example, he won the advisers award in Arts and Sciences in 2004," Holland said. "He has put students first his whole career, being very student-centered."

Holland said Shaw is not only a great educator, but he also promotes students to explore other educational opportunities.

"He's encouraged students to study another language, to study abroad," Holland said. "And the first thing that I notice is students undergo personal growth when they go abroad. Students are more independent, fearless. Shaw contributes to that."

During the award luncheon, President Jon Wefald presented Shaw with a plaque and a $500 check. These awards, Shaw said, are only a small highlight in his commitment to students – to improve their understanding of other cultures.

"I am very concerned about our inability as a society to engage in meaningful dialog," Shaw said in his acceptance speech. "I am dismayed when my students seem unable to evaluate lectures because of their anger toward the speaker for what they perceive to be personal attacks."

Shaw, who was raised in Oregon, studied abroad throughout his collegiate career. He lived in Peru as an undergraduate student and in Ecuador in graduate school.

Through these experiences, he said he concludes that as nations engaged in international conflicts, diplomacy and communication need to be emphasized.

"We are in trouble as a society, until we can talk and listen to each other with respect and humility," Shaw said. "We need to find and celebrate common values. It does us great harm, it seems to me, to demonize our adversaries as evil or as traitors because their views differ from our own."

"We need to find and celebrate common values. It does us great harm, it seems to me, to demonize our adversaries as evil or as traitors because their views differ from our own."

Bradley Shaw
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF SPANISH

Inside the classroom, Shaw said he uses his love for Hispanic culture as learning tool in the classroom, giving students more to learn than how to speak the language.

"My reason for teaching and motivation that got me involved was my love for Hispanic culture and conveying aspects of that culture to American students ... it really focused on that desire," Shaw said.

"I trust that we share the desire for ongoing education as fellow international citizens of the 21st century."

K-State research funding increases by $10 million

By Adam Hanks
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State research brought in $110.8 million in grants during fiscal year 2005, an increase of about $10 million from the amount received in 2004.

The increase in grants is due to the initiative of faculty members, said Jim Guikema, associate vice provost for research and associate dean of the Graduate School.

"It's a cooperative and collaborative effort, and I'm just really proud of our faculty members whose initiatives have brought this increase in funding to K-State," Guikema said.

The amount of research funding at K-State has been steadily increasing since the mid-1980s, Guikema said. However, there have been recent funding surges.

"Here recently, we've had some major jumps," Paul Lowe, assistant vice provost for research, said. "But we've had steady growth for the past 11 years."

One of the reasons behind the increase is K-State's faculty, Lowe said.

"I just think that K-State has a very competitive faculty," he said. "It has the reputation of being a major research institution."

The grants K-State receives come from a number of sources, such as the National Science Foundation, the National Institute of Health, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Energy and the Department of Defense.

Each grant coming into K-State is the result of a faculty member's hard work, Lowe said. It is each faculty member's responsibility to find and apply for grants.

Currently, the Department of Biology leads the university in the amount of outside funding it receives. In the last 10 years, biology department grants have increased from about $5 million to about $10 million, Brian Spooner, director of the biology department, said.

"We have over 160 accounts total, and there are all kinds," Spooner said. "Molecular biology to ecosystems ecology, the length and breadth of biological diversity."

Much of the faculty's success is based on hard work and persistence. It is not uncommon for the first few attempts to be turned down, Spooner said.

"Federal funding agencies are now funding about one-in-10 applications," he said. "So if we achieve 50 grants in a year, that may be the result of 500 submissions. It's a major function of the faculty, because they've got to keep trying."

The amount of research funding a university receives is not necessarily representative of the quality of the institution, Lowe said. However, K-State's funding increase is among that of some of the best institutes in the nation.

"The increase at K-State is right at the top," Lowe said. "K-State is holding its own. It's definitely competing in the competitive research arena."

Advertise
in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 KEDZIE • 532-6560

K-ROCK BIRTHDAY BASH
$3.25 Bud & Bud Light Aluminum Bottles
Prizes, Giveaways, & T-shirts!
Rusty's LAST CHANCE SALOON

KSU Theatre & Dance and the Department of Music Present Pippin
the musical
November 17-19 at 8 p.m.
November 20 at 3 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
book by Roger O. Hirson music and lyrics by Stephen Schwartz Student: $9.50
Seniors: $11.50
Public: $13.50
by the creator of Godspell and Wicked
McCain Box Office
532-6428 weekdays
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.
www.ksu.edu/sctd

International Students in Agriculture Panel
Come hear as international students discuss agriculture policies and practices in their native countries!
Thursday, November 10, 2005
6:00 p.m.
Waters Room 231
Refreshments served following the panel.
Sponsored by Sigma Alpha

Greek Affairs to offer free class

By Hannah Crippen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Greek Affairs is offering a new greek leadership class.

Called Gamma Lambda Chi, this class is a free, non-credit course designed to enhance the quality of the greek experience at K-State. Its goal is to help students improve leadership skills and communicate with other members of the greek community, said Lisa Fant, assistant director of Greek Affairs, said.

"We are hoping to get a good mix of people, either with a leadership role in their houses or those who have the desire to," Fant said.

According to the application, the purpose of the program, which is open to all members of fraternities and sororities, is to discuss leadership, conflict, community, scholarship, risk management and service as they relate to greek life. Participants will talk about the purpose of being a member of a greek organization and the associated rights and responsibilities.

"Applicants should have a willingness to learn from other people, want to get a lot out of being greek, open to new ideas and proud of the greek house they're in," Fant said.

In weekly, Tuesday afternoon meetings, participants will learn the histories of fraternities and sororities and their governing councils as well as the values of being in a greek house, Fant said. Students will also perform a service project.

Kara Bowman, freshman in kinesiology, said she applied for the class to learn to be a better asset to the community and to her sorority, Alpha Delta Pi.

"I wanted to have an alternate class that I could take that would not only enhance my leadership skills as a greek, but also would help me develop my leadership skills as an individual," Bowman said.

Bowman also said she hopes the class will aid her in future leadership positions, including possibly a position on ADPi's executive board.

"If I am selected to participate in this class, I would definitely use it to help me learn how to become a better leader and, potentially, allow me to run for leadership positions in and outside of my sorority," she said.

Fant said Greek Affairs hopes Gamma Lambda Chi will soon be an accredited class through the Leadership Studies and Programs.

Travis Swanson, Interfraternity Council director of interfraternal relations, will co-teach the class with Fant.

"It's a great chance to meet other people in the greek system and also to learn more about yourself," Swanson said.

Swanson, senior in political science, said the class has been in the works for the last two years, but the resources needed to begin the class were not available until now.

Applications are available in the Greek Affairs office in the K-State Student Union. They are due at 5 p.m. Nov. 14 in the Greek Affairs office.

Class size is limited so notifications of acceptance will be sent out via e-mail the week of Nov. 14.

Bracelet sales benefit United Way

By Kelsey Childress
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Instead of yellow bracelets reminding the wearer to "Live Strong," the new trend on campus is a purple and white bracelet that says "Wildcats United."

These $1.79 bracelets are available at Varney's Book Store, the K-State Student Union Bookstore and www.varneys.com. Proceeds benefit the United Way of Riley County.

Mikaela Maschmeier said Steve Levine, assistant store manager for Varney's Book Store, approached the United Way and asked if it would like to benefit from proceeds from the bracelet sales.

"We said, 'Of course,'" said Maschmeier, resource development manager for the United Way of Riley County. "He pretty much has taken care of all of it."

Levine said Varney's has sold about 3,500 bracelets so far, raising about $2,000 for the United Way.

"We could have sold K-State bands a while ago, but we wanted (the proceeds) to go to a good cause," he said.

"We encourage students to buy the bands because the money stays in the community, and you can choose which program you would like the sales to go toward."

Kelley Sylvester, junior in pre-professional secondary education, said she bought a bracelet because she grew up in Manhattan.

"I wanted to help out the Riley County chapter of the United Way because I wanted to support my community the way it has supported me," she said.

Other students said they didn't know the bands supported a local organization.

"I was not aware that it supported the United Way," said Ella Todd, sophomore in pre-professional business administration. "I bought it to show my purple pride."

The United Way of Riley County helps fund 14 human service agencies, including American Red Cross to The Salvation Army.

For more information
To see the United Way's campaigns and volunteer opportunities, visit its Web site at www.unitedwayrc.org.

Advertise in the
118 KEDZIE • 532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
And then I said, "yes."
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm
The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.
Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment.

WHAT THE HECK IS PROCESSED CHEESE FOOD ANYWAY?
Chipotle
GOURMET BURRITOS & TACOS.
IN AGGIEVILLE

For cats who bleed purple.

2005
Principal/Counselor/Student Conference
Kansas State University
Wednesday, Nov. 9, 2005
LIST OF HIGH SCHOOL LOCATIONS
(All table and room assignments are in the Union Ballroom.)

Abilene HS - Ballroom Table #1
Andover Central HS - Ballroom Table #60
Atchison Co. Comm. HS- Ballroom Table #70
Axtell HS - Ballroom Table #2
B & B - Ballroom Table #3
Bennington HS - Ballroom Table #4
Bern HS - Ballroom Table #2
Bluestem HS - Ballroom Table #5
Buhler HS - Ballroom Table #6
Chapparral HS - Ballroom Table #7
Chase County HS - Ballroom Table #8
Cheney HS - Ballroom Table #61
Cimarron HS - Ballroom Table #9
Circle HS - Ballroom Table #10
Clay Center HS - Ballroom Table #11
Clifton HS-Ballroom Table #64
Concordia HS - Ballroom Table #12
Council Grove HS - Ballroom Table #13
Douglass HS - Ballroom Table #14
~~El Dorado HS - Ballroom Table #66~~ CANCELED
Ellis HS - Ballroom Table #15
Ellsworth HS - Ballroom Table #16
Eureka HS - Ballroom Table #17
Flint Hill Christian - Ballroom Table #18
Fredonia HS - Ballroom Table #19
Hartford HS - Ballroom Table #20
Haven HS - Ballroom Table #21
Herington HS - Ballroom Table #22
Hiawatha HS - Ballroom Table #23
~~Hoisington - Ballroom Table #24~~ CANCELED
Holton HS - Ballroom Table #25
Hutchinson HS - Ballroom Table #26
Inman HS - Ballroom Table #27
~~Jackson Heights - Ballroom Table #28~~ CANCELED
Jefferson Co. North HS - Ballroom Table #29
Junction City HS - Union Cottonwood Room
Lakeside HS - Ballroom Table #30
Little River HS - Ballroom Table #31
Lyndon HS - Ballroom Table #32
Maize HS - Ballroom Table #33
Manhattan HS - Union State Rooms
Marion - Ballroom Table #63
Medicine Lodge HS - Ballroom Table #34
Mill Valley HS - Ballroom Table #35
Minneapolis HS - Ballroom Table #36
Northern Valley HS - Ballroom Table #37
Olathe East HS - Union 208
Olathe North HS - Union 209
Olathe South HS - Union 212
Olathe Northwest HS - Union 213
Osawatomie HS - Ballroom Table #38
Piper HS - Ballroom Table #39
Pleasant Ridge HS - Ballroom Table #40
Quinter HS - Ballroom Table #58
Riley County HS - Ballroom Table #41
Rose Hill HS - Ballroom Table #42
Rossville HS- Ballroom Table #43
Royal Valley HS - Ballroom Table #44
Sacred Heart HS - Ballroom Table #45
Salina South HS - Union 207
Scott Community HS - Ballroom Table #59
Seaman HS - Ballroom Table #62
Shawnee Mission North HS - Union 206
Smith Center HS - Ballroom Table #46
Southeast of Saline - Ballroom Table #47
Spearville HS - Ballroom Table #48
St. Mary's HS - Ballroom Table #43
St. John's (Beloit) - Ballroom Table #30
St. John's (St. John) - Ballroom Table #57
Sterling HS- Ballroom Table #65
Stockton HS - Ballroom Table #49
Sublette HS - Ballroom Table #50
Sumner Academy - Ballroom Table #51
Thomas More Prep-Marion - Ballroom Table #52
Tonganoxie HS - Ballroom Table #53
Ulysses HS - Ballroom Table #54
Valley Falls HS - Ballroom Table #55
Wabaunsee HS- Ballroom Table #69
Wakefield HS - Ballroom Table #56
Waverly HS - Union 205
Wellsville HS - Union 204
West Smith County HS - Union 203
Wichita East HS - Union 202

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

A LARGE one-bedroom. Available January 1. Close to campus. Washer/ dryer. 1704 Fairview. (785)317-7713.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM duplex, close to campus, all appliances furnished. No smoking, no pets. (785)539-1975, (785)313-8296.

NEW TWO-BEDROOM ground floor apartment in older home, meets all codes, new appliances including dishwasher, very nice, 515 Bluemont, available January, no pets, laundry included, $620 plus utilities. (785)313-0462, leave message.

ONE-BEDROOMS $370-$490, three-bedrooms $700- $825. (785)537-7701.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment. Next to campus. Very nice. Clean, quiet. Water/ trash paid. Parking provided. No pets. (785)537-7050.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENT. Close to campus. Water and trash paid. Available October 1st. (785)539-1975 or (785)313-8296.

THREE-BEDROOMS AVAILABLE now. Close to campus. Water/ trash paid. Central air, coin-operated laundry. (785)537-7810, (785)537-2255.

120 For Rent- Houses

A TWO-BEDROOM house. Edge of town. Pets ok. $500, available now. (785)317-7713.

FOUR-BEDROOM, TWO bath, two blocks from campus. Washer/ dryer hookups. Deck with grill. Quiet neighborhood, nice yard, nice house. $1400/ month. Available immediately. Call (620)792-1933 or malonerental@yahoo.com

THREE-BEDROOM, THREE blocks south of Aggieville. Spacious, washer/ dryer, stove, refrigerator, central air. $675. (785)537-9425 or (785)532-4424.

145 Roommate Wanted

MALE ROOMMATE needed for three-bedroom house. $200/ month, next to campus, washer/ dryer. Available now. (913)579-2209.

150 Sublease

Roommates needed for four-bedroom next to campus. Two bath, washer/ dryer, dishwasher. No pets. (785)537-7050.

150 Sublease

ROOMMATES: MALE or female, pets okay. Rent negotiable. Washer/ dryer, large yard, one-third utilities. Call James (785)317-5006.

SPRING SEMESTER subleaser(s) needed. Nice, clean apartment. Close to campus and Aggieville. Cheap bills. No deposit. Discounted rent: $225/ month. Call (485)202-0678. Available December.

150 Sublease

SUBLEASER NEEDED for January 1. Spacious one-bedroom, close to campus/ Aggieville. (785)564-7134.

SUBLEASER NEEDED for spring semester. One-bedroom, one bathroom apartment, near campus. $450/ month plus electric. Call Caroline (785)564-1284.

SUBLEASER WANTED for spacious one-bedroom apartment with washer and dryer. Available mid-December. $375/ month. Call Jenny at (913)706-7361.

SUBLEASER WANTED. Spring semester. Four-bedroom apartment, two blocks from campus. $250/ month plus utilities. Contact Kelly (952)200-6842.

SUBLEASER(S) NEEDED. One block from campus! Water/ trash paid. Washer/ dryer included. Wanted for second semester. Call (316)288-9629.

shout outs

032 Shout Outs

COACH K. is full of --it and doesn't know talent when he sees it. He should be fired ASAP!!!

COLUMNIST GRANT R., The Fourum on some days and the criptoquip- good. The rest-bad!

CUTTER + "cutter" + ozzy = Trident of creepsters.

"DO YOU know Devon?"

HEY BIG head, this is nug,nug. I love you.

I LIKE big butts and I cannot lie... and there are plenty on campus.

I WONDER if the guys at 1011 Thurston know I upper decked them... 909 Rules!

I'M JUST chillin back in the cut, thick.

I'M CAUGHT up with the most amazing girl in the world- Anna Q!

LYDIA, YOU rock my world. You complete me. I'm nothing without you.

MMM, I love tasty Japanese food. I am the Panda! Eat with me at the International Student Center on Sunday.

TO HAMBONE- I moved here from Los Angeles, your school has no gymnastics team, this is a last resort!

MY FRIENDS ask me why I'm so bubbly all the time, I tell them that it's that husband of mine. Love you Ian R. L.

MY HOME girl Erin has some soft hair.

"THE DOG can't bite you if you grab it by the ears."

TO MATT in social work: Just wanting you to know that someone is thinking of you!

000 bulletin board

010 Announcements

"LEARN TO FLY!" K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call (785)776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

www.bobbyts.com CHECK OUT Manhattan's favorite restaurant and bar website. Lots of specials, entertainment, t-shirts, and gift certificates.

STUDENT NEEDING ride home occasionally to Parson, KS on weekends. Will share expenses. (620)421-3069.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

030 Post a Note

We require a form of picture ID (KSU, driver's license or other) when placing a post a note.

032 Shout Outs

DON'T LET the squirrels get you down.

EVERYTHING IS better in 3-D.

I LIKE big butts and I cannot lie... and there are plenty on campus.

I LOVE my haiku Kirk! Even better than the Fourum.

TO THE guy who told me to smile and called me cute, thanks for making my day! Sorry I couldn't come take your survey!

100 housing/ real estate

105 For Rent- Apts. Furnished

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 For Rent- Apt. Unfurnished

JANUARY 1. One-bedrooms. $335, no pets. (785)587-0399.

MONTH- MONTH Leases. Two-bedroom, $520. Three-bedroom, $620. 1510 College Ave. (785)537-2096.

NICE TWO-BEDROOM, walking distance from campus. Water and trash paid. Lease starts January first or possibly sooner. (785)672-2317.

ONE-BEDROOM APARTMENTS, available now and in January. Offering semester leases, call MDI at (785)776-3804.

THREE AND four-bedroom duplexes. Walk to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

TWO OR three-bedroom close to campus. Spacious, central air, dishwasher, laundry facility. Water and trash paid. (785)539-0866

120 For Rent- Houses

AVAILABLE NOW. three-bedroom, 908 Vattier, $750. Off-street parking. (785)313-2579.

ONE-BEDROOM. WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

THREE-BEDROOM, ONE bath, house across from campus. Modern appliances, central air, very clean. Available immediately. $350 per bedroom plus utilities. 1735 Anderson. Call KSU Foundation at (785)532-7569 or (785)532-7541.

VERY SPACIOUS three-bedroom, two bath, half duplex. Immaculate condition. All appliances included. Walk to Aggieville. $825/ month. (785)565-2432.

125 For Sale- Houses

LAKE HOUSE, two stories, 1,700 square feet. Large deck and screened porch, sand beach, boat ramp, great view! $139,500. (785)468-3531.

ADVERTISE HERE
Display Ads 532-6560
or
Classifieds 532-6555

135 For Sale- Mobile Homes

1995 SKYLINE 14x 52 with appliances. $9000 or best offer. (785)787-0373 in Salina.

2000 SCHULT 16x80. Three-bedroom , two bath, large deck, fenced lot located in Riverchase. Call (785)564-0904 or (785)565-8292.

HORSE LOVERS, two-bedroom mobile home, Barn and Corral, close to town. (785)537-9718.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Three-bedroom house. $290 plus utilities. Available immediately. (913)980-7859.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Three-bedroom apartment half block from campus. $250/ month plus one-third utilities. Call (785)342-1554.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: No smoking. Two-bedroom apartment. Close to campus. Off-street parking. Washer/ dryer. Available immediately. (620)481-9837.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: three-bedroom house for spring semester. Rent $320 plus utilities. Very nice house. (316)990-2046.

ONE BEDROOM available in two-bedroom apartment. Quiet non-smoker, pets okay. Call Nicole at (913)220-5854.

ROOMMATE NEEDED, January 1, for two-bedroom house three blocks from Aggieville. Walk to campus. Rent $300. Call (913)219-7801 or (913)638-2323.

ROOMMATE WANTED, $350, one-half utilities, Scott (785)341-5153.

SUBLEASER FOR one of four-bedrooms, University Crossing. Begins January. $275 monthly. Cable, trash, washer/ dryer furnished. (316)650-6563.

WALK to class. No smoking, no drinking, no pets. (785)539-1554.

150 Sublease

AGGIEVILLE LOFT. Lease from January- August 2006. Four-bedroom, two bathroom, new carpet. $350/ month. Moore Property Management. (785)537-0205.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Great apartment in Wildcat Village. http://www.village-rentals.com/ $350/ month plus one-third electric and water. Washer/ dryer in unit, basic cable included. Call Liz (785)456-4986.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted. Walking distance to campus. Large room. $300 plus one-third utilities. Available immediately. Please call (785)640-3288.

ONE-BED, ONE bath. $385, cable included. Pay for gas and electric. Call (620)694-7766.

ONE-BEDROOM. $395, cable/ water paid. Laundry/ pool/ hot tub on site. Small pets. Quiet. Available now. (785)375-3015.

ROOM AVAILABLE from January 1st. Washer/ dryer. Near campus. $265/ month. (620)560-3037.

SUBLEASER FOR one or two-bedrooms, University Crossing begin January. $275/ month plus cable/ trash/ washer/ dryer/ furnished. Deposit paid. (816)728-1019.

200 service directory

300 employment opportunities

310 Help Wanted

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such employment opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

Manhattan City Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in securing and holding employment in any field of work or labor for which he/ she is properly qualified regardless of race, sex, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2441.

!BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

GET PAID to drive a brand new car! Now paying drivers $800- $3200 a month. Pick up your free car key today. www.freecarkey.com

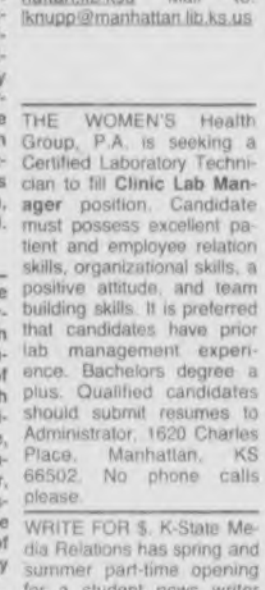
LUNCHROOM/ PLAYGROUND Supervisors-Hall Monitors: needed for the 2005- 2006 school year. $6.50 per hour, one and one-half- two hours per day. 11:00 a.m.- 1:00 p.m. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (785)587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

OUTBOUND SALES. CivicPlus is the nation's leader in producing custom-designed local government websites. Currently we are hiring part-time and full-time telemarketing staff to assist in our sales efforts. Must be a motivated self- starter with strong communication skills. Base wage plus bonuses equals about $18/ hour or higher. Email resume to jobs@civicplus.com in Microsoft Word or text format. Equal Opportunity Employer.

RETAIL SALES Clerk position available at McMillin's Liquor. Apply in person at 930 Hayes Drive Suite A. Must be able to work evenings and weekends.

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

PROGRAMMER. CIVICPLUS is hiring a full-time programmer. Microsoft ASP.NET and SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.



ROYAL PURPLE YEARBOOK staff is looking for a marketing assistant to help design promotional material, assist with yearbook sales and participate in marketing activities. Work on salary to help promote K-State's award-winning yearbook. Ten hours/ week. Start immediately. Call Lindsay Porter at (785)532-6557 for more information.

TECHNOLOGY TRAINER for the North Central Kansas Libraries System. Part-time position, average 20 hours a week, requires flexible scheduling to meet the needs of system members. Develops and delivers instruction to NCKLS member libraries. Three years of education and/ or experience working with computer hardware and software and conducting training or workshops in computer applications. Experience working in a library, teaching adults or older students, familiarity with variety of computer systems, and experience working with rural populations is desirable. The job involves considerable travel and driving within the 12 county NCKLS region. Apply before November 30th. Send a cover letter and resume to Linda Knupp, North Central Kansas Libraries System, 629 Poyntz Ave, Manhattan KS, 66502, or lknupp@manhattan.lib.ksu Mail to: lknupp@manhattan.lib.ks.us

THE WOMEN'S Health Group, P.A. is seeking a Certified Laboratory Technician to fill Clinic Lab Manager position. Candidate must possess excellent patient and employee relation skills, organizational skills, a positive attitude, and team building skills. It is preferred that candidates have prior lab management experience. Bachelors degree a plus. Qualified candidates should submit resumes to Administrator, 1620 Charles Place, Manhattan, KS 66502. No phone calls please.

WRITE FOR $. K-State Media Relations has spring and summer part-time opening for a student news writer who can produce articles quickly and accurately. Flexible schedule. Must be able to work 12- 15 hours/ week. Pay starts at $7.50/ hour. High school and college journalism experience required. Must know AP style and QuarkXPress. Must be available to work over the summer. Pick up an application in 9 Anderson Hall. Paid for by K-State.

330 Business Opportunities

400 open market

410 Items for Sale

THREE MEAT goats for sale. (785)396-4366.

WOMEN OF K-State: Don't become a sexual assualt victim. Keychain pepper sprayers on sale half price. Call (785)341-5294 or email hacman72@hotmail.com.

500 transportation

530 Motorcycles

1994 NINJA 600 4-cycle, 15,000 miles. Vance and Hines pipe. $2000, firm. (785)341-6972.

600 travel/ trips

610 Tour Package

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
www.usbski.com

630 Spring Break

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low prices guaranteed. Book 11 people, get 12th trip free! Group discounts for six plus. www.SpringBreakDiscounts.com or www.LeisureTours.com or (800)838-8202.

SPRING BREAK- Early Booking Specials- FREE meals and drinks- $50 Deposit- (800)234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com.

Sick of your Roommates?
FIND A SUBLEASER BY ADVERTISING IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

532-6555
Collegian

LET'S HELP OUR LOCAL CHARITIES.

Please consider a contribution to support our local charities.

THINK GLOBALLY. ACT LOCALLY.

Quiznos Sub
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

		6						2
8			3		5	4	7
			9	6			1
			2			6	9
3								1
	9	7			8
	8			3	2
	4	2	6		7			8
5						2

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

Bring in puzzle and receive FREE chips and small drink.

Graphic Design Internship

Advertising Design — Kansas State Collegian

If you are a graphic design major and would like an on-campus spring 2006 internship for credit, stop by for an application. Your art department adviser's permission is required. Application deadline is Friday, Nov. 18.

Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. for more information.

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS FOR MACTECHS

Student Publications Inc. at Kansas State University is accepting applications for a part-time position for Macintosh technicians beginning the first week of January 2006.

The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance.

Applicants should have experience with Mac OS X, OS X Server and its server administration software. Experience in any or all of the following is a plus: Radmind, Shell scripting and general troubleshooting ability along with knowledge of MySQL, PHP, and the Apache web server.

Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolling in spring semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.

Applications are available in 113 or 115 Kedzie or online at http://spub.ksu.edu/tech/application.html.

Application deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, 2005. Please include your spring 2006 class schedule. Return applications to 113 Kedzie.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 532-6555

ClassifiedRATES

1 DAY
20 words or less
$8.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$9.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$11.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$14.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word
(consecutive day rate)

TO PLACE AN AD
Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union). Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office is open except on holidays.

HOW TO PAY
All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $10 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

FREE FOUND ADS
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

CORRECTIONS
If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

CANCELLATIONS
If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

HEADLINES
For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

000 bulletin board
100 housing/ real estate
200 service directory
300 employment opportunities
400 open market
500 transportation
600 travel/ trips

FITZGERALD | 'Veterinarians should stand up against pet bans'

Continued from Page 1

destroy the animal." The judge also told Fitzgerald he would not see anymore ocelots.

"I've seen three since that incident," he said.

Fitzgerald said veterinarians need to stand up to non-veterinarians and lobby against unnecessary bans, such as those against pit bulls. Pit bulls bite as often as other dogs, and the biting is the responsibility of the owners, Fitzgerald said.

"We can't just sit on our hands," he said. "We need to be more vigilant and active."

Kevin Hargadon, first-year vet-med student, said Fitzgerald showed the comedic side of being a veterinarian.

"I didn't know he was that good of a comedian," Hargadon said. "But I knew he was that good of a doctor."

Diana Quinones, sophomore in animal sciences and industry, said Fitzgerald's humor was good for pre-veterinary students.

"He shows how veterinarians in the Midwest can be of significance in the medical world," Quinones said.

Fitzgerald presented veterinary medicine in a positive manner, said Carmen Yeaman, third-year vet-med student and president of college council of American Veterinary Medical Association.

"He inspires balance in life," Yeaman said. "He reminded us of the fun variety in veterinary medicine and that you never know what's going to walk in your door."

LIBRARY | Quiet zones will be enforced by librarians, campus police

Continued from Page 1

"We are avoiding areas where students seem to do group studies, and we are also avoiding areas where there is a service desk," Littrell said.

The quiet zones will be enforced by librarians who will monitor and patrol the areas.

"We can ask people to be quiet or leave," Littrell said. "Our policy is that if anyone in the library is being disruptive, we call campus police, but we really try to avoid that."

Students in the study area are asked to speak as quietly as possible if they must talk and to keep any music to themselves, Kearns said.

"You don't want your headphones so loud that the person next to you can hear everything," she said.

Another noise concern is cell phones. Overall, Littrell said common courtesy is important in the quiet zones.

"If you go into an area where people are being quiet, you should respect that," she said. "If you go into an area where a group is working, you shouldn't sit down and expect them to be quiet for you."

ALITO | Conservative nominee has history of ruling against abortion rights science department head, said.

Continued from Page 1

As a federal judge, Alito has also ruled against abortion rights in three-out-of-four rulings.

"If he is appointed, pro-choice individuals would be upset, and pro-life individuals would be highly in favor," Aistrup said.

Aistrup said if Roe v. Wade is overturned with the help of Alito's conservative vote, each state would be left to determine its own legislation.

"This overruling might set off another round of political battles in the state," he said. "It will create hotly contested races for statewide legislative offices."

Kansas has historically had a conservative abortion stance.

In 1991, approximately 30,000 protesters gathered at Cessna Stadium at Wichita State University in protest of abortion.

"He is strongly conservative, so I anticipate he will vote in a manner that is consistent with his views," Aistrup said, adding that he is not certain how Alito would rule. "Odds are better than not that he will vote to overturn it."

According to a CNN report, conservatives are comfortable with Alito's nomination because of his track record as a federal judge. If Alito is appointed, it would be the first time there was a Catholic majority in the Supreme Court in U.S. history.

Garth Hawley, sophomore in philosophy, said if appointed, Alito would overrule Roe v. Wade when it was relevant.

"I do believe he will try to overturn the case, but he won't make it a top priority on his agenda," Hawley said.

Hawley said students should be aware of the Supreme Court since its justices serve lifetime appointments.

"If Alito is appointed, Roe v. Wade will be a big part of our lives," he said. "A lot of this will be going on for the rest of our lives."

EVOLUTION | Some board members disappointed with vote outcome

Continued from Page 1

with intelligent design – it's an assumption," Ratra said. "Our whole modern society is kind of based upon science, medicine evolution. Teaching non-factual standards in Kansas classrooms is unethical, especially when these people were elected to do what's best for Kansas children."

Board member Janet Waugh was disappointed with the outcome, and said the state is bound to get the same flack it received in an evolution vote six years ago.

"We're becoming the laughingstock of not only the nation, but of the world, and I hate that," Waugh said.

However, the new standards will give students more academic freedom by "reducing the dogma that's being taught in classrooms today," board member John Bacon said.

While academic freedom is an important part of education, Ratra said the state should "teach whatever they want in religion class, sociology or philosophy class, but they should not impose this in science classes."

More than 200 years ago, people did not believe that the Earth rotated around the sun, Ratra said.

"There were even religious opinions that the sun went around the Earth," he said. "Is that right to have taught that misconception?"

With his 15-year evolution education background, Ratra said he had never fathomed a government body that would challenge facts and use the assumptions of religious-based intelligent design groups.

"It's going to completely degrade the value of an education in Kansas if this actually goes through," Ratra said. "This conservative majority just doesn't seem to care. It's very strange that they would ignore (national standards) and rewrite the science standards – they aren't qualified to do that."

COLUMN | Skills on the court do not translate to the microphone

Continued from Page 6

packaging riches with midgets, it's a wonder why he never made it on wax.

It's not always a bad idea to try the crossover. Look no further than Shaquille O'Neal. He first appeared on the Arsenio Hall Show in 1993 alongside Fu-Schnickens, who included Ali from A Tribe Called Quest, Def Jef and Erick Sermon.

In his latest CD, the sixth in his collection, "Hot in Here Part Five," O'Neal takes a swipe at Bryant, his former teammate, who he said forced him out of Los Angeles after the Lakers lost to the Detroit Pistons in the 2004 Finals.

In the song, O'Neal says: "Even with wings you never as fly as me, You remind me of Kobe Bryant trying to be as high as me, But you can't, Even if you get me traded, Wherever I'm at, I'm Puffy; you Mase and you're still hated."

Instead of failing in the rap game, these players should put down the microphone, pick up the basketball and do their job.

Put the ball in the basket. How hard is that to do when you're getting millions of dollars to do it? However, if rapper/producer Master P. can try to be a professional basketball player and 50 Cent can attempt to be an actor, who should stop Parker from trying to gain street credibility, even if it will fail miserably?

At least he has a fallback plan of a second straight championship and Desperate housewife girlfriend Eva Longoria.

Anthony Mendoza is a senior in print journalism. You can e-mail him at sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our advertising sales representatives by calling...
532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

$50 foil [with Shannon, Bri, Ashley, or Tara]
$40 Brazilian or 1/2 leg wax
$30 pedicure
$20 women's haircut
$10 men's haircut
shear dynamics
Where Beauty is Just the Beginning salon and day spa
1125 laramie • aggieville • manhattan • 785.776.9100

Read the Gameday edition Fridays before home games.

ICDD Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy
LECTURE SERIES IN CIVIC DISCOURSE
"Reclaiming Our Political Voice: The Need for an Institute of Civic Discourse and Democracy"
DR. DAVID E. PROCTER
Head, Speech Communication, Theatre and Dance
Director, Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy
NOVEMBER 9, 2005
3:00 P.M.
HEMISPHERE ROOM
HALE LIBRARY

Veteran's Day Celebration
Salute to America
November 11, 2005
7-9 a.m. Veteran's Day Breakfast
Tickets available in advance or at the door
$4.00 Donation
American Legion Post #17
114 McCall Road
9 a.m. State & Territorial Flag Display
Riley County Courthouse Plaza
9:30 a.m. Veteran's Day Honor Parade
12th & Poyntz Ave. from City Park to Manhattan Town Center Mall
Grand Marshall - MG Dennis Hardy
Commanding General Ft. Riley
11 a.m. Commemorative Program
Wareham Opera House
410 Poyntz Ave.
Speaker - MG Dennis Hardy
6 p.m. American Legion Veteran's Day Banquet
American Legion Members and Guest
Turkey Dinner - $10.00 Per Person
Reservations Preferred 776-4856
Pay at the door
114 McCall Road
Sponsored by Flint Hills Veteran's Coalition

Spring 2006 – On-line Courses
Kansas City Kansas Community College • 7250 State Avenue • Kansas City, KS 66112 • 913-334-1100
http://www.kckcc.edu/schedule/index.psp

Course Name
ACCOUNTING I
ACCOUNTING II
ADDICTION COUNSELING WITH SPECIAL POPULATIONS
ADVANCED SYSTEM MANAGER
ADVANCED VISUAL BASIC
ADVANCED WAN INTERNETWORKING
AMERICAN GOVERNMENT
ARCHAEOLOGY
ART HISTORY II
BANKRUPTCY
BASIC KEYBOARDING
BIOCHEMISTRY
BIOCHEMISTRY LAB
BLACK HISTORY
BUILDING CONSTRUCTION FIRE SERVICE
BUILDING FIRE CODES
BUSINESS COMMUNICATIONS
BUSINESS ETIQUETTE
BUSINESS LAW I
BUSINESS LAW II
BUSINESS MATH
C++ PROGRAMMING
CAMPING AND OUTDOOR EDUCATION
CARE OF CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES
CGI PERL
CHILD DEVELOPMENT
CLIENT MANAGEMENT PROCEDURES
COLLEGE CHEM II + LAB
COLLEGE ALGEBRA
COLLEGE CHEMISTRY I AND LAB
COMPOSITION I
COMPOSITION II
COMPUTER AIDED DRAFTING
COMPUTER CONCEPTS AND APPLICATIONS
COST ACCOUNTING
COUNSELING THE ALCOHOLIC AND DRUG ABUSER I
CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION II
CRIMINAL LAW FOR THE PARALEGAL
CRIMINOLOGY
CURRENT TOPICS AND ISSUES IN EXERCISE SCIENCE
CURRENT TOPICS AND TECHNOLOGY IN FIRE SCIENCE
CUSTOMER SERVICE
DOCUMENT FORMATTING I
DRAFTING FIELD PROJECT I
EARLY WORLD LITERATURE
ELEMENTARY ALGEBRA
ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE
ETHICS
EXERCISE PHYSIOLOGY
EXERCISE TESTING AND PRESCRIPTION
FIRE ADMINISTRATION I
FIRST AID
FORENSIC SCIENCE ANALYTICAL TECHNIQUES
FORENSIC SCIENCE ANALYTICAL TECHNIQ-LAB
FUNDAMENTALS OF EARLY CARE EDUCATION
FUNDAMENTALS OF RESPIRATORY CARE
FUNERAL SERVICE COUNSELING
GENERAL BIOLOGY
GENERAL CHEMISTRY
GENERAL PHARMACOLOGY
GROUP DYNAMICS AND ADDICTIONS I
HTML WEB PAGE DEVELOPMENT
HUMAN ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY
HUMAN DEVELOPMENT
HUMAN RELATIONS IN BUSINESS
HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT
HUMAN SEXUALITY
HUMANITIES II
INCOME TAX PROCEDURES
INCOME TAX PROCEDURES
INDUST INTRN COMPUTER
INDUSTRIAL INTERNSHIP (COMPUTER)
INFANTS AND TODDLERS I
INFANTS AND TODDLERS II
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY
INTERMEDIATE ALGEBRA
INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS CULTURES
INTRODUCTION TO HOMELAND SECURITY AND WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION
INTRODUCTION TO MASS COMMUNICATIONS
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WELFARE
INTRODUCTION TO TEACHING: CAREER AWARENESS
INTRODUCTION TO ENTREPRENEURSHIP
INTRODUCTION TO FICTION
INTRODUCTION TO ADDICTIONS
INTRODUCTION TO BUSINESS
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL GEOGRAPHY
INTRODUCTION TO HUMANITIES
INTRODUCTION TO INTERNETWORKING AND ROUTERS
INTRODUCTION TO LAW
INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL EDUCATION
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL SCIENCE
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL THERAPY
INTRODUCTION TO THE INTERNET
INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS LABORATORY
INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS
JAVASCRIPT
KINESIOLOGY
LEGAL POLICY IN VICTIM SERVICES
LEGAL RESEARCH I
LEGAL WRITING
LIFETIME FITNESS
LITIGATION I
LOCAL AREA NETWORKING
MAJOR ENGLISH WRITERS II
MANAGERIAL ACCOUNTING
MARKETING
MATH ESSENTIALS
MEDICAL TERMINOLOGY
MICROBIOLOGY
MICROCOMPUTER APPLICATIONS I (SPREADSHEETS)
MICROCOMPUTER BUSINESS SOFTWARE
MODERN AMERICAN LITERATURE
MUSIC APPRECIATION
NUTRITION
OIS FEATURES REVIEW
OCCUPATIONAL INTERNSHIP I
OFFICE PRACTICUM
OFFICE SIMULATIONS
ORGANIC CHEMISTRY II
ORIENTATION TO FUNERAL SERVICE
PATHOLOGY
PERSONAL FINANCE
PERSONAL SCHOOL COMMUNITY HEALTH
PHYSICAL EDUCATION FOR THE ELEMENTARY TEACHER
PHYSIOLOGY LABORATORY
PHYSIOLOGY
PICTORIAL DRAWING
POLICE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION I
PRE-CALCULUS MATHEMATICS
PRE-COMPOSITION
PRESCHOOLERS II
PRINCIPLES OF MACROECONOMICS
PRINCIPLES OF MANAGEMENT
PRINCIPLES OF MICROECONOMICS
PRINT READING
PSYCHOLOGY
PUBLIC SPEAKING
REAL ESTATE LAW
SMALL BUSINESS MGMT
SOCIAL PROBLEMS
SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY
SOCIOLOGY OF THE FAMILY
SOCIOLOGY
SPECIAL TOPICS IN ADDICTION: PHARMACOLOGY, HIV/MEDICAL HIGH RISK, ETHICS
SPEEDBUILDING I
SPEEDBUILDING II
SPORTS OFFICIATING
STATISTICS
Strategies FOR ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE/LIFELONG LEARNING
SUPERVISION TECHNIQUES
SYSTEM MANAGER
TECHNICAL INTERVENTIONS I
TECHNICAL WRITING
TECHNIQUES IN STRENGTH TRAINING
THE BIBLE AS HISTORY
THE GRIEVING PROCESS
THE LIVING BODY
TRAFFIC ADMINISTRATION AND CONTROL
TRANSITION CONCEPTS
UNITED STATES SINCE 1877
UNITED STATES TO 1877
VISUAL BASIC
WEB GRAPHICS AND MULTIMEDIA
WELLNESS, HEALTH AND SAFETY FOR THE YOUNG CHILD
WOMEN'S HEALTH: A TEAM APPROACH
WORLD CIVILIZATION II

"Making Life Better"
"An Equal Opportunity Educational Institution"